Council Approves Three City Water Projects

Undaunted by Roosevelt Park area petitioners, Wayne's City Council has asked engineers to prepare bid specifications on a three-part water improvement construction plan.

The plan would increase the size of mains in three areas of the city's water delivery system, including a line in the Roosevelt Park area.

Scheduled for bid specification approval during the Council's first June meeting, the projects will be offered as a three part package and as individual water improvement programs, according to Dennis Hirschbruner, engineer with Bruce Gilmore & Associates.

EARLIER THIS month, property owners in the Roosevelt Park area petitioned out of the water improvement district.

The petitioners were concerned about special assessment financing to underwrite an extensive upgrading of the water delivery system in their section of town.

Represented by former City Councilman Vernon F. Russell, a property owner in the proposed district, the petitioners expressed an interest in having the improvements, but on condition the cost was financed through general obligation revenues, rather than special property assessments.

At Tuesday's Council meeting, Hirschbruner said the property owners petition "doesn't stop water improvement projects" in the city. "It may bring the Roosevelt Park proposal to a temporary standstill," he said. "But, we can even salvage part of that project."

ENCOURAGING the Council to act "regardless of what happens in the Roosevelt Park area," Hirschbruner said if the city plans to upgrade the water system "now is a very advantageous time to do so."

According to the engineer, contractors are coming in with bids far below project cost estimates because of a sluggish economy that has slowed construction.

He told the Council members that his estimates show the city may save as much as $60,000 to $80,000 on the three-pronged water improvement package proposed during the meeting.

Hirschbruner backed his figures with examples of similar projects underway in other northeast Nebraska and northwest Iowa cities.

"THESE PROJECTS are not only needed, but eventually you are going to have to do them anyway, but at a higher cost," the engineer said. "I think you can save between $60,000 and $80,000 on them if you bid them within the next 45 days."

Reminding the Council that the new well was part of the overall water delivery system improvement project, Hirschbruner outlined proposed water main upgrading down Logan Street to Fairground Avenue and over to Windom Street.

The second project also involves increasing the size of the water main, this time along Ninth Street from Main Street to Pine Heights Road.

Originally, the line improvement project there had been proposed for 10th Street, the

Traffic, Sidewalks Stir Debate

Wayne City Council members played hopscotch on congested city intersections and sidewalk construction policy Tuesday night.

Mayor Wayne Marsh told Council members he had several complaints about congestion and heavy traffic on Dearborn Street between Fourth and Fifth streets near Villa Wayne.

He asked for Council opinions on what might be done to slow down the traffic there and ease the congestion created by parked cars.

MARSH EXPRESSED concern for senior citizens walking across the street in that block and said that older people were scared to use the street and sidewalks for fear of being hit by cars.

Councilman Keith Mosley suggested regulating the traffic with a clearly marked pedestrian crosswalk.

Nanny and Billy Were Just Kidding Around

ONCE UPON A TIME, on a farm just southeast of Wayne owned by Donna and Alfred Frevert, there lived a nanny goat who had twins, a little nanny goat and a little billy goat. Now, they were not gruff, as you may have heard in other fates, but they sure were frisky critters when it came to playing in the sun-warmed straw pile. And, play they did from sunrise to sunset, while their mother worried some and contented herself with nibbling the farmyard grasses that enriched her milk. Little nanny goat and little billy goat lived happily that spring with the baby ducks, baby chickens and baby rabbits found on their Frevert farm.

Wayne Man Is Killed In Car Accident At Jackson

Car, pickup and motorcycle mishaps killed two area persons and injured one this past week.

A weekend accident near Jackson, Nebraska has claimed the life of 24-year-old Mark Lowe of Wayne.

According to the Nebraska State Patrol, Lowe was driving an eastbound pickup 3/4 of a mile west of Jackson early Sunday morning when the vehicle crossed the center line and went off the westbound side of a bridge. The vehicle landed on its top.

JOHN Gillham of Pilger was killed Tuesday night near the Pilger recreation area. He was driving his car across a dry lake bed, according to the Stanton County Attorney's office, when the car got stuck.

Friends were attempting to pull the car free with a cable attached to a pickup, when the cable broke, whipped back and hit Gillham in the chest.

Gillham was pronounced dead at the scene.

CHUCK Thomas, Jr. of Wayne is in satisfactory condition in Sacred Heart Hospital in Yankton, South Dakota, following a weekend accident.

Thomas was reportedly involved in a motorcycle mishap near Gavins Point Dam, and sustained abdominal injuries and head trauma, according to hospital officials.

English Teacher Punctuates Career

"I never met a student I didn't like." With these words, Wayne High School English teacher Ann Meyer summed up her 20 years of teaching — five in rural schools, six at Allen elementary, and the past 14 years at Wayne High School, teaching English.

Mrs. Meyer cited the 20 mile trip she makes from her farm between Allen and Dixon to Wayne and back each day as the reason for her change to Allen public schools, which will take place in the fall.

HER BEST teaching moments have been at home nights when she grades papers. "When I read a really good paper, one that shows me that they have really understood what I have taught them and that they truly can write — that thrills me," she said.

These moments have mostly come from her high school teaching experiences, the level which she likes because she loves the challenge of high school minds.

"High school minds are older and more open to ideas, which I can throw out and the kids will discuss. I can talk to them and discuss things with them more, and nothing gives me a better advantage to do this than literature," she noted.

Mrs. Meyer also noted that there is "more camaraderie" at the elementary level, and it's "way, way different."

Even with the differences in the grades, Mrs. Meyer stands firm in her conviction that over the years, kids basically have NOT changed, as many of her colleagues believe.

"I WILL SAY that they are more knowledgeable and more sophisticated. But really, kids are still kids, and I think they're still wonderful."

Mrs. Meyer continued, "I never had any major problems with discipline other than one or two isolated incidents. If a teacher is not prepared, there will be trouble. I come into the classroom each day with the entire class planned out, and I have no problems."

Mrs. Meyer said she is happy to go, but does have some misgivings. She has nothing but warm words of praise for the Wayne School system.

"I think it is a privilege to teach here. I will miss the library and resources. No other library in northeast Nebraska has such complete facilities," she complimented.

IN CONTINUING her praises, she also said that "I couldn't have taught under a fairer administration. Dr. Haun and Dr. Zeiss have backed me all of the time, and provided me with the material that I needed."

When she begins teaching at Allen, Mrs. Meyer will have only three classes — a half-day of teaching. This will give her more time for her family: her husband John, and two children who are now grown

Her daughter Roni is a mother of two girls and lives in Narragansett, Rhode Island. Her son Robert is a captain in the Army and stationed in Laughton, Oklahoma.

Her hobbies include flowers, bridge, writing and reading. She would like to write the history of her local church.

THE HALF-DAYS will also give her more time to be at home, something rare since she embarked on her college education and teaching career. She earned her bachelor of arts and master's degrees in Education from Wayne State College totally through night and summer classes.

In summing up her feelings, Mrs. Meyer said that a teacher's responsibility is "awesome. We have to expand their minds, then let them decide."

She has decided for herself that "Kids are wonderful. I have been treated wonderfully, and I love the kids."

95 Grads

Wayne High Seniors Hear 3 Little Words For Commencement

While cool, gusty prairie winds were whipping the willows Sunday afternoon, 95 Wayne High School seniors graduated before a warmed Rice Auditorium capacity crowd stilled with expectation.

Invited into the world of the graduated by Nebraska businessman and Wayne native Robert W. Shively, the Class of 1981 received high school diplomas in an hour long ceremony that was moved indoors from a first choice Willow Bowl site.

Celebrating the 35th anniversary of his graduation from Wayne Prep School, Shively, director of energy applications for Nebraska Public Power District, Columbus, offered the graduates three little words: integrity, responsibility and enthusiasm.

Robert Shively

"THESE THREE little words can direct your lives to success, achievement, respect and happiness," the former general manager of Norfolk's Chamber of Commerce told the seniors.

"I want to leave you with a couplet that was told to me many years ago by one much wiser than I," he said. "This couplet has 10 words. Each word has two letters. These 20 letters say more to me than all the speakers I have ever heard and most of the books I have ever read. If it is to be, it is up to me."

Shively, who warmed up the capacity crowd with several opening stories, reminded the graduates that their job is not yet done.

"You still have much to learn in life," he said. "This is why we call these exercises commencement rather than conclusion."

The University of Nebraska grad said that in these fast moving times, the student who graduates today and stops learning tomorrow is uneducated the day after.

ASKING THE seniors to test themselves by examining what they say and write for the truth, Shively recalled Mark Twain's words: "When you always tell the truth, you don't have to remember what you said."

Citing several cases in which history has tested the truth, Shively said his father often described a less than-honest individual as a "man who would lie when the truth would serve him better."

Shively said there is an implication in that statement. He said it implies that there may be times when the truth would not serve one better.

"The older I get, the more I am convinced there is no time a person would not be better served by the truth than by the alternative," he said.

TURNING TO his second word, Shively called responsibility a seventh sense found only in man.

"I believe there is still a seventh sense — one possessed only by man — and that is a sense of responsibility, the urge to grow, to amount to something, to care for others," he said.

"Responsibility is not a burden, but an almost magical power by which, individually and collectively, mankind progresses."

Shively told the seniors that they and their community would grow, prosper and achieve in direct proportion to the development of their sense of responsibility.

Drawing an analogy between the Sea of Galilee and the Dead Sea, Shively said that just as there are two kinds of seas, there are two kinds of people — those who give of themselves and those who only receive.

"SOCIETY COULD not survive if we were all receivers," Shively said. "It is the givers — those with a well-developed sense of responsibility who contribute to the welfare of society and in the process achieve success and happiness for themselves."

Shively reminded the seniors of their own class motto: "Give to the world the best you have and the best will come back to you."

Giving the grads a derivation for enthusiasm — two Greek words meaning "in" and "god" — and enthusiastic people, Shively said: "No other quality contributes so much to happiness and successful living as the quality of enthusiasm."

He said the Greeks thought the enthusiastic person was one who reflected the presence of an in-dwelling god.

"WHAT IS enthusiasm?" he asked. "It is the magic power that puts the dreams in a young man's heart. It is the magic power that saves an old man from cynicism."

Referring to it as a contagious thing, Shively said: "You cannot be around an enthusiastic person without absorbing some of his enthusiasm. It is a strange paradox that you cannot keep your enthusiasm without giving it to others. You cannot use it up, frequent use adds to your supply."

After sharing his couplet with the crowd, Shively pushed the seniors into the world of the graduated. "When you are face to face with a question of integrity, only you can decide whether to lie or tell the truth," he said.

"ONLY YOU can decide whether to accept responsibility and take your place among those who do good in your community," he said. "No one else is responsible for your actions or your conduct. It is up to you. And, only you have the power to kill your enthusiasm. It's up to you."

Shively, whose past commencement speech schedule has included Wakefield, Winslow, Pender, Pilger and Hartington, laced his speech with several references to public officials, particularly with regard to integrity.

And, the thoughts tied into themes outlined by both salutarian Nancy Louise Nuss and valedictorian Kelly Marisa O'Donnell.

Nuss urged her classmates to follow their own dream, but cautioned them about the "many decisions that must be made."

SHE TALKED with her classmates about a world torn by violence. And obviously enthused about the prospect of "standing on our own two feet," Nuss cautioned her audience about the seriousness of making the world a better place to live.

O'Donnell urged her classmates to look beyond the borders of Nebraska for an understanding of the world.

Speaking after Shively, O'Donnell — in simple words — accepted the challenge of responsible leadership and asked her fellow senior to do the same.

Within moments she and 94 others crossed the Rice Auditorium stage to receive a diploma and congratulations from school officials and board of education members.

As camera-toting family members and friends jostled for position near the stage, popping flashbulbs alternated with names read from the faces of 1981 diplomates.

From Jeffrey James Allan to Nicholas Lee Zimmer they left bright-orange chairs on the auditorium floor only to return moments later, diplomas in hand.

Senior girls received the traditional rose, certainly no thorn in the sea of light and dark blue caps and gowns that soon marched from the auditorium — a Memorial Day memory.

71 Years — And They Still Have Eyes for Each Other

By LaVon Beckman

They were married at her parents' home west of Wayne on a warm spring day in May. She was 20 years old and he had seen his 23rd birthday.

On Sunday, May 31 — 71 years later — George Robert Noakes and the former Mabel Ruth Brooks will spend a quiet day together recalling their wedding day in 1910 and the many years following.

GEORGE and Mabel will spend most of their anniversary day together at the Wayne Care Centre, where George has been a resident since July of last year.

At 94 years of age, George is confined to a wheelchair now because of a back condition which has left him unable to walk. Although incapable of moving about as freely as he'd like, there's still the warm, loving smile and adventurous gleam in his eyes.

THOUGH she's never driven a car, Mabel has visited George every day except two since he entered the Care Centre nearly a year ago. "Once," said Mabel, "I couldn't get out because of a blizzard, and the other time I had the flu."

Thanks to her good friend Leona Kluge, Mabel leaves each day from her home of 36 years for a ride with Mrs. Kluge to see George at the centre.

After 70 years of never being apart — not even for one night — it wasn't an easy decision when George entered the Care Centre last year. Mabel took care of him at home for about four years, until, she says, he was no longer able to help himself.

GEORGE and Mabel first saw each other on a street in downtown Wayne when friends introduced them to each other nearly 72 years ago. George had moved to Wayne in 1904, and Mabel came with her family in 1908.

"We began dating and never broke up," says Mabel. "I guess you could say we were meant for each other."

Mabel, fondly glancing down at the engagement ring she received from George so many years ago, says they dated steadily for about a year before their marriage.

"And you know," smiles Mabel, "we've never had a fight all during our years of marriage." "Oh we had problems alright, but we always talked them over. Nobody got riled up."

FOLLOWING their marriage in 1910, George and Mabel made their home in Wayne for about 17 years, where George worked in a clothing business. The couple then went to Randolph, where they farmed 12 years before returning to Wayne and the clothing business. During this time George also operated the Phillips '66 station.

Then, back to farming one mile south of Wayne for 12 years. They sold their farmstead south of Wayne when they retired and moved to their home at 109 E. 5th St. in 1945.

When they retired and sold their farm south of town, George and Mabel purchased a farm southeast of Wayne, which is now being farmed by Ivan Freese.

GEORGE'S adventurous spirit kept the couple traveling on vacation trips throughout the country until George's health turned bad.

"We've been everywhere," smiles Mabel, "including 32 trips to California to visit family." "George, she adds, "has been in every province in Canada."

IN ADDITION to the many years of happiness, George and Mabel have also shared tragedy during their long years of marriage, including the deaths of their two daughters, Marjorie Ruth Johnson and Maryann Elizabeth Kemp.

Marjorie died three years ago at the age of 65 after suffering a heart attack. Her two daughters, both married, reside in Albuquerque and Chicago, and a son is married and lives in eastern Iowa.

Maryann died 39 years ago, 10 days following the birth of twin sons. Both sons are now married and work as architects in California.

"ALL IN all," says Mabel, "George and I have really had a happy life." "And," she says with misty eyes, "I love him as much as the day we were married — maybe more."

And George isn't complaining either. After all, he still gets a kiss twice a day — each time Mabel arrives and again when she leaves.

GEORGE and Mabel aren't making any special plans on the anniversary of their marriage this Sunday.

"We had a big celebration on our 50th anniversary, and George said that was the last," says Mabel smiling.

Chuck Ellis Action

Legion Ousts Norfolk 8-5

A three-run, two-out rally in the top of the seventh inning preserved the season opener Monday for the Wayne Juniors in the Chuck Ellis Memorial Baseball Tournament. Wayne eliminated Norfolk 8-5 at the Wakefield ball park.

The Juniors led throughout the game before giving up the tying run in the bottom of the sixth inning. It then took a three-run strike in the seventh to clinch the win.

WITH TWO OUTS Tim Pfeiffer started the attack by drawing a walk. He stole second base and moved to third on a passed ball setting up the go-ahead run.

Kevrin Nissen rapped an RBI single to give Wayne the lead again. Nissen moved to second base on a passed ball and to third on an error by the Norfolk second baseman. From there he scored an insurance run on another passed ball.

Tim Fleming and Al Lindsay combined to provide the final run in much the same manner. Fleming drew a base on balls and Lindsay came in as a pinch runner.

Lindsay stole second base as the pitch got away from the catcher and moved to third on a wild pitch. The throw from the catcher to third base was mishandled and Lindsay flew home for an 8-5 lead.

Pitcher Kevrin Nissen retired the next three Norfolk batters to preserve the victory.

WAYNE STRUCK early scoring four runs in the top of the first inning. Leadoff hitter Doug Proett walked. Jere Morris singled and Tim Pfeiffer singled to load the bases. With no outs, Nissen blasted a three-run triple. Fleming followed with a double which scored Nissen.

Wayne scored its other run in the third inning. Nissen doubled and scored on a single by Fleming. Nissen finished the day with a triple, double and single, 3 runs and 4 RBIs. Fleming had a double and two singles in three at-bats and drove in two runs.

Norfolk scored one run in the first, one in the third, one in the fifth and two in the sixth.

Wayne is scheduled to play Sloux Falls at 6 p.m. Friday in semifinal round action. Other first round winners were Wakefield, Bancroft and Sloux City West.

WSC Women Eliminated

The Wayne State College women's softball team returned home from the National NAIA softball tournament in Huntsville, Texas Sunday with one win and two losses.

The Lady Wildcats opened the tournament with a big win over Rockford College of Rockford, Ill., as they downed the Regents 13-3 in five innings. WSC scored in each of their four at bats and were aided by 10 Rockford errors to gain the first round win.

With one win under its belt, WSC played Sam Houston State and could manage only three hits while losing 2-0.

That loss put Wayne State against Central Methodist College from Fayette, Mo. The Eagles, from the Heart of America Conference, pushed across five runs to WSC's one to knock the Lady Wildcats out of tournament competition and close the season for the WSC women's softball team.

Fink Races At Riviera

The community of Wayne had numerous stock car drivers and a race track at the fair grounds back in the 50's. There were still a lot of drivers from the area in the 60's but it has been a few years since a stock car driver has raced out of Wayne.

Ron Fink, with his beautiful "number five" racing Camaro, has changed all of that. Fink races at Riviera Raceway in Norfolk on Saturday nights. In his first outing, the Wayne racer came from the back of a large field of late model racers to finish sixth in his heat. He later finished fifth in the 'B' feature.

FINK WILL START close to the front of the pack in this Saturday's races and is looking forward to higher finishes.

Riviera Raceway has scheduled a demolition derby as an added event this Saturday and will feature world famous Orval the Daredevil Clown in the June 6 races.

Blackburn 6th in NAIA

Wayne State College trackster Ed Blackburn finished sixth in the national NAIA 110 high hurdles Friday (May 22) with a time of 14.7 seconds.

Blackburn finished fifth in high hurdles in last year's national meet with a time of 14.19 seconds. His fastest time in the event is 14.1 seconds, which he ran last year in the Midland Invitational Relays.

Randy's Recap

According to Randy Hascall

THEY DID IT. The Nebraska School Activities Association pulled off a combined boys and girls high school state track and field meet with no major problems.

Running events ran unbelievably well and field events for the most part were handled well. The only exceptions were high jump, long jump and pole vault sessions that ran between one and two hours behind schedule. I said before the meet that I didn't think the combined meet could be handled without several problems. But I was wrong.

Many fans from the western half of the state were upset when the girls meet moved from North Platte and some had hoped that the first combined meet would bomb. But their hopes are gone.

The plan for a boys-girls combined meet is no longer just a conception. It is reality and will continue through future years. Just as the state volleyball tournament moves east from Kearney, so does most other state competition.

Someday, schools in the western part of the state may consider forming their own association and hosting western Nebraska state competition while boycotting the eastern state meets.

THIS YEAR'S state meet was filled with superb athletes. Some of the best athletes are Marty Kobza of Schuyler, Karlene Erickson of Wheeler Central, Jenny Stricker, Sue Lind, Mike Ockerman and Steve Doran.

Watching Kobza perform in the shot put and discus is like watching an artist sculpt. He is so smooth and talented that he draws a huge crowd in each event.

He is a master in the two strength events and his technique is unequalled in the state.

Erickson has been the fans' favorite every time I've seen her run. An 88-pound sophomore from a small town, she made her own success story in the state. The longer the race, the better she is. She is always the sentimental favorite. The fans love her and want her to win.

Add the name of Jenny Stricker to the list with Kobza and Erickson and you have three of the nation's best athletes at what they do. Lind, Ockerman and Doran are just a few of the other exceptionally talented athletes this state has produced.

INDY 500 fans have plenty to talk about these days. With the news about the disqualification of Bobby Unser and the championship trophy being awarded to Mario Andretti, Indianapolis followers were shocked.

THERE IS at least one good point to the proposed Major League baseball strike. If players go through with the strike, people will no longer have to watch the Chicago Cubs get whipped week after week.

Garvin Business Booms from Ankle Weights to High Jump Pits

By Randy Mascall
Lyle Garvin's trademark is a messy office. You could never tell by stepping into his office that Garvin runs one of the biggest sporting goods businesses in the state of Nebraska. But he does.

THE BUSINESS, is known in this part of the state as "Wayne Sporting Goods" but is really named Garvin Ellermeier Company (GEC). GEC manufactures ankle weights, jackets, football blocking dummies, school bags, pole vault and high jump pits and even boat covers.

In addition to the things he manufacturers, Garvin and his staff sell all types of athletic equipment including uniforms. Compared with any other sporting goods company, Garvin figures his company sells about 10 pits for every one sold by that business.

GEC pits can be found in South Dakota, Oklahoma, Kansas, Missouri, Iowa and Illinois as well as Nebraska. Garvin's pole vault and high jump pits have been used at the Nebraska state track and field meet for several years.

He has an agreement with the state committee which allows them to trade in a used pit and purchase a new one for $390.

THE PRICE is much less than the actual selling price for a new pit but Garvin feels it's well worth the loss in profit just to have a pit at state.

"It's good advertising," explains Garvin. "It's a good selling point."

Garvin's regular prices range from $1,250 to $1,435 for high jump pits to between $2,580 and $3,075 for pole vault pits. For the last 10 years, the pits have been made of solid foam. Before that, they were made of foam scraps.

Some of the pits first manufactured by Garvin are now becoming worn. Thus, Lyle said his company will now be getting into repair work. Some of the older pits will need new covers.

GARVIN GREW UP on a farm near Dixon. He tried farming but lost about 400 head of hogs in one year and decided to get into business of his own. Thus, in 1958 he got into the sporting goods business.

In 1962, Garvin Ellermeier Company was formed with partner Carl Ellermeier. Ellermeier coached track, cross country, football and basketball and was physical science and mathematics instructor at Wayne State College before his death.

Now 43, Garvin has his business running smoothly and efficiently. His wife Betty and five other women sew the athletic products in their store on east Highway 35. Another five women sew in their homes.

The business is well stocked with uniforms and various types of athletic equipment. Garvin receives orders from high schools and colleges across the state.

Garvin graduated from Dixon High School where he participated in basketball and baseball. He attended Wayne State Teachers College in 1935, '36 and '39 and played football during his final year.

Garvin was a referee for about 30 years and taught at a country school for four years. He made $90 a month and says that was the best job he ever had. "I was making $5 more than the principal and $15 less than the superintendent."

THE ORIGINAL Garvin Ellermeier Company concentrated strictly on the ankle weight business.

Now, the business is booming and pits are the biggest seller. Garvin says in addition to the many Nebraska high schools which have purchased his pits, so have high schools in Sioux City and Iowa City. Wayne State College and Chadron State College use Garvin's pits and even Kearney State has a high jump pit purchased from GEC.

Garvin recently signed a contract to sell pits through a Topeka, Kan. store. The Dixon native explains that he can sell his pits cheaper because he can reduce the freight cost.

To do this, he has a simple method which reduces the shipping size of his pits. For about the past three years, Garvin has used an insulation blower to reduce the manufactured pits to one third their original size.

Once the foam bases are completed, they are covered with plastic paper. The insulation blower is switched on in reverse and works like a vacuum cleaner to suck all of the air from the foam. In about five seconds, the huge hunk of foam is reduced to a much smaller form which can be shipped at a lower rate.

The procedure was discovered somewhat by accident one day while "just messing around" in the shop. The method is used on football dummies and any orders calling for chunks or sheets of foam. The old method involved smashing and squeezing the foam to reduce its size.

Garvin says he has sub-let the fabrication of the foam rubber to Les Luft Enterprises of Wayne, his neighbor to the east.

ANOTHER IMPORTANT feature of Garvin's pits is a two-piece cover. If one area of the cover is worn or torn, only half of the cover needs to be replaced.

The pits are the only ones Garvin knows of which do not have zippers. With the cost of brass, Garvin says it's impossible to use zippers and keep the price reasonable. So, he uses lock rings.

JACKETS ARE the second best selling product and ankle weights are not far behind. Garvin's ankle weights are strapped on with Velcro instead of tied with shoe laces.

Lyle, who is a well-known figure in Wayne and the surrounding area, hopes to someday have one of his pits used in the Drake Relays.

Although his business appears to have unlimited possibilities, Garvin says he is content and has no plans to expand. When asked if he has no plans to become a millionaire, Garvin replied, "I plan to start working on my second million since I gave up on my first."

LYLE GARVIN demonstrates his suction method for reducing the size of foam pits and blocking dummies.

Correction Made

A cutting under a picture in last Thursday's issue of The Wayne Herald identified a Tai-Kwando expert as Jerard Kohl. The name should have read Jay Kohl. Kohl, a former Wayne resident who won a black belt, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerard Kohl of Wayne.

Kohl has been a resident of Spirit Lake, Iowa for five years. The error is regretted.

Council

engineer said, but engineers revised the plan for Ninth Street based on cost of construction.

THE THIRD project involves running a larger main down Sherman Street from 11th Street to First Street, replacing the existing 4-inch line with an 8-inch line to improve water pressure.

Hirschbrunner said estimates, under normal economic conditions, would place a combined $339,000 price tag on the three projects. He told the Council he felt the three could be completed for around $278,000 "unless bidding waits until past mid-July."

The engineer told the Council he felt there was some confusion on the Roosevelt Park area water improvement project proposed earlier this month.

He said he felt the property owners were under the impression that the entire project was under special-assessment financing, but that no decision had been made. "The 6-inch line loop was to be special assessment, but that's all we had arrived at," he said.

THE ENGINEER said the proposed 12-inch line in the Roosevelt Park area was of top priority in terms of need, but that the construction schedule may start with the Ninth Street line, then move to the Sherman Street line to have the work out of the way before school starts.

In other water action, the Council postponed action on a six phase water emergency ordinance that is being designed to set up procedures for the city in the event of severe shortages.

The proposed ordinance went back to the drawing boards Tuesday night with a requested reshuffle regarding lawn watering. City Administrator Phil Kloster told the Council he felt watering laws were a recreational use and should be in the first phase of restrictions during an emergency.

Kloster explained that if the emergency ordinance was to restrict non-essential uses of water, then it was his personal opinion that lawn watering needed to be within the first phase of restrictions.

A discussion ensued regarding the city's authority to restrict the use of irrigation wells that tap the aquifer used by Wayne. Legal counsel advised the Council that the city would have that authority if a cause and effect relationship could be proven during a water emergency.

Several council members discussed the status of private wells within the city and whether their use also would be restricted. Legal counsel reminded Council members that domestic use has the highest priority.

then agriculture, industry and recreation.

SHIFTING FROM water to hydroelectric power, the Council approved by resolution the city's application for Western Area Power Administration electricity.

According to Kloster, the application simply requests a city power allocation in 1985 and beyond from WAPA, which generalizes some of the most inexpensive hydroelectric power in the nation — often only 25 percent of the cost of oil or coal generated electricity.

Furthermore, the Council authorized David DeVries of city consultants DeWild, Grant & Reckert, to prepare bid specifications on portions of the four phase city-wide electrical distribution improvement program.

The consultant presented the Council with an update on the $3.3 million, 20-year project.

Currently in the first phase, which has a planned completion date of 1982 and estimated price tag of $772,000, the massive project's cost has been estimated on a contractor basis, though much of the work is being done by city crews.

WORK IS COMPLETED on the first part of the first phase and on schedule for the second part, the consultant told the Council. He urged the city to initiate bid specification work for the third part of the first phase since that portion of the project required contractors.

The final part of the first phase, according to the consultant, involves substation and duct line for new circuits for a cost of some $167,000.

If the project is to be kept on the timetable, the consultant said, the city should be bidding the work by December. That means design and bid preparation this summer and early fall, he said.

In other action, the Council accepted a low bid from Western Engineering Co., Harlan, Iowa, for the resurfacing of East 10th Street along the southern edge of the Wayne State College campus.

Western Engineering outbid a Sioux City, Iowa firm for the contract which involves removing paving brick from the existing street and repaving with asphalt under Nebraska Department of Roads specifications.

The Harlan firm won the contract on a $307,490 bid, just $173,600 below the competing Brower Construction of Sioux City.

IN ANOTHER bid opening, this time for a trencher, the Council withheld award of the contract until Kloster could study the bids and specs with Vern Schulz, city maintenance superintendent.

Three bids were received with one failing to meet specifications, according to Kloster. In addition, Kloster said that Vakoc Construction of Wayne is offering a used trencher for sale. He said the city should consider the used trencher, even though it, too, did not meet specifications.

Estimated cost for the trencher is $13,500. The Vakoc machine is being offered for $9,500. Great Plains Distributing Inc., Omaha, bid $10,465 for a machine that failed to meet specs. Dilch Witch of Omaha and Sioux Falls, S.D., both offered machine bids. The Omaha bid was $13,430 and the Sioux Falls bid was $14,085.

COUNCIL MEMBERS also approved bid specifications for a half ton pickup truck for the city light department. The city is seeking bids on both a standard size and compact size pickup with options on standard and automatic transmissions.

Bids will be received until 8 p.m. June 9. Before adjourning the Council agreed, at the suggestion of the city administrator, to place the purchase of three new Civil Defense sirens in the budget for the next fiscal year, which begins on Aug. 1.

Kloster said best estimates show a cost of about $3,000 per siren. He recommended that the money come from revenue sharing funds during the 1981-82 budget.

The city is expected to order the sirens after budget figures are finalized, which means installation for next season. Kloster said Police Chief Vern Fairchild was asked to explore the possibility of sharing costs on a siren at the fairgrounds with Wayne County.

THE COUNCIL also approved an ordinance for code compliance regarding riding outside motor vehicles. The ordinance was needed, according to Kloster, for municipal enforcement purposes.

Council also agreed to prepare for sale a tract of land that the city purchased from the railroad several years ago. The land, old railroad right of way measuring 100 feet wide and a mile long, is northeast of town and is being farmed for weed control purposes by adjacent landowners.

The landowners want to buy the right of way, according to Schulz, who said it is of no value to the city once terms in a reciprocal agreement with the county are met later this summer.

Council members also appointed Bob Schleicher to the Wayne Volunteer Fire Department.

Traffic

Wayne City Council members played hopscotch on congested city intersections and sidewalk construction policy Tuesday night.

Mayor Wayne Marsh told Council members he had several complaints about congestion and heavy traffic on Dearborn Street between Fourth and Fifth streets near Villa Wayne.

He asked for Council opinions on what might be done to slow down the traffic there and ease the congestion created by parked cars.

MARSH EXPRESSED concern for senior citizens walking across the street in that block and said that older people were scared to use the street and sidewalks for fear of being hit by cars.

Councilman Keith Mosley suggested regulating the traffic with a clearly marked pedestrian crosswalk.

Vern Schulz, city maintenance superintendent, was asked about the availability of traffic control signs there. He agreed to install whatever the Council asked in an attempt to make the area safer for pedestrians.

MOSLEY SUGGESTED "some kind of caution sign." And, Councilman Larry Johnson suggested the pedestrian walkway be moved to the middle of the block.

City Administrator Phil Kloster asked about the "blind spot" there — a reference to cars parked on the street by the property owner, Police Chief Vern Fairchild.

Although he never referred to himself as such, Fairchild said: "I understand that most of those vehicles will be gone by the end of the week."

Construction of the street at the dead-end corner has left the property owners with no place to park a vehicle without blocking the intersection, Kloster said. "It's not the fault of the property owner, but it is a blind spot."

BEFORE THE COUNCIL adjourned, discussion ensued regarding a number of other "hazardous intersections" throughout Wayne.

Chief Fairchild asked if there would be any exceptions to a Council move to remove brush and trees from blind intersections.

Darrell Haier noted that the Nebraska Street and Seventh Street intersection was a problem.

Fairchild said he would do whatever the Council wanted as long as he had full Council backing.

"They're going to come complaining to you," he said. "I just want to be sure you know that...I can think of some people in this town who'll fight for their trees."

AT THE CLOSE of Tuesday's meeting, Council members pursued several minutes of discussion regarding the city's sidewalk construction policy.

Earlier this month, Councilman Gary Vopalensky reported that he'd had complaints from several contractors who felt they were being treated unfairly under the city's sidewalk ordinance.

The ordinance, according to the city's legal counsel, requires new sidewalks in areas of new construction, but does not set a compliance date.

After several minutes of discussion about the inadequacies in the law for enforcement purposes, Council members were told by legal counsel that the city had the authority to force sidewalk construction in new developments.

COUNCIL MEMBERS were also told the city could force repair of older sidewalks, but were on weak ground because of state statute problems in forcing construction of new sidewalks in areas that did not have them.

Several Council members balked at the suggestion that a compliance procedure be placed on the books. Vopalensky said that if there's an ordinance to cover it, it should be enforced or modified to make it enforceable, or abandoned.

Jim Holtgrewe, city planner and building inspector, said controversy arose on the matter when late fall construction completion postponed sidewalk building until this year.

He said most contractors had reluctantly agreed to comply if the Council forced the issue.

Family Safety Guidelines

Survival Tips on Tornadoes

Your family's survival in a tornado may depend on your taking some basic steps of preparedness now — before the storm warnings are issued — urges the State Civil Defense Agency.

The safety experts say that for tornado shelters, save lives, and they suggest that every family should have a shelter selected in advance. If a tornado warning is issued, you won't have time to look for a protected area.

All members of a family should know where to take best shelter in the home — away from windows, doors, and outside walls.

Go to the basement. If you have no basement, go to a first floor bathroom, closet of an interior hallway, at the center of the home. If possible, get under heavy furniture or cover your head with blankets and pillows.

If you live in a mobile home, tornado experts advise that you may be in grave danger, since such dwellings do not stand up to the tremendous forces of a tornado. Plan to quickly evacuate your mobile home during a tornado warning, seeking shelter in a nearby building or a ravine, ditch or culvert.

Some people have constructed underground tornado or bomb fallout shelters outside but adjacent to their homes. Such shelters provide the maximum protection.

If you live in a tornado prone area, be prepared. Hold a tornado drill in your home periodically, so all members of the family know where to go and what to do during a tornado warning. Your first drill also may show you the need for storing some items in or near your shelter area, such as a battery powered radio and extra batteries so you can monitor the latest weather reports.

Other items you may select for your shelter might include a first aid kit, any special medication, a supply of bottled water, and food that would require cooking.

The survival kit for the home should be designed for use during and after any severe weather, such as a tornado or winter storm. You could find yourself isolated and your home without power. Proper preparations could let you be totally independent and capable of surviving for a few days without outside assistance.

Opinion

Success of Thone's State Veterinary School Plans Questioned

By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

Gov. Charles Thone was being quite open when he acknowledged recently that a public opinion poll on the vet school bill influenced his opinion on the legislation.

Thone said the poll, coupled with strong legislative support, prompted him to sign the bill that represents one more step toward possible construction of a veterinary college at the University of Nebraska in Lincoln.

The poll, conducted for the Omaha World Herald, showed strong, although not unanimous, support for the Legislature's decision to spend $13 million on what probably is best called planning money.

THONE SAID the specific conditions contained in the bill also influenced his decision to go ahead and approve LB245 following its 35-14 passage by the Legislature. The conditions, in essence, mean the project will be scrapped if certain things don't happen.

First of all, Nebraska must enter into contracts with two other states, which would contribute $10 million. Some $13 million in federal funding also must be secured.

In addition, private contributions totaling $2 million are needed for the project to proceed. And those conditions must be met by the end of 1983 or the project is "no go."

But the bill that passed this year is not that different from a measure that was approved several years ago. Since the earlier legislation didn't get the project off the ground, there is some doubt as to whether this year's effort will be any more successful.

There has been considerable debate over whether Nebraska needs its own veterinary college. The option of contracting with other states to send Nebraska students to their vet schools is also considered a viable alternative by some legislators and industry spokesmen.

THONE, in approving LB245 this year, wasn't completely optimistic the vet school will become a reality. He's most concerned, it would seem, about federal support in light of determined efforts in Washington to cut federal spending and balance the budget.

"If there's any difficulty, in my opinion, it will come from the federal level," the governor confided. He predicts "a real tough fight in Washington."

But getting two other states to join the effort also could pose some problems. The legislation that passed several years ago authorizing a vet school in Nebraska also required other states to participate, but contracts with other states weren't signed.

Several states belonging to the Old West Regional Commission did express an interest in the project, but their active participation was never to occur, at least not under the provisions of the earlier law.

There are, however, some differences this time around that could mean success for efforts to establish a vet school in Nebraska.

FOR EXAMPLE, grassroots support is more evident and people who are active in the livestock industry have mounted a fairly successful fund-raising effort to prove to everyone that the industry wants Nebraska to have a vet school.

In addition, there appears to have been less talk this time around about studies that showed a surplus of vets down the road. A number of spokesmen for Nebraska's livestock industry say they want to train Nebraskans here to work in the Cornhusker state.

Plus there has been a lot of talk about research, which is something vet school supporters say could be a major benefit of having a College of Veterinary Medicine associated with the University of Nebraska.

REGARDLESS OF the pros and cons of the vet school, this year's law could be viewed as like the previous legislation unless vet school supporters mount a continuous drive to keep the proposal alive. That means lobbying in Congress, frank discussions with states that might want to participate, and lobbying in the Nebraska Legislature.

After all, passage of LB245 was just a preliminary step. More money will be needed from the state to get the project off the ground, and vet school supporters will have to have a strong case when they go back asking for more money.

As state and federal dollars become harder to come by, lawmakers and the governor will want to be sure before they provide the money that will commit Nebraska to establishing its own vet school.

RELIGIOUS SCHOOLS — The 1981 Legislature has more or less deferred until next year efforts to exempt church schools from state education standards.

Despite a strong effort to exempt Christian schools from state regulation, lawmakers narrowly rejected a parliamentary maneuver to consider applicable legislation this session.

And although the vote disappointed some, it was probably wise. The issue arose when lawmakers had only a week left in the session. Dealing with such a complex and somewhat emotional issue in haste would have been unwise and possibly opened the door for court challenges.

NOW LAWMAKERS will have time to study the issue in preparation for what no doubt will be a strong campaign in 1982 to pass the church school legislation.

It's been a long, tedious session, and lawmakers no doubt are tired. Dealing with a controversial issue after such a long haul is unwise, if not preferable.

Cooler heads will prevail next January, and that is the proper time to take up the issue again. Plus, the delay will assure the public of its right to partake in the debate. And that, if nothing else, is a good reason for delaying consideration of the issue.

Where Does It End?

From time to time any observer of government begins to wonder what we have wrought. So often — all too often — our representatives legislate common sense because someone without it has somehow set wheels in motion somewhere.

An excellent example is an ordinance passed by the Wayne City Council Tuesday night. The ordinance, titled "an ordinance to amend provisions relating to riding outside motor vehicles," looks innocent enough at first glance.

And, just maybe, it is innocent at second and third glance. But, when you begin thinking about it, you can't help but begin to wonder what we've come to when our conduct with — or in this case riding outside — a motor vehicle must be so governed.

The ordinance, perhaps very necessary for some reason known only to grandmother government, reads in part:

"No person shall permit any other person to ride on the running board, hood, top, fenders or in any other way clinging to the outside of any motor vehicle. Nor shall any person ride on the running board, hood, top, fenders or in any other way clinging to the outside of any motor vehicle."

It goes on to dictate how a passenger should conduct himself in the rear of a truck, excepting garbage haulers and emergency vehicles.

Whether or not the ordinance was passed for code compliance or enforcement purposes, the real question is whether or not such a thing needs to exist at all.

And, of course, the weirdest thing about it is that it does exist all over. We continually pass laws to regulate almost every form of conduct that can be described in legalese.

It's getting to a point in this country where we will soon have regulations on tooth brushing. That's where those caught wetting the brushes before applying toothpaste could be subject to penalties. Or depending on the pressure group, those who wait until the toothpaste is on the brushes to wet it all down may be violators.

At some point we just have to say "that's tough" to those who would stab themselves in the eye with their own toothbrush, or fall off the hood of a car while riding outside the vehicle.

Without common sense, we seem to have nonsense.

Camping Opportunities

Outdoor enthusiasts, ever conscious of the increasing cost of just about everything, should take advantage of the free camping opportunities available at 67 state and federal areas across the state.

It shouldn't be hard to find just what you're looking for in outdoor entertainment, and you can't beat the price. Plan your trip wisely and keep your gas money in your pocket.

Ranging in size from the huge Pine Ridge Division, Nebraska National Forest (50,853 land acres) to the three-acre Mormon Trail camping area, these free camping areas offer something for everyone.

Regardless of which area you select, you'll find that all of them offer the civilized amenities which can transform camping from a survival situation to a relaxing and enjoyable weekend. Sanitary facilities, drinking water, fireplaces and picnic tables are available at each location.

In addition, fishing is available at 50 of the 67 locations. You can hike at all of them.

So, whether you select the hills, trees and view of the Missouri River at Indian Cave State Park east of Falls City or the big sky aspect of the Wildcat Hills, 10 miles south of Gering, the opportunity to enjoy the fruit of your tax dollars, help boost Nebraska tourism, and take advantage of Nebraska's good life is there.

A reminder: Obey Nebraska's state park area regulations, a common sense approach to the outdoors which only means to leave things nice for the next guy.

State Senators' Salaries Debated in Legislature

Salaries for state senators has once again become a major legislative issue. This has been debated in several previous legislatures and has been contested for a long time, for several reasons.

State senators' salaries are set by the state Constitution wherein they have been established at $400 per month. Additionally, senators are reimbursed for one round trip to Lincoln during the regular session and receive usual and customary expenses for trips to Lincoln during the interim.

THIS YEAR'S attempt at changing the compensation level is being spearheaded by Omaha Senators Vard Johnson and Bernice Labedz in two separate bills. Both of these bills received second round approval this week. LB 138, sponsored by Johnson, would limit senatorial salaries to not more than one-third of that received by the governor.

Currently, the governor's salary is set at $40,000 a year. If another bill pending in the Legislature, LB 483 passes, this would be increased to $50,000 a year. This increase, however, would not affect Governor Thone, as the salary increase does not take place until after the next election. This then would mean that the state senators would receive one-third of that new amount.

An additional bill, proposed by Sen. Bernice Labedz of Omaha, would permit senators to be reimbursed for actual and reasonably necessary expenses incurred in the performance of their duties.

Merle's Message
by Sen. VonMinden

THIS WOULD ONLY impact upon expenses incurred during the legislative session. A senator takes home, after social security and other deductions, somewhere in the vicinity of $300.

As one must maintain an apartment in Lincoln, has substantially higher than normal food costs, and makes more than one round trip between the district and Lincoln, this would be a substantial relief on the financial burden of the senators.

Both of these bills must be approved on final reading and then the voters of Nebraska would be asked to vote on the issues. This is because it involves amending the state Constitution.

I remain convinced that in examining bills of this nature, we must be as fiscally prudent as we can be. We have to balance the need for fiscal restraint with a concern for the quality of person we want to attract as our state senator.

Gov. Thone Proposes 'REDDI' Made Plan

You, the citizens of Nebraska, have the power to reduce greatly the number of highway fatalities in our state.

The number of deaths on Nebraska's roads in the first three months of 1981 was 81, the highest for the January-March period since 1973, when 85 were killed.

Alcohol or drugs was listed as the single most common contributing circumstance in the fatalities this year. We must take drastic action to curb drunken driving in Nebraska.

"IN THE PAST there have been campaigns in the state intended to reduce drunken driving. These have usually involved only law enforcement officials.

"The state has now launched a campaign that not only has the cooperation of state county and local officials but also seeks the help of John Q. Citizen.

"If you see a car that appears to be operated by a drunken driver, please contact the nearest law enforcement agency as soon as possible by telephone or CB radio channel 9.

"Many citizens may hesitate to turn in somebody for erratic driving. May I strongly suggest, however, that the kindest thing you can do for a drunken driver is to get him or her off the highway.

"A DRUNKEN driver who is stopped by a law enforcement officer won't be behind the wheel again until after sobering up. The contact with a police officer may persuade a person never to be a drunken driver again. And for those who have a drinking problem, contact with a law enforcement officer often is the trigger for seeking help.

"The drunken driver who isn't stopped until he or she has killed someone, usually has his or her life ruined. And if you or I could have prevented that destruction of life and failed to take action, then you or I bear part of the blame.

"So if you see a vehicle that appears to be operated by a drunken driver, try to get a description of the car, the license number, the location and the direction the automobile is headed. Then, contact the nearest law enforcement agency by phone or CB. You will not be asked to identify yourself.

THIS CAMPAIGN, Report Every Drunk Driver Immediately, REDDI is being coordinated by the Nebraska Office of Highway Safety. The news and advertising media of the state are donating free time and space to remind you of the need for your help.

"In 1980 in Nebraska, drinking drivers killed at least 165 people and injured 3,150 more. They cost the people of Nebraska more than $34 million. Even though we're off to a bad start in 1981, we can reduce the total carnage associated with alcohol for this year if you and I and thousands of Nebraskans will take part in getting drunken drivers out from behind steering wheels."

Farmers Cope With Energy

By M.M. Van Kirk
Farm Bureau Federation

Efficient energy use and conservation is a critical dimension that farmers and ranchers must cope with if they are to keep their operations on a profitable basis for the long term pull.

This is one of several conclusions one finds in a booklet entitled "Energy and American Agriculture" distributed by the Federal Reserve Bank of Kansas City as prepared by its Research Division. The research report notes that since 1900 energy use in agriculture has changed dramatically.

Since 1910, the amount of land harvested in the United States has remained relatively constant. However, the average index of crop production in this country nearly doubled between the 1911-1920 period and the decade of 1967-1976 and the bulk of this increase can be accounted for by energy intensive technology.

WHILE THE average index of farm labor fell 74 percent, the average index for farm machinery rose 387 percent and for agricultural chemicals by 2,312 percent in that 60-year period. Researchers estimate that about half of the increase in energy inputs has gone to improve productivity (fertilizers and chemicals) while half has been used to replace labor with larger and more refined machinery.

The availability and relative low cost of petroleum products provided the thrust that made modern farming so dependent on energy intensive methods. As recently as 1972, gasoline for farm needs was around 30 cents per gallon, diesel fuel was 19 cents per gallon and LP gas about 15.6 cents per gallon, with corresponding low prices for natural gas and electricity.

Research analysts see no end to this increase in energy costs. The latest round of OPEC pricing puts crude oil at $32 per barrel compared to $2 to $3 at the beginning of the 1970s. As supplies tighten, some forecast $80 per barrel by the year 2,000.

To suggestions that U.S. farmers return to a more labor intensive agriculture, the experts have this response: "The U.S. system produces far more food per unit of total energy used than the typical system of developing countries with their intensive use of human and animal labor. Nonetheless, U.S. farmers produce in a market economy. As energy prices climb relative to the cost of other inputs, farmers will shift toward more energy-efficient production techniques. These shifts will likely occur rather slowly — as equipment wears out or becomes obsolete as a result of new and more efficient techniques."

BOTH THE Federal Reserve analysts and National Geographic's recent splendid summary on the energy outlook warn that no one should expect to see some great "breakthrough" solution that will permit everyone to return to an energy wasteful lifestyle. Energy experts do not expect any large contribution from new sources such as shale oil, oil from coal, or geothermal energy until the 1990s or later.

And the renewables — biomass, electricity from the sun, ocean thermal energy, wind power and so on — will also be slow to come along although the Department of Energy has been working toward a goal of 20 percent from those sources by the year 2,000.

The Federal Reserve summary urges farmers to use numerous methods of reducing their energy use. These include minimum tillage practices; more efficient fertilizer use through soil testing, maximum use of manure and crop residues and plentiful use of nitrogen-fixing legume/grass combinations; and use of the most efficient irrigation practices to save water as well as energy. Others considered are solar energy for crop drying and heat for livestock buildings along with proper insulation and ventilation for such facilities.

Collectively these conservation practices can represent millions of dollars in annual savings to the nation's farmers and ranchers and help to insure available agricultural fuel supplies in the years ahead. Energy conservation is a whole new dimension in the farm-ranch picture.

Mitchell to Speak at Convention

Paula Mitchell of Norfolk, Nebraska's entry in the 1980 Miss America competition, will be the keynote speaker at the 65th annual Nebraska 4-H Conference, to be held on the University of Nebraska East Campus here June 1-5.

The statewide event, which for many years was called State 4-H Club Week, will also include a number of workshops focusing on careers, human development and a knowledge of and participation in state government.

Four H members attending the conference will tour the NU Lincoln and Nebraska Wesleyan University campuses and visit Omaha businesses as a part of career exploration.

Johnson Receives Service Award

Virgil A. Johnson, U.S. Department of Agriculture research agronomist at Lincoln since 1952, will receive the department's highest honor award in ceremonies in Washington, D.C. on Thursday.

He will receive USDA's Distinguished Service Award recognizing his research on breeding wheat for nutrition and yield that has improved wheat as a food worldwide.

"Virgil Johnson is one of a few research scientists whose work has a major impact on the nutrition of large segments of the world's population," said Charles W. Alexander, Mid Great Plains Area director of USDA's Science and Education Administration Agricultural Research at Columbia, Mo.

Johnson pioneered wheat breeding research to increase wheat protein content as well as the amount of lysine, a nutritionally essential component of protein normally deficient in wheat grain.

Loans Above $5 Billion Mark

Steadily increasing land prices, limited supply of lending funds available to other lenders, and the Land Bank's ability to regularly meet agriculture's demands for long term credit are factors which have pushed the total loan volume outstanding for the Federal Land Bank of Omaha (FLB) above the $5 billion mark.

A.C. Buffington, FLB president, said the $5 billion loan figure represents capital channeled from the nation's financial centers to the rural economy of the region. Funds for the bank's lending activities are obtained through the sale of bonds to the investing public.

The Land Bank, which provides long term credit to farmers and ranchers in Iowa, Nebraska, South Dakota and Wyoming through local Federal Land Bank Associations, reached the milestone just 13 months after crossing the $4 billion mark.

Exports Represent Five Percent

"Nebraska wheat exports represent an estimated 5% of the total U.S. wheat export volume and value which meant $332 million in calendar 1980," reports Dan McGuire, Nebraska Wheat Committee Administrator.

Nebraska's total wheat export volume for 1980 was approximately 68 million bushels or 61% of Nebraska's total 1980 wheat crop.

Total U.S. wheat exports reached nearly 1.4 billion bushels in volume and accounted for $6 billion, $660 billion in value to the U.S. balance of trade," adds McGuire, "and wheat exports are even more meaningful than one might expect at first glance. In contrast to many other U.S. exports, wheat export value is not offset by any significant wheat import value."

Therefore the increase to the trade balance from wheat exports is nearly 100% on the net positive side. For calendar 1980, the total net positive agricultural trade balance was $23.9 billion meaning that wheat accounted for nearly 27.6% of that figure.

To the Nebraska wheat grower, Nebraska's 68 million bushels of wheat exports meant a gross income of approximately $245 million, based on an average seasonal price of $3.60. There are an estimated 22,000 wheat growers in Nebraska, meaning that on the average each grower's share of the exported volume amounted to 3,090 bushels. Based on $3.60/bu. the wheat exports mean $11,124 gross export income per grower.

Smith Announces Bread Contest

It's time to get out the flour, yeast and your favorite recipe to start practicing up for the Third Annual NEBRASKAland Days Bread Contest! Sue Smith, Wheat Division Home Economist, has announced that the Nebraska Wheat Committee, in cooperation with the Nebraska Wheat Hearts will again be sponsoring this event.

The contest will be held at the Western Heritage Museum in northwest North Platte on Wednesday, June 17. Entries will be received at the Depot, located at the Museum, from 9 to 10 a.m. on June 17.

Each participant is asked to bring his/her entry in duplicate. One will be sold to help defray costs of the contest, and the other will be judged. Ribbons for the winners will be provided by the Nebraska Wheat Committee.

North Platte merchants, flour millers and cooking utensil companies are among those donating a variety of prizes for the top winners. There will be eleven different categories, ranging from white loaf bread to kolaches.

Clarke-McNary Total Tops 3 Million Trees

A total of 3.47 million trees and shrubs was distributed through the 1981 Clarke-McNary program in Nebraska, according to program director Bill Lovett, tree improvement forester in the University of Nebraska Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources.

Under the program, the Nebraska Forest Service distributes tree and shrub seedlings at cost to landowners for conservation purposes, such as windbreaks, wildlife habitat, erosion control and feedlots.

The 1980-81 total was down a little from the previous year when 3.52 million seedlings were sold, Lovett said. However, the total number of trees distributed in Nebraska—3.08 million—was up from the 1979-80 total of 3.02 million, he added. Trees also are sold to South Dakota, Wyoming and Kansas.

Of the 23 species offered, red cedar continued to be the best seller by far, Lovett said, primarily because of its excellence for windbreaks. Red cedars accounted for 1.6 million of trees sold. Windbreaks also continued to be the major use of Clarke-McNary stock, he said.

The top selling shrub was American cherry, with about 100,000 ordered, followed by chokecherry at 80,000. Individual orders averaged 300 each, Natural Resource Districts ordered 1.63 million seedlings and other agencies ordered 285,000.

A Horse is a Horse, Of Course...

while munching on the lush green grass bordered by Spring Branch, Creek.

Grain Inspections Thwart Insect Problem

Rapid insect development usually occurs during the spring, summer and early fall.

Erwin Morris, chairman of the Wayne County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation committee, said grain inspections are particularly important during these months.

"When grain is stored and left undisturbed in the same location for several months, the probability of insect infestations, moisture damage and mold growth increases," Morris said. Infestations generally begin during warm weather especially near the grain surface.

Because of temperature differences that develop within the structure when surface and perimeter areas of the grain cool, stored grain collects moisture that may shift from one location to another.

"WE ENCOURAGE farmers to check the condition of their farm stored grain, whether it is under loan or in the grain reserve program," he said. When a grain loan is approved, MOISTURE from warm grain shifts to cooler parts of the structure, causing damp areas within the grain that favor insect activity and mold development. These, in turn, cause rapid deterioration and heating of the grain.

"Anytime farmers are in doubt as to the condition of their stored grain, they should notify our office as soon as possible," the ASCS official said.

Hoppers Eat Greenbacks From Croplands to Pastures

Grasshoppers eat greenbacks. At least that's the end result of their destructiveness to rangeland grass. They cost everyone, from farmer and rancher to the consumer at the meat counter.

With the possibility of an exceptionally heavy infestation year because of favorable winter weather conditions, the race for grasshopper control has been initiated on a local level.

GRASSHOPPERS get into everyone's pocket because of their consumption of forages. The U.S. Department of Agriculture has compiled figures on how they can devastate livestock forages: — Fifteen to 20 grasshoppers per square yard, spread over a 40-acre field of alfalfa, will eat one ton of hay per day. Their consumption equals that of one-half cow per acre — the same as 20 cows per day on the 40 acres.

Ten to 20 grasshoppers per square yard in bluegrass pasture equal one cow per acre.

Four grasshoppers per square yard on sparse range grass reduce forage by 62 percent.

THE GOOD news is that ranchers have available tools for control of these pests. A rangeland spray program administered by USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS) was developed in 1934 and still is in effect for ranchers on a cooperative basis.

More than 5.3 million acres in 1980 and approximately 7.1 million acres in 1979 were treated as part of this program, according to Ron Johnson, USDA staff officer, national program planing staff. "We have no way of knowing at this time how extensive the program will be in 1981," he says, "but, according to last year's adult survey, approximately 30 million acres are infested by potentially high levels of grasshoppers."

Guessimating by this figure, we likely will spray from five to seven million acres in 1981. We usually must treat 10 to 15 percent of the infested areas every year.

WEATHER PLAYS a big part in controlling infestations naturally, according to Roy Moritz, APHIS south central region coordinator.

In coming years, farmers and ranchers will have to show a lot of initiative and involvement in the pre-season, because of cuts in USDA/APHIS personnel according to Dick Jackson, APHIS northwest area director. Because of tight money during the winter months, little interest developed in organization for the programs.

"What a lot of people don't realize is grasshoppers are important pests of rangeland and pastures if left uncontrolled," warns Jackson. "No year passes without economic loss to rangeland and crops due to grasshoppers."

With outbreaks like last year of 30 to 60 grasshoppers per square yard on rangeland, cattle often have to be moved or sold early," he continues.

JACKSON SAYS by contacting local county Cooperative Extension Service agents, state Department of Agriculture or APHIS office, land managers can get details regarding cooperative control. The APHIS grasshopper cooperative control program is voluntary and must be organized on a local level to meet certain criteria.

Jackson explains the guidelines. "There has to be an economic infestation of grasshoppers present on rangeland (eight per square yard). There must be at least 10,000 acres in a proposed spray area, everyone in the spray area must participate, and the landowner's money must be on deposit."

"As one can see, there is a lot of work that must take place before a program goes," he adds.

Many cooperative programs are conducted each year, resulting in millions of dollars of savings of forages and other crops. Insecticides are the most effective and readily available means of grasshopper control.

JACKSON recommends two insecticides in the cooperative control program: SEVIN 4 OIL carbaryl, a product of Union Carbide Agricultural Products Co. and ULV Malathion, a product of American Cyanamid.

Both of these insecticides were chosen due to their relatively low mammalian toxicity, lack of environmental persistence and good efficacy," he says.

With high grasshopper infestations as in the past few years and dry 1980-81 winter, pressure could be high this summer, according to Johnson.

The cooperative control program fits this need and is important to farmers, ranchers and consumers, because of the pest's significant damage to rangeland economy.

This season of the year spring flowering shrubs should be pruned after they have flowered.

This usually requires removal of older and taller canes plus removal of approximately one-third of the taller and weaker new canes. This type of annual pruning will help contain forsythia, spirea and flowering quince.

Maximum flowering wood will be produced for next season and the shrub will not become overcrowded and oversized.

Evergreens should be pruned once new growth has fully expanded, but before it becomes stiff like older branches. New shoots on pines, spruce, douglas fir and mugo pine can be cut back 50 percent to 75 percent of their length.

Center shoots should be left slightly larger than laterals. Never prune tree evergreens or shrub forms of these evergreens beyond current season's shoots.

BROMEGRASS — If there's not too much brome in the lawn, it is probably best to dig it out. Dig a couple of inches behind the size of the plant you wish to eliminate.

Another possibility is to put dark plastic buckets or something similar over the brome grass spots for a week or so — the heat and lack of light should kill it.

If there's a lot of brome grass, use a grass killer, but be aware that you will have a brown spot in the lawn after a while when it dies.

MUSHROOMS — Mushrooms in lawns can be a problem during mid, wet weather. Since mushrooms commonly form on decaying or buried organic matter, elimination from the lawn is not easy.

Complete control is almost impossible until the organic base upon which they are growing has been completely decayed. In some cases it may be feasible to dig up the pieces of rotting wood or other debris in the lawn or remove large tree stumps on which they colonize.

If this is impractical the best method may be to break or mow off any mushrooms. This should be done when the mushrooms are young to reduce release of their spores which may generate new growth.

Groups of mushrooms in the lawn should be dug out before they have completely formed. These control measures over a couple of seasons should eliminate your mushroom problem.

500 Swine Entries Expected Duroc Congress Set for July

Three youth activities are planned in conjunction with the National Duroc Congress, to be held at the State Fairgrounds at Lincoln July 14-17.

The overall event, sponsored by the United Duroc Swine Registry, headquartered at Peoria, Ill., and the Nebraska Duroc Breeders Association, is expected to draw more than 500 swine entries from some 20 states.

THE THREE YOUTH events will be held on Wednesday, July 15, with the junior gilt show scheduled at 10:30 a.m., the junior showmanship contest at 1 p.m. and the judging contest at 2 p.m. Judging contest winners will receive their awards at 7:30 p.m. the same day.

The junior gilt class is open to all bonafide junior members of the United Duroc Swine Registry, according to Max Waldo of DeWitt, president of the state Duroc association.

Youth 18 years of age and under are eligible to enter one hog per exhibitor, either farrowed by the owner or purchased prior to June 1, 1980. All gilts must be farrowed on or after Dec. 1, 1980. A grand and reserve grand champion will be selected.

The judging contest will include divisions for individual youths and youth teams. University of Nebraska animal scientists are cooperating in conducting the judging contest and showmanship competition. Winners in the judging contest will receive showmanship contest is open to youth 18 years and under. It will include two separate classes—under 13 years of age and 14 to 18. Contestants do not have to bring a hog in order to compete, as animals will be available at the grounds, Waldo explained. Registration for showmanship will take place on Wednesday morning prior to competition.

Other features of the congress include a barrow show at 8:30 a.m. July 15; tested boar class at 3:30 p.m. and junior gilt and tested boar sale at 7:30 p.m. on the same date. Thursday, July 16, will include pair of gilt, gilt and boar shows during the day, with a Nebraska Cook-out at 6 p.m. A show of champions is scheduled at 7:30 p.m.

The congress will wind up on Friday, July 17, with the congress sale of gilts and boars at 10 a.m.

All events will be at the open class hog barn at the State Fairgrounds.

As many as 1,500 to 2,000 persons are expected to be involved in some or all of the congress activities.

Cattle Marketing in Decade of 1980s Loaded With Risks

Even if cattlemen disagree with the University of Nebraska extension marketing specialists' assumptions, they will probably agree with his prediction that the cattle business will continue to involve considerable risk.

NU Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources agricultural economist Al Wellman made a list of assumptions about the future in order to assess its

SOME assumptions are inflation, transportation, water and credit problems will continue the structure of the feeding industry will continue to change with some large feedlots closing and other feedlots near feed supplies expanding. Competition from other meats will increase and limited partnerships could increase, with cattlemen providing only part of the total resources.

The cattlemen can disagree with some or all of these assumptions, Wellman says, but must be prepared to examine as many current and future market and price conditions as possible in an attempt to take the "right" risks in these uncertain times.

The key to doing well, he says, is to have accurate information about the market's available and about the cost of production for each individual enterprise. The producer must recognize pricing opportunities and then take advantage of them.

SOME PRICING opportunities, he explains, are using the futures market, forward cash contracting and flexible grazing, forage and feeding programs.

If the cattlemen is worried that prices in the future are unfavorable to him, he would be in a better position to reduce his risk by using more of these marketing tools.

The cattlemen most likely to prosper in the business of raising cattle is the one who analyzes the available market and makes decisions based on sound information, Wellman predicts.

Dixon County Historical Society met May 19 at the Museum in Allen. Preceding the business meeting Mrs. Elvis Olson of Wakefield read the account of her grandparents, the C.I. Blakes, who were one of the pioneer families who settled near what is now Wakefield in 1869.

During the business meeting the most important item on the agenda was the planning and conclusion of procedure to accomplish the incorporation of the Dixon County Historical Society. Charles Baker and Bob Johnson of Omaha spoke on the possibility of publishing a book to bring the history of Dixon County up to date.

At the next regular meeting of the society, a discussion will be held on whether or not to proceed with this project or reject it. The Vic Carpenters were hosts for the evening lunch.

The Dixon County Museum in Allen will be opened Sunday, beginning June 7, from 2 p.m. and continue each Sunday throughout the summer months. It is open during the week by appointment by contacting Clarence Emry.

Marcella Shortt of Lincoln visited in the Noe-Shortt home over the weekend.

The John Ralphs of San Diego are visiting in the Ken Linafelter home.

The Allen-Waterbury rescue unit was called at 9 a.m. on Thursday morning to the Frerichs farm, where Robert Frerichs was ill. He was taken in the unit to the Wakefield Health Care Center where it was reported he has pneumonia.

Infestations of armyworms in states to the south could set the stage for problems with the insects in Nebraska, according to a University of Nebraska extension entomologist.
"Catches of migrating armyworm moths have increased the last few weeks," according to David L. Keith. "These moths deposit eggs on grasses, usually in field margins, fence rows, roadside ditches and pastures. Poor herbicide performance, due to dry conditions following planting, could result in many grassy corn fields. The potential for armyworm damage in such situations is increased," Keith explained.

If feeding is obvious on low crops such as corn, treatment is recommended, Keith stated.
He said several effective compounds are available for control. For corn, use malathion (1.5 lbs actual ingredient per acre) (A1/A), Sevin (1.6 lbs A1/A), toxaphene (2.5 lbs A1/A), parathion (0.5 lb A1/A), Lannate (0.37 lb A1/A) or Dylax (1.0 lb A1/A). Malathion, toxaphene, parathion or Sevin are registered on sorghum.

FOR ARMYWORMS on lawns, use malathion, Sevin, Duraban, Dylax or diazinon. Malathion, Sevin and Dylax are registered for armyworm control in pastures. Insecticides applied in the evening, just before the worms emerge to feed should be most effective, Keith said.

"Remember, some pesticides are highly toxic and all must be handled with care. Parathion and Lannate are to be applied by certified commercial pesticide applicators only. Follow label precautions to the letter when using any pesticide," Keith warned.

Memorial Day Tribute

SOFT, COOL BREEZES PROVIDED THE SETTING for Memorial Day services this year at Greenwood Cemetery in Wayne. American Legion Commander, Roy Sommerfeld, pictured in this high contrast line shot taken during services Monday morning, addresses persons gathered at the cemetery and introduces the speaker, the Rev. Daniel Monson of Redeemer Lutheran Church. Several veterans' organizations in Wayne took part in the services. Members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, American Legion, World War I Barracks and Disabled American Veterans and their auxiliaries, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, flower girls and the Wayne High School band paraded to the cemetery for the annual service, which included taps and roll call of deceased veterans. Memorial Day services in Wayne were co-sponsored by the American Legion and Auxiliary. Other towns in the area also held special services, programs, parades and dinners in memory of dead servicemen.

WAKEFIELD NEWS / Mrs. Hale 287-2728

POOL TO OPEN

Tentative plans are to open Wakefield's Swimming Pool on Sunday, May 31 according to Marcia Kralke, a member of the Park Board. She said if the weather is cold or rainy the opening would be delayed.

Kerry Fischer will be in charge of the pool, assisted by Janet Siebrandt, Kim Fischer and Kim Greve, who will serve as lifeguards.

A date will be set later as to when lessons will begin.

Tee Ball Program

All interested boys and girls who will be in the second and third grades next school year are invited to participate in a summer Tee Ball program. Dick Brownell will be in charge of the program.

Tee Ball is played with a baseball, with the batter hitting the ball off of a stationary stand called a tee.

Practices will be held on Mondays and Thursdays starting at 5 p.m. The first practice will be Thursday, June 4 and will be held northwest of the baseball field. A $2 fee per participant will be needed for insurance.

'Go Jean, Go Silver'

THE CART JUST WASN'T BIG ENOUGH to carry all these youngsters in one go-around, so Melvin and Mildred Larsen, owners of this fine pair of Belgian horses, made a couple of trips to accommodate all the youngsters. This scene was set at Brossier Park a couple of weeks ago when Melvin and Mildred treated three and four-year-old youngsters of Mrs. Ardath Otte's ABC Nursery School to a ride around the blocks outlining the park. Larsen's great grandson, four-year-old Justin Luhr, son of Bruce and Deb Luhr of Wayne, was a member of Mrs. Otte's class, who were at the park for a picnic marking the end of this school year. Several other youngsters who happened to be at the park that day also were offered rides in a cart pulled by Jean and Silver, the names Larsen have given the Belgian team. Melvin and Mildred may be seen driving the team in town several times during the next few weeks as they prepare for an appearance in Wakefield's Centennial parade next month. Larsen said they prefer to drive the team in town so the horses become used to the pavement and traffic. Generally they can be found riding around the county fairsgrounds.

Bereuter Releases Survey on Issues

Congressman Doug Bereuter has released the results of his 1981 legislative questionnaire. Bereuter surveyed the entire First Congressional District on a range of policy questions from Saturday mail delivery to handgun control. Of those polled, 25,000 constituents responded. All responses were tabulated to assure accurate results. Bereuter said:

	Per Cent Yes	Per Cent No	Per Cent Undecided
Would you favor eliminating Saturday mail delivery if it would save tax dollars?	55	39	6
Some of the more popular federal loan programs used by Nebraskans/farmers, small businesses/local governmental units charge interest rates that do not cover the costs incurred by the federal government in providing the loan. Should such interest rates be increased to cover actual costs?	63	21	16
The federal government currently provides money for education programs to local education agencies through six major and 27 minor grant programs. Similarly, state education agencies receive federal money through 30 separate grant programs. Would you favor the Reagan Administration's proposal to consolidate these grants into two block grants, one for state and one for local governments?	74	12	14
Are you willing to accept substantial cuts in federal spending if the cuts seem to be equitably shared by all segments of society?	86	6	8
Do you favor an increase in the share of the federal budget which is devoted to defense-related items?	62	25	13
Would you support mandatory registration of all privately-owned handguns in the United States?	49	43	8
Do you favor construction of the Norden Dam for the O'Neill Irrigation Project?	17	53	30
Should the U.S. impose import restrictions on the number of foreign cars allowed in the country?	45	47	12
In view of the continued rise in hospital care (19.2% between September 1979 and September 1980), would you support mandatory cost controls imposed by the federal government on hospitals?	53	34	13
Do you favor continuing a grain embargo against the Soviet Union?	38	42	19
Do you favor a separate, lower minimum wage for teenagers that is intended to reduce youth employment? (not tabulated due to error in wording)
Do you favor gradually raising the eligibility age for full Social Security retirement benefits from age 65 to 68?	32	57	12
