Highway 15 Reconstruction Running Ahead of Schedule

Work on Highway 15 is running ahead of schedule.

According to project manager Earl Echtenkamp, the bridge contractor got a break on the weather and started 10 days earlier. And everything else is ahead now.

Godbersen-Smith Construction Company of Ida Grove, Iowa started working on the bridges on March 5. Midwest Bridge and Construction of Norfolk also began working on the culverts that day.

Godbersen-Smith is building a new bridge near Fredrickson's Service Station. They have 30 percent of it finished and should have it completed by mid-September, Echtenkamp said.

MIDWEST BRIDGE completed the pilings for bridges and abutments on June 5. And now, Engelbrecht Construction of Syracuse — subcontracted by Neider-Jurgenson construction of Omaha — has 65 percent of the grading completed, he added.

Engelbrecht started working May 26 — again, ahead of schedule. Foreman Ron Zeiger said they've moved "750,000 yards of dirt in nine miles."

While moving this dirt, they've widened the road and leveled off the hills to make a better grade line and a "much safer road," according to Echtenkamp.

They've also torn up the entire road — something not ordinarily done, Zeiger noted — so they can recycle the old asphalt to repave the road.

THE OLD asphalt was ground up and stockpiled for Neider-Jurgenson, who will move in possibly the first week in September, Echtenkamp said.

The new and old asphalt will be mixed in a 50-50 ratio and laid six inches thick for a base, he explained. This will be topped with two inches of asphaltic concrete, which stands up to more wear.

This is a new process in Nebraska — one of two projects to use recycled asphalt, Echtenkamp added.

"It's a saving. We will run out of natural materials someday. This saves fuel and energy, and the contractor doesn't have to haul it in and stockpile it. It's already there," he said.

"We've used what's out there to our advantage," added Dale Pulman, the area engineer for the project.

ONCE THE asphalt is laid, it will be rolled to the correct density and the contractor will put on dirt shoulders, Echtenkamp continued.

A state maintenance crew from Norfolk will take a day or a day and a half to paint the stripes on. Then, guardrails will be put up and bidding will open in December for permanent seeding.

This seeding — a special mixture of wild grasses — will "hold the slopes and keep them from eroding," he said.

Until this final step is completed and the road is officially opened, the public should be using the marked detour, Echtenkamp said.

Zeiger guessed about 100 cars flew through there (the road) every day — "from South Dakota and all over" — and that 1/4 of them should go around.

"The locals have to get in and out," he said. "They've been good to get along with."

But, he added, it would probably be safer for other drivers to drive on the county roads than on the unfinished highway.

BY THE TIME the road is finished — Nov. 15 is the target date — it will be eight feet wider at a cost of $2,243,880. The "old mat job" was 20 feet wide, Echtenkamp said.

The federal government provides 75 percent of the monies for the project, with the state providing the rest, he added.

The cost for the bridge work is $160,300. The culvert work, $296,126; grading, $472,435 and the asphalt, $1,314,718.

Echtenkamp didn't see any delays in the project.

"We're going to get it done. We've got to. The contractors bid on this year's prices. If it goes into next year, there might be a substantial price increase."

The 4-H livestock parade will start at 7:30 p.m. Pioneer Awards and special awards will be presented at 8:15 p.m., with the Grand Stand Show to follow at 8:30.

The Market Hog Show opens Saturday's events. That will start at 8 a.m., with open class beef judging at 9 a.m. Draft horses will be judged at 10.

THE HORSESHOE pitching contest at 1 p.m. and the tractor pull at 1:30 are the only events scheduled for Saturday afternoon. The sanctioned pickup pull will start that night at 7:30.

The 4-H Pen of Three Market Beef Show gets underway at 2 p.m. Sunday. The 4-H Livestock Bonus Auction begins at 4.

All exhibits will be released at 7 p.m. The Demolition Derby, which also starts at 7, concludes the activities.

Free Barbecue Set Friday 4-Day Wayne County Fair Opens Thursday

Everything from alpine goats to zinnias will be judged at the Wayne County Fair scheduled for Aug. 6-9.

Fair Manager Marvin Koch couldn't guess how many entries are expected for the four-day flog, to be held at the Wayne Fair Grounds.

"Some people could have 20 entries in home economics, for instance, while others would have only one," he said.

These numerous entries will begin coming in at 8 a.m. Thursday. Exhibits in the 4-H building will be judged at noon.

ANIMAL JUDGING will begin at 1 p.m. with 4-H and open class dairy cattle.

Rabbits, poultry and pigeons will also be judged at 1 p.m. Entries close at 10 a.m. Aug. 6.

4-H horses are also up for inspection at 1 p.m. Stock must be in place that morning at 9.

Open class economics judging, beginning at 3 p.m., rounds out the first afternoon.

ALL EXHIBITS and booths will be open to the public at 6 p.m. The mini-rod tractor pull gets underway at 7.

Judging in 4-H and open class hogs and sheep start off Friday's activities. 4-H and open class goats will be judged at 9 a.m.

The midway — run this year by Sooner Amusements — will be open to the handicapped only from 10 a.m.-noon Friday. 4-H beef will be judged at noon, and open class horse judging begins at 12:30 p.m.

Friday evening festivities begin with the big barbecue at 6 p.m.

THE BARBECUE is funded through donations totaling "in the ballpark of $5,000," according to Koch.

Monetary donations, with help from the Ag Society, buy the meat. Other supplies and services — such as cups, beans, napkins and refuse disposal — are donated by Wayne businesses, he said.

Co-Defendant Gets 300 Days Winside Bar Owner's Sentence 8-16 Years For 3 Drug Counts

A 28-year-old Winside tavern owner, convicted in Ninth District Court on three felony drug charges during a late June jury trial, has been sentenced to three terms — 8 to 16 years at hard labor — in the state penitentiary.

Charles Weible, appearing before Judge Richard P. Garden at the Wayne County Courthouse Thursday afternoon, was sentenced to 5 to 8 years at hard labor on one count of possession of cocaine with intent to deliver.

Garden also sentenced Weible to 2 to 5 years at hard labor in the state penitentiary on a count of possession of marijuana with intent to deliver.

THE DISTRICT Court judge ordered that the sentences on those two counts be served consecutively, which would mean a minimum jail sentence of 7 years at hard labor, and a maximum sentence of 13 years at hard labor at the Nebraska State Penal Complex in Lincoln.

On the third count, possession of cocaine, Weible was sentenced to 1 to 3 years at hard labor in the state penitentiary.

The sentence on the third count will be served concurrently, which means Weible will be doing double time. On concurrent sentences, the time runs simultaneously. On consecutive sentences, time served is total.

WEIBLE'S BOND of $100,000 was revoked by Judge Garden, who ordered the tavern owner be immediately placed in the custody of the Wayne County Sheriff, Don "Butch" Weible — the Winside resident's father.

Garden also denied a post-sentencing request by Weible's attorney, Vince Kirby of Norfolk, for a bond. The bond, had it been granted, would have suspended execution of the sentence until Judge Garden ruled on Kirby's recent motion for a new trial.

"Bond is revoked," Judge Garden said in response to Kirby's request. "Garden immediately ordered the Sheriff's Department to remove Weible from the courtroom."

Kirby filed the motion for a new trial within 10 days after Weible was convicted by an eight-man, four-woman jury on June 26 after a five-day trial in the second-floor courtroom of the Wayne County Courthouse.

MINUTES AFTER the sentencing, Kirby acknowledged the case was far from over, but was reluctant to comment on his expected appeal of the case to the Nebraska State Supreme Court.

"I have to talk with Charlie," he said. "And, we have to wait for a decision on the motion for a new trial."

The motion for a new trial is before Garden and is not expected to be considered until early September. The judge is scheduled for vacation during August.

Weible, who left the courtroom with Sheriff Weible and his family, was unavailable for comment. He was scheduled to arrive at the state penitentiary late Thursday to begin serving time.

Without a sign of emotion on his face during the sentencing, Weible remained silent before the bench on instructions from Kirby. And, even though the judge directed a number of questions to Weible, Kirby answered each and every one, explaining that he had instructed his client to remain silent.

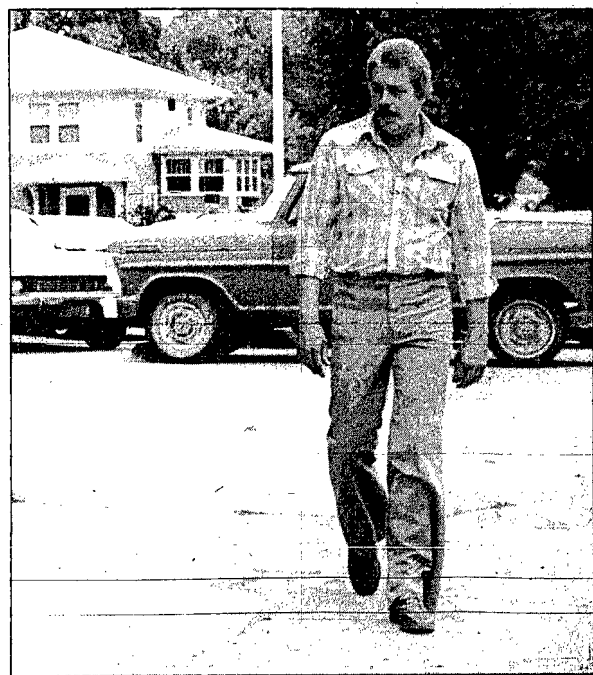

WEIBLE apparently was silent, on instructions from Kirby, throughout a pre-sentencing investigation interview with the district probation officer.

Garden delayed the sentencing for a pre-sentencing investigation, which is often used by a judge in tailoring a sentence.

The investigation report usually provides the court with background information on previous criminal record, activity between commission of a crime and sentencing, and pertinent data that may have a bearing on the penalty.

Kirby was successful in getting Judge Garden to ignore several statements in the pre-sentencing investigation report regarding what the attorney referred to as "gross hearsay."

Garden agreed to ignore statements in the report that linked Weible's name to drug activity in Florida and South Dakota.

THE SPECIAL prosecutor for the case, Thomas DeLay, asked the court to impose the maximum sentence on each count or to order jail sentences to be served consecutively.

"I ask the court to impose a harsh sentence," DeLay said. "I don't think Mr. Weible should get any consideration from this court."

Before asking for the maximum sentences on each count, DeLay said, "He (Weible) is a seller, a dealer... someone who funnels drugs to kiddies on the street."

In response, Kirby referred to DeLay's involvement in the reduced charges and sentences faced by Weible's co-defendants, Dale Busskohl and Diane Coyle of Winside and Vernon Sarha of Yankton, S.D.

SARHA, WHO turned state's witness during the trial, was sentenced Thursday morning to 300 days in the Pierce County Jail. In late June, Busskohl was sentenced to 2 to 5 years of hard labor in the state penitentiary. And, Coyle was fined $100 and sentenced to complete a drug rehabilitation program.

All were arrested on Dec. 18, 1980, during a drug raid by State Patrol narcotics squad officers on Winside homes of Busskohl and Weible.

Weible is the only one of the four to receive a jury trial. The others waived their rights to a jury trial and pleaded guilty to reduced charges. Weible was given the opportunity to plead guilty to a reduced charge, but refused, requesting a jury trial.

"If it's a crime to go on trial... if it's a crime to ask for your rights... he has not been convicted of any kind of misdemeanor," Kirby said in response to DeLay's statement. Kirby was referring to Weible's record, which consists of nothing but traffic infractions.

IN REVIEWING the law with regard to sentencing procedures, Judge Garden told Weible: "Your crime threatens the most serious harm our country is faced with today. That's the dissemination of controlled substances."

Indicating that he felt, after reviewing evidence brought forth in the trial, that Weible "did it for only one thing... the money," Garden said, "I believe these activities would continue and they should be brought to a halt."

The thrust of Garden's statement was directed toward the question of rehabilitation and probation for Weible.

"I believe you would not respond to probation," Garden said.

"It's my opinion, from watching the evidence, that you were a distributor of cocaine... in my opinion imprisonment is necessary for protection of the public," he said before sentencing Weible.

DELAY, who was pleased with the sentence, said the judge had intended to make all three terms run consecutively, but inadvertently failed to mention that after pronouncing the prison term for the third count.

"That means it will be the lesser of the two for that sentence. It will run concurrently," DeLay said. "Charlie got an unexpected gift from the court."

DeLay said he felt that Kirby could apply for a writ to force an appeal bond from the state Supreme Court. An appeal bond would release Weible from serving time until all avenues of appeal were exhausted.

Kirby, however, said he felt he was barred from seeking the appeal bond until a ruling was made on his motion for a new trial.

Judge Garden said the bond is usually issued at the discretion of the presiding judge. He said the Supreme Court could order him to present Weible with an appeal bond, but that it was not normal procedure to have that happen.

KIRBY SAID he felt the sentence was excessive. "I told the judge that myself," he said. "I think we have a good record on appeal."

Immediately following Weible's conviction on June 26, Kirby indicated he would appeal the case to the state Supreme Court if necessary.

It was Kirby's underwriting of a $100,000 bond that kept Weible out of jail between the late June conviction and Thursday's sentencing.

Kirby's contention has been that Weible's rights were violated in an illegal search and seizure operation by the narcotics squad.

In his motion for a new trial, Kirby cited 20 reasons Weible should have a new trial. The reasons range from challenges of Garden's rulings during the trial to the conduct of the special prosecutor.

Wayne's City Council chambers provided the forum for several important debates this last week.

They were not only important in that they involved local people with concerns or problems, but also in that they afforded observers a glimpse of several ongoing national debates.

Sometimes it's easy to get the feeling that what happens in small-town America is an isolated incident or isolated series of incidents.

However, more often than not, the trials and tribulations of residents of small towns are a significant part of dilemmas that concern the population of an entire country.

IN FACT, if you stop and think for a moment, it stands to reason that those national debates may get started because, one by one, those small towns begin voicing a concern about the way things work or do not work.

Politicians often refer to the small town lifestyle as "grassroots" America. That's where they go back to listen to townspeople talk about how things are going.

However, we are all such victims of electronic media hype and the Washington D.C. syndrome that it is easy to overlook the fact that the debate on most problems of a national scale started right here in small town America. They started in towns just like Wayne, Wakefield, Carroll, Winside, Laurel, Dixon, Concord, Hoskins, Allen, and, yes, even Sholes.

ONE OF THE debates at Tuesday night's City Council meeting got close to the heart of government over-regulation.

It started out as a seemingly simple agenda item on permits for excavating on public property (paved areas, particularly). Before the debate subsided, a number of solid points were made.

City Administrator Phil Kloster, who fully understands the multi-sided issue, explained a proposed ordinance that would have set up a bond and fee schedule for contractors excavating on public property within the city.

Contractors doing that sort of work — since the city doesn't do it — have to get a permit, which is supposed to serve a number of purposes.

First, because so many city services are underground, it should offer some assurance that the digging will not disrupt such essential things as natural gas flow, sewer pipes, water pipes, electrical cables, telephone cables, cable television cables, etc.

SECOND, IT should provide the city with some idea of who is working where and for what reason, since the property is owned by the city — read that taxpayers.

Third, the permit process should not only protect the taxpayer, but should also afford the contractor some protection in the way of personal, crew and equipment safety. Digging into a buried gas line is a potentially dangerous adventure.

And, of course, it is designed to help keep things in order. In other words, what comes out, must go back as close to the way it was as is humanly possible. And, certainly, most contractors wouldn't think of doing it any other way.

There are a number of other reasons for permits of this nature, but these are enough for the sake of the government over-regulation debate.

NO DOUBT, most contractors — at least those wanting to do future work for the city — would not intentionally do a bad job. But, why should they lose a day's work running around for authorization to dig and paying for the trouble to get the job?

"We have our share of good contractors," Kloster says. "But we also have some people who, in lieu of a shovel, call themselves contractors. They tend to dig up things and put them back the way they feel like doing it, not the way it was before they started."

Well, certainly, any city administrator wants to protect the public tax dollar from that sort of thing. It's obvious that a job done that poorly is probably going to cost more to correct than the cost of solving the initial problem, such as a leaking water main.

Who pays for that? You do, of course.

HOWEVER, if the city's regulations for that kind of work cost the contractor excessive time and money, why would any excavator want to do the work? And, since most private contractors are in the business for profit, they have no alternative but to pass the cost along to the luckless taxpayer or homeowner with a problem. Then they take the risk for jacking up their prices in an attempt to make some kind of profit.

Furthermore, regulation is enough of a personal hassle for most people. Excessive regulation is starting to drive the private sector bankers.

Put yourself in a situation where you have an opportunity to do two similar jobs. You've got the equipment and the know-how. You want the work. And you must decide between them.

Suppose that in estimating costs for a bid on the jobs, you find that one is going to require a day's work lost getting the government regulations in order, but the other one doesn't.

AND, SUPPOSE, you have to pay a fee to do that one job, but the other one is without that kind of charge. And suppose that one job also requires a bond, but the other one doesn't have that extra dimension.

If the profit margin were the same, which is not the case, you'd probably take the job with less hassle. So can you blame a contractor for not wanting the government work?

Then just suppose that the unregulated job is scheduled so you can get maximum performance from your crew and equipment and plan for any contingencies, but the other job is an on call situation to handle an emergency water pipe leak at 2 a.m. Sunday morning.

Are you ready to stick with the private contract of fee or do you feel a sense of community responsibility notwithstanding the government job is worth the Sunday morning strain?

I'M SURE someone out there is going to say there is more to it than that. And, they're probably right, but even that's a problem.

It's all very complicated, I know. One has to consider the "ifs" here, the "ands" there and the "wherefores" everywhere. But, if you reduce all of them to writing, you've got excessive regulation and no incentive for profit.

Without incentive for profit, you've got no performance. Without performance, you've got problems. Local contractors working and making a profit elsewhere because they can make more with less bother.

City Councilman Gary Vopalensky essentially made that point during the Tuesday night discussion. Two contractors appeared to support his contention. The point they made should not be lost in any well-intended desire to be open-minded about protecting taxpayers.

Sometimes we can be so open-minded about things that our brains fall out. And sometimes we are so determined to guard against any contingency that we smother ourselves in the marketplace.

SOMETIMES it makes me wonder why we can't get down to things with a contract, verbal or written, and a penalty for poor workmanship.

That penalty could involve any one of a number of things, including preventing a contractor with a lousy performance record from doing that kind of work in the city for five years after any such incident.

What ever happened to the old idea of refusing to pay for substandard work? That's another form of penalty. There's really no limit.

That way, the good contractors have nothing to worry about. And, the substandard shovel-holders face the penalty. We've reached a point where we can no longer seriously consider penalizing everyone for the problems of a few.

BY THE WAY, my apology for identifying Darrell Heier as a councilman at large in this last week's story about the Roosevelt Park water district hearing.

My information was erroneous. Voters used to elect councilmen and councilwomen from city wards and at large. However, that is no longer the case.

All members of the City Council are now elected from specific wards. Heier represents the 1st Ward, which means Roosevelt Park residents are included in his constituency.

And, did you catch the dumb error on the front page? The headline on the Wayne American Legion story indicated that the chapter was 61 years old, but also said it had been formed in 1921.

That doesn't add up, or subtract. Let's see, if you subtract 61 from 1981 (1 minus 1 is 0, and 8 minus 4 is 2, put 'em together and you've got 20. Bring down the 19 and that makes 1920).

I never said I was any good at math. And, I make it a policy to try to avoid subtracting in public. See what happens. I end up publishing all my mistakes. Most people have enough common sense to avoid publishing their mistakes.

Catch you next week.

The Double Dupe

Property owners in Roosevelt Park face a decision soon on whether or not to give the city the go-ahead on water system improvements in their neighborhood.

If enough of them continue to protest the city's proposal to upgrade their water lines and add new ones to improve the domestic-use delivery system, the system will not be built — at least this season and maybe not for some time.

It seems, after listening to them voice concerns and ask questions at the recent City Council hearing on the proposal, many agree that their area needs the improvements and the additional water mains.

However, the prospect of special assessments to pay for a portion of the project, seems to be a big bone of contention.

One of the problems is that section of the city is an older portion of Wayne and long in need of improved municipal services — services that are automatically installed under special assessments procedures in new subdivisions.

There's also a problem in that many of the residents seem to feel that they bought property in Roosevelt Park with the understanding that the normal city services, particularly something as important as water, would be there.

Unfortunately, the water system that's there is not only inadequate for domestic use now, but couldn't get anything but worse as that area continues to grow.

Furthermore, there are areas where one has to stretch the imagination and the definition to describe the pipes as a water system. That's not even counting the problem with fire protection.

Certainly many Roosevelt Park area residents are not only disappointed to learn this, but also are angry at the prospect of paying for services they thought they were paying for all along.

The debate also has been fired by emotion and, in some cases, the dissemination of manipulated, if not incorrect, information. City officials have been working diligently to get the correct information to property owners — hence Tuesday's informal hearing and overview of the project.

Perhaps one of the sad things is that in many ways those who feel they have been duped into paying taxes over many years for an inadequate water system, are in the process of being duped again by some of their own neighbors — neighbors who seem to feel that somewhere there's a free lunch. They should know better.

That system has to be updated sooner or later. It's doubtful that any property owner living there — particularly knowing what they know now — would argue with that.

And, as unfortunate as the situation is, the sooner it's improved, the better and the cheaper it will be. Furthermore, it is not fair to ask all of Wayne's property owners to pay for all of that upgrading. They, too, have paid taxes for years for water service, including their own share of special assessments for improvements.

There is no easy answer. However, under the circumstances, the city has presented a very fair compromise. The assessment burden is not excessive, particularly since the city has agreed to pay for a portion of the project with general funds.

It would be in the best interests of the Roosevelt Park area residents to reach a conclusion based on the facts. The emotional rantings of major property owners there carry the issue beyond fact.

The district has been recreated in a sincere gesture to improve services. The compromise plan is a fair one. And, the project should receive property owner support.

Tourism Takes Off

One month into the 1981 travel season, the Nebraska travel and tourism industry appears headed for a record or near record year.

This assessment is based on increases in highway traffic counts, attraction attendance, and motel occupancy rates in June compared to June of last year.

The advertising campaign invited travelers to "discover the difference" in Nebraska, and so far it has been very successful.

Publications and advertisements are highlighting the variety in the state from the changing topography, to the cultural and western attractions, to big city sophistication and down home county fair charm. The rate of inquiries received by the State Department of Economic Development office has increased over 200 percent.

Traffic counts on Interstate 80 near Overton in south central Nebraska were up over 14 percent from last year. Similarly, attendance at 10 Nebraska attractions across the state increased an average 12 percent.

Occupancy rates at a sample of 10 Nebraska motels rose slightly less, showing an average 3.9 percent increase. This average was depressed somewhat by declines in occupancy rates at motels in the Grand Island-Hastings York area. Last year most motels in this area were abnormally full following the Grand Island tornado, as many local residents were displaced from their homes and construction workers and others in need of lodging accommodations were attracted.

At the current pace, the number of nonresident person visits to Nebraska this summer will far exceed the 7 million figure estimated for 1980 and could go beyond the record 1978 total, when over 7.7 million nonresident person visits were made to the state.

Before the summer travel season began, a U.S. Travel Data Center survey found that almost one-third of the U.S. population planned to take a summer vacation trip. We were able to place our name in front of those travelers at a time when the economic picture was better and gasoline was plentiful. This will be a very good year for travel in Nebraska.

Money Costs May Bankrupt Farmers

While attention on Capitol Hill in recent months has been focused on budget and tax proposals, this past week the spotlight turned to monetary policies and the impact of steep interest rates upon the economy.

Federal Reserve Chairman Paul Volcker told me and other members of the House Banking, Finance and Urban Affairs Committee that firm monetary control is essential to fight inflation. By maintaining a firm hand, the Fed hopes to rid the economy of one primary source of inflation — unrestrained growth of the money supply. A number of individuals believe — rightly or wrongly, however, that the Federal Reserve's tight money policy is keeping interest rates high.

High interest rates are particularly dangerous to a number of sectors of the economy. TAKE THE farmer's situation. Any rise in interest rates squeezes farm profits more. The average interest rate paid by farmers for such things as livestock, feed, farm operations and machinery is now 17.92 percent, almost four points higher than a year ago.

In 1970, farmers relied on new loans or a new increase in loans for only 5 percent of the cash sources for their operations. To day, farmers are substituting credit for income at an alarming rate, with borrowing accounting for 23 percent of their operating cash.

congressman doug bereuter

These facts are especially alarming in light of the role that agriculture plays in boosting our sagging economy. Agricultural exports totaled a record $40 billion in 1980, by far the leading positive factor in the U.S. balance of trade.

I've asked chairman Volcker what he can say or do to reassure farmers who are caught in the squeeze. I'm concerned that the Fed's policymakers recognize the special needs of our nation's food producers.

SMALL BUSINESSES are hurting, too. Because smaller firms are more dependent on short term debt than are large corporations, the unusually high short term interest rates are creating a great deal of stress among small and medium sized businesses. When credit is tight, banks become more cautious and avoid making loans to small firms, who are considered to be higher risk borrowers than larger corporations.

And high interest rates have battered the housing industry. With mortgage rates now about 16 percent, the outlook is bleak. And savings and loan associations, which have provided the bulk of home financing in this country, are under particular stress because of their past commitment to long term, low yielding loans.

Implications of this debate are indeed profound. Interest rates remain near record levels despite a drop in inflation. The hearings made apparent, therefore, that pressure will mount for a relaxation of monetary control unless interest rates drop soon. Abandonment of monetary control could undermine the entire long term inflation fighting effort. Yet, several members of Congress worry that if interest rates remain high for a prolonged period despite implementations of the economic recovery efforts, significant numbers of small businesses and farmers could be driven into bankruptcy. In that respect, we could win the battle against inflation but lose the war for a healthy economy.

ELEVATOR EXPLOSIONS — Grain elevator explosions have reached crisis proportions. Since the start of the year, four explosions have taken place in Nebraska alone, resulting in two deaths and four injuries. Every grain producing state is vulnerable.

This past week, I hosted a briefing on Capitol Hill given by members of a National Academy of Sciences task force set up to investigate the problem. The task force report is still being drafted and is not expected to be completed until later this fall, when its findings will be made public. The purpose of the briefing was to focus congressional attention on the study to insure that when it is issued, it is read and critically examined.

Meanwhile, I have invited an insurance industry representative to speak before the Nebraska Grain and Feed Dealers to discuss new designs that may reduce grain elevator explosions.

Optimism Beats Pessimism in Politics

If you accept the theory that national elections are decided on simple, but compelling ideas, then it could be said that last fall's election boiled down to this issue:

Is inflation (with all the economic and social distresses that accompany it) controllable or not? Critics, depending on which side they were on, called Jimmy Carter's assessment too gloomy; Ronald Reagan's was too glibly optimistic.

The American people sided with Ronald Reagan — and rejected the proposition put forth by the Carter Administration that inflation is some kind of economic Frankenstein which has a momentum of its own beyond our control.

NOT SO, says President Reagan. "We are in control here," he has reminded us. "There is nothing wrong with America that we can't fix."

Nevertheless, many Americans are still very pessimistic about the future prospects for our economy. If you are one of them, I suggest you take a look at some fascinating historical evidence which — Thomas J. Sargent, an economist with the Federal Reserve Bank of Minneapolis and the university. See uncovered recently.

If you have had a tough time making ends meet with inflation hovering around 10 percent, imagine what it must have been like for consumers in various European economies after the devastation of World War I. "Between January 1922 and April 1924, the price index increased by a factor of 263 times," Sargent reports of postwar Hungary. Poles had it even worse. The price index there increased by a mind-boggling 2,402 times in just two years. Even more incredible, the value of the postwar German mark had eroded to such a degree that it took one trillion of them to equal the value of just one prewar gold mark!

Surely inflation like this could never be controlled, right? Wrong! In each case, not only was the inflationary spiral broken, but it was done within a matter of months.

THAT SEEMINGLY impossible task was accomplished, Sargent explains, by making a clean break with the economic policies of the past — and that meant an end to runaway government deficits, subsidies, bureaucracy and money supplies. Germany, Hungary, Poland and Austria "each persistently ran enormous budget deficits," Sargent discovered. But when these policies were renounced, "the price level and foreign exchanges suddenly stabilized."

Other measures contributing to these economic success stories included sweeping reduction in the government work force as well as legally-binding limitations on both the money supply and the amount of debt the government could incur.

Together, these dramatic steps convinced each nation's citizens that they finally had a government which was committed to controlling its own growth — that it would adhere to stable fiscal and monetary policies upon which businesses, workers and consumers could depend. The result? Inflationary expectations burst like a balloon.

The ends of these four big inflations should come as welcome news to inflation-weary Americans. The bottom-line lesson, as Sargent sees it, is this: "Inflation only seems to have a momentum of its own, while it is actually the long-term government policy of running large deficits which imparts momentum to the inflation in the future precisely because the government's current and prospective monetary and fiscal policies warrant those expectations."

WHEN THE postwar European governments discarded their big-spending ways, their citizens responded by lowering their inflationary expectations — and demands.

President Reagan has proposed a similar change in economic course for our nation.

FRIDAY GRAND STAND SHOW

DON KING

25 year old Don King's music mixes feelings of country with the smooth contemporary appeal of pop, which explains why his audiences are just as likely to contain a large following of teen-agers as adults. His physical appeal in front of the lights has been complementarily compared to Left Garrett's, while his songs at times evoke images of Arlo Guthrie, John Stewart, and the late Jim Croce's writing. It's this refreshing across-the-board projection that has already begun to create stirrings of national interest, stirrings which threaten to become waves in light of King's first Epic album, Lonely Hotel.

Wayne Teams Win Openers in Area Tourney

Midgets One Win from Trip to State

Only one team stands between the Wayne Midgets and the state Class C baseball tournament.

That team—the winner of Friday's Plainview Oakland game—will clash with Wayne tonight (Monday) in the finals of the Class C Area A American Legion Midget Tournament at Wisner.

The championship Midget game is scheduled at 6 p.m. and will be followed by the Legion finals.

WAYNE'S MIDGETS moved one step to their quest for a state tourney berth Friday by eliminating spunky Crofton from area play with a 6-3 win. The victory improved Wayne's record to 18-3 and dropped Crofton to 14-2.

"We had an outstanding defensive performance and we got the hits at the right time. We were able to score on a fundamental mistake in the fifth inning and that seemed to change the tempo of the game," coach Hank Overin said. "Our younger players came through for us."

The younger players to whom Overin referred are Pony League and Midget players Kevin Maly and Steve Overin. Overin had a triple, double and single to lead Wayne in hitting and Maly had two doubles.

In the first inning, Overin cracked a double and Jeff McCright moved him to third base with a sacrifice. Todd Schwartz walked and stole second base to place two runners in scoring position.

WITH TWO OUTS, Maly blasted a double to deep left-center field to score both runners. He moved to third when the throw to the infield was mishandled but was stranded there.

Another run by Shaun Niemann in the second inning gave Wayne a 3-0 advantage. Niemann reached base on an error and stole second base. Jeff Jorgensen moved him to third base with a sacrifice bunt and Overin's two out base hit brought him home.

Crofton scored its first run in the top of the fourth inning on a triple and single. A double and fielding error resulted in another Crofton run in the fifth.

After watching their hard earned lead diminish, the Wayne Midgets responded by scoring three runs in the bottom of the fifth to handcuff Crofton's momentum.

TODD PFEIFFER, who threw a five hit ter, led-off the bottom of the inning with a single and scored when Overin ripped a triple to the right-center field fence.

McCright reached base on a dropped fly ball which scored Overin. Schwartz sacrificed. McCright and Maly pounded a run-scoring double.

Crofton fought back to score one run in the bottom of the sixth but Wayne's defense buckled down in the seventh and held onto the victory by retiring the first three batters.

Pfeiffer, Allen Lead Legion Triumph

Jeff Allen rounds third to score another run.

Photography: Randy Hescall

Tim Pfeiffer fired a two-hitter and his teammates backed him with solid hitting as Wayne's Legion baseball team moved a step closer to a state tournament berth, Thursday night.

The locals clubbed Wausa 10-1 in opening round play of the Class C, Area A American Legion Baseball Tournament at Wisner. The win advanced Wayne into second round action against host Wisner in the double elimination tourney.

"We felt we had to go with our number one pitcher to beat Wausa. The score was 10-1 but Wausa had lots of runners. Now, we'll rely on Kevin (Nissen) to pitch a good game for us (against Wisner)," coach Hank Overin said.

"Our hitting is too weak. With renovation work on the ball park, we didn't have enough batting practice. We seemed to get better every time we practiced our hitting," Overin continued. "Next year when the field is complete, we should be able to set up pitching machines on both ends of the field."

WAUSA'S ONLY RUN came unearned in the fourth inning. A dropped fly ball and a base hit that rolled out to the fence resulted in the run that broke up Pfeiffer's shutout. Pfeiffer recorded nine strikeouts.

The winners broke the game open with four runs in the third inning and four more in the fifth. One run in the first and one in the fourth brought the total to 10.

It appeared that Wayne might win the game in five innings due to the 10-run rule. A two out rally resulted in four runs in the fifth inning. Bases were loaded when the third out was made.

Instead, Pfeiffer had to use up seven of his 12 innings of eligibility for the week as Wayne failed to score in the final two innings.

JEFF ALLEN SCORED the first run in the opening inning when he singled, stole second, took third base on a passed ball. Pfeiffer ripped a base hit to drive in the run.

In the third inning, Wayne managed four runs on two hits, one error and four walks. Jim Sperry and Jeff Allen opened the inning by drawing walks and Pfeiffer singled to load the bases. Pat McCright drilled a solid hit to right field to bring in two runs.

Brian Fleming hit a shallow fly ball into left field which was dropped by the charging left fielder and another run scored. Then, Tod Heiler and Todd Skokan drew walks to bring home another run.

The winners added a run in the fourth inning as Allen singled, Kevin Nissen and Pfeiffer walked and McCright hit a run-scoring sacrifice fly to left field.

LEADING 6-1 after four innings, the locals came within a whisker of winning the game in five innings due to the 10-run rule.

The Juniors batted through the order in the fifth inning and pushed in four more runs. With two outs, Jeff Baier drew a walk to start the rally.

Sperry walked and Allen singled to load the bases. Three consecutive walks to Nissen, Pfeiffer and McCright brought in three runs. Fleming lined a base hit to produce the fourth run.

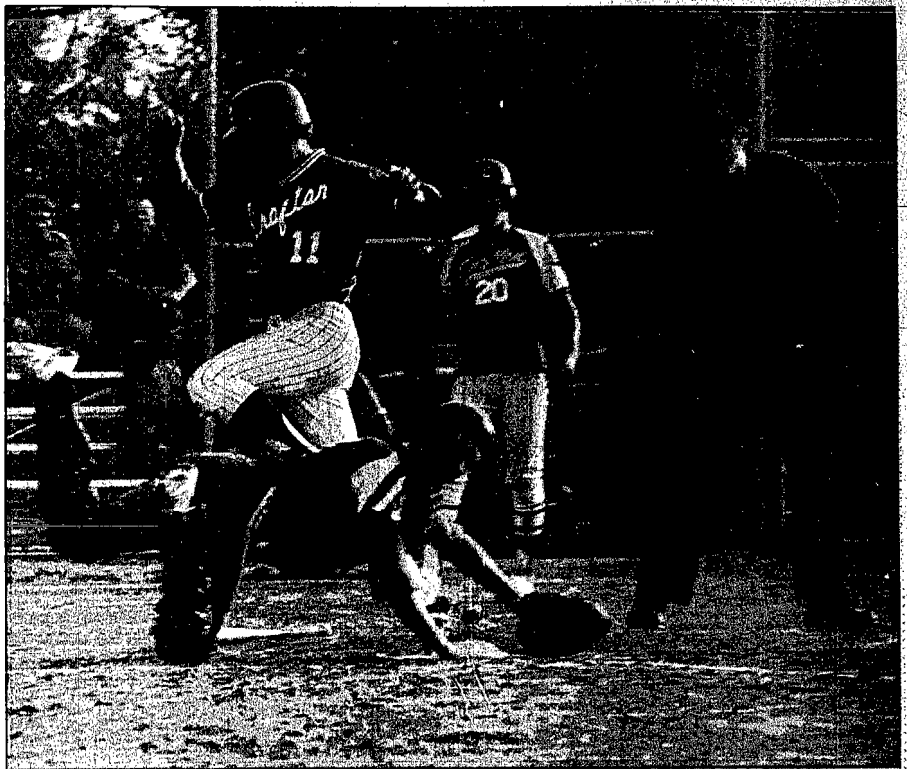

A called third strike with bases loaded got Wausa out of the jam.

ALLEN FINISHED the game with three hits and four runs in four plate appearances. Pfeiffer was two-for-two.

The winner of Saturday's game is scheduled to play tonight (Monday) in the tourney finals. If both teams have one loss after tonight's game, the teams will clash again tomorrow for the title.

Laurel Creeps in on Area Title

After three days of competition in the Class B Area 5 Legion Baseball Tournament at O'Neill, Laurel is in the driver's seat.

The locals had a first round bye in the double elimination tourney, then edged South Sioux City 8-7 on Wednesday and nipped Hartington 8-7 in eight innings on Thursday. Laurel was scheduled to face the winner of Friday's O'Neill/Hartington game in Saturday's final round. A Laurel loss would force another game to decide the area champion. The winner will qualify for the state Class B tournament.

THE THURSDAY matchup between Cedar County and Ralph Bishop League rivals Laurel and Hartington was a marathon. Because of a nine inning game between O'Neill and South Sioux, the nightcap—originally scheduled for 8 p.m.—didn't get underway until after 9:30 p.m. and lasted until after midnight.

Several Laurel players paced the winners in rallies that knocked Hartington into the losers bracket.

It was winning pitcher Lon Swanson's RBI double in the bottom of the eighth inning which drove home the winning run.

Hartington nearly knocked off Laurel in regulation play. The locals trailed 7-3 entering the seventh inning but pulled off a near-miraculous rally to send the game into an extra inning.

KELLY ROBSON doubled with one out and Scott Norvell smashed a two-run homer over the fence down the left field line to bring Laurel within two runs.

Swanson reached base on an error and Jamie Johnson walked to put the tying run on base. A hard base hit by Shannon Hopkins brought in both runners for a tie game. Hartington retired the next two batters to end the threat after the damage was done.

After holding Hartington scoreless in the top of the eighth, Laurel prevailed on Swanson's key double.

The early portion of the game belonged to Laurel. The winners scored two runs in the third inning to take the lead. Consecutive doubles by Hopkins and Dave Marquardt and a single by Bryan Buss resulted in the runs.

A RUN IN THE fourth inning added to Laurel's advantage. Norvell singled and Johnson, Hopkins and Brian Marquardt drew consecutive walks to bring in one run. Then, the tide turned. Hartington rallied for five runs in the fifth inning to steal the lead at 5-3. Two more runs in the sixth all but put the game out of reach at 7-3.

Laurel didn't give up and made a fine comeback. Four runs in the seventh and one in the eighth gave the locals a ticket to the finals.

Money Given For New Nets

The Wayne State College tennis courts were the big winner as a result of the first Wayne Community Open Tennis Tournament put together by a pair of Wayne youths and held July 25-26 at WSC.

Nick and Keith Zimmer, sons of Jerry and Helen Zimmer of Wayne, organized the event and donated approximately $200 to WSC for the purchase of new tennis nets. The open tourney attracted 44 participants from as far away as Omaha and Grand Island.

According to 18 year old Nick, who will be a freshman at WSC this fall, "Some people from the Wayne Tennis Club gave us the idea, and we (Nick and Keith) put it together." Keith, 17, will be a senior at Wayne High School this fall.

Their purpose was twofold: to give Northeast Nebraskans the opportunity to take part in some low-cost competition, and to improve the WSC tennis courts. They were successful on both counts, though they hope to draw up to 60 participants next year. "Forty-four was good for the first year. We're happy with it," Nick said.

After finalizing plans in early June, the young men set about soliciting sponsors (They attracted 26), making posters, preparing radio announcements, taking entries, and arranging the pairings. The entry form was published free of charge in The Wayne Herald and tournament balls were donated by the Wayne Jaycees and the Wayne Lions Club.

WSC President Lyle Seymour said, "Wayne State College is glad to have its facilities available to the community and we encourage everyone to make use of them. We are especially pleased when people are able to show their appreciation by making a donation. The effort by these two young men is sincerely appreciated."

Community Prepares for 'My Fair Lady' August 28, 29, 30 in Ramsey Theatre

The stage is being set for this year's fall production of the Wayne Community Theatre. Rehearsals have been underway since early July for the highly acclaimed musical, "My Fair Lady."

Performance dates are August 28, 29 and 30. "MY FAIR LADY," which is based on George Bernard Shaw's famous play, "Pygmalion," is being directed by Helen Russell. Jeff Carstens is assistant to the director and stage manager. Chris Crogrove is vocal as well as orchestral director. Judy Kucera, as rehearsal pianist, is putting the cast through their paces, rehearsing the many and varied songs. Beth Schaefer has choreographed a variety of dances called for in such numbers as "Wouldn't It Be Lovely," "With a Little Bit of Luck," "The Rain in Spain," "The Ascot Gavotte," and "Get Me to the Church on Time."

THE PLAY requires five settings, three of which are full stage.

Ted Blendeman has designed authentic exterior and interior sets which can be changed in less than one minute. Technical director Maurice Anderson has nearly completed the building of the scenery so there will be ample time for the intricate painting of detail.

"MY FAIR LADY," which takes place in London in 1912, calls for extremely elaborate costumes for both men and women. Formal daytime attire is needed for the Ascot races scene, and formal evening wear is required for the opera and Embassy Ball scenes.

Costume master Ted Blendeman has arranged to rent most of the costumes from Theatrical Costumers of Omaha.

Marian Manley, who heads the properties crew, has the difficult task of trying to locate period furniture, cylinder recording machines, white wrought iron lawn furniture, a stick type telephone, a white tea cart, and numerous other items of the period.

Michele Brockmoller will be in charge of lighting. Pat Craun heads the makeup crew, and Ann O'Donnell is publicity chairman. Charlotte Blake, assisted by Grace Covington, will be responsible for ticket sales and dinner arrangements.

THIS YEAR, instead of having three evening performances of the musical — two of which were dinner and show in the past — the Community Theatre board of directors has chosen to try something new.

The Friday night performance will be show only Saturday night dinner and show will be available.

Sunday a brunch followed by a matinee performance will be offered.

Show only tickets will be available for all three performances. LEADING THE cast of "My Fair Lady" will be Mike Carny playing the staunch Englishman, Henry Higgins, and Margaret Schultz playing Eliza Doolittle as the cockney girl.

Colonel Pickering will be played by Dick Manley, and the romantic young man Freddy Eynsford Hill is Bob Gullickson. His mother, Mrs. Eynsford-Hill, is played by Dorothy Stevenson.

The role of Alfred P. Doolittle is played by John Merriman.

The cast also includes Ted Blendeman as Jamie, Frank Prather as Harry, and Gwen Brandenburg as Mrs. Higgins. Jan Merriman is cast as Mrs. Pearce, and Katherine Butler is Mrs. Hopkins.

'Murals...Murals...Murals'

Where are the murals in Nebraska? And how many have you seen?

The Cultural Arts/Education department of Wayne County Home Extension Clubs is inviting the public to see the slide presentation, "Murals...Murals...Murals" to be shown during the Wayne County Fair, Aug. 6-9, in the agriculture hall. In 1979 the Nebraska Council of Home Extension Clubs (NCHEC) program emphasized "Cultural Arts." A major project that year was to document the murals across Nebraska.

The NCHEC produced this slide show in 1980-81 as a visual presentation of some of the entire number of murals documented.

Mrs. Richard Carman was the Wayne County Cultural Arts chairman in 1979. She submitted 12 murals for documentation, some of which will be seen in "Murals...Murals...Murals."

the Legal Aid Society spoke to 15 persons at the Wayne Senior Citizens Center July 21.

Title of his talk was "Topics That Can Be Handled By Legal Aid."

Kromalny emphasized the need for good supplemental insurance to pick up where Medicare leaves off.

He warned local senior citizens that insurance salesman who call at their door must have a permit from the City of Wayne and advised older citizens that they ask to see it.

"IF A SALESMAN comes to your door saying he represents Medicare, don't fall for it," said Kromalny, adding that the government does not send out representatives for Medicare.

Senior Citizens who are suspicious of insurance salesmen who come to their door are advised to call the local Senior Citizens Center at 375-1460.

McDermott Taking Vows

Brother Thomas K. McDermott, O.P., of Wayne, will make his solemn (life) vows of poverty, chastity, and obedience as a Dominican friar in ceremonies at the Old Cathedral in St. Louis, with two other Dominicans, on August 28.

McDermott, a 1971 graduate of Wayne Carroll High School, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. McDermott of Wayne.

McDERMOTT received the degree Bachelor of Arts in Theology cum laude from St. John's University in Collegeville, Minn. in 1974.

He was a high school teacher in suburban Minneapolis for three years prior to entering the Dominican novitiate in Denver in 1977 to begin formation as a Roman Catholic Dominican priest.

He professed simple or temporary vows as a Dominican in 1978 at St. Dominic Priory, Denver.

DURING THE last three years McDermott has been assigned to St. Rose Priory, Dubuque, Iowa, where he was enrolled in the Master of Arts in Theology program at Aquinas Institute of Theology.

He will continue his studies toward a second degree, Master of Divinity, at the recently relocated Aquinas Institute at St. Louis University. Following completion of his graduate studies, he will be ordained to the priesthood in the spring of 1983.

McDERMOTT'S program of study brought him to Bolivia, Peru, and Mexico in 1979 and 1980. From June through November, 1980, he served as a chaplain-intern at St. Joseph Hospital in Albuquerque, N. M.

He hopes to teach someday in one of his Order's missions in either Nigeria or Bolivia.

Presently, he is the book review editor of "Spirituality Today," a national Catholic journal devoted to the spiritual life.

His address is: St. Dominic Priory, Jesuit Hall, 3601 Lindell Blvd., St. Louis, Mo., 63108.

A Farm Without a Family

THIS ABANDONED farmstead southwest of Winside provides a picturesque setting for passersby. With an old wooden wagon in the yard and a comfortable looking old, wood-frame house, the yard whispers memories of years gone by. Grasses and weeds fill the yard where children used to play. And the trees echo with the sound of prairie bird life, instead of youngsters swinging on the branches.

4-H'ers 'Learn By Doing' at Fair Time

If you know a 4-H'er you probably know how hectic life can be the week before the fair. Panic usually sets in about now concerning those yet unfinished projects.

If you don't know a 4-H'er! You should. Wayne County has 290 real kids involved in the 4-H program of "learning by doing". Most of them are out there right now, learning, doing, and planning to exhibit at the Wayne County Fair.

And if you're a 4-H family member, you know that the 4-H'er is not the only one panicking. So are moms, dads, sisters and brothers.

HOPEFULLY, you're not the 4-H relative that says, "This is the last year you're putting your family through all this stress and strain."

Yes, 4-H projects are a lot of work and don't bring much monetary gain — but the profits lie in the skills and decision making experiences that evolve from those projects.

Making decisions about what to do, how to do it, what to use, and when to work on it helps members assume responsibility for their own actions and gives them personal satisfaction.

ed that over half the students in rural high schools have committed at least one act of vandalism.

But these studies also found that young people who are involved in church, school, and 4-H were not as involved in vandalism as young people who did not have club activities.

This is not to say that 4-H members are "saints." In fact, I know a few who at times, can be "full of the devil." It does, however, say that 4-H makes a difference.

FOUR-H CLUB members are not as involved in vandalism and are less likely to commit the serious acts like painting cars or houses or burning buildings.

Often young people commit acts of vandalism in response to peer pressure, in order to gain status and prestige. Some see it as a game.

In 4-H, youths have the opportunity to gain the attention and recognition of peers and adults in a positive way. They grow into responsible young adults with a variety of wholesome experiences not only in just their club and our small community, but also on state and sometimes the national level.

You've read in the paper all summer long how Wayne County 4-H'ers are going here and there for 4-H activities.

FOUR-H'ERS have the chance for positive self development that leads to responsible and socially acceptable behavior.

fair and provide those hard working youngsters with some recognition for a project well done.

Just remember that ribbon placings are not always a measure of what has been achieved through a project. Only the 4-H'er can tell you that. And if he or she is pleased and satisfied with what has been "learned by doing" that's what really matters.

I'M SORRY to say that the county fair will be a finale of the year I've spent working with the extension program in northeast Nebraska.

My husband has been transferred with his company to a branch plant in southwest Texas, and of course, I'm going along.

I hope to become involved in the 4-H program as a volunteer there, and hope you will here.

Everything has direct and indirect benefits and liabilities. I know the direct benefits of Certificates of Deposit as opposed to money market funds in terms of insurance and reserves, but are there any indirect benefits I should be aware of?

A. Possibly the largest indirect benefit when investing in a Certificate of Deposit is the capital you invest goes immediately to work. This is true of any investment, but when you invest in a Certificate of Deposit through your local savings and loan, the money goes to work in your community. In fact, virtually all of the capital your local savings association has at its disposal works in this town. Whereas the money you might invest in a money market fund will almost assuredly go to wherever the fund is managed in New York, Boston, Philadelphia, etc. Funds invested in a Certificate of Deposit stay right here to help local businesses, homeowners, farmers, etc. Your indirect benefit, in other words, may be a direct benefit to your neighbor.

Water District Question Much Deeper Than It Looks

By Rendell Howell

Someone made some money selling lots in the Roosevelt Park area without bringing the water system up-to-date.

That's the upshot what's happened to a number of property owners there.

And today, faced with the prospect of pitching in to help pay for a system that meets modern domestic water delivery and fire protection standard, those property owners are stuck.

THEY'RE STUCK because if they don't improve the system, particularly at the cost estimate of $36,000 it will continue to deteriorate.

And, if they go ahead with upgrading the system, they will face unexpected special assessment costs.

Even though those costs may be reasonable for the result by many standards, most property owners there seem to feel, and understandably so, that adequate services were an expected and given condition at the time of purchase.

One woman at Tuesday night's informal hearing on the recreated Roosevelt Park area water district improvement project said "We'll be paying for it twice."

TO FURTHER complicate the issue, the Roosevelt Park area is an older part of the city with some new construction.

With the new construction comes new demands on a hopelessly outdated water delivery system in that neighborhood.

And, though some residents of that area are perfectly willing to pay their share of the cost to get an improved system, others — particularly a few who have lived there for upwards of 40 years — find it hard to believe that their hard earned money and tax dollars haven't given them a system equivalent to that found in other sections of the city.

OF COURSE, any similar upgrading anywhere else in the city would be and has been done on a special assessment basis. In fact, because the City Council is aware of the special problem in the Roosevelt Park area, a compromise plan if adopted, would underwrite part of the costs there with general obligation funds.

Another problem that became apparent during Tuesday night's hearing was an attitude that has been developed, if not fueled, by some who would have property owners there believing that their neighborhood is not really a part of the city.

Several property owners expressed concern about equal treatment, equal tax dollars and equal services.

THAT THEME, of course, has been ever-present in the statements, charges, and in situations hurled at the City Council by one of its former members, Vernon Russell, a major landowner in the Roosevelt Park area.

Russell has gone to great lengths during several recent Council meetings to verbally chastise the city administration for making Roosevelt Park a weak sister subdivision.

The former City Council member, who speaks with an extensive knowledge of the neighborhood, has presented monologues after monologues about the condition of city services in that section of the 1st Ward.

Ironically, as a member of the City Council he represented that area not only as a resident but also as an elected official.

THE RECORD shows that then he supported several City Council policy decisions that he now repeatedly challenges and questions.

Russell's rhetoric at recent City Council meetings has, at times, buried factual information with emotional rocks thrown at the current administration — knowing full well that the inadequate water system existed while he served in city government.

Something of a leader in that neighborhood, Russell has openly stated several times that he would like the updated system, but that he doesn't want to have to pay for it.

Then, arguing apples and oranges on other water district projects, the property owner Tuesday night charged the Council with setting a precedent with the Sherman Street project — a general obligation project for upgrading citywide fire protection.

PERHAPS Klostner said it best Tuesday night when he told those Roosevelt Park area residents attending the hearing that the issue has been "purposely clouded by some."

Mayor Wayne Marsh concedes that the problem has been there for years and years. However, his administration has placed a compromise proposal before the property owners to begin correcting the problem.

And, Tuesday night, most members of the City Council expressed some relief that other property owners were willing to appear and express themselves in addition to considering the city's viewpoint.

One city official indicated, after Tuesday's meeting, that until the Roosevelt Park hearing it had begun to look like a one man show put on by a major property owner with a free lunch philosophy.

City Council Sets Employee Salaries With New Schedule

City employees are scheduled for an average raise of 7.28 percent this year under a salary schedule approved by the Wayne City Council Thursday.

According to Phil Klostner, City administrator, the new salary schedule adopted during a breakfast budget session abandons a long standing anniversary increase policy. Klostner said the City Council has replaced that policy with a salary range schedule whereby employees will receive raises based on merit and cost of living increases.

CITY COUNCIL members adopted Wayne's $5.8 million dollar budget Tuesday night after a public hearing at City Hall. Mayor Wayne Marsh recessed the meeting to continue finalizing budget salary figures at a working session Thursday.

Klostner said the Council built a 9 percent salary increase into the 1981-82 budget but that the newly adopted schedule came in under that figure.

He said the new schedule which also features a semi-annual employee performance evaluation, reflects a 7.28 average increase, not an across the board increase for non-exempt (hourly non-supervisory) personnel and exempt department heads' personnel.

"THE CITY Council reviewed the salaries of all employees," Klostner said. "The final result is that we are spending less on salaries than the Council allocated."

Fiscal year 1981-82 began Saturday with a general fund budget for Wayne of $881,956, down from last year's $930,130.

However, the total budget figure is up about $1.2 million. Klostner attributes the increase to jumps in the revenue generating categories, such as the electrical fund and the water sewer fund.

The electrical fund has increased, according to Klostner, because of the continuing rise in the cost of energy and inadequate budgeting in that department last year.
