KXNE-TV Station Back on The Air

Television viewers who touched that dial during July can turn it back to Channel 19 now.

Educational television for northeast Nebraska, KXNE-TV, is back on the air after a 28-day transmission interruption.

The month-long blank screen on Channel 19 gave engineers time to install a new $471,000 transmitter at the ETV station 13 miles west of Wayne.

And, KXNE-TV flickered onto home television screens at 6 p.m. Monday with only a few kinks in the new system for engineer Tom Guilliam, transmitter supervisor, to work out.

KXNE-TV, a transmitter station that's part of the Nebraska Educational Television Network, went off the air at midnight July 6.

Guilliam said the transmitter was shut down because "essentially it was worn out." He said the old transmitter, which was manufactured by General Electric, was installed at the time the station was built in 1967.

"It could no longer meet Federal Communications Commission specifications in the way of power," Guilliam explained.

"After a while, it (the transmitter) wore out and General Electric had gone out of the transmitter business," he said. "We had a terrible time just getting parts."

GUILLIAM, who lives in Carroll and normally works an eight-hour shift at the transmitter station, had already put in a 30-hour shift by noon Tuesday in an effort to work out some of the bugs encountered when Channel 19 signed on Monday night.

"We've got some problems with an amplifier," he said. "But, a new one is expected Wednesday." He will install it.

Guilliam said the station is not yet at full power, but is not far from optimum transmission.

In addition, the Kansas native said that Lincoln, the ETV studio station, was having difficulty monitoring KXNE-TV.

KXNE-TV, which is northeast Nebraska's educational television transmitter station, is part of a network that is operated through the University of Nebraska-Lincoln and the Nebraska ETV Commission.

The commission owns the transmitters.

"WE TOOK it off the air to replace the transmitter," Guilliam said. "It took a full three days to get the old transmitter equipment out."

Nebraska ETV engineers Bill Ramsay, Larry Evans and Bill Wells worked with Guilliam during the month-long replacement project.

Ramsay is engineering director at Lin.

Wayne County Fair Exhibits Expand

Some of the largest — and some new — exhibits will highlight the Wayne County Fair this year, which begins today, Thursday, and runs through Sunday.

According to Wayne County extension Agent Don Spitzer, "we're having the largest number of theme booths in many, many years."

There are usually 8 to 10 booths. But this year, 15 4-H clubs will take a theme and try to put that idea across in the booth, Spitzer explained.

The cow and calf project, in which a cow and its calf are exhibited in a pen, will "probably be the largest in the state," he said.

Thirty pairs are expected to be entered this year, as compared to a previous high of 25.

RAISING DAIRY goats is another project which is growing, Spitzer said.

The Mini-Milkers 4-H Club does nothing but goat projects — which are "good for young kids. The goats are easy for them to handle," he explained.

This is the second year for dairy goat judging, a project "very popular in Lancaster County."

Based on the rate of gain, carcass information and live animal placings, the 4-H Swine rate-of-gain contest is new this year, Spitzer said.

Pigs were weighed at weaning time on the 4-Her's farm and again at fair time. The winner will receive a gift given by John Nitzman, Jack DeJong and Allied Mills.

THE COMMERCIAL pens of three market sheep project was designed just for this county, Spitzer said. There are three to five lambs in the pen, which were weighed, sheared and tagged at the county weigh-in and at the beginning of the fair.

The premium for the contest is based on the judges' placing, 1/3 on the rate of gain, and 2/3 on the 4-Her's score in the Challenge Program, he explained.

Spitzer developed the Challenge Program exclusively for Wayne County, and it's been used for a number of years.

Awards are based on a combination of the 4-Her's knowledge on production, the ribbon he received for showmanship, his record book and his live animal placings, he explained.

Winside Schools' Tax Bill To Drop

For the second consecutive year, Winside School District is asking less, instead of more, from local taxpayers.

Property tax requests for the 1981-82 school year are expected to drop nearly 13 percent under a new fiscal year financial package put together by the school district's board of education in late July.

A public hearing on the proposed 1981-82 school district budget has been scheduled for 8 p.m. Monday, Aug. 10, according to Don Leighton, superintendent.

"I'VE CHECKED around and we're one of the few school districts decreasing our request to taxpayers," Leighton said. "It's a good budget, and we're proud that we can reduce the burden on school district taxpayers."

Leighton said the property tax request will decrease about $67,963.91 (12.9 percent), if the board adopts the proposed budget after Monday's public hearing.

That reduced request comes on the heels of last year's decline of about $24,424.57. Based on this year's evaluation, that would be a decrease of 4.86 mills.

"WE ARE able to reduce the tax request even though the total budget will be up about $23,656," Leighton said.

The total budget is expected to be about $868,430 with a tax request of about $457,445.16, according to the superintendent. Last year's total budget figure was at $844,974. That budget had a tax request of $525,409.07, he said.

The total budget for 1981-82 represents an increase of about 2.7 percent over last year's total budget.

Included in the total budget are pass-through funds, such as state aid, special education funds and federal programs — including school lunches.

"THE REDUCTION comes primarily because of underspending the 1980-81 budget, more receipts than expected, eliminating the purchase of a new school bus and, of course, a mild winter," Leighton explained.

He said the unusually mild winter saved the district a substantial sum in fuel costs.

Furthermore, according to Leighton, the school also reduced the teaching staff by one person.

He said the curriculum will not be affected by the staff reduction, which involves a science teaching position.

Alcohol Abuse

Area Junior Leader's Essay in 4-H Magazine

By Randall Howell

When Turena Walde picks up a month-old kitten, the crying stops and the purring begins.

When the 17-year-old Wayne-Carroll Schools senior touches the halter of a ready-for-market steer, the prancing stops and the showmanship stand begins.

And, when the junior 4-H leader talks to people about alcohol abuse, the chatter stops and the listening begins.

AFTER THREE years of study, including chemical dependency workshops, research and presentations to a variety of audiences, Walde exudes a confident knowledge about the subject not often found among teenagers.

The eight-year 4-H club veteran, eldest daughter of Stanley and Sharon Walde of rural Winside, has been published nationally on the subject of alcohol abuse, particularly as it involves teenagers.

Her article, written for and published by National 4-H News, quickly outlines the scope of the problem with facts and figures about alcohol addiction and explains a northeast Nebraska junior leaders project to help young people deal with it.

Walde joined the program in 1979, after a group of northeast Nebraska 4-H junior leaders established the program in April of 1978.

"A LOT OF my friends drank, and that didn't really bother me, but I wanted to find out more about alcohol," she said in the dining room of her family-farm home, which is northwest of Winside.

Deciding to do something about her thirst for knowledge on the subject, Walde attended a two-day fall workshop at the Northeast Station, Concord.

There, she joined junior leaders from throughout the northeast corner of the state. Working with experts in the field, which included an Al-Anon team, ministers trained in chemical dependency counseling and, even a police officer, Walde also viewed films and studied research information on alcohol abuse.

"I participated in the workshop, which prepared me to go out to give talks on alcohol abuse to people in my county," she explained, while her mother bustled herself with last-minute preparations for the Wayne County Fair.

"THAT WAS just the beginning of the project," she said. "Each county had three or four on a county team, including one adult. My mother was the adult leader on our team."

That team also included her younger sister, Cynthia, 16. Other members included Valerie Bush, Shaun Niemann and Marsha Rethwisch — all of Wayne County.

"We made ourselves known through newspaper articles and we had a radio program just before Christmas last year," she said.

She and her 4-H teammates also spoke at most of the county schools in Wayne County, county extension groups and 4-H clubs.

And, Walde presented the alcohol-abuse picture to 4-Hers at the annual junior leaders banquet in addition to conducting a program during the junior leaders training workshop in Wayne County.

THE PROGRAM has been successful enough to prompt Wayne County extension agent Don Spitzer to ask that it be continued for the coming year.

"I don't know if we'll take it on next year or not," said Walde, a member of the Springbranch 4-H Club.

Last Tuesday, Walde and her sister traveled to Lincoln. There, Walde and district youth specialist Roy Stohler presented the Alcohol Impact Program "Reflections in a Glass," to state 4-H office staff representatives.

While her participation in the program had little to do with her activities as a member of Springbranch 4-H Club, Walde — along with her teammates — may have been instrumental in bringing alcohol abuse to the forefront.

This year, alcohol prevention has come in to its own as a 4-H project.

EARLY THIS year, Walde was asked by the state 4-H office to write a story on the

100 Years Hoskins Peace Church Celebrates Old-Style

The Peace United Church of Christ in Hoskins celebrated its 100th birthday Sunday morning, and the congregation dug out their grandparents' best for the service.

Most of the women and some of the men, including the Behmer family (left), dressed as the church founders did — and the Behmers came on horseback and in a mule-drawn cart. Mr. and Mrs. Fred Krueger (center left) came armed.

Even the service was conducted centennial-style. Mrs. Raymond Walker (center), wearing her confirmation dress of 45 years ago, played age-old songs like "Rock of Ages" for the congregation to sing. They also went to the altar for the communion service instead of sitting in the pews. And the men sat on the right side of the church, with the women on the left.

Deb Strate and her four-year-old daughter Amy (center right) listened as Pastor John C. David explained that it was faith, not new buildings or rituals, that kept the people coming back to the church. It was first organized on Aug. 30, 1881.

The Peace Golden Fellowship served coffee in the church basement after the service, and Mr. and Mrs. George Langenberg, Sr. (bottom) gave buggy rides to those wanting them before heading for home.

Winside Woman Saves Bucks

Refunding is Her Answer to Inflation

By LaVon Beckman

She's a farm wife with two daughters, a husband who spends the greater part of his day working the fields, and a penchant for saving money.

And like the rest of American society she's concerned with the soaring costs of groceries, health and beauty aids, clothing, and other unexpected expenses that seem to pop up out of nowhere.

HOWEVER, Joan Berg of Winside, along with an ever increasing number of other housewives, young singles, retired elderly persons, businesswomen (and men), all across the nation, has found a way to break from the ever skyrocketing prices and cut the financial burden of groceries.

They're coupon collectors, and they save everything!

Because of the amount of time and work they have spent refunding they've watched the cost of feeding their families go down while prices continue to go up.

REFUNDING, says Joan, is sending in labels, register tapes, or whatever a company requests as proof that you bought their product, in return you receive cash, gifts or coupons.

"Coupon and refund savings make you feel as if you're 'earning' money," says the Winside housewife and mother, adding that persons not into refunding don't realize the tremendous amount of savings they're throwing out with the trash.

"Manufacturers are paying you for using their products!"

"WHEN YOU use a cash off coupon," explains Joan, "you're actually being offered a lower price by the manufacturer, and when you take advantage of a refund offer, you are getting back a portion of the price that you paid for a product."

"Because you are in effect receiving your own money back, it does not represent taxable income."

JOAN, WHO displays a vast collection of tote bags, cookbooks, toys and tee shirts, all received free from companies whose products she has used, says refunding is a fun hobby that also requires a great deal of time and organization.

"You learn to save everything," she smiles, every label, box top, seal and food wrapper from every name brand item you purchase.

A small room in the basement of the Berg home — neatly lined with file cabinets and cardboard boxes — is proof that Joan takes her hobby seriously.

JOAN WAS introduced to refunding by a teacher when she was in eighth grade. However it wasn't until about 13 years ago, while her daughters were growing up, that she began to think about refunding as a serious way of helping cut family expenses.

Today daughters Carla, 20, a student at Doane College, and Cindy, 12, and a student at Winside Public School, are walking announcements of their mother's hobby and a free source of advertising for many companies.

Both wardrobes include an assortment of tee shirts featuring such advertising notables as Morris the Cat, Mr. Whipple and the Pillsbury Dough Boy.

And, when school starts again this fall, the girls can choose from a selection of nearly 100 tote bags their mother has collected through the years to help with the heavy textbook load.

JOAN SAYS anyone thinking about getting into refunding must keep an organized file where they can put their hands on box tops, labels, seals or food wrappers in a hurry.

"To make money at refunding does require work," warns Joan, adding that the entire Berg family watches everywhere for forms.

Joan says there are two kinds of refunds, those that require forms and those that do not. She says forms can be found everywhere — in larger newspapers, grocery flyers, and on grocery store bulletin boards.

"Often," says Joan, "I'll take a quick walk up and down grocery aisles looking for forms."

JOAN SAYS it's also helpful to subscribe to refund papers, and two of the best she has found are Fire Fly Reporter and Refundie Bunde.

The refund bulletins are printed to inform subscribers of current refund offers available to them. They are not connected with any companies making the offers.

THE WINDSIDE coupon collector says persons into refunding must learn to be flexible — willing to change brands. "I've tried all sorts of different brands over the years," smiles Joan.

Joan says she almost always takes advantage of cashoffs — cents off coupons that are redeemed at the supermarket. She also takes advantage of free coupons.

Each week when Joan goes to make out her grocery list she checks items which can be purchased a few cents cheaper by using cashoffs or free coupons she has filed away. Then when she goes to check out her groceries she puts each coupon with the item she has purchased to make it easier for the person behind the checkout counter.

JOAN SAYS all of the gifts she has received throughout the years as a result of refunding are absolutely free.

"I stay away from money plus offers," says Joan, explaining that those are offers whereby the manufacturer requires proof of purchase and money for the gift he is offering.

Free gifts Joan has received include a portable electric mixer, doughnut maker, burger maker, electric warming tray, suit cases, all kinds of tee shirts, toys and books, nylons, a cardboard playhouse, coaster wagon and cameras.

The most expensive present was a pair of binoculars offered by the Listerine company.

"We've gotten so many different things," says daughter Cindy, adding that almost every week the Berg home receives a package as a result of her mother's refunding.

JOAN CAUTIONS that persons who want to get a lot out of refunding must put a lot in to it.

Joan says her first investment with money she received from refunding was a metal file cabinet. Today drawers lining the file are filled with proof of purchase seals Joan has collected.

Larger cardboard boxes lining the wall are for proof of purchases too bulky to file away in drawers.

JOAN ESTIMATES she spends about two hours each week at refunding. That includes taking time to read magazines for offers, file coupons, sending forms out, and corresponding with other refunding enthusiasts throughout the country.

"The more you work at it, the more you get back," says Joan, adding that the busiest time is at the end of each month when many coupons expire, and in December when many other offers run out.

Joan stresses that a good filing system is a must — including files for proof of purchase seals, files that tell you when an offer expires, and another file with new offers coming out.

JOAN BELIEVES that her interest in saving money stems from growing up during the depression years — "when things were tough."

"It's really hard for someone who knows about refunding to watch someone else burn their garbage," laughs Joan. "If I do think, 'My God, they're burning money!'"

Joan says she has introduced several of her friends to refunding, which has its origins back in the late 1890's when C. W. Post offered a penny to purchasers of his new beverage, Postum.

"Today," says Joan, "refundng has emerged into a billion dollar industry."

JOAN HAS some advice for persons interested in refunding:

"You get into it by saving labels and cash register tapes, and then filing them," she says, adding that extra space is needed to keep the files organized.

Joan says a subscription to a monthly refunding paper also is very helpful. Addresses for various refunding papers can often be found in the back of magazines and in newspapers.

"Read the refund paper from cover to cover," suggests Joan. "They are an excellent source for current refund offers available."

JOAN SAYS courtesy also is very important.

"Don't take more than one refund form when your grocery stores displays them," she says, "and if you use cashoffs be sure you use them on the correct product and size. And if the offer says one per family, make sure you do exactly that."

"Never, never, never remove a proof of purchase seal without purchasing the product," she warns.

Joan says courtesy to the clerk behind the checkout counter also is important.

"Sort your coupons and put them with the product before you get to the checkout line," she suggests, "and underline all expiration dates."

ALTHOUGH MANY persons get into refunding when they reach retirement age,

Joan says she hopes to discontinue her hobby when it comes time for retirement.

"Refunding is not my livelihood," stresses Joan. "It's just grown into a large hobby throughout the years."

Joan says most of the money she receives from refunding goes to her daughters for little extras.

Right now, however, Joan is setting aside some of the money she has received from refunding to purchase a gift for herself — a roll top desk.

JOAN LIKES to compare the money saved from refunding to walking down the street and seeing 75 cents laying on the sidewalk.

"Would you pick it up? Of course you would," she smiles.

"Refunding is much the same. The savings is there. Pick it up."

Weekend Celebration

Church Commemorating 90th

Members of St. Paul's Lutheran Church in Winside, and other friends of the congregation, will gather Aug. 15 to 16 to commemorate the 90th anniversary of the church.

Theme for the weekend celebration, according to the Rev. John E. Hafermann, is "Live and Tell What the Lord Has Done—Our Citizenship is in Heaven." Featured pastors will be the Rev. Rodney Hilpert, son of former Pastor H. M. Hilpert, the Rev. Larry Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Miller of Winside, and the Rev. Gerald Gottberg, a former pastor of the church.

PASTOR HAFERMANN said the weekend observance will get underway Saturday evening, Aug. 15, with 7 p.m. Vespers by Pastor Miller. Vespers will be followed with selections by the Children's Choir from 7:45 to 8 p.m.; a short break, 8 to 8:15 p.m.; films, 8:15 to 9 p.m.; and fellowship hour from 9 to 10 p.m.

The Sunday morning anniversary worship service, conducted by the Rev. Rodney Hilpert, will begin at 9:30 a.m. and will be followed with a congregational dinner at 11:15.

THERE WILL be an informal fellowship hour in the afternoon, beginning at 1:30, and personal messages at 2:30 from Golda Hilpert, wife of former pastor H. M. Hilpert; the Rev. Rodney Hilpert; the Rev. Larry Miller; the Rev. John Hafermann; and the Rev. Gerald Gottberg. Emcee for the afternoon program will be Bud Froehlich.

Pastor Gottberg will close with vesper devotions at 3:30 p.m., followed with an informal coffee and farewells. All friends of the congregation are invited to join in the celebration.

ST. PAUL'S Evangelical Lutheran Church was originated in the year 1890 when a group of German Lutherans met in the home of Ed Krause, and later in the upstairs room of a new school built in Winside. Lots were purchased a few months later when the congregation decided to build a house of worship, and dedication of the new building was on June 27, 1891.

Charter members were Leopold Herman, Gustave Ludwig Rehms, Edward and August Krause, Christian Krueger, August Brueckner, Carl Bronzynski, Ludwig Sonnenburg and August Nehring.

PASTORS SERVING the congregation during its formative years included the Rev. F. Koch, 1890; Rev. Stevens, 1892; Rev. Ludwig Rauch, 1893; Rev. Klaus, 1895; and Rev. Hagedorn, 1899. A parsonage was completed on Oct. 4, 1899, and the Rev. Hagedorn resigned the following year. The Rev. Press was installed in 1901.

Because of the growing congregation, an addition to the church was completed in 1903, and in 1914 the church celebrated its 25th anniversary.

PASTOR PRESS resigned in 1917. Rev. Frick was installed and served the congregation until his death in 1923.

On Jan. 20, 1924, the Rev. H. M. Hilpert began serving as vacancy pastor and accepted his call on Aug. 17 the same year.

The church celebrated its 50th anniversary on July 20, 1941 with many older members and former pastors and wives in attendance.

FOR SEVERAL YEARS the congregation had discussed building a new church. Their dream became a reality when ground breaking ceremonies were held on Oct. 2, 1955. On Oct. 21, 1956, the new brick church was dedicated near the site of the original building.

Mortgage burning ceremonies were held in January of 1962 following payment of a $38,000 loan on the new $135,000 building.

A new brick parsonage was dedicated in 1965 on the same site as the old parsonage, which was sold and moved to another part of town.

ON JULY 7, 1963, Larry Miller, a son of the congregation, was ordained into the ministry of the Lutheran Church Missouri Synod in special services conducted by Pastor Hilpert, who also officiated at his baptism, confirmation and marriage. He now serves as pastor of Good Shepherd Lutheran Church, Port Arthur, Texas. Rodney Hilpert, son of the Pastor and Mrs. Hilpert, also studied for the ministry and received a call to be assistant pastor of Grace Lutheran Church in Detroit, Mich.

He was ordained and installed by his father on Aug. 6, 1972, and now serves as pastor, at Grace Lutheran Church, Pittsburg, Calif.

ST. PAUL'S observed its 75th anniversary on Oct. 16, 1966 with special services, an anniversary dinner and afternoon lunch.

On Sept. 28, 1969, a special service was held honoring Pastor H. M. Hilpert for his 45th year of ministry at St. Paul's. Pastor Hilpert retired in November of 1970 and moved with his wife to Paris, Ill., where he died on Feb. 24, 1976.

PASTOR G. W. Gottberg of Madison accepted a call to St. Paul's Lutheran Church and was installed on Dec. 6, 1970. He served until Dec. 30, 1976, when he left to serve a parish in Louisville, Neb.

Pastor John Hafermann of Texas was installed as pastor on April 1, 1979.

SUNDAY SCHOOL classes were organized in 1925 and have a current enrollment of 114 youngsters.

The Ladies Aid, which was formed on Aug. 28, 1930, remains active in donating money toward the church building fund and numerous other gifts. Current membership is 55.

The Aid celebrated its 50th anniversary on Sept. 14, 1980, with three charter members present, Mrs. Golda Hilpert of Paris, Ill., Mrs. Emma Trampe of Pierce, and Mrs. Minnie Graef of Winnda. The Lutheran Women's Missionary League, a ladies Christian organization, was formed in 1961 with all women of the congregation as members.

ST. PAUL'S Lutheran Church has a current membership of 558 baptized members and 441 communicants.

In May of this year the church was redecorated and new carpeting installed.

This year, the 90th anniversary of the church, also marks the 25th anniversary of the present church building.

Midgets Oust Plainview for State Berth

ANOTHER RUN scores as the Wayne Midgets win the Area A title.

A smile crept across the face of a blue uniformed spectator as the final out was made in the Class C Area A Midget Baseball finals, played Monday at Wisner.

Wayne had just qualified for the Class C State Tournament with an 8-3 win over Plainview and Todd Pfeiffer was proud of his team. The hard-throwing right hander had to watch the championship game from the stands—with a cast on his left foot.

A freak accident on Saturday put an end to an active baseball season for Pfeiffer, who was instrumental in leading the Wayne Midgets through a successful season. While chopping weeds from a bean field, he accidentally cut tendons and nerves in the top of his foot near the ankle with a corn knife.

ANOTHER HAPPY FELLOW at the game was second baseman Jeff Jorgensen. Jorgensen looked like a character in the movie "Superman II" as he made a fine diving catch of a line drive to end Monday's game.

Bases were loaded in the bottom of the seventh and Plainview threatened to put together a two-out rally when Jorgensen robbed Plainview's second baseman and leadoff batter of a base hit.

Wayne collected only four hits but rattled Plainview early by scoring seven runs in the first two innings.

"We broke right out with early hits and runs or we would have been in trouble. There were only two or three innings that we weren't in trouble," coach Hank Overlin said. "Plainview stranded a lot of runners in the game."

FOUR RUNS in the first inning put Wayne in command. Chris Wieseler walked and stole second base and Steve Overlin drove him in with a double to right-center field.

Jeff McCright then walked and stole second and a base hit by Todd Schwartz scored him. Schwartz scored on a wild pitch. In the second inning, Randy Gamble and Jorgensen drew walks. Wieseler moved the two runners with a sacrifice bunt and Gamble scored as Overlin reached base on an error by the first baseman.

Jorgensen scored on a passed ball and McCright drove in Overlin with a base hit.

Plainview's two runs came in the third inning on two walks, a single, a wild pitch and a fielder's choice. Plainview stranded 13 runners in the seven inning game.

AN INSURANCE RUN was added by Wayne in the fifth inning. Maly singled and took second base when the left fielder bobbed the ball. Heiler's sacrifice moved him to third and he scored from "their" on a wild pitch.

The game was concluded with bases loaded and Plainview at bat. The first Plainview batter in the seventh inning walked and the second batter was called out when he stepped on the plate as he hit the pitch.

A fielder's choice and walk loaded the bases but Overlin struckout the next batter for the second out. After one run was walked in, Jorgensen's diving catch ended the game.

Wayne is now scheduled to play in the Class C State Tournament this weekend.

State Tourney Pairings

Wayne's Midgets will face Mead as the Class C State Midget Tournament opens this weekend at Tecumseh. The two teams will clash in the Midget opener at 1 p.m. Sunday. Superior and Goshenburgh will square off in the other first round game.

Those four teams will compete in single elimination competition for the State Class C title. Finals are scheduled at 8:15 p.m. Monday. Mead defeated Gretna 3-1 in Area B play at Wahoo to win that title.

The winner of the Area B Legion title is scheduled to play in the state tournament at Tecumseh beginning Friday evening. The game scheduled at 6 p.m. would match Wayne or Wisner against Syracuse. The field will be filled by Kimball and either Dwight, Arlington or St. Paul.

Laurel's Junior Legion team qualified for state in Class B and will face West Point at 11:30 a.m. tomorrow (Friday) in Ogallala. In other state action, Aurora plays Blair at 2 p.m., Gering and Lexington square off at 5:30 and host Ogallala faces Hickman at 8 p.m. The West Point Laurel winner will play the Gering-Lexington winner at 5:30 Saturday while losers of those two games meet at 11:30 a.m. Other action is scheduled for Sunday, Monday, Tuesday and possibly Wednesday.

Legion Fights Back for Title Shootout

Chalk one up for the Wayne Junior Legion baseball team. After losing three straight games to Wisner this season, Wayne broke the jinx with a 4-1 victory Tuesday night in Class C Area A action at Wisner.

The win set up a championship showdown between the two teams to determine a state qualifier. That game was scheduled at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday if it wasn't rained out.

The Area winner moves on to state competition scheduled to begin tomorrow (Friday) evening at Tecumseh. Dwight, Arlington and St. Paul were still battling for the Area B title. The Wayne Wisner winner meets Syracuse at 6 p.m. Kimball is the other team in the field.

A PAIR OF HOME runs keyed Wayne's victory Tuesday. Kevin Nissen, riding a hot streak, rocketed a homer to lead off the second inning. It was Nissen's third home run in five straight plate appearances during Wayne's last two Area games.

Tod Heier equaled Nissen's most recent effort by clubbing a two-out solo homer in the same inning to give Wayne a 2-1 lead. Wisner scored one run in the first inning as Dean Groskurth walked and scored on a base hit by Burnie Drieling.

Nissen returned to the mound to win Tuesday's matchup after throwing a one-hitter against Plainview on Monday. He used up his five remaining eligible innings on the mound and gave up only two hits and one run.

Tim Pfeiffer, who pitched the first game between Wayne and Wisner on Sunday, threw the final two innings of relief to gain the save. Tuesday night, he gave up only a double by Andy Carothers.

Wisner's usually potent offense was smothered as Nissen and Pfeiffer combined to allow only three hits. The two some retired nine batters on strikes.

WAYNE HAD CONTROL of the game since taking the lead in the second inning. In the third, three hits and a sacrifice led to a 4-1 Wayne advantage.

Jere Morris led-off with a line single and Jim Sperry followed with a base hit. A sacrifice bunt by Pfeiffer advanced the runners and Morris scored the first run on a passed ball.

Pat McCright rapped a two-out single to bring home Sperry for the fourth run. A diving catch by Wisner center fielder Groskurth saved another run from scoring.

Wayne managed seven hits in the game off of starter Dennis Vollmer and reliever Drieling. Morris had two and Sperry, Nissen, McCright, Jeff Allen and Heier had one each.

Nissen Powers Wayne Win

If the fans at the Wayne Plainview Legion game could have selected a most valuable player Monday night, there would have been a runaway winner.

Kevin Nissen hit and pitched Wayne to a 6-1 triumph over Plainview in the double elimination tournament, setting up a final matchup between Wayne and Wisner. Those two teams were scheduled to clash on Tuesday and a Wayne win would have set up a rematch on Wednesday.

NISSEN BLASTED a pair of three-run home runs and pitched a one-hitter. He was only two outs away from pitching a no-hitter when Plainview's center fielder bloomed a single between Wayne's second baseman and right fielder—Nissen, who struckout five batters and walked two, retired the next two batters to end the game.

The shortstop drove in all six Wayne runs with his two homers. The first shot came in the first inning with Jim Sperry on base by error and Tim Pfeiffer on base with a walk. Tod Heier had a triple later that inning but was stranded on base.

Plainview scored one unearned run in the bottom of the fifth inning on two Wayne errors.

In the seventh, Jere Morris—returning after an illness—opened with a single. Pfeiffer drew a walk and Nissen jacked another one out of the park. The ball, carried well over the center field fence and landed nearly 400 feet from home plate.

TODD SKOKAN of Wayne makes a long stretch to grab the throw from one of his infielders for a force out at first base. After making the play, Skokan fell off of the bag.

Wisner Edges Wayne Juniors 5-4

A defensive breakdown in the final two innings Sunday night cost the Wayne Legion an automatic berth in the finals of the Class C Area A Baseball Tournament.

Wayne led Wisner 4-3 entering the sixth inning but ended up losing the game 5-4. Wisner scored the tying run in the bottom of the sixth inning by taking advantage of three Wayne errors.

THE WINNING RUN was scored with two outs in the seventh. After the first batter was retired on strikes, Ryan Rathke clubbed a double and Wayne issued an intentional walk to Barry Graiher.

One out later, Dennis Vollmer smacked a grounder up the middle. Wayne shortstop Kevin Nissen made a diving stop of the ball but was unable to make a play in time as Rathke scored.

Wisner collected three of its six hits in the first inning and managed two runs. Wayne came back to gain a momentary lead in the top of the third.

Pat McCright singled, Tod Heier walked and Brian Fleming reached base when Wisner's pitcher overthrew first base on a bunt. McCright and Heier both scored on the overthrow. Then, Sperry singled to drive in Fleming for a 3-2 lead.

IT TOOK ONLY one pitch for Wisner to tie the game in the bottom of the third. With one out, Graiher jacked a curve ball over the outfield fence for a home run.

The visitors regained the lead in the fourth inning when Heier singled and later scored on a sacrifice bunt by Sperry.

Wayne pitcher Tim Pfeiffer, who pitched a six-hitter and struckout eight batters, retired six straight batters in the fourth and fifth innings. He handled the top of the order in the fifth by throwing three strikeouts.

Things fell apart for Wayne in the final two innings as the home team moved into Tuesday's scheduled finals against either Plainview or Wayne.

THE LOSS DROPPED Wayne into the losers bracket against Plainview. That game was scheduled for Monday.

The winner of the area tourney will qualify for the Class C state tournament scheduled to open Aug. 7 at Tecumseh.

Randy's Recap

By Randy Hascall

LOTS HAS HAPPENED in the area world of sports since these lines last appeared in The Wayne Herald.

The Ralph Bishop League will be represented by three baseball teams at state tournaments this weekend. The Wayne Midgets and Laurel Juniors have already secured positions at state. At the time this column was written, Wayne and Wisner were still alive in Legion play.

There is a good chance that other Ralph Bishop teams would have qualified for state but several were paired in districts and knocked each other off.

Ralph Bishop League Hank Overin extends his appreciation to all of the coaches, players, fans and anyone involved with the league this year for helping make it a successful season.

THE WAYNE MIDGETS had a tough road enroute to the state tourney. Todd Pfeiffer and Todd Schwartz had shared the majority of pitching duties during the regular season.

Schwartz injured his elbow a few weeks ago and was unable to pitch through district or area action. His chances of pitching at state appear slim at this time.

Then, the team and its followers were shocked at the loss of ace pitcher Todd Pfeiffer. Pfeiffer cut his foot with a corn knife in a freak accident while walking beans. Saturday Cut tendons and nerves made the injury a serious one.

Pfeiffer will now be wearing a cast for at least six weeks and will then have to learn how to walk on that foot again. He will be missed by the Midget team but everyone is just thankful that he seems to be doing well. I believe Tim Heier and Todd Schwartz carried Pfeiffer from the bean field and gave his injury immediate attention. Those two deserve recognition for their assistance.

The loss of two pitchers puts an added burden on the shoulders of Steve Overin, the coach's son. Overin, who just completed his Pony League career this season, has assumed the duties as first string pitcher. A tough role for someone his age.

THE STATE berth brings an unusual tidbit of information. Two generations have now qualified for state baseball play under coach Hank Overin. Jeff Jorgensen is a member of the present Midget team. His father Rodney Jorgensen was a member of one of Hank's earlier state-qualifying teams.

TOWN TEAM BASEBALL has occupied considerable time of many post-Legion baseball players this summer.

Using home-grown talent, the Laurel Town Team has compiled a successful season in Tri-County play. Wakefield is struggling although it doesn't seem to be because of lack of talent.

Six Wayne players have helped lead Randolph in a good year and Hartington is blessed with several Wayne players.

With the renovation of the ball park, I look for Wayne to have a town team—and a darned good one—next year. The community has not had a team for two years and the time is right for things to change.

Wayne will probably join either the Dodge County League or Tri-County League.

SLOW PITCH SOFTBALL seasons are winding down now. Two Wayne tournament teams, Wood Plumbing in women's competition and Crow's Hybrid in men's play qualified for state tournament play.

Wood won its district and Crow's tied for fifth in its district.

AS A MEMBER of the Taco del Sol team, I was able to participate in districts at Norfolk this past weekend. Our team only played three games but had a lot of fun anyway.

While watching another game between playing, I saw a one armed pitcher on one of the district teams. Apparently he is well known around the northeast portion of the state but this was the first time I ever saw him in action.

The man would tuck his glove under the stub of his right arm and pitch the ball left handed. After releasing the pitch, he quickly put the glove back on and played defense. That takes a lot of courage and determination.

SPORTS FANS behold. Wayne now has a 24-hour sports station. ESPN is located on channel three and presents sports 24 hours a day. Programming ranges from football, soccer, boxing and gymnastics to arm wrestling and platform tennis.

I haven't had much of an opportunity to watch the new station but hear that it's pretty good.

I did catch a couple of Canadian football games the other day. One was broadcast at about 1 or 2 a.m. and the other was an afternoon game this past weekend.

It has been such a long time since I watched Canadian football that I nearly forgot some of the ways in which the game differs from the National Football League style of play.

With only three downs instead of four, the game is pass-oriented and much more wide open. I enjoyed watching "the other league" for a change of pace.

Poor Vince Ferragamo isn't doing so well in Canada. After being underpaid in the NFL, he left for a bigger contract in the Canadian Football League. His Montreal team is struggling and Ferragamo had a rough time when I saw him play on the tube this past weekend.

NOW THAT the Major League Baseball strike is over, wouldn't it be funny if the teams were forced to miss more games due to an air traffic controllers strike?

I wish that baseball fans could get together and boycott games for at least the first week of the remaining season.

Wouldn't it be great to have the so-called all stars play before a crowd of 27 people in their farce of a game? I still don't know how you can have an all star game when there haven't been any regular games for a month.

Oh well, the all-star game has always been a big publicity gimmick anyway.

Game Commission To Reward Informants

The Nebraska Game and Parks Commission has unanimously endorsed and pledged cooperation to the Nebraska Wildlife Protectors Association's "Operation Game Thief" program that would reward informants for information leading to the prosecution of game law violators.

Pat Jerrison of Lincoln, legislative chairman of the Nebraska Izaak Walton League and spearheading behind "Operation Game Thief," told the Commission interest in the program is increasing rapidly and already has the support of the Izaak Walton League, the Nebraska Council of Sportsmen, the Big Mac Sports Club, the Plattsmouth Wildlife Club, the Cornhusker Fly Fishermen, the West Nebraska Sportsmen's Association and a trapping organization. She said many individuals have also made private contributions to the new group.

"ECONOMIC conditions can't be blamed for poaching. It is not the loss of a single bird, but the compounding of this by thousands of other acts that adds up to a tremendous amount of illegally taken game," she said.

"We wouldn't permit a thief to steal our guns or our dogs, and we don't intend to allow him to steal our game," she continued, pointing out that poacher's actions give fuel to the anti-hunters and animal right groups, and may result in smaller game limits or shortened seasons. "As sport smen we intend to stop it. We stand prepared to clean up our ranks of the thieves who are threatening our wildlife and hunting."

"Hunting is the fair pursuit of game under legal guidelines. Poaching is the wanton destruction of wildlife. Our program will be a system for gathering information on poaching. It will become a deterrent because it will arouse suspicion and put the poacher on the defensive," Mrs. Jerrison said.

She said her organization asks that the Commission provide a hotline to take calls regarding violations and publicity. The group's membership will set up by laws, raise reward money and provide enthusiasm and dedication to see the program through.

She agreed all investigation and ensuing action would be the responsibility of the Commission's law enforcement division.

THE COMMISSION enthusiastically endorsed the concept, commended the organization's efforts and instructed the agency's staff to cooperate with the new group and present recommendations at the Commission's Aug. 28 meeting.

Laurel Legion Is Going to State

In a rematch of Ralph Bishop League teams, Laurel dumped Hartington 9-4 Sunday to win the Area 5 Junior Legion Baseball Tournament at O'Neill. The win qualifies Laurel for the Class B State Tournament which opens this weekend in Ogealla.

The locals are scheduled to play West Point at 11:30 a.m. tomorrow (Friday) in first round action of the double elimination tournament.

Laurel scored three runs in the first inning, one in the third and five in the fourth to hand Hartington its second loss.

IN THE FIRST Inning, Bryan

Buss cracked a bases loaded double to bring in two runs. All five runs in the fourth were scored with two outs. A throwing error of Joe Olsen's grounder let Dave Marquardt score the first run.

Buss and Robson hit back-to-back singles to drive in one run and the pair scored later on a wild throw. Scott Norvell blasted a home run to make the score 9-4.

Lon Swanson was the winning pitcher. He collected all three wins for the locals in the area tourney. Against Hartington Sunday, he threw 4 1/2 innings, gave up three hits, walked one batter and struckout two.

police report

The Wayne Police were kept busy investigating accidents this weekend.

Cynthia Loberg of Laurel was driving her 1968 Chrysler north in the alley by the TP Lounge Friday night. She pulled out of the alley and hit the right front end of a 1977 Chevrolet Monte Carlo driven by Janice Zeiss of Wayne.

Loberg couldn't see Zeiss because of a camper parked by the alley.

Marshall Russell of Wayne was dumped off of his 1981 Yamaha motorcycle early Saturday morning.

He was southbound in the 300 block of South Main Street when a vehicle in front of him started to make a U turn to avoid hitting another vehicle ahead of him. Russell hit his brakes, causing his cycle to slide.

GERMAINE KAUP of Wayne hit a 1973 Ford Galaxie registered to 3 "M" Farms, Inc. in the Pamida parking lot while backing his 1976 Ford LTD out of a stall Saturday morning.

Police also investigated a two-pickup collision Saturday evening in the 700 block of Douglas Street.

Arnold Bartholomew was turning his 1973 Dodge pickup into a driveway, according to police reports, and struck the tailgate of a 1976 Chevrolet pickup owned by Don V. Schultz of Wayne, which was parked there.

Roger Saha of rural Carroll was backing his 1973 Chevrolet Chevette up to talk to a friend Saturday night. He hit the front end of a 1971 Plymouth Duster driven by Ellen Stollenberg of Wayne. The accident occurred in the 300 block of West First Street, according to police reports.

Mrs. Terry Luit found more stains than clean clothes when she went to check her laundry Saturday afternoon.

She had left some laundry hanging on the clothesline in her backyard. An unknown subject(s) sprayed them with yellow paint in the early morning, according to police reports.

JEWELL SCHOCK found a 12-gauge shotgun at his residence at 1000 Lilac Lane. The owner may claim it by identifying the gun at the Schock house, police said.

Too Old to Cut the Mustard

THIS OLD PULL TYPE swather rests in a rural Wayne County pasture near an abandoned farmstead. The swather, called a windrower today, is too old to cut the mustard, the hay, the oats or anything else. Cutting height was adjusted by hand and the reel turned on a ground-travel gear. Today both the farm and swather watch progress march on by with tomorrow's technology.

Size Increase Not Needed To Gain Farm Efficiency

Increasing farm size does not necessarily increase farm efficiency or productivity. In fact, small farms in many field crop regions are nearly as technically efficient as large farms.

And farmers of all sizes of operations tend to enlarge their farms in search of higher income rather than to increase per unit cost efficiencies.

Technical economies of size refers to the physical relationship between inputs and outputs and assumes all farm sizes receive and pay identical prices.

FARMS producing wheat, feed grains and cotton in seven field crop regions of the United States were studied to determine the importance of technical economies of size in the farm sector and to examine how such cost economies may change farm structure.

Cost efficiency was estimated on four hypothetical farm sizes in each region from data obtained during the 1978 USDA cost of production survey.

Regional differences were found cost efficiencies between the smallest and largest farms ranged from $0.16 in the Southern Plains to $0.05 in the Mississippi Delta. But all study regions showed the same general economies of size relationships.

As farm size increases, per unit costs decline at first and then are relatively constant over a wide range of sizes. The average of the gross incomes for the most efficient farm size in each region was $133,000 with cash costs of $0.61 per dollar of gross income.

In comparison, small farms with gross incomes of $18,000 had costs of $0.71 and medium size farms averaging $59,000 gross income had cash costs of $0.63 per dollar of gross income.

Cash costs, including machinery replacement costs, declined about $0.10 per dollar of gross income over the $15,000 range of gross income studied.

NET FARM income on small farms is limited by low volume production, not by reduced cost efficiencies. The income from such farms is often inadequate to support a family.

However, returns to land and operator inputs range from $0.14 to $0.47 per dollar of income on the smallest farms. Since these farms are usually part-time units, such cost efficiencies appear sufficient to allow them to continue meeting cash expenses and to return a small but positive net farm income. Such farms can be viable in regions where family income can be supplemented by off-farm employment.

If economies of size are relatively unimportant in field crop regions, why do farms continue to grow? This study best supports the explanation that small farms generate low incomes, and these low incomes cause such farms to exit, become part-time units, or expand to increase income whether or not economies of size exist.

Farmers tend to enlarge their operations in search of higher incomes, rather than to increase per-unit cost efficiency.

SINCE medium size commercial farms with gross incomes from $41,000 to $76,000 achieve most technical cost efficiencies, society benefits little in terms of lower real food costs from further increases in farm size.

Actually, many commercial farms now exceed the size necessary to achieve all available cost efficiencies. With current field crop production technology, further growth in medium size and larger farms will not likely improve overall food production efficiency.

When economies of size are minor, society can consider many issues related to farm size separate from questions of overall economic efficiency and food costs. For example, the 160-acre limit of the Reclamation Act of 1902 could increase food prices by increasing long-run production costs.

However, a much more probable impact would be to lower rents, depress land prices and decrease the wealth of landowners, without affecting food prices. Based on the relatively minor economies of size found in this study, it is unlikely that moderate limits of farm size would have either impact in major field crop regions.

Of course, those farmers affected by size limit policies suffer a relative income loss, even without economies of size. The potential benefits of such policies must be measured against these income losses as well as against the possible adverse impacts on wealth and efficiency.

WSC Phone System Takes New Dimension

The telephone system at Wayne State College will be taking on a new dimension Friday when a modern unit, known as the Dimension is hooked up on campus.

Northwestern Bell is putting the finishing touches on the new system which will result in a more economical and practical communication network for WSC, according to Deryl Lawrence, director of logistics.

"THE NEW system does all the things the old one did, plus so much more," Lawrence said. The change will not be noticeable to anyone calling WSC except that the extension numbers will change, as will the after-hours phone numbers. The campus phone number will remain (402) 375-2200. Callers may also notice faster service and better sound.

One big difference between the new Dimension system and the old one (which was installed in 1958) is that much of the phone servicing on campus can be done by college personnel.

For instance, in the past if someone on the WSC staff moved to a different office, they would either have to take a new extension number or call phone company servicemen to make the alteration. Those alterations can now be electronically re-programmed by WSC personnel.

THE OLD system allowed conversations between two phones only—that is, if a person called WSC and wanted to talk about the same subject to two different staff members, that person would have to discuss it with one staff member, then have their call transferred to the second staff member and repeat the conversation. The new system will allow three-way calls, between either two people on-campus and one off-campus or two people off-campus and one at WSC.

In addition, the new system has the capacity to allow six-way calls on campus only. There are a number of other features offered by the new Dimension, and the entire unit will take up considerably less space than the old one.

THE 1,042-FOOT KXNE-TV transmitter station tower west of Wayne.

Photography: Randall Howell

Station

coln. Evans is assistant director of engineering for transmitters and Wells is the network's translator engineer.

KXNE-TV's viewing area — which extends to Verdigris on the west, Columbus on the south and beyond Sioux City on the east — includes four translator stations.

The translator stations, which are smaller transmitters that act as signal boosters for areas that have difficulty receiving KXNE-TV, are in Niobrara, Verdigris, Neligh and Decatur City.

THE FOUR-MAN team had to redo "an extensive amount of wiring" at the western Wayne County station, which features a hill-top building that houses electronic transmission gear in addition to a 1,042-foot tower.

Some plumbing had to be redone at the station because the transmitter uses water as a coolant, according to Guilliam.

Once the new RCA transmitter arrived, it had to be assembled and installed, he explained.

The crew spent most of Sunday and Monday testing the newly installed transmitter before a sign-on at 6 p.m.

Guilliam, who has been monitoring the station manually since the Lincoln studio reported the bug in the system, was back in the saddle as the only on-site engineer. Part of the team is expected to return in the near future for a "proof of performance" test for the FCC.

THE TEST goes through all the operating parameters of the transmitter to be sure it meets all FCC specifications and regulations," Guilliam said.

And, after some clean-up work and some interior painting, Guilliam said he plans to have an open-house at the station.

"We need to give viewers the opportunity to see what we're going here and what we did to improve ETV in northeast Nebraska," he said.

According to Guilliam, the new transmitter works more efficiently than the old one. Both operated at 30,000 watts, but the new one is fed with 408-volt system. The old transmitter operated with 240 volts.

"I think the point, though, that's really nice is that we're now within FCC specifications and doing it a lot more efficiently than before," he said. "That's saving energy."

THE NEW transmitter was paid for with federal funds funneled through the Educational Broadcasting Facilities Program.

The state paid for reconstruction work, according to Guilliam, who added that about $30,000 was saved because Nebraska ETV engineers did the work.

In addition, the engineers installed a new transmitter cooling system that recirculates well water and air conditions the building simultaneously.

The old transmitter was water cooled, also, but with a different method. Guilliam said air was forced over the transmitter heated water to cool it.

Now, he said, the new system uses well water (at 52 degrees Fahrenheit) to cool the transmitter. The well water turns to steam, but is captured and recycled through a system that sends it back into the ground (at around 80 degrees) in a separate well-site.

ON ITS WAY through the system, the well water flows through a series of coils to air condition the station house.

"That eliminated the bulk and cost of operating a huge air conditioner," Guilliam said.

The transmitter supervisor, who worked at a Kansas ETV station before joining Nebraska ETV two years ago, said that full programming is now available on Channel 19.

The station, which can be controlled from the Lincoln ETV studio, is also slated for a tower relamping — usually an annual project — this summer.

And the tower is scheduled for repainting.

Hartington Man Suing Over Ban On Beer License for Wayne Store

A Hartington contractor is testing the constitutionality of a Nebraska Liquor Control Commission rule that has denied him an off-sale beer license for a proposed Casey's General Store in Wayne.

In addition to the constitutionality test, Gary Donner, who has an option on land at 619 Windom Street in Wayne for the proposed convenience store site, is suing for the beer license.

Donner's petition, filed in Ninth District Court, Wayne County, asks that the court order the commission to grant the franchisee operation an off-sale-only beer license.

UNDER CASEY'S General Store franchise rules, a would-be franchisee — in this case, Donner — is prohibited from buying, building or operating the store without the retail beer license.

The commission, after a hearing, denied Donner's application for a license, citing an agency rule (Rule 13) that bars the sale of liquor, including beer, at any business establishment that also sells gasoline.

The Casey's General Store operations retail gasoline at self-service pumps.

In denying the license, the commission also cited a Wayne City Council recommendation to deny the liquor license.

DONNER HAD applied for the license on March 10. He received a hearing before the commission on May 28.

On June 2, the commission's ruling on the application denied Donner the retail beer license.

Donner requested a rehearing on June 10. That was denied by the commission in early July.

In the petition before the court, Donner and his wife, Victoria, are asking that the commission's Rule 13 be found unconstitutional.

Additionally, of course, Donner's petition asks to be granted the license by order of the Ninth District Court.

The case has not been scheduled on the court calendar. Judge Richard P. Garden is expected to be on vacation throughout August.

DONNER also contends that the commission's ruling was a violation of due process and equal protection under the law (14th Amendment).

In the petition, prepared by Norfolk attorneys Roy and John Sheaff, Donner charges that the denial of the retail beer license was "arbitrary and capricious."

Furthermore, Donner contends that the commission has granted such applications, under similar circumstances, thus setting a precedent for approval of his request.

A clause in Rule 13 makes exceptions when the applicant can "demonstrate exceptional need beyond the general convenience and serve to the public."

THE WOULD-BE franchisee challenges that in the petition, contending that a "showing of need is not a prerequisite of obtaining a license."

Rule 13 essentially says that any application, except automatic license renewals, for a license to sell liquor (including beer) in conjunction with gasoline sales will not be approved.

Leaving the door somewhat ajar, however, the commission's Rule 13 concludes by indicating that the application will be denied "without a show of extraordinary facts or conditions that demonstrate exceptional need."

In denying Donner's license, the commission also cited what it considered to be no demonstration of extraordinary need.

program for National 4-H News, a monthly magazine published in Washington D.C. for those active in 4-H work.

"I only write when I have to," she said, remembering the early spring request. She agreed to do the article, which was submitted to the state 4-H office and forwarded to the magazine publisher.

"I was surprised they wanted to publish an article on it," said the tall, blonde Winnsboro native.

Though she had not "written for publication" before, Walde already has received congratulatory letters from Bill Caldwell of Lincoln, a leader in the state's 4-H program. Olivia Collins of Lincoln, head of the state's Teen Awareness Team and Wayne County extension agent Don Spitzke.

WALDE'S ARTICLE starts out asking some questions that probe into peer pressure, family life and alcohol-related auto accidents.

After citing statistics on the number of Americans addicted to alcohol, deaths and disabling injuries attributed to that addiction and estimates of costs related to abuse, Walde begins describing the 4-H pilot project.

Building on a belief that "education is the answer," Walde describes the activities she and her teammates were involved in to take their message to the public, particularly teenagers.

She ends the article, which appears in the magazine's June/July issue, with these words: "The exact results of our work will probably never be measured, but I feel that if we can save one life or one family from ruin, our time will have been well spent."

WALDE'S MOTHER, who was active in the project from the start, said: "We felt it was a real worthwhile program."

According to Walde's mother, Turena and Cynthia are planning to start a new project on crime prevention using the same, or similar techniques that launched the alcohol prevention program.

And though her daughter has been gearing up for new projects, and this year's county fair, she still stays in touch with the pilot alcohol prevention program on a personal basis.

"Some of my friends have come to talk with me about alcohol problems," she said, a look of concern crossing her brow.

And, Walde's work on the program with her sister has "helped educate" the whole family, including 13-year-old brother Paul, and their father, Stanley.

"We've learned a lot together," Sharon said.

TURENA was born while the Walde family farmed near Winside, where her father was raised on a farm. Her mother is a Wisner native.

In 1965, the Waldes moved to their western Wayne County farm, which is 13 miles west and 1 1/2 miles south of Wayne. There, Turena — the oldest of three children — completed the seventh grade at a country schoolhouse (Bellevue Center, District 83) just north of the family farmstead, which features a Winside postal address and a Carroll telephone exchange.

Fair

There are divisions for each animal species — pigs, horses, etc.

PRODUCTION knowledge is also tested in the pens of three beef program.

Three steers or heifers are weighed and tagged in December. The 4-Her then tells what he paid for the cattle, what he will feed them and how much, what he thinks the cattle will sell for and the projected selling weight.

"We take this information and run it through our computer here at the Extension Office," Spitzke said. "The computer then gives a projection on what kind of profit he can expect."

Spitzke tours the person's farm in June to suggest changes and to get protein feed samples from each. And the 4-Her has to fill out a workbook and turn it in before the fair.

At fair time, the cattle will be brought in at noon Sunday and weighed. A packer will come in and appraise the cattle for their market value, and then the profit will be figured out.

The appraising will take place at a 2 p.m. show Sunday.

After attending Wayne Middle School, she entered Wayne High School, where she is active in varsity choir.

She joined the Hoskins Junior Homemakers, a home economics 4-H club, and the Hoskins Hustlers, a 4-H ag club, at 9 years of age.

"I decided it was a way to earn money," she said, a grin lighting up her eyes.

ABOUT SIX years ago, the clubs merged to form the Springbranch 4-H Club. "So many kids belonged to both clubs that we just merged the two into one big club," she explained.

The club's adult leaders are Harold and Yvonne Witter and Dennis and Ramona Puts.

Turena has remained active in both home economics projects and agriculture projects. Last year she took the county's crossbred beef reserve champion title and the year before she won the grand champion beef honors with an Angus.

"Cynthia and I swapped — last year she was champ and the year before she was reserve champ," Turena said, admitting the two sisters share a competitive spirit.

Turena has competed in a number of categories including beef, dairy, sheep, poultry and gardening. And, every year, she has place entries in the home economics categories.

SHE WON the home living trophy last year, the foods trophy two years ago and the sewing trophy three years ago.

And, last year she traveled to Chicago as Nebraska's representative in the ag achievement category. She was in Chicago for five days at a conference of 4-H club members from every state.

Among the things she's raised are exotic chickens (the Easter-egg variety), Pekin, Rouen and Swedish ducks, Guinea fowl, geese, Angus, Hereford and crossbred beef cattle, Suffolk, Hampshire and crossbred sheep, and Holstein and Brown Swiss dairy cattle.

"WE STARTED the Brown Swiss category at the Wayne County Fair," she said. "Now there's at least one other family participating in that category."

In addition, Turena finds time each spring to raise pheasant chicks for the state's Game and Parks Commission.

"They provide me with the chicks. I feed them for five weeks and turn them loose," she explained, while her mother looked up the correct spelling of Rouen ducks.

Winside

At Winside, elementary school teachers will teach their own science units this year, he explained. Last year, one of the district's two science teachers assisted elementary teachers (for fourth, fifth and sixth grades) in a team-teaching situation.

SCHOOL SYSTEM salary settlements for the coming year set the base starting teacher pay at $11,200, up from $10,250 last year, he said.

The district provides health insurance for the certified staff.

Leighton's own salary only increased from $27,620 to $29,091 — a boost of $1,471.

The principal's salary increased from $18,400 to $20,750, plus insurance and other benefits, Leighton explained.

Non-certified staff salaries increased 12 percent under the new budget.

"Rather than keeping it (the unspent money) in there, we used it to reduce the tax burden," Leighton said.

GOP Candidate Opens 1982 U.S. Senate Campaign

By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association
Campaigns for the 1982 elections are officially underway in Nebraska, and only time will tell how crowded the field will be for the various political faces.

Although the summer of 1981 isn't even history yet, the time is ripe for candidates, particularly political newcomers, to make their intentions known. And that's just what Jim Keck of Omaha did during a recent swing across the state.

Keck, former Strategic Air Command vice commander, has announced his bid for the GOP U.S. Senate nomination. He's seeking the seat now held by Democrat Edward Zorinsky, who is widely referred to as a political maverick.

KECK'S CANDIDACY, of course, heightens speculation about other possible contenders in the 1982 elections. Nebraskans will be voting for politicians at all levels of government, with special interest in the Statehouse races.

Gov. Charles Thone is expected to announce his bid for a second four-year term, and the Democrats are known to be looking to someone to challenge the incumbent.

State Sen. Don Dworak of Columbus has been relatively quiet since he announced earlier this year he was switching from the Republican to Democrat party, but it has been speculated for some time that he is interested in higher office, possibly governor.

The U.S. Senate has been mentioned in some quarters, but that, just like most political talk right now, is mostly speculation.

The Statehouse races nonetheless will be interesting, especially since the Republicans for some time have dominated the executive branch of government. Secretary of State Allen Beermann, state Auditor Ray A. C. Johnson and Attorney General Paul Douglas are all incumbent Republicans.

FORMER STATE Treasurer Frank Marsh, who recently resigned to accept another job, also was an incumbent Republican. But he was constitutionally prohibited from seeking another term, so he can't run again for the treasurer's job.

But the person Thone appointed to succeed Marsh — Republican Kay Orr, a former aide to the governor — could run for the treasurer's job, and some people think she will.

Douglas and Beermann, possibly because of their jobs, have kept relatively low profiles and stirred up little controversy during their tenure and would be hard to beat if they decide to run again. It would probably take a popular Democrat of the likes of now Sen. J. James Exon to unseat them, but there's no indication he's ready to return to Nebraska.

Safe Auditor Johnson is another story. His name has appeared in headlines and on newscasts across the state for months because of several controversies involving his office. That's not to say Johnson would be unable to win another election. Rather, a strong Democratic candidate or even another Republican might have a stronger showing against Johnson than any of the other Statehouse incumbents — simply because of the controversies involving the auditor's office.

ALTHOUGH the average Nebraskan off the top of his head might not be able to pinpoint the controversies involving the auditor, political observers and reporters are well aware of the issues and keep reminding the public of them.

Johnson primarily has made headlines because of criticism about the way he handled the audit of the governor's office and because of the firing of his deputy. It would be a grave injustice to ignore the controversies. As fate voters would have to weigh the situation and cast their ballots accordingly.

But it's probably too early for the statehouse incumbents to announce their intentions, primarily because incumbents tend to be the last to announce and newcomers often are the first to launch their campaigns. Regardless of who runs and when the candidates announce, however, the momentum already is gradually picking up for what no doubt will be an eventful and colorful election year.

UNDER FIRE — Nebraska's deputy ombudsman for corrections has been under some fire lately, and he's not taking it lightly.

Hasan Muhammad has been criticized in several quarters for the way he handles his investigations of corrections. But he has been defended by inmates and colleagues, and makes a point of expressing his side of the story.

Muhammad recently asked for public hearings on charges he should share the blame for recent problems at the state prison. He was responding to comments from Omaha Sen. Marge Higgins, who reportedly talked about Muhammad in a television interview.

The deputy ombudsman said he "felt an attempt is being made to leave the impression that I am in some way responsible for four guards being stabbed recently. This is a very dangerous and reckless thing to do."

MUHAMMAD WROTE Higgins saying he was concerned about what she said in the television interview. He specifically cited what he said was Higgins' indication she had received complaints from prison employees that the deputy ombudsman was responsible for inmates' aggressive attitude.

He said if he was in fact responsible for the alleged inmate aggressiveness, prison officials should file criminal charges against him "because such conduct would certainly be against the law of this state."

Muhammad's job by its very nature is sensitive, and he apparently doesn't want to jeopardize his relationship with inmates. He wants the public hearings so corrections officials can testify publicly.

If the hearings and testimony from corrections officials would be beneficial. But the hearings probably would be complete only if inmates also are allowed to testify, because they are the people on whose behalf Muhammad is working. The inclusion of inmates would put the hearings in perspective.

Pebbles and People

Last week Wayne's City Council debated a number of pressing issues — some big, some small — that could easily have been treated as routine items in the life of a municipality. And no matter which side you were on for any given issue, the give and take was healthy. It demonstrated a number of things, not the least of which is that people do care.

Certainly, the absolute no show at the public hearing for the city's 1981-82 budget — a $5.8 million package — was disconcerting.

Perhaps the lack of an audience, pro or con, in that matter indicates an unswerving trust in city government officials, handling of fiscal affairs. Or maybe taxpayers are beyond believing they can make a difference, so they don't bother to participate in budget hearings.

It matters little now for the budget has been adopted and the financial track has been set for the next 12 months.

However, overshadowing the lack of attendance at the budget hearing was the running debate on the Roosevelt Park area's proposed water district improvements — a sparring session that drew no blood, but did draw out some answers to long standing questions.

And once warmed up, the Council refused to step away from engaging a number of other city residents (taxpayers) on such issues as financial liability regarding city hired contractor work, excavation fees, and sidewalk construction and maintenance.

Furthermore, though the debates started on a specific Wayne issue, they soon grew into a philosophical discussion about the quality, efficiency and responsiveness of local government.

That kind of debate is healthy anywhere. It is good for city officials and it is good for taxpayers. It opens up the channels of communication — channels that often get tangled with tangential trash or plugged with impertinent pap.

When people communicate, they often learn something, sometimes in spite of themselves. Often the defensive barrier drops and constructive solutions begin.

Taxpayers unafraid to challenge their local representatives takes city government into the neighborhood. And, city officials willing to engage taxpayers in a debate on issues brings open local government into the living room.

Furthermore, it gives each the opportunity to feel the pulse in the other guy's morass.

American Food System The Most Competitive Market in the World

By M.M. Van Kirk
Nebraska Farm Bureau
Consumers who complain about the price they pay for their products and even with them are the beneficiaries of the world's most competitive food system.

A report on discussions at the annual Livestock Marketing Congress, which brings together the nation's leaders in all phases of the livestock industry along with invited resource people from the retail and wholesale segments of the meat industry, research specialists, and analysts, emphasizes that competitive reality.

Theme of the congress in June was "Competing for the Protein Dollar."

FARMERS and ranchers do not fully appreciate how strongly they compete against each other with their products and even with them. For example, a soybean producer who also markets hogs and beef cattle may be contributing to some kind of marketing checkoff funding for research and promotion on all three products.

His checkoff research money aimed at improving soybean protein meat extenders ultimately seeks to capture a larger share of the meat protein market.

This is not to infer that this is bad... certainly the consumer is the one who benefits most. A spokesman for the soybean industry urged the livestock people: "let's stop thinking of each other as competitors."

A fish industry representative advised the cattlemen to take advantage of the popularity of fish by promoting dual menu features such as lobster and steak, in restaurants. A leader in the broiler industry told them, "We're all in this together... we've got to use every setting left available to compete for the total food dollar."

TO OLDER Americans who remember the rather primitive little grocery stores of the early part of this century, today's gleaming, brightly lighted, splendidly mar-

Farm Income Outlook Staggering

"Food prices at the farm level are so cheap in America that they are almost taken for granted, just as energy costs were 10 years ago.

"In the next decade, however, most experts predict sharp increases in farm income. For example, Dean W. Hughes, staff economist with the Federal Reserve Bank of Kansas City, predicts that farmers' net income in 1990 will be 386 percent of what it was in 1980.

"NET FARM income figures for 1980 in Nebraska aren't available but 386 percent of the $704 million in farm income in 1979 would produce a whopping $2.7 billion of farm income in our state nine years from now.

"As these predictions come true, the general populace of states that are heavily dependent upon agriculture, as Nebraska is, is going to have a rising standard of living compared to the remainder of the nation.

"In the past 10 years, Nebraska's cash receipts from farm marketing have grown at a faster rate than that for all U.S. farmers. In 1980, Nebraska farmers received $6.4 billion dollars from marketing crops and livestock, 303 percent of the 1970 total of $2.1 billion. The U.S. 1980 total was only 273 percent of the 1970 total.

"Nebraska's gains have come most dramatically in cash receipts from crops. The 1980 state total of $2.6 billion is 381 percent of the 1970 receipts of $674 million. In 1980 the national cash receipts from crops was 328 percent of the 1970 tally.

"THE 1980 cash receipts from Nebraska farm marketing of livestock and livestock products was $3.9 billion, or 267 percent of the 1970 total of $1.5 billion. The national total in 1980 was only 234 percent of that for 1970.

"The economists predict that farm exports will increase by 5 percent per year in the next decade, but I won't be satisfied unless Nebraska exports grow at an even faster rate.

"We are also stepping up our efforts to encourage Nebraska food processors to expand and to lure new ones to our state.

"If we succeed in all these efforts, Nebraska's farm income in 1990 might easily be four or five times what it was in 1979, and there would be good jobs for thousands more workers in our state."

Reflections in a Glass...

EDITOR'S NOTE: Turena Waide, 17, daughter of Stanley and Sharon Waide, rural Winside, wrote the following story for the June-July issue of National 4-H News.

By Turena Waide
Have a friend who is growing dependent on liquor to keep his identity, to gain self-confidence or to satisfy peer pressure? Know a family whose life is devastated by a member's alcoholism? Had a close friend killed in an alcohol-related car accident?

The tragedies of excessive use of alcoholic beverages are endless. Approximately 10,000,000 Americans are addicted to alcohol. Annually, there are around 30,000 deaths and an additional 500,000 disabling injuries resulting from alcohol-related accidents. Over half of all fatal traffic accidents involve alcohol. The percentage among young people is even greater. Costs related to alcohol abuse — in medical expenses, property damage, lost working days, wrecked lives and broken families — amount to more than $25 billion a year.

WOULD YOUR club like to accept the challenge to change the statistics in your area? A group of Northeast Nebraska 4-H Junior Leaders did that in April of 1978, and the program is still going in Wayne County. Several surveys had identified teen alcohol problems as a major concern of young people. The Alcohol Impact Program "Reflections in a Glass" was developed to help young people learn more about alcohol and the problems related to its abuse.

The philosophy of the program is that older 4-H members can have a great influence on people their own age or younger kids in the community. Although the program was originally developed to appeal to young audiences, my county's group has adapted its presentations to fit any age or interest group.

THE FIRST big event of the program was an overnight educational workshop Junior Leaders planned the program, resources, fun times and meals. Each county in Northeast Nebraska was to send a team of three or four members and one adult to the workshop. The program included a psychiatrist, alcoholism counselor, pharmacist, representative from the Nebraska State Safety Patrol, teacher, minister, parents and 4-H members. They conducted small and large group discussions and panels, and gave speeches on subjects like the problems, legal aspects and treatment of alcoholism. Dr. Leon Rottmann, Nebraska Extension Specialist in Human Development, introduced the two new 4-H Alcohol Education Projects "You Are What You Drink" and "Alcohol Decisions." County teams were then given an opportunity to develop the program they wanted to use to present the information in their own counties.

EACH TEAM was given materials to present the information in their own counties. Each team was given materials to use in their planning. Then their new challenge began.

Alcoholism education should be based on the following principles:

- Prohibition is not the answer. It was tried in this country through the Eighteenth Amendment to the Constitution and it failed.
- Punishment is not the answer. Alcoholism is not a crime. It is an illness.
- Alcoholism is not a moral issue. If it were, we would not see clergy becoming alcoholics.
- Education is the answer. We need to inform the public of the dangers and alternatives of alcoholism.

THE QUESTION is not: "Should one drink?" but "How should one drink and how much?" This is what our team has tried to teach through its activities. We have used two methods to contact different groups. One has been by calling group leaders, telling them about our program, and asking if and when we could come and make a presentation. The other method has been through advertising our program. Every time we have held an activity, we have written a report for the local paper. We have also used radio. In addition, our local Extension staff has also been very helpful in publicizing the program.

We have made presentations to school classes, 4-H clubs, home Extension clubs, and 4-H councils. Other counties have made appearances at church groups, Scout meetings, PTA meetings and others.

We have put up fair booths and window displays, held poster contests, done radio programs and written news releases. Other possibilities are TV interviews, health fairs, special county fair classes and awards for posters and speeches dealing with alcoholism.

WHEN WE make a presentation to a group of young people, we always try to have a fun or activity time in which the audience participates. We use quizzes, a quiz bowl game and discussion groups. We also have a series of informational pamphlets available for anyone who wants them.

As representatives from the county teams met at the end of the first year to evaluate their work, they decided to carry on the program for another year. Our team members have strong feelings about the need to carry on the program and have always been ready to carry out a new project. Our county Extension staff has always given us their enthusiastic support. Occasionally we run across a person who is indifferent to the program, but for the most part we are met with a very curious and receptive audience.

The exact results of our work will probably never be measured, but I feel that if we can save one life or one family from ruin our time will have been well spent.

30 YEARS AGO
Aug. 9, 1951: Parking stalls have been widened and the angle of parking has been lowered about 10 degrees. The new system allows about six extra feet of driving area and permits easier parking. Franklin Philleo, a former Wayne resident, will join the WSTC staff next month as piano instructor for the college and vocal music director for the campus school.

Aug. 2, 1956: Don Echtenkamp announced this week that he has purchased Van's Shoe Store. Winside residents may seek help from President Eisenhower in an effort to keep the town's only doctor on the job. Townsmen are petitioning Winside and surrounding areas for support in an appeal move.

Pump Workshop Monday at Carroll

Irrigation specialist Tom Dorn will be conducting a "hands on" pump testing workshop at the Joe Claybaugh farm one mile south and 1/2 mile west of Carroll.

The workshop, which will begin at 1:15 p.m. Monday, Aug. 10, will present more detail about a previous workshop so that farmers may test the efficiency of their pumping units.

Test results on one farm indicated that an adjustment in the pump would result in a $200 a year fuel saving. Some tests have shown a possible fuel saving of many times this figure, according to Wayne County Extension Agent Don Spitze.

CCC Opens Sale of Sorghum

Farmers and other interested persons were eligible to purchase sorghum from the Commodity Credit Corporation starting July 31, 2:30 p.m. EDT.

Erwin Morris, chairman of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee, said the CCC will offer sorghum for unrestricted use sale at market prices, but not less than the formula price. The formula price is 115 percent of the county loan rate for sorghum, where stored, plus 97 cents per hundredweight for carrying charges.

"The minimum quantity that will be considered for acceptance is 500 hundredweight," Morris said, adding that offers will be received and sales will be made on a first come, first served basis.

Interested persons should contact the county ASCS office as soon as possible for further details. The office is located at 120 Logan, Wayne, Neb. The phone number is (402) 375-2453.

Farmers Union Goes for Gasohol

Nebraska Farmers Union has become a member of the National Gasohol Commission, joining the national effort to provide America with the renewable fuels, independent of foreign control.

"We're not just jumping on the bandwagon, we helped build the bandwagon," stressed Neil Oxton, president of the Nebraska Farmers Union. "Our organization has been promoting alcohol fuels in Nebraska and the nation for nearly a decade — long before people understood the term," he added.

Citing a study done at the University of Nebraska funded by Farmers Union, Oxton pointed out that the by-product of alcohol fuel production from grain has a cattle feed value at least equal to that of corn. And, advances in research to produce edible human protein from the grain alcohol fuel by products is encouraging.

Just this year the Nebraska Legislature passed a bill authorizing a $50,000 award for any association or individual who comes up with the best acceptable method of producing an edible human protein from the by-product of a distillation process. Nebraska Farmers Union and the Nebraska Gasohol Committee were the only organizations who lobbied in support of the legislation.

New Drug Developed for Scabies

Cattle dipping for scabies may soon become obsolete because of a new drug being tested by Dr. Donald Ferguson, parasitologist and professor of veterinary science at the University of Nebraska Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources.

Ivermectin kills many internal and external parasites of livestock with one injection, said Ferguson. Although it has not yet been approved by the Food and Drug Administration, it's expected to be released for cattle use within a year.

Ivermectin can become a major defense to cattle mange problems in Nebraska because it is both a grubicide and an insecticide. Last year mange cost the state's livestock producers approximately $14 million, Ferguson said.

The production of Merck and Co., Inc. of Rahway, N.J., also may eliminate problems in large swine operations. With Ivermectin, producers with SPF herds will not have to repopulate if a problem develops, according to Ferguson.

Meat Import Rate Declines

U.S. meat imports in 1981 now are expected to total almost 125 million pounds below the level that would require restraints on imports under the Meat Import Law, according to Secretary of Agriculture John R. Block.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture's third quarterly estimate of U.S. meat imports indicates the United States will import about 1.322 billion pounds of meat during 1981, while the trigger point for imposing quotas under the law is 1.447 billion pounds, Block said.

Current law requires the president to restrict imports of certain meats — primarily beef and veal — if USDA estimates imports of those meats will equal or exceed the trigger level.

On March 3 when the second quarterly estimate was issued, Block said an analysis of conditions in this country and abroad affecting meat imports strongly suggested there would be no need for import restrictions for the remainder of the year. The third quarterly estimate continues this outlook, he said.

USDA makes a new estimate of meat imports before each calendar quarter. The fourth quarterly estimate will be made in September.

Conference Focuses on Pig Disease

Diseases of young pigs will be the major focus of the 22nd annual George A. Young Conference held in conjunction with the Nebraska SPF Swine Accrediting Agency annual meeting Aug. 10-11, at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

The conference at the Nebraska Center for Continuing Education is designed primarily for the practicing veterinarian and the innovative swine producer, according to program chairman Tom Socha, secretary-manager of the Nebraska SPF swine organization.

The two-day program will include topics related to herd health, disease problems and swine management practices. Discussions will be of interest to veterinary practitioners dealing with both SPF (specific pathogen-free) and non-SPF herds, Socha said.

The conference fee is $40 and registration begins at 7:30 a.m. each day.

Newest Alcohol Process Boosting Fuel Volume From Cropland Residue

A new alcohol process adds more than 4 billion gallons to the estimated volume of fuel that could be produced every year from straw, stalks, hulls, cobs, other plant residues and from processing wastes.

The process, under patent application by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, uses a yeast found in the Agricultural Research collection at Peoria, Ill. It makes 4 to 5 gallons of ethyl alcohol from 100 pounds of xylose sugar, says Rodney J. Bothast, research leader. Xylose is not now used in commercial production of alcohol.

ETHYL alcohol, or ethanol, can replace petroleum products in fuels and as a starting material in the chemical industry. It is used as a solvent and in dyes, drugs, pharmaceuticals and medicines, in making rubbers, plastics and coatings, in detergents, cosmetics, explosives, antifreeze and in intermediates, which are starting materials for still other products.

Xylose makes up 10 to 25 percent, depending upon the crop, of the 500 million tons of annual crop residues. At the 10 percent level, 50 million tons of xylose would make 4 to 5 billion gallons of ethanol in the process developed by Bothast, Patricia J. Slinger, James E. Van Cauwenberge and Cletus P. Kurtzman.

Additional xylose is available in processing waste such as that from mills that make paper from trees. The wastes accumulate at the manufacturing locations and would cost less than crop residues to collect and transport. Bothast points out also that obtaining xylose from waste might cost less than separating it from the residues.

When wood or annual residues are processed for other uses such as making paper, he says, "the xylose becomes more available."

THE NEW alcohol process is the first to use a yeast to ferment xylose directly to ethanol. "This discovery promises a way to produce ethanol from xylose with the techniques and equipment commonly available in the fermentation industry," Bothast says.

The fermentation process uses a yeast that Kurtzman, a zymologist, selected from the Agricultural Research Culture Collection. Kurtzman says the yeast, Pachysolen inamophilus, was found in leather tanning wastes in 1957 by French scientists who sent it to the Culture Collection, maintained since 1940 at the Northern Regional Research Center. An internal facility depository for yeasts, molds, bacteria and other microorganisms, the Collection preserves pure, viable cultures of the organisms for research and for patent records.

Van Cauwenberge and Bothast grew the yeast in fermentors to learn if it produces enough alcohol to have industrial process potential in these Northern Agricultural Energy Center studies. Slinger, a chemical engineer, worked out details in a batch fermentation.

She found that the yeast grows and produces alcohol best at 32 degrees Centigrade (88.5, F.). It needs oxygen to grow but not to produce alcohol. "Alcohol production can occur in the absence of growth," she says.

SHE GREW the yeast in acidic solutions (pH 2.5) containing minerals, nitrogen and 50 to 250 grams of xylose per liter of solution.

"Both growth and alcohol production were maximum when the initial xylose concentration did not exceed 50 grams per liter," she says. "The yeast appeared to be inhibited by ethanol concentrations above 20 grams per liter."

Bothast calls the batch fermentation a step toward making alcohol from xylose. He and Slinger have started work on continuous fermentation. They get higher ethanol yields than they obtained in the batch studies.

WHITE GRUBS — Summer and early fall are the times that grub damage in turf is readily identified. The first symptoms are small brown patches that eventually may develop into large dead areas.

If white grubs are responsible, they can easily be found by digging up the damaged turf and examining the soil under the root system. If they are the cause, may c-shaped grubs with brown and six short legs will be present.

The number of grubs needed before treatment is feasible will vary with turf conditions, but if there are 4 to 6 grubs per square foot, controls will be indicated.

CONTROLLING white grubs is difficult. An insecticide must move through the thatch and into the soil before it will have any effect on white grubs. The only feasible approach is to aerate the turf, then apply 2 1/2 pounds of 5 percent diazinon granules or 1 pound of diazinon 1 1/2 percent granules per 1,000 square feet.

You must irrigate at least 1 inch of water immediately after application and repeat irrigation in 3 or 4 days. The first evidence of effective results will be a yellowing of grubs.

It probably will be a week to 10 days before any degree of control can be determined. In the meantime, if rain does not occur, continue to irrigate every 4 to 5 days.

VOLUNTEER CORN — Recent experiments have shown that heavy volunteer corn populations reduced soybean yields by as much as 83 percent.

Every 180 clumps of volunteer corn per acre will reduce the yield about one bushel. This estimate would include only the direct reduction in seed production. There would be additional losses due to harvesting problems caused by the corn.

This same research compared two herbicides treatments for volunteer corn control, early postemergence spray application of Hoelon and rope-wick application of Roundup.

HOWELON WAS more effective in increasing soybean yields than was Roundup at the higher corn densities.

This was probably because the Hoelon applications could be made earlier than the rope-wick applied Roundup. Rope-wick applications had to wait for the corn to grow above the soybeans.

For heavy infestations of volunteer corn early overtop applications of Hoelon would be best. For lighter infestations, it may be cheaper to use Roundup applied with a rope-wick unit.

Corn Crop's Not Out of The Woods

Ten days of cool, damp weather have given Nebraska crops "a real reprieve," but corn in particular is far from being "out of the woods" in terms of favorable weather conditions to assure excellent yields.

This note of caution came from the Ag Climate Situation Committee of the Nebraska Cooperative Extension Service, in an overall optimistic end-of-July report.

Ralph Neild, University of Nebraska extension climatologist, said under normal weather conditions, the majority of the state's corn crop should be in the dent stage by Aug. 10 to Aug. 15. Weather patterns have narrowed the gap in stages of development of corn in most areas of the state. Neild said, with little apparent difference in corn planted May 10 and on up through May 20.

"THE NEXT three weeks will be very critical for corn," Neild said, adding that a sustained period of 90 degree temperatures "could turn things around" from the present favorable outlook. Despite good rainfall amounts over much of the state since the hot spell was broken July 17, soil is moist to the 12-inch depth or less in many counties, especially in southeast Nebraska. Neild said.

A combination of high temperatures, lack of rainfall and wind could quickly exhaust this reserve. High humidity has curtailed daily soil moisture usage by corn much of the summer. Neild commented.

Neild and Ed Penas, NU extension soils specialist stationed at Lincoln, said that damage inflicted to some dryland corn during the early July hot spell would not be reversed by recent rains. The main effect of the heat stress was defective pollination, in inhibiting ear formation and normal kernel development.

WHILE MOISTURE conditions generally are good for corn, soybeans and sorghum — now 30 percent headed out, a lack of subsoil moisture, especially in portions of eastern Nebraska, continues to hinder pasture growth.

Penas said that bromes grass, usually dormant this time of year, is growing, and farmers might pick up some added pasture by fertilizing bromes now. If rains continue, the grass would benefit; if not, the nitrogen would remain in the soil for use next year. Penas pointed out.

John Watkins, NU extension plant pathologist, said recent rains will tend to favor the development of corn leaf diseases, and bacterial blights in soybeans, but said no major problems are expected at this point.

FORTY-TWO JAPANESE youth and three sponsors are spending a month in Nebraska (through late August), under a long-running cultural exchange program. Last year, nine Nebraska youths were guests in Japanese homes. The youths, ages 11 to 19, arrived in Lincoln July 26, and were hosted at a luncheon on the University of Nebraska East Campus, under auspices of the State 4-H Department, NU Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources. Shown with two of the delegates are (left), Dr. Glen Krohn, extension 4-H youth specialist, Lincoln, and Roy Stohler, extension 4-H youth and CRD specialist, NU Northeast Station, Concord.

County Farm Families to Host 4-H Youth Exchange Students

Thirteen Nebraska families will host international young adults for three week periods through the International 4-H Youth Exchange (IFYE) according to Dr. John Orr, extension 4-H youth development specialist in the University of Nebraska Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources.

The four assignments to Nebraska by the National 4-H Council involve men from Japan, Luxembourg, Northern Ireland and Switzerland.

Minoru Swada, 21, is from Japan. He is to arrive in Nebraska Aug. 6 to stay with the Dave Baumert family of Leigh and later the Jerry Bourke family of Howells. His study interests include youth development programs, agriculture, orchidology and agricultural management.

FROM SEPT. 5 to 25, Sawada will stay with the Stanley Waide family of Winside. From Sept. 24 to Oct. 18 he will stay with the Bud Stalzanburg family, at Crookston.

His hobbies include gardening, table tennis and climbing. Orr noted.

Emile Wolter, 20, from Luxembourg, will stay with the Don Kuester family of Stanton through August. In September he will stay with the Gene Shermer family, Norfolk, and from Sept. 27 to Oct. 18 with the Dennis Utter family, Kenesaw.

Wolter enjoys snow skiing, photography and jazz. His study interests are youth development programs, veterinary medicine, animal hygiene and cattle feeding techniques.

Thomas Torrens, 25, from Northern Ireland, also is scheduled to arrive Aug. 6. His first Nebraskan host is the Mark Lam family of Stanton. In September he will stay with the Earl Miller family of O'Neill and later with the Gary Lockhorn family of Cozad.

TORRENS is interested in youth development programs, dairy farming, milk production and processing and grass and forage production and conservation. His hobbies include reading, music, stock judging, dancing, drama and debate.

Joining the Leroy Kilchenmann family of Stanton on Aug. 6 will be Fritz Tobler, 24, from Switzerland. Tobler will stay with the Dwayne Rethwisch family of Wayne in September and with the Lowrey Smith family of Waco from Sept. 24 to Oct. 18.

Tobler enjoys old rock 'n' roll and modern music, dancing, electronics and crafts.

His study interests include youth development programs, agricultural vocational training, extension work, marketing and farm family life.

The IFYE representative program in the United States is conducted by the National 4-H Council in behalf of the Cooperative Extension Service.

Rains Save Farm Crops From July Heat Disaster

Rains of two inches or more since mid-July over much of Nebraska staved off a disaster for dryland crops, according to the Ag Climate Situation Committee of the Nebraska Cooperative Extension Service. Significant precipitation in the eastern one-third of the state, where most non-irrigated crops are grown, came at the critical grain-forming stage for corn and soybeans and pushed sorghum into further growth, the committee reported.

THE RAINS broke a heat spell, helping to conserve moisture supplies and giving crop plants a chance to recoup, according to Ralph Neild, University of Nebraska extension climatologist. In addition, the weather change removed heavy stress from livestock.

Given moderate seasonal temperatures, recent rains — except in extremely dry "pockets" — should provide adequate moisture for crops for the next 10 days or two weeks, he added. Before July 17, the driest areas in the state were in southwest Nebraska and around Alnsworth and the Chadron vicinity.

Neild said a compilation of growing degree days, a measurement of optimum conditions for plant growth, shows that most irrigated corn planted since May 10 in the eastern two-thirds of the state had reached the silking or "blister" stages of kernel formation by July 20. The same would be true of dryland corn planted since May 20.

BRUCE Anderson, NU extension forage specialist, said the rains would provide immediate relief and stimulate growth for warm season grass range lands. However, in eastern Nebraska, cool season grasses will make little growth from this moisture until cool weather comes. Rainfall during the past week may have come too late to forestall some cow-calf operators from liquidating their stock because of a short hay crop for this winter, he said. A 2 inch rain adds about 1/4 to 1/3 of hay yield per acre, Anderson said.

However, the rains have the effect of "a holding action" in driving the bugs out of the ground where they can be sprayed and in helping crop plants tolerate chinch bug damage. More moisture will be needed in the next two weeks, he said, to encourage development of a fungus which is a natural enemy of the chinch bug.

361 Attend WSC Festival

Concert Caps Music Camp

Nearly 4000 music fans were treated to an afternoon of sounds on Sunday as the 37th annual Wayne State College summer music camp drew to a close.

A week-long camp was how camp director Dr. Jay O'Leary, chairman of the WSC fine arts division, described the 1981 festival that drew a record 361 students.

Two of those participants, Tim Kraft of Seward High School and Anne Marie Forbes of Omaha Marston High School were named camp king and queen by their fellow students at a dance Saturday evening.

O'Leary said, "The students were superb and very talented. Our concert was of a better quality than usual." He added that it was a rewarding experience for both the students and the camp staff, composed of the WSC music faculty, a number of high school band and choral directors, and some WSC music students.

One new feature of the camp, a course entitled "Minor Instruments," was tremendously received by the students. In the course they were allowed to study and play instruments that they don't normally play.
