One Protester Speaks at Winside Hearing

Move to Revoke Bar Owner's License Fails

Winside area patrons packed Charlie's Bar Tuesday night for an unplanned, and perhaps unexpected, celebration.

The celebration, which continued until last call, began minutes after the Winside Village Board of Trustees approved a motion allowing the tavern to continue operating under a liquor license held by owner Charles Weible.

Weible, 28, who is serving 8 to 16 years at hard labor in the Nebraska State Penal Complex after his June conviction on three felony drug counts, was represented at the board-influenced public hearing by his attorney Vince Kirby of Norfolk.

CONVENED at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the village auditorium, the public hearing was designed to gather public comment on whether or not Charlie's Bar should remain operating under Weible's license.

With more than 50 Winside area residents attending the hearing, only one publicly challenged the tavern owner's right to the liquor license.

In sworn testimony during the 30-minute hearing, Judy Jacobsen, wife of village trustee Ray Jacobsen, asked that the tavern be barred from operating under Weible's license.

"I think the town should revoke his (Weible's) license," she said, after identifying herself and taking an oath to tell the truth.

"JUST ON the facts I have read in the paper, according to the paper, he has sold drugs," Jacobsen said.

"I don't think he can be a very reputable person to hold a liquor license," she added. Her testimony to revoke Weible's license lasted less than a minute.

Several moments of silence lapsed when trustee Floyd Burt opened the floor for public comment in favor of revoking Weible's license.

Finally Jacobsen stepped to the table near a tape recorder and began her statement in opposition to Weible's license.

She opened her testimony with several comments about raising her children in Winside and expressed concern about their exposure to drugs.

WHEN JACOBSEN finished, Burt called for additional testimony in favor of revoking the license.

With no further response from the audience, the hearing shifted to testimony from those against revoking Weible's license.

Kenny Frahm and Dale Vanosdall, both of Winside, spoke.

"I've got two kids in school," Frahm said. "Charlie (Weible) and my kids...he gave them ice cream cones, poppies, candy, he didn't give them drugs."

Frahm directed his remarks to Jacobsen. "He (Weible) likes kids. He wasn't out to hurt kids," Frahm continued. "Judy, if you think he (Weible) was selling drugs to kids at school, I'm sorry, but you're wrong."

"I'M GLAD my kids go to Winside," Frahm said. "If you think he (Weible) hurt kids, you're wrong."

As Frahm sat down, the huge auditorium was silent, except for the muffled whispers in the audience.

Vanosdall walked to the front of the room, identified himself and said: "If this man's already behind bars, how much more do you want to hurt people?"

Without mentioning them by name, Vanosdall made several references to Weible's parents, Wayne County Sheriff Don "Butch" and Mary Weible, and suggested that those behind the effort to revoke the bar's license were going too far.

Weible's mother, whose application for a new liquor license is pending before the Nebraska State Liquor Commission, has been managing the tavern while her son is in the state penitentiary.

VANOSDALL charged that the effort to revoke Weible's license was dragging the tavern owner's parents into an impossible situation.

"How much longer are you going to do that?" he asked, suggesting those behind the effort were punishing Weible's parents for the transgressions of their son.

"If you're going to do that, this is no place to grow up in...that's all I've got to say," Vanosdall concluded.

Before taking his seat, Vanosdall told the board and the audience that closing Charlie's Bar would not be good for business in Winside.

As Vanosdall sat down, the crowd broke into applause.

BURT ASKED for additional comments in support of Weible's license. There were none.

He closed the hearing, telling the audience that the board would make a decision on the matter.

Moments later, after consulting with counsel, Burt, who chaired the hearing in the absence of Mayor Bruce Wylie, accepted a motion from trustee Kenny Brockmoller.

Principal Facing Assault Charge

A third degree assault charge has been filed in Wayne County Court against Dr. Donald Zeiss, principal of Wayne High School.

Wayne County Attorney Budd Bornhoff filed the charges against Zeiss Monday, a week after the Wayne Carroll School District Board of Education heard an appeal from a Wayne couple regarding an alleged assault on their son.

Zeiss, who was unavailable for comment Wednesday, faces a 10 a.m. Thursday arraignment on the charges before Wayne County Court Judge James Duggan.

THE CHARGE, a misdemeanor, normally carries a fine as a penalty, according to Luverna Hilton, associate county judge.

At Thursday's hearing, Zeiss will have an opportunity to plead guilty or innocent to the charge, which has been brought in connection with an alleged incident on July 25 at 602 Sherman Street.

If Zeiss pleads innocent, the case will be set for a preliminary hearing and eventual trial. County Court disposition of the case does not preclude civil court action.

Dr. Francis Haun, school district superintendent, said that on advice of the school board attorney "it would be inappropriate for any school official to comment on the case while it is before a court."

THE SCHOOL board, which received a letter presented by Darrell and Wilma Moore on Aug. 10, has gone on record promising to conduct a full investigation into the matter.

The alleged assault involves the Moore's 17-year-old son Jeff, a senior at Wayne High School.

The Moores declined to comment further on the matter Wednesday, also noting that "it would be inappropriate" with the case now before the court.

The Moores not only presented the board with a letter of complaint against Zeiss during the Aug. 10 meeting, but also appealed to board members personally for an investigation.

After some discussion of the legal status of the board in the matter, a resolution calling for the investigation passed unanimously.

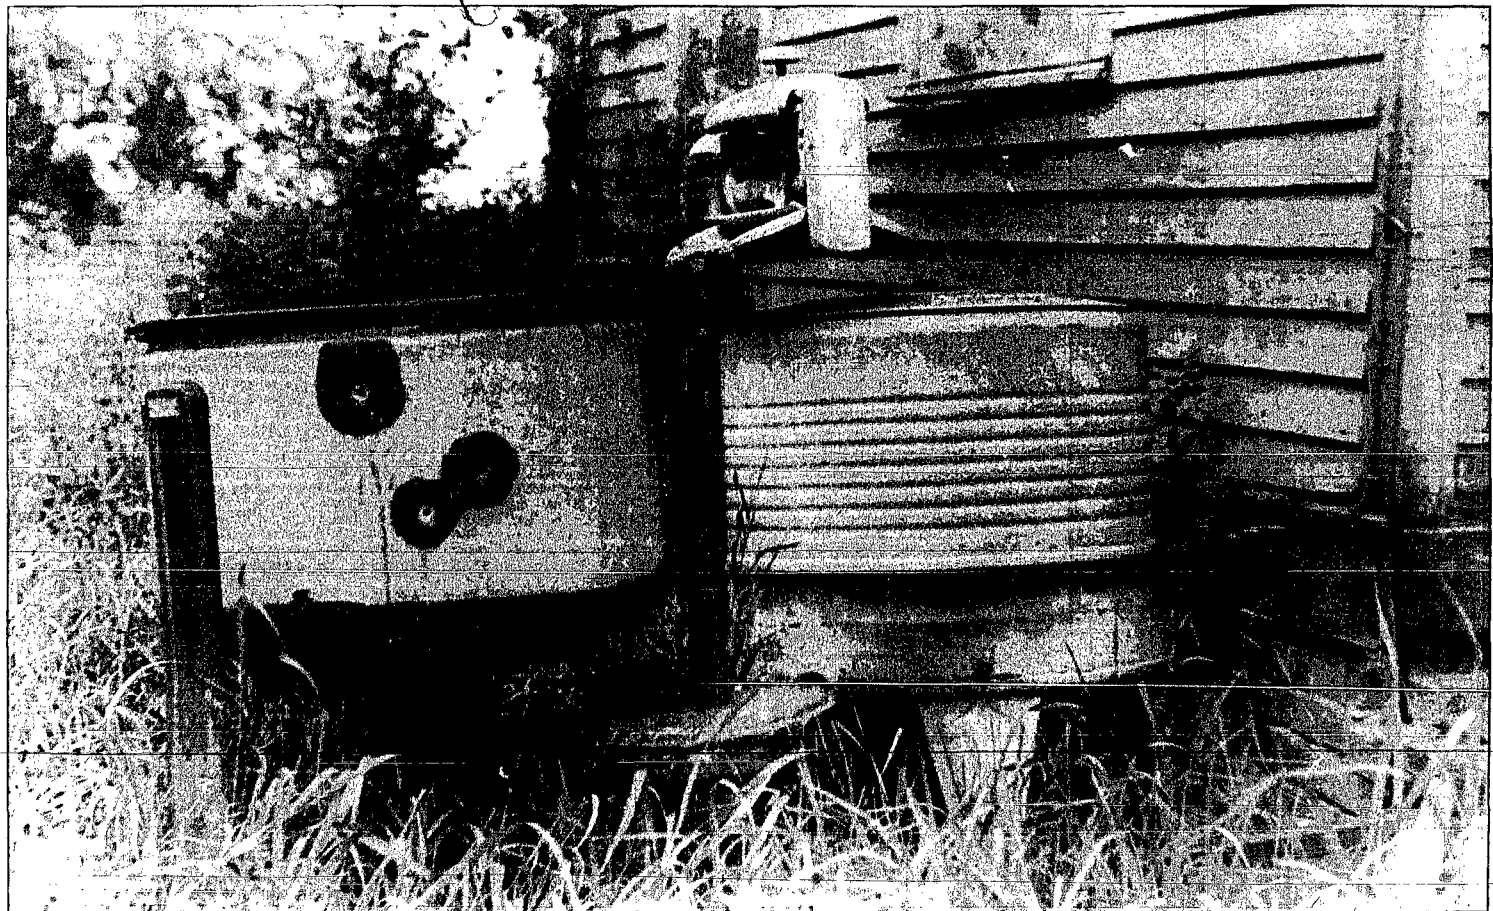

HAUN DID say that he and board president Art Sandahl met with the Moores following last week's meeting.

"We discussed the case in more detail," he said. The Moores had requested a meeting with Haun and a representative from the school board.

The meeting focused on the details of an alleged encounter between Zeiss and the Moore's son. The Moores allege that Zeiss "physically assaulted and verbally threatened our son's life."

According to the Moores, Zeiss called to apologize for a case of "mistaken identity" on Sunday morning, July 26 — the morning after the alleged incident.

During last week's board meeting, the Moores indicated they would be doing everything they could legally to get action on the case.

Wayne Man Makes a Museum

Plywood Sculptor Creates Furniture

By Theresa Wulf

It all started when a fellow gave a demonstration on plywood sculpture at Wayne State College.

Jerry Daniels was having coffee with a friend who had seen the demonstration. "There ain't nobody in this town who can do anything like that," the friend told Jerry.

Oh, yes there is.

Daniels took the challenge and decided to prove his friend wrong. Now — a year later — he has a whole room of furniture, and then some to prove that there is someone in this town who can do it.

JERRY'S FIRST project was a coffee table, which sits in front of his living-room sofa.

He used a piece of 1/4-inch plywood for the top of the table, then used the rest to make the bottom.

The patterns he used came from magazine pictures — a deer, a mountain and two trees. After stacking up and gluing together three, 1/2-inch, one 1/2-inch and one 1/4-inch layer, he ground out the pattern with a rotary rasp.

Varying shades of brown within the layers of the table were achieved through varnishing and burning with a propane torch — not stain, Jerry pointed out.

"There's even shades of green in this," he said, picking up his second project — a round hassock.

JERRY'S PRIDE and joy, though, is the desk in his den.

Three-dimensional faces of a ram and a bull highlight the sides. The glass top protects a huge Indian face ground-out of the wood.

It took Jerry's wife, Doris, two weeks to glue the Indian headdress on — hundreds of turkey, pheasant, grouse and quail feathers from animals he shot.

Wild turkey claws and shells make up the Indian's necklace. And the pulls and the handles are real deer horns, which he collected from other friends who had shot deer.

"It took about three sets of antlers to get the ones with the right curve for handles," he said.

THE DESK was the last thing built in the room, Jerry continued.

His wife suggested that he build a two-seater couch — it would fit better than the one in there.

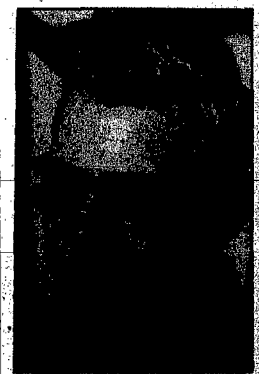

After that was finished, he decided he needed a chair. "Then I made this thing," he said, holding up the end table.

A deerhead and antelope decorate the sides of the couch, and a wall-toe swims along the front. Tree designs are cut out in the back, giving the couch a finished look all around.

THE DESK WAS the final addition to the den, "which is actually a museum," he chuckled.

He's won two awards from Sports Afield.

Switchitis Bug Sweeps State's Political Parties

By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

Republicans 2, Democrats 1. Or will it be 2-2?
State Sen. Chris Beutler of Lincoln calls it "switchitis." Others just call it unusual, interesting or maybe inevitable.

Since June there have been a series of news reports about current and former state officials switching political affiliation. Among those who have been hit by the "switchitis bug," if it can be called that, are Sen. Don Dworak of Columbus, and Stan Matzke and John Jacobson, former aides to J. James Exon when he was governor.

Dworak left the GOP fold to become a Democrat, a move that some observers say is a premise to the Columbus lawmaker's bid for governor in 1982. At this writing, Dworak hasn't committed himself.

MATZKE AND JACOBSON, although still supportive of their former boss who now is a Democrat in the U.S. Senate, have become Republicans. Both Matzke and Jacobson said they switched because their philosophies align more closely with those of the Republican Party.

Matzke has been a political contender in recent years, but he says he didn't switch parties in an attempt to make himself more attractive to voters in the upcoming election. But if the GOP likes him as much as he seems to like his new party, anything is possible.

Matzke was a candidate for Lincoln's mayor two years ago, and he says he wasn't "very acceptable to the Democratic Party." He lost the bid to incumbent Helen Bossalis, a Democrat who was supported by most local party leaders.

Jacobson, meanwhile, didn't seem to reveal any political aspirations in his recent interview with reporters.

But Sen. Gerald Koch of Ralston has talked about political aspirations, framed in a possible party switch for the lifelong Republican.

Koch recently confirmed reports he might become a Democrat and then mount a bid for lieutenant governor. Koch says he would like to run on the same ticket with Dworak. If the Columbus lawmaker does in fact run for governor in 1982.

BUT KOCH at this writing had not committed himself, although he said his decision would be made by Labor Day.

Party switching isn't new. Nor is it necessarily unhealthy, unwise or unwarranted. After all, people in a Democratic society should be allowed to belong to whatever party they choose.

But the recent party switches in Nebraska raise some interesting questions.
If two longtime or lifelong Republicans become Democrats just because they think their chances of beating GOP incumbents would be better, what political philosophies will they practice if they are elected?

And how will voters accept candidates who appeared to switch parties just to improve their chances of election?

THOSE QUESTIONS no doubt are running through the minds of Koch and Dworak especially Gov. Charles Thone and Lt. Gov. Roland Luedtke, the Republican incumbents Dworak and Koch might try to unseat, probably are weighing the balances too.

Other Nebraskans with political aspirations also will be watching closely, because if it works for Koch and Dworak, it might work for them, too.

Still, one cannot help but wonder who else is waiting in the wings to announce a party switch and subsequent plans for a campaign bid.

Who knows, by the time the 1982 elections roll around, there may be so many switches that party labels are really nothing more than taboos.

And if that happens, many people will have a chance to vote for people, and not parties.

FOOD LAW—Food booth operators at county and state fairs may not know it, but they have the governor and state Justice Department behind them.

Gov. Charles Thone recently asked the state's attorney general to challenge part of a 1981 state law. Under attack is the Nebraska Pure Food Act, which imposes a $45 permit and inspection fee on food booth operators at county and state fairs.

The fee went into effect Aug. 1, and several nonprofit groups complained to Thone about the assessment. The governor listened to their complaints and directed the attorney general to take the law to court. The fact that food booths operated by nonprofit and charitable organizations, including churches, were subject to the $45 fee was particularly troublesome to Thone.

IN LIGHT of Thone's position and the attorney general's suit, the state agency that's responsible for collecting the fees and performing the inspections says it will wait until the issue is decided by the courts before it charges the fee to nonprofit operators.

Sponsored by Sens. Loran Schmit of Bellwood, Vard Johnson of Omaha and Don Wesley of Lincoln, the new law, which covers several subjects, is now in the hands of the Lancaster County District Court.

The court has been asked to declare all of the law unconstitutional or, as an alternative, to strike down all sections except those that regulate group homes.

viewpoint

Downright Ridiculous

Animal rights activists, particularly those leading the charge to stop the practice of eating meat, probably would not be welcome in the Wayne Carroll Schools.

That seemed to be the consensus, at the end of this month's school board meeting. The consensus was apparent after board member Milton Owens shared a Farm Bureau report on the subject.

Owens said that an article in the Farm Bureau publication outlined some of the animal rights activists' curriculum recommendations in Minnesota.

The article, which also appeared on The Wayne Herald's editorial page recently, discussed the activists' experimental program to set up learning situations to convert children to vegetarianism.

"It teaches that baby pigs like to play in the mud all day," Owens explained, while scanning the article.

"It asks the kids if they have eaten any animals," he continued. He said the curriculum fosters the concept of giving human attributes to animals.

Owens said that the experimental curriculum urges third and fourth graders to write letters to their favorite animals.

Expressing some previous disbelief that "those people are serious," Owens urged Superintendent Francis Haun to veto any attempt to introduce "that kind of thinking" in the Wayne Carroll system.

Owens and three other board members, Dale Stollenberg, Neil Sandahl and Wilbur Giese are Farm Bureau members.

However, they did not appear to be alone in the sentiment expressed by Owens.

And, certainly, in a state that has a rich history of producing some of the country's best slaughter livestock on some of the most modernized farming operations in the world there is little time or place for such a ridiculous venture.

The concept pushed by the over active activists who want to humanize animals is not only absurd, but it also fosters a misunderstanding of reality that is already out of hand. Thanks to a boob tube world where fantasy is forever.

Yes, teach them to write. But, teach them to write to their family and their friends.

And, teach them about animals. Teach them to respect animals and to understand them. But, most of all, teach them to be common sense realists in a world filled with an extraordinary number of empty headed zealots.

Regulatory Reform

President Reagan and his team of White House budget and tax cutters may discover their work to date has been an excellent training exercise for cutting red tape.

Coming up next on the timetable for the president's Economic Recovery Program is the monumental effort to reduce the heavy layer of federal regulation over U.S. private and public life. While regulation has a role to play in our vast economic marketplace, the system is out of control. It adds over $100 billion a year to the prices Americans pay for goods and services.

To start slashing needless, overlapping and unwarranted regulatory overlays, Vice President George Bush, who heads the president's Task Forces for Regulatory Relief, last March asked business and the public generally to identify and document regulatory problems. So far, more than 3,000 responses have come in and more are coming in daily.

After reviewing complaints recurring most often, the Department of Commerce has come up with a list of "The Terrible 20," a roster of the most burdensome regulations.

Documents sent in detail many instances of higher compliance costs than truly necessary and suggest alternative methods of accomplishing the same objectives with less expense and paperwork.

But the process of regulatory reform promises to be long, difficult and complex.

The process for amending and abolishing ill conceived rules is just as tedious and time consuming as that required to issue a new regulation. Given the tremendous volume of congressional rules, it is clear that remedial action will be delayed in many areas. In some cases, substantive reform will require action by Congress.

Reaganites, be forewarned.

Residents Confident About Future

Nebraska Economic Outlook Good

Many signs indicate that economic prospects for the nation, and particularly Nebraska, look good.

Public confidence is being buoyed by congressional action to support the president's program to reverse the federal policy of every-increasing taxing and spending.

Even though the first step of the federal income tax cut won't take effect until October 1981, people are already feeling more confident about their future, I believe.

IN NEBRASKA, where citizens have had a 16.6 percent reduction in their state income tax rate throughout 1980 and 1981, many people are even more optimistic than in the nation as a whole.

Latest employment figures for Nebraska as of this writing are for June, 1981, when 12,000 more people had jobs than the previous month.

Nationally, July figures are available and the unadjusted unemployment rate was down four-tenths of a percent from June.

To the Editor:
The viewpoint called "Winside's Wrangle" put things into perspective concerning the hearing to be held on the license for Charlie's Bar. Tempers are hot, emotions and heart have taken over cranial functions and the entire atmosphere is creating an unnecessary split in the town.

The statement that Sheriff and Mrs. Don Weible are victims of small town rumor mongering is assuredly true. The viewpoint made that fact very clear. I question one statement in the viewpoint and feel an error of omission was made on another point.

First it would be interesting in knowing how many of "a number of townspeople are convinced that the entire operation should be shut down for good" were interviewed by the writer of Viewpoint? How many is "a number of people - 4 or 5 representing 1 percent of the population of Winside or 45 representing 10 percent of the population of the town? The majority of the people that we know do not say the bar should be closed down, but should be operated with a license under Mr. and Mrs. Weible's name. We agree with that opinion.

Secondly, Mr. and Mrs. Weible are not alone in Winside in being the only victims of small town rumor mongering and gossip. We have lost friends of longstanding because of rumors. We have lost customers because of distortions of conversation held in the bar - conversation that we have no control over - concerning what should or should not be done. We have been accused through rumors of instigating the hearing. This is not true and never has been. Rumors have recently started that someone has started a petition to have the license revoked. As far as we know this is not true either. More gossip, more rumors and more innuendo that affect lives of more people.

We would like to make our viewpoint clear on this entire matter. We do not want Charlie's Bar closed. We do not want to get rid of the competition. We have faced and accepted the competition for over 7 years. We do feel the citizens of Winside and the surrounding area have the right and the duty to express their opinions for or against the license, to the Board of Trustees on Tuesday night. We feel the Board of Trustees then has the right and the duty, based on this opinion, to make a decision as to whether or not the license should be revoked. We feel that the Nebraska Liquor Control Act and Rules and Regulations of the Nebraska Liquor Control Commission apply to every one equally and should be adhered to.

In closing we realize we are in a no-win situation. No matter what happens at Tuesday night's hearing - we lose - friends, customers and a little bit of faith in the human race to ever settle differences through communication.

The Butter Battle Has Spread to Russians

By M.M. Van Kirk
Nebraska Farm Bureau

It is a strange commentary on the economic ramifications of the U.S. agricultural economic system that the federal government must find ways to "unload" its holdings of surplus butter but most consumer households pass it by in the market to buy margarine.

The television ads for margarine have always emphasized that their products come so near to tasting like butter that the average person can't tell the difference. One current advertising skit has the container saying "butter" whenever the lid is lifted slightly, so after all these years, butter continues to rule as the ultimate preferred spread if the price could be competitive.

THOSE OF the older generation recall that as farm folks with cream to sell, we turned up our noses at those city folks who didn't serve butter on their tables as we did. But that was a long time ago before most farm people quit milking cows, selling cream and churning their own butter.

Butter today is not the problem but the supply is. There is just too much of it because the United States and Common Market countries of Europe use it as the commodity with which to buy and store surplus supplies of milk at support price levels that encourage excess production. This year Commodity Credit Corporation purchases have been 70 percent ahead of last year, and the CCC was running out of room to store it.

So the administration sold 220 million pounds of surplus butter to New Zealand for $155 million with the provision that one of it be resold directly to the Soviet Union. The sale will reduce by half the CCC-held butter stocks which had accumulated to 440 million pounds which is three times the amount required annually for U.S. domestic donation program. The CCC resale price policy prevents its butter from competing in the U.S. wholesale market.

State Department officials said the Russians would have paid around $1.05 per pound, but the administration decided not to sell to them because the butter is subsidized by the American taxpayer. Probably they are remembering the 1927 wheat sale and the storm of criticism which arose because part of that sale was subsidized under a 1949 law that remained in effect until the market price rose high enough to nullify its subsidy requirements.

ACCORDING TO officials, a decision to sell to the Soviets might have been interpreted in Moscow as a sign that the United States is willing to set aside ideology if the alternative is profit, or in this case, a smaller loss.

Under the agreement, there is nothing to prevent New Zealand from selling its own butter to the Soviets or selling the U.S. butter to a third party, which could in turn sell it to the Soviet Union.

New Zealand is the world's principal butter exporter. The New Zealand Dairy Board, paying 70 cents a pound for butter, apparently will resell the butter at world market prices which are 25 to 30 cents above the U.S. sale price.

Secretary of Agriculture John Block said another reason for selling the butter to New Zealand is that a major U.S. sale to the Soviets would have had a disruptive effect on world butter markets, to the detriment of New Zealand's interest.

HE SAID the move was in the interest of orderly trade, and that New Zealand is in better position to manage the movement of this butter to the world with less disruptive effect on the market.

Anyway, delivery of the butter begins Sept. 1 and will run through June 30, 1982. Nobody is fooled, including the Russians, the U.S. taxpayers, or the international butter merchants.

The butter might just as well have been sold across the board to the Russians as long as they wanted it and had the money to pay for it.

Police Department Spending Comes in Under the Budget

Wayne's City Police Department came in $8,205.93 under budget for fiscal year 1980-81. In an end-of-the-year report submitted to the City Council by Police Chief Vern Fairchild, expenditures for the year, which ended July 30, totaled $173,539.07. The department's allocation was $181,745, down from the 1979-80 budget of $194,688. Expenditures for 1979-80 came in some $25,000 under budget.

REGULAR salaries paid for the 1980-81 fiscal year totaled $115,518, or $548.97 under the $116,067 allocated. Salary expenditures for temporary help totaled $4,224.28 and overtime paid fell just shy of the $100 mark at $91.94. Workmen's compensation payments, totaling $1,724 for the year, exceeded the amount budgeted in that category by $105. Expenditures in three other categories went over the amount allocated. They include travel and conference expenses, equipment maintenance and machinery and equipment purchases. Each and every other line-for-line budget category shows an under-spending in the department.

MACHINERY and equipment expenditures for the year totaled $1,527.46 for an over-run of $1,377.46. And, equipment maintenance expenditures exceeded the budget category by $90.98. Also, travel and conference expenses showed an over-run of $53.90. Despite over runs in those four categories, the total department budget shows a carryover of $8,205.93 in unspent allocated 1980-81 funds. The total for personnel services was $148,635.72, or $2,009.28 under the $150,645 allocated. Contractual services, such as telephone and telegraph, expended totaled $5,914.45, or $685.55 less than the $6,600 allocated. In the commodities category, funds expended totaled $17,461.44, or $6,885.56 less than the $24,350 allocated.

THE 1980-81 report was included in the department's July monthly report for 1981. That report showed spending remains as the leading cause of arrest in Wayne. Some 16 tickets were issued during July for speeding and 22 warnings were issued. The second most frequent violation during July involved 21 tickets issued for illegal vehicle parking between midnight and 5 a.m. Officers issued 21 tickets to parking violators in that category alone. Third on the list of ticketing activity involved violations of the parking ban between 3 a.m. and 5:30 a.m. Officers wrote 12 tickets in July for that violation. Two tickets were issued for no valid registration and another two for failure to dispose of parking tickets within 15 days. Two tickets also were issued to motorists for failure to yield. Police also handled two theft cases and a case of vandalism. Disposition involved restitution to the owners. Other arrests involved driving under license suspension, traffic signal violation, dog at large and inoperable motor vehicle equipment.

ARRESTS totaled 32, compared to 29 during the same month last year. Fines totaled $272 with nine cases pending. Cases disposed of during July that were carried over from June included four cases of minor in possession of alcohol. Charges were not filed in three cases. Also disposed of during July were June cases involving theft, burglary, speeding, and parking tickets. Police issued eight violation cards for no headlights on motor vehicles, five for expired inspection stickers, three for no drivers license and three for no license plates. Also, warning cards were issued in two cases for no registration, in two cases for no taillight and in one case for no muffler. Of the 24 issued, nine cards were returned with violations corrected. Only nine cards were issued during July of last year. Seven of those were returned corrected by the end of the month.

IN ADDITION, to the 22 traffic warnings to speeders, police warned four reckless drivers. Warnings were issued on two improper turns, two negligent drivers, a stop light violation and an illegal U-turn.

Parking warnings totaled 13, ranging from vehicles with left side at curb to blocking alleys.

Police issued 42 parking tickets, with 33 of them for violation of overnight parking ordinances.

No vehicles were impounded during the month, but four animals were.

And, police investigated 13 traffic accidents on public streets, five more than during the same month a year ago. One accident on private property was investigated, compared to four in July of 1980.

IN OTHER department activity, police received 13 criminal complaints, down five from last year. And, two criminal arrests were made, the same number made in July of 1980.

Complaints or requests for police service totaled 164 for the month, down 20 from the same month of last year.

Radio messages totaled 1,976, just off the 1980 pace of 2,084.

Telephone messages totaled 746, just over last year's July total of 741. Calls received on the emergency (911) line totaled 45, down from last year's 56.

The police reports show that only 38 of those 911 calls in July were justifiable emergencies.

Police sent 193 teletype messages, compared to 290 in July last year. And, they received 1,859 teletype messages, about 400 fewer than the 2,254 received in July 1980.

MILES driven during the month totaled 3,356, compared to 3,322 last year.

And, 344.7 gallons of gasoline were used, compared to 391 gallons during July of 1980.

Officers worked a total of 794 hours during July, down from the 940 hours worked during the same month last year.

And, dispatchers logged 728 hours, compared to 692 worked last year.

'My Fair Lady' Tells Story Of Girl's Transformation

Touted as "this century's greatest musical hit," "My Fair Lady" will open the Wayne Community Theatre's third season on Friday, Aug. 28 at Wayne State's Ramsey Theatre for a three-performance run.

The Saturday, Aug. 29 performance will include a dinner at 4:30 p.m. in the North Dining Room of the Student Center, followed by the show at 8 p.m. On Sunday there will be a brunch at 12:30 p.m., followed by a 2 p.m. matinee.

Adapted from George Bernard Shaw's play, "Pygmalion," with book and lyrics by Alan Jay Lerner and music by Frederick Loewe, "My Fair Lady" tells of the transformation of a guttersnipe flower girl — Eliza Doolittle — into a lovely lady who could pass as a princess.

HENRY HIGGINS, the brilliant, crochety, middle-aged bachelor who is England's leading phoneticist, first encounters Eliza outside Convent Garden late one night while he is in quest of new varieties of London's speech and she is selling violets.

Challenged by his friend Colonel Pickering, who is also a linguistic expert, Higgins takes Eliza into his home and begins the arduous task of changing her speech and manners.

After weeks of drilling with no hint of progress, Eliza at last improves. They all proclaim the victory in the song and dance, "The Rain in Spain."

FLUSHED WITH SUCCESS, Higgins resolves to put Eliza to a test. He will introduce her to his mother's snobbish guests at the Ascot Races the following week. Eliza expresses her exaltation in "I Could Have Danced All Night."

At the races, Eliza speaks her set pieces flawlessly, but the illusion is shattered when her enthusiasm for the horse she is backing impels her to indulge in most unduly cheering.

Six weeks later, in a crucial test, Higgins presents Eliza at a full-dress Embassy ball. She is the object of admiration and everyone comments on her charm and her flawless English.

HIGGINS HAS won his bet. While he and Pickering indulge themselves in an orgy of self-congratulation in "You Did It," neither of them takes into account Eliza's personal accomplishments.

Hurt and angry, Eliza storms out of the house in the middle of the night, aimlessly walking the streets of London. She encounters Freddy Eynsford-Hill, who is hopelessly in love with her. He pours out his love in "On the Street Where You Live," and she retaliates with "Show Me."

It isn't until Eliza has left him that Higgins realizes she has become an entirely independent and admirable human being and that he will have a difficult time getting along without her. This he admits to himself in "I've Grown Accustomed to Her Face."

Eliza's squalid father, Alfred P. Doolittle, and his equally ne'er-do-well friends, Jamle and Harry.

Doolittle outlines his rather unorthodox philosophy in the rousing "With a Little Bit of Luck." Later, drunk and dressed for a fashionable wedding, he reveals that he is going to marry Eliza's step-mother. He gives an account of his celebration in "Get Me to the Church on Time."

TICKETS ARE now on sale for all performances of "My Fair Lady," and for the dinner and the brunch. Dinner or brunch and show tickets must be purchased in advance.

Theatre goes who wish to attend only the show may purchase tickets in advance or at the door prior to each performance. Wayne Community Theatre patrons must show their current admission cards in exchange for show tickets.

All tickets are available at Griess-RBlake Drug, Sav Mor Drug and Blake Studio.

policy on weddings

The Wayne Herald welcomes news accounts and photographs of weddings involving families living in the Wayne area. We feel there is widespread interest in local and area weddings and are happy to make space available for their publication. Because our readers are interested in current news, we ask that all weddings and photographs offered for publication be in our office within 10 days after the date of the ceremony; information submitted with a picture after that deadline will not be carried as a story but will be used in a collage underneath the picture. Wedding pictures submitted after the story appears in the paper must be in our office within three weeks after the ceremony.

Reeg Repeats as Wayne CC Club Champion

There was no unfamiliar name at the top of the list of winners when the crowd had cleared Sunday following the annual men's club tournament at Wayne Country Club.

Bob Reeg, who has dominated play in the championship flight of the club tourney for the past decade, reigns again. Reeg fired a two-over par 146 in the two-day, 36-hole tourney to claim the title.

IT WAS THE NINTH club championship in 10 years for Reeg, who lost the title to Bob Bornhoff in 1979. The veteran Wayne golfer had a first round score of 38 and then came back with three rounds of par 36 to pull away from the field.

Russ Swigart placed second with a 151 total. Darrell Fuelberth finished third at 152. Bill Erickson took fourth at 154 and Sid Hillier finished fifth at 154. Erickson and Hillier were tied but a scorecard sudden death playoff gave Erickson fourth.

Reeg also was the overall tournament winner based on low net score with handicaps subtracted. He was awarded a 24 carat gold plated putter from Wayne Cold Storage and a sandbagger trophy from Wayne Sporting Goods in addition to his championship flight trophy.

All golfers played 36 holes in the two-day tourney.

IN FIRST FLIGHT play, Bill Workman took top honors with a 36-hole score of 167. Lee Tietgen placed second at 165 and Doug Pierson was third at 170. Tietgen had the low score for the final 18 holes.

The second flight was won by Tod Swigart with a 170. Wayne Tietgen placed second at 173 and Ralph Etter was third at 175. Lee Remer had low total for the final 18 holes.

Ray Murray won the third flight with a total of 170. Don Wacker took second at 172 and Gerry McGath won a scorecard playoff for third with a 173. He was tied with Royce Anderson. McGath had the low score on the final 18 holes.

In the fourth flight, Randy Simonsen took the title with a 167. Mike Carney was second at 170 and Gary Vopalensky placed third with a 178. Simonsen also had the low score for the final 18 holes.

THE FIFTH FLIGHT was won by Craig Williams with a low score of 164. He also had low score on the final 18 holes. Ted VonSeggern placed second with a 177 and Lyle Garvin was third at 184. He was a scorecard playoff against John Dorcsey, who also shot a 184.

The sixth flight was won by Ken Marra with a 170 total. Dick Diltman was second at 183 and Gordon Nuernberger was third with a 185 total. Marra had low score for the final 18 holes.

Don Lutt won the seventh flight with a score of 187. He edged out Red Carr who had a 188. Harold Ingalls was third with a score of 190. Carr had low score for the final 18 holes.

The eighth flight was won by Lynn Lessmann with a 186 total. Wayne Marsh finished a close second with a 187 and Ken Berglund was third at 196. Lessmann had low total for the final 18 holes.

IN THE NINTH flight, Merlound Lessmann shot a 186 to nip Clark Wenke at 187 and Max Kathol at 188. Kathol was tied with Dale Boyle for third place but won a scorecard playoff. Larry Carr had low score for the last 18 holes.

Roger Boyce was the winner in the 10th flight. Kent Hall placed second and Ron Sladek finished third. Handicaps were used to determine top finishers in this flight. Boyce shot a 192 and had a net score of 128 with his handicap subtracted. Hall shot 200 and had a net 128 but lost a scorecard playoff to Boyce. Sladek shot a 217 for a net score of 137. Hall had the low score for the final 18 holes.

Wayne CC Hole Selected

Each year the Omaha World-Herald selects golf holes for its "Fairway Hall of Fame." This year, the 11th hole at Wayne Country Club was chosen.

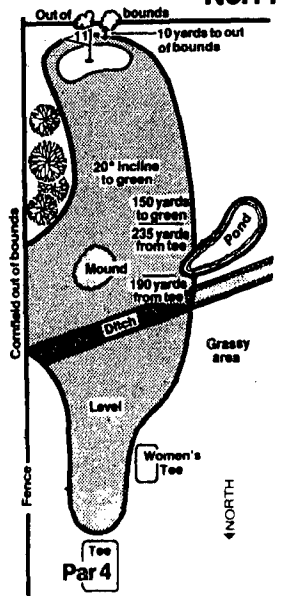

Following is the article reprinted from Monday's edition of the World-Herald.

Fairway Hall of Fame

By Don Lee

The World-Herald's

Wayne Country Club No. 11

pond. The elevation on the back of the green is really something tricky."

Future trouble — The trees on the hole include pine, linden and locust, and Mother Nature will add to the difficulty of the course when she brings those to tall and wide maturity.

Anonymous anecdote — One fellow, to remain unnamed on counsel of pro Froeschle, scored a 65 on his first 18 in a 27-hole tournament. On the last nine, he hit into the pond, knocked a 6-iron over the green, out of bounds in college territory. He wound up with a 48 on his final nine.

For the record — Bill Hornbeck holds the record of 65 over the par-72 course.

When you tee up on the 11th hole at the Country Club in Wayne, Neb., you're aiming at higher education — because Wayne State College sits on the hill in back of the green 381 yards away. That's rather appropriate, because before you've teed the last putt into the cup, there are many lessons to be learned. Students of agriculture, for example, would be interested in the cornfield on the left. Anyone majoring in marine science would find something to probe in the pond on the right. Geologists would be itching to dig into that ditch crossing the fairway and on the mound, which is Wayne County's miniature Mount St. Helens, in the middle of the fairway. Meteorologists would roll in an emerald heaven on the green, which slopes about eight feet from back to front and has a ridge running the entire width. That provides areas for radiatic pin placements. Meteorologists would have fun trying to determine why the wind almost always blows from the south — down off the campus and right in the face of par-hunters. For students or just plain golfers, the suggested target, off the tee, is the mound, about 235 yards down the slight hill. That leaves an approach of about 150 yards up the 20-degree hill to the diabolical green, located only 10 yards inside of the out of bounds. Since most golfers pick such drives find grassy areas in front of the pond, but leave a long second shot. Actually, the grassy ditch isn't a problem, except after rain. Then, it is a bit boggy.

Rudy Froeschle, golf professional — "I tee off with as little as a 4-iron and might use everything else, up to a driver. There are four choices from the tee. Hit short of the water, leaving a long second shot, aim at the mound, try to clear the tip of the pond, which jets into the fairway, unwind and hope to carry 250 yards over the pond. That last choice will steer clear of the cornfield on the left and leaves a shot to the green from the safety of the adjacent 12th hole.

Difference of difficulty — Though the women play the hole 40 yards shorter than men, they use the same par of 4 and it's more difficult for them to reach the green in two.

Bob Reeg, perennial club champion — Yes, I've birdied the hole, but you never think birdie here I've taken 7 plenty of times. The mound leaves the possibility of a downhill lie for an uphill shot. The ditch always is a back-to possibility. Sometimes, you've had a chip in to the water on the right to avoid the opposite out of bounds. The two-tiered green brings many, many three-putts. Overall, though, the hole is a fine test."

Mrs. Ralph Barclay, multi-club champion — "Any golf hole is fun, and this one calls for a placement tee shot. Yes, I'm able to reach the green in two, but a drive, a second shot and a chip is the usual trip. Then I par if I get a lucky putt. I'm a terrible putter. Yes, I've birdied the hole — but a 7 can pop up anytime."

Darrell Moore, club regular — "Sure, I enjoy the hole, but I play it for a bogey. If I get a par, I consider that a birdie. Am I able to score a regular birdie? Yes, when the wind is at my back, out of the north. My worst recollection is an 11, when my mistakes were two shots out of bounds and one in the

Randy's Recap

By Randy Hascall

I HAVEN'T HAD an opportunity to put together a column for some time due to work away from home during the past two weeks. The Class C state baseball tournament in Tecumseh took up about five days last weekend.

Then, after returning to Wayne at about 2 a.m. Wednesday, I found myself leaving again Thursday morning on newspaper assignment to National Guard Camp at Fort Ripley in Minnesota. I think I'm finally back to stay.

First I wish to extend my congratulations to the Wayne Legion and Midget baseball teams for their excellent performances at state. First and second place finishes rounded out the season in fine fashion. Also, congratulations to the Laurel Juniors who represented this area in the Class B state tournament.

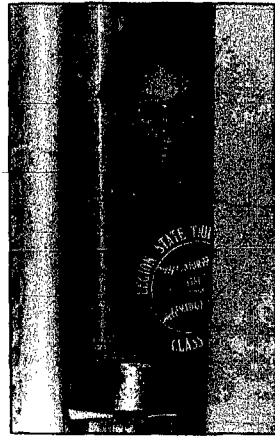

WHILE ON the subject of baseball, there are a couple of notes to point out. Hitting and pitching statistics for the Wayne Midget and Legion teams were released this week by coach Hank Overlin.

The Midgets, 22-4, were led by Steve Overlin with a .520 batting average. Jeff McCright batted .481, Todd Schwartz hit .392 and Todd Pfeiffer finished the year with a batting average of .355. Pfeiffer was Wayne's leading pitcher with a 12-1 record and Overlin was second at 6-1.

For the Juniors, 23-8, Kevrin Nissen was the batting leader with an average of .365. Brian Fleming hit .339, Jeff Allen batted .328, Pat McCright hit .312, Tim Pfeiffer batted .310 and Jere Morris finished at .307. Pfeiffer was the leading pitcher with a 14-3 record and Nissen was second at 8-2.

THE SILLY MOVE award at the state tournament goes to Midget Pat Melena who got his head stuck between a fence pole and the dugout bricks while trying to get a drink of water during a Wayne Legion game.

SLOW PITCH SOFTBALL season has pretty much come to a close for another year. Looking back at the season I would like to recognize one person who probably should have his name listed in the Guinness

Pat Melena

Book of Records for shortest softball career.

Tony Michael, who was on our Taco del Sol team's roster since spring, played in his first ball game when Taco competed in Class B districts at Norfolk.

He pinch hit for us in the bottom of the seventh inning of our final district game and got a base hit. Unfortunately, his career came to a close as he twisted his knee while rounding third base just minutes later.

At least Tony can boast that he batted 1.000 for the 1981 season.

WAYNE COUNTRY CLUB can now brag that one of its holes has been selected to the Omaha World-Herald's "Fairway Hall of Fame."

When I read in the Sunday issue of the other Herald that one of Wayne's golf holes had been selected I figured it was probably number 11. Sure enough, when the announcement was made in the Monday paper, it was indeed number 11.

That hole haunts me every time I play the back nine and although that is usually only two or three times a year, it is two or three times too often.

FALL SPORTS SEASON will open in early September and practice officially began Monday. First contests for volleyball are scheduled Thursday, Sept. 3 and football games are scheduled Friday, Sept. 4.

Students cannot be involved in any sort of competition in the fall sport in which they intend to participate except that scheduled by the high school.

For example, cross country runners who wish to run for their high school teams cannot participate in any road races or marathons or any other such competition.

IT'S TIME AGAIN for fall sports officials to loosen up by doing some callisthenics and ironing those striped shirts.

Officials rules meetings are scheduled at Wayne High School. A football rules meeting is planned Monday, Aug. 24 at the lecture hall and football, volleyball and gymnastics supervised tests are scheduled Wednesday, Sept. 16 in the library. A volleyball rules meeting was already held last week.

OFFICIALS WAGES for district and state games were determined by the Nebraska School Activities Association at its last Board of Control meeting.

Football playoffs will pay $35 per official in a four-man crew plus 22 cents per mile round trip in one car. Wrestling districts will pay $70 in Class A, $125 in Class B, $115 in Class C and $105 in Class D per official with a maximum of three officials. A rate of 22 cents per mile also will be paid.

In volleyball districts, officials will make $18.50 per match and mileage of 22 cents per mile round trip in one car. Girls and boys district and state basketball games will pay $30 per official per game.

AND A FINAL NOTE to Wayne State football fans: Ron Peck, who coached Beemer to back-to-back eight man football state championships in 1978 and 1979, has joined the WSC staff as assistant offensive line coach.

Archery Antelope Hunting Opens

The archery antelope hunting season opens today (Thursday) and remains open through Sept. 25 when it closes for rifle antelope season. It reopens Oct. 5 and continues through Nov. 13 when it closes for rifle deer season and then reopens again Nov. 23 and runs through Dec. 31.

Archery antelope permits may be purchased through the mail or over the counter from any Game and Parks Commission office in Norfolk, Lincoln, Omaha, North Platte, Bassett or Alliance. The resident archery permit sells for $15, the non-resident for $30. Every resident at least 16 years of age who hunts any game species is required to have a Habitat Stamp which sells for $7.50.

The most productive methods of taking antelope with a bow include stalking within range of the bow or waiting at watering sights like stock ponds or water tanks. Some archers shoot from atop windmills while others prefer to use hay or alfalfa stacks for a blind.

The antelope should be field dressed and skinned quickly to allow for rapid cooling and the meat should be iced down or kept in the shade to reduce spoilage.

 — the best in species angling award — and seven Master Angler Awards. He's also been honored by Field and Stream for catching the biggest crappie in a fishing contest.

Daniels also likes to hunt, he said. Mounted quail, pheasant, mallard, sharp-tailed grouse and prairie chicken line part of one wall of the "museum."

Coyote and fox furs and a rack of antelope antlers hang on the opposite wall, along with several turkey fans — all animals that Daniels shot.

He keeps track of how many turkeys he's shot by mounting their beards. So far, he has 23 hanging from a shelf.

FIVE MORE beards and a fan hang from the other side of the wall. They are trophies from his son, Kehny's, hunting. The 23-year-old graduated from Wayne State last spring and now works for a finance company in Grand Island.

The Daniels also have a 26-year-old daughter, Barb, who will be married Saturday.

Jerry is the maintenance foreman at Wayne State. Doris is the secretary-treasurer of the Wayne-Carroll School Board.

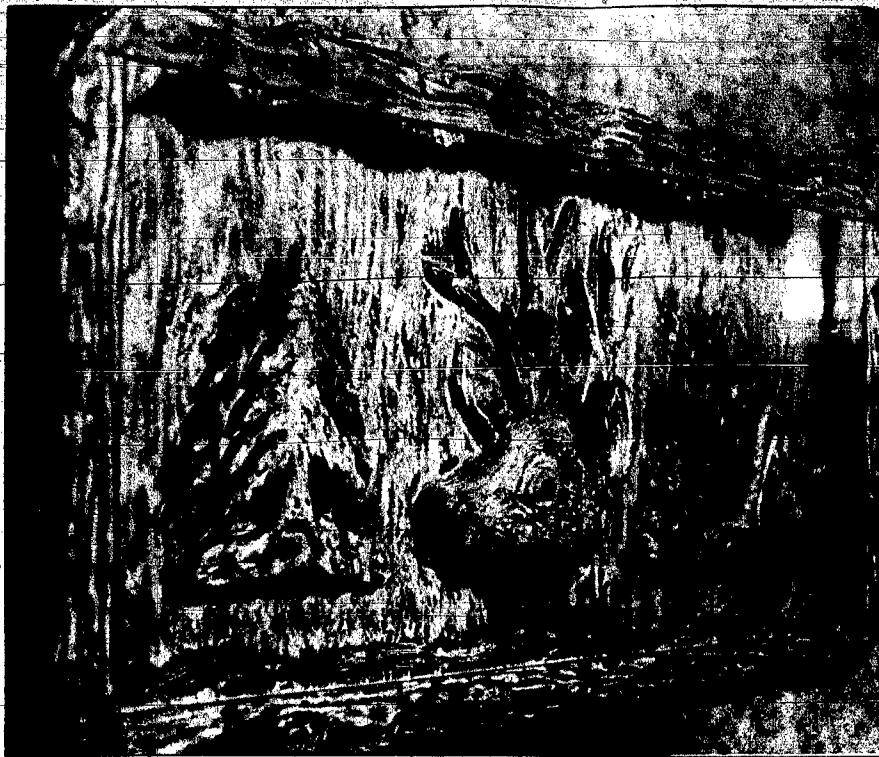

He especially enjoys working on his sculpture projects in the wintertime when he doesn't know what else to do.

"It's not really that difficult to do," he said. "The first time is a little bad, though, because you really don't know what you want to end up with."

JERRY IS done making things for himself. But he didn't know if he could sell his work in the future because of the time and effort involved.

He said the coffee table had about $100 worth of material in it. And the demonstrator at the college was selling his table for $400.

"But the quality of mine is so much better," he smiled.

Hearing

 Brockmoller's motion called for a board vote on allowing Charlie's Bar to continue operating under Weible's liquor license. Trustee Richard Schridt seconded the motion.

Burt called for discussion. After several inaudible remarks from board members, Burt called for a roll-call vote.

The vote, which stalled momentarily with trustee Ray Jacobsen, was unanimous. Again, the audience applauded.

MOMENTS later the auditorium was empty, except for several who stayed to fold and stack chairs.

Among them was Sheriff Weible, who attended the hearing with his wife and Kirby.

The sheriff, who said Charlie's Bar is for sale, had no comment on the hearing.

However, his wife said: "It makes you feel kind of good, doesn't it?"

She returned to the tavern, where patrons gathered for the victory celebration.

The board's vote allows the bar to continue operating under Weible's liquor license, which expires on Nov. 1, barring any successful challenge from Winside residents.

"I FEEL like the last guy (Vanosdall) who spoke when he's going to get off this fell as back," said trustee Brockmoller, former Winside mayor, after the meeting adjourned.

"The people got what they wanted," he said, referring to Weible's conviction. "Now, they aren't going to hurt anybody else."

Brockmoller was the first to speak when the public hearing opened. After a legal explanation on the purpose of the hearing from Ensz, Brockmoller asked to see the "five complainants" challenging Weible's license.

Ensz explained that under the law, the board could revoke the license on its own motion.

Ensz, who had read sections of state statute and State Liquor Commission rules and regulations regarding the matter, said the section about five complainants did not apply.

KIRBY SPOKE briefly at the start of the hearing. He asked if there was anything before the board that suggests that he (Weible) violated the rules of the State Liquor Commission.

Kirby contended that any challenge to Weible's license needed to be properly framed in writing. So that the license holder had an opportunity to present a defense.

"This is like a ghost in a closet," Kirby told the board. He spent several minutes professing the format of the hearing and what he said was the absence of charges, accusers or allegations.

Ensz, responding for the board, said that the hearing was limited to public comment on the "reputation and character" of Charles Weible.

Referring to the board's basis for scheduling the public hearing, Ensz outlined two sections of the law that deal with liquor license revocation.

HE SAID Weible's felony conviction in Ninth District Court, Wayne, and subsequent late July sentencing was insufficient grounds for revocation of a license.

Ensz said that a challenge to Weible's license by five residents was proper under the law, but that the board itself could challenge the license without five complainants.

The Wayne attorney said that applicable village ordinances regarding the revocation of a liquor license were "essentially the same" as the state statutes.

Burt said that he felt it was important for the audience to know that the board scheduled the public hearing because of "comments and pressure" from residents.

Ensz said the board was "acting on its own motion" and that trustees knew Weible's felony conviction was under appeal.

WEIBLE'S attorney has filed a motion for a new trial in the case. Kirby has consistently stated that if the new trial motion is denied, he will appeal the case to the State Supreme Court.

Under law, a conviction is not final until the process of appeal has been completed. The board is aware of that," Ensz said to Kirby during a discussion on the scope of Tuesday's public hearing.

Ensz said that the board could only consider the question of Weible's character and reputation.

"If there's no evidence or insufficient evidence to question his character or reputation, then the license cannot be revoked."

After the hearing, a smiling Kirby said, "Did you hear the applause? Did you see the support they (the Weibles) got? I've never seen anything like it."

Schools Receive New Guidelines For Free, Reduced-Cost Lunches

Area public schools participating in the National School Lunch program have received eligibility guidelines for the coming school year.

The guidelines, which establish income levels to determine eligibility of children who may receive free and reduced price meals, are effective on the first day of school.

In most cases, application forms are being sent to all homes in a letter to parents. Additional copies of the guidelines should be available at the office in each participating school. The information provided on the application is confidential and will be used only for the purpose of determining eligibility.

Applications may be submitted at any time during the year. A simple statement of income and family size is required, plus a signed certification by the parent or guardian that the information provided is correct.

IN CERTAIN cases, foster children are also eligible for these benefits. If a family member has foster children living with them and wishes to apply for such meals for them, they should contact the school.

Under the provisions of the policy in Winside School District, for instance, Principal Ronald Leapley will review applications and determine eligibility. If a parent is dissatisfied with the ruling of the official, the parent may wish to discuss the decision with the determining official on an informal basis.

If a family wishes to make a formal appeal, they may make a request either orally or in writing to Donavon Leighton, superintendent, Winside Public School, Winside, for a hearing to appeal the decision. The policy contains an outline of the hearing procedure.

WSC Opens Fall Term On Monday

Wayne State College (WSC) opens another fall session next week with a general registration scheduled for Monday, according to registrar Virginia Wright.

The majority of returning WSC students pre-registered at the end of the spring term last May, Wright said. New and unregistered students are urged to sign up on Monday afternoon.

ANY prospective student who has not been formally admitted to WSC must first contact the WSC Admissions Office.

Those who have been admitted but are unregistered can proceed to the WSC Computer Center to pick up their registration packets, which contain all necessary materials to sign up for classes.

After receiving their registration packets, students will meet with college academic advisors from 1 to 3:30 p.m. in the General Assembly Room on third floor of the Hahn Administration Building. The advisors will help the students fill out the necessary forms and sign up for classes.

Tuesday, Aug. 25, is the first day for classes. The last day to change schedules (drop or add classes) without penalty is Sept. 1. Tuition costs for the semester are $21 per credit hour for in-state residents and $36 per hour for non-Nebraskans.

PAYMENT of tuition fees must be made on September 9, 10 or 11. Late payment will result in a substantial penalty, which will increase weekly.

Room and board costs can also be paid then, or contracted over the semester. If arrangements are made in advance with the director of Residence Life.

A Tusk Problem

DR. GEORGE H. GOBLIRSCH, a Wayne dentist, worked over his recent work on a souvenir hand-carved African elephant, owned by Ruth Brown, rural Wayne, broke a tusk while being shipped to Nebraska from Kenya. Goblrusch repaired the tusk with dental resin after the family's efforts failed.

Laurel Council Hears Cable-TV Proposals

Half a dozen interested people went to the Laurel City Council meeting Tuesday evening to hear Cable Services of Norfolk present their cable television package.

According to city administrator J. "Ole" Mallat, Cable Services is offering the standard ten channels available now, with space for more.

These channels include the Nebraska Educational Television Network, all sports and all news channels, WGN out of Chicago, Ill., the Christian Broadcasting Network and Home Box Office for those who want it.

Those who attended the presentation were also interested in hook-up charges, service, etc., Mallat said.

"PEOPLE HERE are generally quite impressed and anxious to see it installed. Companies have demonstrated their equipment and are also anxious to get it installed," he added.

Cable Services set their receiving dish up on Laurel's Main Street last Thursday and showed passers-by how the system worked.

"It's all positive interest. There hasn't been any protest activity," Mallat said.

Western Telecommunications of Omaha will present its package to the council within the next week or two. No definite date has been set yet.

"CHARGES FOR both company's services are comparable, Mallat noted. "There is very little difference in their proposals."

Both are offering about the same channels and both are offering a one-year contract for completion of the project. But both companies also think their systems will be installed and operating six months after they are contracted.

No relay system would be used for either company, as both have their own antennae network and the equipment would be located in Laurel, he added.

It was also suggested at the council meeting that the city should have it installed and operated as a utility. "It's certainly something we're going to think about," Mallat said.

A LAUREL business man has also expressed interest in installing and operating a cable system in the city. His name could not be revealed at this time, Mallat said.

The mayor and council's final decision will be based on who they would be better able to work and get along with. That decision will come within "the next couple of months," and Mallat expects the cable service to be in operation by 1982.

Bonus Bucks Tripleheader Thursday

The tripleheader is on schedule Thursday with Grand Give-A-Way bonus bucks available to three area shoppers.

Last week's single-header struck out, Eric Nelson of Concord did not claim the $1,000 bonus bucks prize after the one-name drawing.

So, this Thursday, it's three names and three prizes — $350 in bonus bucks per name.

NEXT Thursday, Aug. 27, the $1,000 grand slam returns. In this Thursday night's contest three names will be called — one at 7:45 p.m., one at 8 p.m., and one at 8:15 p.m. for the $1,000 in bonus bucks.

Both contests, the tripleheader and the grand slam will be alternating on Thursday nights for the remainder of the summer.

THE WINNERS of this Thursday's tripleheader must be in a participating store to claim the $350 in bonus bucks. All winners must claim the prize money within one minute after their name is announced.

As before, spouses can claim the prize on behalf of the winner.

The new tripleheader twist alternates prizes, giving Wayne shoppers three chances at $350 each one week and a single shot at the $1,000 bonus bucks grand slam the next.

In the tripleheader, three names will be announced at the 15-minute intervals regardless of a win or a loss on the first or second try. One name is announced in the grand slam.

SINCE THE tripleheader bonus bucks drawings will alternate with the $1,000 Grand Give-A-Way, Thursday, Aug. 27, is the next date for the grand slam drawing.

This Thursday's winning name in the tripleheader contest will be announced in all participating Grand Give-A-Way stores.

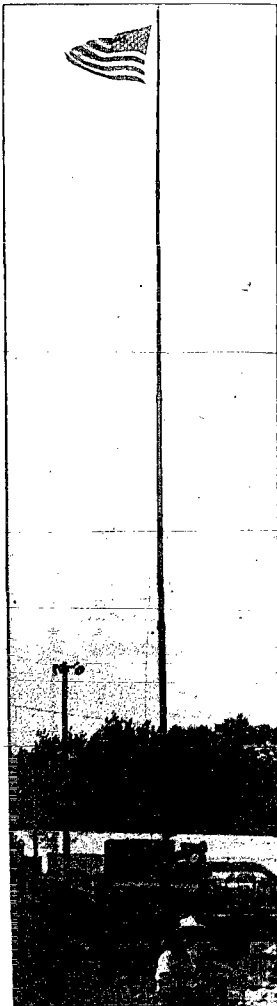

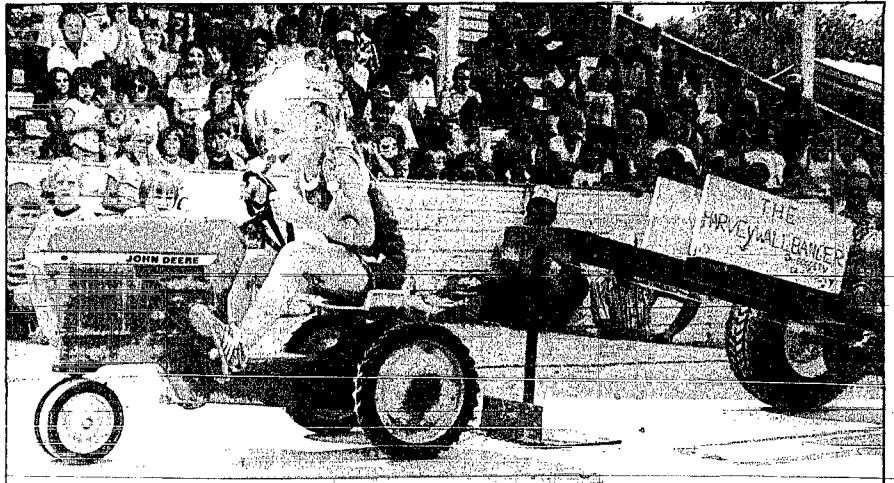

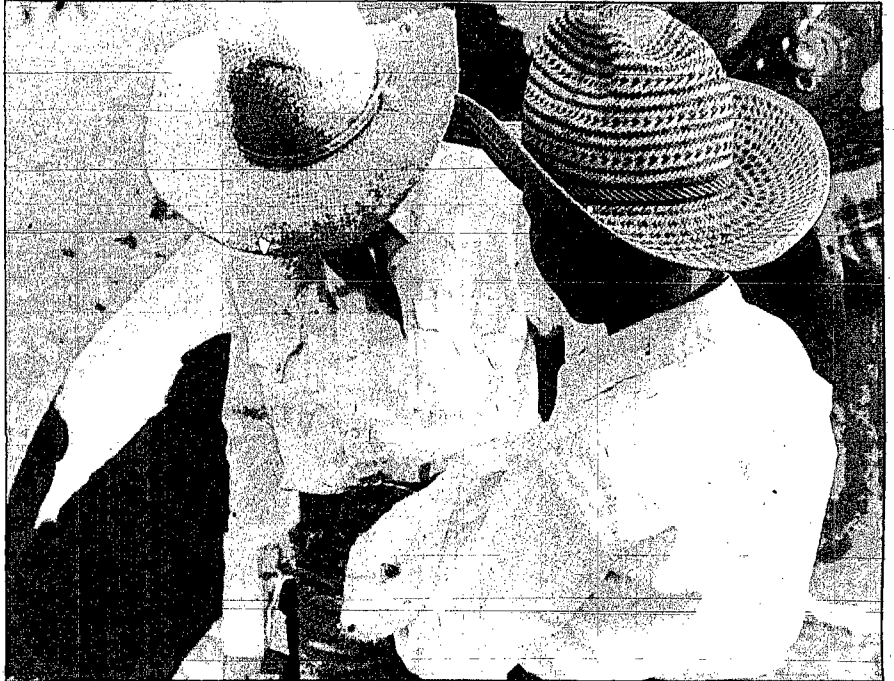

Again, the shoppers, or their spouses, must be present in a participating store to win.

PARTICIPATING stores include Arnie's Ford-Mercury-Associated Insurance, Ben Franklin's, Bill's, GW, Black Knight, Burger Barn, Cartier Lumber, Charlie's Refrigeration, Chrysler Center, Coyell Derby Diamond Center, Discount Furniture, El Toro Lounge and Ellingson-Motors.

Dixon County's Fair Finishes with Flair

DIXON COUNTY'S fairgoers may have fought rain and ruts during the first day of the annual event, but by Friday and Saturday — the last two days — things were looking brighter. Sunshine picked up spirits and the fans came back for more — more in the way of entertainment, livestock parades, tiny-tot tractor pulls and a demolition derby. Paula Hoyer, 9, top left, joined her fellow 4-Hers on a flatbed trailer loaded with kids, sheep, rabbits and chickens. Her prize-winning rooster kept quiet through the entire ordeal. Livestock fans, top right, peer over the grandstand review fence during Saturday afternoon's parade of animals. And, cowboy Shawn Meyer, 9, of Wakefield, took a moment to talk with a friend while hugging his big white rabbit. Jamie Mann, 4, above, strains at the pedals as she competes in the kiddie tractor pull in front of the grandstand Saturday afternoon. Larry and Liela Lawson, far left, of Wakefield rest at the foot of the fairgrounds flagpole while watching their daughters work their horses. Timothy Thomas, 8, of Newcastle, works hard convincing his lamb on the route to the water tank during a thirsty Saturday afternoon. Vonda Dempster of Dixon, left, scrubs down her dairy calf just before the livestock parade. By early Sunday morning, the Concord fairgrounds were all but deserted as memories of ribbons stirred in the heads of 4-H winners throughout the county.
