'Holocaust Revisited' Scheduled At College

Sam and Magda Fried of Omaha, survivors of Nazi concentration camps during World War II, will be the featured speakers for a program entitled "The Holocaust Revisited" at Wayne State College on Monday, Oct. 19.

The program, sponsored by the WSC Public Affairs Institute, is open to the public free of charge. It will be held in Ramsey Theatre beginning at 10 a.m. with a showing of "Nazi Concentration Camps," a film from the National Archives that contains actual footage of the camps.

Program director Allen O'Donnell, associate professor of political science at WSC, warns viewers that the footage contains many scenes of horror and indignity to human beings.

Eckstein

AFTER the film, Rabbi Yechiel Eckstein of the Chicago Anti-Defamation League will give an address regarding human dignity. Rabbi Eckstein is an historian of the Holocaust.

A panel forum is scheduled for 1 p.m. with Magda and Sam Fried and two people who helped liberate concentration camp prisoners at the end of the war. Time will be set aside for a question and answer period. Magda Fried was taken to the concentration camp at Auschwitz-Birkenau in 1943 at age 14. Sam Fried is also a survivor of Auschwitz, the first concentration camp built by the Nazis outside of Germany.

They met in her home town, the village of Svalava in Czechoslovakia, in 1946. They were married two years later and came to the United States and to Omaha in 1949. Sam is the president of Master Electronics, Inc., of Omaha, and the Frieds have three children. They have lived in Omaha since 1949.

SAM ESCAPED the concentration camp in 1945 when on a "death march" with other inmates. When Nazis opened fire on the helpless marchers, Sam ran into the woods and spent three months wandering the Carpathian Mountains before finding his way back to his home village.

Magda was detained until near the end of the war. One day, on another "death march," the Nazi guard stopped the women marchers and told them that from one direction approach Russian troops, and from another direction came American soldiers. "Take your choice," he told them. Then the guard disappeared.

The marchers at first feared a Nazi trick, and stood in formation, expecting the Nazis to open fire at any moment. Finally, they wandered off through the swamps and eventually came to a river. Starved and exhausted, they were unable to cross, but one of the women noticed some soldiers on the opposite side of the river.

They turned out to be American soldiers, who carried the women back to safety. They were lucky; they did not become part of the estimated 24 million prisoners who were killed or perished in the concentration camp.

City Gets Industrial Facts Book

The City of Wayne has received a supply of new Industrial Facts books compiled by local residents and Nebraska Public Power District.

The book was presented recently to Bob Jordan, president of Wayne Industries, by Robert Shively of Norfolk, director of energy applications for NPPD. With the help of local residents, compiled the detailed and up-to-date information on Wayne, which includes data on the city's economic, business, industrial, civic, human and physical assets and resources.

Among those working on the booklet were NPPD's economic data coordinator Ardith Behlen and Roger Toomey, executive vice president of the Wayne Chamber of Commerce.

NPPD officials and Wayne Industries plan to present the booklets to businesses and industries interested in the Wayne area.

The book contains information vital to industrial prospects. And, it outlines the city's recreational facilities, housing, communications, travel facilities, churches, schools, hospitals, municipal operations, utilities, labor, employment, and trade area.

Swinging into the Soybean Patch

LYLE JOHANSON, rural Wayne, combines soybeans in a field about 10 miles northeast of Wayne. The Wayne County farmer joined dozens of area operators who have begun the annual fall bean harvest. Some corn already has been picked in the county. Reports indicate it is too wet for storage and is being fed to livestock. Little rain and continued light frosts should speed the soybean harvest. Earlier this week, cloudy damp weather forced many combines to set idle in area fields. End-of-the-week sunshine restarted the harvest machines.

Hoskins Hammers Help Neighbor Construct A-Frame

By Randall Howell

Hoskins has it's first A frame. Nestled in a sturdy grove of elm and ash, the two story, wood frame structure is under construction on a half acre plot owned by Jim Freiburghouse.

And, before the snow flies, Freiburghouse hopes to be waited in from the weather while he, and his volunteer helpers, complete the interior of the house on the hill.

MORE THAN a dozen neighbors and friends have been helping the Hoskins man build the house, which on the east side of the village's Main Street extension between the business district and state Highway 35.

Overlooking part of Hoskins (including the ballpark) to the northeast, the 22 foot peak on the A frame's is still well below the tree tops that encircle it.

Freiburghouse bought the land from Ernest Strate, a Hoskins area farmer, and started building on the old farmstead sight "almost immediately."

STRATE STILL owns the farmland around the half-acre plot, but Freiburghouse finally has his building site, after years of wanting his home on the hill.

Ink on the contract was barely dry when neighbors and friends of Freiburghouse, a 47-year-old sheet metal worker at Hoskins Manufacturing, showed up with hammers and saws to begin building the A-frame.

"You can't beat friends like that," Freiburghouse said Monday, while he and Don Anderson, a neighbor and co-worker, began the first strip of rustic asphalt shingles.

ANDERSON AND Freiburghouse work on the house, which is nearly closed in, nearly every day after a full shift at Hoskins Manufacturing.

However, from time to time, an entire crew shows for big jobs, such as the Labor Day rafter raising.

"About six guys showed up to help us that day," said Freiburghouse, a Niobrara native who's lived in Hoskins nearly 12 years.

The 700-square-foot house is taking shape about two blocks north of Highway 35 on the crest of a hill where Freiburghouse poured a concrete slab for the base.

Other than clipping a few low branches, the former Nebraska farmer has left the building site as natural as it was when he bought it a few months ago.

"I'M GOING to cut some of the scrub trees, the little stuff," he explained. "But, the big ones are going to stay."

Freiburghouse and his house raising helpers hand dug the 8 by 20 foot basement under the east end of the A frame.

That, he said, will run under the bathroom and kitchen for all the plumbing.

Other Hoskins hammer swingers who have helped Freiburghouse and Anderson include Dan Robinson, Northeast Technical Community College instructor, Merle Behmer, also a Tech teacher and Hoskins area farmer, Frank Johnson, a student and part-time NTCC teacher, and Shorty Bruggeman of Hoskins Lumber and Hoskins Elevator.

ALSO, RICHARD (Hoodie) Krause, Hoskins area farmer, Tod Johnson of Hoskins Manufacturing, and Richard Doffin, owner of Hoskins Manufacturing.

Behmer's sons, Mike and Jeff, have pitched in to help on the house. And, Doffin's sons, Rich and Russell, also joined the work crew. And, a Winside friend, Tod Greunke, has helped.

After the rafters went up, the crew built the second floor and framed patio doors on the south side of the house.

Freiburghouse bought the building materials for a basic A-frame design, but has modified the plans to fit his own tastes.

The patio, for instance, is being built where a large picture window was blue-printed.

"I ALREADY had a big picture window on the west end of the house," Freiburghouse, a 1952 graduate of Niobrara High School, explained.

He also extended the house-plan to give him an A-frame with a "bit more length."

The plan gives Freiburghouse plenty of options for tailoring the interior to his own design. The kitchen, which will face the morning sun, is in the southeast corner of the house.

The bathroom will be in the northeast corner, just across from the kitchen and to the east of a stairway that leads to two second-floor bedrooms.

Freiburghouse plans to heat the house, which features open living-room space on the west end of the structure, with electricity.

"SOMEDAY SOLAR, maybe," he said. "But, for now it'll be electricity."

Howdy.
Well, the frost is on the pumpkin and the fodder's in the stock.
The morning sun is rising noticeably slower now. But, by evening, sundown's jumped the clock. Something's different about the quality of late-afternoon sunshine that can be found no other time of the year.

There's a clarity to the air and a richness to the colors that can keep me spellbound as dusk fades to the blackness of an October night.

I STILL TRY to count the stars at night. And, of course, autumn seems to put a diamond-sludded cloak over the prairie's heaven. With insect life stilled by the fall's cool nights, there's a kind of shouting silence that echoes just beyond earshot.

And, seeing my first breath each fall is still another experience for me. (I never trusted air I couldn't see.) I catch myself standing just outside the door for a few seconds each morning now. For some reason, I just have to check the air to see if I can catch the fog from my breath disappearing into the crispness of the October morning.

THE COUNTRYSIDE soon will be paper-bag brown. And, there will be nothing to stop the wind from here to the North Pole, except barbed-wire fences.

Sweaters, jackets and gloves already have come out of the storage closets around Wayne. And, the rosy-red cheeks and noses of children are everywhere.

Popcorn and apple cider start sounding mighty good again. And, hot chocolate season is almost upon us. One of the most exciting things I remember about the autumns of my childhood is the smell of hot chocolate... we called it cocoa... warming up on the stove as my bare feet hit the cold farmhouse floor.

WE HAD TO hit the barnyard pretty early each morning to get chores done before breakfast and school. The colder it got outside, the more cocoa my mother would be stirring in the kettle. A quick drink of my mother's cocoa, and you were ready to lick the world.

My brothers and I would get a quick cup of cocoa in while we were putting on our chore clothes. There was always some left over for breakfast... sort of an incentive to get the chores done quickly.

And, once in a great while, we'd get a big white marshmallow on top. I did chores many a morning with a warm cocoa glow in my stomach and a sticky marshmallow moustache on my face.

NOW, ONE of the saddest things that's happened to kids today is that they really don't know what it is like to have a real cup of cocoa.

This mix you buy today... well, most of the time it isn't even cocoa. Some kind of plastic chocolate. I presume it's enough to gag a goat.

And, then it's made with hot water. I can't stand the thought of that. I wouldn't walk across the room for a cup of hot plastic chocolate water. Would you?

We used genuine Hershey's cocoa at home. And, we used milk... not this near milk stuff. I mean, the milk we used was the right from the cow, thick and white kind.

AND, I REMEMBER that, after cooling in the cup for a few moments, hot cocoa would form a skin on top. At least, that's what we called it. Not everyone liked the skin. My sister, I recall, hated it. We'd often trade skins for marshmallows.

That is... until mother caught us dipping the cocoa skins out of our cups with our fingers. She'd always tell us to knock it off. So, we'd wait until she turned back to the stove where she'd be fixing breakfast. Then, quick as a wink, we'd finish the trade with cocoa-covered fingers and eagerly extended tongues. Double skins for double marshmallows was always a fair deal and a fun deal.

THE ONLY sad experience I've had with cocoa is that it took me nearly 30 years to discover how darn good it was mixed with peppermint schnapps.

That's my cure-all, autumn and winter cold remedy. I've been known to go looking for a cold just to see if the remedy still works. It's failed as a cure-all so few times, that I've often had to fight the urge to start my own cross-county, horse-and-wagon medicine show.

And, the times it did fail... well, I had so much fun being sick that I didn't care anyway. When it is important to be well again, and my cure-all isn't coming through the way it should, I always turn in desperation to hot wine and honey.

But, that's another story, for another day. Let's change the subject.

HAVE YOU noticed that part of the Old West tradition has reappeared in the farm belt? You're probably going to laugh when I tell you what it is.

Well, to my way of thinking, it's got to be the leather holster used by farmers and ranchers for a pair of pliers.

Instead of the old gunslinger's pearl-handled revolvers, or the old cowpoke's cowhorn-handled six-shooters, the modern-day hombre wears a pair of pliers slipped to his side.

The pliers, plain handled or plastic handled, are slipped into a leather holster that's held in place by a blue jean belt, instead of a gunbelt.

Now, stop laughing for a minute and just think about it.

TAKE A LOOK around you the next time you're in a meeting with farmers, or out shopping in a farm store, or in a farmers' bar.

Each modern-day farmer wears his pair of pliers a little bit different, just as the gunslingers of the Old West did to develop a style or an image.

You see some guys with the pliers holster high and tight right up at the beltline. Others will have the holster cocked so the handles are slightly forward for quick cross-arm draws.

Still others prefer to cock the handles back just a bit so the point of the pliers faces forward. That facilitates a straight arm draw, no doubt.

Then, once in a while, you'll see a guy who wears the holster right up front, where some Old West gunslingers would keep a second or third revolver holstered.

CERTAINLY, a closer look reveals the difference in pliers and holsters. I have no idea what the going rate is, but I've noticed the pliers style ranges from galvanized wire-cutter variety to the high shine of polished steel.

And, the holsters... well, there's a lot of difference there, too.

You can go with just plain leather, ranging from black to brown to tan, or add some fancy stitching and carving.

Some of the holsters are long, sleek looking carriers that protect the pliers. And, some of the deep holsters have the ends closed and snap straps at the top to keep the pliers in place.

Another style is the more common, low-cut, open-top, built for work holster.

OF COURSE, the way they are worn can be a dead giveaway on whether the modern-day cowboy is a right-hander or a southpaw. I've heard some... particularly those who would not be caught dead without their pliers... have a couple of holsters.

That way, they can carry their favorite pair of pliers with them to work, to town and to church on Sunday without it becoming a social blunder.

Now, the thing we have to start worrying about is pinch-outs at high noon on Main Street. Once that stuff starts, the next thing you know the law will be asking these guys to check their pliers at the saloon door.

Can you imagine the black-and-blue mess there would be if these modern-day pliers-slingers started squaring off to settle old grudges.

THERE'D BE no end to it. There's always a faster pincher around. And guys would be drifting in from all over the country to take on Wayne's fastest.

I'd make Gunslinger reruns look like a boy scout jamboree. In fact, I'm going to suggest something to prevent all that.

It seems to me, that a guy wouldn't be wearing a holstered pair of pliers if he didn't intend to use them someday against somebody.

To prevent that kind of thing from happening, I suggest that someone, somewhere organize the first annual pliers kick-draw and wire-cutting contest.

Any farmers' bar would do.

THE OBJECT would be to draw that pair of holstered pliers and cut a piece of No. 9 wire before the guy you'd be facing does it.

It'd be easy to do. Just face two pliers-slingers across the table from each other.

A foot-long chunk of No. 9 wire (or barbed wire, if you prefer) would be placed on the table in front of each outlaw.

No one would kick off the draw. They'd have to get on with it themselves, drawing on each other by instinct.

Someone would have to act as sheriff to decide who cut the wire first.

I'M SURE THE contest would release a lot of pent-up frustration and anger that would ordinarily develop into those sometimes fatal high-noon pinch-outs.

If a guy called you out, and you had your hardware with you, you'd just have to face him at the drawin' and cuttin' table.

Certainly, it wouldn't take long to establish a local top-gun. And, he'd have to handle that himself, or drift aimlessly over the northeast Nebraska prairie, always on the run from the pliers punks who'd be coming to town looking to make a name for themselves.

I'd rather see it happen that way than to get caught up in some anti-pliers movement that would deny farmers their constitutional right to bear a pair.

I'M CONVINCED that if you outlaw pliers, only outlaws will have pliers.

Then what would farmers do. Why, there wouldn't be a fence between here and the Rockies worth straddling.

And, you know as well as I do, that if the pliers-slingers don't handle their own problems, the government will step in with rules and regulations.

Next thing you know, you'll have to have a license just to own a pair. And, if you were ever convicted of a moving-tractor violation, you'd lose that license.

And, it would be the slammer, for sure. If you were ever caught committing a crime with a pair of pliers. The thought of it pinches my mind. Catch you next week...

4-H & the Future

National 4-H Week is here. It runs from Sunday, Oct. 4, to Saturday, Oct. 10. And, the 4-Hers in Wayne County, all 294 of them, will be celebrating the week with their fellow club members across the country. In Wayne County, 4-H dates back to the early 1920s. In fact, one of the pioneers on the program was Dr. William Hawkins, an Iowa veterinarian who moved to Wayne in 1921. He organized a 4-H livestock club in the county with a year. Much of the credit for starting girls in 4-H clubs goes to Mrs. Merle Roe, who lived near Carroll. She started with a sewing club in the early 1920s and by 1925 organized a poultry club. Today, 122 boys and 172 girls are involved in 4-H clubs throughout the county. Some 210 of those youngsters live on farms, but a strong 84 live in towns. With 27 clubs in the county, there are 151 4-H leaders — mostly parents who are actively interested in the program. Of those leaders, 61 are men and 90 are women. They are assisted by some 47 junior leaders — 18 young men and 29 young women. The 294 youngsters they work with are enrolled in 60 different projects. And, though those figures may make it appear that the county is saturated with 4-H clubs, one new club was formed this year. Eight of the county's clubs are strictly into livestock, and five clubs are strictly involved in home economics. Seven clubs are involved in home economics and livestock. Three clubs are involved in livestock and agriculture related projects. And, four clubs are involved in home economics and miscellaneous agricultural projects. No matter how you cut it, those figures underpin an impressive record of participation in Wayne County 4-H. What those figures don't show would fill several books. No one could begin to calculate the influence 4-H has had on youngsters who have grown to adulthood in Wayne since the early 1920s. No one could begin to measure the enrichment of parents and youngsters alike over 60 years of 4-H learning experiences. It takes little exploring to discover that 4-H in Wayne County is much more than ribbons and county fairs. It's become a way of life for many. And, it has touched the lives of many more. It's time to offer Wayne County 4-Hers a week-long salute for past deeds and future endeavors.

The Meat Market

"For the first time since the spring of 1974, there is a potential for large supplies and bearish prices for all meats — beef, pork, chicken and turkey," warns Don McDonnell, livestock specialist for Agri-Hedging, Chicago. "Livestock producers are quickly running out of profitable hedging opportunities," he adds. McDonnell is urging risk protection because he sees fourth quarter 1981 prices falling in the bearish price tide swelling during the first and second quarters of 1982. Agri-Hedging is affiliated with Top Farmers of America, a nationally known advisory organization. Top Farmers of America analysts and editors produce FarmFutures, a national business and marketing magazine, Top Farm Intelligence and Market Insight, a daily market advisory service delivered by telephone for AgriData Resources, Incorporated, the publisher. Analyst McDonnell notes that in the past when there has been an excess of one meat there has been a shortage of another. McDonnell's total meat supply warning comes on top of the recent hog and pig inventory report from USDA which shows the swine industry is poised for expansion. In fact, McDonnell foresees a bigger pork supply than indicated by the USDA report. The report shows, for example, the December/February 1982 farrowing will be 95 percent of a year ago, whereas McDonnell expects those farrowings to be at least 1 percent above year earlier figures. Such large farrowings in 1982 suggest that farmers will market cheap corn by raising and selling more hogs. That intention signals the start of a hog cycle expansion phase. Here is how McDonnell sees the meat supply situation: • Cattle — potential sporadic feedlot shortages, however, the 1980 calf crop was sufficient to insure a large supply. Because of high interest rates and favorable summer rains, many animals have been held back in lush pastures. These animals will be placed in feedlots when the price is favorable. • Hogs — the breeding herd has been understated by the USDA for the last six months. Hog numbers will be larger than anticipated in the September inventory report because of the larger breeding herd. • Broilers — the breeding flock is large and cheap corn prices will encourage production. Production increases will be especially heavy during October, November and December, a low broiler demand period. Thus, chain stores will "discount-feature" poultry, cutting into red meat sales. • Dairy — government cut-backs in dairy price support programs could encourage dairy herd liquidation, thus, increasing total slaughter. Such a trend, however, has not yet developed.

Nebraskans in Political Pothole

Congress May Ditch Highway Funds

Last week I spoke on the floor of the House in opposition to a federal highway funding allocation that, if adopted by Congress, will reduce Nebraska's share of interstate highway funds by more than 60 percent. The new allocation, which is part of the Federal Aid Highway Act of 1981, eliminates a provision that states with substantially completed interstate systems receive a minimum of one-half per cent of the interstate funds. This minimum was in part provided to protect states which do not have the advantage of large congressional delegations and important committee chairmanships. I strongly oppose these new efforts to undercut that protective mechanism, and I protest the inequitable treatment which a few states such as Nebraska will receive should this measure become law. While I recognize and support the need to refine the federal highway program and reduce federal expenditures, I do not believe that these efforts should be made largely at the expense of our smaller and less densely populated states. COAL SLURRY — A tentative agreement was reached recently between the Energy Transportation Systems, Inc. (ETSI) coal slurry pipeline company and South Dakota which will allow ETSI to purchase surplus Missouri River water from the Oahe Reservoir for use in transporting coal from the Wyoming coal fields. Plans call for the construction of a 288-mile water pipeline from the reservoir, located in central South Dakota, to eastern Wyoming, where the water will be mixed with crushed coal for transport to Arkansas. Understandably, the agreement creates great concerns in down-river states like Nebraska and it may prompt lawsuits. Previous plans required the drilling of several wells in eastern Wyoming to pump massive amounts of water from the Madison Formation which underlies portions of Wyoming, South Dakota, Nebraska, and Montana. This enormous withdrawal of water would have had a severe adverse effect upon groundwater supplies in western Nebraska. Under the terms of the agreement, Madison Formation water may still be used if sufficient water is not available from the Oahe.

The coal slurry pipeline issue is before the House Interior and Insular Affairs Committee, of which I am a member, and I continue to have objections against the use of either surface or groundwater reserves for the transportation of coal. As important as water is to the economic health and productivity of our state, I believe that the precedents established are likely to be detrimental to Nebraska; therefore, I will continue to raise this issue in the committee and before the House. There are alternatives to the use of water as a slurry agent that are now being suggested. EDUCATION COMMISSION — I am pleased to report the appointment of Nebraska Commissioner of Education Anne Campbell to the National Commission on Education and Excellence in Education. Campbell has served Nebraska ably and brings valuable experience and skill to this commission assignment.

Marty is son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mahler. Other candidates were Carmin Lubberstedt, Shelly Hingst, Bruce Malcom, and Leonard Wood.

Bulldog Wishbone Tackles Winside

Coleridge's wishbone offense ground out 278 yards to hand Winside a 23-6 loss Friday night in inter-division play of the Lewis & Clark Conference.

The loss dropped Winside to 2-3 but the Wildcats remain 1-1 in West Division play in five games. Coleridge has lost only to Osmond and sports a 10 record in Central Division play.

Statistics were pretty even but Winside had trouble pushing the ball across the goal line. The Wildcats blew three first half scoring opportunities inside the Coleridge 10.

"IF WE CAN'T push the ball across from inside the 10, then we're in a lot of trouble and that's what happened," said Winside coach Dennis Gonnerman. "Coleridge ran the wishbone well and controlled the ball. They played a good ball game and we didn't."

Winside had 166 yards rushing but John Hawkins had the majority of that total with 27 carries for 127 yards. He entered the game as the leading all purpose runner and leading scorer in the Lewis & Clark Conference. John Meierhenry completed 6 of 12 passes for 76 yards. Leading receiver was Hawkins with two catches for 22 yards.

The lone Winside touchdown came in the fourth quarter with the Cats trailing 16-0. Doug Jaeger snagged a pass from Meierhenry and scored from 10 yards out. The gap was closed to 16-6 but the hosts added a final TD on a breakaway run.

The game was scoreless until Coleridge's Dean Felber scored on an eight yard run in the second quarter. Byron Kalin added a one yard TD in the third period for a 16-0 advantage. After Winside scored in the fourth quarter, the hosts came right back with a 32 yard touchdown run by Kirk Olsen.

DEFENSIVE LEADERS for Winside were Barry Bowers with 12 unassisted tackles and three assists, Scott Janke with nine tackles and Jaeger with six tackles. Jim Krajcek had both fumble recoveries.

"They controlled the ground game and ran the clock down. We only touched the ball twice in the third quarter and twice in the fourth," Gonnerman stated. "They controlled the ball and moved it into our territory. We had opportunities to score but couldn't take advantage of them."

The Wildcats will take their 1-1 division record into action at 8 p.m. Friday against Wynot. The Winside homecoming game will be preceded by a volleyball match.

WSC Spikers Tripped Up

The Wayne State College volleyball team got off to a slow start in the Midland quadrangular Wednesday and never got on track, losing all three matches.

The spikers traveled to Topoka for a CSIC triangular with Washburn, Pittsburg State and Fort Hayes State on Oct. 23. Wayne State takes on a pair of tough non-conference opponents on Tuesday, at Seward against Concordia and Hastings. CSIC foe Missouri Western visits Wednesday in a 6 p.m. match in Rice Auditorium, and Chadron State and Bellevue are at Wayne on Oct. 9-10.

At Midland, the Lady Wildcats fell to Peru State in the opener by 7-15 and 14-16. Host Midland charged to 10-15 and 7-15 wins.

While Northwestern Iowa put the finishing touches on a sub-par night with 13-15 and 2-15 decisions.

Sophtomore Ann Montag turned in a good effort, scoring nine points and adding eight downed spikes. Lori Christensen, a freshman, added nine points and six downed spikes.

Freshman Beth Erickson led with nine downed spikes and scored six points. Junior Lois Kaminski had eight downed spikes and seven points, while senior Deb Poehling had eight downed spikes also. Wynot Drops Wakefield

The Wakefield Trojans were handed a 15-8, 15-1 road loss by Wynot's successful volleyball team, Thursday night.

Leading setter was Susan Baker with 14 good sets in 14 tries. Five were set-for-aces. Lana Erb had four good serves in four tries.

Wakefield coach Mary Schroeder said her team played "a mediocre game against a pretty good team." The Trojans will now take a 3-6 record into action tomorrow (Tuesday) against Osmond on the Wakefield court. "I'm still looking for the right combination of players," said Schroeder.

Wynot won the B match 11-4, 11-9. Exhibition at Nordstrand Gallery

Street Painter Conducts Art Session

New York "street painter" Myron Heise drew nearly 50 participants to an art workshop called "Drawing from the Right Side of the Brain" at Wayne State College last week.

Heise, a Bancroft native who divides his time between New York City and Nebraska, is currently exhibiting some of his works at Wayne State College, in the Nordstrand Visual Arts Gallery at WSC. His works can be viewed free of charge on weekdays through Oct. 16.

IN ADDITION to his schedule of painting and teaching in New York, Heise is serving as artist in residence at the Nelhardt Center in Bancroft. Born three miles north of Bancroft, Heise plans to return to Nebraska next summer to paint my roots. "I'm proud of my Nebraska roots," he said. "I have found that one summer to paint my roots is not enough. This summer I concentrated on painting places — next summer I'll do more people and night scenes."

Heise, who has lived in New York for 15 years, said "I feel it's an advantage to have two homes. New York is the center of the media and art world, but Bancroft represents the majority. I would eventually like to bring other (New York) artists to the area," said Heise, who plans to return to New York shortly after his exhibition at Wayne State closes.

CHECK with US!

By Betty Addison

Q. When I first heard about NOW accounts I thought checking accounts paying interest was a good idea. However, I haven't opened one yet and was waiting to see how they do. How are the NOW accounts doing?

A. According to a recent survey done by a major financial service company, NOW accounts are doing even better than expected. Fifteen percent of the nation's savings associations were surveyed and the findings indicate many more of the interest-paying checking accounts were opened than was expected during the first four months of their existence. Also, the survey confirmed that many of the persons opening NOW accounts are new customers — persons who had never before had a checking account. Perhaps to answer your question more directly, all indications point to customers who are very happy with their NOW accounts — not only from the standpoint of the interest paid, but also with the service in general.

WSC Radio Station Back on Airwaves

KWSC FM, Wayne State College's radio station is back on the air, and in the words of station manager, Scot Sipes, "is hotter than ever."

YOU CAN EARN MORE THAN 15% on your money when you buy a home! It's true — homes have gone up an average of 15% per year in the last 5 years! And unlike interest, gains on real estate is deferred and taxed at the capital gains rate. And you can buy a Sunrise Townhouse Condo at last year's prices. But don't wait! Builders and developers must pay interest too, and the prices must go up. Yes, you can actually save by buying now when interest rates are high and construction costs are low. And you own a Sunrise Townhouse just like any home or real estate, except:

1. You save on the purchase price because construction costs are lower.
2. You don't worry about maintenance and insurance.
3. You don't worry about snow and lawn service.
4. The exterior real estate is owned jointly by all owners.
5. You are always a member of the Homeowners Association.
6. Condos have a better tax advantage for those that need every deduction you can get.

Each 1180 sq. foot townhouse has oak cabinets and trim, dishwasher, main floor laundry, private patio, central air, gas heat, a complete energy efficient insulation package, and are situated on the highest hill in Wayne, next to the college and hospital. The Maryland subdivision is a prestigious place to live, and an "easy to sell someday" type of location that will protect your investment for years to come.

So don't put your money in the bank and pay taxes on the interest. You not only defer the tax on real estate appreciation, you only pay at the capital gains rates (about 30% of the regular rate).

Student Society Honored

The Wayne State College Delta Chapter of Pi Gamma Mu, International Honor Society in Social Science, has been selected by the International Pi Gamma Mu Board of Trustees to appear on its National Roll of Distinction, the highest ranking a local chapter can achieve.

This is the second year in a row that the WSC organization has been ranked among the nation's top Pi Gamma Mu chapters. Last year the group was included in the Honor Society's Roll of Merit.

Membership on both the Roll of Distinction and Roll of Merit is based on a chapter's activities during the previous school year.

Criteria emphasized by the trustees include chapter organization and participation, local initiative in developing new activities, and programs, effectiveness of the chapter on its campus in promoting scholarship, initiation of members and financial responsibility.

FOUNDED IN 1924, Pi Gamma Mu now has 130,000 members in 160 active chapters. The society's primary goal is the pursuit of excellence in the social sciences among undergraduate and graduate students.

Since its reactivation in 1978, the WSC chapter has become a very effective group in the activities of the Social Science Division. In addition to presenting speaker programs, the chapter arranges for and presents an annual faculty/student banquet. Members also serve on division committees and provide student leadership for the division.

Chapter officers last year were President Dennis Havranek of Yutan and Vice President Dave Shively of Norfolk. The 1981-82 officers include President Lynne Young, senior from Oakland, Iowa and Vice President Deb Gulnara, senior from Omaha. Faculty advisors are Dr. Jean Karlen and Doug Taber.

court on the west side of the village since his move to Hoskins from Norfolk nearly a dozen years ago, said he didn't know when he'd be able to move into his new A-frame.

Come back in a few weeks, though, and we'll have it all framed in," he said. Though the house is just outside the village limits, it is on the town's water line.

I had to put in my own septic tank," he said, pausing between shingles.

Freiburghouse, who enjoys fishing and camping, said he built the A-frame "just to be different."

ACKNOWLEDGING that "it fits the location," he said "I've seen a lot of them along the river and I liked them."

Freiburghouse moved to his Hoskins trailer home after joining Hoskins Manufacturing in the early 1970s. He had worked at an egg plant in Norfolk for about a year before the move.

In 1969, he ended his years of farming in the Niobrara area with an auction sale.

The son of the late Ray and Clara Freiburghouse, he left his boyhood farm in the Niobrara area soon after high school for a job in a plywood plant in the State of Washington.

Returning to Nebraska "after a couple of years," Freiburghouse farmed with his father and older brother, Bill.

When his brother returned from military service, Freiburghouse left the family farm and started farming on his own.

His brother continues to operate the family farm. His sister, Peg, lives at Niobrara.

After the auction sale in 1969, he moved to Norfolk, then to Hoskins, where he staked the land on the hilltop—a hilltop he will soon call home.

WSC Offers Workshops On Careers

Wayne State College will offer a series of nine career development workshops for area educators this fall.

The workshops are being offered by WSC through the support of a grant by the Vocational Guidance Division of the Nebraska Department of Education.

The workshops are broken down into three separate areas: teachers, counselors and administrators.

FOR TEACHERS, there will be a series of four workshops addressing child development as it relates to the world of work. Each workshop is directed towards a different level in child development.

And will cover curriculum in relation to career development, instructional strategies, and materials.

The first session for teachers of grade levels K-3 is to be held Oct. 13. The second, for grade levels 4-6 is Oct. 15. The session for junior high teachers will be Nov. 12, and secondary English teachers may attend a session on Nov. 19.

In the area of counseling, there will be three topical workshops designed to help the counselors understand the importance of career development.

Oct. 1 was the date for a session on facilitating the decision making process to help the counselors understand their roles in student's career development.

On Nov. 17 another workshop on the subject of vocational assessment will take place, and a workshop on the counselor as a career consultant is scheduled for Dec. 10.

Nov. 5 is the date for administrators, counselors, and school board members to attend a session on programming for career development. The workshop addresses the benefits of career education and related time and money problems.

All sessions will be held in the Birch Room of the Wayne State College Student Center from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

There is no fee for attending any of the sessions, but those wishing to attend must register for the sessions by October 1, 1981. One graduate credit may be earned by participating in three of the workshops. Tuition for credit will be $19 for Nebraska residents and $34 for non residents.

2 Join Teaching Staff At St. Mary's School

Two new instructors have joined the teaching staff at St. Mary's Catholic School in Wayne.

Patricia Ruther, 28, a Page native, has been appointed head teacher at the 26 student elementary school.

Also joining the staff is Wanda Schmidt, 39, a Wayne native, has been appointed second and third grade teacher.

THE TWO new staffers join Ellen Imdieke of Wayne, who teaches kindergarten and first grade at the school, Hank Overin, physical education instructor, and Sheri McCright, school secretary.

In addition to being head teacher, Ruther teaches fourth, fifth and sixth grades at the school.

A 1971 graduate of Norfolk Catholic High School, Ruther earned a bachelor of arts degree from Creighton University in 1975.

After earning her degree, Ruther worked in the Atkinson school system for four years, spending two years in the district's junior high school library and two years as a rural school teacher.

RUTHER earned her elementary education certificate from Wayne State College during summer school and night classes.

Last year, she was a graduate assistant in education at WSC, earning her master's in elementary education degree in August.

Schmidt, who grew up on a farm northeast of Concord, has returned to Wayne after a 12 year stint in Moorhead, Minn., where she did substitute teaching and worked in libraries at both the college and junior high school level.

She has attended summer sessions at Wayne State College and Luther Junior College in Wahoo.

SCHMIDT has taught elementary school classes in Fremont, Tacoma, Wash., and Sioux Falls.

Moving from Moorhead to Wayne in February of 1980, Schmidt worked at the Wayne Care Centre as a physical therapist and aide until her appointment to the St. Mary's school staff this summer.

She has two daughters, Beth, 16, and Sara, 12.

Professor's Music is Published

Wayne State College music professor Antony Garlick has had two sets of musical compositions accepted for publication.

The compositions to be published by the Seesaw Music Corporation of New York City, are "A Book of Joseph," 10 pieces for unaccompanied violin, and "The Peter Duos," five pieces for unaccompanied violin and viola.

Both sets of music were written with a specific person in mind, Garlick said. "A Book of Joseph" was written for Joseph Koob, interim instructor of music at Wayne State in 1979, and "The Peter Duos" were written for Garlick's brother, Peter.

The compositions were personalized in that each title within the set begins with a letter from the person's first name.

Garlick states that "these are practical pieces for people who are seeking some diversity in what they play."
