Senior Center Director Forced Out

The director of the Wayne Senior Citizens Center has resigned under pressure, ending a sometimes stormy 12 year career in that position.
Jociell Bull, 54, of Wayne, signed a letter of resignation prepared by Phil Kloster, city administrator, during a 4 p.m. meeting Friday at City Hall.
A copy of the letter, addressed to Kloster and signed by Bull, was obtained by The Wayne Herald Tuesday — a day after the Wayne City Council appointed a new director during a special Monday meeting.

COUNCIL MEMBERS have approved the appointment of Georgia Janssen, 34, who lives 8½ miles west of Wayne, as the new director effective Monday, Oct. 26.
Janssen, who was the center's mini bus driver, has assisted the former director since joining the operation in the summer of 1979.
Bull, the first and only Wayne Senior Citizens Center director until Janssen's appointment, lost the directorship for the second time, just five days short of the organization's fifth anniversary at base-ment headquarters in City Hall.

The center moved from a Main Street building, now occupied by Jech Agency, to City Hall on Oct. 21, 1976.
"IT WAS HER decision to retire," Kloster told The Wayne Herald Tuesday. "There's a lot of pressure on the director of the center and the pressure has been getting to her more and more."
Bull said she went to the Friday meeting at Kloster's second floor City Hall office. "We had a nice little chat," she explained. "Then he said he had met with the Council that they had decided I should be replaced."
"I had the choice of resigning or getting fired," she continued. "Of course, after 12 years, what was I going to do? I resigned."
City Council action had been expected on Bull's tenure as director since an executive session dealing with problems at the center was called several weeks ago.

"THEY HAD THE letter prepared," Bull explained. "All I had to do was sign it. And they had a nice little thing prepared thanking me for my service to the senior citizens of Wayne."
The city prepared resignation letter, on blank stationery, carried the Oct. 16 date. The effective date, also on the typewritten letter, was Oct. 16.
Bull's name and title were typed below a line, where she placed her signature.
"This memo will serve as my notice of resignation as director of the Wayne Senior Citizens Center effective immediately," states the letter.
Accompanying the resignation memo was another city prepared letter addressed to Bull, dated Oct. 16.
TYPED ON City of Wayne letterhead stationery, it was titled "acceptance of letter of resignation."
Signed by Kloster, the letter states: "The City of Wayne hereby accepts your letter of resignation dated Oct. 16, 1981."

"Your years of dedicated service to the senior citizens of Wayne is appreciated and will long be remembered by the citizens of Wayne."
"Best wishes in your future endeavors."
Contacted Tuesday night while she was cleaning out her desk at the center, Bull said:
"I feel real bad hurt... I'm really hurt. I really feel I got a raw deal. I've worked so hard to build up the center. I've given my all. They had so many needs that had to be met. I should have gotten out before this."
ORVILLE SHERRY, president of the Wayne Senior Citizens Association, was named by the Council as acting director until Janssen takes over the directorship Monday.
"Jociell decided to throw in the towel after running the agency since day one," Kloster explained. "She decided it was time for her to sit down and relax."
Bull, a Wichita Falls, Texas, native, said she has no plans to stay idle. Without severance pay and only a check due for accumulated vacation days, the former director said she plans to "go job hunting" as soon as possible.

"I had one hour notice," she said. "We sat down at 4 p.m. and it was done by 5 p.m. Eldon (her husband) and I were just crushed. I couldn't have handled it over these 12 years if it hadn't been for his help."
BULL, WHO WAS fired and rehired as director several years ago, has also been reprimanded on more than one occasion for conduct on the job.
"I stayed here too long," Bull said of her sometimes stormy career at the center. "Now, I'm going to clean my house good. Then, I'm going to do something entirely different."
"I've given enough to the elderly," she added. "I'll still be an advocate, though."
The veteran director said one of her most rewarding experiences at the center involv-

Commission Selects Wayne County Sheriff

Wayne County has a new sheriff.
He's Scotty Thompson, 60, of rural Wayne. The 27-year veteran of law enforcement was sworn in by Wayne County Associate Judge Luverne Hilton at 4:15 p.m. Tuesday — just over an hour after he was selected by the Wayne County Board of Commissioners.
Thompson, who took the sheriff's oath at the Wayne County Courthouse in the office of the Wayne County Judge, had been chief deputy under former Sheriff Don "Butch" Welbie, who resigned the post Oct. 1.
APPEARING IN uniform before Judge Hilton, Thompson raised his right hand and repeated the oath in the presence of Wayne County Clerk Greta Morris, Wayne County Treasurer Leon Meyer and Diane Mueller, county court clerk and former Sheriff's Department employee.
Thompson, a Wayne native, had served as acting sheriff since Welbie's resignation. One of his first acts as sheriff was to appoint LeRoy Janssen of Wayne, a six-year veteran of the department, to the post of chief deputy.
Janssen, 27, had applied for the sheriff's position along with Thompson, Sgt. Melvin Lamb of the Wayne Police Department and William Watson, a Wayne businessman and former Nebraska State Police patrolman.

Scotty Thompson

THE COUNTY commissioners split 2 to 1 on the final vote to select Thompson.
Commissioners Kenneth Eddle of Carroll and Merlin Beiermann of rural Wayne voted to appoint Thompson, who joined the department in 1966.
Commission Chairman Gerald Pospisil of rural Wayne voted against Thompson's appointment.
"You win some and you lose some," Pospisil explained Tuesday night.

"Thompson wasn't my preference."
Pospisil said the vote did not signal that there was "any friction" among commissioners regarding Thompson's appointment.
He described it as a "matter of personal preference." Despite his dissenting vote, the chairman said Thompson would get the backing of the entire board in his new duties as sheriff.
COMMISSIONERS conducted a personal interview with each of the four candidates.

SkyMed to Start Wayne Air-Ambulance Service

DR. WILLIS WISEMAN of the Wayne Family Practice Group takes a look inside the SkyMed air-ambulance helicopter, a jet-powered Bell Long Ranger, minutes after it landed at Providence Medical Center Hospital at 9:10 a.m. Wednesday. With Wiseman are Omaha nurses Linda Sherman and Kathy Wright, who were aboard the helicopter along with John Boone of the University of Nebraska Medical Center. Boone was representing five Omaha hospitals that have agreed to use Skymed, a 24-hour emergency helicopter service offered by Midland Helicopter Inc., Omaha. Skymed was on the ground for about an hour to allow Wayne hospital and medical personnel time to examine the on-board medical equipment. Skymed will be available for service in the Wayne area starting Monday. Hospitals involved in the cooperative air-ambulance venture include Bishop Clarkson Memorial Hospital, Childrens Memorial Hospital, Immanuel Medical Center, Methodist Hospital and the UNL Medical Center.

Public Affairs Institute Panelists Recall Personal Horror of Concentration Camps

By Randall Howell
"Never again."
He said the words firmly, resolutely.
"Never... again."
He repeated them, his right hand reaching, adding the declarative punctuation.
Nazi concentration camp survivor Sam Fried said it, and he meant it.
It was part of his response to a question from one of the more than 1,800 persons who jammed Wayne State College's Rice Auditorium Monday to take part in "Holocaust Revisited."
FRIED, 55, an Omaha businessman, was one of four panelists participating in the afternoon portion of the day-long program — sponsored by the WSC Public Affairs Institute.
The program, which drew more than 1,200 high school juniors and seniors from 28 schools in Nebraska, Iowa and South Dakota, featured a National Archives film, "Nazi Concentration Camps," a guest speaker and panel of prisoners and liberators.

Fried, president of Master Electronics, Omaha, was joined by his wife, Magda, who also was held prisoner in Nazi concentration camps.
Other panelists were the Rev. Norbert Johnson, pastor of the First Covenant Church of Omaha, and Hollis Limprecht, editor of "Midlands Magazine." Both were young soldiers with U.S. Armed Forces that liberated Dachau concentration camp prisoners during the final days of World War II.
FRIED'S "never again" declaration, echoed the program's theme, which was hammered home again and again

throughout the day beginning with a late-morning address by Rabbi Yechiel Eckstein, director of the Chicago Anti-Defamation League.
Eckstein's remarks, which focused on post-holocaust Jewish metamorphosis, followed two showings of the National Archives film to a packed Ramsey Theater.
"We were pleased with the program, particularly the turnout. It was the largest ever for an institute program," said Allen O'Donnell, director of programs for the institute, author and associate professor of political science at WSC.
"We never thought that this would attract that kind of a crowd," he added. "We can't explain it, either. But, we're happy about it."
O'Donnell said the size of the audience at past institute programs had never forced a move to Rice Auditorium.
THE PROGRAM not only drew newspaper, radio and television coverage, but also invited audience participation with question-and-answer sessions after the personal presentations.
Originally scheduled for a single showing, the National Archives film presentation was changed to the double feature last week after high-school student response to the program exceeded the seating capacity of Ramsey Theater.
More than 800 filled the theatre for the 9 a.m. showing of "Nazi Concentration Camps," a U.S. Armed Forces film showing, in graphic detail, the death-camp horrors as Allied troops liberated Nazi prisoners.

At 10 a.m., more than 1,000 crowded the theatre for a standing-room-only rerun of the film before Rabbi Eckstein's 11 a.m. address in Rice Auditorium.
ATTENDED BY high school and college students, the program also attracted dozens of adults, included a strong senior-citizen representation.
After a noon lunch break, which crowded the college cafeteria, line and forced the addition of a special "lamburger line" in the Student Center's north dining room, the panelists presentation began.
Fried opened the afternoon session with a recounting of his experiences at Auschwitz concentration camp, where he was taken in 1943 at the age of 18.
"I survived for only one reason: Nazi Germany lost the war," he explained to an audience hushed by the horror of his story.

THE OMAHA businessman recalled turning himself in to the Nazis "after watching the parents of my friend breaking into my house."
Fried, who watched his parents being marched away by Nazis, said he knew he had no place to go, nowhere to hide.
"It was the greatest disappointment in my life," he added, explaining that he was taken to a detention camp in a cattle train that traveled for days and days.
"Fried arrived at Auschwitz in the early morning hours" and recalled seeing barbed wire and search lights. He also recalled the smell.
"We could smell a strong odor," he said. "It was the strongest thing. It was instant fear. It was something unknown."

'Hunger for Justice' Author

Rural America Faces Uncertain Future

By LaVon Beckman

Jack Nelson

Photography: LaVon Beckman

Although there are signs of hope, it's difficult to be optimistic about rural America, said "Hunger for Justice" author Jack Nelson during a program Tuesday evening at Wayne State College.

Nelson, who has been involved in food, land and hunger-related issues the past 10 years, spoke to a small group of about 25 community residents, pastors and students.

A GRADUATE of St. Olaf College in Minnesota, Nelson received his master of divinity degree from Union Theological Seminary in New York and has traveled extensively in poverty stricken countries throughout the world.

BEFORE his travels to hunger stricken countries, Nelson said he knew nothing about hunger and had even less knowledge of the crisis of American agriculture.

NELSON blamed large corporations and the United States government for many of the hunger-related problems facing foreign countries, as well as millions of Americans.

The speaker noted that many countries dominated by outside powers have seen their economic situations shift dramatically.

"Despite desperate hunger problems of their own," said Nelson, "countries such as Costa Rica continue to be large exporters of agricultural commodities such as beef."

"THE justification," said Nelson, "is that these countries can earn the money needed for development."

Nelson defined that development as providing the maximum amount to those people who already have the purchasing power.

NELSON TOLD persons attending Tuesday night's program that the U. S. for a long time has shaped its food policy in underdeveloped countries for the purpose of getting rid of agricultural surplus and creating future markets.

As a result, he said, local producers in underdeveloped countries have been undercut and those governments have used the money from exports to increase industrial development rather than agricultural development.

NELSON criticized the U. S. government, saying it sees the world's hunger problem as an opportunity to reign.

"We've created a food dependency," he said, adding that former Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butts once referred to food dependency in underdeveloped countries as a weapon.

The U. S. aggravates the hunger problem with its military policy," said Nelson, predicting that Guatemala will explode in a very short time.

Nelson said that a tremendous amount of America's resources are going to the military sector — creating an askew priority.

"The elite weapons go to the elite countries to suppress their own people."

Nelson said that during 1975 and 1976, the United States sent $25 billion of military equipment to underdeveloped countries.

NELSON stressed that there are two powerful myths Americans must overcome.

The first, he said, is that the United States can throw more and more money into military spending and still feel secure.

The second myth, he said, is that America is the world's bread basket and that we are a food secure nation.

"AMERICA'S farmers are facing a major crisis in agriculture," stressed Nelson, who outlined several crisis situations facing today's farmers.

Nelson said one of his major concerns is the decline of family farms in America.

He said current government statistics show that the U. S. has lost more than half of its family farms in the past 30 years, and continues to lose 10 to 20 thousand family farms per week.

Nelson said government studies also suggest that the way to attack today's farm problems is to eliminate one third of all family farms within the next five years.

Latest predictions by the U. S. Department of Agriculture show that by the year 2,000 it will take $2 million to enter farming, and that one percent of the farms will produce 50 percent of the farm products.

"SKY ROCKETING costs and low farm prices have led to tremendous farm indebtedness," said Nelson.

"Because of our current economic situation, farmers are being forced to get larger and larger while at the same time going deeper and deeper into debt."

"It's a vicious cycle that forces farmers to think of changing from chemical to organic farming methods."

NELSON SAID another crisis facing farmers is rural unemployment and rural decay.

Studies, he said, show that every time six family farmers go out of business, one downtown businessman closes down.

He said urban unemployment also is related to the agricultural crisis.

"Where do these people go when they leave the farm?" asked Nelson. "They migrate into the cities," especially in the underdeveloped countries."

RIISING FOOD prices for corporate gain also are a great concern to today's farmers, said the speaker.

The average chicken travels 1,800 miles to market," he laughed while at the same time pointing out that America's food system is the least efficient in the world in terms of energy use.

"For every $2 we spend to grow food," said Nelson, "we spent $1 just to move it around."

Corporate gain, he said, has resulted in Americans being overcharged at least $16 million dollars each year for food.

NELSON said farmers should also be concerned of the loss of farm land to other developments.

"Four square miles of prime agricultural land are lost in the U. S. every day for other development purposes."

MUCH MORE farm land is being lost due to soil erosion and destruction of water resources, said Nelson.

In Iowa, he said, studies show that for every bushel of corn produced, farmers are losing two bushels of top soil.

"We're losing somewhere between four and five billion tons of top soil every year," he added.

Nelson said although much top soil is lost, because of water runoff and wind erosion, farmers have substituted chemical fertilizers and pesticides for care of the soil.

Nelson added that water, not oil, is the most precious liquid in the world.

"We're seeing a severe depletion of the water table because of improper irrigation methods," said Nelson, who also faulted large corporations for dumping 77 billion pounds of toxic waste every year.

NELSON, who admitted he has no quick and easy solutions, said Americans are faced with two choices.

"We can know what we know and run away," he said, "or we can know what we know and commit ourselves to learn more and take responsible action."

8 Friendly Faces at WSC

By Kent Probst
Wayne State SID

It's been said that enthusiasm wins ball games. Usually that is in regards to the enthusiasm of the players, but if the 1981-82 Wayne State College cheerleaders have anything to say about it, fans can expect plenty of success from WSC teams this year.

Serving as cheerleaders this academic year are co-captains Beth Pierce and Shelly Lewis, and Deb Allington, Lisa Decena, Judy Glackin, Tami Mitchell, Cindy Tomes, and Jane Wurtele.

The squad is selected during tryouts every spring by a panel of judges made up of athletes, coaches, former cheerleaders, and others. They practice several times each week throughout the year.

THEY LEAD CHEERS at all home football and men's and women's basketball games. In addition, they also attend several away games each season.

Beth Pierce is a senior from Rosalie. She is a 1978 Rosalie High School graduate and served as a cheerleader for three years at RHS along with three years serving Wayne State.

A genuine "sports nut," she participated in track, basketball, volleyball and softball in high school and takes part in intramural football, volleyball, basketball, track and softball at WSC. The daughter of Donald Pierce of Sioux Rapids, Iowa and Rosemary Pierce of Rosalie, Beth is a home economics and physical education major who enjoys jogging, rackets, sewing, bicycling, and gymnastics.

Shelly Lewis is a senior special education and health and physical education major from Norfolk. A Norfolk Central Catholic graduate in 1978, she was a junior and senior high cheerleader as well as a three year cheerleader at WSC.

SHE PARTICIPATED in track and volleyball in high school and also served as a student manager for the boys athletic teams. She lists "all sports" as a hobby along with reading magazines, and participates in intramurals at WSC. She is the daughter of Bud and Mary Jane Lewis of rural Norfolk.

Deb Allington, the daughter of Bill and Marilyn Allington of rural Columbus, is a sophomore at WSC. She is a 1980 graduate of Columbus Lakeview High School where she served as a cheerleader her junior and senior years.

She was a freshman cheerleader at WSC last year. Deb was a four year participant in volleyball, basketball and track at Lakeview and takes part in intramural sports at WSC. A physical education major, she claims to enjoy camping and all sports.

Lisa Decena is a sophomore from Sioux City where she graduated from North High School in 1980. A former high school cheerleader, she also led cheers last year for the Wildcats. A former high school track and basketball participant, she is the daughter of Frank and Bev Decena of Sioux City. She is a business major and another participant in intramurals at WSC and enjoys playing cards, reading and volleyball.

JUDY GLACKIN, a native of Marcus, Iowa and a 1980 grad of Marcus Community Schools, is a sophomore at Wayne State. A second year cheerleader at WSC, she was a high school cheerleader also. She enjoys music and dancing as well as sports, and plans to go to airline school in the future. She is the daughter of Joseph and Alice Glackin of Marcus.

Tami Mitchell is a senior elementary education major from Waltham. She led cheers at Waltham High for three years until her graduation in 1978 and is a three year cheerleader at WSC. A high school volleyball and track participant, the daughter of Wayne and Elaine Mitchell of Macy enjoys listening to music and reading as well as sports.

Cindy Tomes came the longest distance to lead cheers at Wayne State, all the way from Plattsmouth. A 1980 Plattsmouth High graduate, she is majoring in home economics at Wayne State.

She is in her first year as a varsity cheerleader at Wayne State, but served as a cheerleader her junior and senior years at Plattsmouth and took part in sports her freshman and sophomore years there. She is the daughter of Frank and Sonia Tomes of Plattsmouth and is involved in intramurals and the Home Ec club at WSC.

Jane Wurtele is the only WSC cheerleader who didn't serve on her high school varsity squad. A 1980 graduate of Norfolk High, she is the daughter of Jon and Sally Wurtele of Norfolk. She is in her second year as a WSC cheerleader and is a member of the Kappa Delta Gamma sorority at Wayne State.

A high school volleyball and basketball player, she is active in intramural sports at WSC. She is a business administration major who enjoys bike riding, water skiing and running.

Wayne Frosh Finish 4-0 For Season

An awesome defense scored two touchdowns as Wayne's ninth grade football team clobbered West Point CC 34-0, Tuesday. The victory ended Wayne's season with a 4-0 record.

Wayne's first touchdown was scored in the first quarter when Kevin Maly scrambled 48 yards. The extra point attempt failed.

In the second quarter, the Wayne defense took over. Tim Book blocked a West Point punt and Rod Luff recovered the ball in the endzone for a TD. Chris Wieseler scored the two-point conversion.

Wieseler scored Wayne's third TD on a 19 yard run in the third period. The point after attempt failed and Wayne led 20-0.

Quarterback Brad Moore passed 35 yards to Maly in the fourth quarter for another touchdown. The two-point conversion was scored when Pete Warne received a Moore pass. Warne came back to add the game's final TD. He intercepted a pass and returned the ball 35 yards for six points.

The defense played real well. Our offense was sporadic but West Point CC never threatened," said Wayne coach Duane Blomenkamp.

Wieseler was leading tackler with 10 Offensively, Wayne had 93 total yards including 134 rushing. Wieseler carried 9 times for 61 yards. Maly carried 7 times for 55 yards and Todd Dorcay and Brad Moore added 12 and 6 yards respectively.

Moore completed four of seven passes. Maly caught one for 35 yards. Luff caught one for 16 yards and Warne caught two for 8 yards.

YOU CAN EARN MORE THAN 15% on your money when you buy a home! It's true - homes have gone up an average of 15% per year in the last 3 years! And unlike interest, gains on real estate is deferred and taxed at the capital gains rate. And you can buy a Sunrise Townhouse Condo at last year's prices. But don't wait! Builders and developers must pay interest too, and the prices must go up! Yes, you can actually save by buying now when interest rates are high and construction costs are low. And you own a Sunrise Townhouse just like any home or real estate, except:

1. You save on the purchase price because construction costs are lower.
2. You don't worry about maintenance and insurance.
3. You don't worry about snow and lawn service.
4. The exterior real estate is owned jointly by all owners.
5. You are always a member of the Homeowners association.
6. Condos have a better tax advantage for those that need every deduction you can get.

Each 1180 sq. foot Townhouse has oak cabinets and trim, dishwasher, main floor laundry, private patio, central air, gas heat, a complete energy efficient-insulation package, and are situated on the highest hill in Wayne, next to the college and hospital. The Maryland subdivision is a prestigious place to live, and an "easy to sell someday" type of location that will protect your investment for years to come.

So don't put your money in the bank and pay taxes on the interest. You not only defer the tax on real estate appreciation, you only pay at the capital gains rates (about 30% of the regular rate).

WSC Homecoming

On Parade

Your Guess is as Good as Mine

IT'S A HORSE. No, that's not right. It's a jackass. Well, maybe not. If it's not a jackass, then it's a mule... maybe. Of course, if it's a mule, then there are some more combinations that must be considered, because to a mule raiser, there's all kinds of fine points to the production of Jacks and Jennies. Certainly, it depends on how horses and jackasses are crossed. Maybe someone in the Wayne area can supply the correct identification on this fine specimen found along a pasture fence line southeast of the city. The Wayne Herald would welcome the opportunity to settle the matter once and for all. The staff has been arguing about it for weeks.

Farm Crop Production Costs Jumped 15.4% During 1980 Growing Season

The costs of producing 11 major U.S. crops rose by an average of 15.4 percent per acre (excluding land costs) in 1980, and are projected to rise about as much in 1981.

Increases in fuel prices (up 38 percent), fertilizer prices (up 24 percent), and interest rates (up 20 percent) led the 1980 cost increases but, except for interest rates, abated somewhat in 1981.

greatly in 1980 because there was less production over which to spread the costs. Per unit costs rose by an average of more than 40 percent for all crops, ranging from 30 percent for oats to 89 percent for peanuts.

If yields rise to trend in 1981, the higher yields per acre will reduce increases in nonland costs per unit of production. Per unit cost increases in 1981, again based on long-term trend yields, are currently projected as follows: 1 percent per bushel for corn and oats; 6 percent per bushel for barley; 14 percent per bushel for wheat; 11 percent per hundredweight for rice; and 6 percent per pound for cotton. Per unit nonland costs are projected to decline for sorghum, soybeans, sunflower, flax, and peanuts.

THE AVERAGE costs per acre, excluding land, increased by 20 percent for corn, 12 percent for sorghum, 14 percent for barley, 18 percent for oats, 16 percent for wheat, 26 percent for rice, 14 percent for soybeans, 15 percent for sunflower, 6 percent for peanuts, 13 percent for flax, and 8 percent for cotton.

Costs per acre were relatively unaffected by the 1980 drought, which reduced yields and harvests significantly for all 11 crops. The percentage declines for 1980, furthermore, may appear more severe than they otherwise would because most crops had record yields or above average yields in 1979.

Yields in 1980 declined by more than 10 percent for all the crops but rice (down by 5 percent), and the declines ranged up to around 30 percent for cotton, sorghum, and sunflower, and 41 percent for peanuts.

Total production declined by similar amounts. If harvested yields return to their historic trends, the 1981 yield increases should offset somewhat the higher production costs.

DESPITE the drought, some regions were able to increase their production. For example, barley yields increased substantially in the Northwest, Southwest, and Northeast; oats yields rose in the Lake States-Corn Belt area; soft red winter wheat yields rose in all areas and while wheat yields increased in the Pacific Northwest.

Average nonland costs per unit of production, which reflect the drought conditions, increased

Crop Sale or Storage Decision Turns on High Interest Rates

The decision to sell or to store crops faces farmers every year at harvest, but current high interest rates make that decision especially critical this fall, according to a University of Nebraska agricultural economist.

Dr. Lynn Lutgen, extension marketing specialist, said when interest rates were under 10 percent, they had little effect on the "sell or store" decision. But with current rates up to 16 to 18 percent, farmers need to put pencil to paper before deciding.

GENERALLY, grain is stored for three reasons, Lutgen said: convenience, income tax strategies or a belief that prices will be better after harvest. The outlook for harvest time prices is pessimistic, Lutgen added. "This year, we will have a huge crop, causing large surpluses at harvest which will widen the basis, the difference between local cash prices and futures market prices."

"High rates of interest, both from the position of paying off a loan or of interest opportunities in the money market, definitely influence the producer to analyze his opportunity costs for selling vs. storing," he said. An important factor in that decision is what the producer believes the outlook for commodity prices will be later in the marketing year. To illustrate, Lutgen cited this example:

"Assume corn is selling for $2.50 a bushel at harvest. A farmer can obtain 16 percent interest on savings or the equivalent of 3.33 cents per bushel per month if he sells the grain and invests that money.

The following table shows the cost per month in cents per bushel for holding grain at various commodity prices and interest rates:

"If the producer holds the grain from November through May, rather than selling it and investing the proceeds, he has lost the opportunity for 23.31 cents (17 months x 3.33 cents) in interest income.

"Therefore, the price of corn must rise enough to recover that lost 23 cents, as well as the cost of storage, approximately 21 cents for commercial storage for the November-to-May period.

"So, if corn were selling for $2.50 at harvest, it would have to rise to $2.94 by May for the farmer to just break even on his storage costs plus the lost interest."

Interest rates are only one part of the sell-or-store decision process, Lutgen noted, and the effects of the yet-undetermined

1982 tax laws can't be predicted. But one thing is certain, he said: "The higher the interest rates, the more important they become in the decision making process and they can't be neglected."

Barbecue

LEONARD MARTEN of rural Hoskins, right, checks the temperature on huge chunks of beef for the annual Hoskins Volunteer Fire Department barbecue. Marten, a Hoskins farmer, is known throughout the Hoskins area as a barbecue specialist. Joining him in the temperature test is Tod Johnson, a volunteer firefighter and instructor at Northeast Technical Community College, Norfolk. At left, Paul Johnson of Norfolk, Johnson's son, holds daughter, Amy, during the late-afternoon feed on Sunday, Oct. 11, in the Hoskins Fire Hall. Hundreds of pounds of beef roasted over charcoals in barbecue equipment built by Marten.
