Letter Sparks First-Degree Murder Probe

Judge Delays Hearing on Shotgun Slaying

A preliminary hearing for Dennis Virgil Thorne, 36, charged with second degree murder in the shotgun slaying of a rural Winslow man, has been postponed.

The postponement came Thursday in Wayne County Court as Judge James Duggan granted a motion of continuance — over defense attorney objections — in the case to allow the prosecution more time to develop evidence in the Oct. 9 death of Marlen Kleinschmidt, 40.

Wayne County Attorney Budd Bornhoff who filed the motion Oct. 27, indicated to Judge Duggan that further investigation may change the charge against Thorne to first degree murder.

BORNHOFF offered a letter he had received from a Bloomfield police officer as foundation for his motion.

The letter, a two-page, handwritten note was accepted as evidence during the Thursday afternoon session at the Wayne County Courthouse.

After reading the letter and listening to Thorne's court-appointed defense attorney Terry Dougherty's objections, Duggan sustained Bornhoff's motion, setting the preliminary hearing for 1:30 p.m. Monday, Nov. 9.

Duggan also denied the Norfolk defense attorney's request for a reduction in the 10 percent, $100,000 bond set for Thorne.

THORNE, WHO appeared at the Thursday session with Dougherty but remained silent, again was remanded to the custody of Wayne County Sheriff Scotty Thompson.

Unable to make the bond, Thorne is being held in the Wayne County Jail, where he has been since his transfer from Norfolk to Wayne on Oct. 9.

Kleinschmidt was dead on arrival at a Norfolk hospital. Thorne turned himself in to Norfolk law enforcement authorities Oct. 9, about 10 hours after the 2 a.m. shooting.

Thorne, who was staying at the Kleinschmidt residence at the time of the shooting, was charged with second degree murder during an Oct. 15 arraignment before Judge Duggan.

Also appearing in court Thursday under subpoena was Chris Kleinschmidt, the gunshot victim's wife and half-sister to Thorne.

DUGGAN ALSO granted a request from Dougherty that awarded her pay and expenses as a statutory witness under subpoena.

In his opening remarks, Bornhoff apologized for the "late filing" of his motion for continuance, and called the difference between second degree and first degree murder "a serious matter."

Introducing the letter, Bornhoff asked the judge to grant his continuance motion "in view of the seriousness of this case."

Dougherty objected, saying: "The only problem is that while we are following up these unconfirmed leads, my client is spending sizeable periods of time in jail with no way of posting bond."

THE NORFOLK attorney said Thorne "has a right to a speedy preliminary examination, particularly since there is no reason to believe a crime was even committed."

Thorne has been in jail for about three weeks.

"We have to object on the basis of something that may materialize," Dougherty added.

Part of Bornhoff's motion for continuance noted that "an amendment charging a more serious crime is extremely difficult to make in District Court."

The case is expected to go to Ninth District Court, Wayne County, for trial if the Nov. 9 preliminary hearing indicates, in the opinion of the judge, there is reason to believe a crime has been committed.

Dougherty said "It is also extremely difficult when you turn yourself in." He explained that it was difficult for him and his client to prepare a defense while Thorne was confined to the jail.

"We must strenuously object to it (the continuance)," he added.

"THERE ISN'T anyone in the whole world more conscious of being deprived of liberty (than I)," Duggan answered.

"That concerns me if it is a minute, an hour or a day," he continued. "I've known Mr. Bornhoff as a defense counsel and as a judge. He's the kind of county attorney who would not file such a motion frivolously."

Immediately after Duggan sustained Bornhoff's motion, Dougherty moved to reduce the bond "in light of the fact that he (Thorne) turned himself in."

Duggan denied it saying "Because of the nature of the motion for continuance, and because there could conceivably be a more serious charge filed, I don't believe I can lower the bond, or consider lowering it."

Duggan said that if the prosecution's additional investigation of the case resulted in no more than second degree murder charges, he would be more inclined to consider the motion to reduce bond.

JUDGE DUGGAN also reminded Dougherty bond was allowed in first-degree murder charges.

In his successful effort to postpone the preliminary hearing, Bornhoff explained that if an amended complaint (first-degree murder) is filed after the preliminary hearing, it would necessitate another preliminary hearing.

The handwritten letter, which was also read by Dougherty and Thorne, identified the writer as a Bloomfield police officer, but did not contain a surname.

Judge Duggan indicated the veracity of the letter could be easily checked by the investigating law enforcement agencies handling the case — the county attorney's office, the Sheriff's Department and the Nebraska State Patrol.

'He may be the highest paid man in the country, but he hasn't grown up much. He's still a boy.'

Johnny Carson Didn't Impress Latin Teacher

By Randall Howell

Johnny Carson didn't impress his high school Latin teacher.

In fact, though she knows NBC's late night television star was in her Norfolk High School classroom studying Latin as a freshman and sophomore, Mildred Jones doesn't remember him.

He didn't make an unusual impression on me," said the 75 year old Altona woman, who attended last week's 38th reunion of the chairman's high school class at the King's East Ballroom in Norfolk.

"HE ISN'T the only person I taught who's made a lot of money," said the spry, gray-haired, retired teacher.

"My other students have contributed to society in many, many ways," she continued. "It makes you wonder, sometimes, what's important."

Despite that, the former Wayne State College English teacher thumbs through "Milestones," a booklet compiled from Norfolk High School annuals to commemorate Carson's classmates.

A lifelong teacher, Jones got the booklet when she attended class reunion celebration, which was held during Carson's return to his hometown for filming of a movie entitled "Johnny Comes Home."

THOUGH CARSON created a media stir in Norfolk for several days, including the star's 56th birthday, Jones found more enjoyment in getting together with fellow faculty members who returned for the celebration.

"I had a wonderful time with the classmates and older faculty members," she said, while sorting through clippings from the northeast Nebraska city's daily newspaper.

"There's a good feeling you have about meeting with a student, particularly when you didn't even know you touched their heart and they tell you that you did," the Iowa-born woman said.

When Jones went through Carson's receiving line during the reunion party, she had to double-check with the star to see if he'd taken Latin.

CARSON ANSWERED in the affirmative, according to Jones, who left the high school at the end of Carson's sophomore year.

"If he took Latin, I taught him," she said, explaining she was the only Latin teacher at the school during Carson's ninth and 10th grades in Norfolk.

During the prime-rib dinner at King's East Ballroom, Carson sat down at a table where Jones and several fellow faculty members were seated.

Wayne Artists Frame Superstar's Memorabilia

By Randall Howell

A couple of Wayne artists are framing Johnny Carson memorabilia.

Carlos and Sherian Frey have a Monday deadline to get meet for NBC television superstar.

That deadline comes just two weeks after they met a "Johnny Comes Home" production crew deadline for the comedian's Saturday, Oct. 17, arrival in Norfolk.

THE FREYS are confident they'll make the deadline, which means Carson will have several more frames from Mid-America Art Studio of Wayne in his collection.

It all started on Wednesday, Oct. 14, when David Lowe Productions, the company with the recording contract for the Carson movie, called the Freys for a framing job on four old-time movie posters.

The posters — including show signs for theater classics "Nothing But The Truth," starring Bob Hope and Paulette Goddard, "Overland with Kit Carson," a serial starring Bill Elliott, and "Boys Town," starring Spencer Tracy and Mickey Rooney — were to be placed in Carson's room at the Norfolk Holiday Inn before the television star arrived in his hometown.

SHERIAN, 37, who handles the art studio's frame shop, agreed to do the framing work on the four posters (two on "Nothing But The Truth").

"Specifically, they were to be framed for his arrival and for his room," Sherian, a part-time speech teacher at Wayne State College, said.

THREE POSTERS framed for Carson's Norfolk hotel room.

Within two hours of Oct. 14 telephone call, a courier arrived at the art studio, on the eastern edge of town just south of state Highway 35, from Norfolk with the posters.

A week before the Carson framing order, Sherian had, as a matter of course, ordered the framing materials — the kind the production company wanted.

However, the order had not arrived by mid-day Friday — less than a day before Carson's scheduled arrival in Norfolk for filming and a 38th Class Reunion.

UP AGAINST the Saturday deadline for the Carson framing work, she spent some time on the telephone to Omaha that afternoon tracing her order.

"I told them I don't usually drop names, but that Johnny Carson was arriving in Norfolk and I had to have the framing material," Sherian explained.

Within an hour the company had traced her order to Wayne and the material was delivered to the art studio.

Sherian and Carlos went to work, met the deadline and called the production staff member in charge of the Carson order.

The production company sent a courier to Wayne. He picked up framed posters and Carson was greeted with the Freys' handiwork at the Holiday Inn.

THE FREYS still are trying to figure out how the Carson production crew selected Mid-America Art Studio to do the work.

"We're listed in the Norfolk yellow pages," said Carlos, 44, a former Wayne State College art instructor-turned-portfolio painter.

"No...I think someone must have recommended us," said Sherian, an artist and potter.

She explained that the production company's instructions were very exacting. "We had to call back to get approval for the slightest change in the order," she said.

The Freys followed some of Carson's visit to his hometown, but heard nothing for nearly two weeks after the initial framing order.

THEN, ON Thursday, the production company representative called again.

"They were pleased with our work," explained Sherian. "And, they wanted to know if we'd do some more framing for Johnny."

The Freys accepted the second framing order, which involves two posters Carson found in Norfolk's old Granada Theatre.

Neither poster has a date to indicate the years of the two performances, but one is for an Abbott & Costello Show entitled "Ride 'Em Cowboy."

The second show poster headlined Carole Lombard and Jack Benny in "To Be or Not To Be."

In addition to the posters, the production company wanted some Carson memorabilia framed.

Q. I understand there are benefits under the new tax bill for including a spouse in an IRA. What are these benefits?

A. The new tax law allows you to sock away an extra $2,000 or a total of $2,250 for yourself and your spouse. Congress has also eliminated an old ruling which required contributions be evenly divided between spouses. And, for the benefit of a non-working spouse, $2,000 can be deposited into an IRA annually. This increased contribution adds a great deal to a couple's planning for the future while being able to deduct the contribution from their tax return. All interest earned on the money is sheltered from any income tax until the money is withdrawn. Opening an IRA is not complicated and we'll be glad to assist you with the new benefits for 1982.

country boy. . .

Howdy. The excitement of the hunt is incomparable. And, the excitement in the preparation for the hunt often tops that.

Opening day of pheasant season always brought about both around the Howell farmstead. It was an once-a-year event that brought everything to a halt as we hit the cornfields and sloughs for a crack at the wily ringneck.

BUT LONG before my brothers and I hit the fields with my father, we spent countless hours preparing for opening day.

And, it's the excitement of the weeks before the first day that I remember best.

Hunting pheasants was a way of life around Ordway, S.D. A man — young or old — was known far and wide by the way he hunted, who he hunted with, and the gear he wore for the hunt.

You see, hunting pheasants involves far more than just picking up a shotgun and heading for the brush patches.

Why that's not pheasant hunting at all. That's just gun toting. Any darn fool can tote a shotgun.

IF YOU ARE going to be a pheasant hunter, you've got to be aware of a lot of different things that make the difference between hunting and gun-toting.

First, there's the equipment. Certainly, the shotgun comes first, but all pheasant hunters carry shotguns. It's what you carry with that shotgun that makes all the difference in the world.

So, let's consider if a given that any pheasant hunter worth his tail feathers would get his gun out and clean it thoroughly.

I remember the cleaning rods, the 3 in 1 oil, the graphite, the powder stained and oil soaked rags, the screwdrivers, the steel wool, and the bottle of cold blue to touch up the shotgun barrel.

SOMEHOW THAT all takes a backseat to the hunting accessories, though.

We were all walkers, not road hunters. So, that meant you had to be sure your lucky pair of heavy socks would be darned and clean for opening day. There just wasn't any substitute for that pair of socks. They went over the outside of a lighter pair — a pair also carefully selected.

Frequently, we'd avoid wearing that outside pair of heavy, white socks during the week before hunting season opened. There was always the fear that they'd get ruined just a few days before opening day.

Something like that could ruin a whole season of hunting. We'd make do with almost anything, once that pair of hunting socks was washed and set aside in the bottom of the chest of drawers.

Near them would be the second pair, laundered and fresh — just waiting the sound of the gun.

THOSE SOCKS had to fit into a comfortable pair of boots.

Now everyone has a different idea about what constitutes a hunting boot. In fact, a lot of hunters go out just before opening day and buy a good pair of hunting boots.

But, a good hunter — one who's committed to walking forever, if necessary, to bag his limit — spends more time getting an old, comfortable pair of boots ready for opening day.

Out comes the saddle soap, the pan of water and a handful of old T-shirts or discarded diapers from the rag bag.

With a couple of hours of elbow grease, the old walkers are ready for stomping through any kind of underbrush after ringnecks. And, the comfort of an old boot will take an eager hunter miles beyond the shiny new pair paraded by his buddy.

OF COURSE, no hunter can depend on the weather, so that favorite pair of long underwear is also laundered and set aside, not to be worn until opening day.

I know guys who have a lucky pair of socks and a lucky underwear. Even if the weather is hot, they wouldn't think of going hunting without the lucky underwear.

My lucky pair was a red one-piece. And, even if it was so hot that my boots filled with sweat, I'd wear those long Johns on opening day. I was convinced I couldn't hit the broadside of a barn without my red long Johns.

And, those long Johns were old, soft and faded. Nothing else would do. Anyone who would have tried to convince me that you could take a new pair of long Johns into an opening day pheasant hunt would have been laughed off the farm.

CERTAINLY, every serious pheasant hunter in my day had a pair of lucky blue jeans.

Again, new ones just wouldn't do. They had to bear the scars of previous hunts. My favorite hunting jeans were patched and scarred just enough to be comfortable.

Those old, faded jeans had to fit like a glove. That way, they wouldn't catch on underbrush and barbed wire quite so easily.

They also signaled that the wearer was a veteran hunter, a shotgunner who knew his way around guns and game birds.

Anyone with new blue jeans was immediately branded a pheasant hunting novice — the guy most likely to be sent to town for more shells just when the shooting would get hot.

I've seen many a new jeans wearer who posted after the first cornfield walk because that crisp denim took the hide right off his legs.

THE HUNTING uniform just isn't complete without a favorite flannel shirt.

Again, new shirts were out. Only the old, soft faded flannels would do.

Those new shirts had collars like sandpaper and they smelled funny. Even if you were foolish enough to buy a new flannel shirt just before hunting season, you didn't wear it opening day.

If you were lucky enough to buy it several weeks before hunting season opened, you could abuse it enough doing chores to have it washed six or eight times.

Then, just maybe it would make it as an opening day hunting shirt. Of course, it could never compete with those old flannels displaying the blood stains from last year's ringneck kills.

NOW, LOTS of guys who hunted with us wore caps — all kinds of fancy headgear.

We thought that was gauche, unless the caps bore the evidence of countless tangles with everything from shotgun blasts to tree limb snags.

Any new cap in the bunch was likely to encounter an opening day loss in the air and a volley of practice shots.

After all, someone had to break in the gear those city dudes would wear.

Lots of guys would show up with those fancy vests that had pockets for a two day supply of shotgun shells and pouches for the pheasants they couldn't hit.

We carried most of our shells in the pockets of our jeans or buttoned safety in those old two-pocket flannel shirts.

AS WE GOT older, my brothers and I gained the use of what we called shell belts. We wore them like ban-doleers.

Slung from left shoulder to the right side, they always gave us a menacing appearance, particularly loaded with a box of shells.

Somewhat, though, they never were as convenient as a pocket full of ammunition. The belts caught on everything. And, I never had one that didn't drop more shells than I ever fired.

I almost forgot the pheasant hangers. Those wire loops sewed into a short piece of cloth that hung over your belt.

If you wore hangers, you had really arrived as a pheasant hunter. I wore a make shift hanger for years before joining the ranks of the mighty hunters with store bought pheasant hangers.

MY BROTHERS and I all started out with a coat hanger fashioned into a pheasant hanger.

My father would sit down with his pliers before opening day and make a hanger for each of us.

They were easy to make and did every bit as good a job as the fancy ones at the hardware store.

And, since they only had one loop, unlike those that were professionally styled, they didn't jingle-jangle-jingle from one end of the cornfield to the other.

And, if we lost them, it was easy to get another. Besides, none of that store-bought stuff ever helped any hunter I knew bag any more pheasants.

I've listened to many a store-bought pheasant hanger jingle-jangle-jingle all day long.

YOU SEE, I always knew if I was walking next to a marksman.

The noise those pheasant hangers made only stopped when there was a bird on them.

So, if the guy hunting next to me was walking without jingling, I knew he either had a bird or he had a father who fashioned home-made hangers, too.

I'm glad I started out with the home made variety, because it took me a long, long, long time to bag my first pheasant.

I first hunted with a 20 gauge, single shot, hand me-down shotgun.

It had been modified to fit kids and had been handed down from cousin to cousin and brother to brother for years.

UNDER ORDERS from my father, I had to carry it open (broken at the breech).

That meant, when a ringneck cackled into the air, he had much more than a sporting chance at surviving.

I'd have to slam the breech closed, pull back a hammer that wouldn't budge unless you two thumbed it, jerk the gun to my shoulder, find the disappearing bird, and pull the trigger.

Well, let me tell you, by the time I got all that done, one of the guys was already home cooking the darn thing.

In an attempt to get a jump on the hot shots around me, I'd often fire before taking any time to aim, much less lead a cock pheasant in flight out light.

IT GOT SO bad that my father suggested I could shoot at either sex — hen or rooster — as long as we were close to home.

Well, that was more of an insult than he knew at the time. All my cousins, even those my own age, had bagged at least one rooster. I was mortified at the thought of gunning down a hen.

But, things were not looking good. Finally, in desperation, I accepted the suggestion.

And, much to my chagrin, I couldn't even nail a hen. I'm sure I hunted most of my first season without even ruffling a tailfeather.

BUT, LO AND behold, one sunny day near the end of a long, long cornfield, my luck changed.

I had decided that the rigamarole involved in getting that gun ready to shoot was just unacceptable.

So, I closed the breech near the end of the field. Now, all that was left to do was cock the hammer, get a bead on a panicked rooster and fire.

Within moments, a raucous cackle exploded beneath my feet and a bundle of flying feathers was airborne.

BACK CAME the hammer. Up came the gun. Jerk went the trigger. And down came cock pheasant.

I don't think that pheasant got more than 10 feet away before I shot. It was a mangled mess.

But, I was one proud pheasant hunter. My father even looked relieved.

It irritated me a bit though when he checked with every hunter in the party before finally accepting it as my bird.

I guess he was as surprised as I was. It's not easy for a pheasant hunting father to spend an entire season with a son who couldn't hit anything unless it hit him first.

There was a lot of lead in that bird, but you can bet your last dollar that we ate him anyway.

Spitting BB's is better than getting skunked. Catch you next week.

Women and Wayne

Something rather encouraging has happened on the Wayne Chamber of Commerce's board of directors.

A woman now sits on that board.

Lola Hall of the Wayne Greenhouse, a capable and veteran Wayne businesswoman, has been appointed to the chamber board.

The contributions of Lueders, a knowledgeable and successful businessman, certainly will be missed.

However, the appointment of Hall to fill out his unexpired term may signal the beginnings of a better balance on the board.

Hall and her husband, Kent, own and operate the Wayne Greenhouse, a Wayne business that's been in the family for nearly 60 years.

Officially, Hall will be representing retail merchants outside Wayne's downtown area, according to the chamber.

It also is clear that she is the only woman on the board. That may be a welcome sign to the numerous businesswomen who own, operate, manage or otherwise work in Wayne businesses.

Hall's extensive business background gives her the credentials to work effectively with the board.

And, the fact that she is a businesswoman — not a businessman — may present the board with an added dimension in the economic activity of Wayne.

Furthermore, the move may reach beyond the membership of the chamber board.

For instance, the chamber's energy task force, which was recently appointed, is an eight-man committee.

The credentials of those men are top notch. However, it is strange, indeed, that a male-only task force is involved in raising the consciousness of the Wayne community on energy conservation.

A rough estimate would certainly have it that about 50 percent of the energy consumers in Wayne are women.

In fact, when it comes to energy consumption in the home, women probably have more influence on waste or conservation than most men.

One of the stated general goals of the task force is to get Wayne area residents to personally identify with the need for energy conservation.

It would seem appropriate, then, that somewhere around 50 percent of the local population would identify more personally with a woman task force member.

And, it is very likely that a woman with the appropriate credentials could be found to serve on that board.

Certainly, it is unlikely that a woman would hurt the cause.

Petroleum Problems

Nebraska's energy future will be the result of policies we now pursue. These policies result from our present perceptions of the future. It is vitally important that our present policies not be "carved in granite" for these perceptions will change as accumulated facts and future happenings require.

We do have energy problems. However, these problems are primarily political and economic.

It is true that the United States does not produce as much oil as it once did and that oil is a limited resource. In the United States we are in a transition period between easily found and relatively inexpensive to produce oil and hard to find and costly to produce oil. Under the circumstances existing prior to 1973 this would have been a problem, but not of the magnitude we are experiencing today.

The root cause of our energy problems is political and was manifested in the Arab oil embargo of 1973. As a result of the formation of OPEC and its continuing demands for higher prices, the cost of oil has increased 1500 percent since 1973. This has resulted in a transfer of United States dollars on a massive scale. The current net annual oil bill for the United States is $7 billion dollars.

Seventy-seven billion dollars is enough money to buy all of Nebraska's marketable crops, all of the livestock production and all of the livestock products. After all of the cattle, hogs, corn and other crops have been purchased, the people who sold us oil would have enough U.S. petro-dollars left over to buy all of Nebraska's 18.6 million acres of agricultural land and buildings at their average market value of $458/acre and still have money left over. Remember, this is only one year's oil bill.

In Nebraska our annual petroleum products bill, excluding fertilizer, is $1.6 billion dollars. Our annual sales of agricultural products is $6,441,400,000. Our annual gross state product as opposed to the gross national product is $16.5 billion.

It is obvious that our state economy presently runs on oil and oil products. We might be able to continue to pay our oil bill, but only by sacrificing needed capital investments in our state economy.

All other energy costs have also increased as a direct result of the monstrous increase in oil prices. All of our economy has suffered still more.

The final straw is the ability of a sudden and severe disruption, for whatever reason, in our supply of OPEC oil, to bring our state economy to a virtual halt.

Our present perceptions of a potentially bleak future require us to change some of our present priorities in order to address more directly our petroleum problems.

To the editor:
Anyone who doesn't know better would think the senior citizens have been in limbo the past several years.

You are getting carried away again, Mr. Editor, with your front page articles. Remember, editorials belong on the editorial page. I don't think you should print anything about the senior center or anything else until you are certain you have the facts straight.

A few weeks ago you carried an editorial against the Sheriff's Department for withholding facts. I tended to agree with you at the time because "the people do need to know." But after thinking about it, I can see the other side of the situation. If facts are going to be distorted, then I can see why information may sometimes have to be withheld.

As the editor, I feel it is your obligation to write an article telling of the many and varied activities the senior citizens have enjoyed these many years under Jociell's (Bull) capable leadership.

Tell them of the many hours she spent way into the night and sometimes all night working for the center. Many, many times Eldon (Bull) was working right beside her even though he wasn't salaried.

Anyone who has any experience with a government position knows the overwhelming amount of paperwork involved. Jociell did all of this. What about her work in the clerk's office?

The paper says they are going to go on trips—"entertainment" excursions." They have already enjoyed so many trips of this type, I'm sure some of the busybodies in town have criticized them for "running around too much."

Several years ago they enjoyed the courtesy of the Wakefield Christian Church bus under Pastor Epperson's leadership, and they had a lot of very enjoyable trips.

They have used the mini bus, the State National Bank and Trust Co. bus and chartered buses at various times and have enjoyed trips to the Grotto, a river cruise, the State Fair, many Commission on Aging sessions in Lincoln, Omaha, Grand Island, etc.

If they take trips now, they will just be a continuation of what they've already done all these years! The Center Band has had a lot of fun playing not only at the center but the nursing home and has also taken some honors in competition.

No, they haven't been held in prison all these years!

To the editor:
This past year we have succeeded in locating an uncle of my husband, yet in Sweden. In going through old letters and photos, and with some further information from records in Sweden, we found that another uncle at one time had lived at Wayne, Nebraska.

Per Anton (P.A. or Pete) Mattsson was born at Ostang, Aivdalen, Sweden on March 10, 1888. His wife, Signe Amalia (Andersson) Mattsson was born August 25, 1890 in Sweden. A daughter, Olga Kristina, was born May 22, 1910, in Sweden. At one time, perhaps after their arrival in America in 1911, their address was: P.A. Mattsson, Route 3, Box 42, Wayne, Nebraska.

Another brother of P.A. Mattsson also lived at Wayne, or in that area for a while. Bernhard Theodore (Ted) moved to California during the '30s. We have lost contact with the family since Ted died in the mid '50s.

I am wondering if you would print this letter in your paper, or if you could refer me to someone who might have some information on this family. We realize a good many years have passed and they may not be alive. Even knowing the burial place or if there are any descendants would be of help. We would appreciate any help in this matter.

Thank you very much.

There are a lot of people who owe Jociell an apology and you could begin by writing a tribute to her in the paper. Maybe the way the articles came out was unintentional on your part, but I do feel The Wayne Herald has done a disservice to Jociell. I have heard many people express this same point of view.

What a way for the City Council and Administrator to greet her — an ultimatum that "if you don't resign you are fired — effective immediately!" And only three days after she returned from the funeral of her sister who had been ill with cancer several months.

That person who wrote those nasty letters to the editor and submitted that nasty little want ad has finally gotten his way. He chose to remain anonymous and so do I.

The members of the Blue Devil Marching Band would like to express their appreciation to all the parents, relatives, families, friends and alumni who attended the Wisner and Pershing Marching Contests.

A warm, friendly audience can really help a band's performance. Your applause and comments on our performance are as much of a reward as the ratings and trophies.

Thank you for being so supportive and proud!

TAMMY GRIESCH, 10-YEAR-OLD daughter of Mark and Carol Griesch of Wayne, is this year's Buddy Poppy Girl.

Tammy Griesch Chosen 1981 Buddy Poppy Girl

A 10th grader at Wayne Middle School, 10-year-old Tammy Griesch, has been selected by the local VFW Auxiliary as this year's Buddy Poppy Girl.

She will represent the auxiliary during their annual Buddy Poppy sales in Wayne on Thursday, Nov. 5.

Tammy, who is the auxiliary's 14th Buddy Poppy Girl, is the daughter of Mark and Carol Griesch of Wayne. Both Mark and Carol are members of the Lewellyn B. Whitmore Post and Auxiliary.

Tammy will assist the auxiliary in setting poppies and participate in Veterans' Day, Memorial Day and Loyalty Day services. She also will help distribute poppies to residents of Wayne Care Centre.

RUTH KORTH, Buddy Poppy chairman, said the sale of Buddy Poppies preceding Memorial Day is the traditional way of drawing attention to the sacrifices made by the nation's war dead.

The VFW Buddy Poppy is made by patients in veterans hospitals throughout the United States. The work provides needed therapy for hands and minds crippled by war, and the pay earned provides a few simple luxuries to ease the boredom of hospital life.

The sale is conducted exclusively by volunteers who dedicate the profits to the aid and assistance of disabled and needy servicemen and veterans, and the widows and orphans of deceased veterans.

Marsh urges all patriotic citizens to purchase a Buddy Poppy on Nov. 5 as mute evidence of their gratitude to the men of this country who have risked their lives in defense of the freedoms which American citizens continue to enjoy.

Newly Formed Honor Society Taps 14 at Laurel-Concord

The first taping ceremony of the newly formed National Honor Society was held last Monday at Laurel-Concord High School. Forty-eight juniors and seniors with a cumulative grade point average of 3.0 were eligible for membership.

After meeting grade requirements, the students were rated by the faculty in the areas of scholarship, leadership, service and character.

Students demonstrating excellence in all areas were tapped into membership.

Milliken, and juniors Jana Cunningham, Renee Gadeken, Kami Helgren, Tim Lineberry, Colleen Mackey and Kelly Robson.

Tapping was held during a program in the morning for parents and students in grades seven through 12.

As students and parents were ushered into the gymnasium, Monica Hansen set the mood by playing selections on the electric piano.

STEVE Shanahan, secondary principal, welcomed the students and guests, and gave a brief history of the National Honor Society.

Tim Lineberry sang "Your Song," followed with a dedication to the entire student body by Judy Hansen, National Honor Society adviser, who recognized the students as "very special people" and introduced the guest speakers.

THE REV. Kenneth Marquardt of the Laurel United Lutheran Church spoke on qualities that build character.

Other speakers and their topics were Richard Adkins of the Laurel Security National Bank, on scholarship; Ella Larsen, former teacher at Laurel-Concord Public Schools, on the importance of leaders; and L. J. Mallard, city manager, who reminded students of the importance of service to their school and community.

NEW MEMBERS of the Honor Society were presented scrolls bearing their names.

Miss Hansen concluded the program with a poem, entitled "Live Each Day to the Fullest," and challenged all students to follow those words of wisdom.

"WE ARE very pleased with our new program at Laurel-Concord High School," said the National Honor Society sponsor.

"We want the community to know that National Honor Society members will be expected to continue their exemplary contributions to the school and community."

Former Wayne Girl Pioneers Vicar's Role

A former resident of Wayne, Connie Jones, is pioneering the way into a traditionally male profession — that of a vicar.

Miss Jones, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl R. Jones of Cape Coral, Fla., attended Wayne High School. She was graduated from Cypress High School in Cape Coral, Fla., and from Florida Atlantic University in Boca Raton, Fla.

She also attended Trinity Lutheran Seminary in Columbus, Ohio.

VICAR JONES is presently serving with the Rev. Raymond Vance of the Lutheran Church of the Master in La Habra, Calif.

As part of her studies to become ordained as a Lutheran pastor, she is spending a year in the La Habra church.

IN AN ARTICLE which appeared recently in the La Habra Daily Star-Progress, Jones said she just happens to be a woman that got called to the ministry.

"The implications of being a woman in the clergy are only driven home when someone else happens to take notice of the fact," Jones said in the newspaper interview.

Although Jones concedes that what she is doing is "very untraditional," in religious matters, she is "very traditional."

THE 28-YEAR-OLD Wayne native carries a full schedule of night meetings and has to be available in the day to the congregation.

She takes and teaches classes at the church, as well as assisting in services and preaching once a month.

Although many seminary students choose to work in their fourth year of seminary as a vicar, Jones elected to try it in her third year.

When her year as a vicar is up, she will return to being a student next August at Trinity Lutheran Seminary in Columbus.

JONES said if after her fourth year she is ordained, her future will depend not upon what she wants, but on where she is needed.

1st Perfect Season Since '49

Trojans Qualify for State C-1 Playoffs

Three major accomplishments were achieved by the Wakefield Trojans with a 14-6 win over Emerson-Hubbard, Wednesday night.

1. The Trojans earned a berth in the Class C-1 State Playoffs.
2. Wakefield won the undisputed East Division title in the Lewis & Clark Conference.
3. For the first time since 1949, the Trojans completed an undefeated regular season.

TROJAN FANS were elated as they left the town of Emerson Wednesday night. And members of the football team celebrated by

Louisville (8-1)	at Bennington (9-0)
Rushville (8-0)	at D.C. Aquinas (8-1)
Wakefield (9-0)	at Battle Creek (9-0)
Gibbon (8-1)	at Plainview (9-0)

hosting coach Dennis Wilbur in the air following the ceremonial post-game hand shake.

Fans, players and coaches all realized that the team had captured the division championship. And everyone knew the win capped the first undefeated season at Wakefield in decades.

But, everyone had to play a waiting game to learn that the Trojans had earned a playoff berth.

There was talk around town Friday night that Wakefield had a good chance of reaching the playoffs and calculations made by the coaching staff indicated that the locals would be issued at least a wildcard spot regardless of Friday's Battle Creek-Norfolk Catholic outcome.

The Omaha World Herald announced unofficially on Friday that Wakefield was one of eight teams reaching the playoffs. The newspaper indicated that the loser of the Norfolk Catholic-Battle Creek game would stay home. The official announcement could not be made by the Nebraska School Activities Association until Sunday.

OFFICIAL PAIRINGS were not issued but it was believed that Wakefield will play Battle Creek in first round action. Regardless of the foe, the Trojans will play at the opponent's home field. Game time will be either 7:30 p.m. or 7:30 p.m. tomorrow, Tuesday.

Coach Wilbur spent the weekend preparing for the playoff game. On Friday, he obtained scouting reports of several teams including Battle Creek, Bennington and Plainview.

Battle Creek defeated Norfolk Catholic 28-11 Friday night to earn the final playoff spot. Norfolk Catholic is in Wakefield's district and the loss eliminated the Trojans from the district championship. Otherwise, Wakefield would have qualified for the playoffs by virtue of the wildcard.

The Braves entered Friday's game ranked first in the state and undefeated after eight games. Norfolk Catholic was rated fourth and also unbeaten.

Battle Creek had outscored its opponents 436 to 0 entering Friday's matchup. Wilbur, who scouted the Battle Creek-Norfolk Catholic game, said the Braves run a combination of the I formation and Power I. The Wakefield mentor stated that the Braves have five of the best skilled players he's seen.

The top-ranked team is not that big but is quick and has "very, very speedy backs who are super quick," said Wilbur. "They are well-disciplined, well-coached, quick and hard-hitting."

ALTHOUGH BATTLE CREEK is Class C-1's top rated team, the Braves are seeded third because of district point ratings.

According to unofficial statistics, the eight qualifiers, their district point ratings, their expected seedings and their records are: 1. Bennington (9-0), 45.44; 2. Plainview (9-0), 45.33; 3. Battle Creek (9-0), 44.11; 4. David City Aquinas (8-1), 44.11; 5. Rushville (9-0), 43.87; 6. Wakefield (9-0), 43.66; 7. Gibbon (8-1), 43.66; 8. Louisville (8-1), 40.0.

Wakefield ranked 10th in the AP and Lincoln Journal Class C-1 ratings, finished the season with a district point total of 43.66 which edged out fourth rated Norfolk Catholic's total of 43.55. Other ranked teams which failed to make the playoffs are Oakland Craig, Morrill and Imperial.

"We're looking forward to the playoffs. The win over Emerson was an awful sweet victory. The last time a Wakefield team went undefeated was in 1949 with a 10-0 record," said Wilbur.

OTHER THAN TWO drives, the first half of Wednesday's game was controlled by Emerson. The Pirates scored one touchdown, stopped Wakefield on two drives and held the Trojans to poor field position throughout much of the first half.

The playoff bound Trojans moved deep in to Emerson territory early in the game but Emerson held at its own 10-yard line. The Pirates used a halfback pass from Dean Fuchser to Steve Larson to spring back and move the ball into Trojan territory at the 45.

THE HOSTS kept their drive alive and finally Fuchser scored on a three yard run with 10:30 left in the half. The point after attempt was blocked by Roger Echtenkamp.

Wakefield had another scoring opportunity stopped short on the following series. The Trojans moved the ball downfield and appeared on their way to a touchdown. A fourth down and four play was converted on a slant pass from Mark Starzl to Mike Clay which gave Wakefield a first and 10 at the Emerson 23.

Wakefield again faced a fourth down situation only three plays later at the Emerson 17. Jerry Roberts ran left and drove to the 10 yard line for a first and goal.

However, three plays later, the Trojans again found themselves in a fourth down situation at the four yard line. This time

MIKE CLAY of Wakefield carries the ball for a gain against Emerson defenders Bill Paulsen (32), Steve Emmons (70), Duane Krusemark and Dean Fuchser (21). The Trojans scored two second half touchdowns to defeat the Pirates 14-6 and win a state playoff berth.

Emerson held and took over at the three with 3:27 remaining in the first half.

A 67 YARD PUNT got Emerson out of the hole and time ran out as neither team threatened again.

The third quarter followed the same trend as the first half. Emerson's Larson intercepted a Starzl pass and returned the ball to the Trojan 19. The Wakefield defense lightened and held at its own 16.

A holding penalty hindered Wakefield's chances of moving the ball and Emerson regained the ball in good field position at the Wakefield 38. A halfback pass from Fuchser to Bryan Daums moved the ball to the eight.

The Trojans received a big break when Emerson was called for offensive pass interference in the endzone. After holding on to a fourth down play, Wakefield took over at the 11.

After swapping possession of the ball a couple times in the third quarter, Wakefield came alive early in the final period.

ROBERTS CARRIED from the Trojan 25 to the 42 and a face mask penalty moved the ball 15 yards farther to the Emerson 43. Clay carried for a 13-yard gain. Starzl carried for 11 yards. Roberts added a few yards and Clay moved the ball to the Emerson five-yard line.

The Trojans' first TD came on a one yard quarterback sneak with 9:24 left in the game. Rod Nixon's extra point gave Wakefield a 7-6 lead.

The inspired Trojan defense held Emerson to five yards on the next series following a kickoff through the endzone. Each team had a crack at moving the ball but the Pirates saw their final chance fade away when Starzl broke through the line untouched and sacked an Emerson player on a fourth and seven play at the 16.

Wakefield took over at the Emerson nine with three minutes remaining. Roberts carried to the three and two plays later moved the ball within inches of a touchdown. Roberts scored on a dive play with 57 seconds in the game.

A two-point conversion pass from Starzl to Rod Nixon was called back because of a motion penalty. So Nixon booted the PAT for a 14-6 lead. Emerson ran out of time and the Trojans held on to claim the win.

ROBERTS CARRIED the ball 28 times for 123 yards. Clay had 59 yards on 13 carries and Starzl had 19 yards. Starzl had three punt returns for 19 yards and one kickoff return for 21 yards. Passing was Wakefield's weakpoint. Starzl completed only one of nine pass attempts. Clay completed two of three.

"I felt like we sort of had the game under control. We just couldn't get in for a TD," said Wilbur. "Starzl's tackle on fourth down was a key play and we kept going from there. Our offense fired up and our defense played real well. It was indicative of our season. We woke up and revived our competitive spirit."

The fourth period was dominated by the Trojans who rushed for 99 yards and had 19 offensive plays compared to 11 for Emerson.

The Pirates lost 10 yards rushing in the final stanza and gained only 20 yards passing.

Defensive leaders for Wakefield were: Echtenkamp with three solos, seven assists and a blocked PAT; Vaughn Nixon with one solo and seven assists; Jon Pretzer with two solos and four assists including a tackle for a 13 yard loss; Starzl with three solos and six assists including two tackles for losses of 13 yards. Gary Tullberg with six assists including two for losses of 22 yards.

Blue Devils Finish Season with 3-6 Record

A couple of long runs turned out to be game breakers as the Wayne Blue Devils completed their season Thursday with a 20-8 loss to O'Neill. The loss brought Wayne's final record to 3-6.

"The season, as a whole, was real successful. Take away the two overtime losses and 30 seconds of the Lakeview game and we would have had a winning record," Wayne coach Lonnie Ehrhardt said. "Other than scoring and passing offense we were ahead of our opponents in every statistical category this year."

"Our seniors all did a real good job and we'll miss them but we have a good crew with a lot of experience coming back," said Ehrhardt. Seniors who will graduate from Wayne next spring are: Jim Sperry, Mark Hummel, Al Lindsay, Rich Poehlman, Jeff Moore, Dallas Hansen, Mark Botenkamp, Eric Brink, Steve Stadek and Larry Lueders.

FRIDAY'S GAME against O'Neill just wasn't the type of performance the Wayne coaching was hoping for. The Blue Devils struggled offensively against O'Neill's alert defense.

Defensively, Wayne played pretty well except for costly breakdowns. The Devils forced the hosts to punt six times and did an effective job except for big yardage plays. However, those breakout plays broke the Blue Devils down.

Defenses were prevalent in the early portion of the game but O'Neill quarterback Greg Auen broke free to score the Eagles' first touchdown on a 37-yard scamper with 7:19 remaining in the first quarter. The extra point was good and a face mask penalty against Tim Heier was assessed on the kickoff.

O'Neill tried to take advantage of the field position by attempting an on-side kick but the ball was recovered by Wayne's Kevin Koenig. The Devils were unable to move the ball and had to punt. Both teams tried unsuccessfully to move the ball during the remainder of the first quarter.

WAYNE KEPT the Eagles deep in their own territory and had one opportunity to drive for a touchdown. A punt by Steve Overin carried to the O'Neill 31. A personal foul against the hosts backed the ball to the 15-yard line where O'Neill faced a first and 25 situation. After a seven yard gain, defensive captain Eric Brink broke through the line and nailed O'Neill's quarterback for an eight yard loss. Wayne held and received a punt at the Blue Devil 36.

Danny Frevert made a 12-yard run. Jeff McCright carried 14 and Overin moved the ball six yards as the Devils marched into O'Neill territory. However, the drive stalled at the O'Neill 36-yard line.

The teams exchanged possession of the ball as the defensive units outplayed the offenses. With time running out in the first half, the Eagles took advantage of one last opportunity.

AFTER McCRIGHT made a hard tackle on an O'Neill punt returner, the hosts moved the ball into Wayne territory. Facing a fourth down and six situation at the Wayne 22, O'Neill converted with 59 seconds remaining in the half.

A completed pass gave the hosts a first and goal at the Wayne eight. With 40 seconds left, Steve Loy carried the ball in for the nine. The point-after gave O'Neill a 14-0 half-time lead.

Wayne received the second half kickoff but the offensive line had trouble moving off the ball and the visitors had to punt. On O'Neill's next possession, Auen carried the ball from Wayne's 49 down to the eight.

Bruce Ritts scored from three yards out for O'Neill's final score with 8:25 left in the third quarter. The PAT was blocked with the hosts leading 20-0.

THE BLUE DEVILS scored their only touchdown following a turnover. Kevin Koenig knocked the ball loose from an O'Neill ball carrier and Brian Loberg recovered the ball for Wayne at the O'Neill 36 with 30 seconds remaining in the third period.

Following a couple of runs by Frevert, McCright moved the ball down to O'Neill's eight. Frevert carried to the three and two players later, Overin scored on a quarterback sneak from inches. Frevert took the ball in for a two-point conversion with 10:24 left in the game and Wayne trailing 20-6.

Wayne kept its hopes alive when Frevert and Koenig recovered an on-side kick at the O'Neill 46. However, O'Neill's defense held. On fourth down, the Devils took a punt but Koenig was tackled short of the first down. The Eagles held Wayne's offense throughout most of the fourth quarter and used their successful sweep plays to eat up the time and preserve a 20-8 win.

LEADING PERFORMANCE for the Blue Devils was turned in by McCright. The Wayne junior, who was elected from the game along with O'Neill's Keith Loy for a late game skirmish, carried the ball 11 times for 60 yards and made 13 tackles.

Frevert carried 20 times for 80 yards and Kurt Janke had 15 yards on four carries. Other players who carried the ball were Overin, Rich Poehlman, Koenig and Mark Hummel.

Defensively, Frevert and Loberg had tumble recoveries. Tim Heier had four unassisted tackles and 12 assists. Dallas Hansen had two solos and 14 assists. Koenig had one solo and 13 assists. McCright had six solos and seven assists. Brink had nine tackles and three assists.

Overin, Frevert and Mark Kubik had six each, Rich Poehlman and Jim Poehlman had five apiece, Janke had four, Terry Gilliland had three, Loberg had two and John Jacobmeyer, Tim Book, John Carhart, Bob Liska and Hummel each had one.

O'Neill, which relied on the sweep play much of the night, had two 100-yard rushers. Mike Hedlund carried 23 times for 111 yards and Auen carried 17 times for 132 yards.

"We stopped ourselves in the first half. Their second quarter touchdown probably was the difference in the game," Wayne coach Lonnie Ehrhardt said. "McCright played a really good ball game for us. Frevert had a good game, Dallas Hansen had a real good game and O'Neill's coach Larry Frost was real impressed with Brink."

The Blue Devils finished second in the West Husker Conference this season.

Star of the Week
 For the second time this season two players share the honor of star of the week. Two individuals cannot be overlooked in their outstanding efforts which led their teams to victory a week ago.
 They are Mark Starzl of Wakefield and Barry Bowers of Winside. Quarterback Starzl completed 7 of 8 passes for 200 yards in a 42-16 win over Bancroft last Friday. Starzl's only incompletion was the last pass he threw in the game. The Trojans won their eighth consecutive game by downing Bancroft.
 Bowers is a versatile player and did a fine job in his first role as starting fullback. He carried the ball only eight times but racked up 126 yards in a 30-12 win over Hartington. Defensively, Bowers made nine solo tackles and two assists to become career leader at Winside.
 Other players who were nominated:
 Tim Heier of Wayne who made 25 tackles in Wayne's 26-7 loss to West Husker champion Hartington CC.
 Dave Marquardt who was the leading tackler in Laurel's loss to Wausa. Marquardt completed four passes and rushed for 72 yards in addition to intercepting a pass.

NEW BAND DIRECTOR

This year, Laurel-Concord has a new band director, Craig Rostad.

Since his stay at Laurel, the band has already won a second place trophy.

Before Rostad came to Laurel, he spent two years in South Dakota, where he directed a jazz combo and a concert band.

Recently, the Laurel band marched to the music of "9 to 5" and "Give Me The Night," for half time entertainment at the football game.

The concert number, "South," featured the seniors in a solo section.

FOREIGN STUDENTS

The student body of Wayne High School has an international flavor this school year with the addition of senior Dora Floraki from Greece, senior Luisamella Pino from Venezuela and freshman Enny Okubanjo from Nigeria. The three girls were interviewed this week concerning their homelands and their impressions of Nebraska.

Dora Floraki, an 18-year-old American Field Service foreign exchange student, is from Halan-dri, Greece. Her hometown, located a half-hour bus ride from Athens, has a population of 100,000. She is a senior at Wayne High School.

Cotton, corn, wheat and oranges are the common crops. Little food is pre-packaged. Many varieties of delicious fresh fruits and vegetables are available, but meat is consumed only two or three times a week.

Greek houses are constructed of cement, and the home is always locked. Most housepets are cats.

The main transportation is by bus, as most families do not own more than one car.

Church services are attended every Saturday.

The school system requires six years of elementary and three years of high school. A test is given after high school. The results will place the student in medicine, law or basic trades.

The school day begins at 8 a.m. and dismisses at 1 or 2 p.m., with five or 10 minute breaks between classes. During these breaks, the students have access to vending machines. Students have one classroom, and the teachers move from room to room. Dora says school subjects are more difficult in Greece, but tests are only given every three months.

Dress in Greek schools is also different. The school dress code for girls is a uniform that consists of a blue dress. No one carries a comb in his or her back pocket and any girl who combs her hair in class is dismissed.

School sports are volleyball and basketball. Band and choir are not part of the school program.

All students in Dora's school speak with a friendly, "Hi, how are you?" always receiving a friendly response.

Dora is residing with the Dick Diltman family and anticipates a year full of new experiences.

Dawn Droeoscher

The beautiful brown eyes of Luisamella Pino, better known as Chummy, give a warm welcome to her many new found friends. She is a 17 year old senior at Wayne High School who arrived here in late August from Venezuela through the American Field Service (AFS) program.

WAYNE HIGH SCHOOL'S foreign students: Dora Floraki, Tuisamella Pino and Enny Okubanjo.

Chummy became interested in the AFS program last year when her older sister went to Maryland through the same program. She also had a foreign exchange sister from Wisconsin last year. She decided to attend an AFS meeting, wrote an essay telling some of her likes and dislikes, was accepted into the program and was placed in the Robert Dolata home here in Wayne.

Chummy's family lived in Lawrence, Kan. for two years, but moved back to Venezuela after her parents got their masters degrees. She has traveled extensively throughout the United States. She has two brothers and two sisters. Her parents are both English teachers at the University of Venezuela, which probably accounts for her clearly spoken English.

The greatest adjustment for Chummy was coming from Valencia, a city of almost a million people, to this small community. She spent some time in New York City during an orientation for all the AFS students coming to the United States and liked it very much.

She likes the school and the teachers here. She commented that school is easier here than in Venezuela, even though the school day in Wayne is much longer than her usual 7 a.m. to noon Monday-Friday classes in Venezuela. Next year she plans to go to the University of Venezuela and study to be a dentist.

In her spare time, Chummy likes to go out with her friends. She likes almost any sport, loves animals (the horse is her favorite) and enjoys the out of doors.

During the first few weeks in Wayne she found it hard to adjust and was a little homesick, but as time went on she felt more at home. She still misses a few things from Venezuela, but has come here with a positive attitude. Chummy came here to have a great time, gain new friends and to have the best year ever.

Pam Ruwe

When walking through the halls of Wayne High School, one may catch a glimpse of a friendly 12-year-old Nigerian girl, Enny Okubanjo, who attends Wayne High as a freshman.

Enny's mother, Edith, attends Wayne State College and her father is an ambassador in Nigeria.

Enny, who has one sister and two brothers, will be living in Wayne for the next three years while her mother attends college.

Although there are many differences between the United States and Nigeria, Enny finds some similarities. Life in Nigeria is "very nice" and the houses are similar to those in Nebraska.

Nebraska weather, however, is very cold compared to that of Nigeria where the temperature never goes below 70 degrees.

If one were to buy clothes in Nigeria, they would cost considerably more than they do here. Nigerian schools vary in size and are much like ours.

Entertainment is also similar. Sports are very popular in Nigeria, as they are here. The popular sports include basketball, football, tennis, kickball, boxing and wrestling.

The sports Enny enjoys are softball, track and wrestling. People in her country go to clubs and discos for entertainment. Enny likes Wayne very much and enjoys all her school classes.

The American foods she has developed a taste for are spaghetti, rolls and macaroni. The only things she misses in Nigeria are her friends.

The club also decided on the format of the upcoming meetings. Following the formal meeting will be "Wusstest Du Das?" ("Did You Know That?"), an informative program on Germany.

ALL-STATE

Eleven Wayne High School band and choir students traveled to Creighton, in early October to audition for the annual Nebraska Music Educator's State Clinic, commonly referred to as All-State. Four choir members and three band members from Wayne were chosen.

Students selected for the All-State Choir were sopranos Mandy Peterson and Stacy Marsh, and Michelle Sherlock and bass Tom Fletcher. Students selected for All-State Band were Kara Kugler, drums; Dawn Droeoscher, French horn; and Mark Hummel, trombone.

These seven students will attend a three-day workshop on Nov. 19-21 at Nebraska Wesleyan University in Lincoln. They will be performing a concert for the public on Saturday, Nov. 21.

This year, to add foreign flavor to the choir concert, Latin, German and Italian songs will be sung. The band will be performing several concert selections.

WAYNE HIGH CHOIR

The Wayne High Lecture Hall will be the setting for the Wayne High Fall Vocal Concert on Nov. 12 at 8:15 p.m. Both the concert choir and the swing choir will perform.

A few of the numbers that the choir will sing are "Movin' On," three folk songs by Johannes Brahms, "Sing," and a medley of songs called "Americana."

Robert Stuber, the new choir director, hopes the audience will be able to detect the changes in the choir and see the improvements. He said that the choir has great potential and is capable of doing things other Nebraska choirs can't do. The choir is hardworking and is going to have a good year.

Stuber's plans for the Wayne High choir this year include a Christmas concert, a musical and a spring concert.

FRIDAY THE 13TH

If you suffer from triskaldekaphobia, you are not alone.

Friday the 13th puts fear into the hearts of many people.

The number 13 itself is avoided when possible. Hotel rooms, floors and city houses sometimes skip the number 13 because many people believe it is unlucky.

It is also believed that if 13 people eat at a table, one of the people will die before the year is out; and that if a clock strikes 13, there will be a death in the family.

Christians have considered Friday as "Black Day" because Jesus was crucified on Friday. Friday has always been considered an unlucky day to start a project or leave on a trip or vacation.

It is said that on a certain Friday the 13th, 10,000 witches and warlocks gathered in an English cemetery to dance on graves and turn over tombstones in celebration of Satan's Black Mass.

So, triskaldekaphobians, watch your step on Friday, Nov. 13.

Teacher

"He sat down and then he autographed...he was very good about that," she said, explaining that she attended the dinner party because of the "old faculty," not Carson.

Jones said Carson was constantly supervised by his producer and several other attendants.

SHE EXPLAINED that he was not allowed to eat dinner, nor dance with the guests.

"He only made four short appearances during the evening and then they'd whisk him away," she said, remembering that a program was scheduled for the evening with Carson.

"The producer decided to cut it, so they just presented him with a plaque," Jones continued. "The (Carson) read a letter from a girl in the second grade with him. 'She didn't like him then and said she still didn't like him,' Jones added, explaining that in the second grade, Carson had told his classmates to avoid picking her for a team because "she runs like a duck."

JONES SAID that Carson told the audience he was going to have the note framed to keep him humble.

"He may be the highest paid man in the country, but he hasn't grown up much," Jones said. "He's still a boy immature."

Jones said that she and her friends were close to Carson when he came into the ballroom. She said she could see that whenever six or seven people would gather about him, the aides would take him out of the room.

"Though he was back home, his producer watched him so carefully," she said. "He made a late entrance with cameras and booms (microphones)."

Noting that Carson did exactly as he was told, Jones said: "It's amazing to me that a man with that much money and that much control of his own program is told what to do."

JONES RECALLED teaching two Latin classes with 30 to 35 students in each.

She said that Carson "must have been well behaved" because she doesn't remember any discipline problem with him. Nor does she remember any particular learning experience with student Carson.

"When he came over to our table I asked him whether he remembered the junior high school programs," Jones said, explaining the students produced entertainment programs and talent programs each year.

MILDRED JONES looks through 'milestones' booklet.

"He said he did magic tricks for the junior program and the senior amateur talent program," she said. "I think he did his magic card tricks."

JONES REMEMBERED that Latin was not a required subject "but almost everybody took it." She said she had to check with Carson first before she would do any "bragging" about being his teacher.

Carson confirmed it in the reception line as she shook his hand on Monday night, Oct. 19. Jones did not venture to Norfolk as a Carson fan during the days of filming that preceded his appearance at the reunion.

She said she is "not necessarily" a Carson television fan. "I enjoy some of his programs from time to time," she said. "I watch him if I'm not sleepy."

Jones said she doesn't like "some of the things he says" on the late night television show, particularly "the way he puts down those young women trying to make it in show business."

JONES ADMITTED she has been making an extra effort to catch Carson on television during the last few weeks "to see if he had anything to say about his visit here."

She said he has mentioned a few things about the visit. An 11 year resident of Altona, Jones is the daughter of an Iowa country school teacher and a Wayne State College graduate.

The oldest of four children born to live and Pearl Reid, Jones has a brother and a sister who also have retired from teaching careers.

Brother Ronald, 74, a Wayne State College graduate, retired as principal of a junior high school in Idaho.

Sister Mercedes, 72, also a Wayne State College graduate was a career teacher in the Fremont High School before retirement.

YOUNGEST BROTHER Kevin, also retired, was a member of the Wayne Police Department for 19 years. He attended Wayne State College before joining the police force.

With a teaching career that spanned 50 years, Jones retired herself in 1974 after 20 years as an English teacher and department supervisor at WSC.

Her parents moved to northeast Nebraska when she was a year old because mother wanted all her kids to have a college education. "So they picked Wayne."

The family farmed near Laurel for several years before moving to another farmstead between Carroll and Wayne.

She attended country school District 48, one of the oldest in the county. They moved it away now, but I think it was there during the Blizzard of '88, she said.

JONES STARTED school in the third grade at the same time her brother, Ronald, started at the second grade level.

My mother taught us at home," she said. "She thought we were too little to be walking all that way to school."

Both children were tested and placed in the grades ahead of their age. "I went into the third grade at six or seven years old. He (Ronald) started in the second grade when he was only five," she said.

A 1922 Wayne High School graduate, Jones got her two year teaching certificate from WSC in 1924.

Four years later she had earned her bachelor's degree in education from WSC through summer school and correspondence, while continuing to teach.

JONES' FIRST taught sixth graders at Hartington. "I wanted to teach high school, but the head of the department (Dean Hahn of WSC) said it was too young to teach at the high school level," she explained.

Jones was 18 when she relocated and went to Hartington. "Some started teaching in country schools younger than that," she added.

After Hartington, she went to the Carroll High School for three years, spending the last one as school principal. There she taught history, English and business math as well as serving as the girls' basketball team coach.

"We had a perfect record the those first two years, but then they dropped girls' basketball because they said it was too rowdy," she explained.

AFTER CARROLL, Jones taught in Wisner. "The principal resigned half way through the 1928 school year, so she took over. There two years, Jones was principal for a year and a half."

She left Wisner to get her masters degree at the University of Minnesota. But when she got it in 1931, the country was in a depression.

"That was the year the Depression hit and when I got through, it was very difficult to get a job," she remembered.

She did get one, though, in Emerson. There she taught Latin and English for a year before joining Norfolk Senior High School in 1932.

"I went there to teach five classes of English, but ended up teaching all the Latin...that's where Johnny Carson comes in," she said. "I taught him 40 years ago."

JONES ALSO taught Carson's sister, Catherine Solzing, who also lives in California.

The career teacher married carpenter Roscoe W. Jones of Carroll in 1941 and left teaching.

"In those days, when you got married you had to give up teaching," she explained.

The Jones family lived in a house now owned by Phil Olaisen of Farmers State Bank, Carroll.

"I became a housewife and took care of his mother, who was an invalid," she said. Her mother-in-law died in 1951.

By that time her husband's health was failing. "I went back to teaching," she said. "I had to renew my certificate."

Jones went to Allen High School as principal in 1952. She and her husband moved there.

"That was the busiest year of my life, but it was an interesting year," she added. "I had every kid in high school for English."

IN 1954, Jones came to Wayne to teach English at the Wayne State College campus school. She taught there nine years before joining the college faculty as an English teacher and department supervisor.

Two years before retiring from WSC, she and her husband bought a house in Altona.

"I couldn't conceive retiring in an apartment in Wayne. We liked it out here," she said, gesturing toward the window.

The couple moved to the white, two story house on a corner lot in Altona in 1970.

In 1973, Roscoe Jones died of a heart attack.

Mildred Jones, and "Pal," her cat, have stayed in Altona, where she gardens on the one acre lot surrounded by an iron fence in Wayne County's first settlement.

Today, Jones reads, gardens, quilts and stays active in a number of clubs, including Delta Kappa Gamma and the Wayne Area Retired Teachers Association.

There's still nothing I like better than teaching," she said.

SHERIAN FREY holds Carson's wall signature.

Collection

INCLUDED IN the package that arrived by courier Thursday was an original penmanship lesson signed by Carson during his elementary school years.

Ink on white, lined paper, the penmanship lesson was signed "John Carson."

With the Carson lesson, were six similar penmanship lessons done by his classmates. Carson wanted those framed to give to those classmates as mementos.

Also included was a small section of a pressed board wall. The wall section displayed Carson's signature and the date (1943).

That, too, was to be framed for the night time television star.

"THEY WANTED it Friday night," Carlos explained. "But, we got them to move the deadline to Monday."

Sherian was working on the Carson order Friday in her framing studio after her morning teaching schedule at Wayne State College. This job is different, though. Sherian said the production crew representative told her: "We trust your judgement."

That eliminated all the telephone calls. "The framing is in our hands," Sherian said.

Carlos said the company would be sending another courier to the studio Monday morning to pick up the framed posters, penmanship and wall signature.

CARSON'S LESSON involved writing: "Connie Collins came to Columbus with the clock."

It was written twice in blue ink on the sheet of white penmanship paper. The second effort had a short word crossed out.

No grade appeared on Carson's work. Obviously pleased with the order, the Freys examined the posters, noting that one had to be cleaned up some. The wall section signature shows a number of other markings that will be cut away so just the name "John Carson" and the date appear, Sherian said.

THE DAUGHTER of a pilot, Sherian met Carlos in Liberal, Kans. The portrait artist's hometown.

Married in 1965, the couple moved to Wayne in 1966. Carlos, also a sculptor, taught in the WSC Art Department for 10 years.

The couple opened the art studio at Seventh and Logan streets in 1976. In 1978, they bought the buildings that now house Mid America Art Studio, where Carlos works full time.

The Freys have two children, Chad, 10, and Troy, 8. Chad is a fifth grader at the Wayne Middle School. Troy is a second grader at Wayne Elementary School.

Conferences Scheduled For Parents, Teachers In Wayne City Schools

Parent teacher conferences for the Wayne-Carroll Schools have been scheduled for Nov. 5, according to Wayne High School Principal Donald V. Zeiss.

Zeiss said school will dismiss on Thursday, Nov. 5, at 2 p.m. with buses running on time.

Conferences are scheduled to start at 2:15 p.m. Thursday and end at 4:45 p.m.

Zeiss said the conferences have been scheduled according to the last name of the parents.

THURSDAY evening has been set aside for parents who are unable to attend the afternoon sessions.

The evening sessions begin at 6:30 p.m. and end at 9 p.m., according to Zeiss.

The conferences continue on Friday (no school), running from 8:30 a.m. to noon, and resuming at 1:15 p.m. The sessions end Friday at 4:45 p.m.

Zeiss said the conferences should last no longer than 15 minutes, with teachers in the classrooms for the sessions.

National Honor Society members will assist parents in locating staff members at the high school.

WAYNE MIDDLE School conferences will follow the same format as those at the high school, according to Zeiss.

He said elementary school conferences will also begin at 2:15 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 5, and will be scheduled for parents as has been past practice.

"Conferences are just one of the steps we are taking to work with parents to build their child's educational program," Zeiss explained.

"They serve as an opportunity (for parents) to get to know teachers, learn about the school and curriculum, and to discuss strengths and weaknesses in a variety of areas," he added.

Zeiss urged parents to prepare for the conferences by making a list of things "that will help the teachers understand your child better."

HE SAID some examples might include special health needs or problems, outside interests and hobbies, and school relationships with brothers and sisters.

The Wayne High School principal also suggested that parents inquire about school discipline and grading policies, daily schedules, homework requirements and health and safety programs.

Teachers, he said, will share test results with parents and interpret the scores.

In addition, teachers and parents will be free to discuss the child's strengths and weaknesses in school, with suggestions on how parents can.

"When the conference is over, parents should have a better understanding of all aspects of their child's school experience," Zeiss explained.

HE SAID parents should leave the conferences with a plan to help their children "do their best."

Zeiss said the plan could range from such things as new rules on television watching to set-aside time for homework.

"Everyone benefits from a parent-teacher conference," he added.

"Parents learn new things about their children, teachers understand each child better and the child receives a better, more personalized, education."

THE SCHEDULE for the early-November conferences is:

Session I — Thursday, Nov. 5, 2:15 to 4:45 p.m., for parents with last names beginning in A-I.

Session II — Thursday, Nov. 5, 6:30 to 9 p.m., open conferences for parents unable to attend afternoon sessions.

Session III — Friday, Nov. 6, 8:30 a.m. to noon, for parents with last names beginning in J-R.

Session IV — Friday, Nov. 6, 1:15 to 4:45 p.m., for parents with last names beginning in S-Z.

Costume Winners

KIDS IN COSTUMES crowded the Friday night Halloween Party at the Wayne City Auditorium. Wayne Kiwanis Club judges selected four winners — two for traditional costumes and two for most original costumes. In kindergarten through first grade Jay O'Leary, top left, and Amy Jenkins, top right, won. O'Leary was dressed as a turtle. Jenkins was a ghost. First and second grade winners were Aaron Wilson, bottom left, and Angie Rasmussen, bottom right. Wilson was Count Dracula. Rasmussen came dressed as the "Star Wars" robot, R2-D2.

Ma Bell Offering New Dial Service

Area telephone customers can now use a new long distance service that is faster and more convenient for certain calls from home, business and coin phones. Northwestern Bell has expanded the direct dial long distance service to include "Zero Plus Calling" effective October 27 in Wayne. The new service allows customers to direct dial all calls to distant numbers, even those they could previously make only through an operator.

person, collect and credit card calls with "Zero Plus Calling." To use the new service, Berglund said customers should dial "zero," plus the area code if different from 402, plus the out of town number. An operator will break in to obtain necessary billing information, such as the type of call being placed. Ordinary station to station long distance calls will still be made by first dialing "one," and are billed at a lower rate than "Zero Plus" calls.

which will provide the most modern, cost efficient long distance service to communities throughout north central Nebraska. Sixty eight communities served by Northwestern Bell's long distance equipment in Norfolk will be added to the "Zero Plus Calling" system by mid 1982. "Zero Plus" calls will be routed through Norfolk to an operator base unit located in Omaha.

Introducing

ZERO-PLUS

Zero-Plus Calling is the fast, easy way to make person-to-person, collect calls, calls charged to your credit card or any calls requiring the assistance of an operator.

Here's how to direct-dial a Zero-Plus Call (NOTE: After you dial, the operator will break in to ask which type of call you are placing.)

Person-to-Person

DIAL ZERO+ the area code if different from your own + the out-of-town number. Simply say you are calling person-to-person and who you want to speak to.

Credit Card Calls

DIAL ZERO+ the area code if different from your own + the out-of-town number. Just say "Credit Card," and give your card number.

Collect Calls

DIAL ZERO+ the area code if different from your own + the out-of-town number. Give your name and say that you are calling collect.

These calls have a higher rate than those you dial direct without using the operator. And there's a three-minute minimum charge on operator-assisted calls.

For lowest rates, call station-to-station just as you've been doing, by dialing direct, without operator assistance. That way, extra savings are also possible through the one-minute minimum charge. Information about long distance calling and money-saving tips are in the Customer Guide section of your phone book.

*Low dial-it-yourself rates also apply on calls placed with an operator where direct dialing facilities are not available.

Storyteller's Tales Ghostly
