AFTER SETTING the arraignment date, Judge Duggan reduced Thorne's bond from $100,000 (10 percent) to $50,000 (also 10 percent).

"THE COURT finds that a crime has been committed," Judge Duggan said after more than two hours of sworn testimony by the Kleinschmidt's widow, Cross, and several

Auditors say city books in top form

Wayne's financial picture is in good shape. And, the management of Wayne's financial affairs is getting stronger.

THE ACCOUNTANT also told the Council that the city has done an excellent job of keeping expenditures within the budget and managing cash.

The apple of your eye

AUTUMN'S FROST has ripped scarlet garments from the trees, leaving them naked in the Nebraska sunshine. But November's dance to summer's death has not shaken this steadfast apple from the branch that nursed it from blossom to wild fruit. This apple of your eye awaits winter from where hangs...helpless before the storm.

Engineers to examine elementary school School Board hires firm for energy audit

The Wayne-Carroll Schools board of education has taken another step on the road to applying for state matching funds to help underwrite the cost of energy conservation projects at the Wayne Elementary School.

THE THIRD phase is construction. During that phase, energy conservation projects approved by the board and

Conference attendance high

Attendance hit 100 percent in three instances during the recent two-day parent-teacher conferences in the Wayne-Carroll Schools.

TOTAL ATTENDANCE at Wayne Elementary School hit 99.37 percent, just a few percentage points behind Carroll Elementary School's mark.

ACCORDING to Principal Donald Zeiss, the high school experienced the largest group of ninth and 10th grade parents attending since the inception of the conferences in 1977.

HOWEVER, THE accountant warned that the city needed to become concerned with what he termed "long-range planning."

police report

Wayne police investigated two motor vehicle accidents Tuesday, including a hit-and-run.

Police were called to the 200 block of Third Street west at 12:15 p.m. Tuesday where a car owned by David Cooley, Wayne, had been struck by an unknown driver.

According to police, a two-vehicle accident occurred at a parking stall along the south side of the street, striking the Cooley car, a 1976 Toyota, on the driver's side.

The Cooley car was parked at the time of the accident.

POLICE ALSO investigated a two-vehicle accident Tuesday morning.

A car driven by Jeffrey Beckman, Pilger, was struck by a tractor-trailer making a right hand turn from Main Street onto Seventh Street east, according to police.

Howard M. Oberle, O'Neill, driver of the 1975 Peterbilt tractor trailer, told police he was attempting to make the turn at the Main Street-Seventh Street intersection when the accident happened.

Beckman, driving a 1977 Buick, pulled alongside the tractor-trailer, which had stopped at the traffic signal, according to police.

THE TRUCK drove into the left-hand turning lane on Main Street in an effort to clear the corner during the right-hand turn, police said.

In the process of turning, the truck struck the front end of the Beckman vehicle, which had stopped in the right-hand lane, according to police accident reports.

Beckman told police he thought the tractor-trailer driver had intended to turn left, rather than right.

No injuries were reported in the accident.

ON MONDAY, police investigated a two-vehicle accident in the 100 block of Second Street west.

A car driven by Patricia Luft, Wayne, was struck by a vehicle being backed out of a parking stall along the south side of the street near the State National Bank and Trust Co., according to police.

The Luft vehicle, a 1976 Chevrolet, was turning into the bank's drive-in window station when a car driven by Bertha S. Nelson, Newman Grove, backed into the driver's door, police said.

The Nelson car, a 1976 Chrysler, had been parked next to the drive-in driveway entrance, according to police accident reports.

POLICE ALSO are investigating the Friday night theft of Mercury "honeycomb" hubcaps from a car owned by Wayne Rastede, Allen.

Rastede reported the hubcaps were taken between 10:30 and 11 p.m. Friday while the vehicle was parked near the Windmill Restaurant on Third Street west.

In addition, police received a report Saturday of a Bob's Derby customer paying for $10 worth of gasoline with a $1 bill.

The subject left the gasoline station driving a rust colored Oldsmobile Cutlass with a white top. Police were unable to locate the car or the driver.

Singers plan 'Christmasset Feastes'

One of the most popular Christmas programs at Wayne State College, the "Elizabethan Christmasset Feastes," are scheduled for Dec. 10 through Dec. 13.

The "Christmasset Feastes" have been an annual event sponsored by the Wayne State College Madrigal Singers every holiday season for the past 10 years.

All four "Feastes" are scheduled to begin at 7 p.m. in the North Dining room of the WSC Student Center.

SATURDAY evening has been designated as a special 10th anniversary "Reunion Night" for former members of the WSC Madrigal Singers.

Dr. Cornell Runestad, director of the Madrigal Singers, expects a large turnout, though limited seating to the public is available for Saturday.

THE "CHRISTMASSE FEASTES" are based on the lavish dinners of 16th century England, or the Elizabethan period.

Madrigal Singers will be costumed in clothing of that era, and a traditional English holiday banquet will be served, including roast beef, wassail, flaming Christmas pudding, Yorkshire pudding, and other treats.

CONTINUING a tradition started two years ago, two local couples will preside as "Lorde and Ladye of the House" on two of the nights of the "Feastes."

Thursday evening's "Lorde and Ladye" will be Mr. and Mrs. Harold (Jim) Hein, while Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Marsh will preside Sunday evening.

On Friday, the "Lorde and Ladye" will be Dr. and Mrs. Ed Elliott, while Saturday's honored couple will be Dr. and Mrs. Lyle Seymour.

Dr. Seymour is President of Wayne State College, and Dr. Elliott is WSC vice president.

TICKETS for the 10th annual "Elizabethan Christmasset Feastes" cost $8.75. Dinner tickets can be acquired by writing to Christmas Dinners, Wayne State College, Wayne, Neb., 68787.

Office sales will begin on Friday, Nov. 13, in the Fine Arts Office in the Val Peterson Fine Arts Center on the WSC campus. For further information, contact Dr. Cornell Runestad at Wayne State College, 402-375-2200, ext. 363.

A Parents Day victory

Wildcats' late rally nips Emporia

It took a near-miraculous finish in the final two minutes for the Wayne State College Wildcats to nip Emporia State 20-17 in Central States Intercollegiate Conference football action, Saturday.

The many "Parents Day" fans who filed out of WSC's Memorial Stadium early Saturday missed most of the action. A Wayne State fumble recovery and a successful 23 yard drive secured the come from behind victory for the hosts.

The Wildcats' hopes for victory appeared snuffed with 1:57 remaining in the game when Emporia's Kelly Neustrom intercepted a WSC pass at the ESU 16-yard line. However, two plays later, the Wildcat defense used a strong rush and hard hitting to knock the football free of quarterback Pat Cisper.

Wayne freshman Rob Tiedgen recovered the fumble giving WSC new life at the Emporia 23.

THE WILDCATS, trailing 17-13, took advantage of the turnover by mixing a rushing and passing attack which moved the ball down to the Emporia three yard line. Then, Wakefield sophomore split end Scott Hallstrom grabbed a pass from quarterback Kelly Neustrom and stepped into the corner of the endzone for a three yard TD.

The Hornets gave the hosts one final scare when they moved the following kickoff from the Emporia 16 to the Wayne 45. But, Wayne State's defense tightened up and put an end to the Emporia drive. Kurt Brosamle knocked down Hornet passes on third and fourth down plays which protected the WSC lead and broke a two game losing streak.

The Wildcats had their problems until the final two minutes. They scored only two touchdowns in the game and trailed 14-13 at the half when their first point after attempt failed. Quarterback Kelly Neustrom brought to life a WSC offense that had scored only six points and netted barely 200 yards in Wayne State's last two losses. He completed 19 of 35 passes for 325 yards and led the Cats to 374 total yards. Those 19 pass receptions were split among seven different receivers.

THE FIRST TD of the game was set up on a 56-yard pass from Neustrom to Randy Frink midway through the first quarter. On the next play, Neustrom fired a 19 yard touchdown pass to tight end Ed Blackburn. The extra point failed when the center snap sailed over the kicker's head.

Emporia came back to take the lead in the second quarter. A 53-yard pass moved the ball to the Wayne 23. Seven plays later, quarterback Cisper sneaked over from the one and the visitors took a 7-6 lead.

The Wildcats came back by marching 65 yards to the Hornet one-yard line. Two passes from Neustrom to Pat Maxwell covered 55 yards. On second and goal, Emporia State recovered a fumble at the one to preserve its 7-6 advantage.

A short Emporia punt gave the Cats good field position at the Hornet 34. The Wildcats used seven plays to score the go-ahead touchdown, a two yard pass from Neustrom to Hallstrom. Maxwell's extra point gave Wayne a 13-7 lead.

JUST THREE MINUTES later, Emporia put together a scoring drive of its own. A 45 yard kickoff return started the Hornets' drive and Cisper passed to Mike Armstrong for a TD with 40 seconds left in the first half. The point after gave Emporia a 14-13 lead.

The third quarter was scoreless but the Hornets padded their lead with a 34 yard

An exchange of punts on the next two series put Wayne in a bind with only 2:59 remaining and a 17-13 deficit. Neustrom drove the Cats down to the Emporia 37 but a fourth-down pass was intercepted by Nusser with 1:57 in the game.

Wayne fans began to file out of the stadium and a dejected WSC offensive unit walked off the field. However, the Wildcat defense rose to the occasion and forced an Emporia fumble. Tiedgen's recovery opened a new door for the hosts at the 23 yard line with 1:46 remaining.

MAXWELL GAINED seven yards on a reverse. Neustrom carried 10 yards to the six, then added three yards on a keeper and finally connected with Hallstrom for the winning touchdown pass. Maxwell's extra point gave WSC a 20-17 lead.

Maxwell finished the game as WSC's leading receiver with seven receptions for 100 yards. The senior wideback also led the team in rushing with 23 yards on four carries.

Ed Blackburn caught three passes for 61 yards and a TD and Hallstrom made four receptions for 20 yards and two TD's. Running backs Randy Frink and Tony Marinella each caught just one pass but they covered 36 and 45 yards respectively.

A number of Wildcats were standouts on defense. Sophomore middle guard Russ Gade of Laurel, making his first start in place of injured senior Paul Sobanski, had nine solo tackles and three assists. Kurt Brosamle logged 12 tackles and batted down two key passes in the final 20 seconds.

Senior tackle Ron Berrie posted 11 tackles before leaving late in the game with a leg injury. Sophomore defensive end Troy Thiem had 10 stops and forced one fumble, while freshman end Kevin McArdle had nine tackles including a 10 yard quarterback sack and a fumble recovery. Rod Tiedgen had five tackles and two pass deflections plus his key fumble recovery late in the contest.

The loss dropped Emporia to 2-7 on the year and 1-5 in the CSIC.

COACH DEL Stollenberg's Wildcats now have the chance to finish 5-0 in Saturday's season finale against Missouri Southern. The game is scheduled at 1:30 p.m. at Wayne's Memorial Field. WSC now stands 4-5 overall and 2-4 in the CSIC.

A final season victory would leave the Wildcats with five wins, the most since Stollenberg's 1977 squad went 7-3 during its first year in the CSIC.

WSC's Neustrom named CSIC Player of Week

For the second time this season, Wayne State senior quarterback Kelly Neustrom was named Central States Intercollegiate Conference Offensive Player of the Week. Thanks to his efforts in WSC's 20-17 win over Emporia State last Saturday, the 5'11, 180-pound Neustrom, a native of Mowbray, Iowa, completed 19 of 35 passes for 325 yards and three touchdowns in the Wildcat victory. He tossed the winning pass to split end Scott Hallstrom, a sophomore from Wakefield, from three yards out with 1:08 remaining.

Neustrom also earned CSIC Player of the Week accolades on Sept. 21 for his 289 yard passing effort in Wayne's 51-21 win over Midland.

Thanks to his sterling effort against Emporia State, Neustrom jumped from fourth to second on Wayne State's career passing list. Neustrom has thrown for 2,351 yards in his career, and surpassed number three all-time passer Dean deBurr (1962-65) with 2,075 yards and number two Steve Gunther (1966-67) with 2,206 yards.

What makes Neustrom's milestone particularly impressive is the fact that he played for three years in the shadow of all-time passing leader Rick Lade (1977-80) who passed for 3,413 career yards.

Wayne State hopes to finish the 1981 season with a 5-0 record this Saturday, when the Wildcats host the Lions of Missouri Southern in the conference and season finale. Kickoff time is 1:30 p.m. in Wayne's Memorial Stadium.

Randy's Recap

By Randy Hascall

THE FINALS of the high school football playoffs are scheduled tomorrow (Friday) and there should be some good matchups.

I made some private predictions of first round competition and missed a ton. However, I hit 9 of 12 games in the semifinals so I think I'll take a shot at the championship games.

In Class A, I'll stick with favored Omaha Westside over Omaha Northwest 20-14. In Class B, Aurora has been surprising everyone but Grand Island will be ready 21-6. Class C I could provide the best mat chup with Battle Creek facing David City Aquinas. I'll pick Aquinas 21-20.

Class C-2 pits Coleridge against Heider-son and on a hunch I'll take Coleridge 34-28 since the northeast Nebraskans have been playing so well lately. Shelby will handle Lawrence in Eight Man 1-48-34. And in High Man-2, I'll go with Deward in a 34-32 triumph over Madrid Wheatland.

VOLLEYBALL CHAMPIONSHIPS also are scheduled today and tomorrow in Lincoln, so I might as well make some predictions there.

In Class A, I look for Kearney to edge Bellevue East for the title. The Class B title will belong to powerful Columbus Lakeview which will defeat Omaha Roncalli. In Class C, I predict Central will top Grand Island CC for the championship. And in Class D, Hampton will top Sumner.

So much for my predictions.

I FEEL ANCIENT after looking over the rosters of the state football finalists. As many of you know I'm originally from David City.

While glancing over the Aquinas football roster which was sent to me as a media guide, I noticed some familiar names. I coached the starting quarterback and two of the running backs in Little League baseball quite a few years ago.

Two of the boys were pitchers and the other was a catcher. All three were fine athletes but I never had any idea they would one day be playing for the state football championship. That just shows that time really does fly.

It reminds me of my junior year in high school when our team won the Class C state title. However, I'm a graduate of David City High School, not Aquinas.

CONGRATULATIONS to all of the area athletes who earned all-conference honors in the Lewis & Clark Conference and West Husker Conference. Although the West Husker teams have not yet been named at press-time, all of the Lewis & Clark announcements have been made.

It is quite an honor to be one of the best athletes in a conference.

Looking back on the fall sports season, congratulations are in order for several area teams. The Allen volleyball team went undefeated until losing a regional playoff last Friday. The Eagles won every tournament they played including districts and were Lewis & Clark Conference champions.

Laurel, in its first year as a member of the Lewis & Clark Conference, won the Clark Division volleyball crown and gave Allen a good match in the Conference championship.

Wakefield, which had basically a slightly better than average volleyball season, came on strong in districts and finished as district runner-up after upsetting two teams in early round action. The Trojans gave Allen a good match in the district finals.

The Wayne volleyball team, which had a disappointing final record, won the West Husker Conference tournament title by defeating Hartington Cedar Catholic. The Blue Devils nearly upset North Bend in districts.

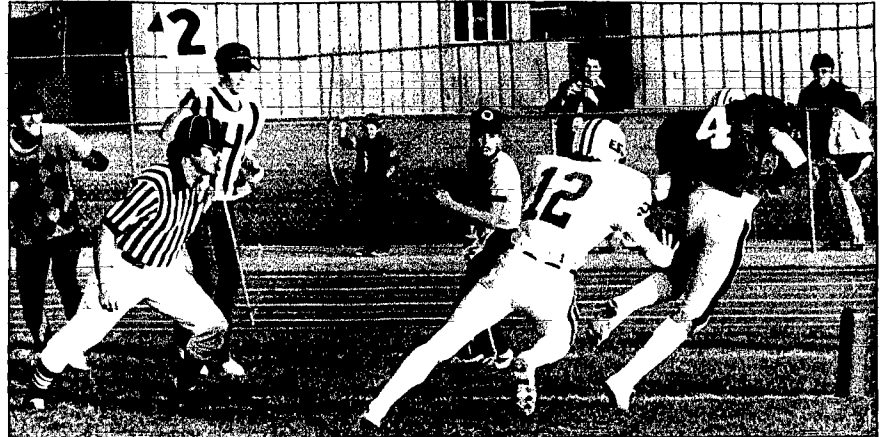

The Wakefield football team put together its first undefeated regular season since 1949 and won the division crown. The Trojans also won districts and earned a spot in the Class C-1 playoffs. The luck of the draw hurt Wakefield as the Trojans had to face the state's top rated team, Battle Creek in the first round. Those teams did a fine job and deserve credit for their performances.

NEBRASKA'S BIG RED seems to have found the winning combination and is really rolling along now. If the Huskers get by Iowa State this weekend, that sets up the annual shootout with Oklahoma for the conference championship.

The Sooners have been lucky in a couple of their games but unlucky against Southern Cal. Hopefully, tradition will change and Nebraska will win the Big Eight title this season. A lot of us won't be able to swallow another loss to the "other red."

It may sound absurd but Nebraska still has a shot at the national championship. Two losses will hurt the Huskers' hopes but few teams will have better records than Nebraska if it defeats Oklahoma. Pittsburg could get beat by Penn State and Clemson could still lose. USC may lose yet and Alabama and Georgia have to clash in Southeast Conference play.

If top teams keep getting upset, the Corn-huskers could earn a bowl game berth for an extremely high ranking. But, first we have to surprise Oklahoma.

SCOTT HALLSTROM of Wakefield was one of the heroes who led the Wayne State rally Saturday. Here Hallstrom catches his second touchdown pass of the day and tiptoes into the corner of the endzone for the winning points. With a big grin on his face he receives congratulations from his teammates including Dan Mitchell of Wayne.

Statistics of WSC Lady Cats given

Underclassmen played a major role for the 1981 Wayne State College volleyball team, according to final statistics. Coach Berniece Fulton's young spikers finished with a 10-28-4 record.

Annette Reiman closed the season leading the Lady Wildcats in four major statistical categories, including games played with 114. Reiman, a 5-5 All-Conference honoree, paced WSC in points with 213, topped the assists chart with 383, and led in digs with 32. She also ranked high in downed spikes with 81, in ace serves with 21, and in blocks with 24.

Deb Poehling closed out her collegiate career by leading Wayne State in downed spikes with 105. She was tied for first in blocks with 34 and she saw action in 105 games. The other senior on the squad, setter Linda Prchal rated high in assists with 347, scoring with 137, and ace serves with 21 as she played in 106 games.

Sophomore Anne Montag ranked high in a number of categories. Montag scored 174 points, had 107 downed spikes, 173 assists, 26 blocks and 22 ace serves while taking part in 97 games. Freshman Beth Erickson had a fine first season, leading the Cats in ace serves with 23, tying for first in blocks with 34, and ranking high in assists with 132, downed spikes with 83 and scoring with 129.

Sophomore Diane Wachholtz ranked high in downed spikes with 94, dinks with 24 and good blocks with 24. Junior Lois Kaminski scored 112 points and had 69 downed spikes.

Seventeen women saw varsity action for the 1981 Lady Wildcats.

CSIC predictions:

Wildcats tabbed 5th, women picked 8th

Central States Inter-collegiate Conference coaches predicted a fifth place finish for the Wayne State College men's basketball team and an eighth place spot for the women in a CSIC basketball luncheon Nov. 9 in Topeka, Kan.

Coach Rick Weaver's Wildcat cagers finished the 1980-81 season in fifth place in the CSIC with a conference record of 5-9 and an overall mark of 15-19. The Lady Wildcats placed eighth this past season with a 3-11 conference slate and 10-16 overall record, and are under the direction of first year Coach Jan Jirsak.

Kearney State was the coaches' choice to win the CSIC in the men's division. The Anelopes, who tied for second last year but earned a berth in the NAIA National Tournament, return 14 letterwinners from last year's 25-7 squad.

Defending men's champ Missouri Southern was picked to finish second, followed by Missouri Western, Washburn, Wayne State, Emporia State, Pittsburg State, and last year's pre season pick, Fort Hays State, in last place.

In the women's division, 1980-81 conference runner up Missouri Western was picked to win it all this winter. The defending conference champ, Emporia State, was picked for second, followed by Pittsburg State, a tie between Fort Hays State and Kearney State, Missouri Southern, Washburn, and Wayne State.

The Wildcats and Lady Wildcats will be previewed this Saturday (Nov. 14) when the women play an intrasquad game at 7 p.m. in Rice Auditorium, followed by the men's varsity alumni skirmish at 8 p.m. Admission is free.

Both Wayne State teams will open their seasons next week in the NAIA District 11 Pre Season Cage Classic. The men face Dana College on Nov. 18 at 9 p.m. in Kearney, while the women open one day later by facing Doane at Midland College in Fremont.

Board

His warning came in response to a question from Councilman Jerry Johnson, who inquired about the accounting firms comments on long-range planning.

THE ACCOUNTANT also briefly outlined the city's financial picture on pension plans in response to a question from Kern Swartz, legal counsel.

Swartz noted that much has been written about the pension plans of other cities in the state.

Nearby Norfolk has experienced municipal pension program funding difficulties.

Wayne, according to Elya, is also in excellent shape as far as municipal employee pension plans are concerned.

He said the city has had actuarial evaluations on the three municipal plans — a retirement benefit program, a police department retirement program and a general employee program.

Elya said the city should "never have trouble" with the retirement benefit program. Furthermore, he said the city had enough assets to cover the police plan.

THE GENERAL-employee plan, he said, is a money purchase program.

"Essentially, that means what you pay in to the plan, you get out of the plan," the accountant explained, indicating it should not cause the city any financial difficulties.

Elya did not present a line-for-line account of the firm's audit report, but offered to answer any questions from the Council.

Only Johnson, Wayne and Swartz asked for additional information.

After the Council meeting, Mayor Marsh explained that while all the accounting firm's recommendations and suggestions were excellent, the cost of implementing many were beyond a cost-benefit ratio for the city.

THE FIRM'S introductory remarks on the audit report supported the mayor's contention.

"Internal accounting controls are intended to provide reasonable, but not absolute, assurance that the objectives of management are achieved," the report's introduction stated.

"The concept of reasonable assurance recognizes that the cost of a system of internal accounting control should not exceed the benefits derived and also recognizes that the evaluation of these factors necessarily requires estimates and judgments by management."

In addition, the report praised the city administration for adopting procedures recommended by the firm in years past.

"WE WOULD like to commend the city and its staff for the sincere efforts to implement many of our recommendations we have made in prior years," the report stated.

"We understand the time and staffing constraints which have made it difficult to implement many of our recommendations," the report continued.

The report reviewed previous recommendations, including the long-range planning suggestion discussed by Johnson and Elya. The 12-page report recommended that the city consider modified encumbrance accounting for expenditures over a set dollar amount, such as $500.

Encumbrance accounting is a procedure that prevents overspending the budget and allows management to determine the uncommitted appropriations available at any date, the report explains.

"WE RECOGNIZE that with your present manual accounting system it would be difficult and probably not practical to go to a full encumbrance system," the auditors said.

Noting that the city maintains its books on a cash basis for all funds except enterprise funds, the auditors said the administration has considered the shift to a modified accrual basis of accounting.

The auditors recommended against it, recommending the limited encumbrance system as a better option.

With regard to the long-range planning recommendations, the auditors said such a plan "would encompass the expectations of the city's programs and priorities for the next several years."

Revenue forecasts could include anticipated growth in the tax base and population, as well as expected business development, inflation and other economic factors, the report said.

IN ADDITION, the auditors said, the goods and services projections could include maintenance costs for city facilities based on growth trends, the cost of complying with complex Federal regulations and major capital improvement project costs.

Furthermore, the projections could include cost estimates tied to recruitment objectives, training requirements and personnel retention incentives, the auditors noted.

On cash management, the auditors said: "While we recognize and commend the city for initiating preparation of some cash-flow information, we still believe that the city would benefit from the preparation of detailed and documented forecasts of cash needs and uses."

Another recommendation was the preparation of a long-range capital improvement budget.

"WE BELIEVE the city has made good progress in improving the general condition of its records," the auditors said.

"However, we noted certain instances where the balances in general ledger control accounts were not supported by detail records, such as property schedules, details of assessment receivables...nor were such records updated monthly," the report continued.

In addition, the auditors called the city's system for reporting fixed-asset transactions weak.

"An improved system would be helpful in controlling access to these assets, in preparing long-term capital improvement requirements and in the maintenance of adequate insurance levels," the auditors said.

FURTHERMORE, the auditors recommended that the city maintain its own records of special assessments receivables, rather than relying on Wayne County records.

The auditors also noted that the city does not have a manual for the financial department on policies and procedures.

"In most instances, only the employees actually performing the work know the detailed procedures," the auditors said. "This lack of formalized procedures reduces the city treasurer's ability to monitor employee performance, complicates the process of training new personnel and increases the possibility of errors being made due to misunderstanding," the report continued.

IN ADDITION, the auditors recommended the city obtain annual disclosure statements from all department heads, and establish procedures for periodic audits of revenue information supplied by franchisees.

Also, the auditors asked the city to begin using prenumbered receiving reports for all significant purchases of commodities and fixed assets, to begin accounting for nonutility cash collections, to establish prior-approval procedures to ensure proper use of city personnel and equipment and to begin mailing miscellaneous billings as soon as possible.

"Currently the city has not implemented procedures to reconcile the electricity and water usage billed to the units of electricity and water purchased or generated by the city's plans and systems," the auditors said.

"We recommend the city maintain usage statistics to develop predictive tests of the distribution of electrical power and water," the report said.

BEFORE ADJOURNING the Council approved the establishment of a no parking sign on the west side of Logan Street, 25 feet north from the intersection with Seventh Street.

Council members also passed a resolution allowing the second-half payment of Series 1969 Electric Bonds, which mature on Dec. 15.

Payment is to be $66,197. Also, the Council agreed to place a resolution supporting a driving-while-intoxicated bill on the agenda for the next meeting.

The bill, which is expected to be introduced by State Sen. Rex Haberman, outlines a mandatory sentencing procedure for convictions on driving-while-intoxicated charges.

Several Council members, including Darrel Heier and Keith Mosley, spoke in favor of the proposed bill, which calls for mandatory jail sentences ranging from six days to a year and drivers license suspensions for violators.

engineered by the consulting firm would be advertised and bid.

A contractor would be selected to implement the program, assuming the school district could underwrite the cost through the state matching program or the district budget.

In phase one, the only plan approved by the board, the engineering investigation and analysis of energy consumption at the school will be completed.

"In this phase, the potential energy conservation measures would be investigated in substantial detail to insure that the measures are technically and economically sound," the proposal states.

ACCORDING TO the engineers, the report would involve a description of building structure and operating systems at the school, including roof, walls, windows, doors, heating and ventilating systems and the electrical system.

Also included will be "specific recommendations on operation and maintenance," plus an evaluation of the building's potential for solar conversion.

Engineers also will provide the board with an estimate of the remaining useful life of the building. In addition to an estimate of the annual energy consumption by fuel type.

The board is expected to receive a full description of all engineering recommendations, including an estimate of the construction cost, useful life of the measure, energy savings due to the installation and pay back schedules.

THE CONSULTANTS have agreed to review the upcoming report with the board and help prepare the grant application.

In other action, the board reviewed the annual school audit, performed by Jerry L. Malcolm, a Wayne certified public accountant.

In a 17-page report, which involves 16 pages of budget line figures, Malcolm said: "Records of the school district are adequate and are maintained in accordance with the accounting procedures currently prescribed by the Commissioner of Education."

Dr. Haun explained that district procedure was to recognize obligations when paid rather than when incurred. He explained several budget items with board members during a page-by-page review of the report.

The report contained no recommendations from the auditor.

BOARD MEMBERS also reviewed bids for gasoline and No. 2 diesel fuel solicited by Dr. Haun from four Wayne oil companies.

The district had sought 90 day price guarantees, which would lock in prices through February.

However, since most bids were hedged, the board declined to award a 90 day contract for fuel.

Haun explained that he spot bids fuel before ordering it on an as-needed basis. Board consensus was that he continue meeting the district's fuel need that way.

Before adjourning, board members discussed the district's long range planning program. Haun said that nearly all projects within the district plan had been completed with the exception of expanding the shop area and rewireing the Wayne Middle School.

HAUN SAID HE felt the district was in a financial position to consider doing one of the two projects this year.

Money to underwrite the projects, if approved, would come from the district's sinking fund, according to Haun.

After some discussion, a decision on the expansion of shop area was postponed until after a meeting later this month of the district's vocational advisory council.

Board members discussed the inadequacy of electrical wiring at the middle school, but also tabled any decision on the project until a later meeting.

HAUN PRESENTED board members with a requested follow-up report on the district's trainable mentally handicapped graduates.

He also reported that the Wayne High School parking lot project, which expanded the small lot just north of the school, had been completed at a cost of $6,918.

Board members also received a report on elementary and middle school student achievement tests.

Haun notified the board members of a Monday, Nov. 30, meeting to elect or re-elect members for four year terms on the Wayne County School Reorganization Committee.

The meeting is at 7:30 p.m. in the Wayne County Courthouse courtroom.

UNDER LAW, Wayne County school boards must meet to nominate and elect or re-elect members to that committee.

The present committee includes Fred Mann of Wayne, Merlin Reinhart of Wayne, Harlan Brugger of Winslow, Marlon Marshall and Glenn Meyer, both of Wakefield.

Why I'm thankful

Signs of Thanksgiving Day are appearing throughout the Wayne area.

Many area residents with thankful thoughts about a special person are submitting their stories to The Wayne Herald for the "Why I'm Thankful" contest. Don't be left out.

The deadline for submitting the stories has been moved to Monday, Nov. 16. That gives you a few more days to enter the contest.

If your entry places first, you win yourself a free Thanksgiving turkey. And the special person you write about gets a free tub of chicken.

You haven't got much time though, so jot down that story about someone you know who deserves a special "thank you" on Thanksgiving Day.

All you have to do is take a few moments during the next few days to tell us about a special neighbor, friend or relative who has done something nice for you.

Tell us about that good turn... that special person in 500 words or less. Please pick a "special someone" who is alive and in our circulation area.

If you drop your personal story in the mail to us by Monday, Nov. 16, we'll publish it — just as you wrote it, with your name on it — in a special Thanksgiving Day section of the newspaper entitled: "Why I'm Thankful."

That section will be published on Wednesday, Nov. 25 — the day before Thanksgiving Day.

So, tell us your "Why I'm Thankful" story. Sign your name. Include your address and telephone number. Then, drop it in the mail to:

Why I'm Thankful
The Wayne Herald
P.O. Box 71
Wayne, NE 68787

Our panel of judges will select the best "Why I'm Thankful" story in four categories — kindergarten through fourth grade, fifth grade through eighth grade, ninth grade through 12th grade, and adult (out of high school).

The Wayne Herald will accept drawings from those kindergarten and first graders who would rather show, than tell, their thankfulness.

Four Wayne merchants — Bill's G.W., Wellman's IGA, Rich's Super Foods and Johnson's Frozen Foods — will provide the winning writers with a free Thanksgiving Day turkey. And, Bill's G.W. also will provide a free tub of broasted chicken to the "special people" the winners write about.

tion on her husband, who was in the back seat of the vehicle.

Three of the Kleinschmidt's four young children, Jesse, 2, Jennifer, 1, and Billy, 4 months, were at the rural farm home when the shooting occurred, according to testimony Monday.

THE ELDEST child, a 3 year old girl with cerebral palsy, was in Omaha at school that Friday, according to preliminary hearing testimony.

In addition to the three younger children, Criss' mother and Thorne were at the home, testimony indicates.

In an afternoon of sworn testimony, Kleinschmidt's widow, 21, who also was at the home when the shooting occurred, related that her husband had threatened her life and beat her on several occasions, once forcing her and her children to seek refuge in a nearby pasture.

On the witness stand, she agreed to the characterization of her husband as an alcoholic and told the court he had been drinking the afternoon and evening before the shooting.

In fact, at one point, Criss told the court that on the evening of Thursday Oct. 8, city police responded to her call for help in the parking lot of a Norfolk bar after her husband threatened to kill her and began choking her.

KLEINSCHMIDT'S widow said her husband arrived at the family home around 1 a.m. Friday and was "very drunk."

She testified that she attempted to call the Wayne County Sheriff's Department for help, but her husband blocked the attempt, again threatening to kill her and her family.

According to her testimony, Criss called on her half brother, Dennis, for assistance. An altercation ensued in the living room, she testified.

She also testified that Thorne had been slaying with the family for about two weeks to assist in wood gathering for the household stoves and to help watch the children when the couple traveled to Omaha to pick up their eldest daughter from school.

THORNE, a slight built man dressed in a brown velour shirt and slacks, remained at the defense table throughout the hearing.

He conferred with his court appointed attorney several times during the hearing, but otherwise remained silent, watching and listening as his half-sister testified from the witness stand.

Testifying without emotion for nearly two hours, Kleinschmidt's widow, dressed in blue jeans, blouse and ski jacket, was first examined by Bornhoff and then cross examined by Dougherty.

Schlachter's testimony followed, but was delayed several times while Judge Duggan and the defense attorney argued points of constitutional law regarding procedures for preliminary hearings and criminal trials in Nebraska.

DOUGHERTY'S only preliminary hearing victory for his client came when Duggan reduced bond at the request of the defense attorney.

"The defendant has no history of failure to appear," Dougherty told Judge Duggan as he sought the reduction of bond. "It would give this man a chance so he can get about the business of helping me prepare his defense."

In Nebraska, there is no provision for bond on a first degree murder charge.

However, in second-degree murder, bond can be set. Bornhoff was unsuccessful in his effort to convince the court that, since the defendant was being bound over on the basis of probable cause, the bond should remain at $100,000 (10 percent).

Conviction on second degree murder charges in Nebraska carries a penalty 10 years to life imprisonment.

Thorne's scheduled Dec. 2 arraignment on the felony charge represents the prelude to an expected Ninth District Court jury trial at the Wayne County Courthouse.

Bonus bucks drawing is triple header

Bonus bucks could make that holiday shopping in Wayne much easier this year.

So, be sure you are downtown this Thursday night when three names will be called for a crack at three $350 prizes in the Grand Give-A-Way contest's triple header drawing.

Earl Potter of Concord lost out on the $1,000 grand slam bonus bucks prize last week. His name was called, but he failed to identify himself to a participating merchant within 60 seconds of the announcement.

THAT MEANS three Wayne shoppers have a chance at winning $350 each in bonus bucks at participating Grand Give-A-Way stores this Thursday, Nov. 12.

Three names will be called in participating stores beginning at 7:45 p.m. The second name will be called at 8 p.m. and the third at 8:15 p.m. The winners will have 1 minute, 40 seconds only — to identify themselves for the prize.

The winners must be in a participating store when their names are called to be eligible for the bonus bucks.

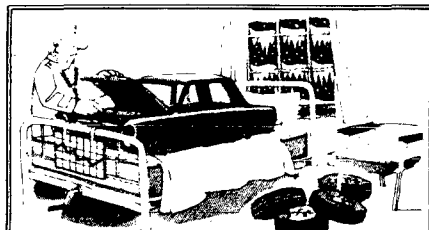

The new tripleheader twist alternates prizes, giving Wayne shoppers three chances at $350 each one week and a single shot at the $1,000 bonus bucks grand slam the next.

In the tripleheader, three names are announced at the 15-minute intervals regardless of a win or a loss on the first or second try. One name is announced in the grand slam.

PARTICIPATING Grand Give-A-Way stores include: Arnie's Ford-Mercury, Associated Insurance, Ben Franklin, Bill's G.W., Black Knight, Burger Barn, Carhart Lumber, Charlie's Refrigeration, Chrysler Center, Coryell Derby, Diamond Center, Discount Furniture, El Toro Lounge and Ellingson Motors.

Senator stages withdrawal from governor's race

By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

It was billed as a "major political announcement."

State Sen. Don Dworak's recent news conference in Lincoln to announce his political ambitions, or the lack thereof, at first thought by many to be his way of announcing his bid for the Democratic nomination for governor in 1982.

But the more you talked to Dworak allies, the more you realized his expected candidacy wasn't as certain as it had been not long before.

THE CRYPTIC nature of this news release announcing he wanted to convene the press to make an important political statement stirred up a lot of interest. All he would tell you in person before the news conference was that yes, he would make a major political announcement. But he wouldn't elaborate.

So a legislative hearing room was reserved one of the nicer ones — and the TV cameras and microphones lined up in an anticipation.

The room started to fill early with print and broadcast reporters. Also on hand for the "major political announcement" were a number of state senators, some lobbyists, several state officials, and recognizable Democratic and Republican regulars.

This news conference was well staged. Dworak sat in a chair reserved for people who testify before legislative committees, his back to the audience and the TV cameras lined up in front of him, looking out at the audience. The mikes were plugged in, the print reporters had their writing pads in hand, and many were guessing about what it was that Dworak would have to say.

FINALLY, several minutes late, the Columbus lawmaker took his seat in front of the TV cameras and began talking about the five months he had spent traveling the state, testing the political waters.

It started to sound like there would be no doubt about his candidacy, primarily because he lashed out at Republican Gov. Charles Thone in more harsh terms than he has before. It appeared he was painting an ugly picture of Thone, and would be able to offer his services as the knight in shining armor, coming to rescue the state from the evils of the current administration.

But his criticism was followed by his announcement he had stopped all activities aimed at any possible bid for the Democratic nomination for governor. Yes, that's a major political announcement. And it came as a surprise to many, including some key Democrats who seemed to be ready to rally behind Dworak's candidacy.

The announcement also brought to the Democrats' minds an important question that deserves serious thought seven months before the 1982 primary. Who can the Democrats get to defeat incumbent Thone, who is expected to seek re-election.

DWORAK believes anyone can beat Thone. The Columbus lawmaker also believes Thone is indecisive, weak and politically motivated. State government under Thone is badly managed, Dworak contends.

So who can the Democrats get to defeat the incumbent, if he in fact runs? Dworak says Lincoln insurance executive Loren Belker and former state Agriculture Director Roger Sandman are still possible candidates.

State Democratic Chairman Dianna Schimek says former Lt. Gov. Gerald Wheelan also is a possibility. Other names that have surfaced are former Democratic National Committeeman Tom Kelley of Omaha and Douglas County Commissioner George Buglewicz.

So Dworak's major political announcement has stirred things up again for the Democrats, whom the Columbus lawmaker joined earlier this year after leaving the GOP. He told they must find someone with charisma, leadership abilities, believability, integrity and, if possible, a good track record.

THONE is not known for his public speaking; he often appears uncomfortable before crowds. But he is a Republican in a Republican state, a former congressman, a hater of tax increases, a believer in equalization and a guy who can get along with a Republican (albeit nonpartisan) Legislature.

The ball is definitely in the Democrat's court. And with only seven months before the primary, time is running out.

Dworak has pledged he will do all he can to unify and strengthen the Democratic Party. He's also promised to back whomever the Democrats choose to run for governor.

But it's going to take a lot more than Dworak's help for the Democrats to produce a candidate for the 1982 elections. Help from popular Democratic Sen. J. James Exon, Nebraska's former governor, probably would help. It'll also take a lot of time, work and money.

BUT THEN that's what political campaigns are made of, and the Democrats no doubt will do whatever's necessary to at least be in the race.

For the time being, however, it seems the Democrats, and Dworak in particular, are doing what they can to make Thone look like a bad guy. It would appear their aim is to lower the Governor's esteem enough so even a relative newcomer to the political scene will have a chance against an incumbent.

The interesting thing to watch now will be whether Thone and his operatives go on the offensive, or whether they sit back and roll with the punches. If the Democrats succeed in putting the GOP on the defensive and possibly dividing the Republican Party, they might have a chance.

It's too soon to say what will happen, but it'll be fun to watch. And, as in all political contests, only time will tell.

Weathering the storm

Despite the continued gloom and doom reports on the state of the national economy, Wayne County business hasn't balked.

And, despite the state's economic stumbling, which has forced a special session cutback in the budget, Wayne County business remains strong.

Maybe it's the vitality of small town America. Maybe it's the solid agriculture base here. Maybe it's the Midwestern work ethic at work. Maybe it's the challenge of doing more with less. Maybe it's the positive attitude of Wayne County merchants and consumers. Most likely it is a combination of those things, and more — much more.

Whatever it is, Wayne is doing well against all odds.

Figures brought to the attention of The Wayne Herald by Roger Toomey, executive vice president of the Wayne Chamber of Commerce, indicate Wayne County has experienced a 17.4 percent retail sales increase over 1980.

Unemployment in the county is around 1.6 percent, placing it in the top third across the state for those near full employment.

These figures have been compiled over the course of a year that has seen a number of economic disappointments and downturns in Nebraska and at the national level.

Furthermore, the start of the holiday season shopping has yet to officially begin.

A better than average holiday shopping season could easily improve the county's already solid business figures for 1981.

Toomey, who has been studying retail sales and unemployment figures from across the state, indicates that Wayne County consistently places among the top in both categories — retail sales and low unemployment.

That's encouraging. It speaks well of the work being done here to make the county a shopping area for northeastern Nebraska.

It speaks well of Wayne County shoppers and their loyalty to the hometown merchants. And, it's a sure sign of a solid shopping relationships built around hometown sales and service.

But, perhaps the most encouraging sign of all is the attitude found in Wayne. Little can be accomplished with a negative attitude. Nearly anything can be accomplished with a positive attitude.

Wayne County shoppers and merchants seem to be able to look tough times in the eye and smile.

With that kind of attitude, Wayne County can weather any national or state economic storm.

The cattle battle

There are a lot of ifs, but fed cattle prices could recover moderately to reach the mid $60 per hundredweight level for choice steers at Omaha during the latter weeks of 1981.

Prices, which have dropped unexpectedly since mid-September, might be expected to continue in the mid $60 range in the first quarter of 1982.

Beef supply prospects carried in the U.S. Department of Agriculture's quarterly cattle on feed report were one sign of a chance for some price recovery. But this is conditioned on cattlemen avoiding any buildup of over finished cattle in response to the current weak market.

Other factors affecting the beef cattle prices are hog inventories and consumer demand for beef.

Hog slaughter will need to show the 7.8 percent year-to-year decline indicated by September estimates of hog inventories if cattle prices are to recover. General consumer demand conditions also will be an important influence on the cattle market.

Weak demand for beef is the main reason for the drop in cattle prices since early fall.

Pork supplies have been unusually large, with volume even larger than expected, based on Sept. 1 hog inventory estimates. As a result, retailers have featured pork more heavily.

Prices at Omaha for choice steers dropped $6 per hundredweight from mid-September to the third week on October and were around $7 less than a year earlier, with prices in a $60-$61 range. This drop came as a particularly sharp jab at cattle feeders, he said, since it occurred just when it appeared the relationship between prices and costs was beginning to be profitable.

To the Editor:

What is the world coming to? First you show a picture in your newspaper of an animal and want someone to identify it for you as to whether it is a jenny, mule, etc.?

How childish.

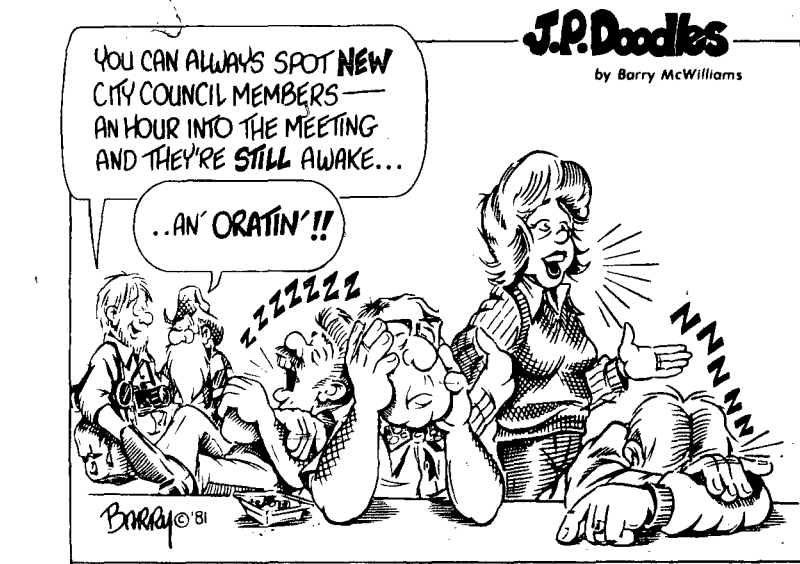

Second, you show a picture of Nebraska and ask most of the youth in Wayne know the difference. But if they don't realize what it was, they sure will know now what to look for come next summer.

Third, I'm tired of the articles crucifying other people.

Everyone is entitled to his or her opinion but for a newspaper to publish such articles is entirely unfair to the person that is being "picked on."

I am not renewing my subscription for this newspaper.

Senator may propose restrictions ADC policies too lenient

As you all know by now, the Legislature has been working for the past week on solving the state's fiscal problems.

Legislative Bill 8, which embodies the governor's plan for reducing the budget, was adopted with little change.

I supported the adoption of LB 8 because, as I indicated last week, I believe my constituents are in favor of reduced spending instead of increased taxes.

WE ALSO had to consider another issue which concerned state spending. Recent federal legislation eliminated federal ADC assistance for the first six months of pregnancy.

If Nebraska continues to provide Aid to Dependent Children benefits for those six months, the state will have to pick up the entire cost. Since federal assistance amounted to roughly 75 percent of the ADC grant amount during this period, the cost of picking up the eliminated federal portion is significant.

For this reason, LB 7 was introduced on behalf of the governor to correspond to the new federal legislation. As introduced, LB 7 would not have required the state to expend any additional funds. It would have provided aid for the mother beginning with the last three months of pregnancy and provided an additional monthly grant for the child upon its birth.

Nebraska's current policy is to pay the mother a total of $280 monthly in ADC grants from the time her pregnancy is medically verified.

I BRING UP this matter because I am concerned about what is happening in the 17th District, particularly in Dakota County. Iowa's laws concerning ADC are more strict than Nebraska's in that the mother receives no ADC grants at all until her child is born.

As a result, many women are coming across the river to Dakota County and establishing residence in order to collect the ADC benefits which aren't available in Iowa. The taxpayers of the 17th District end up footing a share of the bill for these people.

That is why I was in favor of LB 7 in its original language. I was quite disappointed when the legislature adopted amendments to LB 7 last week which, in general, will continue the current policy.

This was done despite the fact that the Attorney General had said that these proposed amendments were improper.

WE, AS taxpayers, will continue to pay ADC benefits to those who come into Nebraska, and the 17th District, to take advantage of our lenient ADC policies.

LB 7, as originally introduced, would have brought our ADC laws more in line with those of our neighboring states and served to curb the abuse which is currently going on.

For that reason, I am considering introducing legislation in January which will end this abuse. I would appreciate any comments my constituents might have in regards to this issue or any other matter which they are concerned about.

Food laws controversy may smolder in Congress

By M.M. Van Kirk
Nebraska Farm Bureau

A major battle is shaping up in Congress over bills designed to update the basic food safety laws and concepts that are now over 20 years old.

House and Senate hearings on the "Food Safety Amendments of 1981" are scheduled during November. Not unexpectedly, the Nader type consumer groups have formed a noisy coalition to oppose any change that would provide more flexibility in the restrictions and applications of the law.

PROponents of the bill introduced in June contend that there is growing concern that the food safety laws are antiquated and in need of reform. Improvements in quantitative analytical methods now allow the detection of trace elements in parts per billion rather than parts per million.

Scientists can detect the presence of compounds we never knew were in a food product. But regulatory judgments are being made today within a legislative framework established before development of this new technology.

This has led to inferences, sensationalism and inaccuracies about the possible risks which may result from the use of foods, food additives and food packages.

The inflexibility of the Delaney Clause, an amendment to the federal Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act, has caused consumers to agonize through scares on cranberries, saccharin, bacon, peanuts and beer. Dealing only in risk, the Delaney Clause gives no consideration to potential benefit.

AS A RESULT, consumer confidence in the food system has eroded despite the fact that the U.S. has the most wholesome, affordable food supply in the world; Americans must be concerned that the possibility for additional scares and sensationalism will increase as consumption of processed food products increases.

The ability to detect trace elements in food has also caused scientists to debate the significance of allowing such small amounts of substances in food products.

More scientific input is needed to insure that government officials do not make decisions which, in the case of nitrite, unnecessarily threaten to remove a large amount of our food supply. Consumers must be allowed to continue to benefit from a safe, abundant food supply.

When laws are inflexible they tend to halt development of new products and techniques. Strangely, new advances in food processing techniques are in common use in Western Europe and Japan that are still not permitted in the United States... simply because our bureaucratic regulatory agencies haven't gotten around to complete their tests and issue approval.

MOST RESEARCHERS today shake their heads over the national furor that attended the pesticide trace element scare involving cranberries at Thanksgiving time in the late 1950s. It crippled the cranberry product for several years needlessly.

Since then there have been further injustices meted out on limited scientific evidence. In the 1970s, the nitrite fiasco did great damage to preserved meat processors and to the pork industry.

Years and millions of dollars later, the only consolation has been in many cases an "Oops, we're sorry, but later research indicates our judgments were faulty."

The present Congress and administration have shown signs that they can be supportive of providing the flexibility necessary to use scientific advances without creating unnecessary anxiety for consumers and that is what the "Food Safety Amendments of 1981" are designed to do.

Physical fitness: Exercise benefits measurable

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of a three-part series designed to inform Wayne area residents about the benefits of physical fitness. This article, which documents — statistically and qualitatively — some primary benefits of physical fitness, is being published with research assistance from Wayne area physicians.

Hippocrates once said: "Walking is man's best medicine." This indicates an awareness of preventative medicine's value more than 2,000 years ago. In other words, this ancient Greek physician and healer concluded — from his own observations — that man actually had a certain control over the destiny of his body, and that physical activity was measurably better than inactivity. In 1790, a 60-year old veteran of the American Revolution had a life expectancy of about 15 years. Today, nearly 200 years later, the life expectancy of a 60-year old male — American — is about the same.

In the United States, males rank 72nd in the world for longevity. U.S. females rank 10th in the world. Both rankings include computations for all ages of both sexes.

If only persons over 40 are considered, then U.S. males rank 37th in the world for longevity.

These figures are longevity statistics from a country that considers its health care among the very best and sophisticated in the world.

Contrast for a moment the best and most expensive health care with a 37th ranking for longevity.

The U.S. Research Council has found that in the 1930s, an average sedentary man needs 3,000 calories daily to maintain his body weight.

And, 2,400 calories daily were required for women.

Today, a scant 50 years later, the requirements have been measured at 600 calories less for those same sedentary type individuals.

A recent, long range study in California involving 7,000 adults has shown an 11 1/2 year increase in longevity for those persons whose lifestyle incorporated six or seven of the basic good health habits, compared to those whose lifestyle only incorporated three or less.

THOSE BASIC good health habits are:

1. Moderate, regular exercise.
2. Maintenance of normal weight.
3. No smoking.
4. Breakfast every day.
5. Regular meals without between meal snacks.
6. Seven or eight hours of sleep each night.
7. Moderate drinking.

Those same findings were duplicated in a Wisconsin study of 2,000 persons. Now, Dr. Ernest Jaki, University of Kentucky, has said: "There can be little doubt that proper physical activity, as part of a way of life, can significantly delay the aging process."

The statement is remarkably similar to that made by Hippocrates over 2,000 years ago.

The U.S. surgeon general has said that 50 percent of all deaths in the United States are due to unhealthy lifestyles.

That actually means that — to a greater or lesser extent — people could prevent untimely deaths and delay many deaths by changing their lifestyles.

If this thing called lifestyle is so important, what are some of the features that can be subject to change?

A SEDENTARY lifestyle is becoming increasingly detrimental to well being.

Consider, for example, that an extension phone in a home saves about 70 miles of walking per year.

For the average person, that means about 7 pounds of weight gain per year — all other factors being equal.

In 1980, over $40 billion was spent in the United States on heart and blood vessel disease alone.

At the cost of medical care to day, not even counting income loss to illness, it is easily seen that it's far cheaper to stay well than to get well.

THERE ARE some direct benefits to incorporating physical activity into one's lifestyle.

Generally, it has been established that:

1.) The average American becomes less fit with increasing age and thus is less able to do physical work. But, this decrease in performance is due more to disuse than to the effects of aging.

2.) General decreases in activity levels have been, for the most part, attributed to changes in mechanization, transportation and labor-saving devices.

3.) Hypertension, or high blood pressure, and other forms of circulatory diseases — in addition to obesity — are on the rise in the United States.

THE GENERAL benefits of physical fitness as part of a lifestyle are many.

Those that are well documented include greater flexibility, increased muscle strength, increased endurance, greater ability to do physical work, less physical and mental fatigue and strain, ability to participate in recreational activity with greater enjoyment, gradual loss of body fat (especially when combined with proper eating patterns), and better appearance.

Further health benefits from a more scientific point of view include an improved body fat to lean ratio, greater ease of quitting smoking, proven ability to cope better with stress, lowering of blood pressure, lowering of serum cholesterol; lowering of LDL (the unhealthy type of body fat), raising of HDL (the healthy type of body fat), and lowering of triglyceride levels in the bloodstream.

AND SOME theoretical benefits which are believed, but unproven, by medical researchers — include increased collateral circulation in the muscle of the heart, increased diameter of the vessels that supply the heart muscle with blood, and an increased number of small blood vessels — called capillaries — in the heart.

All these factors greatly increase the protection of the heart from heart attack. And, they facilitate the recovery of the heart in the event of an attack.

Heart disease, alone, is a national disaster. More than 1 million deaths in this country each year are due to diseases of the heart and blood vessels.

And, of that number, more than 600,000 deaths are due to the diseases of the coronary arteries — the vessels supplying the heart muscle with blood.

MANY STUDIES tend to show that persons who are very active are less likely to suffer heart disease than persons who seldom exercise.

In a study of 17,000 Harvard alumni, it has been reported that those who were physically active had 64 percent fewer deaths due to coronary artery disease than those who were physically inactive.

To be even more specific, a look at the well-established changes in the body from physical activity is in order.

The well-known "training effect" achieved from aerobic exercises, and some other forms of regular physical exercise, has been shown to strengthen the muscles of respiration and greatly decrease the resistance to air flow in the lungs.

That, in turn, reduces the respiration workload for the heart.

EFFICIENCY of the heart itself is greatly enhanced by the conditioning of the heart muscle. That conditioning enables the heart to pump more blood with each single beat.

Furthermore, it generates more force with each contraction, which means that — for any given workload — the heart muscle can do what is required with less strain.

The generally increased body muscle tone and lowering of blood pressure, as well as increased blood volume, greatly improves the general circulation and markedly decreases the workload of the heart.

That results in a lower pulse rate and again, less heart strain.

BENEFITS to other areas of the body from regular physical activity are many and varied.

Controlled medical studies have been done and published which demonstrate the following observations:

1.) It has been shown that regular walking stimulates digestion and elimination. And, it can reduce the problems of constipation.

2.) Weight control — as well as loss of unnecessary and unsightly body fat — is much more easily achieved when a program of regular exercise, plus diet control, is practiced. Results are much greater than when diet control alone is used.

3.) Exercise is a natural relaxant. And this can be advantageous — when used alone or in combination with other measures — in the treatment of ulcer disease, development of better sleep patterns and reduction of blood pressure.

And, exercise provides a special psychological lift for postmenopausal women. In addition, it can decrease the severity and frequency of migraine headaches.

4.) POSTURE and appearance can be improved through exercise, in addition to one's sense of well-being. (Madison Avenue has long recognized that to look good is to feel good.)

5.) Exercise is often seen as an aid in the control of sugar diabetes.

6.) Exercise can offer a deterrent to the formation of emphysema and, in many cases, is good therapy for the many forms of chronic lung diseases.

7.) Exercise produces an improvement in bladder control for women because of the improvement in muscle tone.

8.) And, exercise can reduce the frequency and severity of backaches in pregnant women.

AGE IS no obstacle to fitness. Many more studies are underway. They are designed to measure more benefits from physical fitness at all ages.

NEXT: Ways to become more physically fit and some changes that lead to a new, more healthful lifestyle.

Lots of shelling ahead

LOTS OF shelling lies ahead for the northeast Nebraska farmer who owns these corn cribs. The Wayne area corn harvest was nearing the end this week as farmers finally picked with favorable weather.

Eradicane modified for shattercane use

Eradicane, the corn producer's favorite herbicide for controlling shattercane, has been decreasing in effectiveness in some fields in recent years.

Now a modified form of Eradicane promises to restore normal control, due in part to University of Nebraska research funded by the Nebraska Corn Board.

Dr. Alex Martin, NU extension weeds specialist, said Nebraska farmers complained of poor shattercane control with Eradicane as early as 1977. "However, we had obtained excellent control on University lands," Martin said.

MARTIN and Dr. Fred Roeth, extension weeds specialist at the NU South Central Station near Clay Center, began testing Eradicane on farmers' land and they, too, could not control shattercane in corn.

After determining that the shattercane itself had not become resistant to the herbicide, Martin and Roeth applied for research funding from the Nebraska Corn Development, Utilization and Marketing Board in 1979. They received a two-year grant for $13,120 per year from the 9 to 10 cent per bushel corn checkoff paid by Nebraska corn growers.

Working with farmer-owned fields, the researchers were able to identify the problem. Eradicane had been rapidly broken down in the soil in fields where it had been used repeatedly. The normal life of the herbicide is four to five weeks, Martin said, but was only three to five days on fields with a history of Eradicane use.

That discovery explained the mystery of good control at the NU stations and poor control in farmers' fields, Martin said. "We rotate our crops and experiments yearly so none of our research plots had a history of Eradicane use," he said.

MARTIN and Roeth suspected that the breakdown of the herbicide resulted from microbial activity. "We found we could overcome the problem with a combination of Eradicane and Dyonate, an insecticide, but that's an expensive solution," Martin said.

The researchers also began experimenting with a material being developed by Eradicane's manufacturer, Stauffer Chemical Co. Stauffer had designed the material to increase the effectiveness of the herbicide beyond the usual four to five weeks. Martin, Roeth and graduate assistant Tim Orbigewich began testing the material in field and lab experiments. Orbigewich studied the material's effect on fields with and without a history of Eradicane use and also treated

BOXELDER BUGS

This time of year I always get a lot of questions on boxelder bugs. And, this year is no exception.

These insects do not cause damage to homes, but are persistent in attempting to enter and share the comforts inside. They feed primarily on seed producing boxelder trees, but will develop on maples and some other plants.

Most of the warmer part of year is spent on the host trees. They overwinter as adults that are good fliers, so a house may be attractive from long distances, especially the west and south sides, which are warmer.

THERE IS no sure cure for boxelder bug infestations. A few things will reduce the nuisance.

1. Caulk all openings through walls, around windows and doors. Screen ventilator openings.

2. Spray congregations of the bugs outside with Sevin or Diazinon. These sprays kill the insect on contact, but do not provide long-lasting residual control. Re-treatment is necessary as long as the bugs persist.

3. Household aerosols can be used, but direct contact with the creatures is a must and they would need to be picked up after they perish. Swatting is the best control indoors.

4. Accept the fact that complete relief is impossible.

FIREWOOD

A standard cord of wood consists of 128 cubic feet of wood, bark and air space. A cord is 8 feet long, 4 feet wide and 4 feet high.

Firewood is often delivered in a pickup truck. If the truck has a small bed, 4 feet wide, 6 feet long, and 3 1/2 feet deep — and the wood is piled high with the sides, you will be receiving a little more than one half cord.

THE BUYER should also consider the species of the wood. Hard heavy woods such as hickory, pecan, birch, white oak and red oak will burn for a long time and produce more heat than the lighter last burning woods such as willow, poplar, cottonwood and hackberry.

Sycamore and American elm are intermediate in heat value and burning rate. As a rule of thumb, the dry heavy hardwoods are considered better fuel than the dry light ones.

Dried wood or wood that has been cut and properly piled for two or three months burns better, has a higher fuel value and is a better buy than freshly cut green wood.

Speaker tells farmers they have tremendous untapped potential

More than 500 area farmers attended the 10th annual Farmers Appreciation Night in Wayne, Saturday. The evening's activities were sponsored by the Wayne Chamber of Commerce.

Following a free meal in the Wayne State south dining room, John Sullivan of Lincoln, executive director of the Nebraska New Car and Truck Dealers Association, addressed the farmers.

The Wayne State College graduate centered his address around the theme "You can be better than you are."

Sullivan shared with the crowd his personal checklist for success: 1. self image, 2. attitude, 3. values, 4. goals, 5. work.

"Our greatest resource is the energy within ourselves and it's God given. You can never outrun the picture you have of yourself. It is that picture, not reality that keeps you from being successful," Sullivan said.

The speaker pointed out that Columbus had the idea the earth was round but everyone knew it was flat. Imagine what his banker would say when Columbus wanted to borrow money to sail around the world, Sullivan said. "Not with my money," he exclaimed.

"The fact is, there isn't one person in this room who is operating at more than eight percent of capacity," said Sullivan referring ing to statistics reached by studies. "Take a second look, don't trust your first judgment. Tell yourself you can be better than you are and believe that you can do it, not that you can't. You have tremendous untapped potential."

"We need a place to do all that and the U.S. is the greatest place in the world," said Sullivan.

Social hours were held at the Wayne Fire Hall and the Wayne State College Student Union prior to Saturday's meal.

Unauthorized removal of grain will draw penalty

Erwin D. Morris, chairman of the Wayne County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee, says producers who remove farm stored grain, whether it is under loan or in reserve, without first obtaining authorization will be subject to penalty.

To strengthen farm prices, the ASCS reserve loan program provides loans to farmers who hold their grain off the market for a specific period or until market prices reach certain levels. The grain under loan is then stored in approved facility on the farm or in a commercial warehouse.

"Program regulations require that farmers notify our office if they intend to sell the grain, or if the grain is out of the loan and needs to be moved," Morris said.

If the grain is to be used for feed, the loan must be repaid before it is removed from the storage bin.

FARMERS who remove reserve grain without prior authorization from ASCS will be required to pay an early redemption charge.

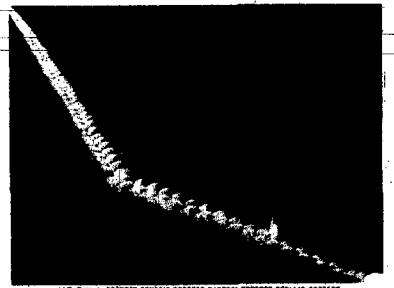

They will lose storage payments on the quantity of grain removed and will be subject to having the loan called. Morris said the violators also may be denied future farm stored loans.

When reserve grain is authorized for release, farmers may pay off the loan and sell the grain, leave it in the reserve, or pay off the loan and hold the grain.

The ASCS official cautions farmers not to jeopardize the farm stored loan program by removing grain without obtaining permission.

More Valley Corner Systems every year, because it's the least costly investment per acre.

It's going to be harder to make farming pay off in the years to come. Harder for many reasons. So if anything makes sense, it's to maximize the potential of the land you now farm. Irrigating with a center pivot is one way. Irrigating with a Corner System is even better.

A Corner System can irrigate 19 to 45 more acres than a regular pivot, producing extra income on acres already being farmed. That's why nearly one out of every six pivots sold today is a Corner System.

And when it comes to Corner Systems, nobody knows more than Valmont. They're proven reliable with nearly 3,000 systems in operation. That's at least 20 times more than any other brand.

Before you buy any center pivot, see us. We'll tell you how a Valley Corner System can add to your bottom line profits while being the least costly investment per acre.

Valley dominates the field.

Sheep symposium planned

Plans are being finalized for the first sheep symposium on health and nutrition scheduled for Nov. 16 and 17 at the Ramada Inn in Kearney, according to Dr. Ted Doane, University of Nebraska extension sheep specialist.

Doane urged all interested individuals to pre register for the meetings by contacting his office at 211 Marvel Baker Hall, UNL East Campus, Lincoln, NE, 68583 0908 or the Kearney Ramada Inn.

The symposium is designed to meet the growing needs of Nebraska sheep producers after a significant increase in the state's sheep numbers the past two years, said Doane.

Included on the two day program are Dr. Frank Hinds, head of the University of Wyoming animal science department, Dr. Joe Jeffries, a Lexington veterinarian, Dr. Bob Stear of Norden Laboratories, Lincoln, Robert Aue, Puffer, Nebraska Sheep Council president, and Dr. Leo Lucas, dean and director of the Nebraska Cooperative Extension Service.

The Nebraska Sheep Council and the Nebraska Cooperative Extension Service sponsored symposium will begin Monday morning (Nov. 16) at 10 a.m. with a NSC board of directors meeting.

Lamb marketing workshop set

Nebraska sheep producers will have an opportunity to discuss the future of lamb marketing at the Blueprint Intermountain Lamb Marketing Workshop Dec. 3-5 at the Denver Marina Hotel in Denver, Colo.

The workshop is designed to stimulate producers' thinking beyond production and will cover all facets of the industry involved in lamb merchandising, according to Vern Swanson, Colorado State University sheep specialist and co chairman of the event.

In addition to Nebraska, other states expected to participate in the program include Utah, Idaho, Montana, South Dakota, Wyoming and Colorado.

The workshop begins Thursday, Dec. 3, at 7:30 p.m. with Chris Joutfas, president of the American Sheep Producers Council, discussing the challenge of lamb marketing in the United States.

The Friday, Dec. 4, session will begin at 8 a.m. with presentations on the lamb consumer and lamb promotion. Quentin Banks, retired USDA economist, will discuss costs and credits affecting lamb prices.

Ag initiation scheduled

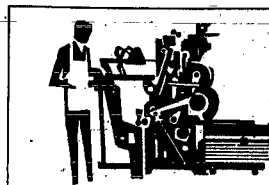

A total of 123 persons will be initiated as members of the Nebraska chapter of Gamma Sigma Delta, the Honor Society of Agriculture, at a banquet in Lincoln, Nov. 22.

Most are University of Nebraska College of Agriculture students with high scholastic standing. Professionals in the agriculture or agribusiness field who will be inducted are selected for their creativity and productivity. Also to be presented at the dinner at the NU East Union are teaching, research and extension awards of merit to deserving College of Agriculture faculty members.

Dr. John Schmidt, NU professor of agronomy and renowned wheat breeder, is the guest speaker. Gamma Sigma Delta members from across the state are invited to attend the banquet. Reservations should be made before Nov. 13 by contacting Richard D. Earl, 3200 Vine St., Lincoln, Neb., 68503.

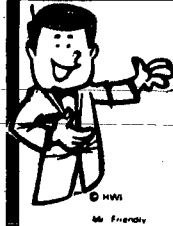

Crop production listed

Hay production is estimated at 7.2 million tons, 1 percent above last year. Dry bean production is estimated at a record 3.8 million cwt., up 46 percent from last year's previous record. Sugar beet production is estimated at 1.6 million tons, 10 percent below last year's record crop. Fall potato production of 2.2 million cwt. is 16 percent more than last year.

NEW EMERGENCY PHONE SYSTEM
A new fire alarm system was tested in Wakefield on Thursday. The system will be used for sounding an alarm for a fire or for the rescue unit.

The device is placed on the mousetrap or speaker end of the phone but does not hinder people from using the phone for all calls.

Twenty phones have been equipped with a Tonedialer, including 16 telephones in the homes of Wakefield fire fighters and at Ekberg Auto, Terra Chemicals International, Salmon Well Co. and at the Wakefield Recreation Center.

Once the system is implemented, fire and rescue calls will not be going through the light plant as they have for many years.

The fire and rescue unit phone number remains the same, 287-2624.

When someone is in need of the fire department or rescue unit, all of the phones with Tonedialers will ring until one of the 20 phones is answered. Through the use of the Tonedialer, the party answering the call is able to punch a code setting off the alarm.

Short Kay, fire chief, said the sound of the fire whistle will go up and then down for the period of three minutes. In the case of a tornado, the whistle will ring continuously for a total of four minutes.
