Wayne area's smokeout set for Thursday

Smokers prepare yourselves! The Great American Smokeout is making its way to Wayne on Thursday, Nov. 19. On that day, the American Cancer Society will ask resident puffers to join cigarette smokers nationwide in giving up the habit for only 24 hours.

ROGER NELSON, owner of The Rusty Nail, has been asked to serve as local chair man for the event.

Honorary national chairman for the nationwide Smokeout, which was launched in 1977, is Larry Hagmann of "Dallas" fame. Nelson, who quit smoking four years ago, said several activities suggested by the American Cancer Society have been adopted on a smaller basis for the local Smokeout.

NELSON SAID the Smokeout was conceived as a light-hearted "fun" day on which cigarette smokers are urged to give up the habit, mainly to prove to themselves and their friends that they can.

Three residents of Wayne, who are also smokers, have agreed to serve as examples during the day-long event.

David Ley, president of the State National Bank and Trust Co., Steve Brandt, an officer in the First National Bank, and Del Stollenberg, head football coach at Wayne State College, will try not to take a puff on the day of the Smokeout.

THEY WILL be closely monitored during the 24-hour period, said Nelson. Fellow bank employees will be keeping their eyes on Ley and Brandt, while Stollenberg will be watched by the secretaries and coaching staff in the college's athletic department.

Nelson said Wayne radio KTCH will do remote spots on an hourly basis to check on their progress.

"It is everyone's hope," said Nelson, "that they go past the 24-hour period and quit smoking permanently."

FOR OTHER smokers of the community, pitch-in receptacles will be set up at The Rusty Nail, in both the First and State National Banks, and in the Student Union on the Wayne State College campus.

"Smokers will be invited to reach in their pockets, take out their cigarettes, and pitch them in the receptacles," said Nelson.

Smokeout badges, badges pledging residents not to smoke, and general information on giving up smoking also will be available at the receptacles.

Marilyn Nelson will be in the booth at the college, while employees of the First National and State National Banks will man booths there. They all will be wearing badges encouraging residents to give up smoking.

Just a minute... Rural clockmaker Carroll's grandfather time

By Randall Howell

When John Rethwisch has a little spare time, he makes clocks.

The 74-year-old rural Carroll clockmaker didn't have a second to get started in the hobby as a young man. But, soon after his 1977 retirement, the former Carroll postmaster found a few minutes here and there to begin building clocks.

GARDENING still keeps Rethwisch, and his 73-year-old wife, Clara, busy, but the clock business has been ticking along for about three years now.

Now the hobbyist spends summer's spare time hours on the clocks, turning the project into a cottage business that makes a little money to pay for expenses.

Clara, who admires her husband's handiwork, said her husband works on the clocks in the summer months because "I won't let him work on them in the house."

Consequently, Rethwisch has set up a small workshop in the attached garage off the kitchen of the couple's wood frame farmhouse just north of Carroll on State Highway 57.

"IT'S NOT much of a workshop," he said, explaining that the top of the chest-type freezer "makes a good bench."

Fancy workshop or no, Rethwisch manages to work with some "fancy woods" while building his battery-operated wall clocks.

In fact, the tall, dry-humored man, who grew up on a farm west of Carroll, admits to being on a constant search for specialty wood to cut, sand and polish into the unusual shapes that form clock faces.

Born at Fort Calhoun, Rethwisch spent most of his life as a northeast Nebraska farmer until taking over as Carroll postmaster in 1954.

STILL ACTIVE in the professional organizations that are affiliated with the U.S. Postal Service, Rethwisch also holds the record for the longest postmastership in Wayne County.

But, clockmaking has become one of his favorite past times.

"I don't work at it all that hard," he said. "At 74 years old, you just naturally get a bit lazy sometimes."

Despite that, Rethwisch figures he's made more than 50 wall clocks over the past three years. Friends in California got him started, according to Clara, who shares the annual gardening tasks with her husband.

WHEN RETHWISCH isn't making clocks, he's often thinking about them.

"I get the idea for a clock face in my head, then I go to work," he explained.

Some of the ideas do not only involve expensive, hard-to-get wood, but also feature unusual face hardware that ranges from dimes to dominoes.

"I thought my domino clock would sell," he said, lamenting the apparent lack of interest in the clock.

The huge wall clock is made of Florida Cypress wood that gleams with a high gloss surface studded with the black and white dominoes with dot combinations corresponding to the hours of the day.

The Florida Cypress clock face, which was cut several inches thick, also shows the detail of the wood grain.

BEHIND THE gold hands that travel from domino to domino, is the electrical mechanism that keeps the time. Rethwisch orders the mechanical parts from a Wisconsin firm. The time-keeping mechanism comes assembled and ready to install.

Making the clock involves finding that piece of wood — usually a 3- to 4-inch thick slice of tree — and selecting the surface for the face.

Rethwisch uses a router to carve a small hole on the backside of the clock.

He planes it, sands it (if necessary), and puts a sealer on the wood. The sealer is called polymer — a mixture of resin and hardener that gives the clock face "that wet look."

RETHWISCH USES a template to set the clock face correctly. The pattern guides him in placing the numbers, minutes and seconds.

"All are battery-operated," he explained, noting that it eliminates problems with electrical cords.

His clocks, works of art that happen to keep time, are now selling for from $45 to $50 apiece, unless the wood is extremely rare or the clock face is extremely complex.

"I gave them away at first," explains Rethwisch, noting that several families — including his own — have gift clocks on their walls.

Why I'm thankful. . .

Monday is the deadline for your entry in The Wayne Herald's "Why I'm Thankful" contest.

Don't be left out! Dozens of area residents with thankful thoughts are submitting their stories. The Wayne Herald will publish in a special section just before Thanksgiving Day.

If your entry places first, you win yourself a free Thanksgiving turkey. And the special person you write about gets a free tub of chicken.

You haven't got much time though, so jot down that story about someone you know who deserves a special "thank you" on Thanksgiving Day.

All you have to do is take a few moments to tell us about a special neighbor, friend or relative who has done something nice for you.

Tell us about that good turn — that special person in 500 words or less. Please pick a special someone, who is alive and in our circulation area.

We'll publish it just as you wrote it, with your name on it.

So, tell us your "Why I'm Thankful" story. Sign your name. Include your address, and telephone number. Then drop it in the mail to:

Why I'm Thankful
The Wayne Herald
P.O. Box 71
Wayne, NE 68787

Our panel of judges will select the best "Why I'm Thankful" story in four categories — kindergarten through fourth grade, fifth grade through eighth grade, ninth grade through 12th grade, and adult (out of high school).

The Wayne Herald will accept drawings from those kindergarteners and first graders who would rather show than tell their thankfulness.

Four Wayne merchants — Bill's GW, Wellman's IGA, Rich's Super Foods and Johnson's Frozen Foods — will provide the winning writers with a free Thanksgiving Day turkey. And Bill's GW also will provide a free tub of broasted chicken to the "special people" the winners write about.

So, write on!

Conservationist offers down-to-earth advice

Specialist sees soil-saving progress

By Randall Howell

Wayne's Arnold Marr is a down-to-earth man with a concern for the soil.

That concern launched the northeast Nebraska farm boy on a 33-year career in soil conservation.

At 55 years old, the Madison-born conservationist stepped aside — not because he lost his love for the soil, but because "I wanted to make room for new ideas."

MARR, WHO spent 24 of those years with the Soil Conservation Service in Wayne County, still feels strongly about the way Nebraskans treat the earth.

"Land is protected for a shorter period of time today than it used to be," Marr said, explaining that the new, big farm machinery has shortened the time needed to plant.

"Years ago, it (the cropland) was vulnerable to erosion for only a few months," he added, recalling that the older, smaller farm machinery took much longer to cover the same acreage.

Farmers started planting earlier in the spring, he said. And, since harvest machinery was smaller and less efficient, the crop stayed on the field for many more weeks in the fall.

CERTAINLY not against the technology, seed and machinery improvements that have revolutionized farming, Marr noted, however, that the situation has farmers waiting until late in the season to plant.

"We used to expect corn to be knee-high by the Fourth of July," he recalled. "Now, because of better seed and better fertility, it is nearly tasseled, particularly under irrigation, and off the field sooner."

Marr, whose SCS retirement came late this summer, said the late planting "leaves the soil open for nearly 1½ months longer."

He said he felt part of the answer is to encourage more conservation (minimum) tillage as a modern farming technique.

"I KNOW we are losing some soil, but we may be holding our own or even gaining during the last few years" as farmers turn to minimum tillage for a variety of reasons.

"I think we can do better and we must continue to do better," he said, explaining that Wayne County is rapidly losing cropland terraces.

"Equipment is getting bigger and it cannot maneuver with terraces only 75 to 100 feet apart," he said, suggesting the terrace system needs to be modified or there is danger it would be lost altogether.

"We can space the terraces farther apart because of conservation tillage, where the residue remains to cover and protect the land," Marr continued. "I've been recommending that for six to eight years."

DESPITE MARR'S concern, he's an optimist when it comes to the modern farmer. "I don't think this country is going to go hungry for a long, long, long time," he said. "We've got the ability and knowledge to produce food like most people don't think we can."

Marr said he felt that Wayne County "is not one of the top counties in northeast Nebraska" when it comes to soil conservation, but that it was probably because farmers here "have better soil."

He explained that in some areas of the state, the land quality is much poorer, resulting in a much greater need for conservation practices.

"Wayne County, for the most part, has all good farmable land," he said, describing it as Class III land. "It's hilly, but farmable," he added. "It's deep soil and good cropland."

REMEMBERING his years in the county as a soil conservationist, Marr said:

couldn't have hoped for any better farmers to work with. They don't do everything the way the SCS would like, but they are as cooperative a group as anyone could hope for."

As district conservationist based in Wayne, Marr worked with terracing for many years.

"In the early years, terracing was a real big program," he recalled. "But, today, it has become unacceptable."

He said Wayne County used to have some 100 to 115 miles of terraces. "Now, we're fortunate to have 10 to 15 miles," he added.

TAKING A break from a fall painting job on the family home in the southwestern section of town, Marr reiterated his hope that conservation tillage would catch on more and more.

He sees "getting more farmers to accept it" as one of the biggest challenges facing conservation agencies, such as SCS. "Another conservation technique that excites Marr is the 'road structure' that is replacing rural bridges.

The SCS has built about 20 of them in Wayne County. "A couple of them are large Country boy. . .

Howdy. From time to time, readers drop by my office with some interesting tidbits or clippings they've discovered elsewhere. Often the items are worth sharing with you. I've been building a file of them so that I could draw on them for future inspiration. Some of the items speak for themselves.

CHARLIE KUDRNA of Charlie's Refrigeration stopped in this past week with a clipping in his hand from The Red Cloud Chief, a weekly newspaper near the Nebraska-Kansas border. Charlie said that when he read it, he thought I might just be interested in reprinting it for readers of The Wayne Herald. I read it and agreed. The article was printed in the "Farming and Ranching" magazine, published by South Omaha Production Credit.

The Blair Pilot Tribune reprinted it. That caught the eye of the editor of the Red Cloud Chief. He reprinted it, too. THE ARTICLE is entitled "Farmer's Prayer." Here it is. As farmers and ranchers, dear God, give us the patience and wisdom to understand why a pound of steak at $2 is "high," but a 3 ounce cocktail at $1.50 is acceptable. And Lord, help me to understand why $3 for a ticket to a movie is "not bad," but $3.50 for a bushel of wheat that makes 50 loaves of bread is considered unreasonable. And, a 50 cent Coke at the ball game is "OK," but a 50 cent glass of milk for breakfast is inflationary. Cotton is "too high" at 65 cents a pound, but a $20 shirt is viewed as a bargain.

AND CORN is "too steep" at 3 cents worth in a box of flakes, but the flakes are sold for 50 cents a serving. And also, Lord, help me to understand why I have to give an easement to the gas company so it can cross my property with gas lines, but before they get it installed the price of gas had doubled. And while you're at it, dear God, please help me understand the consumer who drives by my field and raises his eyebrows when he sees me driving a $30,000 tractor that he helped put together, so he could make money and drive down that right of way they took from me to build a road on so he could go hunting and skiing. Thank you, God, for past guidance. I hope you can help me make some sense out of all this. And please, God, send some rain.

ABOUT ALL I can say is "Amen," and "thank you, Charlie" for bringing it to my attention.

And, before you farmers write in to tell me off about the price of the tractor, consider that for $30,000 the feller was probably driving a used one. Just thought I'd get that out before someone else rubbed my nose in it. Speaking of getting your nose rubbed (the wrong way)...mine's been out of joint since the U.S. Postal Service jumped the postage rates. So, in an effort to get the whole thing off my mind once and for all, here's a few one-liners you can share with each other about the Postal Service.

FIRST-CLASS postage keeps increasing every year. When you start off a letter with "Dear" — you better believe it. An old timer is someone who remembers when a postcard cost a penny. Someone complained that postal service is so bad that even letters addressed to "occupant" are getting lost. The postal increases prove the postman rings more than twice. The post office certainly isn't letter perfect. If first class postage goes up any more, the picture on the stamp should be Jesse James. Why is it that a stamp won't stick to a letter the way it sticks to another stamp?

COST ANALYSIS of a 20 cent stamp: 10 cents for postage, 10 cents for storage. If the world is getting smaller, why do they keep raising postal rates? More and more letters written at night are being thrown away in the morning — not because of a change of heart, but because of another increase in postage rates. Maybe the Postal Service employees should be put in charge of the inflation problem. They probably wouldn't solve it, but they'd certainly slow it down. Glue was first applied to U.S. postage stamps in 1847, and today's stamps taste as though the original batch is still being used. Personally, I don't mind paying 20 cents to mail a letter. In fact, I'd even contribute a couple of bucks to the parcel post department so they could buy a dictionary and look up the meaning of the word "fragile."

OKAY, OKAY, enough is enough. But it sure was fun while it lasted. I feel better already. And, just to show you that I'm not afraid to pick on writers, too, I'll share something with you that was developed by an assistant editor of the old Chicago American many, many years ago.

It's a list of 13 rules newspaperman Ernest Tucker set up for his writers to follow. It would be a welcome relief for readers if The Wayne Herald's writers followed the guidelines. Here they are:

1. Don't use no double negatives.
2. Make each pronoun agree with their antecedents.
3. Join clauses good, like a conjunction should.
4. About them sentence fragments.
5. When dangling, watch your particles.
6. Verbs has got to agree with their subjects.
7. Just between you and I, case is important.
8. Don't write run-on sentences when they are hard to read.
9. Don't use commas, which aren't necessary.
10. Try to not ever split infinitives.
11. It is important to use your apostrophe's correctly.
12. Proofread your writing to see if you any words out.
13. Correct spelling is essential.

I GOT a quick history lesson the other day from Bob Boeckenhauer of Wayne. I was out driving the county backroads again, when I drove by his farmstead southeast of Wayne. I didn't recognize him right off, because the sun was in my eyes. But he waved me down to tell me he'd been looking for me for a couple of weeks. Bob's got a keen interest in history, particularly when it involves Wayne County. Well, it seems my recent photograph of the abandoned Farmer's State Bank in Altona had some misinformation under it.

I made a reference to Altona being the oldest settlement in Wayne County. Bob didn't say I was wrong, but he wanted me to consider LaPorte, particularly since the old townsite was just down the road from where we were talking.

LaPORTE WAS the first county seat and after Bob explained it all to me, I quickly acknowledged that he was right. The townsite is no longer a settlement, but it is clearly there. And, Bob joined me for a short ride to the carved stone marking the spot.

He then directed me to the LaPorte Cemetery, where he said a veteran of the War of 1812 was buried. I visited the cemetery on my own. And, sure enough, there's a tombstone bearing the name of Nathaniel Allen, a LaPorte area landowner at one time and veteran of the War of 1812 — one of three buried in Nebraska. It was the day after Veterans Day, and I must admit that standing in front of that tombstone during a November sunset in 1981 was an experience in and of itself.

OVER 287,000 American soldiers fought in that three-year war that ended in 1815. Nathaniel Allen was one of them. He was not among the 2,000 who died in battle. It was the second war waged by this newborn nation, just 37 years after fighting for its life in the American Revolution. And, lest you think Allen fought in a minor skirmish, instead of a war, note that 290,000 soldiers fought in the American Revolution — only 3,000 more than the number going battle in the War of 1812. Some 4,000 soldiers died in the American Revolution. Only half that number of American soldiers were killed in the War of 1812.

THE CIVIL WAR figures may help you put that in perspective. Some 2.2 million Union soldiers fought about 1 million Confederate soldiers in the Civil War (1861-1865). The Union lost about 364,000 soldiers. The Confederate casualty list has been set at 133,821. The last Union veteran died in 1956 at the age of 109. The last Confederate veteran died in 1959 at the age of 117. And, while we are at it, some 392,000 American soldiers fought in the Spanish-American War (1898-1902). Some 11,000 died in combat. According to the Veterans Administration, there are 86 living veterans from that war in this country today.

SOME 4.7 MILLION American soldiers fought in World War I (1917-1918). Of that number, 116,000 died in combat, while 449,000 WWI veterans are alive in this country today. World War II veterans alive today total 12,170,000. Some 16,335,000 soldiers served and 406,000 died in combat. Some 6.8 million American soldiers fought in the Korean War and 55,000 died in combat. About 5.7 million Korean War veterans are alive today. American soldiers in the Vietnam War totaled 9.8 million, with 47,000 combat deaths and 62,000 non-combat deaths. There are just over 9 million Vietnam War veterans in this country today.

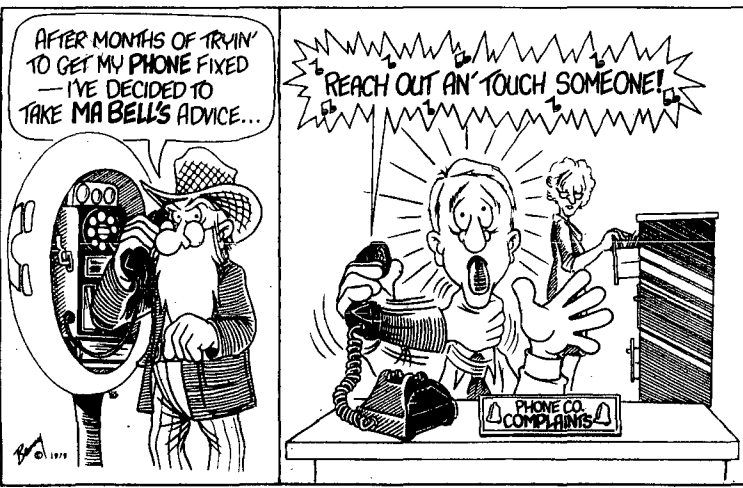

SINCE 1775, 38,924,000 American soldiers have fought wars for their country. Some 1,081,000 died in combat. And, there are 25,789,000 living war veterans in the United States today. Catch you next week...

To the editor: Special recognition should be given to a fine group of Wayne State College students who gave several hours of their time on Sunday, Nov. 8 to conduct Honey Sunday. Members of Delta Sigma Pi, Phi Beta Lambda, and Kappa Delta Gamma faced a strong cold wind to go door to door distributing pamphlets with information about mental retardation and selling jars of honey for the Association for Retarded Citizens Wayne County. About 450 jars of honey were sold. Special thanks go to Craig Hanneman, president of Delta Sigma Pi, and Marilyn Meier, president of Kappa Delta Gamma, for their leadership, and to the Kappas for use of their house for the day. ARC Wayne Co. receives no financial support from any sources other than membership dues and local fund raisers, but they help support activities and the state and national association level along with providing special activities for the retarded and developmentally disabled citizens of Wayne County support for the local ARC is necessary. Special thanks go to the concerned citizens of Wayne, who made a donation by purchasing honey. Honey is still available for those who were not at home and who wish to purchase some to help the retarded. Please call 375-4073 for delivery. Kay Cattle ARC-Wayne Co.

Parochial politics and priorities

On Wednesday, Nov. 4, the U.S. House of Representatives took HR 3464 from its Suspense Calendar. It's for non-controversial bills, and passed it by an overwhelming 366-21. The bill prohibits the construction of U.S. naval vessels and their major hull and superstructure components in foreign shipyards. Despite the Navy of the Great State of Nebraska, manned only by admirals, does that vote have any relevance to Nebraskans? Yes, it provides a lesson in parochial politics and illustrates part of the reason why we seem to have less and less to show from the expenditure of more and more defense dollars.

BUILD FOREIGN ships for the U.S. Navy? Unthinkable! The "Buy America" idea is almost as totally American as baseball and apple pie. Who are the 21 who voted against this bill? I was one of them, even though I remember well the sage advice some veteran congressman always offers new members: "If you want to get re-elected, don't vote with a very small minority even if it's the right vote — it takes too much explaining back home." Good politics — bad for the country. Are there any foreign-built vessels in the U.S. Navy today? Nope! Are any being built abroad for us now in the more modern Japanese or West German shipyards? The answer is "no" even though there is no permanent statutory prohibition, just the annual Defense Appropriations Act proviso. Yes, it's clear that we must maintain a strong shipbuilding capacity in this country for defense and commercial vessels. As in most parts of our defense industrial base, there has been a shrinkage and concentration of our capacity. But why is the bill offered if the Navy isn't buying foreign ships or even asking for them? THE BILL offered by a member from ship-building, unemployment-ridden Rhode Island and co-sponsored by 24 members from ship-building districts is a classic example of parochial politics. It appears to be harmless, is easy to pass, and makes for great headlines back home. And who really wants to vote against a likeable member who brings such a bill to the floor, especially when a freshman minority party member rarely gets a bill to the floor. The answer is, not very many members. Many Americans recall all too well the innovative, deadly efficient U-boats the Germans built in such large numbers in both world wars. It's an idea certainly worth examining if we're not prohibited from doing so. Interestingly, there is strong, if submerged support within the Navy for diesel subs to supplement our nuclear models. Experts offer rather convincing arguments against the noise claims made by the official, top-level Navy sources. The M-X missile system basing mode using small submarines, which was examined by the Office of Technological Assessment, also commends taking a closer look at this West German offer. But that option has been downgraded by the Navy so as to avoid unduly antagonizing the Air Force interest which might oppose other Navy initiatives if the Air Force's two-leg role in our strategic nuclear Triad is threatened by the Navy.

NO, THAT so-called non-controversial "Buy American" bill doesn't prohibit leasing, and it does permit the president to make exceptions to the prohibition against foreign vessels "if it is in the national security interest." But, that is a greater burden of proof than just citing "the national interest" and Congress is even given 30 days to override that presidential decision. No, that bill which statutorily prohibits foreign construction didn't just come along by accident. It's one more parochial, protectionist example of why innovative, cost-effective decisions on anything in the field of defense is so difficult. Suffice it to say that this extreme example of protectionism also further increases the irritation, and the economic and security concerns of our NATO allies who depend so disproportionately on the purpose of weapon systems built or licensed by U.S. firms.

Being there

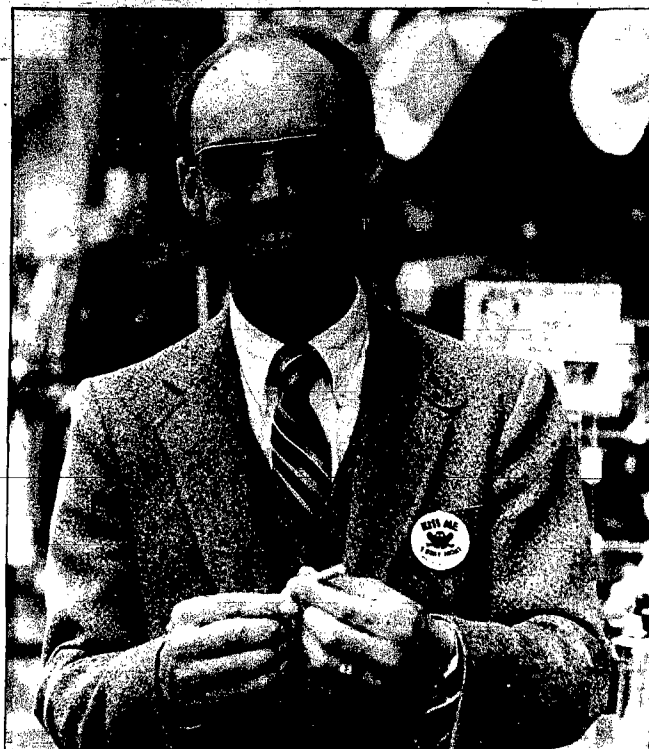

It takes much more than books and buildings to bring about a successful educational experience. It takes people...all kinds of dedicated, interested and involved people. Students, teachers, administrators and school board members are most often recognized as the people who make the educational experience work. Certainly, that is the case in the Wayne-Carroll School District. And, that is as it should be. However, there are some other people in the Wayne-Carroll School District who play a vital role in the success of the educational experience. Often behind the scenes when it comes to the day-to-day functioning of the system, these people are best known as parents. One measure of their dedication, interest and involvement is the attendance at parent-teacher conferences organized by administrators and teachers each year. The district scheduled two days for the fall conferences this year. Well organized and flexible enough to accommodate even the toughest workday schedule of parents, the conferences brought parents, teachers and students together for a closer look at the educational experience here. And, parents of students in the district responded with a record-setting attendance rate. In fact, the parents of the district's first-graders, second-graders registered 100 percent attendance during the early November sessions. Parents of Carroll Elementary School students also hit the 100 percent mark on conference attendance. Not one elementary school grade in the district experienced less than a 95-percent parent turnout. The worst attendance rate for parents of Wayne Middle School students was a solid 75 percent for the sixth-graders — still an extremely strong showing. Two classes — fifth grade and seventh grade — had well over 80 percent of the parents attending the conferences. At the high school level, more than 75 percent of the parents of ninth-graders and 10th-graders turned out for the sessions. Wayne High School Principal Donald Zeiss said it was the largest group of ninth-grade and 10th-grade parents to attend the conferences since their inception in 1977. More than 60 percent of the parents with juniors in school attended the conferences. And, even the senior class — traditionally low in attendance for such conferences — turned out more than half the parents for the sessions. The figures speak for themselves. School district teachers and administrators are excited by the turnout. The parents deserve a special salute.

The trillions

For hapless American taxpayers and consumers, 1981 is shaping up as the "Year of the Trillion." Just think how lucky you are to be alive in the year in which: • For the first time, government spending at all levels will top $1 trillion, according to the Tax Foundation. That amounts to $4,678 of outlays by government this year for every man, woman and child in America. • The national debt will exceed $1 trillion, bringing the total yearly interest which must be paid on that debt to $70 billion — an amount equivalent to the entire federal budget in 1977. • A study conducted at Virginia Polytechnic Institute reports the restraints on the development of nuclear power will cost American energy consumers no less than $1.9 trillion in dollars over the next 25 years.

ROGER NELSON ISN'T GOING to smoke this cigarette. He's breaking it to show he no longer needs a puff to perform. Nelson is serving as Wayne's chairman for this year's Great American Smokeout sponsored by the American Cancer Society.

Puff Puff, Cough Cough

Nelson smiles after smoke clears

By LaVon Beckman

Roger Nelson smoked his last cigarette on Dec. 4, 1976. "I can honestly say it was the hardest thing I've ever had to change in my life," he says. "Initially my nerves seemed more on edge and my hands seemed too idle. But I learned that it was a mental state of being that I had allowed to arise, and therefore I had the power to eliminate as well."

NELSON, owner of The Rusty Nail clothing store in Wayne, is serving as this year's local chairman for the American Cancer Society's Great American Smokeout.

The nationwide Smokeout will take place on Thurs. day, Nov. 19. On that day, smokers across the nation will be asked to set aside their cigarettes for a 24 hour period.

"Hopefully," says Nelson, "those smokers who pledge to give up the habit for one day during the Smokeout will quit permanently."

NELSON smoked between 1 1/2 and 2 packs of cigarettes a day, and says it took the breaking of a leg and a seven day stay in the hospital nearly five years ago to finally convince him to stop smoking. The medicine he received for the broken leg severely irritated an ulcer he had developed nearly 18 months earlier.

His stomach became so bad during the hospital stay that it had to be pumped.

"My physician had reminded me several months earlier that there was nothing about cigarette smoking that was advantageous to anyone's health, and suggested then that my stomach problems could be eliminated by giving up cigarettes and watching my diet."

"I HAD INDEED allowed smoking to become a total psychological dependency as well as a physical need," says Nelson.

"I reached the stage, like I believe most smokers do, where I couldn't function at my peak without a cigarette."

Nelson says before his hospitalization he consumed as many as 15 commercial antacid tablets each day to appease his ulcer while at the same time continue to smoke.

"I TOOK THE tablets just so I could keep smoking," he laughs. "Although I worked on controlling my diet, I refused to deal with the smoking. "Of course it was the smoking that was aggravating the ulcer more than anything I consumed in my diet."

Nelson says it was when doctors finally took the tubes out of his nose and stomach, that he asked himself if anything was really worth going through that again for.

NELSON SAYS not only was his physician, Dr. Bob Benthack, supportive in his decision to stop smoking, but so was Sister Gertrude Marie, the hospital's chaplain.

"On multiple occasions each day," smiles Nelson, "Sister Gertrude stopped by my room to remind me that I could make it with the Lord's help."

"She truly had a profound effect on my discovering the strength that I have and all of us have to give up something totally damaging to our bodies and lives."

NELSON, WHO hasn't smoked a cigarette since his hospital stay five years ago, says he felt very good the first 24 hours after he quit.

"In fact," he laughs, "I was feeling so good that I was ready for another cigarette. I kept a pack on the shelf in my hospital room and would fondle it from time to time."

Nelson says it took nearly six months before he stopped thinking about a cigarette at least once every day.

To this day he says he still finds certain activities and events that tempt him because of his previous association of those events with cigarettes.

NELSON SAYS he began smoking when he was a junior in high school.

"I was with friends who had already been smoking. They seemed to enjoy it and it seemed like the thing to do. I associated it with growing up and becoming independent."

He smoked nearly five years before quitting the first time for four years. Then, it was back to smoking for another eight years.

"It's odd," laughs Nelson. "I was able to stop smoking while going through two years of military training at Fort Leonard Wood. But within two months after returning home to a more relaxed atmosphere I began smoking again."

IT WASN'T easy for Nelson to give up cigarettes permanently, although after about a month of not smoking he realized that he was able to literally taste and enjoy the flavor of foods and drinks that were "less spectacular" when he was smoking heavily. "Certainly my stomach has benefited since I've stopped smoking," says Nelson. "But I'm sure in the long run it will be my lungs that benefit the most."

ALTHOUGH NELSON says excessive smoke in enclosed rooms and automobiles does indeed bother him, he promised himself at the time he quit smoking that he would not become an evangelistic, reformed smoker and drive people away from him.

"However," he laughs, "I have on a few occasions asked people to open a window in an automobile."

HOW DOES Nelson feel after nearly five years without a cigarette?

"Well, I started running this past spring," he smiles.

"Despite the fact that I'm now able to run three miles, I found I had very little wind power at the onset."

"My performance could have been better at the start and therefore better at this point if I hadn't been a cigarette smoker."

NELSON, WHO relates smoking to alcoholism — "You can fall off the wagon anytime" — says he is confident at this point that he will never return to smoking.

"Everyone should give up smoking," he smiles. "They literally will feel better and a tremendous burden will be lifted when they finally realize they don't need a cigarette — for anything."

Historical Society updating history of Dixon County

The Dixon County Historical Society is updating the history of Dixon County in a new history book.

A spokesman for the society said the book will be unique, as it will be written by the residents of the county.

The last history of Dixon County was written in 1896.

"ONE OF the best parts of this new book," said the spokesman, "is that family histories, which may include one photograph, will be printed free of charge."

"This leaves no excuse why every Dixon Countyman should take part in this history in the making," continued the spokesman.

RESIDENTS with questions regarding the preparation of their family histories for publication are asked to contact Rosemary Pape of Waterbury, 638-2578, or Marvin Green of Allen, 635-2582.

Bad break for Cats

RUSS UHING, sophomore transfer at Wayne State, broke some bones in his right foot during basketball practice and is expected to miss many of the Wildcats' first semester games.

Men's rec ball to open

Another season of men's recreation basketball is rapidly approaching in Wayne. The season will open officially on Wednesday, Nov. 18 when C League play begins. Men, age 22 or older, should attend the Wednesday C League night. Anyone who has never played in the Wayne league should attend at 7 p.m. along with anyone who is not contacted by Hank Overin. Overin will contact some men and inform them, which session to attend. The C League will not meet on Nov. 25 because of Thanksgiving.

The A League, for men age 19 through 25 will open on Monday, Nov. 23 and the B League will begin on Tuesday, Nov. 24. Again anyone who has never played in the Wayne league or is not contacted by Overin should attend the 7 p.m. session. Overin will call players for the 8 p.m. and 9:15 sessions.

Due to the growth of the men's league and because no more than seven teams are possible in each men's league, new eligibility rules were made.

Anyone who played in the league before is automatically eligible to play again this year. Wayne State students are not eligible unless they are Wayne High graduates or live off campus and work more than 30 hours a week in the Wayne business area.

All WSC faculty members are eligible and anyone who lives on a farm within a 15 mile radius of Wayne can play. However, men who live within the city limits of an area town (Carroll, Waukegan, Wakefield, Laurel etc.) are not eligible because the towns should have programs of their own.

West Husker title is top reward

The win-loss record of the Wayne volleyball team this year was deceiving of the type of volleyball which the Blue Devils were capable of playing.

The locals won 6 matches and lost 11. However, they won the West Husker Conference Tournament and placed second in the Beemer Tourney. Two losses were to Class A state qualifier Norfolk and two were to Class B power Hartington CC.

Some other teams which handed the Devils defeats were Class B contender North Bend, Class C contender Pierce, Sioux City, Heelan, South Sioux City and Fremont-Bergan.

Wayne won 17 games and lost 26. Scored 467 points and gave up 514. As a team, the Blue Devils hit 84 percent of their serves and made 746 good serves and 122 aces. Wayne had 1,915 good bumps, 472 good spikes, 151 ace spikes, 286 tips and 31 blocks.

Randy's Recap

By Randy Hascall

HUNTING SEASON is in full swing and I've seen a few hunters out surveying the area for birds. I haven't heard how the hunting is this season but hope that there is more of an abundance of wildlife this year than in past years.

Deer rifle season opened Saturday and hunters from the surrounding area usually seem to do quite well in bagging White Tails during the nine day season. Give me a call if you bag a four-point buck or bigger and we'll be glad to publish a picture in the paper.

Hunters should be reminded of a few things. Deer season hunting hours are one-half hour before sunrise to one-half hour after sunset. When in the field, hunters are required to wear a minimum total of 400 inches of hunter orange material on the head, chest and back.

After faking a deer, the hunter must detach the carcass tag from his permit, punch the date taken and sex of the animal and immediately tag the animal. The deer must then be taken, with the head naturally attached to the carcass, to an official check station in the unit in which the permit is issued or to a check station in the first adjacent management unit through which the hunter travels.

I'm still hoping to get out and do a little hunting with my camera if time permits.

CONGRATULATIONS to the Wayne High football and volleyball players who were named to the all-conference teams announced Wednesday night.

Eric Brink, Dallas Hansen, Al Lindsay, Tim Heier, Jeff McCright and Dan Frevert Volleyball players named to the all-conference first team are Jill Zeiss and Missy Stoltenberg. Deb Prenger was selected to the second team.

IT SHOULD BE some consolation to Wakefield fans that their football team lost in state playoffs to the best team in Class C-1. Battle Creek trimmed David City Aquinas in the championship game Friday to bring a state title trophy back to northeast Nebraska.

Coleridge did a fine job of representing the Lewis & Clark Conference. The Bulldogs finished second in the Class C-2 playoffs. Their 46-14 whipping of highly-rated Kearney Catholic makes some of Coleridge's regular season foes look a lot better.

With the quality of high school players on the state-qualifying teams this year, it sounds like Nebraska University and the state's colleges should be able to recruit some real talented in-state players this year and next.

BITS & PIECES: Wayne State's Kevin McArdle leads the NAIA District 11 in quarterback sacks this season. Through eight games, McArdle had 19 sacks. Troy Thiem ranked as one of the leaders with 10 sacks. Hopefully, when the statistics for all 10 games are tabulated, the WSC blitzers will be right at the top.

Basketball season is nearly upon us (it is if you consider the National Basketball Association's long, drawn out season). The Wayne State College Wildcats and Lady Wildcats are ready to go.

Coach Rick Weaver will have his team ready for its long, tough season and the Cats should be pretty salty. The Lady Cats lost quite a bit of talent from last year and first year coach Jan Jirsak will have her hands full. But, she has some talented, hard-working players on the squad so she might surprise a few people.

During the next few years, I expect to see some real good basketball teams at Wayne State. I'm sure both coaches are hoping for a lot of crowd support at their home stands.

WHILE DISCUSSING the AP and UPI top twenty in this column last week, I goofed. I said that a highly ranked team would be knocked off when Alabama and Georgia meet. I was wrong. I don't know how the Southeastern Conference did it two years in a row but once again its top two teams will not play each other this year.

That alone is reason enough for conferences to be kept to a maximum of eight teams. The Big Ten, Pac-Ten, Southwestern and Southeastern Conferences, often can't prove that their champions are really the best in the conference. This year will be no exception.

The Nebraska Cornhuskers could be ranked about state or given a higher ranking in the ratings most every year. If the Big Eight contained 10 teams, and Oklahoma and Nebraska didn't play each other, but, who ever heard of such a ridiculous thing?

Swim Club donation

KIWANIS PRESIDENT Don Koeber presents a check for $200 to Diana Runestad who is representing the Wayne Swim Club. The Kiwanis Club made the donation for the swim club to use to benefit its program. In past years, the Kiwanis Club has donated money to buy films and help the local program. Some of the money was raised by the Kiwanis Swim Meet and some by other projects such as the recent popcorn sale. Kiwanis member Sid Hillier is head coach of the Wayne Swim Club.

Q. The new tax deductions on individual Retirement Accounts sound great. However, can I open an IRA and get the new deductions for 1981?

A. The new rules go into effect for tax years beginning in 1982 so, unfortunately, the answer to your question is no. However, if you don't have access to a qualified pension plan administered by your company, you may set up an IRA for 1981 under the old rules until April 15, 1982 - or the date of filing your 1981 tax return. This plan will be set up under the old rules. In order to get a deduction for a 1981 Keogh plan, the plan must be set up by December 31. You may, however, wait to fund the Keogh until you file your 1981 return. Although the new tax rules for IRAs don't become effective until 1982, now is an excellent time to visit with your financial officer to discuss all the advantages of the new IRA rulings.

Editor's note: We have received several phone calls and inquiries this week as to why a particular bowling league's standings did not appear in one of the last two week's weekend papers.

The answer is simple. We cannot print what we do not receive on time. At least two league standings were received late over the past two weeks and others never reached The Wayne Herald office. One league standing was received a week late and another was received on Monday after the paper had already been printed.

Deadline for receiving the league standings is 5 p.m. Friday. Any standings received after that time are too late to make Saturday morning's press run and are discarded because they become old news by next week's paper.

All standings received by 5 p.m. on Fridays will be published.

WAYNE HIGH BAND

The past week has proved both busy and exciting for the Wayne High Band, directed by Ron Daitor.

Monday, the band officers were elected.

Officers elected were Kara Kugler, president; Mark Hummel, vice-president; Karla Otte, secretary; Shelley Emry, treasurer; and Rocci Schulz, student council representative.

Class representatives for the band are Brent Haun, senior; Jeff Jorgenson, junior; and Sharon McLain, sophomore. R.J. Metteer is the band manager.

The remaining schedule for the band in 1981 will be a Christmas convocation for both elementary and high school students.

A group of brass players also plan to play Christmas carols in downtown Wayne sometime during the Christmas season. The Wayne Pep band can be seen at most of the home basketball and wrestling games.

This week many band members tried out for the stage band. Members will be announced soon.

Joan Daum

NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY

The National Honor Society Banquet for members and their parents will be held Tuesday, Nov. 24 at the Stratton House. Following a dinner, all new members will be inducted.

New senior members are Eric Brink, Mark Bofenkamp, Kara Kugler, Stacy Marsh, Jim Sperry, Sandy Ulecht, Brenda Wessel and Jill Zeiss. New juniors are Shelley Emry, Terry Gilliland, Jon Jacobmeier, Jill Mosley, Tami Murray, Beth Schaefer and Missy Stollenberg. Present members include seniors Dallas Hansen, Mark Hummel, Karla Otte, Mandy Peterson and Steve Zahniser.

The National Honor Society was first proposed in 1919, by J.G. Masters, principal of Omaha Central High School, and Edward Ryneanson, principal of Fifth Avenue High School in Pittsburgh, Pa.

The resolution in proposing the society read in part: "The National Honor Society would counteract a prevalent tendency among secondary schools to place undue emphasis upon in-adequate performance in various athletic events by giving excessive and expensive awards."

Educators were looking for a means of promoting academic excellence, and thus the National Honor Society was formed from actual local programs.

At Wayne High, juniors and seniors who have completed four semesters of high school and maintain no less than a B (3.0) grade average, have their names placed on a ballot and are voted on by the faculty.

Only 25 percent can be selected by the teachers' votes. Teachers rank students on a scale of 1-4 (4 being high) in three categories: leadership, character and service.

THIRD GRADERS FEAST

Third graders at the Wayne Elementary School enjoyed a pre-Thanksgiving feast of succotash and hasty pudding made from the original pilgrim recipes on Wednesday, Nov. 4.

The children prepared the meal themselves under the close supervision of their teachers. Mrs. Larsen and Mrs. Lubbersstedt and their aides. When asked which they preferred, the students chose the succotash over the pudding even though it was topped with honey.

The children will be given the opportunity to compile a recipe book using recipes made with corn. Another project for the children will be to imagine that they are pilgrims aboard the Mayflower and to write their feelings and impressions during the voyage.

These activities are all a part of the unit on pilgrims included in their new social studies books.

Sales for Middle School annuals are being held. The annuals cost $4.75, including tax. Sponsor for the annuals this year is Earl Tooker.

The Middle School seventh and eighth grade choir students will be performing in a Christmas Concert on Dec. 22, along with the High School choir.

On Dec. 10, the Middle School

SPEECH AND DRAMA CLUB

The Wayne High School Speech and Drama Club held a meeting in early October for election of officers.

Officers elected were: Tom Fletcher, president; Bryan Schmidt, vice-president; Jill Tompkins, secretary-treasurer; and Pam Malier, student council representative.

The dates for one-act play try-outs were set for Nov. 3 and 4. The chosen play and cast will be announced in the next edition of the Wayne-Carroll school news.

ANNUAL STAFF

The Wayne High 1982 Devil Daze annual staff was appointed in mid-October. Those appointed were Pete Craun, editor; Shelley Emry, assistant editor; Steve Zahniser, copy editor; Bryan Schmidt, layout editor; Beth Schaefer, photo editor; Steve Sladek, subscription manager; Cheryl Sukup, advertising manager; Rodney Porter and Cathy Wieseler, photographers; and Kelly Diltman and Kathy Swanson, salespersons. Robert Porter is the advisor.

Each staff member has a specific job to do. The editor, with the help of the assistant editor, puts the annual together. The copy editor writes the stories and captions, and sometimes appoints others to help.

The layout editor puts the pages together by placing pictures and captions where they are most appropriate. The photo editor chooses the pictures she feels best fit the purpose.

The subscription manager is in charge of all yearbook sales. The advertising manager sells ads to businesses. The photographers take pictures of events, as does the advisor. The salespeople sell annuals to interested persons, usually students.

Many popular magazines are available including sports magazines and children's comic books. Also, there is a large selection of records, 8-track tapes and cassettes.

Lisa Clampa

To help prepare for the work they face in the coming year, the staff attends workshops. The first workshop was held on Sept. 30, in Norfolk. Those attending were Pete Craun, Steve Zahniser, Cheryl Sukup, Steve Sladek, and Rodney Porter. The second workshop, the 50th Annual Convention of the Nebraska High School Press Association, was held in Lincoln on Oct. 26. The staff members attended this workshop, in addition to Shelley Emry, Bryan Schmidt, and Cathy Wieseler.

Kris Baier

SENIORS PREPARE

Several juniors and seniors have been making college preparations by taking special tests.

The American College Testing (ACT), Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test (PSAT), and Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) are a few of such tests that either have been or will soon be taken. Also college representatives will be coming to the Wayne High School to talk to the prospective students. Three colleges are scheduled so far for the month of November.

Representatives from the Curtis School of Technical Agriculture, Curtis and from Dana College, Blair, were at the high school in early November.

On 30 at 1:15, a representative from Mount Marty, a college in Yankton, will be at the school.

Pam Ruwe

MAGAZINE-RECORD SALES

This week the band and choral students of Wayne High and Middle schools will be selling magazine subscriptions and records door to door in the Wayne area. Their purpose is to raise money for the Wayne-Carroll School music program.

The magazines and records, tapes and cassettes, are priced reasonably. Magazine subscriptions are reduced and some are offered at sale prices. The subscriber can save money by ordering these periodicals rather than buying them off the newsstand.

Many popular magazines are available including sports magazines and children's comic books. Also, there is a large selection of records, 8-track tapes and cassettes.

 enough to provide recreation" in addition to water, soil and wildlife conservation, Marr added.
 The conservationist said the road structures are replacing rural bridges, which are expensive to build and maintain.
 "THEY (THE road structures) are designed to control runoff and erosion," Marr explained.
 "He said the road structures are "much like a dam" that retards water flow. The structures are engineered to hold water in a pond at a minimum level.
 "Excessive runoff that increases the water level in that holding pond spills over into a tube that retards the flow downstream.
 "They are designed so they won't overtop the road with water," he explained, noting that the holding pond provides wildlife habitat and the road structure also serves as a bridge.
 "The county commissioners have really adopted it," Marr said. "Wayne County is outstanding in terms of replacing rural bridges with road structures."

THOUGH HE stepped aside at the SCS, Marr has no intention of making retirement a permanent condition.

"I made a promise to myself years ago," he said. "That promise came after I'd seen good ideas get nowhere for years because an older fellow who was set in his ways would not budge to give a young fellow a chance.
 "I've had my chance, now it's time for someone else to take a crack at it," he added.
 Marr, who hopes to enter agribusiness, said he and his wife, Joan, will never leave Wayne.
 "Joan, a Greeley-born Nebraskan, is secretary to the maintenance crew at Wayne State College.
 The Marrs have five sons: Rocci, 31, who's with the U.S. Postal Service in Lincoln, Mike, 29, of Washington D.C., a Pentagon auditor; Dan, 25, of Spearfish, S.D., an electrician; Bill, 22, a Navy ensign based at Annapolis; and Doug, 19, a second year man at the Annapolis Naval Academy.

RAISED IN Pierce County, Marr graduated from Plainview High School in 1943. His father died when he was five years old. His stepfather died in Plainview in 1953.
 His older sister, LaRoyce Holmberg, lives in Madison.
 After Marr graduated from high school, he joined the U.S. Army infantry, fighting in the Pacific Theater during World War II.

Clockmaker

Rethwisch wall clocks are Harry Nelson, Jack Kavanaugh, Phil Olusen, Doris Jones and Ernest Junck, according to the retired postmaster.

RETHWISCH explained that the clocks have found their way into homes as far away as Kentucky, Oklahoma and Kansas.
 "I gave some to NAPUS (professional association for postmasters) to be raffled off as prizes," he continued.
 And, words of mouth kept Rethwisch busy on the clocks. Rethwisch explained that friends often display his clocks, contacting him when a customer wants one.
 One such place is Dor's Bar and Grill in Hoskins. Dorothy and Bud Lederer, owners of the family bar and grill, have a Red Cedar Rethwisch clock that's on display.
 "They also sell them for me," Rethwisch said.

IN ADDITION to the unique wood Rethwisch finds and uses for the clocks, he also works with a variety of special requests.

A number of customers have asked him to place a color photograph on the face of the clock. And, of course, that's what Rethwisch did.

"It takes me a couple of days to make the clocks, once I get the order," said Rethwisch, who keeps a supply of wood blanks on hand in his garage workshop.
 "Mostly, I use cedar and native woods," he explained, noting that whenever he and Clara take trips the couple also searches for specially wood indigenous to the areas they visit.

RETHWISCH custom makes the clocks, but always has several on hand that he

Smokeout

"THE IDEA is not to insult residents who may have people in their household, age 17 or older, smoke, and how many male and female smokers there are.
 Results of the telephone survey also will show approximately how many smokers tried to give up the habit.

Nelson said for the first time since the nationwide Smokeout was launched, hard statistics have become available about its long term effects.
 The American Cancer Society, which just concluded a follow up study of participants in last year's Smokeout, is surprised and excited by the results.

THE STUDY suggests that more than a million American adults who went without cigarettes for 24 hours also quit permanently on Smokeout day a year ago.

The study shows that two out of five smokers sampled tried not to smoke on the day of the Smokeout.
 Of this group, 49.2 percent made it successfully through the day, 12.9 percent didn't light up again for at least three months, 9.8 percent didn't smoke again for at least six months, and 67 percent still weren't smoking more than 11 months later.

NELSON SAID as part of the local effort to encourage residents to stop smoking, a telephone survey will be conducted in Wayne.

Eight members of coach Jan Jirsak's girls basketball team at Wayne State College have agreed to conduct the Smokeout telephone survey.

Nelson said approximately one out of every 12 residents listed in the Wayne telephone directory can expect a telephone call on Wednesday evening between the hours of 7:30 and 9, or on Thursday morning between the hours of 8 and 9:30.

makes while in an experimental mood.
 "Part of the object is to try different kinds of wood," he said, noting that he also makes clocks out of frying pans.
 In addition to the Florida Cypress domino clock, Rethwisch has timekeepers on hand that are made of Missouri River Red Cedar and Black Walnut.

"Sometimes friends of mine cut a chunk of wood and just send it to me," he said.
 On the livingroom wall of the Rethwisch home is a special clock with a face that bears the names Clara and John. It's made of Mulberry wood from a tree the couple planted in 1946 in the farm grove.

THE WOOD is dark grained and accented by the gold letters in the couple's names.
 "We cut it (the Mulberry tree) down in 1977 and I built a clock from a piece of it," Rethwisch said, obviously pleased by the memories it contains for both of them.

Rethwisch, the fifth child born to Henry and Anna Rethwisch, moved to a farm west of Carroll with his parents when the clockmaker was three years old.

His youngest sister, Louise Rethwisch Phlanz, lives in Belden. The others, all older, live nearby and include Ed Rethwisch, Elsie Rethwisch Eddie, Mary Rethwisch Huff and Gretchen Rethwisch Eddie.

Clara, a farmer's daughter and Rethwisch's wife of 50 years, grew up near Laurel in a family of 13 children born to Johannes (John) and Elizabeth Mohr.

RETHWISCH, who attended rural school as a western Wayne County youngster, is a Carroll High School graduate.

Rethwisch farmed with his father after high school. He met Clara in 1927 and the couple married in 1931.

They farmed "across the line" in Cedar County for several years until World War II. The couple sold out and moved to Vancouver, Washington, where Rethwisch worked in the shipyards for one winter.

The couple returned to northeast Nebraska in 1943, buying another farm near Belden. Soon they sold out again and returned to the West Coast shippers.
 By 1945, they were back in Nebraska operating as a Standard Oil dealer in York. Then, it was back to Carroll, where the couple owned and operated Rethwisch Liquor store for about four years while dairy farming.

ON DEC. 1, 1954, Rethwisch took the job as postmaster of Carroll — a post he held for the next 23 years.
 Clara worked at his side as a postal clerk for 17 years, retiring three years before her husband stepped out of the job.

Current Carroll postmaster, Betty Kavanaugh, worked as a clerk for Rethwisch, then took over the top job.

Today, the retired couple often spends winters in the southern latitudes of Florida and Arizona.

"But, we may stay home this winter," Clara explained, discussing the recent remodeling of her kitchen.

ONE OF THEIR highlights is when "the kids" come home. The Rethwisch "kids" are Kurt and Carla.

Kurt, an associate professor of economics at Duquesne University, lives in Murrysville, Pa., a suburb of Pittsburgh, with his wife Marty and three children — Courtney, 10, Cynda, 7, and Derek, 4.

Carla, a teacher in Morristown, Tenn., is married to Clarence Abbott. The couple have two children — Ollinga, 10 and Haila, 7.
 To "the kids and grandkids," the farmstead on the hilltop north of Carroll "is still home," explained Clara.

This spring the couple sold about 120 acres from the farm, leaving them with barns, shed and their home on 2 1/2 acres overlooking Carroll.

And, of course, in addition to their rural Carroll "home," each child and each grandchild has a Rethwisch wall clock.

NELSON SAID although the Great American Smokeout encourages smokers to quit for just 24 hours, the American Cancer Society now knows that, deep down, many of those who accept the 24 hour challenge will have longer term goals in mind.
