Holiday shopping season starting

Wayne merchants kickoff the Christmas shopping season Friday — the day after Thanksgiving Day — with extended store hours and a special Grand Give-A-Way drawing.

When stores open Friday morning, there's only 28 shopping days left until Christmas. Wayne stores will be open for every one of those 28 days with special 1 to 5 p.m. Sunday shopping. In addition, stores will remain open until 9 p.m. Mondays through Fridays.

FURTHERMORE, this Friday's special 8 p.m. Grand Give-A-Way drawing is only the tip of the icicle.

Participating merchants are offering $13,000 in prize money over the 28 shopping days.

That's $1,000 in hard, cold cash (10 crisp $100 bills, to be exact) for every one of the 13 drawings scheduled between now and Christmas Eve.

So mark your calendar for the special drawings, beginning with Friday, Nov. 27.

There's a special $1,000 daily drawing from Dec. 15 through Dec. 18. And, there's a daily $1,000 drawing from Dec. 21 through Dec. 23.

WAYNE STORES will close early — 4 p.m. — on Christmas Eve. And, Saturday closing time throughout the shopping season is 5 p.m.

On Sundays (Dec. 6, 13, & 20), stores will open at 1 p.m. with the cash drawings at 3 p.m. — a full two hours before closing time.

However, all weekend drawings will be at 8 p.m. in participating stores.

Subscribers to The Wayne Herald are already on the master list for the Grand Give-A-Way drawings.

And, anyone who receives The Wayne Herald Marketer also is on the list.

Others may sign up at one of the participating stores.

HERE'S HOW the special Grand Give-A-Way cash drawing works:

One name — from the master list — will be announced at each of the scheduled drawings. That person, or the person's spouse, will have one minute (60 seconds) to claim the $1,000 cash prize.

The person must be in a participating merchant's store when his or her name is called.

Hoskins woman suing Ford in spouse's death

A Hoskins woman is seeking $450,000 in a lawsuit filed against Ford Motor Co. in connection with the death of her husband.

Alice Schoonover, acting as the estate representative of her late husband, Earl, has filed the lawsuit in U.S. District Court, Lincoln.

In the lawsuit, Schoonover alleges that the company was careless and negligent in designing and manufacturing a 1972 Ford truck that she contends ran over him in December of 1980.

ACCORDING to the court briefs, Schoonover says that on Dec. 11, 1980, her husband placed the transmission of the 3/4-ton truck in park.

She maintains that her husband was out side the vehicle when it "jumped out of park and proceeded backward."

Schoonover, the suit contends, was knocked down and run over.

His widow contends the truck's transmission was defective.

A SIMILAR case involving the car maker and a Fairbury woman was settled recently. Though terms have not been disclosed, the Fairbury woman sought $75,000 from Ford.

The 62-year-old woman, Vera P. Jedlicka, contended that she had been injured on May 19, 1980, when she placed the transmission of her 1972 Ford car in park.

Jedlicka alleged that when she returned to her automobile, it began rolling backward. Her lawsuit contended she was knocked down and run over.

VERNON 'DOC' ELLIS of Allen saws wood for his homemade furnace.

HEAT Retired Allen homeowner builds a low-cost, wood-fired furnace

By Randy Hascall

Vernon Ellis is prepared for a long, hard winter. Yet, he doesn't plan on spending much money for fuel.

Behind the Allen native's garage is a stack of wood eight feet high, 25 feet long and 10 feet wide. And that's only a portion of the wood Ellis has stacked up to keep his house heated.

In his basement, is a homemade furnace which Ellis constructed last year for less than $200. He figures even in a blizzard, the furnace will keep his home cozy and warm.

IT WAS LAST winter that Ellis decided to do something to combat the increasing cost of fuel. The cost of heating his two-story house was more than $100 a month. His 275 gallon fuel tank had fuel added each month.

Since Ellis built a wood furnace, his fuel tank has never been refilled and is still ¾ full.

Ellis, who is 71 years old, is better known around Allen as "Doc," a nickname he picked up many years ago.

The Allen native originally had planned to build a fire place but decided that too much heat would be lost through the chimney. He obtained an old pressure tank from friend Norris Emyr at a cost of two steel supports. The tank is five feet long and two feet in diameter. Danny Nice did some welding for Ellis and now the tank serves as the actual wood burning container.

DOC INSTALLED the furnace in an old stairwell on the east edge of his home and made a chimney out of stove pipe. He took the old cellar door off the stairwell and replaced it with wood, steel bars and cement. Ellis cemented the walls, gathered some bricks that were sitting around unused and constructed the front of his furnace to resemble a fire place.

"At that time, the furnace really put out the heat but the heat couldn't get upstairs. So I built a cold air return," said Ellis.

Temperatures in the basement reached up to 120 degrees when Doc first experimented with the furnace. So he cut a hole in the sill and used wooden boxes to build a cold air return. A squirrel cage fan was added to blow the cool air under the furnace.

Then, Ellis put a register in the floor of his dining room to let the warm air circulate. A plant which hung above the register was "completely cooked" the first time Doc started his furnace.

Doc made a few minor adjustments and had the furnace sufficiently heating the entire house. Then, he constructed a humidifier out of a five gallon bucket and some copper tubing.

ALTHOUGH THE FURNACE kept the house well heated while wood was burning, when the fire went out, the house cooled down. So Ellis added a large storage system.

He gathered 90 large rocks from the Joe Novak farm and found that by piling them on top of the furnace, excess heat was absorbed by the rocks. Even when the flames are extinguished, the rocks still contain plenty of heat—enough to turn water to steam or burn a hand.

Additional improvements included a filter in the register and a blower to pull the cool air out of the kitchen and into the cold air return. Total cost of Doc's project is less than $200. At a cost of approximately $100, stove pipe was the most expensive investment.

Now, Ellis says his large house is evenly heated. The temperature on the main floor is kept at 71 degrees. He has two drafts to slow down the heat if the house gets too warm. With three rooms in the upstairs, five rooms on the main floor and a full basement, wood-burning seems to be the answer to Doc's heating worries.

LAST WINTER, Ellis took advantage of mild weather to cut up some trees and build a large supply of wood. An area farmer had some cottonwood trees bulldozed and Ellis sawed them up. They piled up 16 pickup loads of wood. Ellis now has three large piles of wood to last him through the winter.

One of the advantages of Ellis' large furnace is that he can burn pieces of fire wood up to five feet long and 22 inches in diameter. "I can buzz up a pile of wood in no time," he said.

"I don't have much money in it but it will sure save a lot. Our fuel bill would be a lot higher," Doc said. "Anyone who wants to stop by and take a look is sure welcome. I know it does the trick."

ELLIS SAYS another reason he built the furnace is that he has old-fashioned ideas. When he married Eleanor in 1901, the couple heated their home near Allen by burning coals in a pot belly stove. They also milked cows and churned butter.

Now, after celebrating their 50th wedding anniversary this year, Doc and Eleanor are no longer milking cows but have returned to burning wood as a cheap means of heat. The parents of eight children, they have lived in the house since 1955. They also have 29 grand children and eight great grand children.

4 good-deed doers win Thanksgiving turkeys

Four "special people" in the Wayne area have been awarded a free Thanksgiving Day turkey as a token of gratitude for their kind deeds.

The winners were presented with the free turkeys by four thankful people who took the time to write about the good deed doers for The Wayne Herald's first annual "Why I'm Thankful" contest.

Contest judges selected the winners from 130 entries published in today's special section.

LOUISE JENNESS of Wayne, Bob Cramer of Waterbury, Kara Kugler of Wayne, and Ed Wolske of Wayne all have been presented with holiday turkeys, courtesy of four city merchants.

Jenness, head nurse at Providence Medical Center, Wayne, received her free turkey from 6-year-old Danielle Nelson of Carroll.

The first-grader's "Why I'm Thankful" drawing took first place in the contest's kindergarten through fourth-grade division. The daughter of LeRoy and Sandy Nelson, Carroll, Danielle, who has undergone countless hours of medical attention and therapy because of a severe burn she received a few years ago, drew her thankful message about doctors and nurses.

WHEN SHE picked up the free turkey from Bob Wellman at Wellman's IGA Monday, Danielle had decided to present it to the head nurse.

Danielle's mother said it was a tough choice for her daughter, who mentioned the help of Dr. Willis Wiseman, nurse Jenness "and all the nurses at the hospital."

Under the contest rules, the writers (or sketchers) of the winning "Why I'm Thankful" messages received a free Thanksgiving Day turkey to present to the "special person" they wrote about or sketched.

And, for writing or sketching the winning message, the author or artist received a free tub of broasted chicken from Bill's GW in Wayne.

Wayne merchants donating the turkeys were Johnson's Frozen Foods, Rich's Super Foods, Wellman's IGA and Bill's GW.

CRAMER, WHO received his free turkey from a younger brother, William McCain, was enthused enough to bring most of the family to town to pick up the prize at Bill's GW.

McCain, a seventh-grader at Allen Consolidated Schools, wrote about his older, adopted brother for his entry in the fifth-grade through eighth-grade division of the contest.

The youngster said that since his father died in 1979, Cramer has been "just like a father to me."

McCain's mother, Gloria, said the two are inseparable. Cramer, who is 27, and the younger McCain, 14, hunt together (Cramer bought McCain a gun last year) and work on his seventh-grader's football passing and kicking together.

Cramer also saw to it the young lad got a horse and a pasture for the animal.

McCain picked up a tub of broasted chicken at Bill's GW for his efforts.

KUGLER ALSO was presented with a free Thanksgiving Day turkey.

She's been a "special person" to Dean Fuelberth of Wayne.

Fuelberth, a ninth grader, had the winning entry in the ninth-grade through 12th-grade division.

The son of Darrell and Nancy Fuelberth, Dean was thankful for a kind gesture that captured the spirit of every-day thanksgiving.

Kugler offered Dean a ride home from school following the Wisner Marching Band Contest in mid-October.

He presented Kugler with a free turkey from Johnson's Frozen Foods. And, Dean won a tub of broasted chicken from Bill's GW for the writing the winning entry.

LAST, BUT certainly not least, is Wolske. Gene and Carolyn Bigelow of Wayne described him as "a neighbor deserving of special thanks."

They go on to list a number of the ways the retired businessman has become a leader in the Oak Drive neighborhood.

Wolske's neighborliness, according to the Bigelows, extends to help with yard work, gardening, snow removal, dog care, firewood collection, car repair and dozens of other neighborhood projects.

The Bigelows presented Wolske with his free turkey from Rich's Super Foods. And, for submitting the winning entry in the contest's adult division, the couple won a free tub of broasted chicken from Bill's GW.

news briefs

School committee election set

Representatives of each Class I and Class III Wayne County school will meet in the Wayne County courtroom at 7:30 p.m. Monday, Nov. 30, to elect or re-elect members of the Wayne County School Reorganization Committee.

Committee members serve four year terms. Current members are Frederick Winn, Wayne; Merlin Reinhart, Wayne; Harlin Brugger, Winside; Merton Marshall, Wayne; and Glenn Meyer, Wakefield.

Grand Give-A-Way is Friday

Loren Moody of rural Winside lost out on $1,000 in bonus bucks during last Thursday night's Wayne Grand Give-A-Way drawing.

Moody's name was announced in participating stores, but he failed to identify himself to claim the prize.

The contest shifts to Friday night this week, due to the Thanksgiving Day holiday.

Most businesses will be closed Thanksgiving Day, but Wayne merchants will reopen Friday to kickoff the Christmas shopping season.

Stores will be open Friday until 9 p.m.

October weather a bit cool

Wayne area residents experienced a cooler than normal October, according to the National Weather Service data recorded by the University of Nebraska Lincoln.

In a range from Norfolk to Wakefield, the temperature average for the month was 2.7 to 3.0 degrees cooler than normal.

Moisture for the month ranged from 1.49 inches southwest of Wayne to 2.39 inches northeast of the city.

Rainfall in the southwest part of the county left the area with 18 inches more than normal for the month.

However, the 2.39 inches northeast of Wayne still left that area with a moisture debt of .87 inches for October.

PSC rep to visit Wayne

A representative of Peru State College will be at Wayne Carroll High School at 8:30 a.m. Thursday, Dec. 3, to discuss higher education planning with area students.

Marty O'Hern, assistant admissions director at Peru State, will be available for consultation on the college's academic programs, financial aid opportunities and extracurricular activities.

Peru State is a four-year, co-educational, fully accredited college supported by the State of Nebraska. The college offers a wide selection of four-year academic programs including several pre-professional courses of study.

Counties get state funds

Wayne, Dixon and Cedar counties are expected to receive state treasury payments this week that represent local government shares in the state sales and income tax revenues.

Wayne County will receive $2,549, with another $4,458 to be divided among the municipalities within the county.

Dixon County will receive $1,957, with another $3,442 going to the municipalities within the county.

And, Cedar County will receive $2,988, with another $5,257 going to the county's municipalities.

Energy workshop slated

Four workshops on energy efficiency will be held at Northeast Technical Community College in early December.

Solar and Conservation Techniques for Reducing Your Hot Water Bill, will be held from 7 to 10 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 1, in the Community Services Room.

Boilers Maintenance and Operation will be held from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 3, in the Community Services Room.

The Path to Passive Solar Energy will be held from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 5, in the Community Services Room.

And, High Efficiency Masonry Fireplaces - Design and Construction will be held from 9:30 a.m. to noon Saturday, Dec. 12, in the Community Services Room.

For more information, contact the NTCC Community Services Division at 371-2020 ext. 213.

police report

Keith Reed of Wayne reported the windshield of his pickup was damaged by BB-gun fire Saturday.

Reed told Wayne police he found two BB holes in the windshield of his pickup at 11:40 a.m.

Also on Saturday, police helped round up two horses in the 700 to 800 block of First Street west.

The horses were captured and the owner notified.

ON SUNDAY, police escorted a Wayne State College student to Morey Hall after he reported being harassed by several persons in a white car.

The student said occupants of the car had been chasing him.

Snow removal reminder issued

The snow season has arrived. And, Wayne residents should become familiar with city ordinances regarding snow removal, according to Vern Schulz, city public works superintendent.

Schulz said that throughout the season, a street sander operates whenever freezing rain or snow begins.

WHEN WAYNE'S snowfall exceeds 2 inches, snowplows begin the work on heavily traveled streets and emergency routes, according to Schulz.

As those streets are cleaned, the crews shift to the downtown business district and then to residential areas, the superintendent said.

Schulz urges cooperation from city residents during this year's snow removal operations.

Since vehicles parked on streets hamper efficient snow removal, Schulz has asked that off street parking be used whenever possible during city snowfalls.

SCHULZ SAID illegally parked vehicles will be towed away when they impede snow removal efforts.

Snowplows must clear streets to their normal width, he said. Detours around parked cars result in extra trips and added expense.

City ordinance prohibits the pushing or throwing of snow from parking lots, driveways or off street parking areas onto public streets, according to Schulz.

He said the only exception is in the business district. There, snow can be thrown into the street, but it must be at least a foot from the curb so that street crews can remove it.

AND, CITY residents are required by ordinance to clear their sidewalks within 24 hours of a snowfall.

Failure to comply with the law can result in a court summons. Furthermore, Schulz said, the property owner could be required to pay for labor hired by the city to remove the snow.

Removal of snow behind sidewalks, stations and off street parking is the responsibility of the property owner, Schulz said.

Sunshine Home Extension Club met for its annual family Christmas supper Friday at the Black Knight.

Mrs. Julius Baier and Mrs. Gilbert Kraillman were on the entertainment committee. Receiving card prizes were Mrs. Edie Baier, Mrs. Helen Echtenkamp and Mrs. Gilbert Kraillman. Next regular meeting will be a 1 o'clock dessert luncheon on Dec. 2 in the home of Clara Echtenkamp.

Grace Evening Circle

Twenty-one members of the Evening Circle of Grace Lutheran Church met Nov. 10.

Officers were elected for 1982. They are Janet Casey, president; Lorraine Johnson, vice president; Marcine Rohrberg, secretary; and Marcella Suehl, treasurer.

The Rev. Tom Mendenhall showed a film on new Lutheran worship hymnals. Marcella Suehl and Marcine Rohrberg were in charge of the program.

Next meeting will be Guest Night on Dec. 8 at 8 p.m. in the church basement. A salad supper will be served.

Center closed for Thanksgiving

Georgia Janssen, director of the Wayne Senior Citizens Center, said the center will be closed today (Thursday) and Friday for the Thanksgiving holiday.

Mrs. Janssen said there will be no congregate or home delivered meals on those days.

Elected student senators

Al Grovas and Kay Anderson, both of Wayne, were recently elected student senators from their respective colleges at the University of Nebraska Medical Center.

Grovas will represent the College of Graduate Studies, and Miss Anderson represents the College of Nursing.

'Christmasse Feastes' slated

The "Elizabethan Christmasse Feastes" are scheduled Dec. 10-13 at 7 p.m. nightly in the North Dining room of the Wayne State College Student Center.

LOOKING OVER THE RECIPE packet which will be included in the ticket price for the PEO holiday appetizer party are, from left, Sheryl Lindau, chairman Donna Liska, and Anna Mae Wessel. The manzanita branch on the table bears Christmas tree ornaments which will be on sale in the boutique, along with homebaked and handcrafted items. The public is invited to sample the appetizers Dec. 2.

A seasonal sampling

PEO appetizer tasting party will whet holiday appetites

Although cheese and crackers or peanuts and pretzels can suffice as appetizers most of the year, hostesses prefer to stretch their culinary wings during the holiday season.

To whet appetites and imaginations, members of the Wayne Chapter A2 of PEO will hold an appetizer tasting party Wednesday, Dec. 2, from 4:30 to 7:30 p.m. in the home of Anna Mae Wessel, 620 Hillcrest Rd.

Tickets are $4 per person or $6 per couple. The cost includes a recipe packet of all of the approximately 30 appetizers to be served.

Tickets will be sold on an hourly basis, with purchases entering their hour.

THE RECIPES range from down home favorites to foreign specialties, from last minute quickies and omelets to pin-a-heads.

A sampling of recipes to be featured include the quick and easy dip pickle bites from Bonnie Lund, Jean Bentkirk's "soup of the border," chili con queso, and a New Orleans hot broccoli dip from Jean Griess.

Dill Pickle Bites

Dry whole dill pickles, spread with softened cream cheese. Wrap slice of water thin cooked ham around each pickle and cut in inch chunks.

'Chili Con Queso'

1 onion, finely chopped
1 clove garlic, finely chopped
1 tablespoon bacon fat
1 tablespoon flour
1 1/2 oz. can tomatoes
1 1/2 oz. can green chilis
1 lb. Velveeta cheese
Salt and Tabasco sauce to taste
Saute onion and garlic in bacon fat until golden. Add flour, tomatoes and chilis and cook until thick. Add cheese and seasonings and cook until cheese is melted and mixture thickens. Serve in chafing dish with corn chips.

New Orleans Hot Broccoli Dip

1 10 oz. package chopped broccoli
1 small onion, chopped
2 tablespoons butter
1 can cream of mushroom soup
1 1/2 oz. roll garlic cheese
1/2 teaspoon Accent
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper
1/2 teaspoon Tabasco sauce
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 1/2 oz. can mushrooms
3/4 cup slivered almonds
Cook broccoli according to package directions. Saute onion in butter. Blend soup, cheese, seasonings with onions and heat over low heat until cheese is melted. Stir in broccoli. Add mushrooms and almonds. Serve hot with corn chips.

TICKET buyers to the party also will have an opportunity to take home homebaked and handcrafted items from the boutique.

Florence Willse, chairman, said her shop will have free or nominal, miniature cream puffs, nut breads, cheese balls, and more for sale to party goers.

Tickets are on sale at The Cupboard, Griess Rexall and Joanne Designs.

MRS. JAY Liska is chairman of the steering committee for the event. Other members include Mrs. Wessel, Mrs. Glen Wiseman and Mrs. James Lindau.

Other committees and their members include Mrs. Kenneth Liska and Mrs. Robert Jordan, ticket sales; Mrs. Lyle Seymour and Mrs. John Swanson, cookbook co-editors; Mrs. Francis Haun, Mrs. R. M. Lundstrom, Mrs. Phil Griess and Mrs. Richard Lund, cookbook publication; Mrs. Willis Wiseman, Mrs. Gary Leach and Mrs. Dennis Dickey, art work; Mrs. Roy Christensen and Mrs. Alan Cramer, serving; and Mrs. Stanley Burst, table decorations.

PEO is a philanthropic, educational organization dedicated to the higher education of women.

Immanuel Ladies elect officers

Immanuel Lutheran Ladies Aid met last Thursday and elected officers for the upcoming year.

Mrs. Eiray Hank will serve as president. Other officers are Mrs. Dale Lessmann, vice president; Mrs. Reuben Meyer, secretary; and Mrs. Merle Roerber, treasurer.

Serving on the December committees are Mrs. Marvin Echtenkamp and Mrs. Arnold Roerber, visitation; and Mrs. Byron Roerber, Mrs. Merle Roerber, Mrs. Marvin Nelson and Mrs. Oscar Gemelke, cleaning.

HELEN Echtenkamp and Alma Weiershauser were co-hostesses for the November meeting. "Now Thank We All Our God" was sung for opening devotions.

Vicar Redhage had the Bible study topic on "Evangelism," followed with prayer.

Mrs. Eiray Hank, president, opened the business meeting with a reading, entitled "Meaning of Prayer."

NINETEEN members and a guest, Mrs. Lloyd Redhage, attended the meeting.

The visitation report was given by Mrs. Albert Echtenkamp and Mrs. Laverne Wischhof.

Mrs. Helen Echtenkamp, Mrs. Harlan Ruwe and Mrs. Marlin Schuttler reported on the LWML Fall Rally they attended in October at Grace Lutheran Church, Wayne.

Women serving on the committee for the lunch stand at the Gilbert Rauss sale are Mrs. Lloyd Roerber, Mrs. Merle Roerber and Mrs. Harlan Ruwe.

CHRISTMAS donations were sent to the Dakota Boys Ranch, Heitsheda Home and Lutheran Old Peoples Home.

It was announced that the Wakefield Health Care Center evangelism will be Dec. 14.

Mrs. Lawrence Ruwe, Mrs. Marvin Rewinkel and Mrs. Reuben Meyer were honored with the birthday song.

NEXT MEETING will be a noon Christmas luncheon on Dec. 17, with Vicar Redhage and Mrs. Marlin Schuttler in charge of the program.

Mrs. Reuben Meyer will decorate tables, and Mrs. Ben Holtman and Mrs. Gilbert Rauss will prepare the coffee.

Husbands and other guests will be invited.

Poppy sales $445

Ruth Korh, VFW Auxiliary poppy chairman, said poppy sales in Wayne this month totaled $445.27.

Mrs. Korh made her report during a meeting of the auxiliary on Nov. 9 at the Wayne Vet's Club. Twenty members attended the meeting, which was called to order by Francis Doring.

A letter was read from Gold Star member Dorothy Danberg, thanking the unit for paying her auxiliary dues.

THE AUXILIARY will purchase a Christmas gift for a resident of Wayne Care Centre.

Membership chairman Lillian Granquist reported there are 74 paid-up members, and rehabilitation chairman Helen Stelken announced she will send Thanksgiving cards to shut-ins.

Mabel Sommerfeld, safety chairman, read an article on electric blankets.

Eveline Thompson reported on the Fall Conference she attended last month in Kearney.

IT WAS announced the Christmas party at the Norfolk Veterans Home will held on Dec. 12, beginning at 1:30 p.m.

Members of all veterans organizations in Wayne will gather for their annual covered dish Christmas dinner on Dec. 6 at the Vets Club. Social hour is from 5:30 to 6:30 p.m., with dinner following.

The auxiliary gave donations to the department president's special fund; general hospital; Christmas fund; health and happiness fund; Christmas cheer; Eaton Rapid Christmas seals; and the Norfolk Veterans Home.

SERVING were Dorothy Danberg, Winnie Thompson and DeAnn Helmers.

Next regular meeting of the auxiliary will be the annual Christmas program on Dec. 14. There will be a $1.50 to $2 Christmas gift exchange.

policy on weddings

The Wayne Herald welcomes news accounts and photographs of weddings involving families living in the Wayne area.

We feel there is widespread interest in local and area weddings and are happy to make space available for their publication.

Because our readers are interested in current news, we ask that all weddings and photographs offered for publication be in our office within 10 days after the date of the ceremony. Information submitted with a picture after that deadline will be carried as a story but will be used in a cutline underneath the picture. Wedding pictures submitted after the story appears in the paper must be in our office within three weeks after the ceremony.

Cloeter repeats in 5th Turkey Trot

There was no surprise at the finish line of the fifth annual Wayne Turkey Trot as World-Class marathon runner Rev. Dan Cloeter of Norfolk repeated as champion of the event.

However, Cloeter, whose winning time was 15:59, was pressed by several other runners who followed on his heels.

Steve Monson, a former Wayne High cross country and track runner, placed second with a time of 16:19 and Larry Bockelman of Wisner placed third in 16:27.

Doug Proett, another former Wayne High cross country and track runner, finished fourth with a time of 16:39. Two other individuals, Jim Schwalenberg of Norfolk and Wayne State College runner Arid Johnson had times under 17 minutes while placing fifth and sixth respectively.

CLOETER WON the men's age 20 to 29 division as well as the overall title. Monson won the men's 19 and under division and Bockelman won the men's 30 to 39 age division. Chuck Lein of Vermillion, S.D., won the men's 40 and over division.

Winning the women's division and 19 and under division was Lisa Shauers of Norfolk who ran the 3.1 mile course in 23:26. Defending champion Karlene Erickson of Erikson did not compete this year. Marcia Baumert of Hartington won the women's 20-29 division, Jonnie Andrew of Pierce won the women's 30-39 division and Lenora Barthel of Amelia won the women's 40 and over division.

Race director Pat Gross reported that 109 runners entered the Turkey Trot which was run Saturday in cold weather and on icy streets.

The male and female winners were awarded frozen turkeys and division winners were presented trophies. Every contest was given a 1-shirt.

Randy's Recap

By Randy Hascall

DEER HUNTERS seem to have had good success this season throughout this part of the state. We received quite a few calls from hunters who bagged their deer and I've heard of several others who shot their prize but didn't report it to The Wayne Herald.

Hunters from the surrounding area shot deer as far away as Valentine and as near as three miles from Wayne. In fact, John Mohr shot the largest deer as far as I know (a six-point Whitetail) and he barely had to leave his house. He shot the buck three miles south of Wayne and that's not far from his home.

From talking to hunters, I would have to say that the country near Butte was the most bountiful area for deer. One hunter reported seeing 14 deer within a matter of minutes and a group of local hunters bagged about half a dozen deer in that area.

Now, the season is over and hunters can hang up their rifles for another year.

THE FIFTH ANNUAL Turkey Trot was again a success despite the chilly weather and ice-covered streets. I counted 39 or 40 runners from Wayne and surrounding communities. Other runners came from as far away as 100 miles.

Some cold-looking runners crossed the finish line Saturday morning but most of them seemed satisfied and glad they entered the race.

HOW ABOUT those Huskers? It was a great sight to watch the Big Red clobber Oklahoma down in Sooner country. Oklahoma's opening drive left me scared that history would repeat itself and the Cornhuskers would fold.

But, Nebraska's offense denied the Sooners their chance. I feel that Nebraska is the best team in the country right now. The Huskers won't get another chance to prove themselves against Iowa or Penn State in a rematch but the Orange Bowl will prove a lot. I don't think Clemson can stop Nebraska's offense.

Nebraska was ranked fifth and has an outside chance of moving up a notch by the end of the season. Penn State has a fairly good chance of upsetting Pittsburg and Auburn has a chance of knocking off Alabama even if Georgia probably won't be challenged by Georgia Tech. The Huskers' hopes of a national title, although real slim, are still burning.

Mark Mauer climbed from scapegoat to hero by leading the Nebraska attack. Nebraska's passing game has never looked better this season. If Mauer had played like that all season, Turner Gill probably wouldn't have even gotten an opportunity to start a ball game.

ALL INTERVIEWS of area coaches for the annual "winter sports guide" have been conducted and the 1981 guide will be off the press in the issue of Dec. 9. Basketball and wrestling fans will be able to get a pre-season look at their favorite team.

Schools included in the guide are Allen, Laurel, Wakefield, Wayne and Winslow High Schools and Wayne State College. Some teams may have a long season ahead while others will shoot for the top. It's all included in the 1981 winter sports guide.

1 win, 2 losses

Wildcats lose close ones

The men's basketball team at Wayne State College showed an abundance of promise but a marked lack of consistency as it opened the 1981-82 season with a win and two losses last week in Kearney.

Taking part in the annual NAIA District 11 Cage Classic, Wayne State blasted Dana College by 91-64 on Wednesday, lost a 79-78 heartbreaker to Concordia the next day and fell 95-84 to perennial power Hastings on Friday.

Coach Rick Weaver's Wildcats could easily have come out of the tourney 3-0 rather than 1-2, but a lack of poise against Concordia and a rash of fouls against Hastings spelled defeat. Still, there were plenty of bright spots for the Wildcats.

One of the brightest spots was the play of junior transfer guard Brad Edwards of Carroll, Iowa. The 5-11 Edwards pumped in 22 points against Dana, 20 against Concordia, and 16 against the Hastings Broncos.

Of no surprise to anyone was the play of stand-out forward Grady Hansen, a junior from Omaha. The 6-6 Hansen, last year's top Wildcat scorer, fired in 22 against Dana, 23 against Concordia, and 25 against Hastings. Hansen also grabbed 17 rebounds in the loss to a veteran Concordia squad.

Senior center and co-captain Al Jones of Sioux City, Iowa overcame a bout with the flu to play fine basketball for the Wildcats. Jones scored 12 points, snared nine rebounds and dished out five assists against Dana; he added a dozen rebounds before fouling out against Concordia; and he netted 15 points and eight rebounds before fouling out against Hastings.

Senior guard Jay Bellar, returning to the Wildcat squad after a one-year absence, filled 10 points against both Concordia and Hastings. Transfer forward Brian Platt of Casper, Wyo., had 12 points and seven rebounds against Concordia and played a fine defensive game against Hastings.

The Wildcats opened their home season on Tuesday against Bellevue College in a game with great importance in NAIA District 11. The Cats kick off their 1981-82 Central States Intercollegiate Conference season on Saturday (Nov. 28) at St. Joseph, Mo. against the Griffons of Missouri Western.

Wayne State plays host to the University of South Dakota-Springfield on Tuesday, Dec. 1 and will try to avenge the loss to Concordia on Thursday, Dec. 3 at home.

Wayne State 91, Dana 64; Brad Edwards 22, Grady Hansen 22, Al Jones 12, Brian Platt 9, Jim Reinders 8, Dana Childs 8, Cedric Edwards 4, Darren Elijah 2, Lonell Greene 2, Charlie Pugh 2.

Concordia 79, Wayne State 78; Grady Hansen 23, Brad Edwards 16, Al Jones 15, Jay Bellar 10, Brian Platt 6, Dana Childs 6, Lonell Greene 4, Cedric Edwards 2.

Hastings 95, Wayne State 84; Grady Hansen 25, Brad Edwards 16, Al Jones 15, Jay Bellar 10, Brian Platt 6, Dana Childs 6, Lonell Greene 4, Cedric Edwards 2.

Wayne State women split season openers

A young Wayne State College women's basketball team posted a win and a loss in its first action of 1981-82 in the NAIA District 11 Cage Classic at Fremont last week.

First-year Coach Jan Jirsak saw her squad trim Doane 59-58 on Thursday, then fell to Hastings by 95-60 the following night. After facing Peru State on the road on Nov. 24, Wayne State travels to Sioux City to take on Briar Cliff next Tuesday (Dec. 1).

Wayne State took a 30-25 halftime lead over Doane and held on for the one-point win. Sophomore guard Tammy Blackburn of Norfolk paced the Wayne attack with 20 points. Another pair of sophomore guards, Maggie Alberts of Denton, Iowa, and Janet Lee of Albion chipped in 10 points each, while sophomore forward Carol Durkee added nine.

Hastings College claimed a 10-point halftime lead, then outscored Wayne State 59-34 in the second half to take an easy 95-60 victory. Once again it was Tammy Blackburn leading the scoring attack with 16 points followed by Alberts with 10. Durkee netted another nine points.

The Lady Wildcats have only one home game before the semester break when Hastings comes to town on Dec. 8.

Wayne State 59, Doane 58; Tammy Blackburn 20, Janet Lee 10, Maggie Alberts 10, Carol Durkee 9, Patty Carney 6, Sue Juhlin 2, Lynn Brandt 2, Marie Dunning 1. Hastings 95, Wayne State 60; Tammy Blackburn 16, Maggie Alberts 10, Carol Durkee 9, Janet Lee 6, Patty Carney 6, Marie Dunning 4, Jackie Schmitz 4, Lynn Brandt 2, Sue Juhlin 2, Trish Park 1.

28 players earn letters

Twenty-eight Wayne football players earned letters during a 3-6 campaign this past season. Nine seniors, 14 juniors, three sophomores and two freshmen lettered.

Senior lettermen: Eric Brink, Mark Botenkamp, Dallas Hansen, Mark Hummel, Richard Poeslman, Alan Lindsay, Larry Luenders, Steve Sladek, Jim Sperry.

MOST VALUABLE player selected by the team was Eric Brink; Brink also shared defensive player-of-the-year honors with Tim Heier and was honorary co-captain along with Richard Poeslman. Most improved player was Dan Frevert.

Offensive statistics show quarterback Steve Overin completing 11 of 27 passes for 186 yards, Mark Hummel completing six of 20 for 48 yards and Shaun Niemann completing three of 19 passes for 26 yards.

Leading rushers were Jeff McCright with 110 carries for 632 yards and a 5.8 yard average per carry, Dan Frevert with 91 carries for 447 yards and a 4.9 yard average, Kurt Janke with 102 carries for 399 yards and a 3.9 yard average.

Frevert scored six touchdowns, McCright scored four and Overin scored four. Frevert had 41 total points, McCright had 26. Overin had 24. Janke had 18 and Rich Poeslman and Eric Brink each had six points.

LEADING RECEIVERS were Terry Gilliland with five receptions for 98 yards and a 19.6 yard average and Al Lindsay with four catches for 65 yards and a 16.3 yard average. Janke caught only one pass but that covered 43 yards and accounted for a TD. McCright also made four receptions.

All-purpose offensive leader was McCright with 632 rushing yards, 23 receiving yards, 65 yards on punt returns and 231 yards on kickoff returns for 951 total yards. Janke had 639 total yards including 166 on kickoff returns and Frevert had 517.

As a team, the Blue Devils beat their opponents in many statistical categories. Wayne had 84 first downs compared to 71 for the opponents. The Devils had 24 fumbles and lost only 17 while their opponents had 26 and lost 23.

Wayne outtrushed its opponents 1,693 yards to 1,358 and had an average gain per play of 3.9 yards per rush and 13.6 yards per pass compared to 3.5 per rush and 12.5 per pass for the opposition.

Per game totals show Wayne averaging 188.1 yards rushing and 30.1 yards passing for 218.2 while the opponents averaged 150.8 yards rushing and 45.8 yards passing for 196.7 total yards. The locals were outscored 144 to 121.

DEFENSIVE LEADERS for Wayne were Heier with 37 solo tackles and 89 assists for 126 total; Dallas Hansen with 21 solos and 94 assists for 119; Eric Brink with 44 solos and 64 assists for 110; Kevin Koenig with 28 solos and 80 assists; Jeff McCright with 27 solos and 66 assists for 93; Mark Kubik with 17 solos and 67 assists for 84.

Brink had five fumble recoveries including one for a TD and Todd Schwartz had four. Janke and Gilliland each intercepted two passes.

Season bests: Longest run from scrimmage for TD—Dan Frevert, 66 yards vs. West Point CC. Longest run from scrimmage, no TD—Kurt Janke, 36 yards vs. Hartington CC. Longest pass reception for TD—Kurt Janke, 43 yards vs. West Point CC. Longest pass reception, no TD—Terry Gilliland, 26 yards vs. Columbus Lakewood. Longest pass interception, no TD—Jim Poeslman, three yards vs. Hartington CC. Longest kickoff return, no TD—Jeff McCright, 25 yards vs. Emerson Hubbard. Defensive bests: team rushing—Emerson Hubbard 43 yards; team passing—West Point CC no yards. Individual tackle bests—Heier, 37 vs. Hartington CC; Koenig, 28 vs. Schuyler; McCright, 23 vs. O'Neill. Team offensive bests: rushing—374 yards vs. West Point CC; passing—47 yards vs. Lakewood; scoring—24 points vs. West Point CC.

Ed Blackburn Kelly Neustrom Steve Zelinsky

WSC trio is named to All-CSIC 1st team

Three Wayne State football players were named to the first team, three others to the second team and two others to the honorable mention list when the All-Central States Intercollegiate Conference football team was announced Tuesday.

Steve Zelinsky, a 6-3, 255-pound senior from Wheaton, Ill., was named to the first team for the third consecutive year as an offensive lineman. Kelly Neustrom, a 5-11, 180-pound senior quarterback from Moultrie, Iowa and Ed Blackburn, a 6-5, 220-pound senior tight end from Malvern, Iowa also were named to the first team.

Senior receiver Pat Maxwell, senior defensive lineman Ron Berrie and junior linebacker Ron Gilbert were listed on the second team. On the honorable mention list are defensive end Kevin McArdle and defensive back Jay Sandy.

Kearney State placed four players on the first team, six on the second team and nine on the honorable mention list. Among the second teamers was KSC junior running back Mitch Pfeiffer, a graduate of Windsor High School.

Conference champion Pittsburg State placed six players on the first team. Ron Randleman, who coached the Gorillas to a 9-1 record and sixth place ranking in NAIA Division I, was chosen coach of the year.

Players' balance led to Trojan wins

The Wakefield Trojans completed their volleyball season with a 9-9 record, finishing second in the district tournament.

As a team, the Trojans hit 517 total service points while serving for 87 percent efficiency. Wakefield had 666 good spikes in 829 tries for 80 percent, made 653 good sets in 705 attempts for 93 percent, had 158 ace serves, 215 ace spikes and 152 sets for ace spikes.

Four players hit at least 90 percent of their serves into play. Trudy Hansen had 105 serve points and 168 good serves in 183 attempts for 92 percent.

Rita Wilson scored 96 points with 147 good serves in 162 attempts for 91 percent. Renee Wenstrand made 91 points with 145 good serves in 161 attempts for 90 percent and Lana Erb had 80 points with 114 good serves in 127 attempts for 91 percent. Rural-urban splits developing over school mergers

By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

Lawmakers and state officials for years have been heard talking about tax equity. It's also an issue that concerns local governments and taxpayers.

The Legislature's Education Committee recently took another look at the controversial issue of achieving tax equity among state school districts. And this is one issue where urban-rural splits are evident.

Nebraska currently has 1,060 school districts, giving the state a No. 2 ranking nationally. Proposals recently have surfaced in legislative form to reduce the number considerably, but the issue isn't settling lightly with some.

tee bearing, hundreds were on hand to make their positions known. Pending before the committee are two bills related to the tax equity issue.

One measure, LB319, would cut the number of public school districts in half. Small districts would be forced to merge with larger districts.

Also pending in the committee is LB210, which would increase state aid to education. The committee opted to study both bills; an underlying theme of the interim review is whether — and how — tax equity can be achieved.

Supporters of the school district consolidation bill believe Nebraskans would be winners if there were fewer districts. They claim property taxpayers in rural areas benefit from the rural school districts, which they believe serve as tax shelters.

OPPONENTS, on the other hand, fear the loss of local control of schools. They also reject the tax shelter arguments.

Sen. Howard Lamb of Anselmo is among the vocal opponents of the proposal to merge elementary Class I districts, with larger districts.

As far as the Anselmo rancher is concerned, LB319 would take away local control. He also believes such an approach would result in a greater tax burden for rural residents.

Another of Lamb's concerns is the effect on school children. If the merger took place, he reasons, students in rural areas might have to travel even farther to school.

In addition, Lamb raised another hot issue — school financing. Property-rich people, such as farmers and ranchers, often pay more than city dwellers because they have more property to be taxed, and that's not fair, Lamb contends.

IN SOUTH Dakota, Lamb says, real estate is "broken into two classes" — agricultural and non-agricultural — when figuring the tax bill. The mill levy is then decreased for agricultural land, and the situation is more equitable, he said. Lamb suggested Nebraska consider that tax system.

But even that option has its problems, some senators contend.

Sen. Charles Buetler of Lincoln, for example, indicated the proposal might be unfair to city dwellers, especially the elderly or people on fixed incomes. Their property taxes likely would increase to support schools.

The questions raised by such proposals are many, and lawmakers likely will spend hours during the next session examining the issue.

Numerous so-called equitable solutions have surfaced over the years, but each one has at least some critics. Whether the Legislature's Education Committee can finally resolve the issue is uncertain, but it doesn't appear likely, at least not in the immediate future.

COMMISSION SHAKE-UP — There's been a shake-up in the Nebraska Mexican-American Commission this month.

Commission Director Jesse Cervantes was fired, after he had fired a research analyst. Cervantes wasn't surprised about what happened during the emergency weekend meeting, and said he has had other conflicts with the commission about the way he runs the office.

One of the reasons cited by some commissioners for firing Cervantes was his decision to dismiss research analyst Steve King.

Glora Reiffenrath, who was named acting director after Cervantes was fired, called King "one of the best assets this commission has ever had."

KING WAS rehired, and he said he felt vindicated by the decision to rehire him. A grievance he had filed with the state Personnel Board over his firing was withdrawn after he was rehired, but he indicated he might file an assault complaint against Cervantes.

King alleged Cervantes grabbed him and threw him against a wall during a dispute that led to King's dismissal. Cervantes, however, says he had put his hand on King's shoulder to calm him during the dispute. Some of the events surrounding Cervantes' and King's firings were unclear, but it was clear Cervantes lacked commission support. The vote to fire him was 5-2.

'Twas the feast...

'Twas the feast of Thanksgiving and all through the house,
Every creature was stirring except my pet mouse.
The stuffing was put in the turkey with care,
In hopes that our relatives soon would be there.
The children were nestled all around our table,
Hoping to eat, they were willing and able.
And Mother in the kitchen and me at the fire,
Where some of the flames were just crackling higher.
When from the front yard there came a chatter,
It excited my heart that it went pitter patter.
I went out to the window to take a look see,
When I saw all our relatives in a Ford LTD.
The sun was quite hiding, yet it wasn't quite night,
While the car had been covered by a powdery white.
I looked in the car, and I saw with surprise,
There were six of my kin in a wintery guise.
And the short balding driver was so lively and slick,
That I knew that it had to be Great Uncle Dick.
They all grabbed their luggage and began moving out,
When Grampa Lubensky, who was lengthy yet stout,
Yelled, "Aunt Myrna, Aunt Lori, and Great Uncle Dick,
Come with Grandma and me, and good cousin Rick,
"They've prepared us a feast," and he said with a smile,
"So let's go on in and get fat for a while!"
They rambled right in, brought in all their wet muck,
With the speed and agility of a moving mack truck.
They all bustled in like some beasts at the zoo,
With their baggage, and luggage, and wet kitesneth, too.
The house looked like it'd been run over by tanks,
But now we all knew it was time to give thanks.
We turned down our heads with no worries or cares,
And we all spoke our holiday Thanksgiving prayers.
Outside it snowed, the wind blew from the east,
But inside however, we started a feast.
The Thanksgiving turkey was really a sight,
Mouth watering good — either dark meat or white.
The Thanksgiving stuffing was simply pure bliss,
We knew from the taste that no Stove Top was this.
I asked Dick a question, he nodded his head,
And passed me a plate of delectable bread.
The great mashed potatoes were really a treat,
Yet without the gravy would not've been complete.
I thought that I'd burst, yet I still asked for more,
The corn bread turned out to be all I'd hoped for.
I thought that the peas were my twenty ninth course,
Yet I gobbled them up without any remorse.
I tried out the broccoli, took only one bite,
And knew in an instant it was a delight.
My stomach was tired, my head was a bit,
So I reached with all strength for a piece of dessert.
I finished it off, it was all done at last,
And another great feast, it would seem, had just passed.
We had eaten it all, there was now nothing more,
We had eaten enough to fall right through the floor!
All meals gone by had seemed tiny and meager,
So I stood up, with my cup, and said, feeling eager,
"Twas a sensational feast, to the very last bite, Happy Thanksgiving to you — and to all, all good night!"

...of Thanksgiving

'Twas the day of Thanksgiving when all through the pen, all the turkeys were stirring except for one hen.
The men were all peering at the turkeys with care, in hope to choose the one, which for Thanksgiving they'd share.
The children were still asleep in their beds, while visions of pumpkin pie danced through their heads.
And mamma in her 'kerchief, and I in my cap, had just woke up from our long harvest nap.
When out in the pen there arose such a clatter, I sprang from my bed to see what was the matter.
Away to the window I flew like a flash, tore open the shutters and threw up the sash.
The sun shone brightly on the leaf-fallen ground, while the wind blew away every leaf that it found.
When what to my wondering eyes should I see, but an overgrown bird and eight tiny turkeys.
With a big long beak, and a face so perky, I knew in a moment it must be St. Turkey.
More rapid than eagles his courers they came, and he whistled and gobbled and called them by name.
Now Feathers! Now Flasher! Now Prancer! and Vixen!
On Come! On Cupid! On Donald! and Blitzen!
To the top of the porch, to the top of the wall, "Now dash away, dash away, dash away all!"
As dry leaves that before the wild hurricane fly, when they meet with an obstacle, mount to the sky.
So up to rooftop the courers they flew, the eight tiny turkeys, and St. Turkey too.
And then in a moment I heard, but so weak; the pecking and scratching of each little beak.
As I drew in my head, and was turning around, down the chimney St. Turkey came with a bound.
He was all "dressed" in feathers from his head to his foot, and his wings were all blackened with ashes and soot.
The eight tiny turkeys he had flung on his back, and he looked like a peddler just opening his pack.
His eyes how they tumbled, his claws so shiny, his cheeks were like roses, his courers so tiny.
His droll little mouth was so small, but so bald, and the beak on his face was as yellow as gold.
The stump of a pipe, he held tight in his teeth, and the smoke it encircled his head like a wreath.
We knew why he had come, to save our turkeys of course, he took all our guns, and smashed them with force.
They took a big eye and fled us all up, everyone was quiet except for our pup.
A wink of his eye and a twist of his head, soon gave us to know, we had something to dread.
He turned up the chimney with the turkeys on his back, and dashed off the roof with no time to lack.
Then I heard our turkeys gobble with glee, as they left with St. Turkey and were now set free.
But I heard them exclaim as they flew farther away, "Happy Thanksgiving to all and to all a good day!"

Nebraskans share blessings

Make Thanksgiving happen

We shouldn't think of Thanksgiving as something that happens to us. To celebrate Thanksgiving, we must make it happen.

If you take Thanksgiving for granted, you may get a day off work and a feast to eat. According to my dictionary, however, Thanksgiving is a "day appointed for giving thanks for divine goodness." If you and I are going to carry out our assignment, we'll have to work at it.

WE WHO live in Nebraska have some blessings that aren't enjoyed by all Americans. We have especially clean air and a healthy climate. As a result, residents of this state live longer than in most other parts of the nation.

Nebraskans should be constantly grateful for our good soil and our magnificent water resources. We must show our thanks for these gifts in a very concrete way. By preserving and conserving them and by trying to ensure that coming generations will have them in even more abundance. We should be tremendously thankful for the bountiful crops that have been produced in Nebraska in 1981. Sure, the prices for them aren't what we think the grain should bring, but I can remember growing up on a Cedar County farm, when we didn't make a decent crop for nine years in a row.

WE CAN be thankful that we've learned to conserve moisture in soil, that scientists have developed drought-resistant seed and that we've learned to put water on many of our acres through irrigation.

Well, our blessings are beyond counting, but we ought to be showing our thanks for some of the major ones. And we're rewarded when we show our gratitude. For as Plutarch wrote in ancient Greece, "The worship most acceptable to God comes from a thankful and cheerful heart."

Dear Readers,

Thanksgiving Day seems to bring about a spirit of inspiration for young writers. Two Wayne youngsters, David Zahniser and Lori Sorensen, both eighth graders at the Wayne Middle School, were recently inspired to change some old familiar words in the traditional poetry of "Twas the night before Christmas."

The results, "Twas the feast of Thanksgiving," appear on this page today, in place of the regular viewpoint editorials.

While the two poems present quite different points of view, both say some things that need to be said.

And since one of the duties of an editor is to recognize when others can say it better, the work of these two students is presented for your Thanksgiving Day reading pleasure.

Happy Thanksgiving,

Louise Foster

Corporate farm bill issue is tough one

By M.M. Van Kirk
Nebraska Farm Bureau

One of the issues which is debated and is the subject of a legislative hearing each year in the Nebraska Legislature is that of the need to control corporation farming, ranching and land ownership.

Generally those who argue for such bills maintain that they are aimed at non-farm investors and particularly those of the conglomerate type. Bills that have been introduced in more recent years carry specific exemptions for family-type corporations.

THOSE WHO have opposed such bills (and these have included many individual farmers and ranchers) express a fear that a corporate farm limitation law with all its exemptions is a "foot in the door" approach which can be expanded in future sessions. Legal opinions regularly point out that laws which are designed to be discriminatory rarely stand up to constitutional court tests.

Another frequent argument is that limiting corporate farm operations and ownership can open up vast legal entanglements involving family wills and trusts that are in compliance with present laws.

Another opposition argument is that a corporation structure is a tool which should not be denied to those in the farming and ranching profession, and if there are to be limitations they should be national in scope and best applied through revisions in the tax laws.

A commentary in the October issue of "Farmline" published by the USDA provides some helpful information on the subject. The article says that incorporation may pay dividends for farmers who gross $25,000 or more per year.

IT POINTS out that corporate tax rates were reduced twice during the 1970s and partly for this reason, farms operated as sole proprietorships and partnerships often pay higher income taxes than incorporated farms with the same income.

Such farms also suffer more from tax bracket creep which occurs when incomes rise along with inflation but tax rates are not adjusted. Bracket creep, which the Economic Recovery Tax Act of 1981 is designed to alleviate, has been a strong incentive for farmers to incorporate, the article notes.

Other advantages of a corporate arrangement, it is pointed out, are: it can offer more flexible and inexpensive ways of providing fringe benefits, such as retirement and insurance plans, for family members or hired workers.

Premiums paid on certain insurance policies are fully deductible for corporations and employees are not required to report the premium as income.

THE ARTICLE states that transfer of stock may help to keep the farm in business and in the family from one generation to another, since non-farming heirs may keep their inheritance in the farm if they see that it will be operated efficiently.

From 1974 to 1978, the number of incorporated farms about doubled but they account for only about 2.3 percent of all U.S. farms. In the latest count, 87 percent of U.S. farms were still sole proprietorships.

Incorporation is not the best solution for all farmers and ranchers. The article warns that farmers' large incorporation for many reasons: complex bookkeeping, tax rules and regulations and lack of firms to devote to managing the legal aspects of a corporate farm business organization.

Producers are advised to seek professional legal and tax planning assistance before making any decisions relative to incorporating their operations and to study the provisions of the new tax legislation to determine how it affects the relative advantages of attempted ownership arrangements.

Making hay with your boots on

MODERN MACHINERY can wrap up a hay-making job in a hurry. In fact, if a feller ain't careful, he can end up rolled in the hay bale for a long winter's nap. These boots make it appear that some local farmer jumped right into his hay-making chores this fall. Motorists traveling southwest of Wayne may do a double take until they realize it's only a practical joke played by an agricultural person. The boots are on the southern end of a roll of round bales 1 mile west of Wayne and 1 1/2 miles south of state Highway 35. The boots appears to be worn by a pair of 2x4s jammed into the hay. A close inspection shows the boots have walked some miles before becoming part of the prank.

Integrated pest management

Approach misunderstood

Integrated pest management, an interdisciplinary approach to environmental programs, is a widely used, but little understood pest control program, according to Roger Gold, coordinator of environmental programs at the University of Nebraska Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources.

Introducing a panel of IPM specialists at the fifth annual Great Plains Wildlife Damage Control workshop held at the Nebraska Center in Lincoln recently, Gold defined IPM as "a systems approach to reducing pest damage."

Now operating under the aegis of the Cooperative Extension Service, IPM began as an outgrowth of pilot programs funded by the federal government in 1972. In 1978, IPM funds were made available to all states through the United States Department of Agriculture.

COOPERATIVE Extension Service began overseeing the program in 1979. Gold said it set three goals for the program:

- To mitigate losses caused by pest damage.
- To help farmers minimize their losses.
- To educate and train farmers in integrated pest management.

An additional goal of IPM has been to minimize chemical control of pests.

One of the major developments stemming from the IPM approach has been to use statistical and quantitative analysis to determine tolerable levels of pest damage, Gold said.

An index known as "the economic injury level" is used to designate whether damage is equal to or greater than the cost of control. If so, pests and their growth should be monitored and controlled through an IPM program. The goal of each IPM system is to maintain a level of pest damage below the economic injury index, Gold explained.

THIS IS done by promoting ecosystems which are less favorable for the pest's growth, Gold said. By understanding the biology and ecology of the pest, IPM specialists can best gear control mechanisms to the pest's most vulnerable areas.

Following Gold's overview, Robert Timm, extension vertebrate pest specialist in the Department of Forestries, Fisheries and Wildlife, outlined the effects of a vertebrate IPM project in Nebraska for controlling rats and mice.

Timm said structural damage to buildings from commensal rodents can run up to 10 and 20 times the cost of control. Norway rats, the only rats that are a problem in Nebraska, and mice frequently burrow under sidewalks in insulated swine facilities and cause damage that may not be immediately obvious. Timm cited one example where an infestation of rats chewed up the inside of a confinement operation in five months.

The corrugated metal siding of some swine confinement buildings provides easy access for rats and mice, Timm said. Vinyl or rubber seals under the siding can be chewed through easily, he explained.

THE KEY to rodent control is limiting their access to food and shelter, Timm said. In this respect, food storage is a critical, but often overlooked area. Good pest control is always specific to a given situation and should use any combination of mechanical, biological and chemical control that is safe and feasible, Timm said. He mentioned traps and glue boards as useful devices in a comprehensive rodent control program.

The third member of the IPM panel, Rex Marsh, a vertebrate pest control specialist from the Wildlife and Fisheries Department of the University of California at Davis, addressed the problem of defining realistic parameters for IPM programs. While admitting that total dependence on chemical control for vertebrate pests is not possible, not completely effective, Marsh also noted that the biological mechanisms used successfully by entomologists do not transfer to vertebrate pest control.

"It is difficult to estimate an E.I.L. (economic injury level) for rodents," Marsh said.

Citing the results of studies done on pocket gophers and alfalfa, Marsh said that farmers need to calculate the amount of damage over the life span of the animal, not just for a single crop season. The financial benefits of control should be projected for the entire life of the field, he said.

EXPLAINING why biological control cannot always be useful for effective rodent control, Marsh said that vertebrate pests are not host-specific. They will go from one crop to another, he said.

Introducing predators for rodents and rabbits is not helpful either, he said, because their predators are, not species specific. Introducing disease is not a very feasible option either, as most diseases that effect these rodents also can cause human and livestock fatalities.

It is important to understand the difference between entomological and vertebrate pests, Marsh explained. Rodenticides still may be the best and most appropriate way to go, Marsh said. Chemical control may be environmentally the safest and best approach, he said.

He called for the judicious use of chemicals, and noted that a specific animal. The amount of chemical is not constant, he explained, because a producer does not spray a whole field as with a herbicide or crop pesticide.

Costs estimates are needed with low prices, high interest

Because corn prices have sagged dramatically, and because interest rates and the cost of other inputs continue to rise, it's more important than ever that producers realistically estimate their production costs.

Doug Jose, University of Nebraska extension farm management specialist, advised farmers to think about where prices may be headed and to look for opportunities to lock in a price at least equal to the cost of production.

Farmers should weigh the risks involved in a high and low production year, Jose said. Projecting a good crop in 1982 and production levels near the eight billion bushel mark, a subsequent carryover of 1.8 billion bushels would put downward pressure on prices, Jose said.

But in a lower production year, Jose said a crop of about seven billion bushels would create stock levels below 1 billion bushels with a subsequent increase in prices.

THE CARRYOVER for 1978-80 was 1.62 billion bushels and the average price for corn in Nebraska for that year was $2.44 per bushel. Jose said farmers should remember that the price of corn rose sharply from July to September of 1980 because of the drought, but that the average price per bushel for the year was still only $2.44.

A carryover of 1.02 billion bushels into the 1981-82 crop year, combined with a crop estimated at 9.95 billion bushels, will produce a total supply of 9.1 billion bushels. With total expected use estimated at 8.53 billion bushels, the excess of 1.57 billion bushels for September of 1982 would be 55 percent higher than the 1980-81 carryover.

Such a situation coupled with high interest rates and the rising cost of inputs means producers should examine the implications of each scenario for their family farm management decisions, Jose said, particularly as they affect cash flow and investment strategies.

For example, NU Department of Agricultural Economics estimates indicate a price of $2.50 a bushel will cover all costs for irrigated corn in central Nebraska except direct labor, interest on land and management charges. All cash costs plus machinery fixed costs are covered at this price, Jose explained.

PRODUCERS SHOULD also consider price and production risks when negotiating land rents, Jose said. "Could your operation stand a large national crop and resulting low prices, and a poor crop on your farm?" he asked. "If not, you might want to consider crop insurance."

Plan capital purchases and repayment schedules with these risks in mind, Jose said.

Jose also suggested producers do a comprehensive financial check-up, including a balance sheet to analyze the structure of their assets and liabilities; a cash flow plan, which would project cash needs and sources for months or quarters of the year; and an income statement calculating net farm income on an accrual basis.

Swine Days are planned

More than 1,000 swine producers are expected to attend Nebraska Swine days, a series of 10 educational meetings running from Jan. 13 through Feb. 23 at various locations around the state.

Bob Fritschen, University of Nebraska extension swine specialist, said the meetings will feature Insitute of Agriculture and Natural Resources specialists from the departments of animal science, veterinary science and ag engineering discussing a number of current topics.

"Nebraska Swine Days will provide an update for producers on the latest developments, recommendations and state of the art in swine nutrition, health, housing and genetics, with emphasis on crossbreeding," Fritschen said.

The topic on the use of copper in swine diets is of high interest in the industry, Fritschen said, because of the dilemma it poses for producers. On the one hand, copper has an antibiotic effect in swine without the accompanying problem of tissue residues which can discourage the use of antibiotics per se. On the other hand, copper fed to swine may remain in waste material which reaches agricultural land and may be taken up by plants. This can cause a toxicly hazard to grazing animals, Fritschen explained.

Other topics scheduled on the identical programs, which will begin at 9:30 a.m. and conclude at 3 p.m., are crossbreeding systems for better sows, with emphasis on economics, energy-efficient swine housing, and the comparative merits of complex vs. simple starter diets for pigs, considering both nutrition and economics.

In addition to the speaking program, there will be an opportunity at each session for producers to have "one on one" consultations with NU specialists on specific problems, Fritschen said.

The overall program is sponsored by the IANR animal science department and the Cooperative Extension Service in the host counties. Local pork producer groups are cooperating in staging the meetings, Fritschen said.

The complete schedule: Jan. 13 - Arlington; 18 - Broken Bow; 19 - McCook; 20 - Sidney; 31 - Allrage Flats in Sheridan County; Feb. 3 - Tecumseh; 22 - Geneva; 23 - St. Paul; 24 - Elgin and Feb. 25 - Wayne.

Sandahl attends conference

Anita Sandahl of Wayne, a student at the University of Nebraska Lincoln, attended the fifth annual North Central Regional Conference of the National Collegiate 4-H Club.

The conference, held recently in St. Paul, Minn., was attended by more than 70 Collegiate 4-Hers from across the Midwest. Workshops, speakers, tours of the area and Collegiate 4-H Club interaction highlighted the Conference held on the University of Minnesota campus.

Interest rate remains stable

Interest rates for 1981 crop loans and storage facility and dryer loans made through the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Commodity Credit Corporation will remain at 14.5 percent through Jan. 31, according to Secretary of Agriculture John R. Block.

Block said the 14.5 percent rate has been in effect since April 1, when USDA announced it was instituting a "floating" interest rate, subject to adjustment on the 1981 crop and facility loans.

The variable interest rate on outstanding loans—which enables CCC to adjust rates in line with borrowing costs to the U.S. Treasury—will continue in effect, Block said. Beginning Feb. 1, he said, CCC's policy will be changed to provide for interest rates on new loans that more accurately reflect interest costs to the corporation.

Center receives $84,000

A more precise irrigation scheduling technique for corn and soybeans will be refined in a new University of Nebraska Lincoln Water Resources Center research project.

The center received $84,000 for the three year study from the Office of Water Research and Technology, part of the U.S. Department of Interior.

The funding will permit George Meyer, an assistant professor of agricultural engineering in the NU Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources, to further develop the computerized irrigation scheduling program he designed.

Meyer said his computer research is the first to pinpoint crop growth stages where water is critical to producing satisfactory yields. It also accounts for climatic and soil moisture conditions during the growing season.

The computerized scheduling programs farmers now use consider only climatic and soil moisture conditions and fail to consider the "plant's point of view," the agricultural engineer explained.

"By adding in the crop growth factors to climatic and soil moisture conditions, this new program will prevent unnecessary irrigation during growth stages when plants don't need much water," Meyer explained.

Cattle on feed number up

Nebraska cattle feeders had 1,540,000 cattle on feed on Nov. 1. This inventory was up 1 percent from both last year and two years ago but was 15 percent below the 1978 level.

Feed cattle marketings for the month of October totaled 380,000, an increase of 15 percent from 1980, 23 percent above October 1979, and equal to the record high for the month set in 1978.

Placements of cattle into feedlots during October totaled 480,000 head. This was up 5 percent from last year and 7 percent above two years ago but was 19 percent below October placements in 1978.

Cattle and calves on feed Nov. 1 for slaughter market in the 7 States preparing monthly estimates totaled 7.11 million head, down 9 percent from a year ago and off 11 percent from Nov. 1, 1979. This is the lowest Nov. 1 number on feed in the seven States since 1974.

Colorado state champion

BARRIE NELSON, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willis Nelson of Wakefield, was awarded the grand champion Palomino gelding award and placed second in western pleasure at the Colorado State Fair. Barrie is enrolled at Lamar Community College in the horse training and management program. This past summer she was on the Lamar CC show team which traveled to shows throughout eastern Colorado. Barrie also showed a yearling stallion, Major Bo Duke, for Marilyn and Bonnadell Koch of Wayne. She took the stallion to 18 Register of Merit Quarterhorse shows and placed 14 times. The Palomino in the photo is "Dandy Sonny Mac."

FARM COMPUTERS

There is no guarantee that software to fit most farming operations will be found by persons purchasing microcomputers. Useful and productive results from a computer system result from a combination of hardware, software (programs), and good dealer service.

Try to decide what problems you want the computer to help you with. Then look for programs that address your problems—and buy the system in which those programs will operate. Don't be surprised if you spend more money on programs than you do on computer hardware.

Good agricultural software is a somewhat scarce commodity, but there is much activity in this field, both in the private sector and at Land-Grant Universities.

Subscribe to an agricultural computing newsletter. "Farm Computer News", by Successful Farming Magazine, and "Agricultural Computing", by Doane Agricultural Service, are two good newsletters. These publications usually have a "want-ad" section of sorts where you may find programs.

CARING FOR LAWNS

Even though it's getting late you should mow your lawn if the grass is taller than usual as the growth may increase disease activity. Raking leaves this fall is recommended. If leaves remain they smother the grass which also damages the lawn.

Use a grass catcher when you mow and you'll catch most of the leaves and save raking. If you are going to rake the leaves, use a bamboo or wire lined lawn rake. The garden rake can damage the grass and it will not have a chance to recover this fall before severe weather. If your lawn still looks dry, give it a good soaking of water before the ground freezes. You will find next spring that the fall soaking was a good investment.

On a nice day cut the lawn, rake the leaves and water the grass thoroughly so your lawn will be in good shape for the winter.

Late fall is also a good time to give the lawn a broadleaf weed control application. It's one of the best times to control dandelions. Most of the ornamental plantings around the lawn have stowed down or even stopped growth in the fall. This makes them less susceptible to herbicide injury.

More Valley Corner Systems every year, because it's the least costly investment per acre.

It's going to be harder to make farming pay off in the years to come. Harder for many reasons. So if anything makes sense, it's to maximize the potential of the land you now farm. Irrigating with a center pivot is one way. Irrigating with a Corner System is even better.

A Corner System can irrigate 15 to 45 more acres than a regular pivot, producing extra income on acres already being farmed. That's why nearly one out of every six pivots sold today is a Corner System.

And when it comes to Corner Systems, nobody knows more than Valmont. They're proven reliable with nearly 3,000 systems in operation. That's at least 20 times more than any other brand.

Before you buy any center pivot, see us. We'll tell you how a Valley Corner System can add to your bottom line profits while being the least costly investment per acre.

CONCORDIA LUTHERAN CHURCH WOMEN
The Concordia Lutheran Church Women met last Thursday afternoon. Tekla Johnson, president, opened the meeting. The secretary's report was read. Also read were thank you's from Charles Clark and Virginia Vandell in Iowa, a monetary donation, and a thank you from Curtis Anderson, Lutheran Family and Social Services, of Omaha for the donation.

A motion was made by the treasurer to buy a poinsettia plant and Christmas tree for the church basement.
Yearly reports read by the circle leaders were Mrs. Quinten Erwin; Hannah; Mrs. Virgil Pearson, Sarah; Mrs. Norman Lubberstedt; Lydia; and Mrs. Evert Johnson, Rebekah.

Mrs. Glen Magnuson gave the secretary's report and Mrs. Pat Erwin gave the treasurer's report. Mrs. Kenneth Olson gave the Christian action report and Mrs. George Anderson gave the Sunshine report.
New circles for 1982 had been selected. Each group met and nominated the following: Anna Circle, Mrs. Kenneth Olson, leader, Mrs. Norman Lubberstedt, recorder, Mrs. Art Johnson, January hostess and Esther Peterson, January Bible study leader; Elizabeth Circle, Mrs. Clifford Fredrickson, leader, Mrs. Norman Anderson, recorder, Mrs. Clarence Pearson, hostess and Mrs. Virgil Pearson, study; Phoebe Circle, Mrs. Quinten Erwin, leader; Minnie Carlson, recorder, Mrs. Bob Anderson, hostess and Mrs. Glen Magnuson, January study; and Dorcas Circle, Mrs. Wallace Magnuson, leader, Mrs. Ted Johnson, recorder, Mrs. Winton Wallin, hostess and Mrs. Verdel Erwin, Bible study.

The 1982 officers elected were Mrs. Evert Johnson, president; Mrs. George Anderson, vice president; Mrs. Vern Carlson and three helpers, faith and life chairmen; Mrs. Marlen Johnson, Hazel Carlson and four helpers, Christian action; Mrs. Keith Erickson, Minnie Carlson and Mrs. Doug Krie, nominating committee.

Hannah Circle gave the program, "A Thanksgiving Litany," "The Earth Is The Lord's." Mrs. Marlen Johnson, leader, and circle members took part with responsive reading and singing, closing with prayer. Thank offering boxes were received with the offering.

Rebekah Circle served refreshments.

LADIES AID
St. Paul Lutheran Ladies Aid met last Thursday afternoon at the church.
Mrs. Herman Stolle gave the lesson from Psalm 103.
The next meeting will be Dec. 17 at 12 noon with a Christmas luncheon at the church.
A cooperative lunch was served.

SENIOR CITIZENS
The Concord-Dixon Senior Citizens held their November potluck dinner, sermonette and meeting on Nov. 18 at noon with 34 present.

Following the meal, Pastor Dwayne Lueck gave the sermonette from Matthew 25, on giving thanks. Mrs. Glen Magnuson, president, opened the business meeting. The secretary and treasurer reports were read. A report was given on the bake and craft sale held Nov. 14 at the center and bills were paid. A motion was made that some of the money be put into savings and that the treasurer rent a safety box for important papers.

Thank you's were extended to anyone who helped in any way to make the sale day successful and enjoyable.

The group discussed how to dispose of homemade quilts in the future.
The October and November birthdays were recognized.
The next meeting will be Dec. 16 at 12 noon with a Christmas dinner, with the turkey to be furnished by the Senior Center.
A motion was made to adjourn. Quilting was done in the afternoon by some ladies.

THANKSGIVING PROGRAM

The Evangelical Covenant Church Women held a Thanksgiving program at the church Nov. 11. Mrs. Russell Swigart, chair, used scripture and appropriate thoughts entitled "In Everything Be Thankful." For a short devotional. In being aware of our blessings this month, Mrs. Swigart said, we find proof that a cheerful heart does indeed give like a medicine and all things work better when there is joy in Jesus.

The song, "We Gather Together" was sung in unison and Stewardship committee, Ruth Felt, Janis Meyer and Corleen Bard, presented an interesting thank offering program.

Items reminding those present of Thanksgiving and praise were placed on a table as they read corresponding scripture and commented on the true meaning of these items. A loaf of bread, in thanks for our daily food, Mark 8:6; a doll wrapped in blanket, representing Jesus coming as babe, Luke 36:38; picture of empty tomb, revealing victory over death, 11 Corinthians 1:10-11; sculpture of praying hands, for the importance of prayer for one another, 11 Corinthians 2:14.

Child's play handcuts, victory of being free as Americans and also free from sin through Jesus, 11 Corinthians 9:15; a brass cross, the priceless gift of salvation offered to all, Ephesians 5:30; a cane, thanks even in adversity and times of hardship, Hebrews 13:15; thank offering box, symbol of our willingness and privilege to give back to God and the Holy Bible, our assurance and proof of hope for the future, 1 Thessalonians 2:13.

The hymn, "Thanks to God for My Redeemer" was sung as Mrs. Felt played. She continued to play as the ladies filed past a thank offering basket leaving their gifts of thanks for blessings God bestows.

A business meeting was held and cards were signed for sick members.

Mrs. Norman Everingham and Mrs. Meyer served lunch.

CENTENNIAL KEEPSAKES

There are still a number of Centennial items that can be purchased for Christmas gifts or for keepsakes, according to Norman Minola, co-chairman of Centennial events. The items are available at the True Value Home Center.

Antique items on hand are coasters, ash trays, vinyl stockers or Centennial coins. Also available are porcelain Centennial plates and china plates. The plate was designed by Rae Brown.

The American Legion also has eight and 10 ounce glasses with the Centennial logo on them for sale at the Legion Hall.

Mr. Minola urges anyone who plans on ordering a "History of Wakefield" at $17.30 to do so as soon as possible. The book contains over 250 pictures from Wakefield's earliest days right up to and including the Centennial Celebration this summer.

The book may be ordered at the True Value Home Center or by writing to History of Wakefield, Box 329, Wakefield, Neb. 68784. Requests to have the book mailed should add $2 for postage and handling. Once the book is delivered the price will be $20 and only a limited number will be available.

POST OFFICE CHANGES HOURS

Charlotte Ekeroth, postmaster of the Wakefield Post Office, announced recently that the Post Office lobby will be closed each day from 12 to 1 p.m.

The facility has been closing from 11:30 to 12:30.

AUXILIARY MEETS

The Allen Keagle VFW Auxiliary met Nov. 17 at 8 p.m. at the Graves library room. Mrs. Eugene Johnson was hostess.

Mrs. Lloyd Hugelman, president, presided over the meeting. Anne Kline, secretary, read the minutes of the last meeting and all correspondence.

It was voted on and approved to send flowers for Ellen Killion's funeral.

The Auxiliary was awarded the following awards: hospital, national home, rehabilitation, publicity, Americanism and loyalty day, safety, Gold Star report, legislation, 100 percent membership, community activities and Buddy Poppy program.

Mrs. Kermit Turner, treasurer, gave the treasurer's report. Mrs. Eugene Johnson gave a report on the Voice of Democracy contest.

An Auxiliary pin was presented to their new member, Mrs. LeRoy Sievers.

Mrs. Lee Bridgman drew out Mrs. Cal Swagerly's name as the winner of the Afghan given away by the Auxiliary.

Anne Kline won the Jackpot and Mrs. Eugene Johnson won the cakewalk.

They will have their potluck

Christmas supper in the home of Mary Alice Utecht on Tuesday, Dec. 15 at 7 p.m. They will have a grab bag exchange.

ESTHER CIRCLE

Eight members of the United Presbyterian Church's Esther Circle met last Thursday at 9 a.m. with Hazel Rolston.

Mrs. Ed Schnasse gave the lesson.

The Dec. 17 meeting will be with Mrs. Robert Osterguard at 9 a.m.

thanksgiving meditation

The leaves turn colors, the air turns crisp, and our thoughts turn to Thanksgiving. We count our blessings, as we are so often told to do. We think about the harvest, and our families and friends, about the good things that have happened to us throughout the year — and about the bad things that haven't happened — and we are thankful. And then what? We may offer a silent prayer of gratitude. On Thanksgiving Day we may even include a few words of thanks in our table grace. But mostly, we just think about it — at least until the football game begins, or until we begin tackling the sinkful of dirty dishes. Perhaps we should change the name of the holiday to Thankstinking Day.

When was the last time you told someone else what you're thankful for? Now I realize that the one who discovers an error in living should be the first to try to correct that error, and so I'd like to take this opportunity to GIVE some of the thanks I've been THINKing about.

Thank you, Mom and Dad, for giving me life, and for raising me to respect the life in others. You're not here on earth to read this, but perhaps somehow you know of my gratitude.

Thank you, Sandy, for asking me nearly thirty years ago to share your life with you. It takes courage to share, especially your life, for there are many risks involved, but we've made it this far with just enough scars to give us character.

Thank you, my children — although none of you are children any more. Thank you for being you. I love each one of you, "warts and all." You have been a real joy as I've watched you grow from one stage of life to another. The gray hairs that have come from stitches in the head, and broken bones and too late dates I wear proudly, for they are a status symbol that our love has not only survived it all, but has become stronger as the years have passed. And the best is yet to come.

Thank you, my children-by-law, my offspring by marriage. I am so pleased and proud that my kids were smart enough to find and marry you. I love you as much as if I'd given birth to you. And speaking of birth, thanks for your part in producing my very special grandkids.

Thank you, Nebraskans, for welcoming me and my family with open arms even when this yankee has to stop and figure which way is east.

Thank you, members of my congregation, for accepting this novice pastor. Thank you for listening to me, for loving me, and for sharing your hurts and joys with me. As I watch you grow, I feel like a proud mother with a very large family.

Most of all, thank you, my loving Heavenly Father, for giving my life direction and purpose, for giving me the sure knowledge that the lives of those I love will always be in your hands, and that Jesus' loving sacrifice is extended to everyone on earth.

Won't you join me this year in changing your day of Thankstinking to a day, or a season — or a whole year — of Thanksgiving?

Thankful for my parents

It took going away to college to make me realize just how thankful I am for my parents, Mr. and Mrs. Neil Sandahl. When I discovered that not everyone grows up with the parental support I have, it makes me feel very fortunate.

Being a home economics major, I'm learning that parenting is the most challenging profession possible. Yet, many parents have had no training. I realize that there's much more to parenting than can be printed in a textbook. What surprises me is that Mom and Dad used lots of the new-fangled techniques without even knowing they existed.

My mom and dad are very busy people, but they take time to develop their skills as parents. Among others, they've taken Parent Effectiveness Training and currently attend the Focus on the Family films. And they do all this for us, thank!

I mentioned that they were active in the community. A great share of this is also for our kids. Dad serves in the thankless role of school board president. Being on the board is a non-paying service to our community. He hears it from both sides and tries to make the best decision for all involved. It's no easy task and it would be much easier to "let the other guy do it." Mom spends many, many hours in her role as volunteer 4-H leader. She's been doing this, and doing it well, for years. Sometimes I wonder how she keeps going, but I know it's for us. Personally, my 4-H experience has been invaluable in my career development and personal development.

Our parents have brought us up with a strong Christian faith. This is so nice to have, because it's with you where you are. Here, at college it is nice to have my values and morals firmly set. That makes decisions so much easier. It's also comforting to know that no matter how awful worldly problems may seem and when everyone seems against you, the Lord is always there to help you through. Now, Christianity isn't taught by sending kids off to church or Sunday School. The faith must be lived, for "actions speak louder than words." Thanks, Mom and Dad for helping me to become a Christian by introducing me to my heavenly Father, my Savior Jesus Christ, and the Holy Spirit.

I also appreciate the support Mom and Dad demonstrated. They instilled in us a thirst for knowledge and the joy of learning. They always encouraged us to do our very best and this helped develop self-confidence. They've also been actively supportive of our extra-curricular interests. Having them at marching contests, drama presentations, and those events just demonstrated their concern and how much they care. At the time, I just took it for granted. Thanks!

I'm sure these sentiments can be echoed by many who are grateful for their parents, and I encourage them to let their parents know. Let them know they were a success in one of the world's toughest occupations, and you're thankful.

I sure am! Thanks Mom and Dad!

True blue friend

I'm thankful to have a friend named Ella. I am up in years and disabled because of cataracts.

Ella is a true blue friend. She checks to see if I'm OK everyday.

We go shopping when groceries and supplies are low, usually for my cats and dogs. Ella drives, otherwise I wouldn't be able to get to a lot of the places I would like to go. She encourages me to buy things that I myself would not buy.

Ella bakes, cans, washes and cooks for me. She is great! Not wanting money or favors for what she does. Try finding a person like that nowadays. Most people are looking for a handout. Ella gives, rather than receives.

Whenever I need help around my home she even gets her husband and her son Georgie to help me.

We have lots of fun together taking in household sales, eating out at a good cafe or just talking over the latest news.

Those of us who are older appreciate those little acts of kindness. Thank goodness for Ella, and those like her, who really show love. May God Bless them.

Helpful parents

I am thankful for my parents because they are always there when I need them. My mom helps me with my homework when I don't understand it. My dad lets me ride in the tractor with him even though I'm kind of a pest. My parents let me go to the Muppet Capes Movie on a school night. Mom and Dad put the little chickens in the big chicken house. They weren't suppose to be let out of absent mindedly I let them out. When I came in the house, I didn't really get yelled at, I just got told I wasn't suppose to let them out. They were disgusted though. They take care of me when I'm sick and are not afraid of my germs. I love my parents and I wouldn't trade them off for anything.

Mom taught me tolerance, love

Thanks Mom. When time flurries by and I get wrapped up in busy chores, I remember how you always found time to care for even the smallest plants on the back porch...and then I thank you for reminding me to take time to "smell the flowers."

When my husband and I don't always see eye to eye, I remember how you always made your married life go smoothly by overlooking the trivial differences, and then I thank you for teaching me to be tolerant and loving.

When there just isn't enough money in the budget to go on my dream vacation I remember how you saved the dimes from the cream sales so that I could have a piano someday...and then I thank you for showing me the meaning of loving sacrifice for someone else.

When my son doesn't do his work on time and my temper explodes, I remember the times I didn't do my Saturday chores until after the morning movies and when you came home, you gently reminded me to work a little harder...and then I thank you for demonstrating patience to me.

When a big job around our house just doesn't get done around our house just doesn't get done by one member of the family, I remember how we walked through the cornfields together weeding the corn, and I thank you for reminding me that sharing responsibilities makes a family grow together.

My mother trusts me

For as long as I can remember, I have wanted to share my thankfulness for being blessed with my wonderful mother. She has always been eager to listen and share with all my experiences — good or bad. When I was in elementary school, every Friday we brought home our schoolwork. I would get off the bus and run up the lane as fast as I could, clutching the precious papers in my hand. Then my mom would sit with me, looking over my accomplishments.

From that time on it seems as though I have been able to tell my mom most of the things I did, my innermost feelings, and she always seemed to understand. I felt I could confide in her and know that I never would have to worry about being let down or have my secret told.

It's not that we never have a disagreement with one another, because we do. Fortunately, though, when we do disagree, we always seem to be able to correct the situation almost immediately, before resentment and hurt feelings result. Apologies come quickly.

Where do I begin to explain this unique relationship between the two of us? I think ours has its roots in my mother's relationship with her own family. "All of us are very much a part of our past, and if we come from a loving, warm family, this is how we relate to our children. We learn from our past and pass our experiences on to our children. My mother believes so strongly in me that I would never let her down, and I feel she learned this quality from her family encouraging and believing in her.

My mom's priorities have always centered around the needs of me. She would never miss a dance performance or piano recital, if it were at all possible for her to attend. Often she would pass up her own activities to accompany me if she felt it was more important.

I really have a lot to be thankful for, and I've come to realize this since I've been away at school. I still feel close to my mom and I write her letters and call (collect, of course!) every week. I'm still eager to share my experiences with her because I know how interested she is.

My mom has always trusted me, and because of her trust I often think twice before jumping into certain situations. She has believed in me when I've felt a failure, and her encouragement and guidance have helped me overcome many problems. Even when I should have known better but went ahead and did something wrong, she was always willing to give me another chance.

A lot of friends can't quite understand the special relationship mom and I have. If I repeat to them some confidence Mom and I share, they often say, "Do you tell your mother that?" I can tell my mom the little things that happen to me that other people wouldn't bother listening to. I can tell her the really important experiences and not feel as if I'm bragging. I can pour out my troubles to her and know that I'll get the best knowledge and guidance that I could find.

The relationship I have with my mother has been so many things over the years. She has laughed with me and cried with me. But more than anything else, she's been my best friend.

A great grandma

I'm thankful to my great grandmother Ona Golch. She is loving because she does nice things for me. She is understanding because sometimes I talk to her and she listens and understands me. She lets me stay at her house whenever I want to. I think that she is wise because when I talk to her she tells me about the days when she was a kid. I'm so happy that I've had a chance to know such a wonderful person. I think that I'm very lucky to have such a wonderful great grandmother. She is very special to my family and especially to me.

Neighbor does good deeds

We believe that we have a neighbor deserving of "special" thanks this Thanksgiving season.

Ed Wolske, retired businessman and long-time resident of Wayne, is a leader among the many good neighbors of Oak Drive. Ed hasn't always lived on Oak Drive while residing in Wayne, but did not take him long to become known and to gain the respect of the neighborhood when he moved here a few years ago.

He has a way of demonstrating "neighborliness" and of making others aware of that great quality. Although Ed has retired from business, he certainly has not retired from work! Ed has physical stamina that surpasses many younger person's endurance; he puts that energy and enthusiasm to work in many ways.

Ed can be found exhibiting a congenial smile while assisting neighbors with yard work, garden production, snow removal, dog care, fire wood collection, car repair and many other projects throughout the neighborhood. He is generous with his time and his personal possessions and is willing to share a vast knowledge of many subjects.

I am certain that Ed's generosity and concern is not limited to his immediate neighbors; on occasion, he has chauffeured other Wayne friends to doctor appointments and hospital visits. We are not aware of all the "good deeds" which Ed performs, but too often those kind acts are taken for granted.

We are thankful to have a neighbor who can awaken our consciousness to the fact that it is equally as rewarding to give as to receive. We feel that Ed Wolske exemplifies the kind of American neighborliness and generosity which makes America great! We are thankful for an abundance of good neighbors and wish to publicly express our gratitude.

I have a home

I am thankful for my mom and dad, because if I did not have my parents I would not be here. They give me food, a home, clothes, and a good education.

I really think my mom and dad are special, so I made a poem about them.

They even give me a home.

Sharing and caring

Not even a million words could say what I'm thankful for. Each and every part of life has a special meaning to me. Like a tree that gives so many things to mankind. Each leaf means a new day, a new life, a new world, and the trunk means it all comes to gether to make one happy family.

When the pilgrims set aside the special day to give thanks, they started a holiday which will live on and on. On Thanksgiving when families get together and have one big feast, it doesn't just show they're thankful for what they've got, it shows they care for each other, they share with each other and show their love to each other.

One of the many things I am thankful for is my family. They mean a lot to me. They help me in time of trouble or when I need help. But most of all they show they love me by just being there. They've taught me what to be thankful for and if they wouldn't have done that, I wouldn't know how to love, share, and care for someone else. And that's something to be thankful for.

My brother helps me out

I am blessed with my brother Dwaine Oswald. He is 22 and has brown hair. He likes to ride his two horses whose names are Red and Thunder. My brother Dwaine is a good farmer. Dwaine is not mean to me, when I ask him a question about something I broke or what to know more about.

In the summer Dwaine is not farming very much, he usually hauls gravel in a gravel truck. In the winter he has his calves to take care of. He tries his best, but sometimes I think he is ready to give up but he still goes on with it. In the summer Dwaine lets me drive his motorcycle. He took the time to show me how to do it. It took a long time, but I got the hang of it after a while. If it weren't for him I won't know how to drive the motorcycle.

Dwaine has a little dog named Missy Joe. Dwaine really values her a lot and has taught her many tricks. She is the smartest dog I have ever seen.

My cousin is special

I am thankful for my cousin Wendee Harder. We are cousins but we act like sisters. We get along with each other perfectly. Wendee is always fun to be around. We give each other little gifts, but they mean a lot.

Wendee and her boyfriend take me to a movie and out for pizza. Wendee and I go shopping at the mall in Sioux City a lot. During the summer we go bike riding together. I go to her softball games, and she comes to my softball games.

Wendee tells me all about her friends. I talk to her about my friends. I talk about anything with her. She is always there for me to talk to. It is nice to have her to talk to every Sunday morning and at family birth day parties.

Something that makes me feel good is every Sunday we go to the drug store in Pon ca and get the paper. I love to be with her. She feels my heart with joy. I feel terrific when I am around her. When I am sad and I am around her she tries to cheer me up by telling jokes. She feels my life with joy and laughs. When I am around her my face just lights up with laughter. Wendee is almost always cheerful around me. This makes me feel good. Wendee shares her joy and laughter with me. Wendee makes me feel like I am the best person in the world. She treats me like a sister. She always buys things for me like candy bars and gum that feels my heart with joy.

We almost look like sisters. We are both tall. We both have blue eyes. We both have glasses and brown hair.

The difference in my life

"What a Difference You've Made in My Life" was a popular song in 1977. Little did I realize that my four-year-old "special someone" would make so many good differences in my life. The person I am most thankful for is my son, Greg. I am the one who has benefited by learning the value of taking the time to enjoy the activities of a child.

Greg has made me take time to see and enjoy all the details of nature. Finding a fuzzy caterpillar or picking pretty flowers are all important events. Enjoying the pretty autumn sunsets "that Jesus paints" is a treat for both of us.

Water painting, coloring, and drawing have taken on new importance for me. I am becoming proficient at drawing tractors, wagons, discs, and even combines. My pictures are not perfect, but Greg doesn't care as he "colors" them. He still can't stay completely in the lines, but it is with typical motherly pride that I see improvement. Our house has become an interior decorator's nightmare with pictures taped to windows, walls, doors, cupboards, the stove, and the refrigerator.

Likewise, our house would be a musician's nightmare as Greg and I harmonize with his favorites of "The Muffin Man" and "Pop Goes the Weasel." Thanks to Greg, I'm regaining a little of my piano-playing ability. It is surprising how much fun it is to teach a small child the actions of "Here We Go Round the Mulberry Bush" and "Here We Go Looby Loo."

Along with recalling songs, Greg has helped me remember many childhood nursery rhymes and stories. Thankfully, Greg likes to read books, and no pleasure is greater for me than sitting quietly together enjoying his story books.

Another story that has become more meaningful to me is the Christmas story. Explaining Jesus' birth to Greg and trying to answer his many "why" questions has given me a deeper meaning of religion and the Christmas holiday.

I often ask Greg "why" questions too. Why are you so messy? Greg has helped me have a cleaner kitchen floor as I am continuously mopping up spilled food. Thanks to Greg, I need not watch Richard Simmons to get my exercise. I bend over picking up colors, toys, and clothes. I do plenty of up-and-down exercises looking for lost mittens, socks, and scissors. I've already had pushing exercises teaching him how to ride the tricycle. I'm sure I will get running exercises teaching Greg how to ride the bicycle in the future.

If the past is an indication of the future, I know that I will continue to be thankful for Greg. Without even realizing what he has done, he has made me really observe what I see, what I say, and what I do. All the differences he has made in my life have been for my betterment.

Thank you, my husband

Saying thank you is so often taken for granted and even at times completely overlooked. And it seems that the people we love the most and do the most for us, receive the smallest amount of gratitude.

With the ever-increasing pressures in society today: economy, political, peer pressures, humanistic values, etc. there has been only one person who has stood by me and helped me to deal with every one of these problems.

As I reflect back I can vividly remember the grueling weeks of homesickness after leaving the family who nurtured and directed me with love for 18 years. This person filled up that emptiness and eased the ache in my heart. What I thought would be a terrible situation turned into a wonderful learning experience.

During first years of independence, it's so rewarding to get something you've actually had to struggle hard for, like a first home, car, new job, etc. This special person helped me to see understand, that although these things are important to us, there's no greater possession we could have than each other and the assurance of eternal life together with Christ.

And I can't possibly forget the very, very special gift this person has given me — that being the gift of a child who has filled me up with joy indescribable.

As I'm sure you've guessed by now, this person is my husband, Bryan. This was written, unknown to him, as a thank you for all the times he's forgotten his needs, to fulfill mine. As I said, the ones who do the most for us are often the last appreciated. My prayer is for everyone to use this Thanksgiving as a reminder to thank all their loved ones and to thank the Lord for His abundance of blessings.

Dad cares a lot about me

First to start my story I will tell about my dad. His name is Robert Blohm. He is 6'6" tall, has light brown hair, hazel green eyes, and a nice smile when he uses it.

My father's occupation is a farmer. He puts lots of hard work, many hours, and much worry into his job. That's because he cares about taking care of his family. In the spring he plants his crops of beans and corn. In the fall he harvests it. In between planting and harvesting he does much to take care of it.

Dad is more than hardworking. He is caring. He cares a lot about me. He makes sure I have a warm home in the winter and a cool home in the summer to live in. He helps me with things I sometimes don't understand in my schoolwork and outside of school.

He makes sure I have some fun too. Often times he takes my family and me out to supper. Along with caring goes discipline. When I do something wrong he tells me and shows me how to do it right. He teaches me responsibility too by giving me chores to do. Sometimes in the winter he buys baby calves for my brother and me to take care of.

I think my dad is one of the most caring dad's. To show me that he cares, he does things that make me happy or excited. As an example about two years ago he remodeled my room for me. All of these things show why I think my dad is so caring and special.

Also to show his love for my family and me, he takes us on family vacations. In 1979 and 1980 we spent our vacation in the Black Hills and in 1981 we went to Pioneer Village in Minden, Nebraska. Taking me places and giving me things isn't why I love my dad so much. It's because he shows love back to me. Because of that I think he's an extra special dad and I'm extra thankful for him!!!

Brave pilgrims

No warm greeting was in store
As they stepped on a bleak and wintry shore,
No shelter from the freezing gale,
Then one last goodbye as their ship set sail.

But courage sustained them in their flight,
With love of God and belief in right,
It saw them through a great ordeal,
And nothing stopped their devoted zeal.

They built log homes; their church arose,
A place to worship as they chose.
They hunted in the forest near
For wild turkeys and for deer.

The Indians taught them how to grow
The corn that flourished, row on row,
And how to tap the maple tree
So sap could flow out, clean and free.

So let us bow our heads this day,
As a prayer of gratitude we say
For those brave Pilgrims' first Thanksgiving
And for this dear land in which we're living.

A fatherly brother

I'm thankful for my brother Bob Cramer. Because he buys me lots of things. My brother Bob is terrific because he takes me hunting for pheasant quill and deer and he also got me a new gun last year.

My brother Bob is also a sports nut. He likes to teach me new plays and different ways of passing and kicking. He taught me how to play baseball and how to box.

Since my dad died in March 1979, he was been just like a father to me. He bought me a horse and gave a piece of land which he already owned for me to let it graze on.

I'm thankful for my brother Bob because we get along well and do everything together.

Grandma's great

I am thankful for my Grandmother McQuistan who is always there when I need her. Grandma has done special things for me as long as I can remember.

When I was but a small child I would go over her house and she would read stories over and over to me until I grew tired. Sometimes, if I was a good girl, we would walk up to the park and I would play on the swings or go down the slippery slide.

I can still remember strolling up the hill to see if the mailman had dropped off Grandma's mail. Then we would walk back for dinner. Each meal she made seemed more mouth-watering than the last she had prepared.

At this time in my life my Grandma McQuistan is just as special to me as she was years ago. She still takes special care in every thing she does. Whenever there's a dull day, grandma makes it exciting. Whenever I feel blue, grandma cheers me up.

Every time I see my grandma she greets me with her warm and joyous smile. Her eyes are always twinkling showing how youthful she really is. But the real reason I love my grandma is because of her inner beauty as a person. Yes, my Grandma McQuistan is very, very special to me.

Coach is tops

I am Kristi Chase. I picked my aunt, the P.E. teacher, Mrs. Sandy Chase to be thankful for. I thought at first when I came to Allen it was weird to call my aunt Mrs. Chase, but I became accustomed to it. She teaches us 7th and 8th graders a lots of things about volleyball and basketball. When we were losing games she would give us hope. When we didn't know how to get into position she would spend time and show us and make sure we knew how to do it correctly.

Even after school when we had a problem in sports she would take time and teach us. She always gave me what I deserved. She wouldn't give me a good grade because I am related. But I am glad she is fair and gives me what I deserve.

When I ask her a question she don't know, she will look until she finds the answer. She will never give up.

When we think we can't do what she says, she has us think positive and we then can do it.

If I was to name one of the best coaches in Nebraska, our coach Sandy Chase would be at the top of my list.

If we had to describe Sandy, I would describe her as kind, friendly, thoughtful, and always there when I need her.

The bacon man

My father, Gary Hoffman, is the so called "bacon man" who brings home the bacon. Or in other words, the man who buys us clothes and food. He pays the bills and gives us gifts and luxuries.

In the summer he takes me fishing, he plays baseball with, he helps me with my model airplane, and he lets me have friends over. We watch baseball and once in a great while I get to see a pro baseball game. Our whole family goes fishing, boating, and water skiing on the river. In the fall and winter my father, some of his friends, my brother, and I go hunting half a day so we can get home in time to watch a football game.

My brother and I have many arguments. My brother, Mike, is sixteen and I am thirteen. We often have fights and quarrels. My father often has to settle these fights. He tries to be fair and just to both of us. He usually makes decisions to suit both of us. I am awful glad and thankful to have a lovable father like mine. I don't know what we would do without him.

A wonderful weatherman

I am thankful to Tom Peterson in Sioux City, the weather man on channel 9 on T.V. He tells the people all around about the weather on T.V. I am sure lots of people like him too. He keeps me up-to-date with weather. If there is tornado or bad storm he works very hard to keep us contacted with the weather. He gives watches or warnings if something has come up like a tornado is on the ground or some miles away. Then the people can take shelter at once and not get hurt or get caught in it.

I plan lots of my activities according to his weather. If it is going to be sunny or rainy or snowing, I listen and watch him on the news. Once one friend asked if I would go camping with them. I had watched the news and the weather. Tom had said there might be a tornado or a bad storm for next day so I listened to Tom and told my friend I couldn't go. I told them about the weather, but they still went. At about 10 o'clock that night my friends arrived at our house, they said there was a small flood and a tornado, but they got the news and took shelter. They were ok. I was worried about them, and I was very happy that I did not go with them just in case something would have happened to me and them. I was very thankful to Tom Peterson that night.

From then on I listened to Tom. He is one of the nicest men I ever seen. I like him and I think he is the best weather man I have ever seen before. He works very hard to get the latest details about the weather.

My science teacher is super

The person that I choose to write about is Mr. Gary Troth. He is a science teacher and a coach at Allen Consolidated Schools.

Mr. Troth was born of a rural family in Allen. He had an active childhood and made many friends in the early part of his life. During high school, he excelled athletically and scholastically. He was a quarterback in high school and also a freshman letterman. Mr. Troth showed his athletic ability along with the academic standards he had set for himself by winning the first Craig Hiler award ever presented in the history of the Allen School. Mr. Troth paid his own way through the University of Nebraska by hard work and determination. After four years of hard study, he earned his bachelor's degree in Biological Science. After graduation he returned to his home town of Allen to teach science and to very successfully coach girls' volleyball, basketball and track. Mr. Troth has at many times proven his coaching with numerous trips to Lincoln for the State Tournament in girls' basketball. He has also had many district and conference championships in both volleyball and conference basketball. In track Mr. Troth has coached many state qualifiers.

Mr. Troth is a strong supporter of the Lutheran Church in Allen. He donates much of his free time to this cause by teaching classes and helping to repaint and refurbish the church.

Mr. Troth also shows his willingness to help the community of Allen by being a member of the all volunteer Allen and Waterbury fire unit and rescue squad. Many times he has been called from his job in

Teaching parents

I am thankful for my mom and dad, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Kerr. I am thankful for them because they have taught me how to do a lot of things. My mom taught me how to sew, cook, bake, wash clothes, and to do a little bit of woodworking. My dad taught me how to drive a pickup, how to shoot a gun, and a few tips on how to play football. He also taught me to run a lathe so I can carve wood. I learned all that from 7 to 9 years of age. Now I can drive, cook, eat, a little more. I am thankful I learned this because it will make it a lot easier in my future years.

Smiling eyes

I am thankful for many things, but one person this year helped make my most thankful event ever.

This event was after the Band Marching Contest at Wisner, on the 17th of October. I had gotten back, and I found I didn't have a ride home.

I decided I would walk. It was freezing out, and I was really cold. I was quite a ways from home still, when I heard a car honk. I figured it was for someone else, so I paid no attention. Then I turned, and I saw someone in a blue car motioning me toward.

I wondered for a moment, and then started walking toward the car. When I got next to it, I saw it was Kara, and she rolled down the window. She asked if I needed a ride home, even though she lived only a block away. I accepted, and she drove me home.

She was really nice to go out of her way to take me, so I thank her. She always, even after the event, has always been nice, and seems to smile with her eyes when she is talking. I have looked up to her always.

I think she is No. 1, and hope I have become her friend!

A hospital friend

On Oct. 10, 1981, I was involved in a car accident and was hospitalized in St. Luke, Sioux City.

Sunday afternoon my new roommate introduced herself to me as Mrs. Norma Jenke.

As it was, both being from Wayne, it was quite a coincidence we ended up in the same room.

I'm very thankful for Norma's company since my family came from Vermillion, S.D., and could not visit everyday.

I had some rough emotional moments and just Norma's presence and most of all her concern and kindness helped me dearly.

Thanks Norma, I nominate you as N. 1 roommate of the year! God bless you.

Visiting pastors

Who's Thankful? We are — We live in the Villas. Why are we thankful? We are thankful and grateful for the pastors of Wayne.

So many of us are unable to get to church, some lame, some deaf and some nearly blind, but we can gather at the community house here each Wednesday morning.

One of the pastors of Wayne come and lead us in Bible study each week.

We feel as though we were sitting at the feet of Jesus, hearing Him speak after class as we are returning to our little cottages our hearts are burning within us with love & thankfulness to God for these pastors and that we can live in a town like Wayne that cares for and takes time to help the aged.

We are grateful for the Villas — the meals on wheels — the Senior Citizens organization and also for the many individuals who take time to help us in so many ways bring fresh vegetables from their gardens, and bringing us cheer and in many other ways show their love and concern.

We are indeed Thankful!

Parents buy things

My parents, Jim and Linda are special to me because they buy me things and they love me. They do things for me such as buy me school clothes, take me to all of our games that we have and they buy me nice Christmas gifts.

They help other people as well as they do me. We aren't that rich, but even so they help others in various ways such as Mom gives some ladies a ride to work, and we also give people a place to stay when they have no where else to go.

My mother and father both help me with my homework when I need it. Even though I get it sometimes wrong its just that when I need them they are there.

Even though my mother works full time she makes good nutritious meals with super good desserts.

My father is a real nice fellow and a very sweet one at that. He and I do alot of things together such as go fishing, hunting and do things on the farm together. My father let me do what he and I both want to do.

As you already know my parents and I get along very well. I have two sisters and one brother they think mother and father are special too. So I'm not the only one that thinks this. We all get along well.

My mother and father are one of the warmest, loveliest and nicest people you could ever find in the whole world.

My precious gram

I'll start with a question: What is a Gram? If yours is like mine, she's a precious grandmother whose house is the warmest and coziest ever, whose hamburger hash is the best ever, and whose coffee is always ready whenever you walk through the door. I really love to be with my Gram.

I am so thankful that I am old enough (21) to appreciate her in every way possible: In being 21, I can love her more for her own personal self; her thoughts, ideas, and especially her worldly advice.

My little sister is 10 and I know the relationship with her & Gram is the same when I was 10, but now Gram & I can really communicate.

What I love the best are the memories that we'll both always remember. Thank you Gram for those wonderful memories!

Gram, remember those little dresses and outfits, big dinners around the table, hamburger hash, M & M cookies, grape salad, my bybows, your parakeets, the Bulck and Ford, the planted trees in the yard, playing cards, washcloth pillows, latch hook projects, placemats with crossitching along with dish towels, and our interest of the soaps and "what will happen next!"

Someday I'd like to take my children to her home. As always, Gram's house is the best place to be. I hope I'm like her when I'm a grandmother because mine is very special to me and I love you dearly Gram!

P.S. A big "thank you" to you Mom. I love you!

The cookie baker

I'm thankful because my mom LeVonne Hicks is the best mom. She bakes cookies and cakes at least 3-4 times a week. She makes my favorite dish, spaghetti 2-3 times a week. My mom is such a good cook. If you wanted to you could ask President Reagan over for supper.

My mom is so special that I know she would do anything in the world for me including wash my clothes for me when I move away.

Anytime some one in the family is in trouble, she is always there to help. Anytime any one of us kids are sick, she is always there to lend a hand when we need something.

Everytime one of her good friends needs something, she is always there to help and practically break her back over what they want if they are nice to her.

So I guess you can see why my mom is so very special to me.

A nice sister

I am thankful for my sister, Lisa Hansen. She help me when I need it. She takes me places when I have to go. She is nice to me.

I am glad I have a sister like that. She is understanding and a person that is easy to get along with.

She is a person lots of people like to meet. She is friendly and cute to.

Lisa always likes to take me places. Whenever my other sister tries to hit me, she will make her be nice to me. Lisa is a senior and I am a 7th grader. I wish she was only a sophomore so she can still protect me.

Sensible friend

I am thankful for my best friend - Kristi Chase. Kristi and I are alike in many ways. We are alike in size, and things we eat. We both like cake, ice cream, macaroni and cheese, pizza. I am thankful for Kristi because she is nice and fun to be with. She shows much appreciation for everybody and everything.

I am thankful for her understanding me. She understands the way I talk and the way I act. She is attractive and sensible with everybody. Kristi is good to be around when things go wrong because she doesn't get too upset. Kristi has a family that is friendly and nice.

I am grateful to have somebody that enjoys doing what I enjoy doing. We like swimming, volleyball, basketball, track. I am thankful for her because I can talk to her in a way that I can't talk to others. That's the way true friends should be able talk.

Parents work hard

I am very thankful for my parents Richard and Sandie Olson. Whenever I am feeling down or alone they will always try to find a way to make me happy again. No matter what I do they will always love me just as much as ever before. I can always trust my parents to keep a secret like what I got my brother for his birthday or a promise that I don't have anyone else to trust.

They are always there to take me somewhere or come get me after volleyball games, football games, or music lessons. My parents will always listen to what I have to say. They always encourage me to continue doing what I am good in.

My dad works hard to get me nice clothes and to make sure we never go to bed hungry. He takes our family on very special vacations that we enjoy very much. Even when he is busy farming, he still finds time to spend with me and my whole family.

My dad also takes care of my grandparents who live on a farm have to have many things done for them.

My mother keeps our house clean and makes sure we have clean clothes to wear. She always has some cookies or cake for us to eat when we come home from school and before we go to bed. She bakes and decorates our birthday cakes and even some for our many neighbors. She always finds time to go to our different activities. When it is my birthday she always lets me have a party.

No matter what my age, there will always be someone who I will always be able to trust and know that they will love me as long as I live. These are my parents and I love them.

Dad's special

My Dad - and why I'm thankful he's mine! I once read that any man can be a father but it takes a special man to be called DAD. Well, that describes my Dad because he is special - especially to me! The love and respect I have for my Dad cannot be put into "500 words or less."

So, all I'll say is "Dad - thanks for the wonderful memories, the special moments, the words of wisdom and the guidance you've shown me through the years. Oh yeah, the loans too $$.

Another mother

When I first came to college, it was a long trip to Wayne. I had many moments to think about what I was leaving at home, that Mom and Dad would take me back and that I really had no idea of just what I was getting into.

I walked into Morey Hall and was greeted by my Resident Assistant. I was shown my room given some information (which I promptly forgot) and then I was given the best advice all year: "If you ever need anything, go see 'Mom'."

Well, in my mind I only have one mother and it's difficult to call any other woman Mom, but if there is a woman who can make this easier it is Roberta Welte.

"Mom," as I now call Mrs. Welte, helped me through the transition of leaving home and got me settled while I was trying to prove to everyone that I could survive on my own. But this is the key point. With "Mom" as my dorm director I wasn't left to survive by myself.

"Mom" has change when I have a craving for a candy bar and only 36 cents in pennies

(three of which were found under my room mates bed). I can get a stamp from "Mom" to mail a birthday card to a friend when I have my friend's birthday is the day after tomorrow and I have absolutely no time to run downtown and get a stamp. I can get a vacuum cleaner, typewriter, pots and pans, silverware, a good conversation eggs, or the daily newspaper from "Mom's" office. I can go to the candy jar to add a little sweetness to my day, or I can open up the cookie jar for a home made cookie. (Did I say one cookie?)

If I'm having trouble with a teacher in one of my classes or if my electricity just went off in my room, "Mom's" got an answer.

When I play in sports, if I ask "Mom" to come to the game to cheer us on, I can look out into the crowd and see her grinning when we score.

"Mom" reminds me that I have to get certain papers into the different offices on campus by certain dates. During finals week, when I am trying to decide which test I am going to pass and which ones I am going to stay up all night to study for, "Mom" has coffee sitting at the desk for me.

When my parents come for a surprise visit, "Mom" gives them a big smile and chats with them. My parents relax and they don't seem to mind my socks on the floor and the month's dust over everything (even on my books).

College is supposed to train me for my career. I am to learn how to socialize and to be able to relate to and work with others. I am being prepared for life and there are many lessons to learn.

I'm thankful that my college curriculum included a class taught by Roberta "Mom" Welte, "Learning to Love, 101."

Mom has given so much to so many people, I just want her to know that we appreciate what she has given us. I want her to think that this is from all of us, everywhere we are and everywhere we are going.

Food, warmth

I'm thankful for my parents Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Obermeyer and what they have done. They work and put food on the table. And keep us warm during the winter by buying fuel to heat our house. They work and buy me clothing that I need. And always has money for recreation. Most of is that they love me. They work to pay the bills so we have a house to sleep in at night! They work for new things that we need. If I didn't have parent I wouldn't be happy as I am now. My parents care very much for me and I really love them for that very reason.

Both grandmas

The person I am thankful for are my grandmas, Mrs. Ethel Fox and Mrs. Carmen Stewart. I love them both very much. I am thankful for my Grandma Fox because I can always talk to her about my private things. She is very nice and understanding. I like it when my grandma tells me about her happiness and hardships when she was my age. I like it when she tells me these stories because it makes me think of how lucky I am living in this world now and not have to deal with all the hardships my Grandma Fox had to take.

I am thankful for my other grandma, Carmen Stewart. My Grandma Stewart is also very nice and understanding. I like seeing her because she is fun to be with. I like on holidays when all of the family gets together because it is fun watching her have such a good time. My Grandma Stewart is also very loving.

Loving father

I am thankful for my parents, Michael and Sheryl Boyle. They are loving and understanding people.

Dad spends long hard hours, as an iron worker, in all kinds of weather, to provide for our family. He many times goes to my grandparents and helps plant crops and do chores. He goes to my uncles to help haul bales of hay and silage. They know he will help them.

When my grandpa had a heart attack Dad went every day, supporting him, and showing him that he was loved. That love really shows through to us, his children! Dad goes outside in the summer and plays ball with us, during the winter he finds things for us to do inside and outside.

Mom works hard at home cleaning and cooking for her family. Mom goes to town to get us new things we need for home and school. Mom goes to Ponca every Tuesday and teaches catechism. She goes to my grandparents to help grandma with her work.

Whenever a holiday comes mom helps grandma prepare for them; this shows her love for grandma, this also shows her love for us. Mom is a softball coach for our team in the summer and in the winter when we have nothing to do she finds something fun for us to do with her.

Although my parents are busy they always find time for me, thats why I'm thankful for them.

A fun guy

I am thankful for my brother Dwight because he is a fun guy to be around. When I was a little kid he played games with Mary, Max, and me. He gave us rides in his car and on his motorcycle. When he comes home he plays basketball with us any other game. We have a lot of fun.

He had helped Dad when he was a little kid. He still helps whenever he comes over and that isn't very often because he is so busy. He drops off papers for paper boys to pick up - 365 of them. He also cleans carpets. He has had this job ever since he quit his job at Diers. He has been through normal college once and a christian college once. He is working cleaning carpets to get through college again. He wants to be a preacher. He has preached at several churches already. He preached on the radio once. He has memorized a lot of the Bible. He works very hard.

She is an enthusiastic person and I enjoy being with her. I have pleasant memories of going to the circus and many hours spent playing dominoes.

I know that I am always welcome at her home. It is a home away from home to me. It was at her house that I had my first "dogwood." It was super!

Special parents

I am thankful for my parents, Paul and Joanne, because of them I am in the world and writing this article of "Why I'm Thankful".

My parents are very special, they are always there when I need them, and they always help me with my problems. When I was little, my mother would always be home after school when I got home, so I could talk to her about the good times and the bad times I had at school. My dad takes time to explain things to me, so I can get it right. He also understands when I do something wrong.

I am also thankful for my parents because they had sons and a daughter so I could have someone to talk to and play with.

I know my parents have tried very hard to bring me up right because they care what I do and how I do in school. I am thankful because they love me, and I love because I love them very much.

The reasons I have put in the above paragraphs of this article are "Why I'm Thankful" for my parents raising me up to be the person I am.

A super sister

I am thankful for my sister Kris Uehling. She is my companion and friend, as well as my sister. When I am in trouble or in a bind she usually helps me out. When I need to borrow clothes, I get them. One time she even let me wear her best dress to a program. I felt pretty lucky because some sisters wouldn't do that. I consider myself lucky to have a sister like that. She understands me and helps me out. Of course, we have fights now and then but who doesn't? A sister wouldn't let her younger sister hang around her and her friends. I remember one time when she was going to the mall with some friends she let me go with her. We shop together for clothes and she helps me pick out clothes. She loans me money when I need it. Thanks, parents

I am thankful for my parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Malcom. They are understanding and are always there when I need them. They buy me a lot of things that kids in the olden days never dreamed of having - like gums, many different pairs of clothing, all kinds of food, everything I need for school, and about everything else I have. They give me animals to raise and sell for money. They pay my way through school, and give me many things that I really don't need.

Without parents, every kid in the world would be lost and lonely. I really feel sorry for the kids who don't have parents. They are really missing out on a lot of love and fun.

My parents make my life a whole lot easier. They take care of the financial part like paying taxes and bills and buying cars. My dad takes me hunting and fishing and teaches me how to farm and drive tractors and many other things. My mother does the cooking and cleaning and washing.

My parents help me learn; they answer all my questions. They buy me books and magazines to help me understand the world and nature more. They teach me how to conserve our soil and trees so when I am older I don't just cut down all the trees and kill the grass and let the soil erode.

Loveable grandma

I am Kristin Hansen and I'm writing about my thankfulness for my grandma, Evelyn Hansen who lives in Renssen, Iowa. Renssen was my home town. When we lived there, we only lived 3 blocks away from her house. In the winter we would ride down on our horse that pulled a sled, and she was always waiting for us with cups of hot chocolate.

When we moved away she was sad and unhappy, but she got over it. She always comes to the fair and it anxious to see what we got. For the holidays we get together. All our relatives come and eat and talk alot, we have so much fun we all wish we wouldn't have to go.

My grandma is a very lovable, kind, and is grateful for everything she has. She likes us to come to her house. We come to her house every summer to stay for a week. She lets us go and do anything we want. When it's time to go home we are all sad.

I love my grandma. Thank you Grandma Hansen for a very exciting life.

I'm thankful for the gun and now and for the candy cane on Christmas and my nice birthday shoes.

I'm thankful for the ball I met.

I'm thankful for the football meet.

Thanks for God

I am thankful for God, and for my family, and for my brother because he buys me things.

The right track

The person I am most thankful for is my English and social studies teacher. This teacher is Mrs. Marcia Rastede. If it wasn't for her I probably wouldn't be able to be writing this letter because I'm a poor speller, but Mrs. Rastede has got me on the right track now.

Mrs. Rastede is a strict teacher, but she can also make the class interesting and fun. This way you listen and pay more attention in class. Again I want to say thanks Mrs. Rastede.

A nice family

I am thankful for Ray Harder's family who gave us clothes. They are a nice family. The Harder's are nice people with a nice home. They give us cookies and cake too. Once in a while they will come and visit us or we will visit them. The clothes they give us are socks, shirts, pants, and once in a while they will give us toys.

That's why I am thankful for the Harder's.

Time for me

Dear Grandma and Grandpa, Thank you for taking me camping, fishing, swimming, and to the park.

Thank you for being my grandparents. But most of all thank you for giving me your time. Happy Thanksgiving.

Mom has time

My mother is Janice Dickens. She is special to me because she always has time for me even though she is very busy.

Sometimes when somethings happens mom's always there. But when shes not she tries to be.

There are four kids in our family, mom treats us all the same.

I think my mom is the specialist person in the world.

A nice mother

I'm thankful to my mother because when I'm sick she takes care of me. When I had the chickenpox she brought food and water to me because she didn't want me out of bed. She took my temperature every day till they were gone which took a whole week.

Helpful brother

The reason I am writing about my brother, Bryan, is because he always helps me with my home work and he is nice to me. I wouldn't get up in the morning to go to school if it wasn't for my brother because the alarm desent wake me up. Some times my brother is pretty easy to get along. When I have something wrong with are motor cycle he fixes it.

Two people

Two people who are very special to us are our Mom and Dad. We're thankful for our Mom and Dad because they have helped us with alot of things, but I'm just going to name a few, like helping us with our homework when we didn't understand it and for helping us start the three-wheeler whenever we needed help.

Thank you Mom and Dad for everything. Missy and Chad Jones

Special sharing

I'm thankful for many things in my life, my son, my family and friends, and my home. Especially, I'm thankful for my Mom, Dorothy Johnson, my "special person."

She's been a wonderful wife, mother, grandmother and friend. She was always there when we needed her; to lend an ear, wipe a tear, share a laugh or secret, or pick me up and help me to go on. Mom was really great when my husband was sick and I needed to be with him in the Hospital in Omaha. Mom took time to give special care to my active little boy and to listen and share my problems. And, when I lost my husband, she was there to give me a shoulder to lean on and to share my pain. She was always there to listen and help me understand, and just give me her love. Mom, I really appreciated all your care. And, now that Mom is working woman, she still finds time to share special days together and to care for my son when I need her.

Mom, I love you, and want to say Thanks for all you've done, given and shared with me. I love you too, Dad.

He's like a dad

I am thankful to Myron Osbar because he acts like a dad to me. He takes me hunting and he takes me to Minotsgta.

He bought me a Mini bike, and he comes and watches me play in football, basketball and in baseball. If I have any problems, I tell him, and he wouldn't tell anyone. Although he is an older man he is still active.

I am thankful for my understanding grandpa.

Pretty nice guy

I'm thankful for Mr. Rod Bubke. I'm thankful to have Mr. Bubke for a junior high football, basketball, and track coach. This is Mr. Bubke's first year at Allen. We Junior high guys liked him for a football coach and will like him for a basketball coach. He always clowns around with us and makes us run a little too much during practice, but other wise he is a pretty nice guy except for one thing he likes Iowa better than Nebraska.

Second mother

I thank Kaye Wiseup for being the nicest person to babysit for. She always counts on me to babysit for her. I always babysit for her because I love to babysit and I couldn't babysit for a nicer couple of kids Pammy Sue and Trisha Kaye Wiseup.

I thank Kaye and Bill for the surprise birthday party and the watch and earrings they gave me for my birthday. I thank Kaye for being a nice friend, and I think of Kaye as my second mother.
