How 'bout some dressing?

STUDENTS OF ST. MARY'S SCHOOL have been enjoying the holidays with various activities. On Wednesday, a special Mass at 11:30 a.m. began the Thanksgiving celebration. Following Mass, mothers of school children served a traditional turkey dinner to the staff and student body. Pilgrim hats were made by the children with special instruction from Mrs. Lynn Gunderson, and were worn throughout the dinner. Pictured with her plate is five-year-old Susan Webber, a kindergartener, and the daughter of Fred and Connie Webber. After the last piece of homemade pie was devoured, the students walked to Wayne Care Centre and sang a selection of songs to the residents.

Jaycee softball complex proposed to city council

If the Wayne City Council approves a proposal by the Wayne Jaycees, a four field softball complex will be built east of the Wayne sewage treatment lagoon. The council, meeting in regular session Tuesday, agreed to consider a proposal for the four-field complex. Del Penlerick, president of the Jaycees, was asked by the council to draw up the proposal in writing so the council can study it before its Dec. 8 meeting.

Penlerick explained to the council that additional softball fields are needed to handle the nearly 400 players who participate in recreational slow pitch softball.

"THE CITY OF Wayne had 12 men's teams and 14 women's teams competing in organized softball last summer. There were close to 400 players and not nearly enough facilities," Penlerick said.

The Jaycee president told the council that the Jaycees and men's and women's leagues in Wayne would donate time, money and work toward the completion and upkeep of the fields.

The city of Wayne currently owns and leases the land near the lagoon. The Jaycees are asking that the city provide use of 14.2 acres of land for the construction of the complex.

"We are asking for use of the land and an access to it. The city would be expected to do virtually nothing except that," said Penlerick. "We have the manpower and money."

ACCORDING TO PENLERICK, cost of building each softball diamond is estimated at $845 which would include backstops, seating, seeding and upkeep. The proposed site is presently leased by the city for approximately $1,000 a year.

After some discussion, Mayor Wayne Marsh instructed Penlerick to submit a written, formal proposal to each council member to study. "We are aware of the need and the proposal sounds real good but we need to study it," said Marsh.

If the proposal is passed at a future council meeting, the Jaycees plan to begin work on the complex immediately in the spring of 1982. Lights and water are possible concerns in the future.

The fields and parking would be built on city land east of the lagoon. A proposed access would be added south off of Fourth Street. An alternate complex site is proposed on the northeast corner of the city's land.

PENLERICK SAID he was pleased with the council's interest in the proposal and said a written proposal would be distributed to the city councilmen prior to their Dec. 8 meeting.

He pointed out that the Jaycees would like a minimum guarantee of 10 years on the lease.

"The number of softball players in Wayne is likely to increase not decline. We are trying to keep up with the demand. Right now, we are trying to get a place for teams to play," Penlerick explained. "Money would be circulated in Wayne and tournaments would be possible.

The proposed softball complex would be constructed just north of Logan Creek and on the west edge of some land which is dedicated for a street just east of the lagoon.

A circular tract of land with a 700 foot radius would encompass the four fields. Seating and a possible concession stand could be built near the center of the complex.

THE COUNCIL also voted Tuesday to support a resolution drawn up by State Senator Rex Haberman which would place mandatory penalties on persons convicted of driving while intoxicated.

Haberman's resolution proposes that a six-day jail sentence and driver's license suspension would be mandatory penalties on specific offenses. Penalties are presently discretionary.

After listening to comments presented by Frank Daley of Wayne against the resolution, the Council discussed the resolution. Councilman Jim Craun advised the council that the term "mandatory" takes things away from the law. "I think we need to get tough but I can't support this bill," Craun said.

Councilman Darrel Heier spoke in favor of the resolution stating that statistics show the DWI laws need to be toughened.

"THE BILL is worthwhile because it makes penalties mandatory. I think the bill is pretty specific," said Heier. "We need to take a lesson from other countries and states. People are being killed because of the drunken driver. I think it's time we do something."

Councilman Gary Vopalensky said he agrees with the intent of the resolution but added that he also agrees with some of the points against the bill. He also asked attorney Ken Swarts about the constitutionality of the "mandatory" wording.

Swarts responded by saying that the constitutionality of the mandatory sentence may be questioned.

Councilman Larry Johnson said that regardless of the doubt of the bill's constitutionality, the council should give its support and let the "legislators have at it."

With Councilman Keith Mosley absent, the council voted 6 to 1 to support the resolution. Craun cast the only 'no' vote.

IN OTHER ACTION the City Council:

—Discussed electric distribution system improvements. The council suggested a schedule in the last week of December to have final plans and specifications ready for formal approval and for a bid-opening date.

The last week in January or the first week in February were suggested as possible dates to open the bids. Desired completion date of the project is Dec. 1, 1982.

—Approved a restricted parking area on the east side of Main Street from Fairgrounds Avenue to the southern city limits.

Door-to-door survey of community needs reviewed in Winside

While Winside and village area residents are generally pleased with the adequacy of fire protection and rescue services, they are concerned about recreational facilities and programs in the community, especially for teenagers, and see a great need for a veterinarian to locate in the community.

Those are some of the results of the Winside Community Improvement Committee's door-to-door attitude survey.

Nearly 25 residents of the community gathered to review the survey results last Tuesday night in the village auditorium.

TEMPERATURES inside the auditorium during Tuesday night's meeting prompted discussion of remodeling the auditorium for use as a community building.

Nearly 100 or 74 percent of the just over 200 persons responding to the attitude survey indicated they would like to see the auditorium renovated.

Don Leighton, one of those attending the meeting, said the auditorium is used very little. "It's a good building for a small town and its ridiculous we don't use it," said Leighton.

ONE OF THE major concerns regarding the auditorium is the lack of heat.

"We've had a problem ever since we got rid of the old coal furnace," laughed community resident Julius Eckert.

Leighton, who said he wouldn't recommend lowering ceilings to improve heating, agreed that a committee should look into ways to adequately heat the facility.

Leighton also suggested the auditorium could be fixed up to provide adequate restroom facilities and a place for senior citizens to meet.

AMONG ORGANIZATIONS working to improve the auditorium is the Winside Federated Woman's Club (WFWC).

Mrs. Dave Warnemunde, a member of the club, said WFWC plans to sponsor a German dinner next October, with all proceeds going toward auditorium improvements, along with proceeds from a community cookbook.

Gloria Lessmann, chairman of the Community Improvement Committee, encouraged residents not present at the meeting to express their concerns regarding fixing up the auditorium.

ALLISON MEYER, who heads up the Nebraska Community Improvement Program (NCIP), was present at the meeting and suggested Winside residents check to see what resources are available from the University of Nebraska in regards to improvements of the auditorium.

Also present at Tuesday night's meeting were Diane Sheppard, regional representative for the Office of Economic Development in Norfolk, and Steve Williams of Lincoln, who tabulated results of the attitude survey.

"We're here to brainstorm as a group," Williams told those present at the meeting, "and to look for suggestions on where the people of Winside want to go as far as improving their community."

IN REVIEWING the survey, Williams said 20 percent of those responding thought the general appearance of downtown was poor, while 69 percent rated the appearance as satisfactory.

Twenty percent thought the appearance of downtown Winside was good.

"There needs to be some improvements," said Williams, looking to those present at the meeting for possible suggestions.

DUANE FIELD, suggested the parking on the south side of Main street be changed from diagonal to parallel.

Field said he believed a couple of accidents were caused because drivers didn't have room to meet on Main street.

Ron Leapey, also present at the meeting, said parallel parking would cut the parking quantity in half.

GLORIA LESSMANN suggested something was needed to brighten the community, such as flags, murals, or planters. "We need something to say 'welcome,'" said Mrs. Lessmann.

Although it was indicated at the meeting that vandalism would be a problem, it was also suggested that the village could paint parking lines on Main street to add to the appearance of downtown as well as provide more orderly parking.

Other suggestions included putting up street signs and numbering houses, and fixing up the park.

NCIP representative Allison Meyer said other communities have combated vandalism by involving young people in the community to help with improvements.

IN DISCUSSING what services should be made available in Winside, the need for a local veterinarian got the highest response.

Eighty-one percent of those responding saw the need for a veterinarian to locate in Winside.

Residents also expressed the need for the availability of a doctor.

Allison Meyer suggested residents contact Physician Recruitment, a state organization which places doctors in smaller communities.

"Let them know you are interested," said Meyer, adding that Physician Recruitment has had remarkable success in placing doctors.

"It's a place to start," she said.

RESIDENTS responding to the survey also saw a need for hardware and drug stores, as well as more entertainment facilities.

"Service-oriented businesses seem to work well in small towns," said Leapey, "indicating he would like to see an expansion of services such as plumbing, heating and wiring, as well as a machine shop."

Winside presently has two vacant buildings on Main street that at one time housed a grocery store as well as a hardware store and funeral parlor.

DIANE SHEPPARD of the Office of Economic Development said the recently completed attitude survey would be a good resource to use in recruiting new businesses to the community.

Thanksgiving fire near Altona damages house

A fire early Thanksgiving morning caused damage to the home of brothers Alfred and Wilbert Stutman located one-half mile east of Altona.

Members of the Wayne Volunteer Fire Department responded to the call about 3 a.m. according to fire chief Jay Korn.

Korn said firefighters were the first to arrive at the home. The fire was contained to the basement, caused considerable damage there, but smoke damage throughout. No estimate of the damage was given.

Firemen remained at the scene about one and a half hours.

IT was just a dandelion. But it was a priceless gift.

You cared then, and you still care today. And providing the protection for those you care for is what we do best.

...by randall howell country boy.

Howdy. With all the area deer hunters bringing back the huge racks, I'm forced to 'less up to my first crack at deer hunting. It was an episode laced with buck fever, bruises and good-by whitetail (and muley, for that matter). You see, I never really grew up a deer hunter. My brothers and I were bird hunters, rabbit hunters, gopher hunters, antelope hunters and fox hunters.

I NEVER REALLY got deer hunting fever until I was well into my late 20s. That made it more difficult, because most of the guys I ended up hunting with were veterans of field and forest. And, every one of them loved to watch the antics of this Dakota greenhorn.

I didn't even own a high-powered rifle. My recollection is that — for that first hunt — I had to borrow a gun. That was my first mistake. The rifle, a nearly new .243, was a beautiful firearm, but just wasn't my kind of gun. But, since beggars can't be choosers, I gladly accepted the offer from a friend.

IN MY EXCITEMENT to get out with the proper equipment on opening day, I never did bother to sight the gun in. That was mistake No. 2. (I'm going to stop counting the mistakes now. Keep your own total.)

Anyway, on a bright, crisp morning in November I headed for the Missouri River breaks of central South Dakota. I met my hunting partner at his farm home and we cranked up his X-wheel drive pickup for a tour of the buttes and cut banks that form the eastern shoreline of what has become Lake Oahe.

We headed for a pasture. Lanny knew the terrain and the hot spots. So, within an hour we were up to our eyeballs in deer — both muleys and whitetails.

UNFORTUNATELY, we were out in open country most of the time watching the hunter spooked herds move from ridge to ridge.

After watching the sun climb above the butte framed horizon, we decided to go our own way before some of the hunters who were hot on the chase shot us.

On the way out of the pasture, two whitetails came flat out across a ridge just beyond a huge canyon opposite us.

We stayed put, walling. I took the two — a young buck and a doe — several minutes to cross the canyon. But, sure enough, my friend had picked a spot they'd emerge.

And, I was ready. Out they came from the brush and brambles at the bottom of the canyon, loping up the side of the canyon wall in tireless gait.

JUST AS THEY reached the top, I fired at the spike-buck. I fired again at the spiked buck. I fired again at the spiked buck. My friend laughed. I cursed. They were gone. "You sure scared hell outa them," Lanny said, choking back his laughter with a smirk.

On we went, discussing my marksmanship. We chased deer for several hours, hoping to get close enough for a good, old-fashioned prairie stalk. Hunters were really moving deer by mid-morning, so the 4-wheeler was headed back into the breaks so far that I lost track of how to get out.

After circling buttes for what seemed like hours, we came upon a plateau-like area protected by high ridges on two sides and jammed into the elbow of the river.

QUICKLY GLASSING the area, we counted more than 50 deer, muleys mostly. And among that 50 head were more than a dozen racks ranging from spikes to six-pointers.

The pickup rolled ever so quietly forward as we neared a couple of big bucks frolicking in the morning sun in a mock battle staged on frosty buffalo grass.

The wind was in our favor and the frolic seemed to demand enough attention that we were able to get very close for open-prairie shooting.

I had swapped guns with Lanny. Now I had his 25-06 snapper. It was right on target, no matter where you pointed it. So he said, anyway.

AS I QUIETLY opened the pickup door, Lanny killed the engine. The door squeaked, as farm pickup's have been known to do from time to time. The bucks wheeled and were off.

"SHOOT," screamed Lanny. "Blam," said the snapper. Nothing stopped.

By this time, the oldest buck was headed out along a cutbank with his sparring partner only a few steps behind. And, behind them came at least six does in a near panic.

The lead buck wasn't scared enough to run. He loped off gaining speed very slowly.

"Put it on him and hit it," yelled Lanny, who saw nothing in the group big enough for his wall.

WELL, IT WAS clear that my thumbs and elbows belonged to someone else.

With my heart thumping like a blacksmith's hammer in my throat and my legs and arms shaking like wet noodles, I fired again.

"Don't lead him so far...he's too close," Lanny screamed. "Get him."

I fired again as the six-pointer took a sharp left and dropped over a ridge, his harem close behind.

I looked at Lanny. Lanny looked at me. I slammed my hand into the pickup door in disgust. If hurt terribly, but not as bad as watching six points disappear over that ridge.

We had a cup of coffee. I drank mine. And, that's when I discovered that Lanny was the only guy I knew who could drink through a smirk.

AGAIN, WE rolled over buttes and through canyons, watching spooked deer flit from ridge to ridge.

It was afternoon by then, so we headed for that one last spot Lanny knew. If nothing showed, we'd try again another day.

Well, there was quite a show. A number of other hunters knew the last hot spot, too.

And, they had been moving prairie deer around a huge river-bordered pasture for hours.

As we poked our way over the ridges, we decided to head back to the farm to wait for another early-morning outing.

Just as we neared the gate to the rolling pasture, I spotted a number of deer milling about in the bottom of a small boxed canyon.

THE CANYON'S walls dropped sharply on each side. In fact, had I stepped out of the passenger side of the pickup, I wouldn't have stopped rolling until I hit bottom some 300 yards downhill.

Spooked and confused, the deer circled and circled — bucks to the outside — the small grassy patch at the bottom of the cut.

I whistled. Lanny hit the brakes. Tired of my buck fever by now, he grabbed his own gun and bailed out the driver's side door in one easy, quiet motion.

He swung to his left, resting his snapper on the driver's side pickup box. Squinting through the scope in the bright November sunshine, Lanny let loose.

THE SNAPPER spit fire and the deer continued to mill as the bullet kicked up dust around the circling bucks.

His snapper spit again, and still more dust. Lanny adjusted his position against the side of the pickup. He was shooting across the back of the pickup and had to strain a bit to see his target at the bottom of the canyon.

The veteran deer hunter was more than put out by his own marksmanship, particularly after a morning of smirking at his greenhorn buddy.

As I watched through the rear window in the pickup cab, Lanny hit the trigger again.

The echo of the shot was much louder than the first two and I did a double take.

As he shook his head over dropping more lead into the pit without dropping a deer, I began to laugh.

ILL-TIMED AS it was, I couldn't help but notice the huge hole in the pickup box wall opposite Lanny.

He heard my chuckles, and gave me a dirty look. I pointed to the pickup box wall on the passenger's side.

Still unaware that he'd shot a hole in the side of his three-month-old pickup, Lanny gave me one of those "shutup, greenhorn" looks.

But, by that time I had scooted over the driver's side. The deer had decided to high-tail it over the ridge at the far side of the canyon.

And, as Lanny got ready to throw more lead at the bolting does and bucks, he turned away from me and re-aimed at the disappearing targets.

It was about that same instant that he discovered what I'd been pointing at and began snorting and cursing like an enraged bull.

I BEGAN TO laugh uncontrollably. The only thing louder than my hysterical laughter came as Lanny, too, began to laugh.

After a morning of breaking in the greenhorn, he threw down his gun and clung to the side of his wounded pickup as laughter peeled from his lungs.

We laughed. And we laughed. Then we laughed some more. Tears rolled down our cheeks. And, we laughed some more. The only thing that finally stopped us was exhaustion.

I reached into the cab and offered him the deer tags. We started laughing all over again.

My question about how to field-dress a pickup sparked more laughter. He begged me to stop the wisecracks.

I told him I wanted the front end, because the rear quarters were all shot up. He threatened me, and continued laughing.

IT TOOK US the better part of an hour to get out of that pasture.

I promised not to tell everyone about Lanny bagging a pickup. He promised not to tell everyone about the greenhorn who got buck fever every time he saw a rack.

A few days later, I got my first deer. I settled for a doe. A 75 yard standing shot.

As Lanny and I field dressed the whitetail, I mentioned that I wish I'd bagged a buck with a rack.

"Aw, hell," Lanny said. "It beats eating pickup all winter." Catch you next week...

To the editor: Recently Tip O'Neill charged the President with having the least knowledge of the Budget of any president in his experience... and he's known several "experts." According to Tip, the President couldn't even converse decently about the Budget, nor did he know what "rescission" and "deferral" meant. Much outrage was bred on the Hill following Reagan's temporary "closed for the day" dracidity.

A lot of us ignoramuses, forced to the dictionary as we were, are not taken in much by Tippy's Thrade. I wonder, incidentally, if he rates higher than "novice" himself in the Reader's Digest "World Power" tests?

One thing none of us need to wonder about now that the closed for the day signs got hung out on a lot of bureau office doors is, according to news reports attributed to the bureau bosses themselves, there's a helluva lot of "non-essential" employees in the country.

Well, maybe the bosses, like Tip, just got taken by the media "out of context." It can happen.

Shopping at home

The Christmas shopping season is here. Though there have been some hints of it in area store windows since July, the 28-day shopping spree officially opened in Wayne on Friday — the day after Thanksgiving Day. With that opening came extended hours, a special $13,000 Grand Give-A-Way program, Sunday shopping, and dozens of in-store promotions from your friendly hometown merchants. Merchants also launched the season spree with a 68-page shopping guide that offers two weeks worth of special prices.

There's more to come, but for now the special effort by Wayne merchants represents an open invitation to area shoppers.

That open invitation involves much more than special prices, however. It is a sincere invitation offered in the holiday spirit urging you to shop at home this year.

Wayne merchants share your commitment to keeping the economy of this rural, small-town community strong.

Every dollar spent in this community for merchandise or services, including the holiday season, is spent wisely.

That dollar multiplies itself six or seven times as it changes hands in Wayne. That multiplication strengthens the economy and bolsters the spirit of a town that's working hard to survive the onslaught of a sour national economy.

Dollars spent elsewhere may purchase Christmas gifts for loved ones. But, dollars spent in Wayne buy more than merchandise.

Dollars spent in Wayne have a wonderful way of growing into a Christmas spirit that lasts all year long.

That spirit helps build a small town beyond the level of year-to-year survival. It adds a dimension to the environment — a spirit that can be felt in the homes and businesses in every corner of the city.

As the hometown-spent dollar turns over and over again in the local economy, it is spent and spent again to buy goods and services for you, your neighbor, his neighbor, and his neighbor's neighbor.

Those people, in turn, spend it to support schools, churches, civic organizations, and other businesses.

Furthermore, there's something exciting about sharing the spirit of Christmas with people you know.

When you shop Wayne, you shop with family among friends. Christmas is the time for that. It is a time for family and friends.

If you live in or near Wayne, a dollar spent elsewhere is a dollar spent without the holiday spirit.

Youth need to be involved with issues

Last week I had the privilege of spending a full day with over 300 bright, enthusiastic First District high school students and their teachers.

The occasion was our first annual Youth Institute for Governmental Affairs, a one-day seminar for high school juniors and seniors. The Institute was organized with great assistance from Nebraska Wesleyan University in Lincoln.

Participation was particularly pleasing. Of the 126 schools in the First Congressional District, 96 choose to send delegations. There were 310 students and teachers in attendance.

THE HEART of their day's schedule was involvement in three mini-sessions, each block devoted to one of eight national issues — social security, immigration, limit of congressional and presidential terms, gun control, Selective Service and the draft, agriculture, minimum wage, and defense versus social programs.

Seventeen speakers aligned themselves in pairs on opposite sides of each issue, then "debated" the topic for half of the hour before the students and teachers. The second half of the hour was devoted to discussion between the speakers and the audience.

Obviously, many of the points made by the speakers did not find agreement with various individuals in the audience. In some cases, previous suppositions were reinforced congressman doug bereuter

ed as students related their feelings to those of a particular speaker.

That was the challenge of the Youth Institute — to stimulate the minds of the 310 participants in regard to national issues.

TOO OFTEN we are far too parochial in our outlook. That is, we tend to become concerned and active about only those issues that affect us closely in Nebraska.

But if we are to expect our youth to be able to participate in the American society and our system of government, to become the productive citizens of tomorrow that we intend them to be, they must become involved in the issues of the day. Thomas Jefferson said: "The fortunes of our lives... depends on employing well the short period of youth."

The 1981 Youth Institute was entitled, "A New Generation of Leadership."

Indeed, the schools did a fine job in selecting participants to this first conference. Burning High School even conducted a competitive exam and written narrative to determine who would represent that school. Lincoln Southeast selected one student from each of its civics classes.

NO MATTER how the students were selected, our request for outstanding students was upheld. At a reception for the speakers following the closing session, the speakers were equally enthusiastic about the quality of the students and their questions and comments in each of the mini sessions.

At the Youth Institute, no one wore partisan labels. No one claimed to have the only acceptable view.

The goal was to stimulate the minds of our youth, to demonstrate how complex issues can be, and to whet the appetite of our youth for affairs of the nation. Currently, I am surveying those who attended to determine how well we accomplished those goals.

Those evaluations will be important as we consider whether to continue the Youth Institute next year for another part of that new generation of leadership.

RECENTLY, I wrote to Burlington Northern President Richard Grayson to urge re-evaluation of plans to discontinue service on 483 miles of branch lines in Nebraska. I am convinced that many of these lines could be rehabilitated for future profitable service.

On a Nov. 15 visit to Nebraska City to announce the allocation of funds for a new bridge over the Missouri River there, I also spent time touring the Morton House plant.

That same weekend I traveled to Norfolk to attend the Mayor's Charity Ball at the Elks Club. The ball was a benefit for Norfolk's new Senior Citizens Center and was a great success.

Congregation organizes in 1881

First Baptist Church 100 years old

One hundred years have elapsed since the First Baptist Church was organized in Wayne — in 1881.

On Sunday, Dec. 6, members and friends of the congregation will gather to observe the 100th birthday of the local church.

The Rev. Eddie and Ruth Carter, along with members of the congregation, invite the public to join in the Centennial celebration.

THE HISTORY of the First Baptist Church in Wayne has its roots in the Rev. Isaac McCoy, a Baptist home missionary and the first Protestant minister to work this territory.

Pastor McCoy, along with other mission workers, gathered their members around them, meeting in homes and country school houses until churches could be built.

The meetings were social gatherings as well as for worship, and people drove miles by horse and buggy to meetings which satisfied their religious and social needs.

THOUGH THE population of Wayne only numbered 100, sufficient interest was shown toward organizing a Baptist congregation.

Early in 1881, the Rev. J. F. Heilner and his wife arrived from Battle Creek and with the help of a few other dedicated Baptists began organizing their people.

On Dec. 17, 1881, they met to organize the Missionary Baptist Church. Wayne had no town hall in which to meet, so the newly formed congregation took steps at once to erect a church building.

THE RAILROAD company, through the agency of Dr. R. B. Crawford, promised to deed a lot to the newly formed congregation, and Brother Heilner took upon himself the task of securing money for the building.

Records show that the united efforts of the church and town fell far short of the required amount so Brother Heilner made such an extensive soliciting of Wayne that on June 25, 1882, the church was dedicated debt free and ready to center its ministry in the community and area of Wayne.

THE FIRST frame house ownership was located near Third and Logan at the approximate location of Annie's Ford Mercury today.

J. R. Manning, J. W. Bartlett and M. N. Conover comprised the first building committee.

Church minutes taken at the dedication state that delegates were present from Sioux City, Lincoln, Battle Creek and St. Edward.

Three resolutions adopted at the time of the dedication state that — 1) the First Baptist Church of Wayne was built solely for the worship of Almighty God and that nothing prejudicial to the interest of the Master's Kingdom or the moral elevation of mankind be allowed to be held inside its sacred doors, and that no worldly society meeting be permitted to enter inside its sacred walls, 2) the purpose of the church shall be to win the lost to Christ and to promote Christian character and fellowship, and 3) that no fermented wine be used at communion service.

IT ALSO is noted from the minutes of the early church that no more collections were to be taken to pay for the expenses — money would be raised by subscription and 20 percent would go for expenses and the rest for the pastor's salary.

Another vote in 1883 allowed the Methodists the use of the church each alternate Sunday and one evening each week for three months in December for the sum of $25.

THE FRAME church near Third and Logan was later moved in 1891 to lots purchased at Fourth and Main where the present church is located.

There were now almost 200 members and they fell the need for a larger structure in which to worship and conduct church business. A 20' x 30' addition was added.

J. M. Pile, president of Nebraska Normal College, was thanked for his part in the remodeling.

TWO LOTS were added to the church property in 1907 and the present parsonage was built for $2,600.

As the church continued to grow, the small frame building at Fourth and Main was no longer adequate for the needs of the congregation. A recommendation was made by the advisory board of the church that a new church building be constructed.

C. E. Sprague and S. R. Theobald headed the committee to determine the type of building, and recommended that the style of building be the Grecian or Temple style, that the material be hydraulic pressed brick, with full basement under the entire structure.

The new church was completed in 1909, at a cost of $18,000.

THERE HAVE been 33 pastors throughout the history of the church.

The Rev. Edward Carter came to Wayne in September 1979 and continues to serve the congregation.

Since coming to Wayne Pastor Carter organized the Men's Church School Class in 1979, and launched "Time Out for Small Fry," a ministry to children in grades one to six.

In 1980 he began third Sunday monthly community sing-along services and resumed evening midweek services. He also revised the church covenant.

Also in 1980, the parsonage roof and chimney were repaired, a new furnace installed in the church, old radiator removed, and the parsonage insulated.

Other improvements have been made to both the church and parsonage.

THE CARTERS assumed the pastoral responsibilities of the First Baptist Church in Wayne after over 29 years as itinerant evangelists and 11 months as Ministers of Music and Pastoral Assistant at Trinity Church in Omaha.

As evangelists, they have ministered in 42 states, 10 of the 12 provinces of Canada, three of the islands for the Netherlands Antilles, and Trinidad of the West Indies.

Although their ministry was interdenominational, they have

All-Area boys squad is filled with talent

The 1981 All-Area football team combines many of the things which help build a good football team. There is size, quickness, skill and determination on the team. Some of these players will continue their football careers in college and others' careers will end along with their high school careers.

Each of the five coverage schools, Allen, Laurel, Wakefield, Wayne and Winside is represented by this year's team. Wakefield, a state qualifier with an undefeated regular season, placed six on the first team. Five players from Wayne, four from Winside and three each from Laurel and Allen also were named to the first team.

Two players were named to the list for the second consecutive year and two others moved up from last year's honorable mention list to this year's first team.

The 1981 All-Area team in alphabetical order:

Tim Bloom of Laurel was one of the Bears' leading defensive players. He was a team leader in tackles and made many tackles which stopped big gains. The 145-pound defensive back made three in interceptions for returns totaling 44 yards.

Barry Bowers of Winside played wherever coach Dennis Gonneman needed the 200-pound senior. He set a single-season individual record for most tackles with 92 solos and 299 assists. Bowers played two games at the fullback slot and showed some explosive running. He is a repeat selection to the All-Area first team this year.

Eric Brink of Wayne was the defensive captain for the Blue Devils and the team leader in a turnaround year. The 180-pound Brink, who was selected most valuable player for the Blue Devils, had 44 solo tackles and 66 assists as well as five fumble recoveries including one for a touchdown. He was an honorable mention All-Area choice last year.

Jeff Chase of Allen was the third leading tackler for the Eagles. On offense, the 56-130-pound Chase rushed and returned a few punts and kickoffs. The junior cornerback was hampered by an arm injury part of the season.

Mike Clay of Wakefield was one of the many keys to success in the Trojans' fine season. He rushed for 308 yards, caught eight passes for 191 yards and scored four touchdowns. He also passed for 59 yards. The 150-pound junior was one of the team's defensive leaders with 75 unassisted tackles, 28 assists, a fumble recovery and an interception.

Roger Echtenkamp of Wakefield was the defensive standout on the Trojan squad this year. An honorable mention All-Area choice last year, Echtenkamp made 19 solo tackles, 78 assists, recovered four fumbles, intercepted three passes, blocked two others and blocked a kick. The 185-pound senior guard also was instrumental in the offensive line and handled some kickoff duties.

Danny Frevert of Wayne was a pleasant surprise to coach Lonnie Ehrhart. The 170-pound halfback was voted "most improved" by his teammates. He carried the ball 91 times for 447 yards, scored six touchdowns and accounted for 41 points.

Dallas Hansen of Wayne was a fine lineman for the Blue Devils. The 190-pound senior guard was the team's tackling leader with 21 solos and 91 assists. He also was a key offensive lineman in the wishbone attack.

John Hawkins of Winside was one half of the Winside offensive backfield that added opponents' defenses. The 185-pound sophomore carried the ball 136 times for 734 yards and an average of 81.6 yards per game. His totals ranked fifth in the Lewis & Clark Conference. He scored 57 points this past season.

Tim Heier of Wayne shared most valuable defensive player honors with Brink. He was the team's leading tackler with 37 solo tackles and 89 assists and made 25 tackles against Harlington CC. The 190-pound junior doubled on offense and defense for Wayne.

Mark Koch of Winside shared running back duties with Hawkins. The 140-pound senior carried the ball 121 times for 687 yards and an average of 75.8 yards per game. He scored 10 touchdowns and a pair of two-point conversions for 64 points. Koch also was one of coach Dennis Gonneman's leading defensive players in the secondary.

Jim Krajicek of Winside had a successful season of pass receiving for the Wildcats. He caught 10 passes for 275 yards and three touchdowns. He averaged 27.5 yards a reception and his longest gain covered 39 yards. The 200-pound senior doubled on defense.

Robb Linafeller of Allen is one of the Eagles' leading all-around athletes. Defensively, Linafeller led the team in tackles with 91. He also had two interceptions. Offensively, he quarterbacked Allen. The 6-2, 200-pound senior rushed for 108 yards, passed for 126, caught two passes and scored 13 points.

Dave Marquardt of Laurel played an important role in opening up the Bears' passing attack this season. The 155-pound quarterback completed 51 of 173 passes for 545 yards and an average of 60.8 yards per game. Defensively, Marquardt shook up most teams' passing games by stealing 10 interceptions to lead the Lewis & Clark Conference in that category.

Phil Martin of Laurel was on the receiving end of many of Marquardt's passes. Although injured late in the season, the 150-pound senior ranked second in the Lewis & Clark Conference in number of receptions. He caught 25 passes for 340 yards and an average of 13.6 yards per catch. Martin, who scored three touchdowns, had one reception which covered 73 yards.

Jeff McCright of Wayne was one of the Blue Devils' most enthusiastic players both defensively and offensively. The 165-pound junior carried the ball 110 times for 632 yards and a 5.8 yard average. He was Wayne's all-purpose offensive leader with 632 yards and a defensive leader with 27 solo tackles and 66 assists.

Vaughn Nixon of Wakefield led the Trojans in pass receptions with 13 for 206 yards and four touchdowns. The 175-pound senior scored Wakefield's first touchdown against state champion Battle Creek in the Class C 1 playoffs. On defense, Nixon made 13 solo tackles and 32 assists and had 12 tackles for losses totaling 107 yards.

Jerry Roberts of Wakefield led the Trojans in rushing this past season. He carried the ball 117 times for 662 yards and an average of 5.7 yards per carry. The 150-pound senior halfback scored eight touchdowns. He made 17 unassisted and 21 assisted tackles and added a fumble recovery.

Kent Roberts of Wakefield added some size to the Trojan line. The 195-pound senior tackle opened up many holes for his running backs throughout the year. Roberts had 16 total tackles on defense.

Keith Rhode of Allen led the Eagles in tackles with 91. The linebacker had a fumble recovery and was a consistent ball player most of the season despite a hand injury. The 6-0, 185-pound senior played tackle much of the time but also carried the ball for 20 yards and made 60 yards in receptions.

Mark Starzl of Wakefield was a leader on both offense and defense for the Trojans. Defensively, he made 32 solo tackles and 32 assists. He had 11 tackles for losses totaling 73 yards, recovered two fumbles and intercepted a pass. Offensively, the 160-pound senior quarterbacked Wakefield by passing for 717 yards and 10 touchdowns. He also rushed for 170 yards.

Girls All-Area team strong in all departments

If this year's All-Area volleyball team members could play together, few teams would be able to defend against the explosive offense. Listed on the squad are five or six hard spikers who like to drive the ball to the floor with force.

Of course, no spiker can do the job alone. So, listed with the spikers are several of the best setters in northeast Nebraska and possibly the state. Add to that, some fine serving and bumping and the team shows excellent balance.

Allen, which just missed a state berth in the Class C volleyball tournament, placed four players on the first team. Wayne, Wakefield and Laurel each placed two players on the first team and Winside added one.

Three selections are repeat choices from last year's All-Area first team. One other was an honorable mention selection last year. The All-Area first teamers in alphabetical order:

Renee Gadeken of Laurel is a picturesque spiker. The 5-9 junior had excellent jumping ability and lightning quick spikes. Gadeken was the team's leading spiker but also played well in all positions.

Joni Jaeger of Winside was the team leader throughout the year. She was the leading net player and also had a balanced style of play. The 5-7 senior was one of the top players in the Clark Division.

Carmin Lubberstedt of Allen will probably be best remembered for her effective underhand serves. The 5-8 senior hit 97 percent of her serves and often came off the bench to spark a string of points. Janet Peterson of Allen is a repeat selection to the All-Area first team. She made 106 good serves in 140 attempts, blocked 23 shots and had 120 aces. The 6-0 senior was an excellent spiker but also was one of the team's leading bumpers.

Anne Schultz of Laurel got stronger as the season progressed. Her solid spiking led her team in a near-upset of Allen in the Lewis & Clark Conference playoff. She always hustled while on the court and sparked the Bears. Schultz was an honorable mention choice last season.

Beth Stalling of Allen was one of the team's statistical leaders. Although she often went unnoticed on the court as the Eagles' spiker, blasted the ball. Stalling played a big role in Allen's success. She hit 96 percent of her serves and had 184 good sets in 200 attempts for 108 kills.

Missy Stollenberg of Wayne was a dominant spiker for the Blue Devils. The 5-9 junior helped Wayne win the West Husker Tournament. She made 205 good spikes, 86 aces, 58 tips and 8 blocks to top the charts. She also hit more than 80 percent of her serves.

Renee Wenstrand of Wakefield was instrumental in the Trojans' late season success. She made 135 good spikes in 165 attempts and scored 91 service points while hitting 90 percent of her serves. The 5-7 junior had 36 ace spikes.

Des Williams of Allen used her talent, quickness and instinct to help the Eagles to a fine year. The 5-5 senior, who is a repeat selection to the All-Area first team, hit 98 percent of her serves in 77 attempts and made 169 good sets in 180 tries. She had 84 sets for kills and was a leading bumper.

Rita Wilson of Wakefield was the leading spiker for the Trojans this season. She had 191 good spikes in 233 tries and 81 ace spikes. The 5-10 senior scored 96 points with 147 good serves and 91 percent efficiency.

Jill Zeiss of Wayne is the other two-time All-Area choice. The 5-3 senior was one of the leading setters in Class B. She made 389 good sets in 395 attempts. Zeiss also had 54 tips, 323 good bumps and scored 85 points with 14 aces.

Wayne State pulls away to drop Bellevue 74-60

A late surge by the Wayne State Wildcats broke open a tight game and gave Wayne State a 74-60 win over Bellevue College in Wayne Tuesday.

The Wildcats faced Missouri Western at St. Joseph Saturday in the 1981-82 Central States Intercollegiate opener. Wayne State returns home Tuesday to face the University of South Dakota Springfield in a 7:30 p.m. matchup.

Powered by junior forward Grady Hansen's 25 points and some fine late shooting by guards Brad Edwards and Jay Bellar, Wayne State pulled away from a 17 tie with just under six minutes remaining to coast to the win.

Edwards fired in 16 points and Bellar added 14. Bellar grabbed eight rebounds and Edwards dished out four assists for Wayne State. Senior center Al Jones led all WSC rebounders with nine before fouling out late in the game.

The Wildcat effort was aided by cold free throw shooting on the part of Bellevue. The Bruins, who slipped to 2-2 with the loss, managed just 10 of 24 charity attempts on the night.

Coach Rick Weaver's Wildcats upped their record to 2-2 on the year. They have already matched the number of wins accumulated before the Christmas break during last season.

In a preliminary game to Tuesday's varsity contest, coach Clark Cocco's Wayne State junior varsity overpowered Platte Junior College, 66-44. Guard Brian Overby led Wayne State with 21 points.

WSD 74, Bellevue 60: Grady Hansen 25, Brad Edwards 16, Jay Bellar 14, Brian Platt 5, Lonell Greene 4, Cedric Edwards 4, Jim Reinders 2, Dana Childs 2, Al Jones 2.

Lady Wildcats pulled away from a five point halftime advantage to steal a 66-49 win from Peru state at Peru, Tuesday.

Coach Jan Jirsak's Lady Wildcats, now 2-1, travel to Sioux City on Dec. 1 to face Briar Cliff.

Sophomore guard Tammy Blackburn fired in 16 first-half points to stake Wayne State to a 34-29 halftime lead. Peru State made the adjustments at halftime to limit Blackburn to just two second-half points, but sophomore forward Carol Durkee picked up the slack as the guests outscored their hosts 32-20 in the second half.

Blackburn's 18 points took game scoring honors, while Durkee added 12 points and eight rebounds. Sophomore center Sue Juhnlin grabbed 13 rebounds to lead in that category, while sophomore forward Patty Carney had eight points and nine rebounds.

WSD 66, Peru State 49: Tammy Blackburn 18, Carol Durkee 12, Lynn Brandt 9, Janet Lee 8, Patty Carney 8, Maggie Alberts 6, Sue Juhnlin 5.

Playoff berth, rating reward Trojans

This past football season at Wakefield High School will be remembered as one of the best in the history of athletics at the school.

The Trojans finished the regular season undefeated at 9-0 and were rewarded with a post-season state playoff berth. A loss to state champion Battle Creek ended Wakefield's season at 9-1. A ninth place rating in Class C2 rankings by the Associated Press and the Lincoln Journal capped a fine season.

Willer fails at karate feat

James Willer of Wayne failed in his attempt to tie a former world's record by breaking 14 inches of concrete with his bare hand.

Willer held a karate demonstration at half time of Tuesday's Wayne State Bellevue College basketball game. Dale Craig of Omaha set the old record of 14 inches more than two years ago in Omaha's Rosenblatt Stadium as ABC's Wide World of Sports covered the event. Craig broke the record this past year.

Willer broke about three fourths of the flaming concrete with his hand and then finished off the remainder with his elbow as a large Wayne State crowd watched.

Q. I am a junior in high school and have worked the last two years after school. I have about $5,000 saved for college. This money is now in a savings account earning 5% interest. Is there a way I could get better interest on my money without tying the money up for over a year and a half?

A. Yes. You need to look at the new "All-Saver's Certificate". This savings method has only been available since October 1. The All-Saver's Certificate would seem to work for your situation since its term is a year. Another advantage to the All-Saver's Certificate is savers are able to earn up to $1,000 in interest, free of federal income taxes. Also, the interest presently being earned on the certificate is considerably higher than that of a savings account. Come in and let us talk with you in detail. The All-Saver's Certificate certainly seems to fill your need for a short-term savings method with higher interest earning than that of a savings account.

STUDENTS ATTEND ALL STATE

The All State Music Conference and Clinic was held in Lincoln on Nov. 19, 20 and 21. The All State Band, Orchestra and Chorus rehearsed each day and presented a concert at the Bob Dole Center in Lincoln. Saturday evening the concert featured the participation of the Kansas City National Band.

Students attending from the Laurel-Concord Public School were Tim Lineberry, chorus soloist of Mr. and Mrs. Abe Lineberry of Concord and Corinne Mackey, band soloist of Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Mackey of Laurel. Tim is a baritone and Corinne plays the trombone. Both students were housed with the host family.

The convention included several educational sessions for the directors who attended. Sessions included materials on various instruments and many topical discussions addressing concerns of music education in the public school. Both Mrs. Catherine Harris, vocal music director, and Mr. Craig Rostad, instrumental music director, from Laurel attended the convention and final concert.

A few comments from Colleen Mackey. All State was an interesting experience. I wish everyone would have a chance to experience something like it. It was really neat to go from a 30-piece band to a 200-piece band. Our conductor was terrific. I learned a great deal from him. I'd like to thank the people of Laurel and the Laurel band members for their support.

All of the band members would like to congratulate Tim and Corinne for being chosen to All State and we wish you luck in the future.

Renee Vanderheiden

MUSIC DEPARTMENT

You can choose from soft glow picture lamps, tall glow candles, wall scones, scented pillar candles and holder. Perfect for holiday gifts. Contact a band member for further information.

More Valley Corner Systems every year, because it's the least costly investment per acre.

It's going to be harder to make farming pay off in the years to come. Harder for many reasons.

So if anything makes sense, it's to maximize the potential of the land you now farm. Irrigating with a corner pivot is one way. Irrigating with a Corner System is even better.

A Corner System can irrigate 19 to 45-acre acres from a regular pivot, producing extra income on acres already being farmed. That's why nearly one out of every six pivots sold today is a Corner System.

And when it comes to Corner Systems, nobody knows more than Valmont. They're proven reliable with nearly 3,000 systems in operation. That's at least 20 times more than any other brand.

Before you buy any corner pivot, see us. We'll tell you how a Valley Corner System can add to your bottom line profits while being the least costly investment per acre.

Valley dominates the field.

Survey

"The attitude survey gives prospective businessmen some expectation of the amount of support they will receive," said survey-fabulator Williams.

Sheppard also suggested that the community seek out apprentices or assistant managers looking to open their own businesses.

THOSE ATTENDING the meeting also expressed a need for more and improved recreational facilities.

School superintendent Don Leighton said although the school is available for activities year round, there is a liability problem and activities must be supervised at all times.

Those at the meeting suggested that although improvements to the auditorium would result in more activities being held there, nobody was willing to pay for updating the building.

"You're always going to have problems with costs," said Sheppard, adding that those attending the meeting were indulging in wishful ideas — some which would develop and some which wouldn't.

"Don't look at the cost right now," she added.

MRS. WARNEMUNDE suggested the village look at incorporating tennis and golf lessons in its summer recreation program, as well as build a fence around the tennis court.

She also suggested forming a community theatre group to take advantage of area talent.

There was some concern regarding activities for teenagers who are not athletic. "Teenagers are left out if they're not athletic," said one member of the audience.

Sheppard suggested polling Winside's teenage population to find out what type of activities they would like to see in the community.

Tuesday night's meeting mainly discussed ways to improve the community. Mrs. Warnemunde said residents tend to overlook the fact that there are many good things in Winside.

Those responding to the survey were generally pleased with the adequacy of school facilities, as well as the adequacy of fire protection and rescue services.

And 62 percent said they were pleased with the friendliness of their neighbors.

AREAS IN WHICH the most concern was expressed included the general appearance of the downtown, the poor condition of vacant lots in the community, the lack of recreational facilities, the control of loose dogs, the availability of job opportunities, and the quality of the water supply, a controversial issue which resulted in the recent resignation of five village trustees.

OF THOSE responding to the survey, 29 percent were between the ages of 19-34; 13 percent between the ages of 35-44; 30 percent between the ages of 45-64; and 27 percent 65 years of age or older.

Six percent of those responding had lived in the community less than one year, 14 percent one to five years, 13 percent six to 10 years, 14 percent 11 to 20 years, and 52 percent over 20 years.

Sixty seven percent of those responding lived inside the community, while 33 percent resided in the surrounding rural area.

WILLIAMS SAID response to the survey was "great."

A Community Development Project profile book will be put together and sent back to Winside with helpful advice regarding survey results and issues discussed at Tuesday night's review meeting.
