Police observe 9 deer, sleigh

Several Wayne area residents have reported seeing some unusual activity in the nighttime skies north of the city earlier this week.

Reports indicate that a small red light flashes across the nighttime sky.

Wayne Police Chief Vern Fairchild, who has ordered all city patrolmen to be on the lookout for a repeat of the incident, said the red light is followed by what appear to be reindeer.

WAYNE COUNTY Sheriff Scotty Thompson was called in to help on the investigation, which has received top law enforcement priority.

Thompson said he and deputies managed to count the silhouettes of nine tiny reindeer Monday night.

"The lead one has a red nose that appears to glow," Thompson said.

Fairchild said city patrolmen have observed the reindeer pulling a heavily loaded sleigh as they crisscross the northern skies.

"WE HAVEN'T been able to identify the driver," Fairchild told The Wayne Herald. "But we suspect that it's Santa Claus or one of his helpers out for a practice run."

Both Fairchild and Thompson agreed that the investigation would continue until the case is solved.

"It looks like a simple case of exhibition driving to me," Thompson told The Wayne Herald. "We're running a check on sleigh registrations and hope to have an answer by Christmas Day."

Dear Readers,

It's nearly Christmas Eve. If your last-minute shopping isn't done, do it in Wayne.

Wayne merchants have scheduled two more $1,000 Grand Give-A-Way drawings — one Tuesday and one Wednesday.

Stores are open until 9 p.m. both nights for a full hour of shopping after the 8 p.m. drawings.

On Christmas Eve (Thursday), stores will close at 4 p.m.

With Christmas on Friday, The Wayne Herald will not publish a Monday, Dec. 28, edition of the newspaper.

Also, only one edition of the newspaper will be published between Christmas and New Year's Day. Next week, the newspaper will publish on Wednesday (Thursday for rural Wayne subscribers).

News and advertising deadlines for that edition are 5 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 29.

The Wayne Herald will not publish a Monday, Jan. 4, edition. The regular twice-a-week publishing schedule will resume with the Thursday, Jan. 7, edition.

Merry Christmas and Happy New Year...

7-Eleven leases Chrysler Center property

Convenience store to open in Wayne

Within a few short winter months, Wayne's busiest intersection will be sporting a new 24-hour business.

An international convenience store company, Southland Corp. of Dallas, Tex., plans to open a 7-Eleven at the corner of Seventh and Main streets.

The store will open in a remodeled portion of the Chrysler Center, which has anchored the intersection's southeast corner for about four years.

ACCORDING TO Ken Korkow of Pierre, S.D., an independent site selection consultant for Southland, the Wayne 7-Eleven store could be open as early as late March or early April.

Korkow said a 20-year lease has been signed for about 2,100 square feet of the Chrysler Center building.

He said a local contractor, Otte Construction of Wayne, has been hired for the extensive remodeling project that will convert the automobile sales and service operation to 7-Eleven's chainwide motif.

Remodeling is expected to begin after Jan. 1, Korkow said he felt the two-month remodeling schedule would continue through January and February.

CHRYSLER CENTER, a joint venture involving three Wayne businessmen (Dutch, John and Darrell Fuelberth), has terminated its franchise with the Chrysler Corp.

John Fuelberth, manager of the Chrysler Center, said automobile sales and service will continue at the Main Street business site until Jan. 1, even though the franchise was terminated Dec. 17.

In an open letter to customers, the Chrysler Center operators recently announced the franchise termination and indicated parts, oil and anti-freeze would be selling at discount prices until an auction sale was arranged.

Additional property at the site will be available for lease, according to Fuelberth. He said the 7-Eleven store has leased space that is now being used for offices, sales and the automobile showroom.

"WE'VE TAKEN a look at your town and we are excited about it," Korkow said, explaining that the 54-year-old international company has more than 7,000 stores across the United States and around the world.

Korkow said 7-Eleven is "doing a lot of expanding," despite what many have come to believe are bad economic times.

"If you look at the years we've been in business, you'll notice 7-Eleven was expanding during the Depression," Korkow explained.

"You community offers a good economic base," he added. "It's both a progressive and aggressive community. We've signed contracts and we are going to be there."

KORKOW SAID the company did an extensive workup on Wayne's business climate before going ahead with plans for the store.

"Location is the key for us," Korkow said. "We took a look at that corner and we took a look at the town. We also took a look at the college and what we saw was real good."

Korkow, whose wife is from Wahoo, said the company worked with the state and the city on the facts and figures, including a traffic map of Wayne, and "settled on that corner."

The site scout said the company also approached the owners of Terry's Skelly, but settled on the Chrysler Center operation for the 7-Eleven store, which is expected to carry a price tag of over $70,000 before opening its doors for business in Wayne.

KORKOW SAID the Wayne store will be unique in that it will actually cost more to remodel the Chrysler Center building than the company normally pays for building a new store.

Despite that, Korkow indicated the company was pleased with the site for the convenience store, which will feature more than 3,000 items on a 24-hour, seven-days-a-week retail business schedule.

Carroll's only barber logs a half century of haircuts

By Randall Howell

"Every day's like Christmas for me," smiles the 71-year-old man.

"Every day I work...every day I'm alive is like Christmas," he continues.

The slap, slap, slap of the razor against the leather strap punctuates his remark.

"SHORTY, WHERE you headed this year?" a waiting customer (one of his regulars) asks.

"Out to see the kids," the barber responds. "We'll be leaving Wednesday...won't be back 'til the Fourth."

The light scraping sound of a razor muffled by shaving cream hangs in the air.

"If yer too busy, I'll stop back," another customer (another regular) says.

"Nooo...better get you now," the Carroll haircutter rejoins. "Can't let you guys wander off once I get you in here."

THE SQUEAK of a faucet at the sink pierces the peels of laughter.

The soft plop of a steaming hot towel on the a fresh-shaven neck signals another haircut nearly done.

The door slams. Another customer. Another regular. Now there's one done, one in the chair and two waiting.

"Got to get my ears lowered before they fall off," quips the new arrival.

This time Shorty laughs. It's the easy laugh of a man who's gotten to know himself and his customers over a half-century of service.

"ALL I'VE GOT to sell is service," explains Leonard "Shorty" Halleen, who notched 50 years on his Carroll barber's post this month.

"Let me get those glasses," he interrupts himself. Seconds later he places a pair of spotless eye glasses on the nose and ears of a grateful customer.

"They like to have them clean, so I clean them," he adds. "It only takes a second and they don't get treated like that anywhere else."

His customers complain about the below-zero weather, argue about politics, swap stories about each other and remember the old times.

"IT'S SURE HOT in here," one says. Quick as a wink, Shorty's near the oil heater, turning down the thermostat.

Shorty's back at the barber's chair clipping hair before the seated customer realizes he was gone.

"Just a light trim?" he asks in a voice straight out of barber school.

"Nawww, cut'er close...take it off everywhere," the customer responds, relinquishing his eyeglasses before the barber's towel is draped around his shoulders.

"Here, too!" Shorty cracks, his finger on the customer's bald crown.

"Yup, take it off there too!" the customer chortles. The barber shop rocks with laughter.

"HE USED TO have it there," Shorty remembers. "Years ago, he had the thickest head of curly hair you ever saw."

The buzz of electric clippers slips into the conversation.

"Of course, we all had more than men we do now," the customer explains. — his philosophical reference reaching beyond the bite of the clippers to spark a shift in the conversation.

Civil Defense test slated

If Santa Claus has any trouble finding Wayne, he'll get some Christmas Day help from the Wayne Police Chief Vern Fairchild.

Fairchild, who also serves as the city and county Civil Defense director, plans to test the emergency sirens at 1 p.m. Friday — Christmas Day.

If Santa Claus hears the first Civil Defense siren test, which runs for 60 seconds, he'll get his bearings quick.

If he misses the first one, alternating blasts will begin three minutes later. That should bring him to town.

NACO taps county officials

Leon Meyer, Wayne County treasurer, has been elected president of the Nebraska Association of County Treasurers for 1982.

And, Doris Stipp, Wayne County assessor, has been elected president of the Nebraska Association of County Assessors for 1982.

Both associations are affiliated with the Nebraska Association of County Officials, which recently held its annual convention in Omaha.

November warmer, wetter

November was warmer and wetter than normal for the Wayne area.

According to University of Nebraska Lincoln reports compiled with data from the Department of Commerce, National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration and the National Weather Service, the local trend was similar throughout the state.

November temperatures averaged about 4 degrees warmer than normal from Norfolk to Wakefield and moisture nearly 1.5 inches higher than normal.

Balloons land at Wakefield

Six balloons set aloft in Provo, Utah on Friday, Dec. 11, were found the next day near Wakefield.

Morris Gustafson found the balloons in a field on his farm while checking cattle about 4:30 p.m. on Saturday.

Gustafson, who farms two miles east, one south and a half mile east of Wakefield, said, after checking latitude lines, that Provo is located west and south of Wakefield.

A tag attached to the balloons indicated that Debbie Boren from Maeser School in Provo read five books, giving her the privilege of releasing the balloons.

Wakefield school purchases bus

The Wakefield School Board purchased a 1981 school bus at their regular meeting Monday evening, Dec. 14.

The $23,500 bus was purchased from Superior Sales of Nebraska. A $600 trade-in was allowed for a 1962 48 passenger bus.

Before pursuing any further major improvements on the elementary building, which board members say could lead to a savings in dollars spent for energy cost, the board voted to hire Garber and Work Inc. of Lincoln to do a complete technical energy audit. The board will then apply for a state energy grant to implement needed improvements.

Other items discussed at the meeting included the status of a golf program, non-resident high school tuition, admission prices for 1982-83 activities, major athletic purchase (football jerseys) for the 1982-83 year, and the approval to go ahead with a North Central Self-Evaluation next school year.

License examiners at school

Nebraska's drivers license examiners will be in school from Jan. 4 through Jan. 8.

As a result, no drivers license exams will be scheduled anywhere in the state.

Driver's license exams for Wayne County residents are given at the Courthouse in Wayne on Wednesdays.

The regular schedule is expected to resume on Wednesday, Jan. 13.

One of Santa's reindeer spent a night in the slammer this week.

Mary Monson of The Shepherdess, bailed out the wayward reindeer Tuesday morning.

Police arrested the tolly reindeer for loitering on the streets of Wayne after shopping hours.

Monson, who is caring for the deer until the reindeer joins the Santa Claus team, said police notified her of the arrest in front of The Shepherdess Monday night.

Apparently the poor deer forgot to come inside when the store closed at 9 p.m., explained Monson.

Wayne State College alumni in medical schools throughout midwest

By Roseann Davis
WSC Intern

Talent, dedication, and hard work. All of these are necessary to get ahead in any career. But they are even more necessary to the 11 Wayne State College alumni in medical schools throughout the midwest.

Eleven graduates in medical school may seem like a lot for Wayne State, a college known more for a liberal arts emphasis. However, the figures are surprising.

AT ONE midwestern medical school, the University of Nebraska Medical Center (UNMC) in Omaha, Wayne State College has had an acceptance rate of 100 percent for the last two academic years.

This spring, one of the nine WSC alumni attending UNMC will receive his degree. Todd Voss, a 1978 graduate from McLean, applied and was accepted during that academic year.

He was among the last to enroll under a program which trained doctors in three years of post-graduate work, instead of the usual four.

IN 1983, there will be two WSC alumni in the UNMC graduating class instead of one.

Dwayne DeTurk, a 1977 graduate from Wayne, and Ron Morse, a 1978 graduate from Pender, will receive their degrees in medicine.

UNMC's 1984 class also will include two WSC alumni — Carol Willis Potts, a 1979 graduate from Wayne, and Mark Ptacek, a 1980 graduate from Bruno. Placek recently ran for the presidency of the UNMC Student Senate.

THE LARGEST number of Wayne State alumni will graduate from UNMC in 1985.

Heidi Koenig, a 1980 graduate from Lindsay, and 1981 alumni Joe Painter, Plattsmouth, Barbara Chappell, Omaha, and Charlotte Wirges, Petersburg, will earn their degrees.

TWO OTHER WSC grads are working on their medical degrees in Missouri.

Pam Quiring Keller, 1974 from Newman Grove, is studying medicine at the University of Missouri Med Center in Columbia, while Vickie Verlinden, 1974 from Sloux City, is in her first year of medical training at the University of Missouri at Kansas City.

According to Dr. Russell Rasmussen, Wayne State professor of chemistry, this is especially important, because "it proves that Wayne State grads can get into medical schools outside the state of Nebraska."

WITHIN THE state, the general rate of acceptance for residents applying to UNMC has risen in the last several years to 44 percent or nearly one student out of every two that apply.

The chances of acceptance for an out-of-state student are considerably less.

The rise in the acceptance rate is reflected in the declining trend in medical school applications.

Rasmussen comments, "More and more students are looking down the road and seeing the high cost of medical school, as well as the time necessary to be certified. Many of the students who might otherwise apply decide that it just isn't worth the trouble."

IT'S STILL easier to get into medical school than some of the other health-related professions.

For instance, the rate of acceptance for people wishing to enter physical therapy is only 31 percent, or approximately one out of every three applicants.

CHRISTMAS DAY IS ESPECIALLY meaningful to 18-year-old Jill Zeiss, a senior at Wayne High School.

Jill Zeiss shares birth date

Christmas has special meaning to Wayne High School senior

By LaVon Beckman

God has given me special things — good health, good friends and good family," says Jill Zeiss, who will celebrate her 18th birthday on Christmas Day. Jill, a senior at Wayne Carroll High School, recently shared her feelings about being born on the Lord's birthday. "I like the fact that I was born on Christmas Day because it's a special day," smiles Jill. "It's the happiest time of the year, and people everywhere are filled with love and sharing."

JILL, A PRETTY petite dark haired young woman with dark flashing eyes, was born at 2:04 p.m. Christmas day in 1963 at Crete, Neb. "I was supposed to be born on Dec. 22 and my cousin was due on Dec. 25," smiles Jill. "Instead, she was born on the 22nd and I was born on the 25th." Jill smiles as she recalls the story told to her by her mother of that Christmas Day 18 years ago. "Dad took mom to the hospital in the midst of opening Christmas gifts with my grandparents, Alvin and Pauline Steiner. We've spent every Christmas since then with my grandparents."

JILL IS PROUD to share her birthday with the Lord's, and says she has never felt cheated. "My mom and dad have always made it a special day with a special gift, something that I will always remember," smiles the young woman. "Jill adds that her friends also remember her with birthday presents despite the fact that it's also Christmas Day. "It's neat to have been born on the Lord's birthday," smiles Jill. "My family is very close and they've always made me feel special." Jill's family includes her father, Don, principal at Wayne High, her mother Jan, secretary at Wayne State College for Drs. Gene Bigelow, Arnold Emery and Morris Anderson, and brothers Jeff, 20, and Jess, 11.

TRADITIONALLY, Christmas gifts in the Zeiss household are opened Christmas Eve. Christmas Day is Jill's day. She opens her birthday presents in the morning, and later there's birthday cake.

"When I was younger I didn't like celebrating my birthday on Christmas Day," says Jill, "because my brother's had two special days while it seemed I only had one. Jill smiles as she tells how her feelings have changed over the years because of her family.

"CHRISTMAS IS a time when people remember what life is all about," says Jill. "I love life, I like being alive and helping people, and I want each day to be a very happy day." Jill, with a smile sweeping across her face, says she enjoys bringing cheer into the lives of others. "If someone comes in with the saddies, I like to put a smile on their face. "I don't know what I'd do without my family and my friends. They've always brought me up when I was down."

JILL, WHO MOVED to Wayne with her family in 1974, is an active high school senior, participating in band, volleyball, basketball and track. She also is a member of the National Honor Society.

She was a cheerleader during her first three years of high school and decided not to try out this year because of her other activities and studies. After graduation she plans to attend Wayne State College for two years and then enroll in a school of nursing in Omaha or Lincoln.

Gast's scoring explosion thwarts Wakefield's bid

Osmond's Jeff Gast put on a show of talent to lead the Tigers past never say die Wakefield 48-39 Tuesday. The 6-2 junior hit 10 points in the first quarter, 12 in the third and finished with 26 total points.

Wakefield used different styles of play to counter Osmond's 19 inch height advantage. Starters for the Tigers towered at 6-4, 6-4, 6-3, 6-2 and 6-0 while Wakefield starters measured up at 6-3, 6-0, 5-11, 5-10 and 5-6.

"We didn't play bad defense but our players were outmatched by four, five, even six inches. They beat us, they deserved to win tonight," said Wakefield coach Scott Miller following the loss.

THE HOSTS opened the game with a patient offense, later utilized a fast break and switched between man to man and zone defenses.

After giving up an opening bucket to Osmond, the Trojans used a passing game to work for their first shot. With 5:15 remaining in the first quarter, Mark Starzl hit a 14 foot jumper to tie the score at 2-2.

Gast took over at that point and led his team to a 14-6 lead. Starzl's 30 footer at the buzzer cut Osmond's lead to 18-8 at the end of the first quarter.

The Trojans didn't get shook despite facing a 10 point deficit. Wakefield kept its patience and plugged away at the Tigers' lead. Field goals by Clay and Starzl and free throws by Starzl and Vaughn Nixon brought the hosts within two points at 16-18 with 2:30 left in the first half.

OSMOND FINALLY scored its first basket of the second period with 7:05 remaining in the half. A basket at the buzzer gave the Tigers a 24-20 half time lead.

The third period was close until Gast recovered his shooting touch. The Tigers led 36-25 at the end of the quarter.

Wakefield gave it one more try and had fans on the edge of their seats before it was all over. In less than a minute, the Trojans' fastbreak had closed the gap to five points at 40-31. A steal by Jeff Coble and assist for a Mike Clay layup cut the margin to three points at 31-36.

Osmond scored its first point of the quarter on a free throw three minutes into the final period. Throughout most of the fourth quarter, the Trojans were down by four or six points.

IT WAS A struggle to the end but late free throws propped the Tigers' lead for a 48-39 win.

Tonight they were the better team. Our kids scrambled and put it on the line. They could have given up but instead they did their best," said Miller. "The coaches aren't satisfied and the kids aren't satisfied but we gave a good effort."

Osmond hit 10 of 15 free throws in the final period compared to 4 of 11 for the hosts. The Trojans had several opportunities to narrow Osmond's lead to two points in the fourth period but couldn't connect on a few key plays.

We slowed the game down but were forced to go to the fastbreak because of their traps," Miller said. "We did a good job on the boards both against Osmond and Hartington."

THE TROJANS HIT 40 percent of their shots with a 13 of 32 performance while the Tigers made 46 percent from the field.

Starzl led the hosts with 12 points and Nixon scored 10 including 8 of 12 from the free throw line. Clay hit eight and Coble scored seven. Coble, who played aggressive defense, was credited with four steals in addition to Gast's 26 points, Mike Moritz

MIKE CLAY of Wakefield scores a basket against Steve Fueberlith.

Miller was pleased with his team's rebounding. Wakefield statistics gave the hosts a rebounding advantage over the taller Tigers. Nixon led the way with 12 rebounds. Starzl grabbed nine and Clay had four.

The Trojans are idle until Jan. 25 when they play at Allen.

Tigers get away from Bears with fourth quarter charge

With his starting lineup giving up a 21-inch height advantage to Osmond's starting five, Laurel coach Joel Parks logically countered with a slow down game, Friday night.

For three quarters, the slow-down style of play was extremely effective but the Tigers used excellent free throw shooting in the fourth quarter to notch a 27-20 win.

The Bears led 8-6 after the first quarter but trailed 9-8 after a scoreless second period performance. Laurel outscored Osmond 8-5 in the third quarter to regain the lead at 16-14.

A couple of missed baskets underneath and four missed free throws killed Laurel's offensive punch. The Bears hit only 1 of 13 shots from the field compared to 2 of 2 for Osmond in the final period. And the Tigers, connected on 9 of 11 free throws in the final eight minutes while Laurel hit two of six.

"We really had a good chance to win but couldn't convert late in the game. We were in a situation where if we score a few times we beat them," said Parks. "If I had it to do all over again, I would do the same thing. We slowed it down rather successfully; that was our only chance to win."

Osmond's starting lineup measured 6-4, 6-4, 6-3, 6-2 and 6-0 while Laurel's starting five were 6-1, 6-0, 5-11, 5-8, 5-8.

"Because of their size, they are tough to defend. They aren't far from being a real good team," Parks said of Osmond. "We had our chances but didn't quite pull it off."

Phil Martin, Dave Marquardt and Brian Marquardt each scored four points to lead the Bears. Mike Kumm scored 15 of Osmond's 27 points.

Osmond won the junior varsity game 51-49. John Aschoff scored 25 points for the winners. Laurel scoring: Jerry Kastrop 16, Troy Young 11, Mike Jonas 8, Paul Lofquist 4, Ben Galvin 4, Mark Penlerick 4, Mark Herrmann 2.

Next action for the Bears is scheduled Dec. 28 and 29 in the Wayne State College Holiday Tournament.

The first game was close until the second half. Wayne led 8-6 after the first quarter and 10-8 at the half but pulled away with a 10-2 advantage in the third period.

Ted Lueters hit from outside to lead

Wayne with 13 points. Bill Liska scored six, Troy Wood and Jason Jorgensen each scored four and Russ Longe and Ted McCrigh added two points apiece.

All-American honor early Christmas gift for Blackburn

By Randy Hascall

Ed Blackburn received his favorite Christmas present a couple days early this year.

The 6-5, 220-pound Wayne State College tight end was named to the Second Team of the NAIA Division I All-American football squad. A spokesman for the NAIA confirmed the report via telephone Tuesday.

He stated that Blackburn was one of 26 players named to the Second Team. Twelve offensive players, 12 defensive players, a punter and a kicker were selected for Second Team honors. The First Team also consisted of 26 players making Blackburn one of 52 players earning a spot on the top two squads. An honorable mention list also was chosen.

Ed Blackburn

BLACKBURN IS a two time All American in track and field and will shoot for a third consecutive honor this spring when he continues his outstanding career as a 110 meter hurdler. He placed fifth and sixth respectively in the national meet the past two years at Houston.

Blackburn's size and quickness have drawn the attention of pro scouts. The Malvern, Iowa native has been contacted by the New England Patriots, San Francisco 49ers, Oakland Raiders, Cincinnati Bengals, Atlanta Falcons, New York Jets and New York Giants.

Scouts from the United Scouting Service have scouted some Wayne State games and reported back to pro teams. The ball clubs have indicated they will contact him again this spring. "I'd like to give pro football a try," said Blackburn.

WAYNE STATE football coach Del Stoltenberg contacted Blackburn by telephone on Tuesday and informed the senior tight end of his All American honors.

"I was surprised. This is really a nice Christmas present," he said when reached by phone Tuesday morning. "I didn't do it myself, the line gave us time to set up our passing game. It was a team effort."

The industrial education major expects to graduate from WSC next December with a coaching endorsement. He is the son of Max and Zylpha Blackburn of Malvern.

Despite seeing limited action early in the season with a minor leg injury, Blackburn caught 25 passes for 359 yards and six touchdowns. Other honors on Blackburn's 1981 list of achievements include being named to the first teams of the Central States Intercollegiate Conference all conference team, NAIA District II all star squad and the coaches' All State College all star team.

THE FOUR YEAR letterman stands fifth on Wayne State's all time receiving list with 61 receptions for 928 yards and 15 touchdowns. He averaged 15.2 yards each time he caught a pass.

WSC coach Del Stoltenberg was on a recruiting trip to Battle Creek Tuesday. When reached by phone, Stoltenberg said that hard work paid off for the receiver.

"Ed is a super individual and an extremely hard worker. It's unbelievable how much he's improved since his first year," said Stoltenberg. "He did a lot of hard work on his own to improve as a blocker and receiver."

Stoltenberg said that if Blackburn has one strength that stands out it is his speed and ability to get deep on defenders. The veteran coach acknowledged that several pro teams are taking a look at Blackburn and pointed out that four teams sent in personal team scouts to watch films, measure and weigh the star and gather information.

"When pro teams send in personal scouts, you know they're interested. It's more than a passing fancy," Stoltenberg said. "Ed played well against Midland and got better as the season progressed. He really improved."

The Central States Intercollegiate Conference fared well on the Division I All American squads. Four CSIC athletes were named to the first team, three more earned second team status and 10 were listed as honorable mention All Americans.

Clark Division win Trojans trim Hartington in overtime

Mike Clay and Jeff Coble gunned baskets in overtime to lead Wakefield past Hartington 39-37 Friday night in Clark Division basketball action.

The Trojans jumped out in front early but Hartington pulled back within one point by half time. From that point on, the game was nip-and-tuck all the way and regulation ended with the score tied at 35-35.

Wakefield took a two-point overtime lead with buckets by Clay and Coble and Hartington's final shot fell short.

Trojan coach Scott Miller said he was happy with the win but didn't feel his team played that well overall. He pointed out that his players did play well defensively. Miller said he changed his squad's style of play for Hartington and that resulted in an increased number of turnovers—14.

The figure may seem low but Miller said the Trojans need to keep their turnovers down to seven, eight or nine.

Offensively, Wakefield received a balanced attack by four ball players. Mark Starzl topped the Trojans 44-27 in Clark Division girls basketball action last Thursday.

Troubled by Hartington's press, Wakefield fell behind early and found itself down 18-4 after one quarter of play. The Trojans were within 11 points throughout the next two periods before stumbling again in the fourth quarter.

Rita Wilson scored nine points and Brenda Jones added six to lead the Trojans.

Girls lose

A first quarter pressure defense pretty well sealed Wakefield's fate as Hartington

Randy's Recap

By Randy Hascall

THIS IS the time of year for which all college and pro football fans live. Bowl games are scheduled throughout the next 10 days to entertain college fans and NFL playoffs will add excitement to the lives of professional football fans.

I might as well try my luck at predicting some of the upcoming games.

In the Sun Bowl, Oklahoma will try to forget an embarrassing loss to Nebraska and will trim Houston 27-24.

Arkansas will upset North Carolina 24-20 in the Gator Bowl.

In the Liberty Bowl, Ohio State will sink Navy 27-14.

Mississippi State will hand Kansas a 31-14 loss in the Hall of Fame Bowl.

Florida will edge West Virginia 17-14 in the Peach Bowl.

UCLA will surprise Michigan with a 31-24 triumph in the Bluebonnet Bowl.

Penn State; one of the country's strongest teams, will hand Marcus Allen and Southern Cal a 24-17 loss.

I hope Texas can upend Alabama because I'm afraid the Crimson Tide could be voted number one. To back up my feelings, I'll take Texas 28-21.

Pittsburgh will rebound from its loss to Penn State by knocking off Georgia 28-24.

In the Rose Bowl, give the nod to our neighbor; Iowa 14, Washington 10.

And in the all-important Orange Bowl which could decide the national championship, Nebraska will emerge a 35-21 victor.

Turning to the pros, New York will send one of its two teams through the wild-card playoffs. The Jets will top Buffalo 31-28 but the Giants will fall 21-6 to Philadelphia.

SOME CHANGES were made recently by the Nebraska School Activities Association concerning football playoffs and the state baseball tournament.

The NSAA has increased the size of the state baseball tournament; moved the football playoff quarterfinals off of election day and created a committee to study the entire football playoff system.

The state baseball tournament will include eight teams and will be played May 24, 25 and 26 with Ralston as the primary tournament center. Winners of six district tournaments and two wild card teams will qualify for the tourney. In recent years, four teams in Class A competed and two teams in Class B played for the B championship. This year, there is only one class.

A 36-member committee will be appointed to study all phases of the football playoff program. Among consideration will be head-to-head competition within districts as the means of selecting teams for the playoffs. A point system has been used to select playoff teams since the start of postseason play in 1975.

The current football format will be continued in 1982 with possible changes coming in 1983 or after.

Championship football game crowds draw more than 22,000 paid spectators. The Omaha Westside vs. Omaha Northwest game drew 9,731. Class B's Grand Island Northwest vs. Aurora game drew 5,525 and David City Aquinas vs. Battle Creek in C-1 drew 3,342. In C-2, the Henderson-Coleridge game had 1,945 fans. The D-1 game between Shelby and Lawrence drew 1,985 and the Decatur at Madrid matchup had 1,002 tators.

CONGRATULATIONS to Wayne State's Ed Blackburn who was named to the second team of the NAIA All-American football team. The WSC speedster is also an All-American in track as a hurdler.

He has to be one of the leading candidates for the annual athlete of the year award for all colleges in Nebraska.

WE HAVE NO weekend paper this week, so I'll be out of town for four days enjoying our Christmas vacation. Merry Christmas to everyone!

Illness hampers Trojans

Wakefield's girls basketball team was without the services of two players Friday night and it showed. The Trojans struggled offensively, finally falling 29-16 to Osmond.

Rita Wilson, a 5-10 senior, was out of action with illness, and 5-6 junior Renee Wenstrand missed another game due to mononucleosis. Wenstrand has not played a game yet this season but both girls are expected back in Wakefield's next game, Jan. 4 against Walhill.

The game was a defensive battle with neither team showing much explosiveness on offense. The score was tied at 2-2 three minutes into the game with Osmond applying full court pressure. The Trojans placed one senior, one junior and three sophomores into the starting lineup.

A zone defense and traps led Osmond to an 8-2 lead at the end of the first quarter. Wakefield trailed 2-12 in the second period before Brenda Jones finally got something going for the Trojans by hitting a pair of buckets bringing the half-time score to 14-6.

However, Jones was forced to carry too much of Wakefield's burden. She hit 13 of the team's 16 total points and Teresa Biggerstaff added the other three.

The Trojans weren't able to penetrate Osmond's zone and Jones' baskets weren't enough to keep the hosts close. Osmond led 23-11 after the third period and held on for a 29-16 triumph.

Shooting percentage was the main difference in the ball game. Wakefield hit only 6 of 45 shots for just better than 13 percent from the field. The Trojans committed 24 turnovers.

Wakefield coach Mary Schroeder said she saw one bright spot in the loss—rebounding. The hosts grabbed 39 total rebounds. Biggerstaff led the way with 15. Jones grabbed 12 and Kelly Greve pulled down 8.

Winside claimed third place and Wakefield finished fifth in the Osmond Invitational held Saturday.

The two area teams had three individual champions. Winside wrestlers Mark Koch and Barry Bowers won titles at 119 pounds and 185 pounds respectively. Koch defeated Jay Kaser of Pender 3-0 and Bowers defeated Dave Bowling of Osmond 11-1 in the championship matches.

In one of the most exciting matches of the tourney, Wakefield's Dirk Carlson edged Winside's Doug Jaeger 7-6 for the 132-pound championship.

Four Winside wrestlers earned second place finishes to boost the Wildcats' team score. John Thies, lost a 5-3 decision to Paul Peterson of Osmond at 98 pounds. Peterson has given Thies all three of his losses.

Curt Rohde lost 13-0 to Kent Brunckhorst at 112 pounds. Jaeger, who lost to Carlson, finished second at 132. Kent Glassmeyer was pinned by Plainview's tough Chad Schumacher in the heavyweight class.

One Wakefield wrestler placed third. Jon Stelling pinned Pat Schmit of Osmond in 2:02 to win his consolation match at 126 pounds.

Winside had one fourth place finisher and Wakefield had five. For Winside, Brian Bowers lost an 8-7 decision to Mark Korih of Randolph.

Wakefield's Jeff Verplank was pinned at 98 pounds by Plainview's Darron Artl Joey Borg lost a 14-6 decision to Carl Breitbrath of Pender at 112. Paul Schepke lost 13-3 to Merlin Loberg of Randolph in the 167 pound class. Duane Witt was pinned by Rodney Isom of Randolph at 185-pounds. And in the heavyweight class, Roger Echtenkamp was pinned by Pender's Doug Blair.

Both Winside and Wakefield are off for Christmas vacation.

Things didn't go so well for the Wayne wrestling team at the South Sioux City Invitational held Saturday.

The best news of the day was that two Wayne wrestlers placed second in the meet. Steve Pospishil took second at 112 pounds, losing a 10-4 decision to Craig Stueven of South Sioux. Kevin Koenig placed second at 185 pounds but was forced to default to Dana Abboud of Millard North because of a shoulder injury.

Wayne coach Don Koenig took his son to a trainer in Lincoln Tuesday for an examination. The checkup showed nerve damage and Koenig will be out of action three to four weeks.

Koenig has shown lots of promise for an outstanding season, losing only one match prior to Saturday's meet, and doing well against Class A competition in the South Sioux tourney.

Jon Jacobmeyer, one of Wayne's team leaders and best wrestlers, missed the Sioux City Invitational due to illness. Two other Wayne wrestlers earned medals at South Sioux. Doug Doeschner placed third at 105 pounds and Steve Sladek, who earned the varsity heavyweight spot over Eric Brink, placed fourth in the meet.

Lady Wildcats surprising people

By Kent Probst
Wayne State College
The holiday break at Wayne State College is a time of much deserved rest for the women's basketball team, off to a fine 5-3 start.

You start with a new coach and a squad with only four returning letterwinners. No member of the team is above sophomore status. There is an obvious lack of height to go with the inexperience. The opponents are averaging 29 points and 35 rebounds more than the Lady Wildcats. And they have not played a single home game to date.

Pretty fair reasons for a rest coach Jan Jursak's squad expected to struggle through a long season and the conference coaches' choice for the Central States Intercollegiate Conference cellar, has surprised everyone with its 5-3 mark.

MUCH OF THE credit should go to sophomore guard Tammy Blackburn. The 5-5 sparkplug out of Norfolk is averaging in double figures. Despite her short stature, Blackburn is tied for third on the team in rebounds with 40 (a 5.0 average). Blackburn is a newcomer to WSC after transferring from a Texas junior college.

Carol Durkee, a 5-9 forward from Papillion is another steady sophomore. Durkee's 6.7 rebounding average leads the team, and she is second in scoring with a 9.0 average.

Sophomore guard Maggie Alberts of Denison, Iowa, has been inconsistent but occasional brilliant for the Lady Cats. Her 22 point performance in a win over Blair Cliff is the top scoring output of the season for WSC. Alberts is scoring at a rate of 8.3 points per game.

Right behind her is another Norfolk sophomore, 5-6 Patty Carney. Carney is the number two rebounder with an average of 5.3 per game, and she is scoring an average of 8.1 points each outing. She is second in the assist category.

STILL ANOTHER sophomore transfer guard is Albion's Janet Lee. She leads the Lady Cats in assists with 14, and is averaging 6.3 points and 3.1 rebounds per game.

Sophomore center Sue Juhlin of Battle Creek has begun to come on strong in recent weeks. Juhlin is sporting averages of 5.0 rebounds and 4.1 points per game, and has the single game rebounding high with 13 in a win over Peru State.

Jackie Schmonitz, a reserve guard from Lincoln, has been responding well to more playing time in the last few games. Schmonitz, a sophomore, is averaging 4.1 points and 4.0 rebounds each game.

Backup center Cindy Gessman of Denison, Iowa, has been impressive at times this season. Despite playing little early in the season, she is averaging 12 points and 3.8 rebound for the Lady Cats.

OTHERS WHO have earned varsity time include Marie Dunning, Patricia Park, Lana Heins, Sue Sextro and Lynn Brandt.

Wayne State is averaging 69 points per game compared to 63.8 for their opponents. The Lady Cats are hitting a cool 36 percent from the floor, while their opponents are sinking 40 percent.

The squad is hitting 62 percent from the free throw line compared to just 53 percent for their opponents. Wayne State's 41.5 rebounding average is well back of the 45 mark for their opponents.

Roberts is rated eighth

Tentative rankings for the 1981 Nebraska tennis season have been released. Tom Roberts of Wayne is rated eighth in the men's 45 singles.

To be eligible for the rankings, a player must compete in three or more sanctioned tournaments in the men's 18 singles. Roberts participated in only two tourneys, Larry Probst of Norfolk is the only other northeast Nebraskan ranked. He is listed 11th in men's open singles.

Barber

Shorly continues the haircut procedure. He's performed with perfection thousands upon thousands of times, turning the talk over to his customers.

His customers are his friends and neighbors — townspeople who help keep Shorly's wit as sharp as the straight-edged razor he uses for every cut.

THOSE CUSTOMERS won't let Shorly quit. Not that he wants to quit.

"I'm going to keep cutting hair until I can't work anymore," the stoic barber says, when asked if he plans to retire now that he's hit the 50-year mark in Carroll.

"What would I do with him at home?" asks Alice, a beauty-salon operator and Shorly's wife of 51 years. "He'd be underfoot too much."

Shorly explains that he'll reopen the barber shop after a short Christmas trip to Colorado Springs to see their children and grandchildren.

A week after the Halleens return, Shorly will be honored by the Carroll Community Club during a special 50th anniversary dinner, tribute to the long-time Carroll barber at Ron's Bar, Steakhouse and Garage on Monday, Jan. 11.

SHORLY AND ALICE will be guests of honor for an evening program 10 years after the community saluted the barber for four decades of service.

A farm boy who entered barber school at the start of The Great Depression, Shorly still proudly shows the 40th anniversary card and statue (an old-time barber and barber pole) townspeople presented to him.

Born Leonard G. Halleen on Aug. 17, 1910, Shorly earned his moniker from Alice's father, the late Jake Harmer of Belden.

"He hung that on me when I was going with my wife," Shorly explained. "And, it stuck."

The son of the late Arthur and Ruth Halleen, Shorly grew up on a Knox County farm about 3 1/2 miles from Wausa.

A eighth-grade country school graduate, Shorly decided to become a barber.

IN 1929, the year of the big stock market crash, Shorly enrolled at Moter Barber College in Omaha for a six-month training course.

The certificate still hangs on the wall of his Carroll barber shop, housed in space Shorly leases from the village.

After passing his state boards in Lincoln, Shorly worked an 18-month apprenticeship in a two-chair barber shop.

He married Alice on Oct. 5, 1930. The couple moved to Osmund, where Shorly joined another two-chair shop.

"It was right in the Depression," Shorly explains. "Things got tougher and tougher. The business just wasn't there. I ended up driving a gravel truck to help on one of the state roads."

SHORLY STARTED looking in Carroll.

"I found a shop and we moved to Carroll. I opened on Dec. 13, 1931," the veteran barber recalls. The shop Shorly found was an old livery barn. Cars were sold from it before Shorly moved into the office space on the south side of the building and set up his single chair barbershop.

He was not without competition. Another barber had a chair across the street.

Shorly has a newspaper clipping showing the barber and part of the competitor's shop. The competing barbershop closed in 1940 when the barber died.

Also in Shorly's shop is an old wooden barber's bench that came from the shop across the street.

SHORLY'S CUSTOMERS sit in an antique barber's chair. I've had it reupholstered three times," originally purchased by the father of Lloyd Textley — one of the barber's regulars.

Textley's father was a doctor. The doctor bought the chair and other barbershop equipment to set up one of the first Carroll barbershops.

"That's the original chair," Shorly explains, moments after cutting Textley's hair. The chrome-and-marble chair "works like the day it was made," according to Shorly, who works the hydraulics with an second nature flourish.

"It's been a good one," he said, pointing to the gleaming white marble arms and baby blue cushions.

DURING THE Depression, Shorly watched the price of hair cuts drop from 50 cents to 40 cents, then to 35 cents.

It didn't stop there. Before the Depression eased, haircuts were 25 cents. Still, few had the money.

Shorly recalls accepting 25 cents worth of food staples (flour, sugar etc.) bought with government script. "No one had any money," he adds.

One of Shorly's vivid memories is paying of a doctor bill for his wife's appendectomy on a shave a day basis. "Yes, sir. I paid it off that way," he recalls. "I'll never forget that."

IN THE EARLY 1940s, however, the price of haircuts started to rise again. And over the years, Shorly has seen them jump from 25 cents to 50 cents from 50 cents to 75 cents.

Finally, they hit a bulk. Soon it was $1.50. The prices gradually rose. About six months ago Shorly hiked the price of a haircut from $1.50 to $2.

"I think in most places they're more in line than that," he says. "I got one in Norfolk the other day and it cost me $3.50."

Shorly, who gets his own hair cut wherever he happens to be split his time between his Carroll shop and Belden during World War II.

He commuted to Belden in a Model A two days a week, often working until midnight after a full day in his Carroll shop.

"The farmers all saw to it that I got the gas I needed," he recalls. "Times were tough then, too, but the farmers had gas."

CARROLL'S BEEN real good to me," Shorly explains. "After the war, I stayed with my local customers."

He watched the hair styles change. Some have come and gone. Some have come and stayed.

"Razor cutting is coming back," says Shorly, who handles a straight edge like a surgeon. "I've got a friend in a Norfolk cutting school who says they can't keep up with the demand to learn razor cutting."

He acknowledges that the longer hair styles slowed business, particularly with the younger customers.

"I have some young fellas, but mostly it's my local fellas (regulars)," he adds.

During one afternoon last week, Shorly found no rest as Textley, Frank Cunningham, Orville Lage and Jack Kavanaugh look their turns in the chair.

WITH A HUGE wall mirror doubling the action at the barber's chair, Shorly clipped, cut, trimmed, shaved, shampooed and conditioned hair on the heads of his customers.

Working methodically and tirelessly, he carried the barber-shop conversation like a conductor when talk lagged, knowing when to speak without robbing his customers of a rightful turn in the give-and-take.

Dressed in a crisp shirt, complete with a tie, Shorly drenched the room in the art of barbering as long-necked bottles containing the wonders of aromatic "Lucky Tiger" and "Jeris Hair Tonic" moved from shelf to customer and back to shelf.

An antique cash register's ring put music in the afternoon's business, which was capped by a visit from his "sweeper."

"ALICE APPEARED to help tidy up the place as Shorly spent pre-Christmas moments with his last customers of the day, Jack Kavanaugh and his huge black Labrador, Duke.

Kavanaugh and Shorly reminisce about days gone by, colder winters, drier summers, Duke's latest adventures and the neighbors who have moved away.

Shorly works quickly, but unhurried, allowing Kavanaugh to enjoy the warmth of the stove, the friendship of a fellow townsman, and the luxury of a cut, shampoo and scalp massage.

"Are you in a hurry, Shorly?" Kavanaugh asks.

"No sir, Jackson, you just relax," comes Shorly's sincere answer.

"I'd just like to sit here a bit longer, I'm having a good time just being here," Kavanaugh explains.

"STAY AS LONG as you want," Shorly adds, turning on the Christmas lights in the barbershop window with Alice's assistance.

Duke, who is eager to face the bite of a December wind, paces near the door, shakes hands with his master and moves toward the door.

"When you get to Colorado, say hello to Arlene," Kavanaugh says to the Carroll couple as he suits up against the winter chill.

"We sure will," offers Shorly, tiding up the barbershop for the next day's pre-Christmas haircut schedule.

Kavanaugh signs a check and heads out the door with Duke in the lead.

Alice, refusing to ride, walks "up the hill" to the Halleen home, where she spent the afternoon cutting and styling hair for Carroll women.

AT HOME, a comfortable wood-framed house filled with the memories of a family, it's coffee, homemade holiday cookies and candy.

The Christmas lights come on with ceremony as the sun slips away.

Shorly and Alice discuss the delivery of homemade holiday cookie-and-candy plates to friends and neighbors — an annual Christmas project.

The excitement about the trip to Colorado where they will see daughters Arlene and Jan, Arlene's husband and, of course, the three grandkids.

Halleen's had three children. A son, Robert Leonard Halleen, died four days after Christmas in 1934. He was five months and five days old.

THE FAMILY'S Christmas tragedy is recorded on the front page of the Carroll News of Jan. 4, 1934.

Despite the Depression tragedy, Christmas is a happy time for the Halleens.

And, the Halleen's annual pilgrimage to Colorado to be with "the family" at Christmas takes on a special meaning.

Shorly's words echo over a half-century: "Every day is like Christmas for me."

Store

"We're probably not going to make a lot of money at 3 a.m. in Wayne," Korkow acknowledged.

But at that time the family in need of baby aspirin is going to appreciate it. That will build good will and customer loyalty.

WAYNE'S 7-ELEVEN will be a company owned store "at least for the time being," explained Korkow.

He explained that the company operates with a dual plan that involves franchisees and managers.

"It's about 50-50 throughout the chain," he said. On company owned stores, 7-Eleven hires a manager to run the operation.

"At some point we like to move to a locally owned franchise in Wayne," he said, explaining that the company has approached Fuelberth about running the 7-Eleven here.

Fuelberth said his plans are open for now. "I haven't decided what I'm going to do," he said, explaining that he and his partners were busy closing out the Chrysler franchise and working with the contractor.

ACCORDING TO Korkow, the Wayne 7-Eleven, which he described as a "large super-market in miniature," will sell gasoline and diesel fuel.

"We allow for three products, the site scout explained. He said he expected the store to pump regular and unleaded gasoline as well as diesel fuel.

"We'll be with the lowest gas prices in town," Korkow added. With an inventory that will be computer controlled, the 7-Eleven store also will operate with centralized and computerized ordering and vendor billing.

The orange and green, brick veneer store will join a number of other 7-Eleven operations in Nebraska.

KORKOW SAID the company is working on store sites in Chadron, Lyons, Council Bluffs and North Platte.

In addition, he said a store just opened in York and the company is adding another to an existing operation in Grand Island.

A second site is in the works for Kearney, where one store already is in operation. And a 7-Eleven is under construction in Coleridge.

According to Korkow, a store is under construction in Hastings and the company is building a second 7-Eleven in Norfolk.

One store is open for business in Columbus and a second store is under construction there.

"HERE'S A national company that can put a store any place planning to do business in your town," Korkow said.

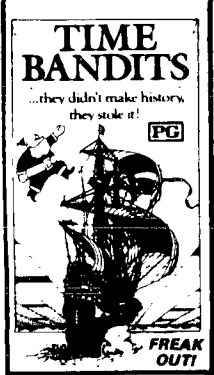

"That's got to say something about Wayne," he said. Some think it's a sign that merchants to get depressed by the economic problems, but you might get a good town or you wouldn't be here."

Fuelberth said, "We're excited about helping bring the new business to Wayne."

sheriff's log

The Wayne County Sheriff's Department investigated a two-vehicle accident on state Highway 35 Monday.

According to Sheriff Scotty Thompson, a 1979 GMC pickup, driven by Rodney D. Klinghagan of Newman Grove, struck the rear of a 1977 Dodge, driven by George H. Farran of Winside.

The 4:30 p.m. accident happened at the Winside spur after the Farran car had stopped to wait for southbound traffic to clear.

As the Farran car crossed the highway, it was struck by the Klinghagan pickup, according to Thompson.

No injuries were reported.

Some new players expected on governor's 1982 team

By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

Gov. Charles Thone, heading into the final year of his first four-year term, is going to be working with some new people in 1982.

The governor announced recently he's losing one of his aides to a state agency, and one of his department heads is moving to Omaha to work at the University of Nebraska Medical Center.

Thone said Don Stenberg has been named director of the Department of Administrative Services, succeeding Brent Stevenson, who on January 1 will become vice chancellor for business and finance at the Medical Center.

STENBERG HAS served the governor in several capacities since Thone took office in 1979. He directed the Policy Research Office before being named an assistant to the governor.

Stevenson worked for the university system as budget and planning director before he was named head of D.A.S. In addition, he worked on the Lincoln campus as budget director.

Thone considers D.A.S. a cornerstone to his administration. The agency's duties and roles are many and varied. They include purchasing, data processing, maintenance and office rental.

Another of the department heads named by Thone is going to take on new and different responsibilities in the new year. State Welfare Director John Knight has been named coordinator for human resources and director of legislative affairs for Thone.

KNIGHT ASSUMED his job as Welfare's director in March 1979 soon after Thone took office. The former lawmaker in his new role will supervise the state departments of Public Welfare, Public Institutions, Health, Labor and Veterans Affairs.

The Governor's Task Force for Government Improvement last year recommended creation of the coordinator's post.

"John Knight's familiarity with the human services agencies and with the block grant process make him ideally equipped to fill this coordinator role," Thone said.

The governor named state accountant Don Gerber to serve as acting director of the Welfare Department.

GOVERNORSHIP — State Sen. George "Bill" Burrows of Adams has thrown his hat into the political arena in a big way.

Burrows became the first Democrat to file for the post. The 51-year-old farmer said his candidacy in some respects has its roots in the actions of the Republican administration in Nebraska and Washington.

Burrows cites specifically Republican Gov. Charles Thone's support of Reagan administration policies, which the Adams lawmaker believes are anti-agriculture.

BURROWS PLEDGED to wage a "positive," "issue oriented" campaign, and made no apologies for the fact that "I do want this job and I will work very hard... to get it."

Burrows said it's possible he might be the only Democrat to run for governor. If he is, it's almost a sure bet his general election opponent will be Thone, who is expected to seek reelection.

Sen. Don Dwarak of Columbus earlier ended speculation about his possible candidacy for the governorship by saying he wouldn't be a candidate on the Democratic ticket. In addition, Lincoln insurance executive Loren Belker recently became the second Democrat to back off from a potential challenge to Thone.

Other potential candidates have been discussed in Democratic circles, but at press time none of them had tossed their hat into the ring.

MORTGAGE MONEY — The Nebraska Mortgage Finance Fund has backed off earlier plans to float a housing bond issue this year.

Charles Rasmussen, executive director of the state-created agency, said interest rates are too high for a bond issue in 1981.

Earlier this year, Rasmussen said a $50 million issue was possible. The money would help low and moderate income Nebraskans buy a home.

Loans at 12 3/8 percent were possible after the Finance Fund's last bond issue, marketed in December 1980. Rasmussen says the best that would be available if another issue were marketed in 1981 would be 14 to 14.5 percent.

"I DON'T think we should consider anything over 13 percent," Rasmussen said recently.

The December 1980 issue was tax exempt, something that made it attractive to some investors. The possibility of a taxable bond issue is now being studied by the Finance Fund staff.

In the meantime, Rasmussen, his board members and his staff will no doubt be looking at all options to try to find a way to provide low interest loans to more Nebraskans who are interested in buying houses.

Christmas is tomorrow

The small boy woke before the dawn and down the stairs he ran
He could not wait to see the toys left by that kind old man.

He quickly turned the tree lights on and stared in sad surprise —
Santa hadn't been there and tears came to his eyes.

He'd left the door unlatched that night so Santa could come in He'd put a cookie on the plate, just where it had always been.

How come Santa let him down he'd been so very good;
He'd cleaned his plate and done the chores and acted as he should.

He threw himself upon the floor and dried his tear-filled eyes
Maybe this was just a dream and not a bad surprise.

He felt a warm arm round him a kiss to ease his sorrow
And with a smile his mother said,
"Christmas is tomorrow."

Foundation puts state on the map

Nebraska & the good life

The NEBRASKAland Foundation is doing a great job in helping tell the world that we enjoy the good life in our state.

One of my chief goals as governor has been to create more and better paying jobs in Nebraska. We're trying to do this by selling more agricultural and other products overseas, helping existing business to expand, attracting new industry and by persuading more tourists to visit our state. State government has increased its budgets for these purposes during my three years as governor.

But much of the effort toward these aims can best be done outside of government. That's why I have supported with enthusiasm the reorganization of the NEBRASKAland Foundation.

STARTED IN 1962, the foundation is the state's only non-profit, tax exempt, non-governmental organization to promote Nebraska. In its early years, it helped state government to get organized to attract industry and visitors, assisted in the beginning of NEBRASKAland Magazine, published by the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission, and lent a hand in organizing the NEBRASKAland Kodeo, now held each year in North Platte.

Reorganized, revitalized and rejuvenated early in 1979, the foundation is doing outstanding work in telling the Nebraska story. The foundation has written, printed and distributed thousands of "Know Nebraska" leaflets. The organization financed buying of merchandise for a gift store in the state capitol and profits from that enterprise are helping to support the foundation.

Nebraska's entry in the 1981 inaugural parade in Washington, D. C. was made possible by the foundation. It has established a great annual ceremony for each March 1, Nebraska's statehood anniversary. The group is playing a lead role in planning for the 1982 celebration of the 50th anniversary of our magnificent state capitol.

ON FEB. 27 at a banquet in the capitol rotunda, the foundation will give its NEBRASKAland award to a citizen who has helped greatly to make the nation aware of our state. On March 1, before the legislature in session, the foundation will present three other awards to those who have given much of their time and talent to benefit Nebraska.

Good citizen John F. Kingsbury of Ponca is president of the foundation and he has the help of a 42-member statewide board of directors.

A grant from the Old West Regional Commission helped to finance the re-establishment of the NEBRASKAland Foundation, but now it must depend entirely upon contributions from businesses and individuals to survive. If you're interested in these efforts, write, or send a tax-deductible contribution, to: NEBRASKAland Foundation, 1335 L, Lincoln, NE 68508. Each gift, large or small, will be great if it's given with affection for our great state.

Income tax law changes may benefit the farmer

By M.M. Van Kirk
Nebraska Farm Bureau

The new federal tax law passed in early August has many implications for farmers and will affect their personal income taxes, farm business taxes and their estate planning.

Recently the USDA's "Farmers' Newsletter" outlined many of these changes which carry special benefits for farmers and ranchers. In dollar value, the biggest change is in income tax rates for individuals.

Phased in reductions will cut personal rates 1 1/2 percent for tax year 1981, 10 percent by 1982, and 23 percent by 1984. The highest tax bracket will be 50 percent, rather than 70, as of next year.

THE NEW LAW also reduced the "marriage penalty" — an inequity in the income tax rates charged two earner households. In tax year 1982, one can deduct 5 percent of the income earned by the lower paid spouse (up to a maximum deduction of $1,500). In 1983 and after, one can deduct 10 percent (up to a maximum deduction of $3,000).

To encourage deposits in savings and loan associations and other thrift institutions, the new rules allow a person to earn tax-free interest on special 1 year savings certificates (also called all savers certificates). One can exempt as much as $1,000 earned from these certificates ($2,000 for joint returns), which are issued in amounts of $500 or more. The $1,000 is a one time exemption only.

The certificates may benefit farmers indirectly, too. The reason is that savings institutions must use the all savers deposits mainly for home mortgage and farm loans.

The new law raises the deductible amount that can be contributed to IRA (individual retirement accounts) and Keogh (self-employed retirement) plans and also widens eligibility to participate in IRAs.

ANOTHER CHANGE from the past rules — if you are a farmer or rancher and have an off-farm job and are already covered by an employer sponsored retirement plan, you used to be ineligible for an IRA. But starting in 1982, you can open one despite your existing coverage. Or, you can make deductible contributions to your employer's plan under certain conditions.

The new law has a goal of spurring business investments. It speeds up writeoffs of farm buildings, machinery and breeding stock, to allow farmers to recover costs faster.

The old writeoff periods have now been replaced with the Accelerated Cost Recovery System (ACRS). A farmer must apply it to assets placed in service after 1980. Generally, the new depreciation periods are shorter. Buildings, in particular, can be written off much faster under ACRS — in 15 years.

ALONG WITH shorter writeoff periods, there is a change in the way depreciation is figured. For 15-year "real" property, such as most farm buildings, deductions are now based on a percentage formula, adjusted according to what month you put the item in service.

All property, other than 15-year real property, is assigned a 3, 5, or 10-year depreciation period. Included are cars, trucks, single-purpose livestock and horticultural buildings and most farm equipment.

The new rules will now allow farmers to "expense" certain types of property — in other words, to immediately deduct their cost from their receipts, just as they do their operating expenses. Only business property such as farm equipment and breeding stock qualifies for expensing, and one cannot take an investment credit for the amount expensed.

The new tax law is far-reaching and complicated and the USDA experts strongly advise farmers to consult their accountants, lawyers or other tax professionals for information and help in taking full advantage of new tax savings opportunities.

CHRISTMAS GIFT PLANTS

The gift of plants that you received at Christmas time should be enjoying the high cost of home heating because most will thrive with cooler house temperatures.

Your Christmas poinsettia may still be blooming at Easter time. Keep your poinsettia evenly moist (not soggy wet), out of extremely cold drafts and in a well-lighted room of direct sunlight.

Because the poinsettia is not the only Christmas gift plant, you may want to check the following:

Christmas Begonia — This plant has light green foliage with pink clusters of flowers. A sunny location, a cool (60 degrees F.) night temperature to aid further bud development and a moist soil are essential to obtain maximum enjoyment from this plant. This is a difficult plant to maintain in the home and probably should be discarded after it blooms.

Christmas Cactus — This plant should be kept moist, especially during the flowering period. Grow this plant in full sunlight, cool temperatures (maximum 60 degrees F.) and medium humidity (70 percent). Maintain a regular fertility program during the growing season.

Jerusalem Cherry — This plant produces cherry sized orange or scarlet fruit (these may cause a skin rash on contact). Jerusalem Cherry requires about the same care as Christmas Cactus. However, the soil should be allowed to dry slightly between waterings. These plants are grown from seed and should be discarded after one year since they will not continue fruiting profusely.

Kalanchoe — This waxy leaved plant bears clusters of scarlet flowers. Full winter sun, a moist soil, 70 percent humidity, and moderate temperatures (70 degrees F.) will make Kalanchoe a delightful house plant.

Cyclamen — These plants should be discarded after flowering. Flowers last longer at 50-60 degrees F. than they do at 70 degrees F. The average time you can enjoy this gift is two weeks.

Azaleas — These acid loving plants will bloom from Christmas to early spring if placed in a cool (60-65 degree F.) bright location until May. After danger of frost is over, these plants can set outside in a specifically prepared garden soil (one part acid soil and one part peat moss) or plunge the potted plant into a semi-shady moist location. In the fall these plants should be placed in a frost free cold frame for a period of chilling. The first part of November, Azaleas can be brought inside again, the flowers should appear in 6-10 weeks.

Chrysanthemum — These plants are gaining in popularity and only your florist knows whether the variety is hardy enough to be set out side next spring. Chrysanthemums need full sunlight, a moist soil and 60-70 degree temperatures.

Amaryllis — These tropical bulbs can be received as a bulb or flowering plant for Christmas. Six to eight weeks after the bulb is planted, a flower stem will appear with 3-6 flowers. Amaryllis needs a humus soil, full sun, moderate temperatures (70 degree days, 55 degrees at night) and 70 percent humidity. The bulb is usually planted with 2-3 of the bulb above the soil. Leaves should be allowed to grow after the flowers have passed. When the leaves yellow, stop watering the plant and allow it to go dormant. Cut off the leaves and store the dry bulb at 40 degrees F. The bulb can be kept dormant indefinitely, resume watering when you want growth to resume.

Low humidity prevails in most houses (40-50 percent). Create an artificial environment to increase humidity if you do not own a humidifier.

- a. Keep plants in the bathroom window or the window over the kitchen sink.
- b. Group plants together, their water loss will increase humidity.
- c. Set the plants in a tray of gravel that is kept moist.

POINTERS ON POINSETTIAS

Christmas is a traditional time for giving and receiving the poinsettia. Here are some pointers.

The plants are especially sensitive to heat and light and will not tolerate a draft. Most do badly with either too little or too much water. As soon as you get your poinsettia home remove foil or any other wrapping around the pot and place the plant in or near a sunny window. During the day, try to keep the plant in a room where the temperature stays between 65 and 70 degrees Fahrenheit. The plant needs a cooler spot at night, but no cooler than 60 degrees or your poinsettia will suffer.

PROBLEM SIGNS

If your plant starts to drop leaves, check to see if it's in a draft from a window or a nearby outside door.

The problem could also be lack of water. Touch to soil every day. If it feels dry, pour on enough water to saturate the potting soil. Don't go overboard, though. Pour on just enough so it drips out the drainage hole. Let the soil become quite dry before rewatering. Never let your plant stand in water; be sure to empty out any water in the saucer or flower pot.

NEXT YEARS FLOWERS

If you would want your poinsettia to flower next Christmas, here is some advice.

Follow the care instructions talked about earlier until the end of April. Then each day water the soil a little less until the soil is very dry, but not so dry the stems shrivel.

Keep the plant in a well-ventilated room where the temperature stays about 60 degrees. About mid April you'll need to do some trimming. Cut the poinsettia stems back to six inches above the soil and repot the plant. Use a container an inch or two larger in diameter than the poinsettia's original container. A number of potting mixes are available commercially, but you can mix your own. Use two parts soil, one part peat moss, and one part perlite by volume.

Water the plants thoroughly and keep it by a sunny window where the temperature stays between 70 and 75 degrees. In a few days you should notice some new growth beginning and you'll need to start fertilizing. Every two weeks put on a water soluble fertilizer. Use the rate recommended on the label.

SUMMER CARE

During the summer months, put your poinsettia outside. Find a lightly shaded place in the yard, and in early June move your poinsettia to its new home. Cut the stems again between August 15 and September 15, leaving each shoot three or four inches long. Remove the plant from its garden spot, repot it, and place it near a sunny window in your home where the temperature is between 65 and 70 degrees. Continue to water and fertilize it.

Poinsettias flower about 10 weeks after daylight time drops to 11 hours or less. To have it blossom for Christmas you may have to shorten the days for your poinsettia.

Keep the plant in complete darkness from 5 p.m. to 8 a.m. starting October 1 and continuing through Thanksgiving. A closet or a dark basement corner is fine for this. If the plant receives any light during those hours the flowering will be delayed.

During the day put the plant back in its sunny window. Continue fertilizing until mid-December.

Shelter from the cold

IT'S ALWAYS nice to find shelter when a snowstorm hits and this steer was able to warm up in a shed during the year's most recent snow storm and cold streak.

Predicted warm weather throughout the week threatens hopes of a white Christmas.

Caution to avoid danger

Swine housing facilities can be made too air-tight

With the arrival of winter, Nebraska pork producers are adjusting their swine housing ventilation systems while keeping a watchful eye on their heating systems' fuel meters.

A tight facility is necessary to reduce winter drafts and lower expensive fuel consumption. But two University of Nebraska specialists at the Northeast Station, Concord, advise caution to avoid danger to sows and pigs.

Mike Brumm, extension swine specialist, and Dave Shelton, extension agricultural engineer, warn that facilities can be made too air-tight, especially if unvented space heaters are being used.

THE NU NORTHEAST Station staff members remind producers that while unvented heaters are popular and easy to use for heating houses and nurseries, they do have drawbacks.

Unvented heaters are not 100 percent efficient in converting fuel to heat. Even when properly cleaned and maintained, these heaters produce small amounts of carbon monoxide and other combustion products which are exhausted into the animal zone. Brumm and Shelton explain.

Improper maintenance or a dirty combustion chamber will result in an increase in the concentration of these gases and combustion products. Further, for every gallon of fuel burned, approximately one gallon of water vapor is added to the air in the space being heated. It may be necessary to increase ventilation rates to remove these combustion products. The specialists recommend.

Producers using unvented heaters are urged to check all components of their ventilation system to assure that enough air is exchanged in the animal space to remove the added moisture and combustion products.

FAILURE TO PROVIDE enough fresh air, which is tempting to do as the temperature plunges, can result not only in damp buildings but also in dead pigs. In farrowing houses and gestation areas, high concentrations of carbon monoxide may not kill the sow but can result in increased fetal deaths, resulting in abortions or more stillborns. Brumm and Shelton warn.

In nurseries and farrowing houses, reducing the ventilation rates to conserve fuel not only increases the odors and gases but also increases moisture in the air. This often results in wet pens and wet pigs, which often leads to chilled and/or dead pigs.

For efficient operation, all heating and ventilating systems components must be clean and properly maintained. This is especially important where unvented or other direct combustion heaters are used. Brumm and Shelton concluded.

More cattle on feed

Nebraska cattle feeders had 1,620,000 cattle on feed on Dec. 1. This inventory moved up three percent from both last year and two years ago and as the largest number on feed for the month since 1978.

Fed cattle marketings for the month of November totaled 290,000 head, a decrease of six percent from 1980 but five percent above November 1979.

The tour is sponsored by the NU Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources, International Educational Services and the Division of Continuing Studies.

Farm Bureau Christmas party

The Wayne County Farm Bureau held its Christmas party Dec. 14 in the home of Herb and Joyce Niemann.

Several members were present for the supper and singing of Christmas carols.

The Nebraska Farm Bureau Convention was held Dec. 6, 9 in South Sioux City. Delegates were John Anderson, Dale Hansen, Robert Jones, Kris Loberg and Merle Ring.

Numerous other Farm Bureau members also were present at convention events.

Swine disease film on ETV

State Sen. Elroy Hefner announced this week that the Nebraska ETV network would be showing a USDA film explaining the swine disease of pseudorabies. The date and time is set for Saturday, Dec. 19th, at 11 a.m.

Hefner said that the Legislature will be considering LB 36, the Pseudorabies Control Act on its first round debate soon after the Legislature convenes in January.

It might be helpful to those who wish more information on this swine disease to view this show. The film was shown by the State Department of Agriculture at the Public Hearing at Bloomfield on the pseudorabies problem this fall. Hefner said.

NU scientists distill alcohol from fermented sorghum juice

University of Nebraska scientists working with the Energy Farm project have succeeded in distilling alcohol from fermented sweet sorghum juice, Energy Farm Project Coordinator Dr. Dennis Schulte said Monday, (Dec. 14).

"This is the first known time that alcohol has been produced from sweet sorghum for use as a fuel in the U.S.," Schulte said. The research was conducted at the Energy Farm site at the NU Field Laboratory near Mead.

The alcohol will be used primarily to fuel irrigation engines at the farm, one of eight similar demonstration projects nationwide designed to be energy-independent. Much of the support for the energy farms comes from the U.S. Department of Energy.

Sweet sorghum is not now grown commercially, Schulte noted, but was popular in the 1920s and 30s for molasses production. Its high sugar content makes it ideal for alcohol fuel production. "Alcohol can be a very important ingredient in producing energy independence for the farming community," Schulte said.

The distillation completes the first phase of the sweet sorghum research project, he said, but additional studies using the Nabal system are planned and may use other alcohol feedstocks. Nabal, Inc. Gasohol Plants is head quartered at Lincoln. This past summer, Energy Farm researchers initiated a program using 185 proof fuel grade alcohol to power irrigation and tractor engines, he added.

The Nabal system also will be used to develop performance criteria for on farm distillation systems, Schulte said. Develop-

Dairy day programs

WHILE ANIMALS are sometimes given "free choice" of feedstuffs made available to them, dairy producers were offered the opportunity to stop at any of several stations during University of Nebraska area dairy day programs to hear various discussions by computer system corporation representatives and NU specialists. For the first time at this type of meeting, 16 stations were set up in the Christensen Field meeting site at Fremont, with the University or commercial experts at each station having six minutes to discuss a topic or equipment. Small groups of producers rotated from station to station, according to their interests. Both producers and university animal scientists who planned the sessions declared the arrangement a success. Here, Don Kubik (left) NU extension dairyman at the Northeast Station, Concord, discusses the pros and cons of combined parlor/lot feeding methods.

Nebraska one of nation's worst in leafy spurge infestation

One hundred to 150 thousand acres of Nebraska pastures and rangeland are infested with leafy spurge, a weed that's definitely on the increase. Nebraska ranks near the top nationwide in leafy spurge infestation, according to Dr. Alex Martin, University of Nebraska extension weeds specialist.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture recently announced that three million acres in the north central and western U.S. have been invaded by the weed and another three million are threatened. In Nebraska, the north central and northwestern areas are the biggest problem. Martin said.

Leafy spurge is very difficult to control. It just grows. You can't control it through regulated grazing or management practices and it will invade good stands of grass.

Neither livestock nor wild animals will eat the weeds, which can cut productivity by 30 to 70 percent. In addition, control is difficult. "There are many available but they are expensive. A rancher is in tough shape if he has any kind of infestation of leafy spurge," he said.

Nebraska's research on leafy spurge dates to 1978. Martin said. There's a boost early this year when the Old West Regional Commission gave a one year grant of $20,000 to Martin and Bob Wilson, extension weeds specialist at the NU Parhamville Station at Scott Bluffs. "We continue study of possible treatments."

Martin and Wilson are studying the use of selective herbicides for applying herbicides to leafy spurge so that grass and soil could not be affected. The research is designed to reduce the amount of herbicide required and also decrease environmental hazards, Martin said.

For example, Tordon, the most effective herbicide for leafy spurge, can't be used in Sandhills wet meadows or any site where the water table is within 15 feet of the soil surface, because of the risk of contaminating ground water, Martin said.

The researchers also are studying the use of herbicides in combination with nitrogen fertilizer and with growth regulators to enhance performance of the herbicide while enabling the applicator to use less, Martin said.

In the meantime, Tordon 22K applied in spring at the rate of four quarts per acre remains the most effective treatment, he said. Because Tordon is expensive, there's added incentive for ranchers to treat small infestations because they become larger and more difficult and costly to control, he concluded.

because it's the least costly investment per acre.

It's going to be harder to make farming pay off in the years to come. Harder for many reasons.

So if anything makes sense, it's to maximize the potential of the land you now farm. Irrigating with a corner pivot is one way. Irrigating with a Corner System is even better.

A Corner System can irrigate 19 to 45 more acres than a regular pivot, producing extra income on acres already being farmed. That's why nearly one out of every six pivots sold today is a Corner System.

And when it comes to Corner Systems, nobody knows more than Valmont. They're proven reliable with nearly 3,000 systems in operation. That's at least 20 times more than any other brand.

Before you buy any center pivot, see us. We'll tell you how a Valley Corner System can add to your bottom line profits while being the least costly investment per acre.

IRA

(Individual Retirement Account)

a tax-deferred retirement plan that lets you keep more of your hard earned money.

Even if you are covered by a company pension plan—or Keogh, you can participate in the new version of IRA at Midwest Federal. With all the concern about Social Security, it may be a good time to start a plan that will build security for your retirement years.

Tax-deferred contributions

Deposit as much as $2,000 each year and deduct it from your Federal Income Tax Return. With a working spouse you can, together, deposit up to $4,000. Married couples with one employed worker can deposit up to $2,250.

The interest you earn as well as your contributions is tax deferred until you withdraw at retirement when you will probably be in a lower tax bracket—or as early as 59-1/2 whether you retire or not.

Start with a plan

Most people will choose to make regular, periodic deposits. If you wish, Midwest Federal will automatically transfer monthly deposits from your checking account. (IRA customers qualify for Free Checking). Or, you may choose to make regular deposits on your own. Another option is to make your total deposit in a lump sum. Whichever way you choose, you have until you file your income tax to complete your contribution. But don't delay—the earlier you deposit, the greater your tax-deferred earnings will be.

No fees or commissions

Unlike some IRA plans, there are no fees or commissions to pay in a Midwest Federal Individual Retirement Account. The full amount of your deposit is credited to your tax-deferred IRA account. It stays right here, promoting growth and prosperity in our community. And your money is insured safe by the FSLIC, an agency of the U.S. Government.

Come in for details on how you can keep more of your hard earned money for a comfortable and secure retirement.

PRIVATE LANDS HABITAT PROGRAM

This program offers payments to landowners for establishing or protecting habitat on private land. Natural Resources Districts provide 25% of the funding and develop practices to be offered to landowners.

Lower Elkhorn NRD offers the following practices:

PRACTICE II PROTECTION OF EXISTING WILDLIFE COVER

1. Five year contract between landowner and Natural Resources District
2. Each cooperator can enroll a minimum of three acres and three acres per plot with a maximum of 40 acres in 4 plots
3. Cover types may be grasses, legumes or woody species that are existing at the time of application
4. Payment is $7.30 per acre annually

PRACTICE III SWEET CLOVER PLANTING WITH OATS

1. Two year contract between landowner and Natural Resources District
2. Each cooperator can enroll a minimum of 10 acres per plot and a maximum total of 30 acres annually
3. Yellow sweet clover is to be planted as a companion crop with oats. Following the harvest of the oats crop, the clover is to remain undisturbed through the second February following seeding.
4. Only the oats heads may be harvested, with the stubble to be left standing.
5. Payment is $30 per acre annually.

PRACTICE IVa GRASSLAND HABITAT

1. Three year contract between landowner and Natural Resources District
2. Each cooperator can enroll a minimum of 10 acres and a maximum of 80 acres
3. Priority will be given to mixtures of sweet clover, red clover, alfalfa, native prairie grasses, or cool season grass. Cool season grass mixtures must contain at least 25% legumes. Seeding rates will be established according to SCS standards.
4. Payment is $30 per acre annually

PRACTICE IVb STRIP-CROPPING WITH OATS AND SWEET CLOVER

1. Two year contract between landowner and Natural Resources District
2. Each cooperator can enroll a minimum of three acres

Example of IVa and IVc and the benefits to landowner.

IVb $4000 + oats 2 years
IVc $6000-10,000 100% cost share on seed $1000 ground prep. 3-5 years

For more information or to sign-up for the program, contact your local Soil Conservation Service Office.

DOLLARS FOR HABITAT

There is nothing like a blanket of snow to put you in the Christmas spirit. There is also nothing like snow to show you how much suitable habitat you have. Woody fence-lines and stubble fields look like excellent winter cover for pheasants and quail until you see them covered with snow. If there is not enough cover to hide wildlife, then there is not enough to protect them either.

The Nebraska Game & Parks Commission, Lower Elkhorn NRD, and most of the other Natural Resources Districts in the state are trying to do something about the lack of suitable habitat. The Wildlife Habitat Program is funded by the $7.30 Habitat Stamp required with each hunting permit, and has three parts:

- 1) Land is purchased by the Game & Parks Commission as Wildlife Management Areas, which are open to the public.
- 2) Habitat improvement work such as seeding and tree planting is done on existing public lands.
- 3) The Private Lands Habitat program.

CALENDAR OF EVENTS

PUBLIC ACCESS for HUNTING-FISHING-TRAPPING-HIKING by FOOT TRAFFIC ONLY

WINDBREAK TREES HALF SOLD OUT

Over half of the 3.8 million Clarke-McNary seedlings available to landowners in the spring of 1982 are sold. Four species have been exhausted and others may be soon.

Bill Lovett, Administrator of the Clarke-McNary Program, has notified Nebraska agencies that tree sales will be open to other states beginning January 5.

Anyone wishing to order seedlings while the variety is good, should do so now. Lists of available species and order blanks are available from Soil Conservation Services, ASCS, Extension and NRD offices.

WHAT IS A TREE WORTH?

Professor T.M. Des of the Agricultural University of Calcutta, India has come up with some interesting dollar values for a tree which normally lives 30 years. He estimates the tree would produce about $31,250.00 in soil erosion control and additions to soil fertility, $27,500.00 in recycling water and controlling humidity, $21,000.00 in shelter for animals and birds, and $2,500.00 worth of produce - a total of nearly $150,000.00. Add to that tree values for flowers, fruits and wood. A tree sold for commercial purposes brings less than 0.2% of its real value according to Professor Des.
