Board deadlocked over Allen superintendent

By LaVon Beckman

Allen Consolidated Schools Superintendent Robert Heckathorn may not be offered a contract extension for the 1982-83 school year.

The district's school board members, polled during a Monday night meeting last week, appear split on whether to renew the 45-year-old superintendent's contract for another year.

When polled by the board chairman, three members indicated they support extending the superintendent's contract, but three others indicated they were against it.

THE INFORMAL poll was taken during a discussion regarding the superintendent's contract.

Heckathorn, who was out of the board room when the discussion took place, said the development was a surprise.

When he returned to the board room, Heckathorn said he was told by the board chairman that there were not enough votes to offer him the contract.

"It was a complete surprise to me and to the chairman of the board," said Heckathorn. "I didn't anticipate any conflict whatsoever."

"We've all worked so cotton pickin' hard to solve the problems in Allen."

THE PENDER native is in his fifth year as Allen's superintendent.

A graduate of Wayne State College and the University of Nebraska, he served as high school principal in Homer for seven years.

Heckathorn held superintendencies at Bladen and Rosalie prior to coming to Allen.

"I'M SURE it's a personality conflict," said Heckathorn, adding "those kind of things you can't fight."

Heckathorn said Monday night's board meeting was more of a "discussion" regarding the extension of his contract, and added that he wasn't making any plans whatsoever until the matter is resolved.

"I don't know what the next procedure will be," stated the superintendent, adding, however, that the matter will be resolved very shortly.

"It has to be because of my career," Heckathorn said.

HECKATHORN reportedly offered a verbal resignation during Monday night's meeting, The Wayne Herald has learned.

When contacted Friday, board chairman Harlan Mattes said "you don't have a legal resignation until the board accepts it at the next meeting."

Mattes said there are legal steps that must be taken should the board decide not to extend the superintendent's contract.

Mattes declined to comment on board members who supported Heckathorn and those who did not.

"I don't think that's right for me to say," stated Mattes. "Those persons who are interested would have been present at the board meeting."

MATTES said the board has not decided what further steps will be taken.

"I don't know what's going to happen now," the board chairman stated.

Serving with Mattes on the Allen Board of Education are Loren Carr, Matt Stapleton, Jackie Williams, Larry Boswell and Marilyn Creamer.

Happier than a hog in a haystack

WHEN THE NORTH WIND blows across the northeast Nebraska prairie, any hog in his right mind would seek shelter. This spotted specimen headed for the comforts offered in a pile of hay. But, on Friday afternoon, an unwelcome visitor to the Bill and Sharon Corbit farm southeast of Wayne disturbed the protected porker's warm winter nap. While huddled in the hay, the happy hog mugged the camera before getting back to the business of burrowing deeper into the downwind side of a snow-covered stack.

Kilowatt consumption

Wayne's Energy Task Force charts city's electricity appetite

Wayne's annual commercial electricity usage runs about 10 percent ahead of that consumed by the city's entire residential area.

Energy figures released this week by the Wayne Energy Task Force also show the city's commercial ventures — business and industry — hit a peak demand period in July.

Residential electricity consumption also usually hits a July peak demand, according to the Energy Task Force's technical committee.

DURING A RECENT study of electrical energy consumption in the city, the committee also found that, under normal conditions, the second highest peak demand period for both residential and commercial usage is February.

The committee, which includes Energy Task Force members Dean Metz, Sam Schroeder, Ken Marra and Phil Kloster, based its findings on a 10-month 1981 billing chart developed by the city.

Committee members examined electrical energy usage in more than five basic areas and built a computer-produced graph that compares consumption in three of those — residential, commercial and college (Wayne State).

AMONG THE THINGS shown by the graph, which uses kilowatt hours of energy billed by the city from January to October of 1981, is that the college uses about half the electrical energy consumed by Wayne's residential area.

The study was designed to assist the Energy Task Force in determining where electrical power is being consumed in Wayne, according to Metz, who charted the figures.

"If we're going to cut energy down, we ought to know where it is going," he explained.

The committee focused on the three major areas of consumption and found that during 1981's peak demand period (July) commercial operations were billed for 1,381,016 kilowatt hours of electricity.

RESIDENTIAL usage hit 1,360,369 kilowatt hours for July of 1981. As might be expected, however, the college did not hit a peak demand period in July but did use 249,700 kilowatt hours of electricity.

Wayne State did share the second highest peak demand period with residential and commercial users, however.

In February of 1981, WSC was billed for 677,710 kilowatt hours of electricity.

Residential usage jumped ahead of commercial usage in February. The city's residential area consumed 1,113,898 kilowatt hours that month, while commercial ventures used 1,071,674 kilowatt hours, according to the committee's figures.

For the total 10-month period, commercial consumption totaled 10,259,797 kilowatt hours.

FOR THE SAME period, residential users consumed 9,201,880 kilowatt-hours, and the college used 4,624,160 kilowatt hours.

"Our electrical energy bills are based on how much we use and our peak demand," Metz explained.

"If we could cut down the peaks, we could reduce the amount of money spent for energy without really using any less energy," he continued.

"That would require using the electricity in a different time sequence than we do now," he added.

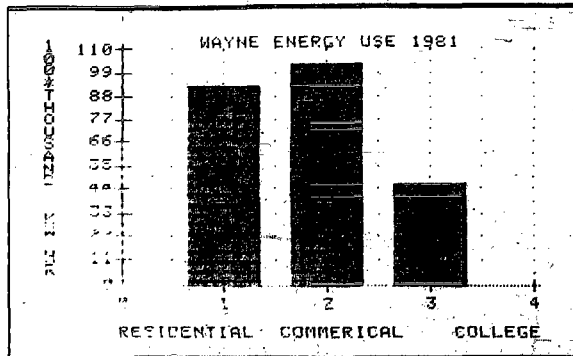

According to Schroeder, off-peak usage of electricity is "making more efficient use of the energy that's available."

He explained that peak-demand energy is expensive energy.

METZ SAID THAT Nebraska Public Power District adds the peaks from the cities it serves throughout the state and bases its generating and cost projections on the tally.

"If every town in Nebraska could control its peak load, we could reduce the amount of generating capacity that NPPD would need and still stay with the same amount of energy used," Metz continued.

Both Metz and Schroeder said the Wayne

THIS GRAPH COMPARES electricity consumption in Wayne for three major areas — residential, commercial and college — during the first 10 months of 1981. The index numbers on the left reflect 100,000 kilowatt hours in multiples of 11. Bar 1 represents residential use, Bar 2 represents commercial use, and Bar 3 represents usage at Wayne State College. For instance, commercial electricity consumption for Wayne during the 10-month period was 10,259,797 kilowatt hours. Residential usage was 9,201,880 kilowatt hours. The college used 4,624,160 kilowatt hours.

Officials get city industry overview

Nine members of the Nebraska Department of Economic Development toured Wayne this week as part of a program to update the state on the city's industrial development potential.

The state representatives, including Diane Sheppard of Norfolk, the department's regional representative, were given an industrial prospect's tour of the city, according to Bob Jordan, president of Wayne Industries.

Wayne Industries sponsored the Wednesday afternoon tour and economic development program, which included a slide show review of the city.

THE VISIT came only days before the Wayne Industries board holds its annual meeting, which is scheduled for noon Tuesday at The Windmill Restaurant.

During that meeting, the board will select new directors and elect new officers, according to Jordan, who has served as president for two years.

Jordan said the state economic development personnel were impressed with what they saw in Wayne.

"We conducted the tour and presentation just as if the state reps were industrial prospects," Jordan explained.

"They are going to provide us with a synopsis — a critique, really — of the visit," he continued. "They will offer some suggestions on how we can improve our presentation for future industrial prospects."

ACCORDING TO Jordan, the "windshead tour" gave the state reps a half-hour view of the town's industrial sites, business district and residential areas.

Jordan said that during a slide-show presentation at the Chamber of Commerce office, the state reps were given "a great deal" of information about Wayne.

"We presented them with a review of the city's facilities, including the hospital, schools, new housing developments and the college," Jordan explained.

He said the city's social, religious and recreational facilities also were discussed. In addition, he said, facts were presented about Wayne work force and tax base.

WEDNESDAY'S TOUR was conducted by Jordan, Roger Toomey, executive secretary of Wayne Industries, Phil Kloster, city administrator, and Keith Mosley, manager of Peoples Natural Gas and a Wayne Industries board member.

Jordan said board members and the state reps discussed the possibility of "constructing a spec building" to attract industry.

He said the proposal would involve buying land and putting up a building on an industrial site.

Feedback from the state reps was positive, according to Jordan, who said they expressed satisfaction with the city's slide presentation.

"THEY WERE impressed with the city's downtown business district and the general appearance of Wayne," Jordan said, noting that four of the nine visitors were new employees of the Nebraska Department of Economic Development.

It was the department's first official industrial development visit to Wayne in about four years, according to Jordan.

Jordan explained that the department "brings industrial development prospects to Wayne."

Wayne Industries develops its own prospects, too, according to Jordan.

"It's very worthwhile because the department representatives become more familiar with Wayne and have a good feeling about the community," he said.

police report

No serious injuries were reported in four motor-vehicle accidents investigated by the Wayne Police Department this week.

On Tuesday, police investigated three low-car accidents on icy streets.

At 13 a.m. police were called to the scene of a two-car accident between Lyvette Elstoft, Wayne, and Keith Zimmerman, also of Wayne.

The Elstoft car, a 1977 Ford, struck the rear end of the Zimmerman car, a 1980 Chevrolet, at the intersection of Main Street and Seventh Street, according to police.

POLICE SAID the southbound Zimmerman car had stopped for the traffic on Main Street when it was struck by the Elstoft car, which was unable to stop on the icy street surface.

At 10:12 a.m. police investigated a two-car accident in the 500 Block of Lincoln Street.

A 1979 Chrysler driven by Mary Joan Reine, Waltham, S.D., slid into the right rear of a parked car owned by Paul Siverts, Wayne.

According to police, the northbound Reine car was attempting to pull to the right when it slid on an oncoming car when it slid on, and struck the parked Siverts car.

AND, AT 5:37, police investigated a two-car accident in the 100 Block of 10th Street west between Jerome L. Pribil, O'Neill, and Jill M. Thompkins, Wayne.

According to police, the Pribil car, a 1980 Ford, was going north in the alley when the driver lost control on ice and snow.

The car slid into the path of the Thompkins car, a 1973 Chevrolet, as it was traveling east on 10th Street west.

On Wednesday, police investigated a car-truck accident between Patrick M. Gross, Wayne, and a city-owned truck driven by Wayne E. Peck, Wayne.

ACCORDING to police, the Gross car, a 1984 Chevrolet, was coming off the driveway behind the city light plant about 4:10 p.m. when it collided with the 1974 GMC truck.

Police said the view was blocked for both drivers by the city Street Department building.

With the street surface icy and the vehicles unable to stop, the Gross car slid into the left side of the city truck, police said.

On Tuesday, police investigated a report of a stolen fire extinguisher from the Willife Mortuary.

And on Friday, police received a complaint from Sherman Street residents regarding snowmobiles crossing city laws.

Q. I am, according to all the facts and figures I've read, what must be considered an average, middle-income wage-earner. As such, what is the best tax shelter I could take advantage of? A. One of the best - and frequently overlooked - tax shelters for the "average, middle-income wage-earner" is an individual Retirement Account or IRA. And, with the passage of the new tax law, the IRA is even more attractive. The Economic Recovery Act - or tax law - which became effective January 1, 1982 will allow you to contribute a maximum of $2,000 (or $2,250 for couples) to an IRA. The new law also permits you to invest in an IRA even if you now participate in a company-administered retirement plan. Contributions to your IRA may be deducted from the current year's taxable income. Your IRA funds will accumulate, tax free, until the funds are withdrawn at age 59 1/2, or at retirement. Come in and we will be glad to assist you in starting an IRA which fulfills the requirements for financial planning... a good tax shelter and an investment in your own future.

Country boy...

Howdy
With the economy being what it is, more people seem to be looking for better investments.
Almost everyone who has $5 left over after paying taxes and bills, is hunting for the perfect investment.
Banks and other financial institutions, including investment experts, have capitalized on the everything from money market certificates to tax shelters.

BUT, THERE'S a scramble to get the little fella's money out of a sock in the back bedroom and into some high return investment scheme.
That's all well and good and only as it should be in a free enterprise system.
However, I've noticed that almost everyone is getting into the act.
It used to be that land was a good investment. A house was another good investment. The right kind of business always was a good investment, too.
Things are changing, though.
You don't have to read too many advertisements, or listen to too many commercials, before you come to understand that investing in almost anything seems to be the byword of the day.

AS A COUNTRY boy, some of the logic behind the so called good investments "escapes" me.
Nevertheless, the sometimes subtle and sometimes not so subtle language in commercials and ads continue to lure the little man into investments that amount to little more than the purchase of necessities.
I am fighting the financial wisdom behind investing in a three for a $1 deal on cans of pork and beans.
And, I'm confused by the prospect of buying detergent as a "sound investment" in household laundry management!

DON'T GET ME wrong. I'm sure there's a handsome payoff in the form of clean clothes.

But the rise of the economy alone brings little cheer to my country boy heart when faced with the invitation to invest in such necessities.
I have enough trouble just buying those things, let alone getting used to considering them as investments.
The only thing that smacks of investment in the deal is the ever increasing price tag.
However, day in and day out, I'm beginning to be faced with the agonizing investment decisions that come with such things as the common cold.

SHOULD I invest in an over-the-counter remedy that cuts symptoms but has no long-haul payoff (cure)?
Or, should I hold onto my money and look for an opportunity to invest more wisely in orange juice, which is not just for breakfast anymore?
I guess I'd really rather just buy what I felt I had to have instead of worrying about it becoming an investment in cold management — particularly since, like inflation, there seems to be no readily available cure.
Investment, to me, somehow connotes a profitable return, in that light, perhaps my money would be better left in the sock beneath my mattress as I put my cold riddled system to bed in hopes of prattling from some rest.
It's so hard to come up with the right answer.

WHEN IT COMES right down to it, I guess I'm too hard pressed putting food on the table, heat in my home and clothes on my back to be able to gracefully accept the "solid investment" aspects of those necessities.
Of course, one man's solid investment is another's foolish purchase.
So, all things considered, I'm re-evaluating my investment portfolio.
I'm going to throw out some bad investments, like beer and pizza, and just start buying things that serve the same purpose without such a high financial risk.
I can buy old fashioned bread and water without having to worry about the long-range personal profitability — real or imagined — in having the a night out on the town, or a treat at home.

CERTAINLY, AS I re-examine my investment portfolio, I'm going to come to the conclusion that living high on the hog has to go.
I'm definitely shifting away from investing in eggs and sausage (on sale, only) once a month, to eggs only.
I've gotten some advice from creditors that indicates I should rearrange my investment portfolio to reflect a shift from hamburger to beans (probably without pork).
And, occasional fresh produce is definitely going out the investment portfolio door in favor of simple, sound commitment to elbow macaroni (no cheese).
Macaroni stays with me a lot longer anyway, it has a stick to your ribs quality that makes Wall Street financial analysts cringe.

BRAND-NAME ANYTHING, my advisors tell me, is out in favor of the generic investments.
(Is there such a thing as a generic interest rate? generic mortgage? generic timepay?)
And, when it comes to clothes, there's simply has got to be an investment shift that will allow for the patching (maintenance) of eight year old shirts and pants, rather than the frivolous purchases I've been moved to make every four years or so.
My investments in entertainment are going to be re-analyzed very carefully.
No more once a year visit to the movie house. No sir. When a movie is over, it's over. Nothing long-range there.

I'M GETTING a low investment, high return library card.
My financial advisors say I'll be a better person for it. It even eliminates the need to purchase books.
Even though the purchase of a book might appear — on the cover of it — to be a long-range investment, it's not so.

It represents a rather high initial investment for a one-time reading.
Of course, there could be some depreciation in there someplace for the dog-eared pages. I'll have to ask about that.
I'll have to remain careful about the penalty for late returns on that investment, though.

I'M ALSO CONVINCED I must take my money out of energy and put it into blankets, long-johns, sweaters, wool socks.
With benefits of a big heating bill severely curtailing my other financial adventures, I've decided to invest more time breaking the ice from the coffee pot each morning.
Another thing that has proven to be a questionable investment, even though it represents one of the few fun things I do, has been long showers.
No more. By far the better way, my financial advisors say, is to invest in short, lukewarm showers.

I'VE BEEN encouraged to change the frequency, since it is a factor that compounds the cost of the investment.
So, under serious consideration is a return to the solid security of the Saturday night bath, or shower. The personal payoff, financial investors insist, is almost immediately noticeable.
I've also decided, for the time being, to invest in a beard rather than the foolhardiness of razor blades.
Beards last longer and the return on the investment, though indirect, certainly is measurable. Actually, the projected profitability of a beard is just a whisker above that of a moustache.

THOSE ARE JUST some of the basic lessons I'm learning from the confusing, media-hyped financial investment world.
Once I get that necessities-of-life investment portfolio together, I should be ready for the big time.
I know, I know. You can't have big time unless you can handle a little time first.
Believe me, I'm working on it.
Catch you next week...

Unicameral votes down limit on bills

The second half of the 87th Legislature opened on Wednesday, Jan. 6 at the State Capitol. This will be the short session, which means that we'll be in Lincoln for 60 legislative days, with the tentative adjournment date sometime in the middle of April. Only the days that we meet in the chamber can be counted as legislative days.
The senators rejected a proposal on the first day that would have limited the number of bills that each senator could introduce. As a result, over 100 new bills were introduced. A large number of those bills this year will undoubtedly focus on fiscal matters.

senator elroy hefner

Gov. Charles Thone addressed the senators on Monday Jan. 11, with his budget message, and has described his recommendations as a "spending diet." He has predicted that this session will be the "Year of the Budget."

I BELIEVE THAT MOST of the Senators will support an austere budget that requires no increase in sales and income tax rates.
Other new bills span topics from banking to farming, and labor unions to unemployment compensation benefits.

Several other issues that will be considered include the question of state control over private religious schools, legislation to halt the spread of farm buying by large corporations, and repeal of the 1976 Sunshine Act, which regulates campaign fund raising and requires officials to disclose the sources of their income.

If the Sunshine Act is repealed, disclosure by public officials would be reported to the Secretary of State and lobbyists would register with the Legislative Clerk's office. Estimated savings of $150,000 per year are envisioned if this change is made.

I WILL AGAIN serve as the chairman of the Miscellaneous Subjects Committee, and the vice-chairman of the Revenue Committee. So I am looking forward to a very busy and interesting session.

A 30-minute recap of legislative issues and events will be televised each evening, Monday through Friday, at 10:30 p.m. by Nebraska Educational Television.

And of course, to serve you better as your representative in the Legislature, I need to hear from you folks on how you stand on the various issues. Your views are always appreciated.

FmHA may be pressuring younger farmers on loans

Loans and grants of $735 million came into rural Nebraska from the Farmers' Home Administration during the government's 1981 fiscal year.

This includes $188 million for operating farms at a time when private credit sources are quite limited. There now is concern about the effect of our severely depressed agricultural economy on these loan programs.

However, I've been informed by Frank Marsh, director of FmHA in Nebraska, that no effort is being made to foreclose or force farmers out of business at this time.

NEVERTHELESS, I am distressed by some recent reports that FmHA will be placing pressure on our agricultural producers, particularly those young farmers who are just beginning their operations, to liquidate their farms.

In meetings with representatives of the Farmers' Home Administration in Washington just a few months ago, I was assured that the agency would not foreclose on those farmers who had some prospect of repaying their FmHA debts.

These recent rumors reflect a direct conflict with the policy which the agency told me it would follow.

Such action by the FmHA would be one more indication of the extreme financial distress which is gripping our agricultural producers, who are suffering from high costs of production and sustained low commodity prices.

congressman doug bereuter

WITH THE RECENT adoption by the Congress of a farm bill which utterly fails to provide a minimum level of price protection to the grain and livestock producers of the Midwest, and which I opposed, the farmer has little prospect of regaining financial solvency if the loan programs which in the past have been provided by FmHA are discontinued.

Clearly, such a course of action would impact most heavily on those farmers who are just starting out. And it would run counter to efforts to support and sustain the traditional family farming system, which the Congress and this administration say they support and which is the backbone of our economic system.

Play ball

Recreational softball has become something of a Midwestern mania. In Wayne, enthusiasm for the sport commands the energy and attention of hundreds — both players and fans — throughout the summer months.
And, each year both enthusiasm for and participation in the sport seem to redouble. This has been happening despite Wayne's woefully inadequate facilities.
Now, it is apparent that through some equally enthusiastic and energetic work on the part of the Wayne County Jaycees, the city has a proposal that could bring about the construction of four softball fields in a complex near the municipal lagoon.
Furthermore, city officials seem to be just as enthusiastic about making the proposal work.
Wayne's mayor and City Council members have shown a sensitive understanding of the situation and appear ready to sit down with the Jaycees to hammer out an agreement that will give birth to the four-field complex.
One of the exciting things about the project is that both the city and the Jaycees obviously have spent a great deal of time studying the proposal and the requirements to bring it about. The spirit of cooperation is apparent. And, the situation demonstrates what can be accomplished when two parties are willing, and eager, to work together for a common good.
If that kind of cooperation continues on the softball complex proposal, there is little doubt the project will succeed.
Certainly, much work remains to be done. And, the Jaycees are willing to shoulder the responsibility for the work and the operation of the complex.
Furthermore, they are quick to point out — as they should — that the complex will not only boost the selection of recreational facilities offered in Wayne, but also could be a big bonus for business.
That means the benefits of the softball complex could have a far-reaching impact on the community — an impact well beyond those who actually plan to use the proposed facilities. The complex is long overdue and worthwhile project.
The Jaycees deserve support in this joint venture with the city.
And, the organization deserves a salute for pursuing the project to this stage, plus encouragement to continue.
Working as a team, the Jaycees have what amounts to a base hit with the proposal. A home run cannot be far away.

Energy legislation

The 1982 energy legislation is not yet completed, but an outline has been put together. The legislation will attempt to take major steps to reach the following goals:

- A. Making energy bills more affordable for middle and low-income people.
  - B. Improving the state's energy efficiency.
  - C. Producing more in-state renewable energy sources.
- In order to do this we will be proposing a bill or bills which will include the following things:
1. A series of technical amendments to clear away bureaucratic road blocks to energy efficiency and renewable sources. These amendments will deal with simplifying property and sales tax exemptions, allowing and encouraging local communities options in conservation building standards, and making sure that the school weatherization program is operating efficiently and fairly.
  2. A series of measures to develop solar and wind energy, including adopting Minnesota's wind energy development program in Nebraska, targeting money to finance solar and wind retrofit for public buildings, and establishing through education, extension services and a consumer hotline, ways for consumers to find reputable solar and wind businesses.
  3. Allocate money to make local governments more energy efficient by expanding school weatherization funds, setting up a loan program for other public buildings, expanding the expertise of audits on public buildings, and set up a loan program for local government energy programs.
  4. Most important in the short run, we want to help low and middle income people survive the energy crisis by eliminating bureaucratic barriers for fuel assistance and crisis intervention programs, and by earmarking money for weatherization.
- We feel that these are not the final solution to the energy crisis, but that they are major steps to Nebraska energy independence.
- By eliminating barriers and promoting energy efficiency and renewable resources, while at the same time helping those who need help in the short run that we can make a difference.
- Project: Energy Independence

New recreation uniforms

Boys and girls competing in recreation basketball will look a little brighter throughout the season. New tops have been purchased for the seventh and eighth grade teams. The boys tops resemble the Wayne High's boys varsity uniforms. They are white with red on blue numbers and blue stripes. The girls' tops are blue and white and will be used for basketball and softball. Recreation director Hank Overin said he wished to thank the City of Wayne and the Community Chest for making it possible for the Recreation Board to purchase the new uniform tops. The old ones have been used for about 20 years, Overin said. The uniforms will be worn for the first time Tuesday when Wayne plays Fremont, weather permitting. Otherwise, they will be worn on Wednesday in a game at Norfolk Catholic. Overin reported that the Rec Board plans to keep the girls seventh and eighth grade teams in action in future years since the Wayne Middle School has no junior high program. Prior to recreation ball, girls competed in intramurals. Overin stated that there is no substitution for competition and added that plans call for Wayne's rec teams to play approximately eight games a year.

WSC Wildcats lose another close game

Wayne State College suffered a blow Friday night when its men's and women's teams both lost Central States intercollegiate Conference games on the road. Pittsburg State (Kan.) edged Wayne State in both games of the doubleheader. In the men's game the Wildcats had two opportunities to win the game but came out on the short end of a 57-61 decision. Trailing 61-62, Wayne State missed a shot with 36 seconds remaining. The loss dropped Wayne to 9-8 overall and 1-2 in conference play. Pittsburg is now 9-5 and 2-1 in the CSC. WSC was scheduled to play at Missouri Southern Saturday. Southern lost to Missouri Western on Friday. Grady Hansen ripped Pittsburg for 76 points and grabbed five rebounds. Brian Platt scored 10 points and had 10 rebounds and Russ Uhing hit nine points and added five rebounds. The Cats were outrebounded 40 to 34 but one of the biggest factors was in the area of steals. Pittsburg stole the ball 11 times compared to only once for Wayne State.

Wayne women lose road battle

Some early foul trouble hurt Wayne State as the Lady Wildcats lost 63-57 to Pittsburg State Friday night. Robbie Lehr, a 6-2 sophomore sat on the bench in foul trouble most of the game. She had four fouls in the first half. With Lehr out of the lineup, Pittsburg's Abingram hit 10 of 18 shots from the field, scored 25 points and pulled down 18 rebounds. The Lady Cats trailed throughout the game but closed in late in the second half. Jackie Schimontz scored 16 points and Patty Carney scored 11 to pace Wayne State. Wayne hit 41 percent of its shots compared to 42 percent for Pittsburg. The Lady Cats connected on 70 percent of their free throws and the hosts hit 50 percent. WSC lost the rebounding battle 36 to 42 and committed 24 turnovers while the hosts committed 22. The loss lowered Wayne's record to 10-7-6 overall and 0-2 in the conference. Pittsburg improved its mark to 11-3 overall. The Lady Cats were scheduled to play at Missouri Southern on Saturday.

IRA

(Individual Retirement Account)
a tax-deferred retirement plan that lets you keep more of your hard earned money.

Even if you are covered by a company pension plan—or Keogh, you can participate in the new version of IRA at Midwest Federal. With all the concern about Social Security, it may be a good time to start a plan that will build security for your retirement years.

Tax-deferred contributions

Deposit as much as $2,000 each year and deduct it from your Federal Income Tax Return. With a working spouse you can, together, deposit up to $4,000. Married couples with one employed worker can deposit up to $2,250.

The interest you earn as well as your contributions is tax deferred until you withdraw at retirement when you will probably be in a lower tax bracket—or as early as 59-1/2 whether you retire or not.

Start with a plan

Most people will choose to make regular, periodic deposits. If you wish, Midwest Federal will automatically transfer monthly deposits from your checking account. (IRA customers qualify for Free Checking). Or, you may choose to make regular deposits on your own. Another option is to make your total deposit in a lump sum. Whichever way you choose, you have until you file your income tax to complete your contribution. But don't delay—the earlier you deposit, the greater your tax-deferred earnings will be.

No fees or commissions

Unlike some IRA plans, there are no fees or commissions to pay in a Midwest Federal Individual Retirement Account. The full amount of your deposit is credited to your tax-deferred IRA account. It stays right here, promoting growth and prosperity in our community.

Insured-safe. Some IRAs are not!

An Individual Retirement account is a long term investment in your future. You want to be absolutely sure the principal and earned interest are there when you retire.

Retirement plans based on Money Market Funds and other speculative investments are not insured by U. S. Government agencies.

An IRA plan with Midwest Federal is insured safe by the FSLIC up to $100,000. That's something to think about.

Come in for details on how you can keep more of your hard earned money for a comfortable and secure retirement.

Industry

"They keep us in mind when industrial prospects approach them for sites in Nebraska," Jordan continued. "There's a lot of towns out there offering things and we must compete with them."

Jordan stressed that industrial promotion is "a community wide project" for Wayne. "We can't talk about the good things in Wayne unless they are here," he said. "The community has to have those things in the first place."

JORDAN ALSO said that Wayne "has shown itself well in the past" and added that he was confident the community would "continue to do so in the future." Part of the community-wide effort includes Wayne Industries membership, according to Jordan.

Membership involves a one time only $50 fee

Task Force

energy usage chart developed by the committee will serve as an energy conservation guide for the Energy Task Force.

"It shows us where we should spend our time and effort," Metz said. "It tells the committee where the energy is going in this town."

THE ENERGY USE chart already has become a rudder for the committee, which recently targeted residential energy conservation as its first major objective.

Metz said that even though the commercial usage is higher, the Energy Task Force's proposal to implement a neighborhood plan is sound.

"More people are affected in the neighborhood plan," he explained. "And, everyone who owns or works in a business has a home somewhere."

Committee members indicated they felt it would be much easier and more effective to have energy conservation carry over into business from the home.

How to retire with $1,048,721.24***

Here's the easy and profitable way to save for retirement... A Columbus Federal IRA plan. You'll have the money to enjoy your retirement years with financial security. But now is the time to get started. Briefly, here's how it works: An IRA (Individual Retirement Account) is a retirement plan for all working people. You can open an IRA account with as little as $10. Your funds can earn money market rates, currently 12.5%, on amounts of $10 or more. Your annual contribution to your IRA is limited to $2000 per individual, $2250 for married couples in which only one spouse is employed or $4000 for couples with both spouses working. And your annual contribution is totally tax deductible, including all earned interest. After age 59 1/2, you can start drawing on your IRA funds. Funds are subject to income tax upon withdrawal. Substantial penalty for early withdrawal.

Start saving for a comfortable worry-free retirement today. Come into one of our offices for complete details.
