Firefighters battled blaze, windchill, equipment failure

Early-morning fire levels rural Wayne home

More than a decade ago Carl Allvin began building his own home on a hill just northwest of Wayne.

Nine years ago this month the Allvin family moved into the two-story wood-frame house that overlooked the rolling farmland Allvin worked as a Wayne County farm boy.

Early Sunday morning, the home, and everything in it burned to the ground.

NO ONE WAS injured in the blaze, which broke out just after midnight Saturday, according to Wayne Fire Chief Dick Korn. The Allvins lost a lifetime of household possessions — clothes, furniture, appliances and family heirlooms.

The family pet, a 16-year old mixed breed dog named Gidget, died in the blaze, unable to escape flames and smoke that engulfed Allvin's hand-built home, a mile north and 2.5 miles west of Wayne.

Wayne's volunteer firefighters fought the blaze, and a bitter wind-chill factor, for several hours after the alarm sounded at 12:42 p.m. Sunday.

FOUR UNITS, two tankers, a pumper and an equipment truck, responded to fight the fire, according to Chief Korn. "Flames were visible on the roof when we arrived," Korn said, explaining that the fire appeared to have started in the basement, pushed out the basement door and climbed the northwest corner of the house to the roof.

Operating with a disabled tanker, firefighters made "very little headway" on the blaze with the first tanker, according to Korn.

Korn said that when the pumper crew took over, the second tanker was emptied and sent back to Wayne for more water.

THEN, EQUIPMENT failure disabled the first tanker at the scene, according to Korn. "When the second tanker returned, if (the house) was beyond saving," Korn said.

Today, all that remains of the house — built with "used lumber" over the course of two or three years, according to Allvin — is the foundation and the charred, metal skeletons of appliances and furniture.

Allvin, a 47-year-old farmer, was not at home when the fire started. He and his wife, Leona, 44, were in Dixon, where the couple owns and operates the Dixon Bar & Grill.

It took Allvin and his wife, traveling in separate vehicles, very little time to cover the miles between Dixon and the home site once they got the fire call from their daughter, Dori.

DORI AND HER boyfriend, Kelly Hass, reported the fire from the home of neighbors (the Dave Slevers farm) after unsuccessfully fighting the basement flames with a hand-held extinguisher, according to Allvin.

The young couple had arrived home within an hour before the fire started, Allvin explained.

Abandoning their fire-extinguisher fight with the blaze, they drove to the Slevers farm home and called the fire department for help, according to Allvin.

When Allvin and his wife got the telephone call from Dori, the Dixon Bar & Grill was serving last call, the life-long Wayne resident said.

JUST DOWN THE hill to the west, in the farmhouse where Allvin was born and raised, another daughter, Diane, was waking her husband, Wayne city patrolman Robert Treacle.

"She came in screaming that dad's house is burning down," Treacle said.

"I calmed her down, threw on my coat and headed up the road," said Treacle, who rents the original family farmstead home from his father in law.

"At one point, I thought they had it out," Treacle said, explaining that the flames retreated soon after the first tanker stalled.

"By the time the second tanker returned with the second load (of water), the house was in the basement," Treacle continued.

TREACLE SAID that smoke, which was carried almost straight south by a brisk north wind, was so thick it was difficult to tell exactly where the flames were.

SNOW SIFTS OVER the twisted rubble left in the wake of a Sunday morning fire that destroyed the Carl Allvin family home northwest of Wayne.

Winside man bids for County Board

A former Village of Winside board member is seeking election to the Wayne County Board of Commissioners.

Wednesday morning, Floyd C. Burt, Winside, filed for a spot on the Republican Party ballot in the May 11 primary election.

Burt, who recently resigned his village board post over a water controversy, filed for the county's Third District seat held by Gerald Pospisil, rural Wayne.

Pospisil, a first-term Republican elected in 1978, just completed a stint as county board chairman.

Burt held the Third District seat on the county board before Pospisil won election. Pospisil has not filed for reelection.

$123,000 FmHA loan sparks Roosevelt Park area project

Region IV plans new group home in Wayne

Region IV Services in Wayne, which serves Wayne and Thurston counties, may have a new residential group home ready for occupancy by late August if plans go according to schedule.

Val Wagner, Region IV area director from Wayne, said a $123,000 loan has been approved by the Farmers Home Administration for the new facility, which will house eight developmentally disabled men.

The new residential home will be located on land purchased in Roosevelt Park, on South Windom Street.

WAGNER SAID bids for the 2,734-square-foot facility were opened Jan. 14 and are still in the possession of the architect, Charles Boardside Inc. of Norfolk. A meeting of the 20-county governing board of Region IV is scheduled this week to secure a bid.

Wagner said she hopes construction can begin as soon as the ground thaws and that the men will be able to move in by late August.

PLANS FOR the new facility have been formulating for some time.

Wagner first presented the idea to Region IV's local advisory committee over a year ago. The seven-member committee includes county commissioners, parents, local consumers, and a client of Region IV.

Wagner prepared a cost study for the committee showing expenditures during the past five years on a home Region IV is currently renting to house the eight male clients.

WAGNER SAID the home which Region IV now rents, located at 408 Pearl St., is an old, two-story structure which severely hampers the mobility of the clients.

"The home is very old," said Wagner, "with laundry facilities located in the basement, and bedrooms on the second floor."

Wagner said some of the clients who have unsteady balance have taken falls, although injuries so far have not been severe.

"The house also is very expensive to maintain," said Wagner, "adding heating costs are especially high."

"The chances of passing the inspection get slimmer and slimmer every year," added Wagner, who has been with Region IV for five years, the past one and a half years in the Wayne office.

"I just doesn't pay to maintain such an old home when we are renting," she stated.

WAGNER SAID the cost study of the rented home which she presented to the local advisory committee was an "eye opener."

"We were looking at quite a bit of money," said Wagner, and the committee realized what an impractical investment renting the house was.

"For the amount of rent Region IV charges, clients could secure a very nice, barrier-free apartment in Wayne," said Wagner, "instead of residing in such a restricted facility."

WAGNER SAID a second cost study which she presented to the committee showed Region IV could afford to build a new home for its eight male clients in Wayne.

The loan will be repaid with rent money Region IV receives from its clients, according to Wagner.

ARCHITECT'S drawings indicate the main floor of the new residential home will be allocated to four bedrooms to house

City planners approve spot zoning of sorority house

The Wayne City Planning Commission has approved a precedent-setting spot-zoning resolution that could give a Wayne State College sorority house after-the-fact zoning compliance.

During its regular monthly meeting Monday night at City Hall, the commission approved a rezoning request submitted by Kappa Delta Gamma Inc., a WSC sorority housed at 1202 Main Street.

The spot-zoning recommendation, which must survive City Council scrutiny, was passed unanimously after a month-long wait.

THE SORORITY'S initial request, presented during the commission's January meeting, was tabled because no Kappa Delta Gamma representative appeared at the meeting to answer a number of questions raised by city residents and planners.

The sorority, which occupies the house, bought the Main Street property recently after nearly a year of negotiations.

During a recent fire marshal inspection, Phil Kloster, city administrator, informed the Kappa Delta Gamma members that the property was incorrectly zoned for sorority usage.

A ZONING-CHANGE request from neighborhood commercial (B-3) to multi-family residential (R-3) was then initiated by the sorority and brought before the commission.

Monday night, commissioners discussed the request with two Kappa Delta Gamma sponsors — Linda Teach and Joann Bondhus. Several sorority members also attended the session.

One major concern expressed by commissioners involved circumstances surrounding the purchase of the Main Street property, particularly in regard to the existing zoning.

"We did not even think about zoning," Teach told the commission, during an explanation of the sorority's efforts to purchase the property.

SHE SAID the matter was never mentioned by lawyers and the loan company involved in the negotiations.

"It had been a fraternity house about five years back," continued Teach, a former physical education instructor at WSC. "I guess we didn't even think about it at the time. We're not even looking into it."

had not been involved in the purchase and did not know the details discussed during negotiations.

"I guess there was some misunderstanding all the way around," Teach said.

AFTER SEVERAL minutes of discussion involving property classifications and usage under city zoning regulations, the commission unanimously passed a resolution recommending the zoning change.

The commission has no authority to approve the zoning change, only the power to recommend the change to the City Council.

The Council is expected to take the matter under consideration during its regular meeting Tuesday, according to Kloster.

During the discussion, however, several commissioners wondered why the property had not been grandfathered into the city regulations since several similar cases had received that kind of attention.

At one point Dick Keldel, commission member, said that "it looked like a matter of semantics."

No one disagreed. Kloster did say that "no doubt many homes in the city" are in violation of zoning.

Tony Netherland, a WSC associate professor of applied science and long-time commission member, told the planners there has always been "a need along the perimeter of the campus for high-density housing."

COMMISSIONERS ALSO briefly discussed parking and snow removal problems with the sorority representatives.

Several neighbors had expressed concern about both during the January session.

The upshot of Monday night's discussion was that existing city ordinances adequately cover both matters.

Businessman joins commission

A 46-year-old Wayne businessman has joined the City Planning Commission.

George Phelps, a financial planner with Investors Diversified Services (IDS), attended his first meeting of the commission Monday night.

The Glenwood, Iowa, native was appointed to the commission last month to replace Sidney Hillier, a Wayne chiropractor, who resigned for personal and business reasons.

PHELPS, A 1952 graduate of Glenwood High School, Glenwood, Iowa, has been a Wayne resident and businessman since November of 1968, when he moved here to work for IDS.

He opened his own IDS office at 416 Main Street nearly three years ago.

PNG manager sees competitive edge with decontrol

Natural gas, which is scheduled for total price deregulation by 1985, is expected to be on a parity with fuel oil costs by that date. "It will probably seek its own level after that," explained Keith Mosley, manager of Peoples Natural Gas in Wayne.

Mosley, who spoke to members of the Wayne Kiwanis Club during a Monday noon luncheon at the Black Knight Restaurant, explained that the gradual deregulation of natural gas has already sparked renewed investment and exploration.

"NATURAL GAS has been an artificially priced bargain," Mosley, a 14 year Wayne resident, told Kiwanians only days after many city residents received their January heating bill.

Mosley said that, under the phased deregulation plan, he expected natural gas prices to continue increasing by as much as 15 to 20 percent per year until 1985.

"That provides a progressive price increase, rather than letting it all go at one time," said Mosley, who traced the highlights of regulation and deregulation in natural gas supplies.

MOSLEY TOLD Kiwanians that in 1955 the Federal Power Commission "regulated natural gas at the well head." He said that action kept natural gas rates low, while prices on other forms of energy were allowed to rise with the strength of free-market demands.

"Natural gas became a premium fuel after regulation," Mosley said.

"It was such a bargain that the price discouraged producers from seeking new sources," the manager explained.

Noting that regulation was being phased out, Mosley said the impact is already being felt through the increased availability of natural gas.

"I KNOW IT (the phased price increases under deregulation) will be pretty traumatic for people," Mosley continued. He noted that the Reagan administration had proposed immediate deregulation. This week, the administration backed away from its immediate deregulation proposal.

"We don't want that," Mosley said. "In fact, Peoples Natural Gas is on record as not in favor of immediate deregulation because of the sharp increase it would pass along to customers."

He indicated the company was satisfied with the phased in deregulation program. "We know there are people who can't pay their bill today," Mosley continued.

HE SAID THAT Peoples Natural Gas encouraged those having trouble with their heating bills to explore the various government programs that offer assistance.

A few years ago, we didn't have gas," Mosley said. "But there's more drilling in the field today."

The natural gas company manager reminded Kiwanians that there was a time when Peoples had to turn down customers because the supply wasn't there.

"It's a different story today," he added. "I've got gas I thought I'd never see again."

Mosley said the time is coming when natural gas would be competing in the marketplace free of regulation.

"WE CAN'T CONTINUE to sit back and watch the game going on," he said. "We're not as soft shoe as we used to be."

"We've been saying we're sorry to the consumers for providing them with a premium fuel at an extremely low cost," Mosley said. "There's been a lot of finger pointing in the increased cost of energy."

For instance, he said, the consumer blames the company, the company blames the supplier and the supplier blames the government.

"Maybe we could point at all of us as being energy hogs," he said. "We've squandered it."

NOTING THAT Peoples Natural Gas has signed up some 11,000 customers throughout its divisions during 1981, Mosley said gas revenues actually decreased during the year.

He said a number of factors were responsible, including increased energy conservation.

Mosley also mentioned that alternatives, such as solar energy and woodburning, had cut into natural gas usage. "We've got to realize that we're not the only fish in the barrel," he said.

He said that natural gas prices to residential customers had risen about 28 percent in the last 12 months.

MOSLEY SAID that as natural gas prices are rising, it is forcing the company to change its marketing approach.

Long among the cheapest forms of energy, the price rises have brought natural gas closer to parity with other fuels.

"We're going to be in the same position (as other fuel suppliers)," Mosley said. "We're going to be out selling natural gas."

He said Peoples Natural Gas is "not doing business as usual," but is actively selling the product where the low price sold it before.

"We'll be out there scratching," Mosley said, reminding Kiwanians that when he joined the company he "sold natural gas."

Car-pedestrian mishap injures Wayne student

A Wayne Middle School sixth grader escaped serious injury Monday afternoon when struck by a car as she stepped off the curb on Douglas Street near the Sixth Street west intersection.

In fact, 11-year old Julie Scott, the daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. John Scott, Wayne, was in class Tuesday morning after the 3:50 p.m. Monday car-pedestrian accident.

According to the Wayne Police Department, Julie was on the way home from school Monday when she stepped into the street and was struck by a southbound 1975 Mercury driven by Victoria Pick of Wayne.

POLICE SAID the Pick car was unable to stop due to the icy street surface.

According to police, Julie was watching a northbound school bus approaching from her right at the time of the accident.

The Pick car was on her left.

correction

The case of two Gary Millers has been untagged by Wayne County Court officers.

It all started when the Nebraska State Savings & Loan Association of O'Neill filed in a civil action in Wayne County Court seeking $1,875.19 from a Gary Miller of Wayne and Pam Orsborn, unknown address.

The judgment is being sought in connection with a dishonored check drawn on First National Bank of Maryland that was used in payment of a note in November.

According to court officers, Miller's last known address was Wayne. Court officers, as a matter of course, checked several city listings for Miller, including the college's student directory.

police report

Wayne motorists have continued to add to an already lengthy list of fender bender motor vehicle accidents.

After investigating a rash of fender benders last week, police have logged reports on seven similar collisions since Sunday.

Most of the accidents have involved loss of control or inability to stop on icy streets.

POLICE CHIEF Vern Fairchild said the only way to solve the thing is to get people to get that big foot off the gas pedal while driving on icy city streets.

He said the sand and gravel spread on icy streets, particularly at intersections, doesn't give motorists the control they need to prevent accidents.

Often the sand or gravel spread on the ice reacts more like tiny marbles beneath car and pickup tires, he said.

Fairchild said that kind of marble action, when combined with speed that exceeds the city street conditions, has the accident rate on the increase in Wayne.

AT 12:30 P.M., Sunday police were called to the scene of a two vehicle accident in the 200 Block of Lincoln Street.

According to police a 1980 Mercury driven by Delores Stollberg, Wayne, collided with a parked 1968 Chevrolet pickup owned by Ronald Brown, Wayne.

The Stollberg car was northbound on Lincoln when the driver lost control on icy streets and struck the pickup, which was parked on the west side of Lincoln, police said.

ON MONDAY, police investigated a car pickup accident in the parking lot of Columbus Federal Savings & Loan Association.

According to police, at 7:30 p.m., a 1972 Oldsmobile, driven by Robert M. Auker, Wayne, struck the right rear of a parked 1976 Ford pickup, owned by Emil Vahlkamp, Wayne.

Police said the Auker car was attempting to drive out of the SBL's parking lot when the accident occurred.

ALSO ON MONDAY, police were called to the scene of a two car accident at the intersection of Eleventh and Pearl streets.

According to police, a 1979 Ford, driven by Jack Middendorf, Wayne, collided with a 1973 Chevrolet, driven by Joe Lowe, Wayne.

Police said the Lowe car was northbound on Pearl Street and the Middendorf car was westbound on Eleventh Street when the 5:13 p.m. accident occurred.

Neither vehicle was able to stop due to ice street conditions, police said.

MOMENTS LATER, police investigated a two vehicle accident at the intersection of Windom and Seventh streets.

According to police, a 1977 IHC Scout driven by Gary Fletcher, Wayne, collided with a 1980 IHC Scout, driven by Roy D. Dickey, Laurel.

Police said the Dickey vehicle was eastbound on Seventh Street and the Fletcher vehicle was southbound on Windom when the 5:27 p.m. accident occurred.

The Fletcher vehicle slid through the stop sign colliding with the Dickey vehicle, police said. Fletcher said icy streets prevented him from stopping his vehicle.

POLICE ALSO investigated a minor collision between two vehicles in the 100 Block of Ninth Street west at 8:36 p.m. Monday.

Police said a vehicle driven by Bill Snodgrass collided with a parked car owned by Mardelle Brudigan. Damage was slight and no late accident report was filed.

At 8:16 a.m. Tuesday, police were called to the scene of a two vehicle accident at the intersection of Logan and Fourth streets.

According to police, a 1957 Chevrolet El Camino, driven by Mark E. Johnson, Wayne, collided with a 1981 Chevrolet pickup, driven by Herbert Perry, Wayne.

POLICE SAID the Johnson vehicle was southbound on Logan Street and the Perry vehicle was northbound on Fourth Street.

Perry told police he slowed for the stop sign, but did not see the Johnson vehicle as he started making a right turn onto Logan, where the vehicles collided.

WSC named Nebraska State Depository

The U.S. Conn Library on the campus of Wayne State College will receive the first entries into its new Nebraska State Depository of government documents on Friday, Feb. 5, according to WSC's Carol Singer, government documents coordinator.

Vern Buis of the Nebraska Library Commission will hand deliver the first documents to WSC Vice President Dr. Ed Elliott in the Conn Library on Feb. 5.

A formal ribbon cutting ceremony will begin at 10 a.m. on the lower level of Conn Library, with refreshment provided by the Wayne Chamber of Commerce.

The Chamber will be holding its regular Friday morning "Chamber Coffee" in honor of the event.

ACCORDING to Singer, the Conn Library will receive, at no cost to the College, copies of all documents which have been published by the state government.

As a money saving measure, the approximately 200 documents the library will receive monthly will be on microfiche.

Wayne State College becomes one of only 12 Nebraska libraries in the state depository system. Previously, Northeast Nebraska had to travel to Columbus to utilize the nearest depository collection.

OTHER benefits of being named to the system include free acquisition of the government documents, which the library previously had to purchase, an increase of an estimated 2,400 documents to the library each year, and quicker access to questions on state affairs.

Libraries designated as part of the Nebraska State Depository system are required to allow Nebraska citizens to use the collection during regular library hours.

The library must provide reference service for the collection, and the library must own equipment to view the documents, and to make proper copies of the documents.

A SAMPLING of titles of a few of the documents, provided by Singer, include: "Know Nebraska Tours 1982," "Alcoholism in Our Society," and "Nebraska's Economic Performance 1979-80."

For information about the Nebraska Depository system or the government documents to be found at Cone Library, contact Government Document Coordinator Carol Singer at Wayne State College, Wayne NE, 68787, or call (402) 475-2200, ext. 419.

Prize-winning artist exhibiting drawings in WSC art gallery

An exhibition of drawings and monotypes by prize-winning artist Ray E. George will be on display at Wayne State College throughout February.

The exhibit can be viewed on weekdays from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. from Feb. 1 to Feb. 26 in the Nordstrand Visual Arts Gallery of the Peterson Fine Arts building on the WSC campus.

GEORGE is a native of Iowa and is currently an art professor at Illinois State University. Other teaching assignments for George have included the University of Nebraska, Indiana University, and the University of Northern Iowa.

GEORGE has taken part in dozens of competitive art shows and has showcased his works at dozens of galleries and universities across the nation as well as overseas.

His works are included in the Library of Congress collection in Washington, D.C., and the Smithsonian Institution, also in Washington.

The exhibition is open to the public, free of charge.

February CLEP exams offered at college

A program that enables people to earn college credits by examination will be offered Feb. 10 at Wayne State College.

The College Level Examination Program (CLEP) offers the opportunity to save time and money in pursuing a college education.

Students wishing to participate must register on or before Feb. 8.

ANYONE can take CLEP exams and submit scores to one or more of 2,500 participating institutions.

To receive college credit at WSC, students must either be currently enrolled or have met WSC admission requirements.

Students can get a good overview of the areas they select to take a CLEP exam on by studying a related textbook, which can often be found in local public libraries.

If the local library does not have the particular book, it can be requested through an inter-library loan or at WSC's Conn Library.

CREDIT received for CLEP is entered on a student's record without a grade, thereby not affecting grade point averages.

A Japanese lesson

THIRD GRADE YOUNGSTERS of Wayne's West Elementary School last month concluded a health unit on good nutrition. Youngsters, students of Mrs. Daa. Larsen and Mrs. Keith Lubberstedt, ended the unit with a Japanese dinner prepared by their teachers. The unit was inspired by a nutrition class taught at Wayne State College last summer and the fact that Mrs. Larsen's sister, Nancy Cox, is living in Japan. Mrs. Cox sent the youngsters several articles from Japan, including tee shirts, magazines, post cards, chopsticks, and a rice paper book. Pictured admiring a vase from Japan is third grader Karmen Pass, a student of Mrs. Larsen's. Mrs. Lubberstedt's third graders, bottom picture, are seated for a traditional Japanese meal. Guest speaker during the meal was Mrs. Becky Wilson, who shared her experiences living in Japan. During the unit, youngsters also wrote letters to Japanese third graders.

Winside hunts fire hydrant hit man

The Wayne County Sheriff's Department and Village of Winside officials are seeking information that may lead to the arrest of a fire hydrant hit man.

According to Marvin Cherry, chairman of the village board of trustees, the hit man turned on three fire hydrants in Winside Friday night.

Hundreds of gallons of water gushed onto city streets during the half-hour deluge.

The water quickly froze, glazing the streets with a thick layer of ice that has made driving and walking hazardous.

Cherry said he responded to the emergency call about midnight Friday.

"We got them shut down within 15 minutes," Cherry said. He said he didn't know how long the hydrants ran before he got the call, but doubted it was very long.

Enough water had surged onto the street to freeze a blanket of ice from Crawford Street, which runs east and west through the village to state Highway 35, southward past the grain elevator on three streets.

The fire hydrants involved were at the corners of Crawford Street and Allen, Roman and Chapin streets.

Several village residents, including a number of older residents, already have fallen on the iced streets, according to Cherry.

One of them, Adolph Rhoiff, suffered a broken hip in a fall on the ice.

Cherry said the village street department has called and rocked in an effort to reduce the traffic and pedestrian hazard.

He said no arrests have been made in the incident, which could involve criminal mischief (a misdemeanor).

Planners

advised him that the multi-family residential zoning would put the house in compliance.

"IT LOOKS LIKE you don't have to move," Glen Ellingson, commission chairman, told the group after the unanimous vote.

Kloster urged the sorority sponsors to have Kappa-Delta Gamma representatives at the coming Council meeting to answer any questions that the group might have regarding the spot-zoning change.

Within minutes after the sorority house vote, commissioners also approved a request to change the zoning on the Valley Squire property from Agricultural (A-1) to highway business (B-1).

The request, made by Mike Stevens of Wayne and Gerald Dolph of Wakefield, was first submitted to the commission during the January meeting.

COMMISSIONERS had tabled the matter to give Stevens and Dolph additional time to consult their attorney and city legal counsel over property use classifications.

Monday night, the two men, who are negotiating for the purchase of the property, renewed their original request for a change from agricultural to highway business.

Stevens explained to the commission that they planned to use the property, which is outside the city limits, for a repair garage.

The land, which is just south of Wayne along state Highway 15, includes the now-closed Valley Squire bar.

STILL UNRESOLVED in the zoning case is whether or not the site is within the federal 100 year flood plain.

Kloster said his research indicated the Valley Squire property was just beyond the flood plain. However, Stevens indicated that the local ASCS office places the property within the flood plain.

Kloster pledged to pursue the matter in an effort to resolve the question.

The flood plain would not prevent highway business use of the property, according to Kloster. However, it would bring some flood plain construction codes into play, he said.

The zoning request was before the commission because property within a two-mile limit of the city is subject to municipal zoning regulations.

THE COMMISSION'S approval of the zoning request made by the partners sends the matter before the City Council for final consideration.

Before adjourning, the commission received a preliminary plat for the proposed Feeders Fletcher Subdivision.

According to Kloster, Gene Fletcher of Feeders is purchasing property owned by the elevator.

The property, which involves less than 10 acres, is along the west side of Windom Street south of the city's garbage compactor.

Under state law, a property division that involves less than 10 acres must be subdivided, according to Kloster.

FLETCHER, WHO appeared at the meeting to explain the purpose of the preliminary plat, said no change in the usage of the land was planned.

In addition, in an effort to clear up an age-old problem with a portion of Windom Street, Fletcher said a 50-foot by 280-foot stretch of land would be deeded to the city.

The strip of land, though not owned by the city, has been used as a roadway for years, Kloster said.

Fletcher's preliminary plat plan has been submitted to the Wayne County Board of Commissioners and the Wayne-Carroll School Board for review, as required by law.

ACCEPTANCE OF the preliminary plat is expected to be considered at the commission's March 2 meeting.

If approved by the commission, the recommendation will be referred to the City Council for final approval, according to Kloster.

Fire

When the flames rekindled, Allvin said he left the scene.

Chief Korn said that once firefighters established that "no one was inside," the crew fought to save the structure — a battle that was lost.

Allvin declined to offer an estimate on the loss. He said the family was undecided about what to do.

The Allvins are staying at the Kenny Gramberg (Warren Dammel) farm home about a mile west of the rubble that's left of the hill overlooking about 240 acres that once was farmed by Carl's father, Ernfrid Allvin.

THE HOME, which featured a basement apartment rented by Hass, was being heated by a woodburning stove, according to Allvin.

He said the house had two heating systems, but that the propane gas fired furnace was not being used.

Neither Allvin nor Chief Korn would speculate on what caused the blaze. Korn said he had not had a chance to talk with Allvin in any detail about the blaze.

The Allvins have sifted and sorted through the charred rubble in search of family items that may have survived the fire.

Allvin found the metal remains of an antique rifle that "grandad used to have."

TWO SAFES WERE in the house, according to Allvin. One of them was built by my dad years ago," he explained.

Papers in that safe were charred. Some of the papers in the other safe were unreadable, he explained, noting that most of the family records were not in the safes.

"I found my daughter's diamond ring," he said. "And, Kelly's class ring."

The two bedroom home, which featured a full basement and an attached two stall garage, was only a few hundred feet from the east west county road.

By Tuesday, snow had sifted over the blackened remains of heat twisted metal that cluttered the concrete-block basement — a gaping hole in a hill where a man of the land had once built on the strength of his dreams.

Three resignations may signal state-prison reform

By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

The recent resignations of Nebraska's penitentiary warden and his two associates could be a sign that things are finally settling down in the state's correctional services divisions.

You may remember that Jerry Bolih last summer resigned, apparently under pressure, as director of the state's corrections system. Investigators and insiders at the time indicated things weren't just right, but not much light was shed on exactly what was wrong in corrections.

Charles Benson stepped in to apparently try to get corrections back on the right track again. Benson had been here only about three weeks when the investigation was launched that led to the recent resignations.

AT ISSUE WERE allegations that unearned overtime pay was being diverted to Warden Robert Parratt and staff member A.V. Nance, who earlier had been ordered by a court to personally pay off a judgment involving an inmate.

Parratt admitted receiving the money, but it was reported he took a lie detector test and was cleared of any involvement in alleged coercion Parratt, however, resigned.

Associate Warden Robert Pease also resigned, but Attorney General Paul Douglas has said Pease was cleared of wrongdoing.

The other top prison official to resign was Associate Warden Eldon Lovell.

Five correctional staff members were suspended without pay from one to three days after the investigation. One of the five resigned instead. Capt. Jerry Wright there also were some realignments on the prison staff as a result of the investigation, done by the State Patrol.

Benson said a state auditor's report showed 434 hours of overtime were paid at the penitentiary without proper documentation. But Benson refused to answer questions, so there still are some uncertainties about what really went on at the pen.

IMAGINE WHAT the state of Nebraska would look like if we saved off the Panhandle. It would somewhat resemble a rectangle, some have gone so far as to suggest a square.

That might sound like an absurd thought, but maybe it's something Nebraskans should think about.

Wyoming Rep. Doug Chamberlain is pushing legislation to let Panhandle residents vote on seceding from Nebraska and joining Wyoming. It's Chamberlain's belief Panhandle residents are disgruntled and mistreated by their state Legislature.

Chamberlain's legislation would put Wyoming on record in favor of taking over Nebraska's Panhandle. In turn, the Nebraska Legislature would be asked to permit referendum so Nebraskans could vote on giving the Panhandle to Wyoming if they did. Congress would have to step in to move the state line.

What do Panhandle residents think of this proposal? And, what do Wyoming residents — even those in the western part of the state — think of the proposed eastward expansion?

STATE SEN. WILLIAM Nichol of Scotts bluff said he's heard people talking about the possibility, but he was unsure whether they were serious or only jesting. At the moment, he said, he sees no advantage to the move.

But Nichol said he would think about it seriously if it reached the Nebraska Legislature. If his constituents wanted a referendum, Nichol said he would support it. But he said he's not sure what they want right now, so he won't commit himself.

Panhandle residents wouldn't be the only ones affected by the proposed secession. The rest of the state would lose a sizeable land mass, income, people, agricultural products and much more. Plus, Nebraska would lose some of its identity.

Maybe Panhandle residents do feel isolated from the rest of their state. But the reverse could be true, too.

IT'S ENTIRELY possible some eastern Nebraskans feel isolated from the Panhandle, which is in a different time zone, grows different crops and has fewer people. But the same situation exists in other large states like Nebraska. State lines could be changed all over the West and Midwest if the isolation argument were the deciding factor.

It's too soon to say whether Chamberlain's proposal will go anywhere. He admits opposition probably will pick up now that the legislation has been unveiled.

Chamberlain and Wyoming residents also must contend with the Nebraska Legislature, the sentiment of the state as a whole and the opinion of the Panhandle in particular. Until more is known about the general feeling on the issue, there's no way of knowing whether Chamberlain can succeed.

But, on the surface, it would seem unlikely that the Panhandle will secede.

Bigfoot's back

Wayne motorists, apparently confident that they have their snow wheels under them, are banging vehicles into each other at an alarming rate.

Fortunately, few have been seriously hurt — so far — in the rash of fender benders that has kept police hopping from one accident to the next for about two weeks.

Ironically, when the season's first snow and ice arrived, the police log reflected fewer accidents by far than is the case at mid winter.

Police Chief Vern Fairchild has expressed a concern that motorists, having driven on the ice and snow for a couple of months now, are overconfident about their winter driving ability.

In addition, the police chief indicated that the sanding of city streets has somehow given motorists the impression that icy intersections are as safe a summer driving conditions.

The result has been a noticeable lack of caution on the part of city motorists and a corresponding increase in the driving speed, despite the fact that city street conditions have gotten worse with the weather.

Simply put, many overconfident motorists are exceeding the speed limit dictated by street conditions only to pay the price of banged up cars and body bruises.

Fairchild is correct when he said the only effective solution is for motorists to "get that big foot off the gas pedal."

The police chief also noted that sand and gravel on the streets may help some in snow conditions, but can create a marble effect on ice.

That's bending a lot of motor vehicle metal at intersections. Apparently motorists are approaching the icy intersections with the idea that the sand or gravel will aid their stopping efforts.

Often, quite the contrary happens. That's bending a lot of motor vehicle metal throughout the city.

Sadly enough, human nature being what it is behind the wheel, many motorists will refuse to heed the need for continued caution on icy streets until someone is seriously hurt or killed.

Furthermore, collisions are not only dangerous to those involved, but quickly create an additional road hazard on the city streets.

It is clear that a renewed effort to match speed to road conditions is already overdue in Wayne.

That means, slow it down.

That also means, sharpen your defensive driving skills.

The groundhog says there'll be six more weeks of winter. Let's hope we all live to see it.

Nebraska's income tax cut needed

Nebraska's personal income tax cuts since 1979 will add up to a 28.7 percent reduction if the budget passed by the 1982 legislature is within the limits I have recommended.

Here's the arithmetic involved in the three phase state tax cuts:

governor charley thone

IN 1979 THE state personal income tax rate was 18 percent of the liability for federal personal income taxes. State expenditures were scaled back so that the State Board of Equalization and Assessment, which I serve as chairman, was able to reduce the rate to 15 percent. This left $100 million in the pockets of Nebraskans that would have been taken by the state if the rate hadn't been cut.

The difference between 18 and 15 is 3. Dividing 3 by 18 equals a 16.6 percent reduction that has been in effect for the past two years.

Nebraska has its state personal income tax as a percentage of liability for federal income tax. Because the federal personal income tax has now been lowered 5 percent, the amount Nebraska is currently collecting with its 15 percent is 5 percent lower. The effect on the state tax is the same as if the federal tax had stayed the same and the state tax had been lowered 5 percent to 14.25 percent of federal liability.

The difference between 14.25 and 18 is 3.75. Dividing 3.75 by 18 gives a 20.8 percent state personal income tax reduction now in effect.

Device advice

Advertised energy saving devices often have exaggerated claims. Too often the amount of money saved by using the energy saving device is far fetched or not qualified by various housing conditions.

For instance, high claims have been made on the energy saving value of adding siding to a house. But the U.S. Department of Energy has determined that the savings can be as little as 5 percent.

With door-to-door salesmen and the high competition in the siding business, consumers may be misled. A homeowner should think of the actual benefits of siding—improved appearance, no painting required and improved resale value of the house. The energy savings are going to be minimal unless sheet insulation also is added. And that savings will depend on existing insulation.

Another expensive energy-saving feature being promoted is double-pane storm windows. While these windows can reduce heat loss by 50 percent, the actual effect on the whole house is much less—about 5 percent.

We recommend installing a double-pane storm window (three layers of glass) if a window is broken and needs replacing. But it would take a very long time before the energy savings would pay off if you had all your windows replaced with double-pane storm windows. The savings just wouldn't justify the cost.

Other devices which may have exaggerated claims:

- Vent dampers. These are used on furnaces to prevent heat loss through the flue. Studies show savings of only 5 to 8 percent on gas furnaces; little or no savings if your furnace is in an unheated area.
- Ceiling fans. Savings of about 5 percent is realistic if the thermostat is adjusted accordingly. It's of little help in a house with average height (8-foot) ceilings.
- Ceramic insulation. The R value and resistance to heat loss is comparable to other types of insulation.

Remember, the most effective energy saving devices are also the cheapest — caulking, weather stripping, attic insulation and above all, lowering the thermostat.

To the editor

Postal patrons of Wayne, I would like to thank you for your genuine concern. In part, well wishes and confidence you offered to me this past year in my quest for selection to serve as your postmaster. I will always remember the many kindnesses extended to me.

After serving in first line management as assistant postmaster and superintendent of postal operations for 11 years, I felt strongly that I had the necessary qualifications for the logical succession to the position of postmaster. My experience, dedication, loyalty and reasonably good repair with my fellow postal people, along with a decent "track record" in public service.

"Temporary" management vested with review and selection authority, apparently did not envision this as I did. Their selection is a man with less service and experience, but with a longer expectancy in the Postal Service.

It is my intention to continue serving you honorably and sincerely, as I have tried to do since 1955. I intend to be supportive of the new postmaster, (as I have the previous two postmasters, with whom I have served) and my door will be open as always to assist you with postal questions or problems.

My disappointment in the selection is not the selection itself, but the notification process and lack of courtesy shown in its implementation. I am still "old fashioned" enough to believe that loyalty and dedication are to be rewarded in most endeavors, and take personal satisfaction in the regard you Wayne Patrons have shown me.

Thanks again, and I will see you at the Post Office.

To the editor:

This letter is a big thank you to all of the people involved in the Wayne City Street Department.

Many times the work of these people goes by just as another work day.

But as a citizen of Wayne I feel we all owe them a big thank you for the way all streets were opened and snow hauled away.

If you don't think they have done a great job, just check any of the towns and cities around us.

We've got a great group of people here under good leadership.

Again, thanks guys.

If you have a problem or a suggestion about state government, now's the time to contact your state senator. Wayne area residents are represented by two legislators: Sen. Merle Von Minden of Allen and Sen. Elroy Hefner of Coleridge. The toll-free, Unicameral Hotline is 1-800-742-7455. Von Minden's Lincoln telephone number is 471-2716. Hefner's Lincoln telephone number is 472-2022. Letters to the senators need only be addressed to them c/o the State Capitol, Lincoln, NE 68509.

Christian schools issue storms the Unicameral

I hope everyone enjoyed the relief from the storm last week. Although the weather in Lincoln was moderate, the climate inside the legislature was stormy.

It started Monday with a hearing on the Christian school issue. Three bills were introduced this year, each with their own particular method of dealing with the unfortunate situation involving the Christian schools.

The hearing room wasn't large enough to hold all those who came to testify or listen to the proceedings.

IT IS UNCLEAR at this time which bill will be advanced by the Committee but I do feel that the Education Committee recognizes that something should be done and will submit one of the bills to the full legislature for consideration.

Another controversial bill which was heard before the Judiciary Committee last week was LB 691, the Uniform Determination of Death Act. The bill would provide a statutory definition of when death occurs.

Under this bill a person is dead if he has sustained either (1) irreversible cessation of circulatory and respiratory functions, or (2) irreversible cessation of all functions of the entire brain, including the brain stem.

There was a great deal of testimony presented on both sides of the bill. I don't believe that this is a subject to be taken lightly. As of last week, the Committee had not decided what action they would take on the bill.

senator merle von minden

devices which are used to prevent law enforcement officials from accurately determining the speed of a motorist's vehicle. Once it passes this hurdle, all it needs is the signature of the Governor to become law.

The legislature defeated a resolution last Thursday which would have called on the Judiciary Committee to initiate an investigation into the recent problems at the State Penitentiary.

I voted to defeat the resolution because I feel that Charles Benson, Director of Correctional Services, has been doing an excellent job of raising the standards of our Correctional Services.

HIS INVESTIGATION into the problems of the Penitentiary has already led to the resignations of the Warden and other top officials there. Conducting another investigation would only be a waste of our tax dollars.

I would also like to inform everyone of the upcoming performance by the Sioux City Abu Bekr Shrine Chanters. They are scheduled to sing from 10:30 to noon, Feb. 18, in the legislative chamber. I'm sure they will do an outstanding job. All are welcome to come and listen.

I am pleased with the response I have received so far on the ADC bill I introduced, LB 684. If you have an opinion on the bill, please let me know by sending in the questionnaire from last week's paper or call my office.

I WAS SUCCESSFUL in getting that Alokad bill, LB 681 moved up to Monday, Feb. 1, on the agenda. This will allow the full legislature to act upon it right away. With Alokad's racing season rapidly approaching, it is important that we move the bill along as quickly as we can.

LB 32, a bill I cosponsored last year, has been advanced to Final Reading. This bill would prohibit the use of radar jamming

WINTER CARE OF HOUSE PLANTS

House plants require special care during the winter months because most homes are operated for the convenience of people. They are usually too dark, too hot and too dry for many house plants.

There are many symptoms which may indicate plants are not properly suited to the winter indoor environment. Lack of light, for example, will result in pale, small, anemic-looking leaves. The distance between the leaves on the stem will increase and stems will look weak and lanky when light is inadequate. These same symptoms will be even more evident when house temperatures are high.

MOISTURE

Unfavorable moisture conditions will also have effects on plants. Lower leaves that droop, yellow and fall probably indicate too little humidity. If leaf tips brown, improper watering may be the cause.

Plants need moist air with a relative humidity between 40 and 60 percent. Since the air in most homes is usually much drier than this, care must be taken to see that humidifiers in heating systems are kept filled with water. The evaporation of one gallon of water each day per room should satisfy plants needs.

Spraying plants once a week will not only help maintain humidity, but will keep the plants clean and help control insects. The best time to spray is early in the day so plants will dry before nightfall.

There is no general rule that can be followed for watering, but there are several guides which may be helpful. The more active the growth of the plant, the more water it will need. Some plants like ferns and hydrangeas require more water than succulents and cacti, which grow best when the soil dries out fairly well between waterings.

Plants in large pots require less frequent watering than plants in small pots. Two simple tests can help tell when plants need water. Press a dry fingertip on the top of the soil and if soil particles adhere and the surface is resilient, there may be no need for watering. If a toothpick thrust into the soil comes out clean, water is probably needed.

One danger of daily light watering is that the top of the soil may remain moist while the body of the soil gradually dries out. Alternate watering from below will avoid this danger. To be on the safe side use water at room temperature. When watering from the bottom, never allow the pot to stand in deep water for more than an hour.

TREE PRUNING HAS CHANGED

For years foresters, arborists and the general public has believed the proper way to prune a tree was to cut off a branch flush with the trunk and then paint.

Recent research indicates that this is not the best way. The chances of decay and canker are increased when the collar, located at the base of every branch, is cut off. Improper cuts sometimes cause internal cracks that weaken the tree.

When making a cut, place the saw or shears in front of the ridge in the branch crotch, then cut down and out, not flush. To avoid injuring the collar, this also leaves a smaller wound. Don't leave a stub.

Painting the wound is not necessary. In fact, a heavy coat could be harmful. If a coating is requested or desired for appearance, use a very thin coat of a tree wound dressing but never use creosote.

Spring is the poorest time to prune and late winter is the best. When pruning always use sharp tools. Avoid excessive pruning which could cause sunscald.

SWINE HOUSING CAN BE TOO TIGHT

Swine facilities can be too air tight, especially if unvented space heaters are being used, warns Mike Brumm, extension swine specialist and Dave Shelton, extension agricultural engineer.

Unvented heaters are popular and easy to use for heating farrowing houses and nurseries but they do have drawbacks.

Unvented heaters are not 100 percent efficient in converting fuel to heat. Even when properly cleaned and maintained, these heaters produce small amounts of carbon monoxide and other combustion products which are exhausted into the animal zone.

Improper maintenance of a dirty combustion chamber will result in an increase in the concentration of these gases and combustion products. Furthermore, for every gallon of fuel burned, approximately one gallon of water vapor is added to the air. It may be necessary to increase ventilation rates to remove these combustion products, the specialists recommend.

CHECK VENTILATION

Producers using unvented heaters are urged to check all components of their ventilation system to assure that enough air is exchanged in the animal space to remove the added moisture and combustion products.

Failure to provide enough fresh air, which is tempting to do as the temperature plunges can result not only in damp buildings but also in dead pigs. In farrowing houses and gestation areas, high concentrations of carbon monoxide may not kill sow but can result in increased fetal deaths, resulting in abortions or more still born, Brumm and Shelton warn.

In nurseries and farrowing houses, reducing the ventilation rates and conserve fuel not only increases the odors and gases but also increases moisture in the air. This often results in wet pens and wet pigs, which often leads to chilled and/or dead pigs.

For efficient operations, all heating and ventilating systems components must be clean and properly maintained. This is especially important where unvented or other direct combustion heaters are used. Brumm and Shelton concluded.

NRD picks officers, gives award

Lower Elkhorn NRD Board of Directors at their Jan. 28 meeting in Norfolk approved a resolution to reaffirm support of the proposed O'Neill Irrigation Project, which includes the Norden Dam.

A report on the district conservation cost share program revealed that $248,840.19 of NRD funds and $51,277.73 of Nebraska Water Conservation Funds have been paid to landowners in FY 1982. These funds were for dams and terrace systems. Over $67,000 is committed or spent in FY 1982 for dam construction to replace county bridges. The NRD and the County split the cost of these projects.

Directors elected officers for 1982. New officers are Wendell Newcomb—chairman, Melvin Von Seggern—vice chairman, Dennis Newland—secretary, and Thomas Anderson—treasurer.

Q. How much higher will my electrical energy costs be this year?

A. The rates for retail customers of NPPD have increased an average of 18.9%. If you pay your bills to your municipality, a rural cooperative or another power district which is a wholesale customer of NPPD, your rates may vary slightly upward or downward from that figure. Assuming that you use 360 kilowatt hours of electricity per month at NPPD's rates, it would mean an increase of about $7.80 per month during the winter and about $9.70 per month during the summer.

Q. What are the main reasons for this increase?

A. In general, there are two major reasons: NPPD's customers must now begin to repay the borrowed money plus interest to build Gentlemen Generating Station Unit No. 2 near Sutherland and the continuing inflationary spiral that causes higher overall operating costs.

Q. Will a similar increase be necessary next year?

A. Present indications are that rate increases beyond 1982 will be held to much lower levels at least for the next several years. A principal reason is that our forecast of your future power needs indicates no new generation facilities will be required until the late 1980s.

Q. What is being done to control these increases?

A. Prior to setting 1982 rates, NPPD made substantial revisions in planning to eliminate or defer to later years certain construction expenditures. These reductions totalled more than $5,000,000 and were instrumental in lowering the amount of the anticipated increase. In addition, NPPD's overall budget was decreased and wage increases for employees were lowered from what earlier had been considered.

TO NORTHWESTERN BELL CUSTOMERS:

Your telephone service is important, both to you and to me. As your Northwestern Bell manager, I want to give you the best possible telephone service and do everything I can to help hold down rates.

Northwestern Bell is concerned about rising costs and their effect on your telephone rates. We are looking for ways to reduce costs and improve efficiency that will help provide the best possible telephone service to all our customers. With that in mind, we have been taking a close look at services that are not used by everyone.

Most Northwestern Bell customers pay their bill by mail these days. The details of moving or changing your telephone service can usually be handled over the phone now, so the need to visit our office is less than it once was. For those reasons, we have decided to close our PhoneCenter Store here.

The Wayne PhoneCenter Store will close February 1. However, we will maintain a teller window at the same location for those who want to pay their bills in person. The teller window will be open from 10 a.m. - 12 p.m. and from 1 p.m. - 3 p.m., Monday through Friday.

To establish telephone service when you move, or to order changes in existing service, you should call our business office, as shown at left. In getting telephone sets to your location, you have some options — and this is where you may notice the greatest change. First, we will always be willing to send one of our employees to install a telephone for you. For a less expensive option, you may choose to have Northwestern Bell ship your phone to you for a $5 charge and install it yourself. That applies only to standard telephones, Princess and Trimline phones. And if you are moving within the same community, or to another city in Nebraska served by Northwestern Bell, you may take your present phone with you.

Telephone repair service remains as it is described in the front of your telephone directory. Telephone workers will still be on hand to maintain business or residence service and to install or repair telephone equipment.

As always, you can call me at my office if you have special problems or questions concerning the service Northwestern Bell is providing. As Northwestern Bell manager for your community, I'm proud of our record of service to you, and wish to continue to provide the reliable, high-quality telephone service you, as my customer, expect and deserve.
