Manganese level shuts down new city well

Wayne's new $50,000 well has been shut down while the city awaits further state Department of Health Laboratories test results on a trace mineral water problem. "There's absolutely no health danger involved," Phil Kloster told The Wayne Herald Friday. "There's no question that we continue to have pure water for drinking and domestic use," Kloster said. "But there is an odor, taste and discoloration problem."

CITY OFFICIALS shut the new well down last Thursday after state laboratory tests indicated the water contained "significant levels" of a mineral called manganese, according to Kloster. Manganese is a hard, brittle, grayish white metallic chemical element, an oxide of which (manganese dioxide) is a valuable oxidizing agent used chiefly as an alloying agent in steel to give it its toughness.

"We've always had a negligible amount of manganese in the city water," Kloster explained. "But, it's always been below the minimum level and, in fact, so small an amount that it's been difficult to measure."

THE PRESENCE of manganese in measurable quantities, which showed up on state lab reports about two weeks ago, has been causing some concern among residents, according to Kloster.

"We started to get some complaints about 10 days ago," he explained. "The water was beginning to taste and smell bad and was causing some discoloration of clothes during washing."

Kloster said the state mandated weekly water tests "came out negative" until the report that arrived two weeks ago.

The manganese showed up in a very measurable quantity," Kloster continued. "They (state lab officials) told us to take another test. We haven't gotten the results back yet."

DESPITE THAT, Kloster ordered city's new well (No. 8), which came on-line this past fall, shut down until the state lab results arrive.

Meanwhile, Kloster acknowledges the city may have to begin treating that well's water to neutralize the manganese content.

"If that's the case, we'll treat it at the well head," Kloster explained. The new well is just north of Heritage Homes on the northeastern corner of town.

The city has not been treating its water for manganese because until the recent test it passed state Health Department tests without a neutralizer.

Five other city wells remain active, according to Kloster. THE ADMINISTRATOR said he was "reasonably sure" the new well was the culprit in the case.

Complaints have tapered off since the new well shut down last Thursday, he said.

The complaints came from every corner of the city, but particularly from those close to Wayne's largest water mains, Kloster said.

He said the problem seemed to develop in a spotty pattern throughout the community. Generally, residents complained about discoloration of toilet bowls, bathtubs, sinks and clothes.

"Manganese seems to react to bleach," Kloster explained. "The people who use a lot of bleach in their clothes washing seemed to have the problems."

KLOSTER SAID the mineral's reaction to bleach turned the clothes, particularly light-colored material, a brownish color.

Several local stores reportedly received a number of requests for cleansing agents that would remove the stain.

Kloster said that in most cases, the discoloration disappeared after a second washing without bleach. Standard cleansing agents and elbow grease helped the toilet bowls, sinks and bathtubs.

The administrator said the chemical presented no threat to plumbing or water pipes.

"The discoloration is the biggest problem," he added. "The bleach users were getting it the worst."

KLOSTER SAID that theoretically, the new well's water should have been mixing with other water in the system.

"That should have diluted the effect," he added. "Apparently it wasn't mixing enough," he added. "Those close to those big mains got some significant discoloration."

He said the city would have to buy some equipment to neutralize the mineral at the well's pump house.

Kloster estimated the cost of the equipment, which treats the water automatically, would be "around $200." The neutralizer costs about $60 per barrel, he said.

"WE'LL KNOW more when the results are back on that second test," Kloster continued.

"We haven't used that new well all that much, but apparently as we increased the volume from it, we pumped that stuff to the surface."

Kloster said that a number of people were concerned that their water softeners had gone bad. "That's just not the case," he continued, again stressing that city water users faced no health danger.

County Board incumbent is seeking spot on GOP ballot

An incumbent on the Wayne County Board of Commissioners has filed for re-election. Gerald Pospishil, 50, of rural Wayne, filed Thursday for the Republican Party nomination to seek re-election to the his District 3 seat on the County Board.

Commissioner Pospishil is completing the final year of his first four-year term on the board.

ELECTED IN 1978, the lifelong Wayne County resident is a high school graduate, who attended Wayne High School, and an Army veteran of the Korean War. Pospishil, whose 240-acre livestock, corn and bean farm is about 7 miles southwest of Wayne, also is a member of the Region IV Mental Health Board, the County Welfare Board and the County Board of Equalization.

He has served on the County Extension Board, the Rural School Board and the County 4-H Council.

He and his wife, Shirley, are the parents of two children — Steven, 18, and Becky, 11.

POSPISHIL FILED for the seat one day after Floyd Burt of Winside, a former County Board member, filed for the Third District seat as a Democrat.

Floyd, a former Winside trustee, quit the village board during a recent townwide controversy over municipal water supplies.

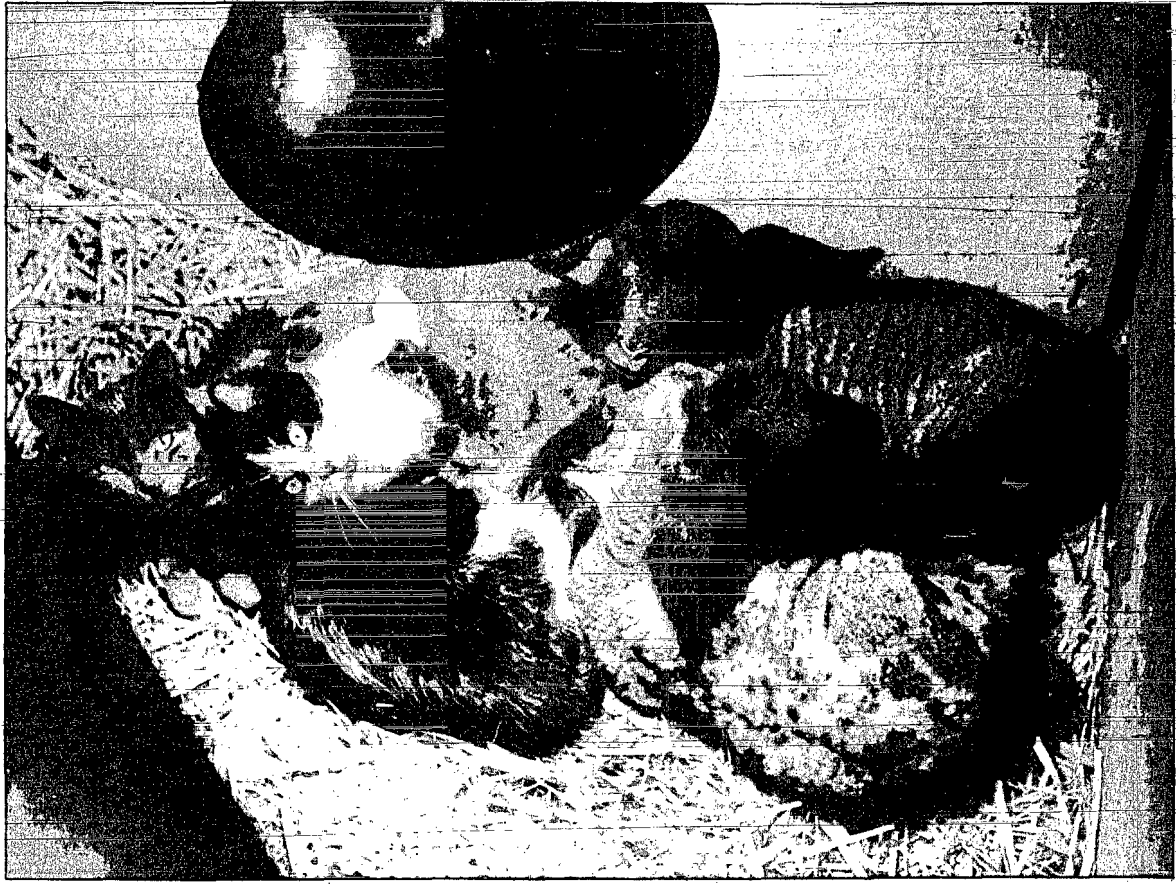

Only two seats on the County Board are up for election this year — District 3 and District 1.

Marlin Beiermann of rural Wayne is the District 1 commissioner. To date, no one has filed for that seat.

DEADLINE FOR incumbents seeking to enter the May 11 primary is Thursday, Feb. 25. All other candidates have until Friday, March 12, to file.

In addition, all candidates of both parties seeking to become county convention delegates are urged to file at the Wayne County Clerk's office by March 12.

A time for twins

WHEN YOU GET cold you have to find someone to curl up with, right? These two farm cats found an escape from the chill of February when they cuddled with twin two-day old lambs at the Delmar and Kathy Luft farm southwest of Wayne. The overhead heat lamp provided enough heat to keep the corner of the pen warm while the February foursome dozed on fresh straw. Ewe just can't beat that kind of togetherness.

Cardholders can take a trip through thousands of government documents

By Randall Howell

It's been said that the dollar doesn't go very far these days.

But, two of them will take you just about as far as anyone would want to go, if you spend them in the right place.

The right place, just might be at Wayne State College's U.S. Conn Library.

FOR $2, WAYNE area residents can purchase a library card that offers lifetime access to the fine print in countless thousands of government documents.

Those documents, funded by the taxpayers, include more than 46,000 produced by the federal government.

After Friday's designation of the library as an official Nebraska Depository, those documents include hundreds of state documents.

And, that's just on-site access.

THE LIBRARY'S computerized information retrieval system reaches well beyond that to thousands of other state documents available through the Nebraska Library Commission.

tion available in all 50 states and Canada.

Under the direction of Carol Singer, the library's government documents coordinator, the department is now receiving, indexing and storing up to 200 state documents per month.

That's in addition to doing the same for the more than 1,000 federal government documents the department receives per month, according to Singer.

THE DEPARTMENT, which is in the lower level of the college library, was dedicated as a state depository during a special ceremony Friday morning that included an official ribbon-cutting and Wayne Chamber of Commerce coffee.

More than 150 persons, including city businessmen and college staff, attended the ceremony, which also featured the hand delivery of the depository's first state documents by Vern Buis of the Nebraska Library Commission.

Dr. Ed Elliott, WSC vice president, received the documents on behalf of the college. Jack Middendorf, WSC director of information services, accepted the chamber's Progress Award on behalf of the library. Robert Ernst, chamber president, presented the award.

SINGER, WHO thanked those attending the dedication ceremonies, told The Wayne Herald that the depository designation puts the library on the map as a regional information center.

"It's an increased service because of our increased resources," said the 28-year-old Singer, who has a masters degree from Indiana University, Bloomington, Ind., and 14 years of experience in library work.

Singer, who has a bachelors degree in French and Russian from Bowling Green State University at Bowling Green, Ohio, said that service is the advantage of having the state depository designation.

A LIBRARY is only as good as its service," she said. "The information in those documents was always available here, but you had to wait several days to get it through the system. Now, the documents are right here."

The documents list is virtually endless, according to Singer.

For instance, according to Singer, information seekers have access to Census publications, statistical reports on almost government study, Congressional hearings reports, government agency pamphlets, curriculum guides, research reports and agricultural yearbooks.

documents in the department during regular library hours, or borrow them for study at home.

"ALL DOCUMENTS are available on a four-week checkout basis," said Singer, who splits her time between the documents department and teaching library science at WSC.

"All we ask is $2 for the lifetime card and that the cardholders fill-out a current address form once a year," she said.

The current address form keeps the library's records updated on the whereabouts of borrowers, according to Singer.

The coordinator said the document department currently has more than 300 cardholders.

According to Singer, the cardholders have access to many documents through the department's inter-library loan system.

THE SYSTEM, which is computerized, allows information seekers to take advantage of a program whereby one library loans documents to another library.

Using video-display computer terminals, the department can search for information on file at another library if it is unavailable.

CAROL SINGER and Jack Middendorf share congratulatory remarks during state depository dedication ceremonies at the U.S. Conn Library Friday on the Wayne State College campus.

A chimney fire at the home of Earl Fuoss, 420 Logan Street was extinguished by the Wayne Volunteer Fire Department within minutes after the alarm sounded at 8:50 p.m. Friday.

Firefighters used a hand held extinguisher to control the blaze, which sent smoke billowing above the two-story wood frame house, and melted much of the snow on the roof.

The fire was contained in the chimney and extinguished. No one was injured.

weekly gleanings

BETTY McConnell of West Point began her new duties as drug and alcohol counselor at West Point Junior-Senior High School last week. McConnell, 25, will serve in a half-time capacity at the school, basing her hours there on times when the most students are available.

MEMBERS of Harrington Centennial, Inc. last week contracted with the Rogers Company of Pittsburgh, Pa., for its services in helping the community stage its Centennial Celebration in 1983. The company's fee for its services will be approximately $12,950. The company will provide a trained celebration coordinator, scenery and costumes for a historical stage show, and a plan of action.

FIRE of undetermined origin completely destroyed the farm home of Mr. and Mrs. Bill West last Sunday evening. The Wausa Volunteer Fire Department was called to the burning home.

located four miles northeast of Wausa, shortly after 10 p.m.

ON A SPLIT vote, members of the Madison city council voted to kill a proposal to lease the city's distribution system to NPPD. NPPD has proposed to lease the distribution system only and to pay the city ten percent of the adjusted gross income in payment.

FIRE department officials and insurance adjusters are estimating a possible loss of $20,000 or more in a fire which struck Foster Manufacturing Company building in southwest Pierce. The fire broke out about 7:30 a.m. Saturday, Jan. 30. A cutting torch being used on a fire leader apparently sparked paper-covered insulation in the ceiling of the large metal building.

Howdy. What's all the bullfeathers about a part of Nebraska making a better handle for Wyoming's pan?

Why, those panhandle people should know they'd be jumping right from the frying pan into the fire, so to speak. You can almost hear the bacon sizzling in the skillet when they talk about it.

But once the fat fries away, what've you got? Some pretty lean pickin's, I'd say.

NOW, FIRST off, you gotta admit that Wyoming would look pretty silly with a panhandle.

Nebraska wouldn't win any Miss Perimeter contests either. Just on that basis alone, it makes you wonder why someone would come up with that kind of a darn fool idea.

I kinda like the shapes of Nebraska and Wyoming. Nebraska has that lean, long look with just enough depth to be reckoned with.

Furthermore, Wyoming is a lot easier to keep track of as a square.

AND, ANYONE who's driven through the Nebraska panhandle, and on into eastern Wyoming, knows full well that the grass doesn't look any greener over there.

In fact, it's pretty near impossible to find the grass at all. And, the sagebrush doesn't look any greener, either.

They may have a few more antelope and an extra prairie dog or two once you get past the western Nebraska line.

That means the hunter's lobby could probably support the idea. But, most of them are already spread pretty thin fighting gun control legislation. Something to think about.

ONE of the things I hear about the idea is that Nebraska panhandle people seem to feel they are being ignored by the state's lawmakers.

Can you believe, for one minute, that that's a problem?

We should only live long enough that the Big Apple appears any of us.

I've spent most of my adult years trying to figure out a way to fire away to have the government ignore me, without much success. I might add.

Here, these panhandle people have been ignored a right along and they ain't smart enough to know it.

And, what makes 'em think Wyoming's lawmakers care about sand and sagebrush? It's not like there's a shortage of either one in Wyoming.

NOW, DON'T get me wrong. I've got nothing against Wyoming. It's a fine state. Some of the nicest people I know used to live there.

And, I've got a brother living right smack dab in the middle of the state, so I have to be a bit careful about what I say. He lives in Casper. I visited that city some time back and watched the population double in 48 hours.

It seems to me, the way it's going, that they're going to need a lot of extra parking someday.

Perhaps some enterprising Wyoming cowboys could pool their oil resources and lease the Nebraska panhandle for a parking lot.

YOU SEE, if they leased it, we wouldn't have to give it up. And, Wyoming wouldn't have the problems that come with ownership.

In addition, the panhandle parking lot would generate some income. Then those western Nebraskans wouldn't have to be panhandling all the time.

Furthermore, you know as well as I do, that once you have something that makes money, the state is right there paying all kinds of attention to you.

So, even though I cannot understand why they'd want it any different, the parking lot arrangement would gain those pro-panhandle panhandlers some mighty quick attention.

AND, IF THINGS didn't work out with those parking lot cowboys in Wyoming, why the panhandlers could shakedown the Black Hills area for a bid on the lease.

Anyone who's tried to park at Mount Rushmore in July knows that there's a critical need for more car space there.

Ironically, the panhandle is so well located that should both Wyoming and South Dakota spurn its burning desire for a divorce, there's always Colorado.

Everyone's moving to Colorado, and they all have two or three cars. If you park all those cars on the mountains, things are going to get messy after awhile.

So, right away, you've got three bidders for parking lot space within an easy day's drive.

OF COURSE, you know. If the Legislature had any getup, n-git, it would strike while the panhandle is hot.

In the spirit of legislative compromise, which those lawmakers don't hesitate to do with my money, they could offer a swap.

We'll take the Little Big Horn Mountains for the whole shootin' match.

Can you imagine what a boost that'd be for Nebraska's tourism industry. It'd add a whole new meaning to "Ski, Nebraska."

And, Wyoming's tourism industry could easily extol the hundreds of miles of sandy beaches around Lake Minatare, Whitney Lake or Oliver Reservoir.

MAYBE WE COULD just swap for one year, with an option to renew.

That would probably save us from getting involved in any long range commitment that may prove to be ill-advised.

You have to always be on guard for that sort of thing. For instance, what if the bottom falls out of oil prices and the price of cattle starts soaring?

Of course, we'd want to protect the panhandle's prerogative to jump from the fire back to the frying pan.

I'm sure those forgiving eastern Nebraskans, particularly those who "Ski Iowa," would welcome the panhandlers back with those powerful open arms.

ONE WAG I KNOW suggested we could hold a national raffle by selling tickets to each of the 50 state legislatures.

Then, on some predetermined day, Gov. Charlie Thone could draw the winning name from the hat and that would be that.

With our luck, the Unicameral would have the lucky number.

Then, we'd be happier because everybody likes to win something, but the panhandlers would still be perturbed.

Maybe we could arrange it so that they'd get eastern Nebraska as a consolation prize.

At least then, we'd have each other.

And, we could take the $50 earned from the raffle and set up a special fund for runaway panhandlers.

OR, WE COULD handle the pan problem another way.

If attention is what they want, let's give it to 'em. Now, we know that attention from the Unicameral isn't going to do them any good.

That's government attention, and it's just plain bad for people, even panhandlers.

Let's give them some personal attention. Let's tell 'em that we love 'em. It might not solve their problem, but they'll feel better.

We could start a bumper sticker campaign. We could hold a statewide contest to come up with just the right words to make them feel wanted.

How about "Please a panhandler" or "Panhandlers are people, too," or "Have you hugged your 'handler today?"

Send me your suggestions.

IT WOULDN'T hurt us to do some good deeds, too. Actions do speak louder than words.

I hear that some of them feel slighted about road maintenance. Well, what does it take to maintain two roads, anyway?

I'm perfectly willing to organize a crew to build both of them into two-way roads and gravel 'em to boot.

I also heard that panhandlers are convinced the state is short-changing them on school financing.

So, what's the harm in teaching a few antelope to read. If that's what it takes, let's do it.

We got some teachers in Omaha and Lincoln who've been working with animals for years.

I'M CONVINCED that if we don't do something fast, the panhandler issue will end up on the back burner.

It's already too hot to handle for the inexperienced politician. Time's running out. Why just the other day a feller was telling me he was out thataway and he overheard this cowboy singing to his cattle.

Yep, singing to them top-eared, ranger rovers just like they was listenin'!

That cowpuncher was singing that old ballad: "G! along il' doggie, for ya know that Wymoin' will be yer new home."

Catch you next week...

Japan trade barriers on meat unfair to farmers

For some time now, I have been very concerned about the plight the farmers of Nebraska and the Great Plains face because of Japanese trade barriers against red meat. This week I wrote to President Reagan about that problem.

The executive branch for years has only talked about this problem, and the legislators have only stalled. Yes, I've sat across the table and heard the Japanese explain the importance and political sensitivity of their small number of meat producers and heard their pleas for greater American patience.

congressman doug bereuter

A SIMILAR SITUATION exists for the Japanese citrus sector.

At a time when we have the largest trade deficit with Japan, a hard line position on this issue by the United States is highly appropriate. For the Nebraskans who are no longer employed in making American television sets in Sioux City or the Goodyear workers in Lincoln who are laid off from their jobs in making fan belts for the shrinking share of automobiles produced in this country, it is hard to understand why free trade doesn't work both ways when we deal with Japan.

I asked the president to do something about this imbalance and simultaneously give a needed boost to the American farmer.

THE AMERICAN dream of homeownership is becoming just that—a dream—to more and more people as rising costs and interest rates force the price of entry into the homebuyers' market higher and higher.

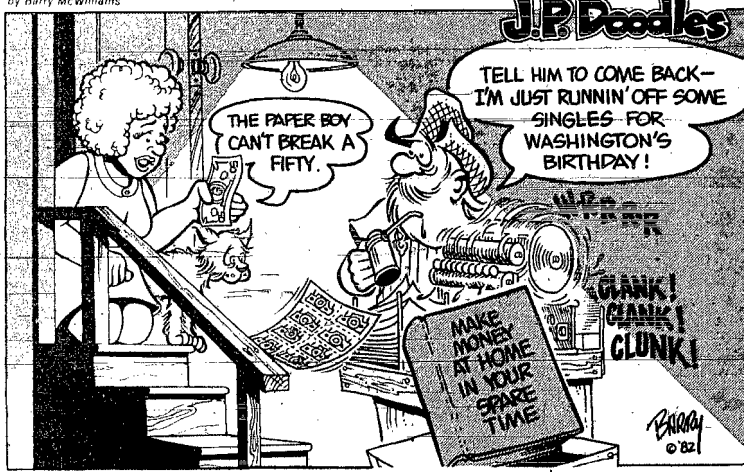

Ten years ago, half the potential first-time homebuyers could afford to purchase a new home; today only about 15 per cent of these people can afford one.

This shift, of course, stems from a variety of developments: the high cost of mortgage financing, the availability of land, the increased number of households, the high standards for subdivision roads and sewer systems, and costly delays associated with local regulatory reviews.

No one claims to have a solution to the problem of high interest rates, land costs or household numbers. But we can influence the costs of the delays caused by regulatory review.

A RECENT government study showed that local regulations add between 20 and 30 per cent to the price of a new home. This is a significant burden and, with cooperation between the public and private sector, a controllable one.

Bill would force state funding

One of the bills that I have introduced this session is LB 842, which would require the state to provide local governments with state dollars wherever the Legislature mandates a new or expanded program that generates greater costs at the local level.

I feel that when the Legislature requires local governments to implement or expand programs, it also should fork over the money to pay for it.

The local governments are under the 7 percent lid, and it just seems to me that we are talking out of both sides of our mouth, to tell them to live with the lid, and then expand those programs or add new ones.

ON A 35-0 VOTE last week the Cancer Registry bill, LB 212, won first-round approval. It is a measure that would set up a system in which all diagnosed cancer cases in Nebraska would be recorded and the information used for research.

Amendments were added that would ensure confidentiality for patients, including a provision that no patient, nor a member of his family, could be contacted without permission from his physician.

There are about 30 states that have already adopted similar systems to require the reporting of each incidence of cancer. Besides showing where "belts" of cancer exist, a registry can aid in evaluating types of treatment.

A BILL that would control the swine disease pseudorabies won first-round approval last week also. LB 38 would set up a program for control of the infectious disease.

Proponents of the bill said that the disease is costly to the swine industry and that attempts should be made to wipe out the disease before it becomes more of a problem.

Opponents of the bill included some rural senators, and one senator who is a hog farmer. He said the cause of the disease is not yet known and because it can be transmitted to hogs from other animals such as dogs and cats, wiping it out may be impossible.

senator elroy hefner

The Nebraska Pork Producers Association is supporting the bill as amended. They feel that we need more control on the movement of diseased herds.

AS A MEMBER of the Revenue Committee, I have spent an interesting week with a great variety of tax-raising revenue bills being heard before our Committee.

During one of the hearings some representatives of Nebraska's business community disagreed with Gov. Charles Thone's proposed corporate income tax increase. The tax hike bill, LB 760, would raise approximately $20.5 million, and would help to eliminate the need to increase sales and personal income taxes this year.

Federal tax changes this year will cut state corporate tax receipts by about $10 million, and revenue from individual income taxes by $40 million.

Talk about trees

Winter may seem to be an inappropriate time to be thinking about trees. However, given the way the wind blows across the Nebraska prairie, winter may be one of the best times of the year to do just that.

In fact, the harsh winter of 1982 could be considered a reminder—particularly to farmers—that shelterbelts are invaluable as natural protection for livestock.

In addition, the trees go a long way toward protecting buildings and farmhomes that would otherwise be exposed to the elements and substantial energy loss.

The Department of Forestry, Fisheries and Wildlife at the Northeast Station, Concord, is again encouraging area rural residents to get in on some kind of tree-planting program this year.

Among the things mentioned in the department's most recent newsletter is the Clarke-McNary tree program.

About 1.2 million tree seedlings still are available for spring planting through the program. Price is a nominal $23 per 100 seedlings, including postage and handling.

That's less than 25 cents per tree. Given the value of trees for woodlots, windbreaks, shelterbelts, wildlife habitat, firewood, energy conservation and environmental beauty, the offer represents one of the best deals of the decade.

Under the Clarke-McNary program, which is primarily designed for windbreaks and Christmas tree lots, tree orders can be placed through local county extension agents, the Soil Conservation Service or the Natural Resources District.

Both urban and rural residents are eligible to participate in the program. Urban residents need to be careful to avoid violating municipal codes when planting trees.

The trees, which are available only in 100-seedling lots, include selections from evergreen, hardwood and shrub varieties. Among them are cedars, junipers, ash, maples, lilacs, chokeberry and plum trees.

Of course, evergreens are the best wind stoppers in winter, the Nebraska Forest Service points out. But almost any well-planned tree planting will afford years of windbreak.

Another tree-planting bonus is that shelterbelts will reduce snow drifting around homes, farmsteads and feedlots.

Northeast Nebraskans are fortunate to be able to participate in the Clarke-McNary program. And, given the immeasurable value of trees, area residents can't afford to ignore the opportunity.

A burning issue

The surge of wood-burning stoves continues and the number of related fires is soaring. Under the guise of saving fuel and money, homeowners are sacrificing fire safety in dwellings across the nation.

Improperly installed wood-burning stoves are causing untold amounts of death and destruction. Stoves should be purchased from a reputable dealer and bear the UL seal. Don't be fooled by installing a cheaper make stove.

Experienced woodburners seldom have problems. Read all the instructions that come with the stove.

Install stove at least 36 inches from a wall and protect the floor with a non-combustible mat that extends at least 18 inches beyond the stove's outer edges.

A protective collar is a must where the stovepipe passes through a wall. Periodic cleaning of stove, pipes and chimney will eliminate a creosote buildup.

Firefighters are urged to warn citizens in their communities not to emphasize energy saving at the expense of fire safety in the home.

Defense keys Bears in win over Trojans

A flurry of six unanswered points midway through the third quarter held off an attempted Wakefield rally and led to a 54-33 Laurel victory Friday night.

The Bears, backed by their trademark pressure defense, wasted no time taking control of the tempo of the game. The Trojans had trouble penetrating Laurel's zone and had to turn to outside shooting.

Meanwhile, the Bears worked the ball inside for some easy layups and built up a 10-point lead by the end of the first quarter. Kelly Robson and Phil Martin each scored six points in the opening period.

The two Clark Division teams matched up well height-wise. Laurel's starting five players are: 5-8, 5-8, 5-9, 6-0 and 6-1.

Wakefield's first five are: 5-6, 5-10, 5-11, 5-11, 6-0.

JUST WHEN it appeared Laurel might run away with the game, Wakefield coach Scott Miller called a timeout and got his team regrouped. He ordered his players to be patient as they worked for a good shot.

The patient play worked to Wakefield's advantage as the Trojans collected several baskets and stayed within 12 points by the end of the first half.

Wakefield started to rally in the third period and pulled back within eight points at 28-20 with 5:21 remaining in the third quarter. Then, Laurel's offense broke loose. By the end of the third period, the hosts had opened up a 38-22 lead.

Needing a near-miracle finish, the Trojans lurched to a full court press in the fourth quarter in hopes of forcing some turnovers. Laurel held on and increased its lead to 21 points. Mark Penlerick's layup with one second remaining brought the final score to 54-33.

"PHIL MARTIN played pretty well and Kelly Robson did a good job," Laurel coach Joel Parks said. "Towards the end of the first half Wakefield did a good job of controlling the tempo. They did a good job of being patient."

Parks said he wasn't comfortable until his team's quick six-point outburst halfway through the third quarter.

The Bears were led by a balanced offense of Martin with 14 points, Robson with 11 and Tim Bloom with 10. Dave Marquardt scored eight. Martin had six rebounds and three steals and Robson made six assists and had three steals. As a team, Laurel stole the ball 19 times.

Mark Starzl led the Trojans with 14 points and Mike Clay was right behind with 12. Those two also led the team in rebounding. Laurel won the junior varsity game 45-26.

Laurel's scoring: Troy Young 10, Ron Hirschman 6, Paul Lofquist 4, Mike Forsberg 4, Mark Herrmann 4, Mark Penlerick 4, Troy Heitman 4, Dave Kardell 2, Mike Jonas 2, Kyle Daberkow 2, Scott

Rath 2, Ben Galvin 1.

Wakefield scoring: Troy Greve 12, Craig DenHerdler 4, Mike Murphy 4, Tom Schwarten 2, Scott Greve 2, Wes Greve 2.

Laurel, 7-8, is scheduled to play at Emerson-Hubbard Tuesday and at Wausau Friday. Wakefield, 5-7, will play at Coleridge Friday.

Wayne pretty much wrapped up the victory in the first half and played reserve players throughout most of the second half.

"It wasn't too close of a contest and everyone played a lot," said Wayne coach Duane Blomenkamp. "It was a nice game for the kids who don't get to play much."

The Blue Devils were led by Kevin Maly with 16 points and Pete Warne with 11. Other scorers: Carl Urriller 6, Steve Peterson 4, Jeff Sharer 4, Kory Leseberg 4, Chris Wieseler 3, Brad Moore 2, Darrin Barner 2.

athlete of the week

Selection of the athlete-of-the-week for the week ending Jan. 30 came down to a choice between two fine Wayne State College athletes. Both did an excellent job for their respective teams.

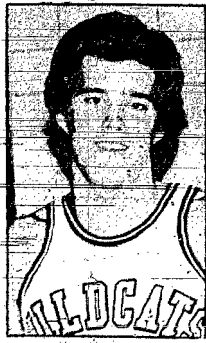

The award goes to Grady Hansen. Grady scored 31 points to lead the Wildcats to a big upset win over nationally ranked Briar Cliff. The Omaha junior also scored 19 points in a tiring effort against Kearney State.

Hansen leads the Central States Intercollegiate Conference in scoring and has been the Wildcats' top offensive threat all year.

The other Wayne State player who was nominated for the award is Robbie Lehr, a 6-2 center for the Lady Wildcats. The Sioux City product scored 48 points in three games and pulled down 45 rebounds. WSC defeated St. Mary's 82-74, lost to Kearney 67-62 and lost to Fort Hays 87-81.

Robbie is leading the district in rebounding all more than 12 per game and is averaging just under 10 points a game.

High school athletes from Allen, Laurel, Wakefield, Wayne and Winside High Schools and college athletes from Wayne State are eligible to be nominated for and selected as

Grady Hansen

"Athlete of the Week." Coaches should send nominations to: Sports Desk, The Wayne Herald, 114 Main Street, Wayne, Neb. 68787.

Bellar's bucket at the buzzer gives Wildcats big CSIC win

Jay Bellar swished a 30 foot jump shot at the buzzer to give Wayne State a 65-63 win over Missouri Southern Friday night before a crowd of 1,100 in Rice Auditorium.

This is the first time in 12 meetings that Wayne has beaten Southern.

Bellar burned Southern with his sharp shooting all night. The 6-2 senior guard canned 10 of 12 shots in the game and hit his last seven in a row—all in the second half.

SOUTHERN HAD an opportunity to take a two or three point lead late in the game. With nine seconds remaining, Bellar fouled Carl Tyler, who had made five of six free throws.

With 30 or 40 Wayne State fans crowded behind the basket—some seated on others' shoulders—Tyler stepped to the line in the one-and-one situation. The fans yelled and waved hands behind the basket hoping to cause a distraction. Tyler's free throw missed and Jim Reinders pulled down the important rebound.

Bellar got the ball in front of the Wayne bench and launched his game winning 30-foot shot with one or two seconds on the clock. Missouri Southern coach Chuck Williams protested to the game officials for an undisclosed reason following the game.

Wayne State, which is the only conference team to beat league-leading Missouri Western this year, now has beaten the league's first and second place teams.

The loss dropped Southern out of second place with a 5-4 conference record and overall record of 13-10. WSC is now 12-13 and 2-7 in CSIC play.

BELLAR FINISHED the game with 20 points, Brad Edwards followed with 16 points and five assists and Grady Hansen scored 10. Al Jones and Hansen each had seven rebounds while Reinders and Bellar each grabbed six. Edwards scored Wayne's first eight points.

Missouri Southern was paced by Ricky Cover with 21 points and nine rebounds, Carl Tyler with 17 points and Willie Sweet Pea Rogers with 10.

The Cats, leading 41-28 with 16:44 remaining, blew a 13-point lead. Southern put together a gradual comeback to gain its only lead of the night at 64-63 on a Jim Wade field

The Lions had a chance to increase their lead with 35 seconds in the game but Virgil Parker missed the front end of a one-and-one.

Wayne State hit 52 percent for the game and Southern made 41 percent of its shots. The Wildcats play at Bellevue College Tuesday and will host Fort Hays and Kearney State on Friday and Saturday respectively.

WSC women's upset bid is jarred

Led by its second-half surge, Missouri Southern slipped ahead of Wayne State and held on for a 67-59 win over the Lady Wildcats Friday night in Rice Auditorium.

Wayne State held a 27-26 edge at the half but Southern regained the lead with 15 minutes remaining in the game. Carol Durkee's basket with 12:03 to play regained the lead for Wayne at 49-39. That was the last time WSC held a lead. The Lady Cats got no closer than six points after that.

However, WSC hit only 28 percent from the field. Wayne turned the ball over 25 times and Southern committed 18 turnovers.

The loss drops Wayne State to 8-13 overall and 0-8 in the CSIC. The Lady Cats have lost 10 of their last 11 games. Southern is now 14-8 overall and 5-3 in the conference.

Wayne is scheduled to host Chadron State Monday and will be at home against Fort Hays on Friday and Kearney State on Saturday.

Sub-par play haunts Wayne in loss to Emerson

The inside play of 6-1 center, Mary Walsh and the cold shooting of Wayne's girls led Emerson Hubbard to a 55-30 triumph Friday in the consolation game of the West Husker Conference Tournament. The tourney was played in Wisner.

Emerson, which last year dropped out of the West Husker to join the Lewis & Clark Conference, filled the four-team field since West Point-Central Catholic has no girls team.

Wayne's performance left coach Becky Kelley searching for bright spots in the game. "Emerson was ready, we weren't. We didn't do much and I'm really disappointed. We didn't penetrate, we didn't play good defense," said Kelley. "We had one person taking the ball to the hoop and the rest tried 20 to 25 foot jump shots."

Jill Zeiss, the player to whom Kelley referred, hit 7 of 10 free throws and scored 13 points. Most of her free throw attempts were the result of drives toward the basket. Kelley also commended Jill Moseley for a good defensive game. "In addition to the 13 points by Zeiss, Tammie Murray hit double figures with 10. Leading rebounder was Deb Prenger with seven of Wayne's 27 rebounds. The Blue Devils hit only 22 per cent of their shots and turned the ball over 24 times. Emerson was led by Mary Walsh with 24 points on 12 field goals. Linda Henderson scored 14. Most of Emerson's baskets came on inside shots.

The Blue Devils let the game get away in the second quarter when Emerson racked up a 22-9 scoring advantage. Wayne, 1-12, is scheduled to play at Wisner-Pilger Tuesday night and host Emerson Hubbard on Thursday for Parents' Night.

Laurel gets back in win column

Laurel's girls moved a step closer to a 500 season and Wakefield's wins continued as the Bears clobbered the Trojans 55-24 Thursday night in Laurel.

Laurel coach Dwight Iverson led the ball game a confidence builder after playing Randolph and Wynot. He commended his reserve players for shooting well in the fourth quarter.

Laurel, 9-10, will play at Wausa Thursday night. Wakefield, 0-12, will travel to Allen Tuesday and play Coleridge on the road Thursday.

The junior varsity game was won by Laurel 43-13. The Bears, 10-1, were led by Kelli Johnson with 12 points and Wendy Robson with 10. Other scoring Patsy Thompson 9, Jana Cunningham 6, Jean Lute 3, Cara Dahlquist 2, Nancy Cochran 1.

Emerson stops Allen gals

With the fine, winning basket ball tradition Allen's girls have had in recent years, few teams can boast of a victory over the Eagles in any one season. Emerson Hubbard can boast of two this year.

The Lady Pirates stopped Allen 53-45 Thursday night in Emerson. The first time the two teams met, Allen coach Gary Troth said he felt his team played its best game of the year. This time, he says the Eagles may have played their worst.

"This was probably the worst game we've played outside of the first Ponca game (opening season loss)," said Troth. "We were outshot, outthruled, outplayed."

Allen trailed throughout the entire game and at one time was 18 points behind. The Eagles cut Emerson's lead but not enough to threaten.

"In our first meeting, both teams played real well. This time

Emerson played fair and we played poor," Troth said. "We hustled in the second half but we didn't execute well. We had trouble with their 1-3 zone and didn't get good shots."

Three girls who scored in double figures did most of the damage for Emerson. Mary Walsh led the way with 17 points, followed by Pam Watkins with 15 and Linda Henderson with 13.

Allen was led by Des Williams with 11 points and Shelly Williams with 11. Michelle Harder was leading rebounder with nine. The Eagles hit only 25 percent from the floor compared to a sizzling 51 percent for the hosts.

Next action for the Eagles is scheduled on the home court tomorrow (Tuesday) against Wakefield. On Thursday, Allen will play at Walthill in a makeup game. "Usually, you're looking for consistency this late in the

Blue Devils suffer 3rd O.T. loss

Overtimes haven't been good to the Wayne Blue Devils this season and the most recent one was no exception.

West Point CC trimmed Wayne 54-49 in overtime Thursday night to place third in the West Husker Conference Tournament at Wisner. The Devils have now played four overtime games and lost three.

Thursday's contest was nip-and-tuck all the way with the West Point ball club getting the edge in the overtime period.

Todd Schwartz led all scorers with 17 points and Steve Overin had a fine outing with 16 points and 14 rebounds. Shaun Niemann added nine points and eight rebounds. West Point CC was led by Ron Englemeyer with 16 points. "Free throws were the difference in the ball game. We didn't make them and they did," said Wayne coach Bill Sharpe. "We didn't score any points in the middle and had to shoot from the outside."

Todd Schwartz

The Blue Devils hit 33 percent from the field compared to 37 percent for the Blue Jays. At the free throw line, Wayne hit only 9 of 21 shots while West Point CC made 16 of 22. Both teams committed 17 turnovers and Wayne was outrebounded 39 to 46.

"Overin had a good game and Schwartz played a pretty good game," said Sharpe. Jeff Jorgensen played some and did pretty well.

In the tourney's championship boys game, Hartington CC topped Wisner-Pilger 58-50.

Wayne's next games are scheduled Friday at home against South Sioux City and Saturday at Elkhorn.

Hartington handles Cats

A technical foul prior to the start of Friday's Winside-Hartington basketball game may have been an omen of what was ahead for Winside.

A mid-season slump continued to plague the Winside boys as Hartington clubbed the Wildcats 57-38 Friday in a girls-boys doubleheader at Hartington.

The technical foul was called against Winside when Jon Meierhenry dunked a basketball in warm-ups. According to high school rules, no dunking is allowed before a game.

The hosts broke the game open with a 29-14 half-time lead. Hartington's Paul Hegerl was the game's leading scorer with 22 points. Winside was led by Jon Meierhenry with 14 points and Scott Janke with seven rebounds.

"We played a rotten game. We stunk," said Winside coach Dennis Gommerman. "We didn't play as a team."

The Wildcats, 2-8, played at Stanton Saturday night and will return to the home court Tuesday and Thursday to host Wynot and Osmond respectively.

Wayne girls are winners

After getting off to a slow start, Wayne's freshman girls started rolling and cruised to a 21-14 win over Norfolk Catholic Thursday in a boys-girls doubleheader at Wayne.

Four girls shared scoring duties for the hosts. Amy Jordan topped the charts with nine points and nine rebounds. Lisa Jacobsen had six points and three steals. Karen Longe scored four points and made eight steals and Kolette Frevert added two points. Lori Baker grabbed seven rebounds.

"All of the girls did something well," said Wayne coach Dale Hochstein. "The girls really hustled and played well defensively. Our shooting was pretty cold but defense more than made up for it."

Wayne was held scoreless in the first quarter and trailed 4-0 at that point. In the last couple minutes of the first half, the Blue Devils got their offense on track and took an 8-6 lead into the locker at half-time.

The momentum carried over into the third period as the hosts outscored Norfolk Catholic, 19 to 4 in the two middle quarters. Hochstein, who said that Jordan played a super game, explained that his team's press led to 17 steals.

HONOR CHOIR CHOSEN

The names of the 180 high school students who have been accepted for the Original Nebraska Honor Band, Choir and Chamber Orchestra, sponsored by Hastings College, have been announced by the HC music department. Tim Lineberry, a junior at Laurel-Concord High School, was chosen for the Honor Choir.

Hastings College faculty members who are chairman of the honor groups are: Duane E. Johnson, Honor Band chairman, Dr. James Johnson, orchestra chairman, and Dr. Elmer Schock, choral chairman.

A few minutes of your time is all that's needed to get full details. Give us a call.

Q. Although I am convinced of the security of a safety deposit box, I am not really sure what should be kept there.

A. Safety deposit boxes are extremely valuable storage devices for anything you consider important enough to warrant nearly perfect protection. For the nominal cost involved, you'll find it especially important for the following items: birth certificates, adoption papers, marriage certificate or other papers needed to qualify for Social Security benefits; military records, such as discharge papers, medical files, passports; deeds to property owned separately or jointly, including abstracts or title insurance policies; Also, important are original, signed copies of your wills, mortgages, installment contracts and security agreements. And, you may want to keep titles to vehicles; United States Savings Bonds; stocks and bond certificate. A safe inventory of your household goods and personal property could be invaluable in case of fire or theft.

Tempers

 board pay the association's salary offer to Genovese. Immediately generated debate on whether or not the board's authority and hiring prerogatives had been usurped.
 Seconds before the shouting match erupted, Hay referred to the association's action as "blackmail."
CONSENSUS WAS that the association had no right or authority to hire personnel on behalf of the board, or to dictate hiring policy to the ESU. However, disagreement arose over how to handle the apparent rift.
 Several board members expressed concern over widening the apparent rift with hard-line tactics.
 "Hay, among others, was insistent that the letter's message was clear, that Genovese had been hired by the association, and that Knox County superintendents could do whatever they wanted to with their new employee as long as he stayed away for ESU programs."

WELL INTO THE discussion, Hay offered what he termed "a compromise."
 He started to suggest that Mills write school board members in Knox County. He never finished the suggestion.
 Mills interrupted by informing Hay that he felt he was "obligated professionally to work through chief administrators and not school boards or school board members."
 Hay interrupted Mills with an objection to the administrator's protest. Mills continuing the protest and Hay, bringing himself 12 1/2 feet while collecting a number of working papers, responded.
"THE HELL YOU can't write the board members," Hay shouted, continuing to gather his material.
 And, as the other board members listened to the verbal battle, Hay walked out.
 His reference to Mills causing the problem touched on a point Hay brought up earlier in the debate regarding the hiring of Genovese.
 At that time, Hay openly questioned the hiring of the ESU employee and told the board he did not remember reviewing the matter.

 Hay also openly challenged Mills on supervisory duties assigned to Genovese.
"IT'S AN UNTENABLE situation," Hay told the board. Hay urged the board to take the letter, which outlined the offer made to Genovese and stated that the man had accepted it, at face value.
 "Assume his (Genovese's) employment is terminated at the end of the contract year and write him a letter to that effect," Hay declared, just before offering the suggestion to write to the Knox County school boards.
 Seconds after Hay walked out, Bill Wiesle, ESU board chairman, said, "We have to approach it with all the diplomacy we can. We're not looking for people to blame, if we go through with this we'll have to do it one step at a time. We need to get the ground rules back as to who is telling who what to do."

BASICALLY, THE board decided to inform the Knox County Superintendents Association of its objection to its setting the salary for Genovese, tell the group that Genovese works for ESU and that it will decide what salary to pay and what the employee will do, and invite a member of the association to meet with the board to resolve any questions.
 The letter needs to indicate that we can not go along with this sort of thing," Bill Norvell, board member and secretary told his colleagues.
 The board revised and set salaries for its three top supervisors. Duane Tappe, Gary Vopalensky and Larry Clay, but did not make Genovese, who has been supervising ESU programs in Knox County, a salary contract offer.
TAPPE IS THE ESU special interest director. Vopalensky is the unit's language speech and hearing director. And Clay is the director of psychological services for ESU which serves Cedar, Dakota, DeWitt, Knox, Thurston and Wayne counties in addition to Nebraska.

All three are supervised by Mills. The supervision of Genovese also concerned the board and the administrative staff.
 Mills gave Tappe, Vopalensky and Clay an "unqualified recommendation" for contract extensions and salary increases.
 He then introduced the problem with Genovese.
 As the discussion continued, Mills expressed concern that Genovese was being directed by Knox County superintendents, rather than the ESU board or the unit's administrative staff.
VOPALENSKY, WHO attended the meeting to outline the recommendations to the board for ESU staff grievance procedures and reduction in force (RIF) policies, suggested that Genovese be placed under Tappe as a special education consultant "if he is hired for next year."
 Board consensus was that the position was better defined in that kind of structure.
 "We can't have every county running the unit," Wiesle told the board.
 "We have to tell these people what's what," he said. "We're seeing bits and pieces chipped away from our unit. We have to nip it in the bud, maybe it's just the first sprout."

IF ANYTHING it's the second sprout, since the first rift sprouted at Crofton before the first of the year.
 The school district apparently has refused to honor its contract commitment to ESU for a program and has expressed intentions to operate on its own for services requested through the unit.
 The ESU board is exploring possible legal action against Crofton for what it contends is breach of contract. In fact during Tuesday night's meeting, Hay told the board that "when the time came" he was ready to introduce a motion to have the board "take legal action" against Crofton.
 Several ESU board members expressed that one of the leaders of the Knox County Superintendents Association, John Post, is supported Crofton's effort to split from the unit.

VOPALENSKY TOLD the board that it was his understanding that Knox County "did not feel it was getting the service they like" from ESU.
 The supervisor said he got a "very clear" indication from several superintendents that he was "not to venture into Knox County to supervise ESU clinicians" because Genovese was hired to do that.
 "They are saying they are writing the contract," said Randall Shaw, a Wayne County representative on the board. "We can't have that."
 At that point, Wiesle said, "They are not going to run the board and say what we have to pay. We're going to make that decision and stick by it."
 Board member at large Claito Hansen pressed Mills for a job description for Genovese.

HE INSISTED throughout the meeting that the board needed to check out its contract terms, including job description, with Genovese.
 Toward the end of the discussion, Hansen also suggested the board draw an organizational chart "clearly showing where that person is and where we are" in the line up.
 Earlier in the meeting, Hay reported the results of his examination of ESU staff mileage records.
 He told the board that "as much as we spend on mileage, it should be more carefully coordinated."
 Hay, who has become the board's sharp pencil on cost cutting procedures, had volunteered to analyze a month's worth of ESU staff mileage reports.
IN JANUARY, Hay analyzed the ESU telephone costs and recommended several changes designed to save the unit money and streamline service.
 On the mileage report, Hay urged that ESU administrators "set better examples" in ride sharing to member schools and planning trips.

Hay also challenged the ESU policy on mileage payments from the "Crofton Corner" to work.
 He noted that, generally, employees in other walks of life find their own way to work at their own expense.
 He called the policy "an unfortunate precedent," and suggested that future policy revisions consider changing the rule.
DURING THE meeting, Wiesle clarified a point reported by The Wayne Herald as a result of the board's January meeting.
 During that meeting, Wayne attorney Kenneth Olds, an ESU board member, had submitted an opinion from the State Bar Association that indicated he may find himself in a conflict of interest if he accepted a board request to serve as ESU legal counsel.
 The Wayne Herald, in its story, indicated that Olds was the board's legal counsel. Wiesle pointed out that Olds is not the board's attorney and has never received compensation for legal advice.

Documents

 here, according to Singer.
 The U.S. Conn Library system is plugged into 53 other libraries in Nebraska and then beyond the state's borders to 50 more systems.
 "These government documents are bulky, the department utilizes microfiche. In fact, all the 200 documents per month received at the college library will be in microfiche form, according to Singer.
"RARELY DOES it cost the cardholder very much money to get information from another library," said Singer, who has been at WSC for 2 1/2 years.
 "It usually involves the cost of postage and sometimes insurance, if the document is very valuable," she said. "There's no charge for the search."
 The search does cost the department money, however, Singer estimates that each search beyond the U.S. Conn Library depository costs about 50 cents.
 "That comes right out of our budget because we feel it's a very important service to offer," said the central Ohio native.
TO QUALIFY as an official state document depository, the library was required to sign a contract to provide access and information to any Nebraska resident.
 And, Singer added, the library's designation as a federal government document depository requires that it provide the same service to any citizen of the United States.
 "One of the quickest ways for us to lose that designation is to refuse service to anyone," Singer said.
 The library has been an official federal document depository since 1970. Library officials signed the state depository contract about a month ago, according to Singer.

AS A DEPOSITORY for the state, the library becomes a regional link in an information chain jointly developed through the auspices of the Nebraska Library Commission and the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.
 "We get about 75 percent of the federal documents and all of the state documents," explained Singer, who said the department hopes to be able to purchase copies of all state documents back to 1972.
 Nebraska has a model system, Singer continued. "It is often cited for its comprehensiveness and for what is in the system."
 Singer remembers Nebraska's system being used often as a classroom example while she attended library school in Indiana.
ONE OF THE convenient features of the system is that information seekers need only dial the college telephone number (735-2200) and one of two extensions (419 or 257) to plug into the system.
 And, a request made to the college telephone operator for the documents department will also do the trick.
 In addition to having the documents available for hands-on study, the staff functions as a research area for information seekers.
 Some requests may take a day or two depending on the information sought, Singer explained. "But we always get back to them."
 Singer said that if she were unavailable, information seekers can leave their requests with Phil Thraill, the library secretary.
 Also, she said, the regular library staff is trained to handle government document information requests.
SINGER STRESSED that the service is available to area residents as it is to college

Students doing research for term papers.
 "We have government information that ranges from the self instructional books to tips on how to prevent shoplifting," she said.
 The coordinator said countless government publications exist that are designed to help businessmen and consumers.
 "We have access to everything from small business accounting procedures to do-it-yourself solar systems to government produced cookbooks," she added.
"AND, IF WE don't have the information we can often get the person on the right track to get it," she said.
 Singer, who studied under and taught with one of the most renowned national and international government document specialists, Dean Fryxell at Indiana, sees the department as an information clearinghouse.
 Government documents originate, she said. "And the more I work with them the more they fascinate me."
Ballot
 Republican Party and Democratic Party delegate candidates will not be placed on the ballot, according to Orregella Morris, county clerk.
 All such candidates (Republican or Democrat) who file will automatically become delegates to their party convention, according to Morris.
THERE IS NO filing fee for delegates to county political party conventions.
 The county conventions are scheduled for June.
 Democrats and Republicans filing for county convention delegate status must be registered voters.
