Governor to speak in Wayne on May 3

Nebraska's governor is scheduled to visit Wayne in May. Gov. Charles Thone has accepted an invitation to be the guest speaker at the annual Wayne Kiwanis Scholarship Awards Banquet May 3.

Banquet co-chairmen Pat Gross and Sidney Hillier extended the invitation to Gov. Thone on behalf of the Wayne Kiwanis Club. Confirmation of the governor's acceptance came Wednesday.

THONE, a Hartington native, will address Wayne's honors students at the banquet, which is scheduled for the Student Center on the Wayne State College campus. The banquet is designed to honor student scholastic achievement in grades seven through 12.

Thone, who is completing his first term as governor, has announced his candidacy for a second term on the Republican Party ticket.

The governor's scheduled visit to Wayne would come just a week before the state's May 11 primary election.

Valentine... please be mine

FIVE-YEAR-OLD Brian Lindahl musters the courage to ask his five-year-old sweetheart Molly Burst to be his Valentine. The twang of cupid's bow brought the two Wayne kindergarten classmates together Saturday morning when Brian came calling on Molly. In the tradition of Valentine's Day, the young sweethearts had kept their puppy love a secret until the time was right. Brian is the son of Larry and Mary Lindahl, rural Wayne. Molly is the daughter of Stanley and Joanie Burst, Wayne.

Candidate seeks seat on Council

The starting gun has sounded on the non-partisan ballot race for Wayne City Council seats.

The first and only candidate to file for one of the four council seats open is Vernon F. Russell, owner of Wayne Refuse Service and former councilman.

Russell, 50, a 13 year resident of Wayne, was elected to the council from Ward 1 in 1972. He served until 1978.

ON FRIDAY, RUSSELL filed for the Ward 1 seat currently held by incumbent Councilman Darrell Heier. Heier has not filed for re-election.

Arkansas-born, Russell moved to Nebraska with his family when he was five years old. The family settled in Lincoln.

A 1949 graduate of Lincoln High School, Russell spent 13 years as a bookbinder in the state's capital city before purchasing the refuse service and moving to Wayne.

While working as a Lincoln bookbinder, Russell also served as president of the Labor Temple Building Association and was a member of the Central Labor Union.

HE ALSO WAS a member of the Committee on Political Education and the Printers Union. Russell also served as president of the Bookbinders Union in Lincoln.

He and his wife, Darlene, are the parents of three children - Susan, Marshall and Karen.

Susan works as a part-time dispatcher for the Wayne Police Department. Marshall works for Schmidt Trucking. Karen is an eighth-grader at Wayne Middle School.

Russell said his campaign slogan is: "Return City Government to the People."

Commissioner files for re-election Chief deputy in Sheriff's race

Two veteran Wayne County officials have filed for a spot on the Republican Party ballot in the May 11 primary election.

Chief Deputy LeRoy Janssen of Wayne is seeking the Republican Party nomination for Wayne County Sheriff. Janssen filed on Thursday.

And, incumbent Merlin Beiermann of rural Wayne is seeking the GOP nomination for re-election to a third term on the Wayne County Board of Commissioners from District 1. Beiermann filed Friday.

JANSSEN, 27, is a seven-year law enforcement veteran with six of those years in the Wayne County Sheriff's Department. A Randolph native, Janssen served as a patrolman with the Wayne Police Department for a year before joining the Sheriff's Department.

Janssen, a 1972 graduate of Randolph High School, was promoted to chief deputy in October by Sheriff Scotty Thompson.

A GRADUATE of Northeast Technical Community College, Norfolk, Janssen has an associate degree in law enforcement and criminal justice.

Before moving to Wayne, he served one year on the campus security police force while attending the University of Nebraska at Omaha.

A member of the Nebraska State Sheriff's and Peace Officers Association, Janssen is married to the former Jane Thompson of Wisner.

BEIERMANN, 49, a life-long Wayne County resident, is a two-term county commissioner with six years as chairman of the board.

A farmer and Behlen steel farm building contractor, Beiermann is a member of the county Welfare Board, the county Board of Equalization and the Region IV Mental Health Board.

He also has served a 20-year stint as president of the rural school board for District 8.

A 1949 graduate of Wayne High School, Beiermann has farmed 280 acres about five miles southeast of Wayne since 1952.

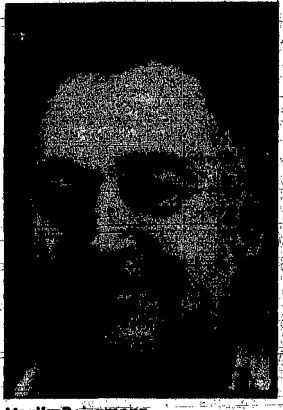

BEFORE THAT, the veteran commissioner farmed southeast of Wayne in partnership with his father and brother.

Beiermann has been in the farm building business for 12 years.

Degree days deliver those high heating bills

EDITOR'S NOTE: Energy use and conservation is at once a complex and diversified subject that is being brought home with the arrival of this season's heating bills. In a continuing commitment to provide area residents with useful information on energy, The Wayne Herald publishes the following article on heating degree days. It was prepared and written by Ken Mairra of Marra Home Improvement Co., a member of the technical committee of Wayne's Energy Task Force.

"It was so cold that..." Wayne area residents have heard hundreds of jokes that started with that introduction.

With today's spiraling energy cost, just how cold it was is no longer a joking matter. In fact, the weather and its relationship to homeowner's utility bills is fast becoming one of the most talked about subjects in town.

MOST RESIDENTS know that January was bitterly cold. But, how cold was it?

The U.S. Weather Service keeps records on a statistic that goes a long way toward answering the question: It is called heating degree days.

A heating-degree day is defined as the difference between the average temperature for the day and 65 degrees Fahrenheit (65F).

For example, if the average temperature for the day was 60F, the day would have five heating degree days.

IF THE AVERAGE temperature was 20F, there would be 45 heating degree days.

And, an average of 3F would mean the day had 62 heating degree days.

When these are added together for a month, a heating season, or for a utility billing period, they give a relative indication of the load being carried by a homeowner's heating system.

The logic is, of course, that if the temperature averaged 65F for the day, the homeowner's furnace probably would not run - zero heating degree days.

Many other factors contribute to the determination of the heating-system load (wind velocity, sunshine, etc.), but heating degree days are easy to calculate and are a reasonably accurate predictor of the heating load.

HEATING DEGREE day records kept for the past 20 years may answer the "how cold was it" question.

There were 1,260 heating degree days for January of this year (1982).

That was the third highest total for January in the past 20 years. The record was 1,836 heating degree days in January 1979.

Normal for January is 1,429 heating degree days.

Area residents were right about last winter. It was warmer than normal.

In fact, it was the warmest in the past 20 years.

LAST WINTER'S heating season total of 5,896 heating degree days was far below the norm of 6,981.

The coldest heating season of the past 20 years was the winter of 1978-79. With record-setting cold in December, January and February, there were 8,013 heating degree days that winter.

What's happening this winter? To date, there have been 4,312 heating degree days, which is only 220 more than normal this far into the heating season.

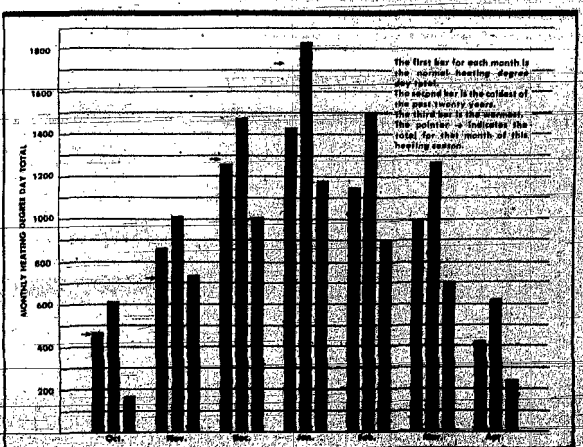

By the end of December, heating degree days were 87 off the normal pace. So, it was the colder-than-normal January that pushed the total ahead of the norm.

THE CONCEPT of heating degree days has a practical application. As homeowners and businessmen begin taking action to conserve energy, they often want to evaluate how effective their efforts have been.

The only way to do that is to compare energy usage - before and after the change - against an equal basis.

Comparisons on energy consumed per heating degree day will not be biased by a change in utility rates or changes in the weather.

The amount of energy consumed is easily found on utility bills.

ON THE ELECTRIC bill, it will be the kilowatt-hours (KWH) figure.

On the natural gas bill, it will be stated in hundreds of cubic feet (CCF). And, on fuel oil it can be measured in gallons.

Starting today, The Wayne

Herald is publishing heating degree day monthly summaries in each edition of the newspaper. Today's summaries include the months of November, December and January. The summaries appear in the weather box on Page 2.

WHEN FEBRUARY'S heating degree days summary is available it will replace the three-month, start-up summary.

From that point on, each edition of the newspaper will carry a one-month heating degree days summary.

Throughout March, for instance, The Wayne Herald will publish February's summary. The summaries will be provided through the courtesy of Wayne's Energy Task Force.

By using the data in the summaries, homeowners and businessmen will be able to chart their energy consumption per heating degree day.

The chart should offer a meaningful evaluation of energy consumption.

Country boy...

...by randall howell

Howdy. The advent of light-weight, but warm, winter clothing has made winter so much more bearable. Most youngsters today don't realize what country kids of just a few very years ago had to contend with when they ventured outdoors in winter.

Today, bundling up means throwing on a stylish ski jacket, sleek snow-repellant ski mitts and toasty-warm moonboots.

PERHAPS IT'S hard to imagine when those modern-day wraps were not around, at least not in farm country. Of course, it's my contention that — even with the light-weight warmth available in outdoor clothing today — most people still have a tough time with winter because they rarely dress for the weather.

Dressing for the weather when I was a kid was hard work. And, it was anything but fashion.

Just the other day I read a story about long johns and how they've become stylish now after years of rejection by fashion-conscious consumers.

WELL, DURING my childhood, no one worried about whether long johns were fashionable.

They were functional. And, that's what really counted. Long johns offered the promise of some comfort from September to June.

Once they were pulled out of the bottom of the chest of drawers in September, they rarely got a break from daily wear until all danger of frost was past.

In the Upper Plains States, that could easily mean long johns provided that last bastion of protection against the needles of winter cold until June.

And, I can remember wearing them in June on more than one occasion.

LONG JOHNS, however, offered the most streamlined part of the getup I remember wearing on the farm.

I also remember when I graduated from the one-piece, button up front, trap door in the rear style to the two-piece sets.

For some strange reason, that signaled another rung on the ladder of manhood.

I can't imagine why it was so all-fired important, but it was. Maybe it was because, when I was a kid, we not only wore those long johns beneath our outdoor getup, but also in and around the house.

THEY ALSO doubled as pajamas, a welcome barrier to the cold the crept into the second story of that old farmhouse I grew up in.

Those long johns served as a solid base for the layers and layers of clothing I'd wear against the cold — layers that seemed to take hours to build before the moment of truth. Of course, the moment of truth came when I took the bold step out the door into a blast-of-arctic air — something they call windchill today.

I didn't know windchill from windmill then. All I knew was that anything you could use to block the wind became a coveted item.

My ski masks were paper grocery bags with holes cut in them for the eyes, and sometimes for the nose.

BUNDLING UP against the cold was a ritual, a very personal ritual.

Each one of my brothers and sisters did it differently with those well-worn and carefully preserved items of clothing that kept frostbite at bay.

The clothing was big and bulky. And most of it was hand-me-down stuff that had been culled from older cousins and uncles.

It was not unusual to bury a light pair of socks beneath several more layers until feet looked more like huge clubs at the end of childhood bodies.

Those well socked feet eventually ended up in leather boots that were purposely inherited or purchased several sizes too large.

OF COURSE, before the boots were pulled on, the two or three pairs of trousers were slipped over the socks and long johns.

Often I had to help fastening the buttons and zippers on the last pair of trousers.

You see, it was not only difficult to get them fastened because they were stretched to the limit, but also because I could barely bend over to see what I was doing.

The three or four shirts I wore made torso movement all but impossible. Furthermore, my fingertips were often sore from all the tugging, buttoning and buckling.

That's when sibling fights ended momentarily and the buddy system took over. It was just too difficult to stuff me into all those layers of clothing all by myself.

CERTAINLY, it must be noted that the layers of heavy clothing limited the fights we did have to verbal exchanges.

The weight and stiffness of those layers of clothes virtually eliminated the possibility that a brother would or could throw a punch at me.

And, if that did happen, chances are he'd fall down doing it. Since he broke the rules, no one would help him up.

We'd just stand around watching the rule-breaker struggle to get back on his feet without a helping hand. It was embarrassing to the miscreant.

Also, there was the danger he'd get behind in his bundling-up schedule and be left without anyone to help with the last few snaps and zippers.

AFTER THE THREE or four layers of shirts, trousers and socks, I'd put on a huge pair of overalls.

Those overalls, too, were purposely purchased or inherited many sizes larger than what would normally fit me.

They were heavy for protection against the cold, the wind, and the barnyard.

If I was lucky, one of the layers of clothing included a sweat shirt with a hood.

That hood slipped over a warm winter stocking cap or a cap with earflaps. The hood was always drawn very, very tight around my face with the drawstring.

THAT LEFT nothing but a small, odd-shaped hole for my eyes and nose. And, once the drawstring was tied — usually by another family member because I couldn't bend my arms enough to reach it — there was a 90 percent reduction in hearing.

That was the price I had to pay to protect my ears from frostbite.

Then, two things remained — the five-buckle overshoes and several layers of old barbed-wire-bitten gloves.

Now, the overshoes were all but impossible to do with any ease. At that point, just walking was difficult, let alone bending over to buckle overshoes.

SOMEHOW THE overshoes were buckled with a cacophony of grunts and groans.

Rarely, by the way, did I — or anyone else in the family — own a pair of five-buckle overshoes that had all five buckles.

And, the buckles that did survive the barnyard expeditions, were usually bent and battered beyond the buckling stage.

That had its good and bad points, depending on where the buckles were and where the buckles weren't.

If they were missing from the top, the boots flopped open there and broke the seal against the cold.

I felt fortunate, indeed, when I had buckles missing from the bottom and not the top of the boot.

AT THIS STAGE, both the top and bottom of the robot-like, cold-weather packaging were sealed reasonably well.

And, if all the old snaps and zippers held, my middle was protected with an armor-like plate against the cold.

Trouble was, though, that I was already roasting to death from the body heat generated in the bundling-up effort.

That called for a quick search through the drawer for several pairs of worn-out chore gloves.

Once on my hands, those layers of gloves severely restricted any finger movement beyond that needed to grasp the handle of a 5-gallon bucket or a scoop shovel.

SO, THERE I was...a sight-to-behold. I could barely hear, had difficulty seeing and it was hard labor to walk.

Only the weight of water or corn in those 5-gallon buckets would bring my arms down to my sides.

But, my super-human effort to get bundled up was not over yet. No sir.

You see, just as I got ready to mumble for help — through the distowled scarf over my face — with a simple task like opening the door to go outside, I would realize that I had to go inside.

NATURE ALWAYS called me at the most inopportune moments. And, once she called, there is no mistaking the urgency.

It always struck me funny how it took me only seconds to dismantle what took me nearly an hour to build.

Once I answered the call, it was start-over time. But, by then, I was on my own.

The others were already outside creaking along beneath the stiff weight of their armor-plated coveralls.

And, I had double the work to do.

Sunshine act faces political challenge

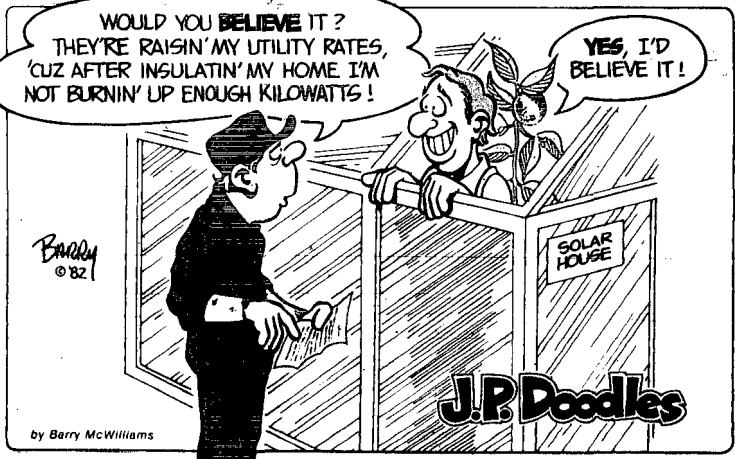

Over one third of our sixty-day Legislative Session is now past. We are still holding public hearings in the afternoons on many bills, with March 5 the final day for hearings. We will then return to full days of debating bills on the floor of the Legislature. At a public hearing before the Miscellaneous Subjects Committee this week a bill, LB 489, was heard that would repeat the entire Nebraska Political Accountability and Disclosure Act, better known to most of us as the "Sunshine Act."

senator elroy hefner

THIS ACT WAS passed in 1976 under pressure from various citizen groups who felt the old Corrupt Practices Act was not adequate for informing the public about campaign financing, financial reporting of public officials and lobbyists. I am the chairman of the Miscellaneous Subjects Committee, and that committee introduced LB 489. A bill to exempt County Commission Planning and Zoning Board members from Political Accountability and Disclosure laws was also heard before the Miscellaneous Subjects Committee this week. That bill, LB 487, would exempt county planning commissioners from having to report their financial status under a provision of the Sunshine Act. Proponents for the bill testified that the Sunshine Act discourages some people from getting involved in local government because they don't want to disclose some of the things required, and that it is "cumbersome, confusing and harassing".

ONE SUPPORTER said that the law is a bureaucratic burden on many people who might otherwise serve on boards and commissions at the local level. Opponents of the bill said that the Sunshine Act was accomplished its main purpose, and that is to let people know where politicians and lobbyists get and spend their money. No action was taken by the committee on either bill. Final approval was given this week to a bill, LB 22, that would make possession and use of radar jamming devices illegal. Possession of a radar-detection device would mean that the device could not be hooked up for use in a vehicle. An individual could carry one in the trunk of a car, but it could not be hooked up for use to jam radar.

Rock Island line service resumes

Service along a portion of the Rock Island between Council Bluffs and Colorado Springs is scheduled to resume Feb. 16 in Kansas.

Kyle Railroad, a railroad management firm, will begin tri-weekly service between Belleville (south of Chester) and Goodland to the west. Kyle will operate the line under a lease and purchase agreement with the Mid-States Port Authority which has secured the authority to operate the Rock Island from Colorado Springs to Thompson, Neb., an unincorporated village approximately eight miles southwest of Fairbury.

MY OFFICE WAS represented at a recent meeting of the Mid-States Port Authority in Phillipsburg, Kan., where Kyle Railroad will have its offices. At that meeting, my commitment to seeing that as much of the Rock Island line as possible operates in Nebraska was stated. Current plans of the Port Authority call for the construction by Feb. 16 of an interchange at Courtland, Kan., with the Santa Fe railroad and the eventual construction of an interchange at Thompson with Burlington Northern.

Members of the Port Authority expressed interest to my representative in the remainder of the line from Thompson to Council Bluffs but indicated that their first priority was establishing service from Colorado Springs to Thompson. IF YOU ARE thinking about starting a small business, the Small Business Administration has a toll free number you can call to get publications on starting a variety of businesses. Call (800) 433-7212. The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration Hotline will provide information on motor safety recalls, handle complaints about safety-related vehicle defects and receive reports about vehicle safety problems. It does not accept complaints about warranty or service problems unless they related to safety complaints. To find out about cars, call (800) 424-7292. The Department of Health and Human

THE JUSTICE Department reports that while crime against the elderly is comparatively low when measured against other population groups, the trauma and economic impact of crime may affect older people more severely than others. A recently released report entitled "Crime and the Elderly" notes that "when a purse is snatched or a pocket is picked, the direct contact with the offender may be very frightening even though it results in no injury." And that: "The economic loss involved may be particularly upsetting to a person who is living on a fixed income. THE BUREAU OF Justice Statistics said in its study that younger people, rather than older people, made up a disproportionate part of the nation's crime victims from 1973 through 1980. Young people between the ages of 12 and 25 were the most victimized group. The study found few major changes in crime against the elderly from 1973 to 1980, though crimes of violence against people 65 years and older decreased from 8.5 per 1,000 in 1973 to 6.9 per 1,000 in 1980. And, burglaries decreased from 55.1 per 1,000 to 48.3 per 1,000 in the same period. The report points out that, nevertheless, the trauma and economic impact of crime may weigh far more heavily on the elderly and may lead them to take precautions that can impoverish their lives by severely limiting their freedom and mobility. Single copies of the report may be obtained free by writing the Bureau of Justice Statistics, Washington D.C. 20531.

The race is on

Local government is the bedrock of the democratic process. And, the local election process, which periodically thrusts Wayne area citizens into positions of governmental responsibility, is the fulcrum on which voters balance the future. Certainly, it is no secret that 1982 is an election year. That means a spring (May 11), primary and a fall (Nov. 2) general election. Between now and November, when the final deciding votes are cast, voters will have an opportunity to pause and examine — or re-examine — candidates and promises. Most incumbents at the county government level already have tossed hats in the ring for the 1982 primary. All incumbents deciding to seek re-election must file their candidacy by Thursday, Feb. 25. Filing has not been limited to incumbents, however. A few challengers have filed. Non-incumbents have until March 12 to indicate their primary election intentions. County level positions up for election this year include two seats on the Wayne County Board of Commissioners, the county clerk, county assessor, county treasurer, clerk of Ninth District Court, county sheriff, county surveyor and two seats on the county's Noxious Weed Board. In addition, four non-partisan positions are open on the Wayne City Council. One seat in each city ward stands for election this year. And, the mayor's seat will be on the ballot. To date, only one candidate has filed for a city council seat. No one has filed for mayor. Also, three terms expire on the Wayne-Carroll Board of Education. To date, no one neither incumbents nor challengers — has filed for a school board seat. While two weeks remain for incumbents and four weeks remain for challengers, it is important to realize that the election is on us. The philosophy and quality of local government is at stake. It is clear that those who have filed for office have publicly declared their intention to participate in the democratic process. That is as it should be. However, there is a danger that some seats may go begging for the lack of qualified candidates. Maybe it is time for you to seek public office. If not, maybe it is time you urged a qualified candidate to run. Or, maybe it is time you offered your support to a qualified candidate who already is running. It's your government. And, it's time you get involved.

Traffic safety

Nebraska state senators will be hearing a number of bills dealing with traffic safety during this year's 60-day session. One bill, if passed, would require children under four years of age to be transported in federally approved child restraints whenever they ride in passenger cars. This bill, LB 492, as introduced by Sen. Shirley Marsh, was carried over from last year's session. Each year motor vehicle accidents kill more children in this country than are killed by all childhood diseases combined. Child restraints, which meet federal standards, can substantially reduce injuries and save lives. Other states which have passed child restraint legislation have had a reduction in fatalities involving small children. A number of new bills deal with the problem of drinking and driving. Drinking drivers kill more than 150 Nebraskans each year and injure more than 3,000. Most of the bills call for more rigorous "driving while intoxicated" (DWI) laws. Although this was once an area that received little attention, this year drinking/driving legislation has become a widely discussed topic in many states. This is true to a large degree because of the public's increased awareness of this traffic problem. This awareness has been brought about mainly because of publicity generated by Mothers Against Drunk Drivers (MADD) and other grass roots traffic safety organizations. California and a few other states have already passed tougher DWI laws. Nebraskans who wish to express their views about traffic safety, who should contact their senators. A list of the senators, their districts, their addresses and phone numbers may be received free, upon request, from the Clerk of the Legislature, State Capitol, Room 405, Lincoln, Nebraska 68503 (402-471-8211).

Community Theatre auditions underway

Auditions for the Wayne Community Theatre's spring play, "Last of the Red Hot Lovers," by Neil Simon were scheduled Sunday afternoon from 2 to 5 in the community room of the Columbus Federal building.

Additional tryouts will be held tonight (Monday) from 7 to 9 p.m. at the same location.

"LAST OF the Red Hot Lovers" enjoyed a successful Broadway run during the early seventies.

James Coco played the leading role, in the original production and received rave reviews for his performance.

The comedy revolves around Barney Cashman who, at the age of 47, wants to join the sexual revolution before it is too late. However, being a gentle soul with a true-blue wife of 23 years and absolutely no experience in adultery, Barney fails in each of three seduction attempts.

IN ADDITION to the male role there are three choice women's parts.

Barney first gets involved with a "sexpot" who likes cigarettes, whiskey, and husbands, other than her own. His second encounter is with a kooky-actress friend who turns out to be quite mad.

His final attempt at conquest is with his wife's best friend. The best friend is a stern moralist who sees sin around every bend.

AUDITIONS are open to the general public as well as members of the Wayne Community Theatre.

HOW TO TAKE THE TEETH OUT OF INFLATION WITHOUT FEELING THE BITE OF FEDERAL TAXES.

Introducing the One Year Tax-Exempt Certificate.

If you hate paying taxes as much as you hate inflation, you'll love this new One Year Savings Certificate.

It lets you earn up to $2,000 of tax-free interest if you file a joint Federal return, up to $1,000 of tax-free interest on individual Federal returns.

And no one — anywhere — is authorized to pay you more interest on this One Year Certificate than State National Bank. On a minimum deposit of $500, our One Year Certificate pays 70% of the current one-year U.S. Treasury Bill rate. Which is no small potato.

And, because of its unique tax-free status, our One Year Certificate could be far more profitable than other savings options.

In addition to a guaranteed return for one year, it also provides the most security. Because inside the State National Bank, your deposits are insured for up to a total of $100,000 by the FDIC. While many non-bank investments are simply not insured.

If you're interested in earnings up to $2,000 tax-free, call or visit with the professionals at the State National Bank. For high-yield savings and solid advice, we're all-the bank you'll ever need.

Cats withstand Trojans' stall

If wasn't a fan's dream of an exciting run-and-gun ball game. No excited fans were lumping up and down on the bleachers.

Yet, Wednesday's boys makeup game between Winside and Wakefield was close all the way and decided by only three points. The Trojans, facing a definite height disadvantage, elected to use a slow-down offense. Their bid was nearly successful but the Wildcats held on for a 37-34 victory.

AFTER ONE HALF of play, not even a gambler would have bet that 71 points would be scored in the game. After all, Winside led 4-0 after the first quarter and 8-7 at the half. The third quarter score was 19-16 in favor of Wakefield.

With the tallest player on his team being 6-0 tall, Wakefield coach Scott Miller was up against a Winside team which measured up at 6-7, 6-4, 6-2, 6-2, 6-0. The Trojans didn't appear to have much of a chance without playing a slowdown game. And that's just what the visitors did.

Wakefield really took the air out of the ball in the first quarter. A patient, passing offense on the Trojans' first possession soon turned into a full four-corner offense.

Winside scored the first two baskets of the game but that was all they scored in the first quarter. Wakefield's four-corner offense stalled away the last 4 1/2 minutes of the first period in order to go for the last shot. The shot failed.

THE SECOND QUARTER wasn't quite as slow. The Trojans scored the first three baskets to take a 6-4 lead. Jeff Coble hit the go-ahead basket from 10 feet. Scott Janke, a 6-4 sophomore, tied the score again at 6-6.

The Wildcats held a slim 8-7 half-time lead. In the third quarter, the Trojans opened up their offense slightly and gained the lead. A jump shot by Mark Starzl gave Wakefield a three-point edge. Jim Krajicek scored with 30 seconds remaining for Winside but Coble connected with .09 left for a 19-16 Wakefield lead.

Wakefield opened up its offense in the fourth quarter and both teams rolled. Winside scored 21 points compared to 15 for Wakefield.

Winside, which had played a zone defense all game, switched to a man-to-man. The Wildcats took the lead permanently when Jim Krajicek netted three free throws within 40 seconds for a 25-23 lead. A rebound and layin by Jon Meierhenry brought Winside's lead to four points with just more than three minutes remaining.

THE BIGGEST LEAD in the game was at 29-23 when Krajicek hit a turnaround jumper. With less than two minutes remaining, the Trojans were desperate. Wakefield cut Winside's lead to four points but the two teams exchanged baskets and free throws through the final 1:30.

The Trojans had a couple of opportunities to cut the Wildcats' lead to two points but haste caused unforced turnovers. Winside threatened to put the game away with 40 seconds remaining when Jeff Behmer made a nice pass to Scott Janke for a layup and 36-29 lead.

However, Brian Soderberg hit a shot and was fouled for a three-point play to keep Wakefield's hopes alive at 36-32. As the final seconds ticked away, Jeff Coble scored for Wakefield bringing the final score to 37-34.

"I think he (Scott Miller) did a hell of a job of coaching," Winside coach Dennis Gonneman said. "He had me scared. We waited until the fourth quarter to play our man-to-man defense."

KRAJICEK, WINSIDE'S only senior, scored all 16 of his points in the second half to lead the hosts. "He played a whale of a game, he played like a senior," said Gonneman.

Other Winside scorers were Jon Meierhenry with eight, Scott Janke with seven and John Hawkins with six. Gonneman also complimented Janke for a good job.

Wakefield was led by Mike Clay with 15 points. Brian Soderberg scored seven, Jeff Coble scored six and Mark Starzl scored six. The Trojans hit 14 of 32 shots for 43.7 percent and the Wildcats hit 15 of 25 shots for 60 percent. Winside had 22 rebounds and 15 turnovers. Wakefield had 18 rebounds and 11 turnovers.

"Wakefield was at a definite height disadvantage and got into some foul trouble," said Gonneman. "Our kids are getting better every day."

The Winside coach said he has tried to cut down on his team's turnovers by wagering cans of pop with individual players. A player who has less than three turnovers in a game wins a can of pop. Three turnovers cancels the bet and more than three means the player must fork over a can of pop for the coach.
