ESU One board reprimands administrator

The Educational Service Unit One board has publicly reprimanded its top supervisor. The reprimand, which was issued in connection with the hiring of a Knox County special education consultant, came after board members met in an hour-long executive session Tuesday night at Laurel Concord Public Schools.

During the executive session, which was called on a 9-1 vote, ESU administrator Harry Mills of Wakefield was asked by chairman William Wiese of rural Wausa to leave the meeting. Mills did so without protest.

WHEN THE BOARD reconvened about an hour later, acting secretary Randall Shaw of Wayne read a short statement outlining the board's proposal.

"The board reprimands Harry Mills for not adequately advising the board concerning the Knox County special education consultant and reaffirms that no personnel can be hired or salary fixed without prior board approval," the statement read.

The reprimand resolution was approved with nine affirmative votes. Dr. Veryl Walstrom of Knox County abstained. An hour earlier, Walstrom had voted against convening an executive session to discuss the matter.

Neither Mills nor any board member discussed the reprimand during the board's reconvened public meeting that followed the executive session.

THE ONLY INDICATION that an executive session was forthcoming was the listing of the "personnel matters" on the board's monthly agenda under new business.

In addition, though the board's meeting notice, prepared by Mills, indicated that the monthly meeting would be held at Laurel-Concord Public Schools complex, it did not indicate the room selected for the public session.

The meeting was held in the band room of the public school complex.

When the ESU board's reprimand was read and passed, several school administrators from Knox County were present, including John Post, superintendent at Bloomfield.

POST, WHO ACTED as spokesman for the group, made no comment on the reprimand, but did inform the board that the Knox County superintendents had done nothing in connection with the special education consultant without the full knowledge of Mills.

Post, who spoke to the board on behalf of five school systems in Knox County, told the ESU board members that the February letter regarding special education consultant Richard Genovese was nothing more than an indication the schools wanted him back for the coming year and were willing to pay the bill.

Genovese, who was at the meeting, received a top-notch performance rating from Post on behalf of the Knox County school administrators.

During the board's regular monthly meeting last month, Mills gave his other three supervisors an "unqualified recommendation" for contract extensions and salary increases. He backed away from doing so in the case of Genovese.

AT THE FEBRUARY meeting, the board not only extended Mills' contract with a $2,250 pay hike for 1982-83, but also recontracted with three of the four supervisors.

Duane Tappe, ESU special education director, Larry Clay, the unit's director of psychological services and Gary Vopalensky, the unit's language, speech and hearing director, all received one-year contracts of $2,000 pay hikes.

Genovese was not offered a contract at the February meeting, Mills did not question, nor did he challenge, the board's action.

The Knox County school administrator's had suggested that Genovese be retained for special education services in their county at a pay hike above that offered by the board to the other supervisors.

A LETTER CONTAINING that recommendation was sent to Mills and sparked the controversy at the February meeting, prompting board member Dave Hey to accuse Mills of causing the problem.

Despite the fact that Mills at no time came to the defense of Genovese during the February meeting, Tuesday night he told the board he had no problem with the supervisor's performance.

In addition, Mills openly acknowledged that Genovese's credentials were better than those of the other three supervisors.

Third Energy Task Force member in Council bid

A third member of the Wayne Energy Task Force has filed for election to a seat on the City Council.

Dean Metz, 36, an associate professor of physics in the Wayne State College Department of Mathematics and Science, filed late Friday for the Ward 2 seat held by incumbent Councilwoman Carolyn Fittler, 38.

Metz, a Pittsburgh, Pa., native, joins businessman Kenneth Marra and educator Gary Vopalensky, also Wayne Energy Task Force members, in municipal government election bids this year.

MARRA, 34, 15 vice president of Marra Home Improvement Co., Wayne.

He recently announced his bid for the Ward 3 City Council seat held by incumbent Councilman Leo Hansen, 65, a city resident and Wayne County farmer.

Vopalensky, 30, director of speech and hearing at Wakefield-based Educational Service Unit One and a first-term city councilman, recently announced his candidacy for mayor.

Incumbent Mayor Wayne Marsh, 68, a long-time Wayne businessman, also has announced his re-election bid for the city's top post.

If elected mayor, Councilman Vopalensky, who also has expressed an interest in running for the state Legislature, would be required to relinquish his Ward 4 City Council seat. Under law, the seat would be filled by mayoral appointment.

WITH THE METZ filing, only one City Council race remains uncontested.

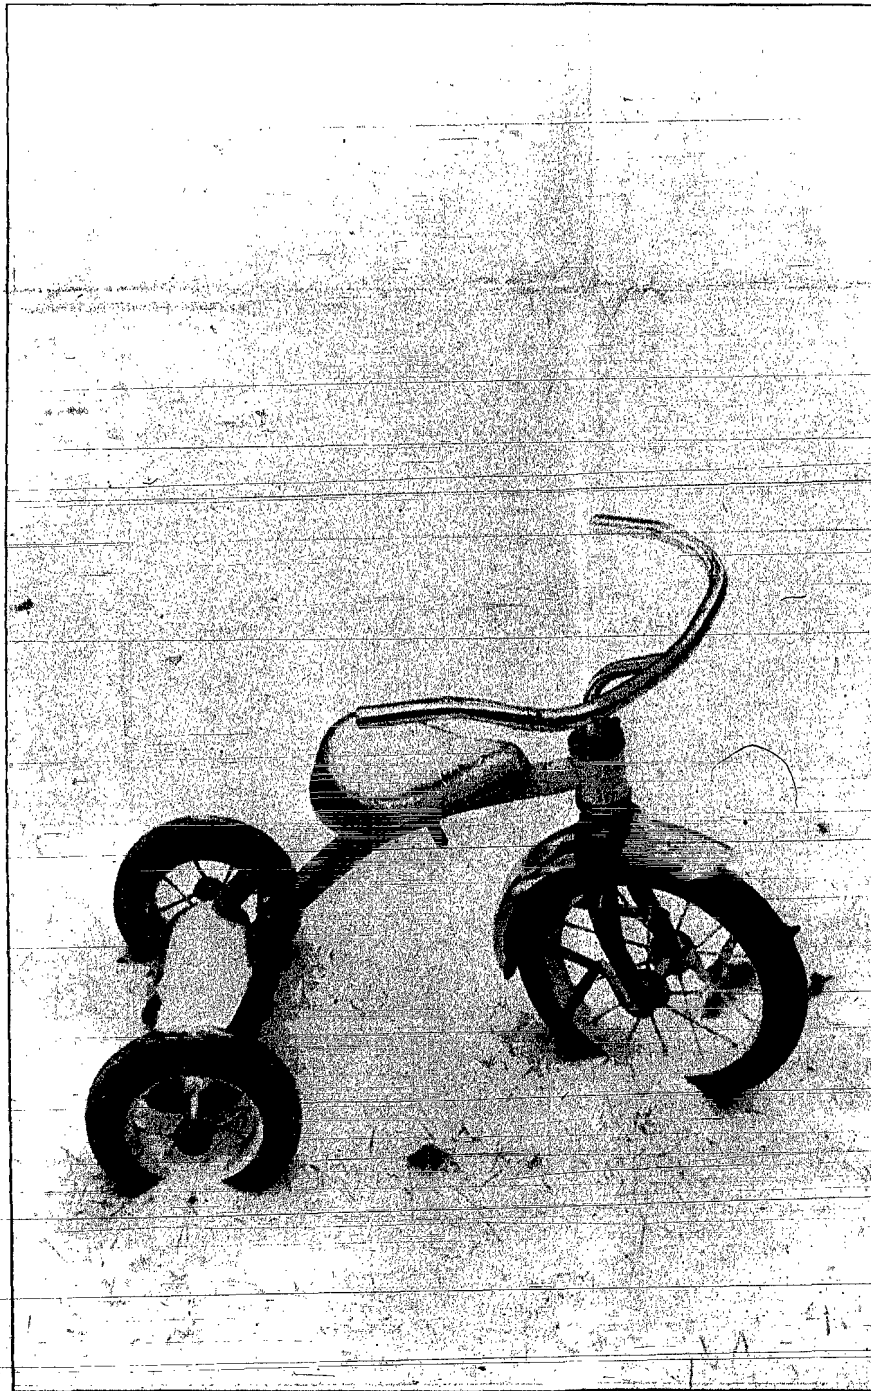

That seat is held by Ward 4 Councilman Larry Johnson, 46, owner/operator of Johnson's Frozen Foods, Wayne.

Johnson recently filed for re-election. Under state election law, the filing deadline for incumbents was Feb. 25.

The filing deadline for non-incumbents is Friday, March 12.

Metz, a 1954 graduate of Langley High School in Pittsburg, attended Phoenix Junior College, Phoenix, Ariz., and graduated from Arizona State at Tempe in 1960.

Trike without a track

NORTHEAST NEBRASKA'S late-winter thaw ended so suddenly that the owner of this tricycle got caught with a snow-covered seat. March came in like a lamb

Monday, but by Tuesday a blanket of fresh-fallen snow smothered the countryside in and around Wayne. Snow and wind continued throughout Wednesday.

Son files for post County attorney decides against re-election bid

Less than a week after his father failed to file for re-election to the office of Wayne County Attorney, 27-year-old Todd Bornhoff entered the primary-election race for the post.

After 10 years as county attorney, Budd B. Bornhoff, 62, confirmed Monday that he will not be seeking re-election. The filing deadline for incumbents was last Thursday. "I'm not going to run," the veteran county official told The Wayne Herald.

MEANWHILE, Bornhoff's son, a graduate of the University of Nebraska Law School, filed for the post his father has held for a decade.

Young Bornhoff, who has not passed the state law boards for admission to the Nebraska Bar Association, filed for a spot on the Republican Party ballot in the May 11 primary election.

Under law, the county attorney must be a lawyer.

The senior Bornhoff, who is a Democrat, was appointed to the county attorney's post in April of 1972. He declined further comment on his decision.

Wayne businessman buys hardware store

Sherry Brothers Inc., a Wayne True Value hardware store, located between Main and Pearl streets, has been sold.

New owner Rod Varilek of Wayne, and his partner Tim Wraga of Emerson, bought the hardware store and fertilizer business from partners Bob and Don Sherry.

Bob Sherry will continue as manager of the hardware store, according to Varilek, a 37-year-old Wayne area businessman who also owns and operates a wholesale agricultural business.

VARILEK, A BEEMER native, said the business will operate under a new name — Wayne True Value Farm & Home Center. Marrie Backstrom of Wayne has been appointed manager of the operation's Wayne fertilizer plant, according to Varilek, who also is a partner in the Carroll Fertilizer Co. Kevin Dorsey manages the Carroll operation.

Varilek, a 1970 graduate of Wayne State College, and Wraga are partners in an Emerson fertilizer plant.

Wraga, who operates the Emerson plant, is general manager of the fertilizer operation in the partnership, which now includes the Sherry Brothers Inc.

"WE PLAN to increase our product line and inventory," Varilek told The Wayne

Herald Tuesday.

"In addition, we plan to put in a complete lawn-service department," Varilek explained. "We plan to be the professionals in lawn care in Wayne County."

He said the lawn-service department will include such items as customer service, soil testing and fertilizing in addition to a complete product line.

Varilek said an open house promotion is being planned for the week beginning Monday, March 15. The week-long promotion is expected to feature a Chamber of Commerce coffee at the store on Friday, March 19.

ACCORDING TO Varilek, the company has already increased the staff as part of expansion plans.

The lawn-care service will operate out of the east side of the present building, which features about 7,000 square feet of floor space.

The company's expanded inventory will continue to be merchandized in the western side of the store, according to Varilek.

Varilek, a former manager of an agricultural fertilizer company, is a 1949 graduate of Beemer High School and served with the Marine Corps Air Wing in Vietnam. He and his wife, Susan, are the parents of three children — Heather, 11, Heidi, 4, and Joshua, nearly 1.

Winside School District's kindergarten roundup is scheduled to start at 9 a.m. Friday, April 2. ### January set weather records

January was one for the record books. National Weather Service reporting stations in Wakefield and Norfolk indicate that the month was up to 10 degrees colder than normal. And, the snow helped keep that thermometer reading in the sub-zero range with reporting stations indicating this area received anywhere from 1 to 1.25 inches of moisture above the norm. Furthermore, Northern Natural Gas Co. of Omaha has released figures indicating the month was 45 percent colder than January of 1981 and 21 percent colder than normal.

Corps cuts back on services

Despite recently announced Army Corps of Engineers cut backs in services at 43 recreational areas in a four-state region, no changes are expected for Lewis and Clark Lake. Services will be eliminated at only three out of a total of 108 Corps managed areas at 24 lake projects in Nebraska, South Dakota, North Dakota and Montana, according to the Corps Omaha District office. Services at Lewis and Clark Lake will remain at the same level, according to an office statement released this month.

Express mail forwarding starts

Express Mail can now be forwarded at no extra charge to the mailer, according to Thomas R. Jones, Wayne postmaster. Jones said that in the past Express Mail, which was undeliverable as addressed, could be forwarded locally but could not be forwarded to another post office. The change allows Express Mail to be forwarded from one city or town to another.

Wayne sets kindergarten session

Wayne Elementary School invites all parents who will have children in kindergarten for the 1982-83 school year to visit the regular kindergarten class before Kindergarten Roundup. Parents are encouraged to bring their child to see what will be expected of them and what kindergarten is really like. There will still be the regular roundup on March 26 for screening purposes. Parents interested in having their child visit kindergarten are asked to call the office, 375-3854, to let school officials know what day they would like to attend.

Bawk! Bawk! Chicken show to include national omelet cook-off

Area residents are urged to begin gathering recipe ideas for an omelet cook-off being held in conjunction with Wayne's second annual Chicken Show.

The American Egg Board confirmed at a recent national meeting that the first National Omelet Cook Off will be held in Wayne the day of the Chicken Show.

This year's Chicken Show, which is again being sponsored by the Wayne Regional Arts Council (WRAC) is scheduled Saturday, July 10.

JANE O'LEARY, a member of WRAC, said plans for the second annual Chicken Show are well underway.

Mrs. O'Leary said celebrities and large corporations associated with chickens are being contacted.

This year's Chicken Show will once again feature an omelet feed provided through the Milton G. Waldbaum Co. of Wakefield.

THIS YEAR'S parade will be expanded to include all types of entries, such as businesses, organizations, individual adults, as well as a judged kid's parade.

The art's council hopes to renew the tradition of the "old-fashioned parade," said Mrs. O'Leary.

KENTUCKY FRIED Chicken is preparing its "Chicken Cadillac" for a trip to Wayne, and the Chick Fillet Co. will send its eight-foot chicken.

According to Mrs. O'Leary, one or two poultry enthusiasts in the region have indicated they are purchasing exotic chickens to be displayed at the show.

"THE PURPOSE of the Chicken Show is primarily to have a day of good-natured fun," said Mrs. O'Leary.

Mrs. O'Leary said the chicken theme was originally chosen because it is adaptable to so many puns, costumes and contests.

Although the arts council is doing most of the leg work for the event, Mrs. O'Leary said community support and volunteers are needed to make the show a success.

THE NEXT meeting of the Wayne Regional Arts Council will be Thursday, March 18 at the Black Knight.

Discussion of the Chicken Show will begin about 9 p.m. and all interested persons are invited to attend.

Tigers gobble up Wayne's Blue Devils in districts

Second seeded North Bend shut down Wayne's offense as the Tigers drilled the Blue Devils 50-29 Saturday night in the Class B & District Tournament at Northeast Tech in Norfolk.

Wayne's point production dropped considerably from its 74 point output in its final regular season loss to Hartington CC.

"They knew exactly who to guard," said Wayne coach Bill Sharpe, who said North Bend must have either scouted Wayne or received a scouting report from another coach.

NEITHER TEAM took many shots and shooting percentage was the big difference in the ball game. The Devils hit 12 of 40 shots for 30 percent while the Tigers made 21 of 46 shots for 46 percent accuracy.

The first quarter was close but North Bend took control in the second period and never let up. The Blue Devils trailed by two points when North Bend hit a basket in the final seconds of the first quarter.

In the first 35 seconds of the second half, the Tigers scored six points to build up a 10 point lead. Wayne trailed by 10 points or more throughout most of the second half.

The loss ended Wayne's season with a 5-5 record. In other first round action, Hartington CC received a bye, Columbus Scottus topped Schuyler and West Point ripped Columbus Lakeview. In semifinal round play, Scotus knocked out up Kenedy, Hartington CC and West Point eliminated North Bend.

MARK BOFENKAMP had one of his best performances of the season. Saturday night he scored 10 points and pulled down 10 rebounds to lead the Blue Devils in both categories. Steve Overin had eight points and Shaun Niemann added six.

The Blue Devils had a tough night offensively. They scored only one point during the entire fourth quarter. North Bend held the ball much of the final period while pro-

Randy's Recap

By Randy Hascall

A DICTIONARY definition of gladiator is "swordsman, combatant who fought in the arena, one involved in a fight." The Omaha Gladiators don't quite fit that definition.

The Gladiators are a group of sixth and seventh graders from the Omaha area who play basketball. The group was in Wayne Sunday to play Wayne's recreation boys and girls.

Each October, tryouts are held in Omaha and seven sixth graders are selected to the team. The next year, the boys move up to the seventh grade team and seven new sixth graders are chosen by tryouts.

These two teams travel together to play basketball games in a 200 mile radius of Omaha. Their trips take them to such places as Kansas City, Sioux City, Sioux Falls and Des Moines. And if those trips don't sound exciting enough, there is the summer trip.

This year the Gladiators will tour the northern coast of Australia on their annual international trip. During the past five years, New Zealand, Poland and Australia were among the various stops.

The international trip is all expenses paid for each player. The corporation, Gladiators Athletic Association, pays for the international trip, uniforms and all other trips through a bingo license.

The Gladiators play three or four nights a week plus Saturday and Sunday. In all, they play between 80 and 90 games a year. Each member of the Gladiators team is expected to keep his grades up or sit out until they are brought up.

The Gladiators were organized in 1970 by Dr. Daniel D. Schrein who is in his 12th year as coach and director of the teams. Dr. Schrein said the Gladiators were formed to give sixth and seventh grade boys with above average basketball talent an opportunity to develop their skills at an accelerated pace. Their motto is "More than Basketball."

Basketball is not the only sport included in the Gladiators Athletic Association. Schrein said some 15 sports including football, soccer, baseball and softball draw participation in the Gladiators organization.

WILLIE NEID of Grand Island built a reputation as a mean lineman in a rugged sport when he played football at Wayne State College in the early to middle 1970's.

Now, Neid may have found a sport that is even more rugged. The burly but friendly Neid is now clobbering opponents on the rugby field as a member of the Grand Island Rugby Football Club.

Neid

Six members of the GI Rugby Club will leave today on a tour of Great Britain, the rugby capital of the world. Neid is one of the six who will travel with a Kansas City contingent to face five teams in a two-week span. One of the opponents, Rummy, is an international power in rugby.

The Grand Island and Kansas City teams combined forces three weeks ago to defeat Kansas State University 4-0. The GI team placed fourth in Omaha and Lincoln rugby tournaments last year and finished seventh in the 23-team Heart of America tourney at Columbia, Mo.

"Although the rugby is the main reason we're going, I'm going to go to Edinboro, Scotland. The history is so vast everywhere," said Neid, who plans to stop in Ireland on St. Patrick's Day.

DOUG PROETT, a track and cross country standout at Wayne High School the past several years, is continuing to excel in running events.

The Wayne High grad is now running for Hutchinson Junior College and will be competing in the upcoming NAIA National Indoor Track Meet at Champagne, Ill. Proett and three teammates will compete a medley relay team that will race Friday against teams from nearly four-year colleges.

The Hutchinson relay team qualified for nationals because of its time in a regional meet last week. Proett also qualified in the mile run for the JUCO national meet but withdrew in order to run with his medley relay team in the NAIA nationals.

The Wayne native placed second in the mile and two mile at the Doane Invitational last week.

Wayne 8th grade boys top Gladiators; 7th grade loses

As a good sized home crowd watched, the Wayne recreation boys teams split competition Sunday with the Omaha Gladiators.

The Wayne seventh grade team played a major role as the Gladiators' sixth graders but Wayne's eighth graders evened the count by topping Omaha's seventh grade team 55-43.

Gladiators 45, Wayne 51: In a high scoring game, free throws played a major role as the Gladiators ended Wayne's season with a 6-2 record.

The Omaha team hit 17 foul shots compared to five for Wayne. The hosts had a solid first quarter performance while building a 16-13 lead. Russ Longe had the hot hand in that quarter and finished the first half with 10 points.

The Gladiators were in the bonus situation early in the second quarter. Five team free throws combined with four baskets by one player lifted Omaha into a 28-23 half-time lead.

Ted McCright warmed up his shooting touch and launched six baskets from the outside in the second half. However, the Gladiators did even better in the shooting match.

Longe and McCright each had 14 points to lead the hosts. Troy Wood scored four points in the first quarter and seven in the second half to total 11 points. Bill Liska scored six, Jon Stoffenberg had four and Ted Lueders, playing with a broken hand, added two points.

Gladiators 12 15 14 23-45 Wayne 16 7 8 20-51

Wayne 55, Gladiators 43: Led by Don Larsen and Shannon Dorcey, the Wayne eighth graders tripped up the Omaha Gladiators' seventh grade team.

Larsen dumped in 20 points including eight in the second quarter and eighth in the fourth. Dorcey, a guard, kept Omaha honest by hitting 12 points on outside shots. He hit three baskets in the first quarter and one in each of the other three periods.

In addition to those two, the hosts received help from Tom Perry with eight points, Brent Pick with six, Dan Gross with four, Scott Baker with four and Jon McCright with one.

Wayne opened up leads of 13-7 after the first quarter and 28-17 at the half. The hosts went into a deliberate style of play for the final three minutes of the first half. The Gladiators tried to rally in the third period but a 15-10 Wayne advantage in the fourth quarter held off the attack.

Girls defeat Fremont, lose to Omaha

By splitting their final two contests, the Wayne recreation junior high girls finished the season with a 6-2 record.

The girls defeated Fremont 32-26 on Feb. 20 but lost 39-23 this past Sunday to the Omaha Gladiators. Both season losses have come at the hands of the Gladiators.

Wayne 32, Fremont 26: Laura Keating and Jodi Diltman each popped in 12 points to lead Wayne to victory over Fremont. Keating had eight points in the first half and Diltman had eight in the second.

The locals opened up a seven point lead after one quarter but Fremont tied the game at 22-all by the end of the third period. Wayne's two leading scorers accounted for all 10 points in the final quarter.

Wayne scoring: Keating 12, Diltman 12, Shelly Pick 3, Jennifer Moore 2, Lesa McDermott 2, Sonja Skokan 1.

Fremont 11 8 3 10-32 Wayne 4 12 6 4-26

Gladiators 39, Wayne 23: The second quarter proved to be the big difference as Wayne's girls lost their final season game to the Omaha Gladiators Sunday at the Wayne city auditorium.

The hosts led 9-5 after one-quarter but were outscored 16-2 in the second period as the Gladiators took control.

Wayne was paced by Laura Keating with 13 points. Jodi Diltman scored five points, Shelly Pick scored three and Jennifer Moore added a basket to round out the scoring in the losing effort.

The Gladiators were led by one player with 18 points. The Omahans had a decisive edge at the free throw line. They hit 11 of 16 free throws while Wayne made only 3 of 11 foul shots.

Gladiators 5 16 12 4-39 Wayne 9 2 4 8-23

Former bar owner says punishment excessive Winside man's appeal reaches high court

The Nebraska State Supreme Court has taken under advisement the appeal of a former Winside tavern owner convicted in June on charges of possession with intent to deliver cocaine and marijuana.

Monday, the attorney for Charles Weible, 38, son of former Wayne County Sheriff Don "Butch" Weible, contended before the court that the prosecution deliberately suppressed evidence that could have been favorable to his client.

Norfolk attorney Vince Kirby, who represented Weible during the week-long Ninth District Court jury trial at the Wayne County Courthouse last summer, told the high court that the judge, Richard P.

Garden, erred in allowing the use of certain prosecution evidence at the trial.

KIRBY ALSO told the court that the sentence imposed was an abuse of discretion resulting from "passion and prejudice."

In July, Garden sentenced Weible to five to eight years in prison for possession with intent to deliver cocaine.

He also sentenced Weible to two to five years for possession with intent to deliver marijuana, and one to three years for possession of cocaine. Judge Garden ordered two of the three prison terms to be served concurrently.

And, in the appeal, Weible is contending the punishment was excessive.

KIRBY TOLD the high court Monday that Weible had no prior criminal record and was a respected Winside businessman.

Other defendants in the case, according to Kirby, were treated much less harshly.

Weible was arrested in conjunction with a 1980 Winside drug raid by the Nebraska State Patrol.

Three of the defendants were sentenced to prison and a fourth was fined and ordered to take part in chemical dependency rehabilitation.

One of the defendants is serving his sentence at the Wayne County jail.

Board

One of the Knox County administrators told the board that they turned to Genovese because Vopalsensky rarely appeared at the schools in the county — one of six in the unit which also includes Cedar, Dakota, Dixon, Thurston and Wayne counties.

MILLS CONTENDED Tuesday that he had directed his supervisors to leave Knox County to Genovese for supervision of the ESU programs.

However, during the February meeting, Mills portrayed the situation as a power play on the part of Knox County school administrators working in concert with Genovese against the board.

Bloomfield Superintendent Post, Tuesday night, presented the board with a running account of dozens of meetings held with Mills and other ESU supervisors, including Vopalsensky, since 1980 regarding Genovese.

One meeting, Post said, involved a 4½ hour session to discuss the Genovese salary question. Post also challenged Mills' account of that meeting.

MILLS' HAD indicated that Genovese was present during his own salary discussion. Post told the board that was not the case.

Despite Post's meeting to meeting account of how Knox County informed Mills of a need for more special education services through ESU and the eventual screening and hiring of Genovese, the retention of the education specialist remains unresolved.

Tuesday night, the board selected a three member committee to meet with three Knox County school administrators, perhaps as early as next week, to resolve the problems.

Several ESU board members, including chairman Wiese, apologized to Post and the other Knox County school administrators for what Mills is calling a misunderstanding.

"I WILL ASSUME full responsibility for the misunderstanding," Mills told the board with school administrators from Bloomfield, Creighton, Crofton Niobrara and Verdigre in the audience.

Mills recommended that the ESU board "fulfill the special education services request" for Knox County, a recommendation he did not make during last month's meeting.

In fact, the recommendation did not come until after Post informed the board that nothing had been done with regard to Genovese and the county's need for more special education services without "the full knowledge of the ESU administrator."

More than once during Tuesday night's meeting Post said that the Knox County administrators "assumed that Mills had kept the ESU board informed about the matter, particularly since it involved a number of meetings with the ESU administrator."

"I WAS NOT AS well informed at the last meeting as I am at this one," chairman Wiese told Post and the other Knox County administrators.

"I was misinformed and it's partially my own fault," he continued. "I don't want Knox County to go with any less in the way of services."

Wiese said he hoped the problem could be rectified. "What's past is past, now we have to put everything back together," he added.

Knox County school administrators have been concerned for well over two years that the area's distance from the rest of the ESU counties has brought about reduced special education services to students in the schools there, according to Post.

THE RESULT WAS an opening of discussions with Mills about the need for a special education supervisor as far back as 1980, according to Post.

Mills said only that he had informed the board of the Knox County request.

The administrator also reminded the board that he has often said that if member schools make the request and are willing to pay the bill, ESU will provide the services.

Post told the board that he did not see why then there was a problem with Knox County's request for extending Genovese's contract, particularly when the schools involved were willing to pay the bill.

Knox County school administrators planning to meet with the ESU committee to resolve the problem include Robert Jacobs of Verdigre, Randy Anderson of Crofton and Post of Bloomfield.

Attorney

His current term expires in January of 1983.

THE WAYNE LAWYER took the oath of office for county attorney on June 1, 1972, after being appointed to fill the unexpired term of Donald Reed.

Reed, who was a partner in a Wayne law firm with attorney Kenneth Olds, resigned the county attorney post. The Reed family moved to Hawaii in June, 1972.

The senior Bornhoff was appointed to the post during a special meeting of the Wayne County Board of Commissioners in late April, 1972.

The Tyler, Minn., native grew up in Wayne County, where his father — young Bornhoff's grandfather — served as police chief for the City of Wayne for many years.

A GRADUATE OF Wayne State College and the University of Nebraska Law School, the county attorney began his Wayne law practice in 1947.

The senior Bornhoff, who has maintained a private law practice from his Main Street south offices, had not filed for re-election at the Wayne County Clerk's office by 5 p.m. Thursday.

That was the deadline for incumbents seeking a spot on the May 11 primary election ballot.

To date, no one qualified to hold the office has filed for a spot on the primary election ballot.

The filing deadline for non-incumbents is Friday, March 12.

police report

Wayne police are seeking suspects involved in the vandalism of two vehicles in a private parking lot near the Gay Theatre Sunday night.

According to police, Barry Franzen and Larry Poppe, both of Wayne, reported extensive damage to their vehicles.

The windshield was shattered on the Franzen vehicle, which was parked in the private lot north of the Gay Theatre, police said.

In addition, the vandals used a heavy sharp instrument to put more than 20 dents in the body of the vehicle, according to police.

POLICE SAID both vandalism incidents occurred between 7 and 9 p.m. Sunday.

The Poppe vehicle, which also was parked in the same private lot, was spray painted with black paint on the hood, trunk lid and both sides, police said.

According to police, a number of words were painted along the right side with black paint and a sharp, heavy instrument was used to put more than 50 dents in the body of the vehicle.

On Saturday night police arrested two subjects at a private residence on Lincoln after responding to complaints about loud party noise.

The subjects were arrested for liquor law violations.

IN ADDITION, police have impounded two dogs since last Friday.

One dog, described as a Husky puppy, was impounded at 7:43 p.m. Friday in the 900 Block of Logan Street.

The dog was dragging about 20 feet of chain, police said.

The other dog, which was impounded Saturday night, was found over to police by a rural Wayne woman who found it on Main Street.

The dog was held with a citation to be issued to the owner before being released.

Little tumblers

WHETHER THEY ARE bouncing on the bars, balancing on the beam, or maneuvering on the mats, these little gymnasts are learning that gymnastics can be fun as well as work. The youngsters, who meet each Thursday afternoon at Rice Auditorium on the Wayne State College campus, are all students of Mrs. Pat Craun. Beginning clockwise from upper left photo, four-year-old Jessica Sievers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Sievers of Wayne, struggles for her balance on the beam. Holly Helgren, 12-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Helgren of Laurel, does splits on the beam, while four-year-old Jed Erickson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Erickson of Wisner, receives help from a Wayne State practicum student on the uneven bars. Tina Granquist, nine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rolland Granquist of Laurel, looks up from the balance beam, and little Jenny Weisenberg, four-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Weisenberg of Laurel, practices her balance on the beam. Posing in the photograph at left are, from left with parents' names in parenthesis, Jessica Sievers of Wayne (Rodney), Ben Dahl of Laurel (Lee), Jenny Weisenberg of Laurel (Robert), Mary Ewing of Wayne (Dave), Nick Norgaard of Wisner, and Jed Erickson of Wisner (Wayne).

Taiwan grain and the election train on same track

By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association
Gov. Charles Thone has long supported promotion of Nebraska agricultural products abroad...

LUEDTKE QUICKLY convened reporters in his Statehouse office to "clarify" the situation. He emphasized the sale hasn't been canceled — it was merely postponed.

The Taiwan government requires three bids at least, while only one had been submitted at the time of the planned trip. OK, so the trade mission still might take place, but what about the implication that Thone wasn't too hot on the idea?

In the interim, the story came out about the Taiwan grain deal, and the next day — the same day of Lamb's news conference — Luedtke summoned reporters to his office. And Luedtke picked the same time as Lamb's announcement.

And the type of research being done at state institutions is endless. But recently the National Cancer Institute announced a major grant for an important research project that could have worldwide implications.

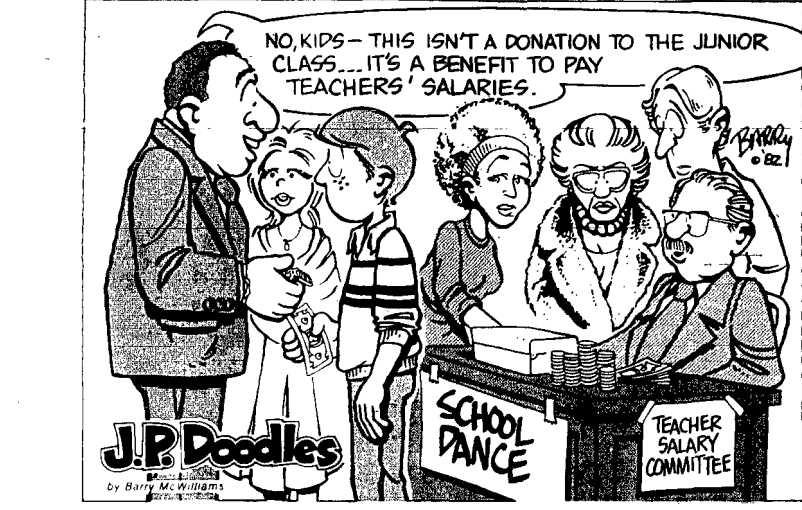

LT. GOV. ROLAND Luedtke is going to get a run for his money in this spring's Republican primary election. At this writing, Luedtke has two primary opponents in his re-election bid.

Perhaps Lamb is correct in saying the governor and lieutenant governor need to cooperate more. But if probably does the executive branch of government some good to have individuals in the No. 1 and No. 2 jobs...

Individual yield plan started

All-risk insurance is introducing a new program called the individual yield coverage plan, stated Don Harmon, district director for the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation. The purpose of this program is to provide individuals with their own guarantees for their farms as outlined in the Federal Crop Insurance Act of 1980.

Farmers may opt to substitute their yield records for the established FCIC yield for their acre, said Harmon. They can file records for a minimum of the last five consecutive planted crop years for the crop or crops involved. They can also file records for a minimum of the last five consecutive years for 1YC. Up to 10 years, certified production records may be utilized in the program. Harmon elaborated further, interested farmers need to have their records checked for certification at least 15 days before the closing date of sales for the crop. This will allow for the necessary forms to be processed.

Farmers interested in 1YC should check with a local all-risk crop insurance agent to see if they qualify for the program. All-risk crop insurance's 1YC plan helps farmers take the risk out of taking risks.

Corn growers win sweepstakes

Kenneth Frevert of Wayne and Larry Slevers of Wayne and Lee Maroltz of Hoskins have been named winners of bags of Crow's Hybrid Corn in their company's 1982 Corn Spectacular Sweepstakes Contest. Corn growers shared more than 1,750 bags of corn given away to winners of the contest. Frevert was awarded 15 bags while Slevers and Maroltz each won five bags. Crow's Hybrid Corn Company distributes hybrids in 10 Midwestern states. The company's home office is in Milford, Illinois.

Irrigation management meeting

Getting top profit from irrigation requires a number of correct management decisions says Don C. Spitzke, Wayne County extension agent.

"In order to help you make these decisions we are having six different speakers in six different areas give you information you need at the Wayne County Extension Irrigation Management meeting," said Spitzke. The meeting is planned Monday (March 8) at the Windmill Restaurant in Wayne starting at 10 a.m.

Topics to be included are pumping plant efficiency, off peak irrigation, cutting fertilizer costs, tillage and planting, irrigation scheduling, the right varieties for irrigation and insect scouting.

The highlight of the meeting will be the presentation of practices and results on 15 to 18 irrigated fields in Wayne County.

Sheep producers meet

The Nebraska Area Sheep Day will be held Thursday, March 11, at Pierce Co. 4-H building beginning with coffee at 9:30 a.m. There will be a $2 registration fee that will include a lamb dinner prepared by Pierce County Extension Ladies.

A very informational program is planned on predator control, breeding program, ewe management at lambing, and determining wool values. Speakers are Bill Zollinger, Bob Timm, Ted Deane, and Mike Wallace.

The Northeast Nebraska Sheep Producers Association will have its bi-monthly meeting in conjunction with this day at 11:30 a.m.

A tour is planned to Clay Center Meat Animal Research Center on May 3. Anyone interested should contact President Verlie Holm, Wakefield or Leah Agler, Wayne, Treasurer of NENSPA.

Workshop set in Hartington

Farmer Ralph Engelken of Greeley, Iowa will be the featured speaker on Thursday, March 11 at the fifth in a series of winter workshops sponsored by the Small Farm Energy Project. Engelken will discuss soil management techniques with reduced costs. His discussion is based on many years of natural farming. The family farm operated by Engelken is a diversified, 500 acre diversified crop and livestock farm in northeast Iowa. The session will begin at 9:30 a.m. at the First Congregational Church in Hartington.

Engelken and his wife, Rita, have published a book entitled, "The Art of Natural Farming and Gardening," based on nearly 25 years of experience. The Engelkens will discuss organic soil management, tillage for fertility, composting of livestock manures, quality feeds from natural farming, and crop rotations. Rita Engelken will also discuss organic gardening.

All the session, Cedar County farmers also will participate in panel discussions on local soil management considerations, composting and minimum tillage.

The public is invited to attend the workshop. Pre registration is requested by calling the Energy Project at 402-254-6893. A $2 registration fee will be charged at the door.

Hog money available at high interest rates

Money will be available from traditional sources to creditworthy borrowers in the hog industry in the foreseeable future, but interest rates will remain high relative to other operating costs, an Omaha financier told those attending the ninth annual Nebraska Feeder Pig Exposition in Columbus.

Owen J. Kirby, vice president, credit operations department, Federal Intermediate Credit Bank of Omaha, which services 10 Production Credit Associations in Nebraska and three other states, termed the farm credit outlook "good," but conceded interest rates currently are about twice the rate of inflation.

He said the key words for producers in financing production in the 1980s are vigilance, prudence and common sense. Kirby commended producers for their achievements, along with other sectors of American agriculture, in production efficiency. But he warned that more emphasis must now be given to marketing and financial management.

In an overview of financing pork production in the 1980s, Kirby made these other points:

In competition for the "protein dollar" paid by consumers, pork producers will be competing among themselves, as well as with beef, poultry and seafood producers, with the latter two expected to make gains in per capita consumption.

Looking at traditional hog cycles for guidance in financial decisions is not of much value now, because the type of hog operations carried on today (intensified confinement production) are different than those on which past hog cycles have been based.

Keeping facilities full of hogs generally is desirable, even in a lean loss management.

The 1980s likely will bring more contracts for production of specific types and quality of pork to meet the needs of a given market.

Kirby urged family hog operators to "be good readers and good thinkers. Think as a family; pool your knowledge." He advised setting business goals and exercising "practice and discipline" in moving toward the goals. Margins are likely to be narrow on pork through the 1980s, he predicted.

The Expo is sponsored by the Nebraska Feeder Pig Committee, University of Nebraska Cooperative Extension Service and the Platte Calfax Pork Producers Association.

LAWN CARE

It won't be long until spring so it's time to be thinking about spring lawn care.

Taking steps now will mean a healthier lawn this spring. This will include raking the lawn to remove debris such as sticks, stones, bones and wire that may have accumulated over the winter months.

Lawns should be mowed as short as possible with the first mowing in the spring before the lawn greens up. The winter burned leaf and shoot material should be removed, but don't discard it. This material makes excellent mulch material around trees, shrubs, flowerbeds and gardens.

Low mowing and removal of debris stimulates earlier spring green-up by allowing the sun's energy to warm the soil rapidly. Close mowing should be done before most of the lawn has initiated spring growth. Mow close only once and then return to the 1 1/2 to 2 inch cutting recommended for bluegrass lawns.

FERTILIZING

Low mowing and removal of debris stimulates earlier spring green-up by allowing the sun's energy to warm the soil rapidly. Close mowing should be done before most of the lawn has initiated spring growth. Mow close only once and then return to the 1 1/2 to 2 inch cutting recommended for bluegrass lawns.

Early spring fertilizer applications should be avoided - especially heavy applications that promote lush, dark green growth. Heavy spring fertilization encourages leaf spot disease problems and discourages high temperature and drought tolerance. The best approach is to practice late fall (mid to late October) fertilization coupled with light applications of nitrogen in the spring.

If this is not feasible, lighter applications of fertilizer on a more frequent basis may be used. Care must be taken not to promote lush, succulent growth that is less tolerant to disease, wear and drought.

Other spring lawn care practices which should be completed are aeration, thatch removal if it is a problem and weed control. Preemergence weed control for crabgrass should be applied in mid to late April and broadleaved weeds such as dandelion can be controlled also, but fall is the best time to control these pests.

AFRICAN VIOLET CARE

Plants that grow spindly and maintain small leaves on long thin stems, may produce a poor bud set. Correct this condition by providing more light and humidity. It is also very important that you take precaution in your watering habits.

Make sure that the soil is moist at all times. It should not remain saturated, however. Soil conditions are very important in maintaining optimum plant growth. Use a soil high in organic matter that will remain loose and fibrous.

LOWER ELKHORN NATURAL RESOURCES DISTRICT

Due to the resignation of Marlon Kraemer from the Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District Board of District, the board is now taking applications to fill Mr. Kraemer's unexpired term. Applicants must be registered voters and reside within the bounds of Subdistrict IV, shown below.

Interested persons should contact the Lower Elkhorn NRD Office, P.O. Box 838, Norfolk, NE 68701; 371-7313.

A resume should be submitted to the Lower Elkhorn NRD by March 15, 1982.

SWINE DAY speakers Alex Hogg, Rodger Johnson, Austin James Lewis, David Shelton and Ernest Peo Jr. answer some questions of Darwin Johnson of Osmond and Howard Fleer of Wayne (center two).

Largest crowd in state

Swine Days program draws 100

Of the 10 Swine Days programs held in Nebraska, Wayne's drew the largest crowd. Nearly 100 persons attended the Swine Days program Thursday at the Wayne city auditorium.

The crowd heard five specialists talk on swine health; copper in swine diets; crossbreeding systems for better sows; energy efficient swine housing and starter diets for pigs.

MIKE BRUMM, a Northeast Station agent and local representative of the Swine Days program, said the Wayne program drew the largest turnout in the state.

Persons from Wayne, Dixon, Cedar, Thurston, Pierce, Cuming, Dakota and Dodge Counties were in attendance. The program was sponsored by the Wayne County Pork Producers and Wayne County Extension Service.

The State National Bank of Wayne paid for the dinner and the Wayne Chamber of Commerce furnished coffee and donuts. Galen Wisner, agriculture representative at State National Bank, was emcee for the program.

Speakers were Dr. Alex Hogg, extension veterinarian at the UNL Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources; Dr. Ernest R. Peo Jr., professor of animal science at the UNL; Dr. Rodger K. Johnson, professor of animal science at UNL Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources;

David Shelton, research associate in the UNL agricultural engineering department; and Austin Lewis Shelton, associate professor of animal science at UNL.

THE WAYNE COUNTY Pork Producers organization was formed in January 1981. Pork Producers President Gene Lutt, Wayne County Extension Agent Don Spitzke and Northeast State Agent Stan Starling all agreed that the swine program was successful.

The purpose of the program was to provide farmers with information about swine production and new innovations. Questions were directed at the five specialists during a noon break and following the program which ended at about 2:30 Thursday afternoon.

Among the topics discussed was the use of solar collectors on farrowing facilities. Supplemental heating or cooling for a swine building depends upon air temperature inside the building, the outside building temperature, the amount and placement of insulation, the quantity of air moved through the building, orientation and location of the building and feed production of the pigs.

THE CROWD was told that insulating to reduce building component heat loss or gain is important.

Rather than heat an entire swine building, many pig producers prefer to provide a hovey area that can be heated with external energy sources and/or by the pig's heat. The hovey area can also be heated through solar energy used to heat the floor or by infrared radiation.

Heat produced by the pigs is an important source of heat for swine buildings.

ANOTHER TOPIC of interest Thursday was the use of copper in swine diets. Peo explained that the use of copper as a growth-promotant in swine has suddenly become widespread in the United States and Nebraska.

Research indicates that copper, acting like an antibiotic, will improve gains and feed conversion of growing-finishing swine. Copper is an essential nutrient and Peo recommends that 10 ppm be added to the diet of all swine for normal growth, maintenance and reproduction.

Copper is much cheaper to add to diets than antibiotics and, as research has shown, often will improve gains and feed conversion of swine to about the same extent as commonly used antibiotics," Peo said.

Peo warned however that there also are minuses to copper use. There is a potential for overdose; copper passes through the pig and manure is highly corrosive to metal feeders, gates and slates; copper increased the rate of sludge buildup in anaerobic storage facilities, copper may inactivate lagoons.

Taiwan grain and the election train on same track

Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association
Gov. Charles Thone has long supported promotion of Nebraska agricultural products abroad...

The Taiwan government requires three bids at least, while only one had been submitted at the time of the planned trip. OK, so the trade mission still might take place...

In the interim, the story came out about the Taiwan grain deal, and the next day - the same day of Lamb's news conference - Luedtke summoned reporters to his office...

At the time there was some speculation about whether Luedtke, who is seeking reelection, was trying to upstage his primary election opponent. Regardless of whether he was, it didn't happen.

And the type of research being done at state institutions is endless. But recently the National Cancer Institute announced a major grant for an important research project that could have worldwide implications...

NU officials said the five-year grant is one of the largest ever awarded to an individual scientist at the Medical Center.

Purtillo said Nebraska has the fifth highest incidence of leukemia and lymphoma. He has formed a statewide task force of physicians and scientists to study the factors that cause the cancers in Nebraska.

Although Purtillo's research is Nebraska based, its findings likely will be studied and discussed nationwide, if not worldwide.

LT. GOV. ROLAND LUEDTKE is going to get a run for his money in this spring's Republican primary election.

At this writing, Luedtke has two primary opponents in his re-election bid. They are state Sen. Howard Lamb of Anselmo and Hhaca farmer Ken Smith.

Lamb, in announcing his candidacy, expressed concern about Luedtke's cooperation with Gov. Charles Thone. Lamb promised to work more cooperatively with Thone than he said Luedtke does.

Luedtke's and Thone's differences have not gone unreported. In fact, they were on opposite sides of some issues during their 1978 campaigns, and reporters figured the two had better have a pow-wow to find a middle ground before the general election.

BUT AFTER the primary the Thone-Luedtke ticket won, and on several occasions since it's been evident neither is afraid to disagree with the other.

Perhaps Lamb is correct in saying the governor and lieutenant governor need to cooperate more. But it probably does the executive branch of government some good to have individuals in the No. 1 and No. 2 jobs.

That's not to say Lamb's approach is wrong. He'd probably do a fine job. But indications are Luedtke has also done well, despite his occasional differences with Thone.

Thone, meanwhile, has said he won't support any primary GOP candidate for lieutenant governor. Maybe Smith is his best counterpart. Smith, after all, thinks it's time to get the common folk involved in government.

To the editor:
We would like to say a public thank you to those people who have made the last four years of wrestling so pleasant for us.

THE BILL WOULD have provided for pseudobills testing along with market restrictions and quarantines of herds stricken by the disease. Mail received by my office ran almost 30/50 on either side of the bill.

Legislature works with priority-bill procedures

Bills ranging from the designation of the paddletish as our state fish to deferring the issuance of new motor vehicle license plates were designated as priority bills as the senators rushed to beat the Feb. 19 deadline.

MEDICAL BENEFITS for the pregnant woman would not be affected, thereby continuing medical coverage from the time pregnancy is verified.

There still would be no control over dogs entering or passing through the state, many of which carry the disease. LB 36 would not control the movement of livestock other than dogs nor of family pets which also transmit the disease.

THE BILL ALSO had a price tag of $300,000 which I could not justify spending for a program that would not be effective. I am hopeful that the breeders and producers will be able to get together in the future and come up with a bill that both can agree on and which will effectively affect this disease.

Individual yield plan started

All risk insurance is introducing a new program called the individual yield coverage plan, stated Don Harmer, district director for the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation. The purpose of this program is to provide individuals with their own guarantees for their farms as outlined in the Federal Crop Insurance Act of 1980.

Farmers may opt to substitute their yield records for the established FCIC yield for their area, said Harmer. Their certified records for a minimum of the last three consecutive planted crop years for the crop or crops involved will qualify them for IYC. Up to 10 years, certified production records may be utilized in the program. Harmer elaborated further, interested farmers need to have their records checked for certification at least 15 days before the closing date of sales for the crop. This will allow for the necessary forms to be processed.

Farmers interested in IYC should check with a local all risk crop insurance agent to see if they qualify for the program. All risk crop insurance's IYC plan helps farmers take the risk out of taking risks.

Corn growers win sweepstakes

Kenneth Frevort of Wayne, Larry Slevers of Wayne and Lee Marolt of Howard have been named winners of bags of Crow's Hybrid Corn in that company's 1982 Corn Spectacular Sweepstakes Contest. Corn growers shared more than 1,750 bags of corn given away to winners of the contest. Frevort was awarded 15 bags while Slevers and Marolt each won five bags. Crow's Hybrid Corn Company distributes hybrids in 10 Midwestern states. The company's home office is in Millford, Ill.

Irrigation management meeting

Getting top profit from irrigation requires a number of correct management decisions says Don C. Spitzke, Wayne County extension agent.

"In order to help you make these decisions we are having six different speakers in six different areas give you information you need at the Wayne County Extension Irrigation Management meeting," said Spitzke. The meeting is planned Monday (March 8) at the Windmill Restaurant in Wayne starting at 10 a.m.

Topics to be included are pumping plant efficiency, off peak irrigation, cutting fertilizer costs, tillage and planting, irrigation scheduling, the right varieties for irrigation and insect scouting.

The highlight of the meeting will be the presentation of practices and results on 15 to 18 irrigated fields in Wayne County.

Sheep producers meet

The Nebraska Area Sheep Day will be held Thursday, March 11, at Pierce Co. 4-H building beginning with coffee at 9:30 a.m. There will be a $2 registration fee that will include a lamb dinner prepared by Pierce County Extension Ladies.

A very informal program is planned on predator control, breeding program, ewe management at lambing, and determining wool values. Speakers are Bill Zollinger, Bob Timm, Ted Doane, and Mike Wallace.

The Northeast Nebraska Sheep Producers Association will have its bi-monthly meeting in conjunction with this day at 11:30 a.m.

A tour is planned to Clay Center Meat Animal Research Center on May 3. Anyone interested should contact President Verle Holm, Wakefield or Leah Agter, Wayne, treasurer of NENSPA.

Workshop set in Hartington

Farmer Ralph Engelken of Greeley, Iowa will be the featured speaker on Thursday, March 11 at the fifth in a series of winter workshops sponsored by the Small Farm Energy Project. Engelken will discuss soil management techniques with reduced costs. His discussion is based on many years of natural farming.

The family farm operated by Engelken is a diversified, 500-acre diversified crop and livestock farm in northeast Iowa. The session will begin at 9:30 a.m. at the First Congregational Church in Hartington.

Engelken and his wife, Rita, have published a book entitled, "The Art of Natural Farming and Gardening," based on nearly 25 years of experience. The Engelkens will discuss organic soil management, tillage for fertility, composting of livestock manures, quality feeds from natural farming, and crop rotations. Rita Engelken will also discuss organic gardening.

At the session, Cedar County farmers also will participate in panel discussions on local soil management considerations, composting and minimum tillage.

The public is invited to attend the workshop. Pre-registration is requested by calling the Energy Project at 402-254-6893. A $2 registration fee will be charged at the door.

Hog money available at high interest rates

Money will be available from traditional sources to creditworthy borrowers in the hog industry in the foreseeable future, but interest rates will remain high relative to other operating cost, an Omaha financier told those attending the ninth annual Nebraska Feeder Pig Exposition in Columbus.

Owen J. Kirby, vice president, credit operations department, Federal Intermediate Credit Bank of Omaha, which services 40 Production Credit Associations in Nebraska and three other states, termed the farm credit outlook "good." Kirby conceded interest rates currently are about twice the rate of inflation.

He said the key words for producers in financing production in the 1980s are vigilance, prudence and common sense. Kirby commended producers for their achievements, along with other sectors of American agriculture, in production efficiency. But he warned that more emphasis must now be given to marketing and financial management.

In an overview of financing pork production in the 1980s, Kirby made these other points:

In competition for the "protein dollar" paid by consumers, pork producers will be competing among themselves, as well as with beef, poultry and seafood producers, with the latter two expected to make gains in per capita consumption.

Looking at traditional hog cycles for guidance in financial decisions is not of much value now, because the type of hog operations carried on today (intensified confinement production) are different than those on which past hog cycles have been based.

Keeping facilities full of hogs generally is desirable, even in "least loss management."

The 1980s likely will bring more contracts for production of specific types and quality of pork to meet the needs of a given market.

Kirby urged family hog operators to "be good readers and good thinkers. Think as a family, pool your knowledge." He advised setting business goals and exercising "practice and discipline" in moving toward the goals. Margins are likely to be narrow on pork through the 1980s, he predicted.

The Expo is sponsored by the Nebraska Feeder Pig Committee, University of Nebraska Cooperative Extension Service and the Platte Collax Pork Producers Association.

LAWN CARE

It won't be long until spring so it's time to be thinking about spring lawn care.

Taking steps now will mean a healthier lawn this spring. This will include taking the lawn to remove debris such as sticks, stones, bones and wire that may have accumulated over the winter months.

Lawns should be mowed as short as possible with the first mowing in the spring before the lawn greens up. The winter burned leaf and shoot material should be removed, but don't discard it! This material makes excellent mulch material around trees, shrubs, flowerbeds and gardens.

Low mowing and removal of debris stimulates earlier spring green-up by allowing the sun's energy to warm the soil more rapidly. Close mowing should be done before most of the lawn has initiated spring growth. Mow close only once and then return to the 1 1/2 to 2 inch cutting recommended for bluegrass lawns.

FERTILIZING

Early spring fertilizer applications should be avoided—especially heavy applications that promote lush, dark green growth.

Heavy spring fertilization encourages leaf spot disease problems and discourages high temperature and drought tolerance. The best approach is to practice late fall (mid to late October) fertilization coupled with light applications of nitrogen in the spring.

If this is not feasible, lighter applications of fertilizer on a more frequent basis may be used. Care must be taken not to promote lush, succulent growth that is less tolerant to disease, wear and drought.

Other spring lawn care practices which should be completed are aeration, thatch removal if it is a problem and weed control. Pre-emergence weed control for crabgrass should be applied in mid to late April and broadleaved weeds such as dandelion can be controlled also, but fall is the best time to control these pests.

AFRICAN VIOLET CARE

Plants that grow spindly and maintain small leaves on long thin stems, may produce a poor bud set. Correct this condition by providing more light and humidity. It is also very important that you take precaution in your watering habits.

Make sure that the soil is moist at all times. It should not remain saturated, however. Soil conditions are very important in maintaining optimum plant growth. Use a soil high in organic matter that will remain loose and fibrous.

LOWER ELKHORN NATURAL RESOURCES DISTRICT

Due to the resignation of Marlon Kraemer from the Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District Board of Directors, the Board is now taking applications to fill Mr. Kraemer's unexpired term. Applicants must be registered voters and reside within the bounds of Subdistrict IV, shown below.

Interested persons should contact the Lower Elkhorn NRD Office, P.O. Box 838, Norfolk, NE 68701; 371-7313.

A resume should be submitted to the Lower Elkhorn NRD by March 15, 1982.

Largest crowd in state

Swine Days program draws 100

Of the 10 Swine Days programs held in Nebraska, Wayne's drew the largest crowd. Nearly 100 persons attended the Swine Days program Thursday at the Wayne city auditorium.

The crowd heard five specialists talk on swine health, copper in swine diets, crossbreeding systems for better sows, energy efficient swine housing and starter diets for pigs.

MIKE BRUMM, a Northeast Station agent and local representative of the Swine Days program, said the Wayne program drew the largest turnout in the state.

Persons from Wayne, Dixon, Cedar, Thurston, Pierce, Cuming, Dakota and Dodge Counties were in attendance. The program was sponsored by the Wayne County Pork Producers and Wayne County Extension Service.

The State National Bank of Wayne paid for the dinner and the Wayne Chamber of Commerce furnished coffee and donuts. Galen Wiser, agriculture representative at State National Bank, was emcee for the program.

Speakers were Dr. Alex Hogg, extension veterinarian at the UNL Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources; Ernest R. Peo Jr., professor of animal science at the UNL; Dr. Rodger K. Johnson, professor of animal science at UNL Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources;

David Shelton, research associate in the UNL agricultural engineering department; and Austin Lewis Shelton, associate professor of animal science at UNL.

THE WAYNE COUNTY Pork Producers organization was formed in January 1981. Pork Producers President Gene Lutt, Wayne County Extension Agent Don Spitzke and Northeast State Agent Stan Starling all agreed that the swine program was successful.

The purpose of the program was to provide farmers with information about swine production and new innovations.

Questions were directed at the five specialists during a noon break and following the program which ended at about 2:30 Thursday afternoon.

Among the topics discussed was the use of solar collectors on farrowing facilities. Supplemental heating or cooling for a swine building depends upon air temperature inside the building, the outside building temperature, the amount and placement of insulation, the quantity of air moved through the building, orientation and location of the building and heat production of the pigs.

THE CROWD was told that insulating to reduce building component heat loss or gain is important.

Rather than heat an entire swine building, many pig producers prefer to provide a hover area that can be heated with external energy sources and/or by the pig's heat. The hover area can also be heated through solar energy used to heat the floor or by infrared radiation.

Heat produced by the pigs is an important source of heat for swine buildings.

ANOTHER TOPIC of interest Thursday was the use of copper in swine diets. Peo explained that the use of copper as a growth promoter in swine has suddenly become widespread in the United States and Nebraska.

Research indicates that copper, acting like an antibiotic, will improve gains and feed conversion of growing-finishing swine. Copper is an essential nutrient and Peo recommends that 10 ppm be added to the diet of all swine for normal growth, maintenance and reproduction.

Copper is much cheaper to add to diets than antibiotics and, as research has shown, often will improve gains and feed conversion of swine to about the same extent as commonly used antibiotics, Peo said.

Peo warned however that there also are minuses to copper use. There is a potential for overdose; copper passes through the pig and manure is highly corrosive to metal feeders, gates and slates; copper increased the rate of sludge buildup in anaerobic storage facilities; copper may inactivate lagoons.

McCurdy awards given

MERLIN REINHARDT and Robert Reinhardt, Route One, Wayne, received "Professional Soybean Grower" trophies and special recognition for their achievement at McCurdy Seed Company's national awards banquet in Ames, Iowa. They are shown being congratulated by McCurdy District Sales Manager Harold Engelbart (at right). Merlin was one of the top McCurdy soybean growers in the Eastern Nebraska sales district during 1981 with a yield of 50.17 bu./acre — planting McCurdy 109. Robert (lower photo) was one of the top McCurdy corn growers in the Eastern Nebraska Sales District during 1981 (non-irrigated category) with a yield of 152.18 bu./acre — planting McCurdy 7440. The banquet and awards ceremony were held at the Holiday Inn Gateway Center with Dr. Dale Hansen of Agrigenetics Corporation the featured speaker. McCurdy Seed Co. now in its 43rd year, markets hybrid seed corn, sorghum, soybeans and alfalfa seed through nearly 2,000 farmer-dealers in 25 states.

Farm real estate market appears to be cooling off

After a decade of feverish activity and appreciation in farmland values, the market for farm real estate appears to be in a cooling off period, according to two University of Nebraska agricultural economists.

Dr. Bruce Johnson and Ron Hanson, associate professors of ag economics, conduct an annual survey of Nebraska land market values. They are expecting their 1981 figures to show little if any appreciation in farmland values, after an average annual increase of 14 percent a year for the previous decade.

LITTLE MARKET activity is occurring now, they said, and parcels that are selling often are going for early 1981 price levels or even less.

Even where some appreciation has occurred during the past year, it's almost a certainty that the increase has not kept pace with the general rate of inflation. Thus, in terms of purchasing power, farm real estate values have declined somewhat," Hanson and Johnson said.

This doesn't mean the bottom is falling out of the market, they added, since a considerable equity base exists in the farm sector. Further, land investment is generally a long term venture and many investors and analysts perceive that the long term picture for production agriculture is strong, the economists said.

In the shorter term, 1982 doesn't promise a return to rapidly rising land values. Sluggishness will continue and "Not many farmers are going to big

Breakeven fed steer price of $65 needed

Cattle placed on feed recently probably will require a breakeven fed steer price at Omaha in the low to mid-$60 range at marketing time, according to a University of Nebraska marketing analyst.

Dr. Al Wellman, NU extension marketing specialist, also said that fair over-wintering prospects, improved feedlot demand and continued large nonfed slaughter of heavy, fleshier feeder cattle will probably hold yearling feeder steer prices near or slightly lower than fed steers.

Since the financial climate for feeder cattle and call producers eroded somewhat in 1981, Wellman said, top managers need to consider cash contracting or hedging strategies if they want to provide price protection into 1982, he said.

YEARLING FEEDER steers may average in the low 60's for the first half of 1982, with peak price approaching $70 per hundredweight at times, Wellman said.

Prices in the second half of the year may differ only slightly from first half prices if the U.S. economy rebounds and some old customers and consumers start buying beef again," Wellman explained.

Yearling feeder steer prices for all of 1982 may average near the 1981 mid $60 average, the NU in-study of Agriculture and Natural Resources specialist said.

Call prices are likely to average very near yearling prices, with the highest prices possible coming in the middle part of the year," Wellman added.

However, a continued sluggish economy will keep a tight rein on profit expectations and therefore, feeder cattle and call price gains. Any turnaround in the economy, interest rates or fed cattle prices would be translated very quickly into higher feeder cattle prices as was the case in the second quarter of 1981," Wellman explained.

STRONGER DEMAND for retail beef in the second half of 1982 could support somewhat higher feeder cattle and call prices as cattle feeders' expectations improve for 1982, Wellman said.

Producers should examine custom-feeding or methods of retaining ownership, if feeder call prices get out of line with fed cattle prices for long periods in late 1982 and into 1983," the economist said.

Regarding the current situation, Wellman said that the tough winter has added to handling problems faced by cattle owners, but that abundant, relatively low cost feed supplies are available all across the country.

Continued low feeder cattle prices and sharply lower fed grain prices plus expected improvements in fed cattle prices are likely to improve feedlot demand for replacement cattle, Wellman added. Although many heavier, fleshier, yearling cattle are likely to end up as nonfed slaughter, near term placements will probably be heavy feeders and fill a small void in spring marketings, he explained.

ASSESSING 1981, Wellman said that call and feeder cattle producers had a rather disappointing year. The rate of cattle inventory growth slowed somewhat from the 3 percent of 1980 to a 1 percent rate of increase in 1981, he said.

High interest rates and low feedlot placements depressed the feeder market during 1981, Wellman said. Positive indicators included abundant feed and forage supplies and improving range conditions. These contributed to some decrease in production costs near the end of 1981, he said.

Prices for yearling feeder steers in 1981 averaged about $10 per hundredweight less than 1980 prices, Wellman said. Steer call prices suffered a relatively larger drop in 1981 than did the yearling steer prices.

Dealer completes course

PAUL D. STEWART, seed dealer from Allen, recently completed Pfizer Genetics' Basic School of Seedsmanship in Kearney. The week-long school provides participants with the most up-to-date agricultural and technological knowledge in the seed industry. Among the subjects covered in the course were the history development and breeding of seed varieties, crop management practices, fertility, and problems with diseases, weeds and insects in corn, soybeans and sorghum. Stewart learned about farm financing, the role of the United States in world food production and hedging of commodities. Stewart also received updated information about Pfizer Genetics products and results of company research. Since 1977, more than 1,200 dealers have graduated from Pfizer Genetics' Basic and Advanced Schools of Seedsmanship. Pfizer Genetics Inc. produces and markets Trojan brand hybrid seed corn and Pfizer and Genetics soybeans and sorghum seed.

Top operators have two things in common.

First, top operators are good production managers—they know how to raise a good crop and get the most from livestock production. Secondly, and maybe more importantly, top operators are good financial managers. And wise use of credit is where a professional agricultural loan officer can really help.

At the Production Credit Association we specialize in operating credit for agriculture. And we work with many of the top operators in this part of the country—large and small alike. We look carefully at an operator's management skills. How he manages rather than how much he manages is what we're most interested in.

If you're a good operator, look to an agricultural credit specialist—look to PCA. Our loan officers are knowledgeable, professional and eager to help you work out a sound, constructive credit program.

Now more than ever,
you need a lender who understands.

We're agriculture's leading lending hand.

January moisture up

Nebraska as a whole received about 14 percent more moisture than normal in January, but precipitation at individual reporting stations ranged from a low of 13 percent of normal at Sidney to 300 percent at Wakefield.

Dr. Ken Hubbard, assistant professor and climate resource specialist in the University of Nebraska Center for Agriculture, Meteorology and Climatology, said the southwest division of the state recorded 60 percent of normal precipitation in January while the northeast division, where Wakefield is located, had 195 percent of normal moisture.

In addition to the southwest division, the Panhandle and south central divisions also recorded below normal precipitation in January at 67 and 69 percent respectively, Hubbard said.

For the October-to-January pre-season period, the state as a whole has received 147 percent of normal moisture, Hubbard said. The Panhandle has received 94 percent of normal moisture for the period, while the central division around Kearney has recorded 176 percent. Individual sites ranged from a low of 68 percent at Harrison to 216 percent at Geneva for the pre-season period.

The following tables show January moisture and October-to-January precipitation, expressed as a percentage of normal.

January precipitation: North East — Albion low at 100 percent, Wakefield high at 300 percent.

October-January precipitation: North East — Osmond low at 89 percent, Albion/Wakefield high at 203 percent.

More Valley Corner Systems every year,

because it's the least costly investment per acre.

It's going to be harder to make farming pay off in the years to come. Harder for many reasons.

So if anything makes sense, it's to maximize the potential of the land you own. Irrigating with a center pivot is one way. Irrigating with a Corner System is even better.

A Corner System can irrigate 10 to 45 more acres than a regular pivot, producing extra income on acres already being farmed. That's why nearly one out of every six pivots sold today is a Corner System.

And when it comes to Corner Systems, nobody knows more than Valmont. They've proven reliable with nearly 3,000 systems in operation. That's at least 20 times more than any other brand.

Before you buy any center pivot, see us. We'll tell you how a Valley Corner System can add to your bottom line profits while being the least costly investment per acre.

Valmont dominates the world.

WINS AWARD
Wakefield's Centennial tree planting project won the Paxton and Vierzing Steel Company Community Improvement and Service Award for Northeast Nebraska. The award, one of four given in the state, carries with it a $250 prize for a similar community project.

The awards were announced at the Northeast District meeting of the Nebraska Press Association on Feb. 20. Other communities in the state winning this year's award were Aurora, Ogallala and Bassett. Wakefield's entry was one of eight in the Northeast district and 29 entries in the state. The recognition project was the idea of Mr. Owen and with the help of Wayne Herald publisher, Alan Cramer, developed the details of the contest in 1976. Entered by newspapers and judged by the press association (criteria for the contest includes the importance and scope of the project, the impact on the entire community and extent of community involvement).

The presentation, made at the evening's banquet, was attended by about 125 newspaper and supply people Nebraska Press Association president, Dick Lindberg of West Point, told the audience that in connection with Wakefield's Centennial observance, it was decided to under take one activity which would "leave something for the future." Since Wakefield's founders had brought trees with them to the prairie, the centennial committee decided to follow their example and leave for future generations trees to shade the park, the school grounds, trees to protect as well as beauty homes and farmsteads.

4 Families Can Tell You

Why the best time is right now — to purchase your own home!

The demand for housing is increasing daily. This demand, and the appreciation of residential properties, will increase throughout this decade. The Wall Street Journal calls real estate "the average family's greatest single hedge against inflation." This, coupled with the decline in new housing construction, means the demand for housing will be / even greater.

With all things considered — tax advantages, potential for constant appreciation, increasing demand for housing, and the emotional benefits of home ownership — right now is the very best time to purchase your own home.
