A time for twins

THESE TWIN CALVES were born Sunday morning on the Lawrence Backstrom farm southwest of Wayne. The calves are Black Angus-Charolais crosses out of a 2-year-old heifer bred to a purebred Black Angus bull.

By Tuesday the youngsters were eager to catch the warming sunshine — a reminder to area farmers that spring is just around the corner.

Seven more persons have announced they plan to seek a seat on the Wayne-Carroll Board of Education. They join Milton Owens of Carroll, who is seeking his third term on the board. Filing for seats on the board of education in addition to Owens are Carol Singer, Robert Boeckenhauer, Joyce Reed, Arnold Emery, Darrell Moore and Carolie Schmidt, all of Wayne, and Alice Rohde of Carroll.

to receive the best education the community can afford. "If funds are limited," said Boeckenhauer, "I would give priority to the academic programs over athletics." EMRY, A native of Allen, graduated from Allen High School and Wayne State College. He has been employed in the Division of Education and Psychology at Wayne State College since 1967. Following his graduation from Wayne State, Emery spent two years in the service and returned to Nebraska to coach and teach at Pilger High School. Water, sewer & street work Roosevelt Park area project is underway

Months after a major municipal water project was halted by residents of the Roosevelt Park area, a small group of property owners there has reopened negotiations for an improved system. The three-fold proposal, which involves a one-block area of Nebraska Street between Folk and Fairgrounds Avenue, would improve the sewer and water lines in conjunction with paving the street surface. As outlined to the City Council during Tuesday night's regular meeting, the plan has been developed on the heels of a petition by property owners to stop the creation of a street improvement district in the 200 Block of Nebraska Street south.

AND, THE COUNCIL, after discussing the proposal, has agreed in good faith to pursue the block-long water and sewer improvements before paving the street between Folk and Fairgrounds. In return, the property owners have agreed to withhold a petition designed to block the paving of the street. The good faith agreement, reached Tuesday night by Council consensus, was the result of negotiations during a Monday night meeting involving city officials and property owners in the proposed street improvement district. Mike Sievers, 212 Nebraska, appeared at the Council meeting as a property owner and spokesman for the group.

SIEVERS, WHO attended the Monday night meeting with his neighbors, told the Council that the crux of the matter was getting the sewer and water lines improved in the block before paving the street "instead of doing something backwards." He said he couldn't see "breaking up concrete" to put in new water and sewer lines at a later date. "That would just be a waste of money," Sievers told the Council. "I'd like to see the paving done, but I'd like to see it done all at once," Sievers continued. He said that he'd prefer to spend the money now to do the entire project, rather than tearing up the new paving for water and sewer lines.

A KEY POINT in the proposal, which received an endorsement from Phil Kloster, city administrator and First Ward Councilman Darrel Heier, involves using city crews to improve the water and sewer lines, rather than creating a water and/or sewer extension district and putting that part of the project up for bids. According to Kloster, the project would involve using city crews this summer to do the water and sewer line work before paving the block-long section of Nebraska. Heier, who participated in the Monday night meeting with the Roosevelt Park area group, said he felt the idea was a good one. The work would be done under terms of an agreement with the city that necessitates approval by 100 percent of the property owners in the block-long section of Nebraska, according to Kern Swartz, city legal counsel.

THE COST OF the project would be assessed back to the property owners, according to Kloster.

Council approves low? high? bid on patrol car

Wayne's Police Department officers will soon be driving a new 1982 four-door Chevrolet Impala patrol car. The car, purchased on bids, will be furnished by Wayne's Mike Perry Chevrolet-Oldsmobile at a cost to the city of $9,630.19 — a price tag that not only exceeds city engineering estimates but also was the highest bid submitted. But, in fact, the highest bidder was also the lowest bidder meeting legal and mechanical specifications outlined by the city in its bid notice.

TWO OTHER BIDS, one from Ellingson Motors of Wayne and one from Husker Dodge of Omaha, were thrown out by the City Council during Tuesday night's regular meeting.

The Council rejected the idea of rebidding for the police patrol car after bids, received and opened during the last meeting in February, showed two of the three proposals failed to meet city specifications.

The Husker Dodge bid, which met all mechanical specifications but did not contain the Council-mandated bid bond, came in at $8,046.97 for a 1982 four-door Dodge Diplomat with no trade-in.

The city's trade-in is a 1971 Ford. The Ellingson Motors bid also contained no bid bond. In addition, the Wayne company's $8,553 bid for a 1982 four-door Pontiac Bonneville did not meet mechanical police-park specifications.

THE MIKE PERRY Chevrolet-Oldsmobile bid, which contained the required bond did meet mechanical specifications, but did not include a trade-in proposal.

Major city electrical project is up for bid

Wayne will soon be advertising for bids on one of two major city projects — the proposed upgrading of the municipality's electrical distribution system.

Plans and specifications on the second major project, a federally mandated upgrading of the city's wastewater treatment system, have received City Council approval.

Council members, meeting Tuesday night at City Hall, approved plans and specifications for the municipality's $167,000 electrical distribution project.

IN ADDITION, the Council approved plans and specifications for the city's proposed $1.5 million wastewater treatment plant.

Council members gave Phil Kloster, city administrator, the go ahead to advertise for bids on the electrical distribution project, which has a completion target date within the current fiscal year.

Next step on the wastewater treatment system upgrading, which is near the end of Phase 2, is for final modifications in the preliminary plans and specifications, according to Dennis Hirschbruner of Bruce Gilmore & Associates, the city's consulting engineers.

Dave DeVries of DeWild, Grant, Recker & Associates, the city's electrical engineering consultants, asked and received approval of the electrical grid project. Council set April 13 as the deadline date for bids to be received.

ON THE WASTEWATER plant, Hirschbruner told the Council that the preliminary plans and specs would be sent to the state's Department of Environmental Control for final modifications and suggestions.

He said the engineering firm would then prepare final plans and specifications for the project.

Construction of the proposed project is "up in the air," according to Hirschbruner.

School board seeks cost estimates on expanding vocational facilities

Members of the Wayne-Carroll Board of Education gave their authorization Monday night to have Superintendent Francis Haun contract with the school architect to determine the cost of expanding the high school's vocational education facilities.

The addition would be used for auto mechanics and metals, with the existing vocational facilities utilized by the wood department.

Expansion of the present vocational facilities has been under review by a Vocational Advisory Committee for the past three school years.

"People that we hire out of Northeast Tech and other schools start on the lube rack," said Perry. "When they get into the real shop it takes time to train them," he added.

BOARD MEMBER Jim Hummel said the auto mechanics class provided the opportunity for students to investigate in a career.

"There are some basic skills that must be learned," added Perry.

Dean Bruggeman threw out several cost figures following questions by Giese regarding the cost of equipping the auto mechanics class.

"In other business Monday night, board member Becky Keidel reported on a Conference on Academic Precocity she attended last month in Tempe, Ariz.

"The board must provide a facility that is more than adequate to meet the changing times," said Perry, and they must look at a curriculum that will encompass these changes."

Board member Wilbur Giese, who last month voiced objections to the proposed addition, asked Perry if he would hire a student in the auto mechanics class right out of school.

Perry said it was unlikely that he would hire someone without additional auto mechanics education.

MRS. KEIDEL said in her opinion areas of concern in the Wayne school system include the need to do more with testing results.

"Students should be tested out of their level," said Mrs. Keidel.

Mrs. Keidel said the first worst mistake schools often make is to let a student he is too capable to be accepted in the school system.

She also suggested that mathematics be accelerated for gifted students.

"In language arts," said Mrs. Keidel, "we need to provide for students beyond the sixth grade."

MRS. KEIDEL recommended that the board evaluate its program for gifted students.

"I think during the next two years we need to develop a comprehensive K-12 program and meet their needs," she said.

"We must not short-change the academically talented students," she added.

HAUN EXPRESSED his appreciation to the board Monday night for allowing him to attend a meeting of the American Association of School Administrators held recently in New Orleans.

Haun said the meeting included outstanding lectures, forums, clinics and speakers.

"It was an excellent opportunity to meet a great number of talented people dedicated to education," said Haun.

HAUN ALSO reported to the board on a lawsuit filed in Ninth District Court, Wayne County, by several taxpayers seeking tax levy relief from the county's Board of Equalization.

The suit, initiated in dozens of counties across the state through the efforts of the Nebraska School Improvement Association, seeks a ceiling, or relief, regarding non-resident high school tuition levies.

After falling behind 26-12 by the end of the first quarter, Team One rallied to defeat Team Two and move within one win of the A League title.

Trailing by 14 points, a balanced attack in the second and third quarters put Team One on top 58-50 with a quarter to play.

The winners were led by Doug Carroll with 25 points, Dan Mitchell with 21, Mike Sharer with 19 and Cleve Slople with 16. For Team Two Dave Hix hit 29 points, Dave Schwartz scored 16, Jere Morris scored 14 and Kevin Murray had 10.

Team One 12 24 22 25-83
Team Two 26 10 14 19-69
Team One (10-1): D. Carroll 25, D. Mitchell 21, M. Sharer 19, C. Slople 16, P. Garvin 2.
Team Two (7-4): D. Hix 29, D. Schwartz 16, J. Morris 14, K. Murray 10.

Team Six 91, Team Four 58.

In a mismatch, Team Six rolled over Team Four, keeping alive the mathematical possibility of a share of the league title.

An upset by Team Four over Team One next week would set up a two-way tie.

The winners were led by Steve Sorenson's 30-point output. Tim Pfeiffer scored 20, Jere Morris scored 16, Nich Zimmerman scored 13 and Steve Meyer scored 12. Team Four was led by Rob Mitchell who pumped in 33 total points including 16 in the fourth quarter.

Team Four 8 11 13 26-58
Team Six 22 22 25 22-91
Team Five (10-2): S. Sorenson 30, T. Pfeiffer 20, J. Morris 16, N. Zimmerman 13, S. Meyer 12.

Team Four (10-1): R. Mitchell 33, Doug Carroll 25, D. Mitchell 21, Dave Carroll 16, Daniels 6.
Team Three 137, Team Seven 58.

Last week Team Seven scored 100 points but this week it was Team Three topping that mark.

Cats come up short in first five outings on their southern swing

The annual southern tour taken by the Wayne State baseball team doesn't do much for the Wildcats' record or pitchers' earned run averages.

The Cats, again facing tough southern competition, lost their first five ball games. WSC lost one game to Kansas State on Sunday, two games to Wichita State on Monday and a pair to Oklahoma Christian on Tuesday.

WSC was scheduled to play at Oklahoma Baptist on Wednesday with games at East Central Oklahoma on Friday and at Southeastern Oklahoma on Saturday.

KANSAS STATE 10, WAYNE STATE 1.

Kansas State racked up 10 runs on nine hits while Wayne managed only a single run in the ninth inning.

Wakefield's Rick Guy, who was tagged out with the loss, pitched the first four innings. Kevin Williamson pitched 1 1/2 and Ralph Kleinsmith went 2 1/2 in relief.

Kansas State collected three runs in the first inning and four in the sixth. A second game was scheduled but cancelled due to cold weather.

Wayne State	000	000	001	—	1	4	4
Kansas State	300	014	02x	—	10	9	1

WICHITA STATE 15, WAYNE STATE 6.

A total of 29 hits were pounded out between the two teams but Wayne couldn't muster enough runs to stay with the hosts.

Starter Grady Hansen pitched the first five innings before giving way to Jerry Goeden for one inning and Jeff Clark for two. Goeden, a Wayne High graduate, suffered the loss.

Leading hitters were Doug Starzl of Wakefield who was 3 for 3 with two doubles, Rich Murcek who was 2 for 4 and Mike Hutchison who was 2 for 4 with a double.

Wayne State	030	200	100	—	6	11	4
Wichita State	100	305	42x	—	15	18	1

OKLAHOMA CHRISTIANS, WAYNE STATE 1.

Other than the first two innings, the Wildcats played an even ball game with their opponents. Oklahoma Christian gained an early 4-0 lead by the end of the second inning. Each team scored a run in the sixth.

Another Wayne High graduate, Vic Sharpe, pitched the first five innings. Joe Olsen of Laurel finished the final inning and the two pitchers held the Oklahomans to only four hits. Greg Crookshank led Wayne with a 3 for 4 performance at the plate, including a double.

Wayne State	000	001	0—	1	4	2
Christian	310	001	x—5	4	2	0

WICHITA STATE 6, WAYNE STATE 4.

In a game shortened to five innings due to darkness, WSC jumped out to a 3-1 lead after the first inning. However, the host team scored three times in the bottom of the fourth.

Dan Heigenkamp went the distance on the mound for the Wildcats. Mike Starzl clubbed a home run and Ken Murcek was 2 for 3 at the plate.

Wayne State	310	00—	4	6	1
Wichita State	120	3x—	6	7	1

OKLAHOMA CHRISTIAN 9, WAYNE STATE 6.

The Cats were two innings away from their first victory when the Oklahoma team struck for four runs in the sixth inning. Wayne led 6-5 at the time.

The Cats committed six errors in the ball game. Losing pitcher was Randy Frink who went 5 1/2 innings. Joe Olsen went 1 1/2 of an inning. Leading batter was Randy Heying who had two hits in two appearances.

Randy's Recap

By Randy Hascall

SPRING FEVER has done its damage. After many weeks of cold and snow, Mother Nature played some tricks on us last week by giving us a taste of nice weather.

During that time, attitudes changed. People had become fed up with winter and the hint that spring might be approaching perk ed things up.

Some of the area sports nuts turned their attention to the outdoors after being couped up all winter long.

Good golfers put away their indoor putting cups and headed out to the course. Divit marks and soggy footprints are proof that some golfers just couldn't resist taking a few swings on the semi green turf.

Other enthusiasts put away their ping pong paddles and headed for the tennis courts where they could practice their volleys between puddles of melted snow.

Joggers could be seen in spring sweat suits that they were given at Christmas. Most of them were running at accelerated paces anticipating that warmer weather would last.

Slow pitch softball participants practiced their swings by beating dusty old rugs and worked their gloves into shape by playing catch in the back yard.

In another two weeks, they'll be at it again. Maybe next time, spring will be here to stay. I sure hope so.

GIRLS BASKETBALL in the state of Nebraska keeps getting better. The sport is still relatively young and competition should improve for many more years.

The girls state tournament, once dominated by a few teams, showed lots of balance this year. Nobody could ask for any closer championship games—two were decided by one point and the other two went into overtime.

I didn't attend the state tourney this year but did listen to a couple of games that were broadcast. Both were pretty interesting.

The boys hit the hardwood this week and I guess I might as well make by predictions.

In Class A, Dave Hoppen and Omaha Benson will defeat Millard South, tall Lincoln Northeast will top Grand Island, balanced Omaha Westside will edge Ron Kellogg's Omaha Northwest and Kerry Trotter and Vic Lazzaretti will lead Creighton Prep past Omaha Burke. Lazzaretti has hit 77 percent of his shots from the field this year.

In the semifinals, Benson will sneak by Northeast and Westside will knock off Creighton Prep. So in a surprise championship matchup, I'll guess that Westside will edge Benson.

In Class B, I look for Gretna to upend Ainsworth, Grand Island Northwest to defeat Holdrege, Elkhorn Mount Michael to top Kimball and Lincoln Plus to whip Columbus Scotts.

Semifinal winners will be Grand Island NW over Gretna and underdog Mt. Michael over Plus in a battle of parochial schools. Northwest will add to its trophy case with a state championship. Incidentally, the Grand Island school already has won the football championship, wrestling championship and girls basketball championship in Class B.

In Class C, Homer will nip Howells, Ewing will drop Shelby, Omaha Paul VI will slip past Centennial and Grant will clobber Hastings. St. Cecilia, Ewing will defeat Homer and Grant will defeat Paul VI to set up the championship game.

Bill Jackman will lead Grant to the title.

In Class D, Nelson will defeat Falls City Sacred Heart, Holdrege will trim Potter, Spencer will top Eustis and Maxwell will eliminate Coleridge. Holdrege will edge Nelson and Maxwell will top Spencer. In the finals, it will be Holdrege over Maxwell.

IN THE NCAA TOURNEY, the "Final Four" will be North Carolina, Missouri, Minnesota and Oregon State.

ONE FINAL NOTE: Some parents of Wayne High School students are organizing an athletic banquet. No funds had been allocated for a banquet so the group has a tough job financially.

The Wayne High cheerleaders, Second Guessers and W Club all donated some money to help pay for the proposed athletic banquet. However, the sports supporters are still short of funds and would welcome contributions from any thoughtful people.

WSC spring football season is near

Preparations for the 1982 football season at Wayne State College begin in earnest on Monday, March 29 when spring football camp opens according to veteran Wildcat Coach Del Stoltenberg.

Stoltenberg expects 50 to 55 athletes to take part in spring ball. The group will practice four days each week, and he anticipates the gridder to don pads late in the first week of practice.

The Wildcats will use spring trail to "look at some new people and experiment with moving some players around to different positions," Stoltenberg said.

Spring practice will culminate in the annual varsity versus alumni game set for Saturday, April 24 at WSC's Memorial Stadium.

"We don't know if you'll get the money to build it," he said. "And, we don't know if you'll even have to build it."
The engineer also noted that new laws were changing the requirements for wastewater treatment plants.

THE PROJECT is earmarked for 87.5 percent federal funding and 12.5 state funding, according to the engineer. That funding, which is in Phase 3, has been scheduled for December of this year, Hirschbruner said, noting that it could change.

The project, which includes a $500,000 building, is being done under a federal program being phased out by the Reagan administration. It will not be funded beyond 1985, according to Hirschbruner.

Congress has set aside $2.4 billion to fund the program across the country this year, he said.

IN OTHER ACTION, the Council approved plan specifications, minus a traditional bid-bond requirement, for a new pickup in the city's Street Department.

Bids are due on March 30.

Also, the Council reapproved two rezoning requests.

The requests, which were approved on resolution at a previous meeting, required the form of a city ordinance, according to Kloster.

The requests involve the rezoning of the Kappa Delta Gamma sorority house on Maple Street north and the Valley Squire property just south of the city limits on state Highway 15.

Council members also approved the preliminary plat on the Fletcher & Feeders Subdivision on Windom Street south.

THE SUBDIVISION involves a state requirement to subdivide property under 10 acres when it is sold.

Before adjourning, the Council discussed the renewal of an informal five-year lease agreement with the Wayne Veterinary Clinic for a radio tower atop the city water tower on Main and Ninth streets.

Council requested that a more formal lease arrangement be put in writing by the city's legal counsel and resubmitted at the next Council meeting.

MOORE, 37-year-old president of Marra Home Improvement Co. said the school board is a place for parents of youngsters in school to get involved and serve.
"I see so many parents who don't participate," said Moore.
Moore feels the energy crunch is going to bring big changes in business, including the school, in the next few years.

"With my background in management I feel I can help the school get through those times," he said.

"For the past year I've been looking for something I could do that would make a difference in the lives of young people. I've been involved in the educational system the past 23 years and I'm very interested in the future of education."

Miss Singer said she feels the school board creates the policies that create an educational atmosphere.

Sievers said that the group did not have approval from 100 percent of the property owners.

Explaining that only one property owner in the block disapproved of the proposal, Sievers asked for Council assurance that the paving project would not be pushed through until "something could be done" with the requested water and sewer line improvements.

Council members could not introduce a resolution to that effect because the issue was not a matter included on the published meeting agenda, according to Swarts.

Hence, the consensus and good faith bargain struck between the group and the Council during the meeting.

EARLIER THIS YEAR, City Council created a street improvement district along that block.

Wednesday was the deadline for property owners there to petition out of the paving district.

The property owners had submitted a petition blocking the creation of the street improvement district.

However, they withdrew the petition after Monday night's meeting with Kloster and Heier. Wednesday was the deadline for petitioning out of the proposed paving district.

Sievers, on behalf of all but one of the property owners, told the Council he did not want to resubmit the petition, which would effectively kill the proposed paving project.

He said the property owners he represented were willing to allow the district to be created if the group's request for improvements in the sewer and water lines were pursued by the city.

ACCORDING TO Kloster, the sewer line improvements could be done by city crews as part of a municipal maintenance project.

Kloster said city equipment would be used in the project. "We've got the funds to do it," he added. "It would crimp our style a little this summer, but we've got enough able-bodied people looking for work in this city to help."

The city administrator said he wouldn't recommend that the Council consider doing more than "a block or two" under that kind of proposal.

If the sewer and water lines were improved and the street then paved "that would be the end of improvements" in that block, according to Kloster.

Sievers said that "putting it all in at the same time" would save the city and the property owners money.

"WE'VE GOT A couple of people who are pretty headstrong against doing anything down there (in the Roosevelt Park area)," Sievers said.

Her parents are Don and Edith Wightman of Wayne. Wightman is a retired Wayne postmaster.

The Ensz family moved to Wayne in 1977.

Incumbent County Attorney Budd B. Bornhoff, 62, a Democrat, has declined to seek re-election after serving 10 years in the office.

Bornhoff's son, 27-year-old Todd, recently filed for the office as a Republican. The young Bornhoff is a graduate of UN-L Law School, but has not been admitted to the Nebraska Bar.

In addition, John V. Addison, 52, an attorney with 24 years of private law practice in Wayne, has filed for the office as a Republican.

Phil Kloster city administrator, told the Council that all three companies could meet or exceed the mechanical specifications.

"We have reviewed the three bids," Kloster said. "Only one of those three bids was legal." The Mike Perry Chevrolet proposal.

Kloster said that only two of the three bids met mechanical specifications. The Mike Perry Chevrolet-Oldsmobile bid and the Husker Dodge proposal.

AND, ACCORDING TO Kloster, only one met the mechanical specs and the bonding requirement. That company was Mike Perry Chevrolet-Oldsmobile.

Bid bonds are not legally required in that type of municipal purchase, Kem Swarts, legal counsel for the city, told the Council.

However, Council specifications contained in the bidding notice mandated the bond. And, several Council members said they felt the city should live up to its own request, despite the fact that it meant awarding the contract to the highest bidder.

THE COUNCIL'S vote to accept the Mike Perry Chevrolet-Oldsmobile bid came after a lengthy discussion.

Kloster told the Council if it had a "moral obligation" to purchase locally whenever possible. However, he also told the Council that it had a responsibility to "look after" city finances. He said that the Council faced a bid range with differences ranging as high as $2,000 with a trade-in.

Nation's capital model monument to big spenders

By Richard L. Lester,
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

If members of Congress need further proof that higher taxes lead only to greater deficits and bigger government, may I suggest that they look in their own backyard — the District of Columbia.

Washington's fiscal policies represent a revealing microcosm of economic liberalism in its purest form. As the seat of the national government, it benefits from a massive infusion of federal expenditures — over $25,000 per resident in 1980.

District officials have eagerly followed their brethren on Capitol Hill in the march toward bigger government. Local taxes have skyrocketed 185 percent since 1970.

THE PER CAPITA local tax burden in Washington is $1,475 the third highest in the nation (behind Alaska and New York). Yet, the operating budget just signed by Mayor Marion Barry still contains a 6 percent deficit. The mayor's proposed solution was predictable: Raise taxes again!

When you examine some of the District's spending habits, it is easy to see why the Capital is caught in this tax-and-spend, spend-and-tax syndrome.

Seven hundred sixty-three of every 10,000 residents are employed by the local government, the second highest ratio in the nation. When President Reagan's first round of budget cuts sought to remove students and striking workers from the welfare and food stamp rolls, the mayor and city council quickly voted $2.5 million in District funds to make sure these poor souls would still receive benefits.

AND WASHINGTON'S firefighters, already among the best paid in the country, were just granted a 20-22 percent wage increase to take effect between December 1981 and October 1983.

Another dramatic illustration of this extravagance is found in the city's workers' compensation coverage. In 1928, Congress amended the Longshoremen's Act to cover Washington's entire private sector.

As a result, employers' costs and employees' coverage are the third highest in the nation. A District worker can receive up to $497 a week in benefits, 200 percent of the national average weekly wage.

As for the effect on the local economy, here is just one example. The Greater Washington Board of Trade reports that workers' compensation costs during the construction of a median price house in Washington are almost $4,000 higher than in neighboring Maryland or Virginia. (To the city's credit, a new law taking effect in July should reduce many of these excesses.

IN FAIRNESS, it is important to point out that the District has "unlimited" control over its economic affairs. Congress and the president retain a veto power over local laws, budget appropriations and revenue measures.

As such, Washington offers a compelling case not only for tax cuts, but for President Reagan's new federalism proposals as well.

Heaven help us if Congress is allowed to meddle in the fiscal matters of the states to the degree that it does in those of the District.

I am not presenting this example to berate a particular local government, but to illustrate a lesson that apparently needs teaching on both sides of the aisle of Congress.

The only plausible way to reduce spending and deficits is to reduce the flow of revenues. Legislatures at all levels of government have demonstrated that additional tax dollars are not used to reduce the deficit, but only provide elected officials with new opportunities to spend, spend, spend and brag, brag, brag, to their constituents.

New beginning

Slowly, but surely, bridges are being built across the gap that has existed between City Hall and the Roosevelt Park area.

The gap, which was widened last year during the dispute over a city proposed and property owner rejected water system improvement project, has had a Catch 22 quality to it.

For years, many property owners in the Roosevelt Park area, for right or for wrong, have felt they were ignored — and sometimes treated unequally — by City Hall.

And, for years, city officials have felt misunderstood — and sometimes purposely misconstrued — by some property owners in the Roosevelt Park area.

Ironically, most of the Roosevelt Park area property owners have been seeking an upgrading in city services, such as water, sewer and streets.

And, just as ironically, most city officials have been seeking a Roosevelt Park area upgrading in city services such as water, sewer and streets.

The rub has come about in just how to do it and who is going to pay for it.

Tuesday night, during the Wayne City Council meeting, it became apparent that the rub can be reconciled.

A small group of property owners and city officials have joined each other at the same table to discuss upgrading services in a one block area on Nebraska Street south.

Those property owners offered a proposal to the city that is being sincerely and seriously considered.

Fortunately, the property owners are being represented by Mike Sievers, who acted as a spokesman for the group. He is a property owner and a neighbor to members of the group.

Already, a constructive rapport exists between Sievers and City Hall.

That could become the basis for ending the prolonged and unconstructive estrangement. In fact, Sievers himself referred to the proposed one block Nebraska Street project as a "stepping stone" for the entire area.

Phil Kloster, city administrator, agrees.

And, with that, just may come a new beginning for the battle scarred relationship.

The new beginning offers constructive bridge building and fence mending that has the potential to make Roosevelt Park area resident proud to be part of the city and City Hall proud to have them aboard once again.

It restores one's faith in people and local government.

Beginning the fight

If Rep. Trent Lott, a Mississippi member of the U.S. House of Representatives and a champion of budget cuts, has a message these days, it is: "We've not yet begun to cut."

Fresh from a visit back home with constituents, Lott, who is the Republican whip in the House, returned to Washington all fired up with the spirit of the famous American naval hero, John Paul Jones, who, outgunned and facing defeat at the hands of a superior British naval force, uttered the memorable words, "I've not yet begun to fight."

Following a speech given by Rep. Lott at a Rotary Club in his district, as listener wanted to know what all the "crowing" was about in Washington over budget cuts? "You haven't done anything yet," the listener said.

Telling of the incident when he spoke at a breakfast meeting of Washington trade association executives at the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, Lott agreed.

"The media," he said, "would have you believe that we have cut into the marrow of America. That we have destroyed the safety net."

"Look at the numbers. We cut $40 billion — maybe — out of a budget that's going to be over 700 billion bucks. Look at the national debt. Do you think that's not contributing to inflation and high interest rates?"

"Do you think we destroyed the food stamp program? Well, we've cut $1 billion — from $12.3 billion to $11.3 billion. And now we are going to come back and give the money back in supplemental appropriations."

"We're giving food stamps this year to 22 million Americans, at least. That's more people than there are in the nation of Canada."

"Look at the numbers. We haven't cut nearly enough."

"So we can do more — and the President is right in asking for more. If we're worth our salt, we'll take his recommendations and expand on them."

Begin cutting, that is.

Session shifts onto Senate floor

The Legislature's committee hearings are over for the session except for a few still being held by the Appropriations Committee.

As a result, the Legislature has begun to meet in full day sessions in order to consider the bills which have made it through their committees and which are now at various stages of consideration on the legislative calendar.

AS OF LAST Friday, the Legislature had only 23 legislative bills left to decide the fate of the few hundred bills remaining to be acted upon.

Those bills which fail to be automatically killed at the end of the session.

I was pleased to gain the approval of the Legislature for the advancement of my Atokah bill, LB 631, to that reading. Two attempts were made to attach amendments to the bill but none was defeated.

This bill is designed to aid Atokah with the hope that it will be able to give its present financial problems and become a successful thoroughbred race track once again.

THE ECONOMY of northeastern Nebraska would suffer significantly if it were to lose the business annually generated by the activities at Atokah.

The Legislature also advanced LB 626 which is commonly referred to as the multibank holding bill. This is essentially the same bill as LB 376 which was con-

senator merle von minden

roversial a year ago.

LB 376 was considered passed last session until the Nebraska Supreme Court held, earlier this year, that it hadn't received the required number of votes. Under the provisions of this bill, multibank holding companies, from at least 20 years have been prohibited from acquiring additional banks in Nebraska, would be allowed to own up to nine banks.

I am opposed to the passage of this legislation because I don't believe it will help my district or anyone in Nebraska except for the big banks.

LB 603, WHICH will raise the salaries of our judges throughout the state, has been resurrected. I reported to you earlier that this bill had been killed, but since that time its supporters managed to persuade a few

The governor's crusade Now is the time for trees

If hundreds of thousands of Nebraskans will join me in a crusade, we can make 1982 the state's best year for planting new trees.

State agencies are going to do their part in helping Nebraska live up to the motto it once had: The Tree Planter State.

The Nebraska Game and Parks Commission plans to plant about 322,000 trees this spring, compared with 315,800 last year.

THE NEBRASKA Department of Roads expects to place about 20,000 trees along the highways in the year that ends June 30, compared with 17,632 a year earlier.

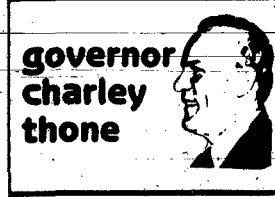

At my direction, the state highway agency has instituted a policy of more than replacing any trees that must be cut down. Since we want to make our highways safer and more efficient for drivers, we can't avoid eliminating some trees from highway right-of-ways.

My policy provides that if a seedling must be removed, at least two trees must be planted as replacements, but if a mature tree must be removed, at least ten must be set out as restoration.

Even with the policy of planting up to 10 new trees for removing one, the highway department is not allowed to proceed with removal unless a demonstration has been made that such a course is the only prudent thing to do. And most of the tree planting by the highway department is done not as part of the replacement policy but as part of our beautification policy.

THIS SPRING ON Interstate 80 near Lincoln we will be dedicating a new rest stop that will be a showcase for solar power. Before it became a rest stop it was a cornfield, so it's bars of trees.

We plan to make it a showcase as well for governor charley thone

the varieties of trees that grow in Nebraska. Some of those who have done the most to foster tree planting in our state will have individual trees named for them in a "Tree Planters Honor Grove" to be developed on the site.

If you're serious about planting trees, you should not confine your efforts to Arbor Day, the April 22 holiday originated in Nebraska, but should work to increase the tree population of Nebraska whenever weather permits.

Whenever the ground has thawed enough to dig, usually by late March in Nebraska, you can plant trees with good prospects for success. Tree planting can continue through the year until the ground freezes again, except for periods when temperatures are expected to be above 50°.

IN LATE FEBRUARY the fifth annual and most successful Trees for Nebraska Conference was held. Nebraskans have the philosophical motivation to earn again the reputation of being tree planters, the conference was told by George Briggs, director of 26 sites limited together as the Nebraska Statewide Arboretum.

members of the Judiciary Committee to reconsider their positions and the bill was advanced in amended form to General File.

The amendment lowered the amount of the proposed increase in salary but I still can't justify an increase of approximately $7,000 to our Supreme Court judges who already earn $48,314 a year.

I think our efforts should first be directed toward helping the farmers, small businessmen and others who are suffering the most under the current economic conditions.

I intend to oppose the bill when it comes up for further consideration.

A BILL OF particular interest to farmers, LB 375, was passed last Friday. It lacks only the governor's signature to become law. LB 375 will allow the Natural Resources Districts to designate management areas for the purpose of conserving and protecting ground water.

Use of ground water may be controlled in a designated management area by three methods, allocating the total amount of water which can be withdrawn, rotating periods of ground water use and requiring well spacing.

The question of how to preserve our water resources is one which the Legislature has been struggling with for a long time. LB 375 is an attempt to pass a meaningful measure which will help preserve our vital ground water.

To the editor:

Reports are again circulating that a beer party for high school students was held a week ago Friday night at the residence of a local farm couple.

Information indicates up to as many as 100 youngsters participated, including my own child.

These parties have existed in our community for the last 10 to 15 years without abatement and seemingly they are becoming more frequent and looked upon with a tolerant eye.

Parents or adults who expect upon minor drinking as routine, need to remember the severe consequences that can evolve from these gatherings. Car accidents, leaving promising youths dead, crippled or maimed for life, alcoholism, teen pregnancies; the list goes on.

I don't want to see my child's life end that way.

I would endorse civil legal action against property owners by parents whose minors are debauched. If those responsible for permitting these parties don't care about the welfare of our youth, maybe they will care about their pocketbook. We must put an end to this nonsense.

Cattlemen supporting changes in beef grades

By M. M. Van Kirk
Nebraska Farm Bureau

Many consumers are probably confused and relatively uninformed about the U.S. Department of Agriculture's proposed changes in beef grade standards which have been the subject of scheduled hearings at five locations—Salt Lake City, Atlanta, Washington, D.C., Dallas and for the Midwest area, Des Moines.

In the initial hearings the pattern was that the changes have the support of cattle producers and feeders and draw opposition from consumer groups and restaurant operators.

Representatives of the cattle industry supporting the changes have said the proposed standards would reduce the average time that cattle have to be kept in feedlots by 15 days for approximately half the cattle going to market.

BEEF PRODUCERS have been losing money consistently the last couple of years and are looking for ways to cut their costs without losing their beef customers. They have some real competition from the pork and poultry producers, and from consumers who are producing, with inflation and recession reduced incomes.

What is involved basically is the amount of "marbling" or fat required in the meat to make the various grades. The flocks of fat distributed through the meat provide the taste and palatability which consumers have long associated with a good certified beef product.

Under the proposed changes, beef with slight marbling would be graded as choice instead of good. Beef with moderate marbling would be upgraded to prime for cattle nine to 30 months old. Only part of the beef with "slight marbling" would be upgraded to choice, and part of the beef with that amount of marbling would still be graded as good.

A USDA Agricultural Marketing Service specialist has explained that when the USDA modifies the choice grade, it is dealing with about 90 percent of the cattle that its inspectors grade. He says that the change will mean about 10 percent of graded beef will fall into the prime category, instead of the current 5 percent.

THE NATIONAL Cattlemen's Association, which petitioned the USDA early last spring to modify the beef grading standards, has contended that allowing more lean beef in the choice grade would lower production costs and adjust the beef supply to match the public's demand for leaner beef.

Despite all the talk in recent years about consumers' desire for leaner beef, some of the biggest opposition comes from consumer groups who have condemned the new standards on the basis that the public would be paying more for lower quality cuts of beef.

Restaurant association spokesmen have claimed that since the slight lowering of grade standards in 1976 they have had difficulty finding beef in the quality and quantity that they need to satisfy customers who demand consistently flavorful, tender meat.

Present standards are prime, choice, good and standard, the latter grade being devoid of marbling for all practical purposes. The proposed changes would upgrade the standard grade entirely. The grades would be prime, choice, good and utility. There would be no chance in yield grade standards.

In addition to the hearings, the USDA will take written comments until March 31. Then, it will consider all the testimony and comments and either adopt the proposal, reject it or develop a new proposal. A USDA official has said that it will be at least a year at the earliest before the proposal would go into effect even with widespread support.

Pork Producers set meeting

The Wayne County Pork Producers are planning a hog seminar at 8 p.m. Monday (March 15) at the Columbus Federal Building in Wayne. The program will be given by the Wayne Veterinary Clinic.

Training for tractor permits

Boys and girls 14 to 16 years old who intend to operate a tractor for this summer for someone other than their parents need a permit according to Don C. Spitzer, Wayne County extension agent. This permit may be obtained by attending three days of training at the Northeast Station March 20, April 3 and 10.

A registration fee is required and pre-registration forms may be obtained at the Wayne, Dixon, Thurston, Dakota or Cedar County Extension Offices. Pre-registration should be turned in by March 15 so youngsters can attend the first meeting March 20.

If a sufficient number is not registered the training session will be cancelled.

Seedlings still available

Are you planning to plant that windbreak, woodlot, wildlife habitat or Christmas tree plantation this spring?

If so, don't put off ordering your Clarke McNary tree and shrub seedlings too long. The spring tree planting season is rapidly approaching and tree and shrub seedlings are selling quickly. Of the 3.7 million seedlings available this year, only about 700,000 are still available for sale. Several species already have sold out.

Clarke McNary tree and shrub seedlings are sold annually by the Nebraska Forest Service for conservation purposes. The price this year is $2 per hundred seedlings including postage and handling.

Order tree and shrub seedlings now at your local county extension or SCS office before this year's supply is depleted.

New 4-H project available

National Wildlife Week is March 14-20, and 4-H members will have the opportunity to explore an exciting new project as a part of that observance.

Dr. John Orr, extension 4-H development specialist at the University of Nebraska, said the new project, Bird Behavior, offers an opportunity for 4-H Clubs or school groups to view four videotapes involving the family life of birds, life cycle of the quail and dove, and migration of ducks and geese.

The purpose of the project is to encourage young people to become aware of their environment and learn to observe the birds that live there. Orr said. The project also offers activities and suggestions for demonstrations.

Other 4-H projects related to outdoor education are also available from Nebraska Cooperative Extension Service offices around the state.

Fertilizer clinic in Wakefield

Producers with questions about crop fertilization and herbicide use are invited to visit with specialists on March 15 in Wakefield (8:30-11:30 a.m.), and Ponca (11:30-4:40 p.m.). These will be informal sessions on a drop-in basis, reports Stan Starling, Dixon County extension agent.

The morning session at Wakefield will be hosted by Wakefield National Bank in the bank's meeting room. The afternoon session, hosted by Bank of Dixon County, will be held in the Legion hall.

George Rehm, extension specialist in soils, and Russ Muonaw, extension specialist in agronomy, will be present to answer producer's questions. Producers should bring soil tests and field crop history if possible.

Soil tests can be from any laboratory, not just UNL, and Rehm will use these to make fertilization recommendations based on University of Nebraska research data. This is an unusual opportunity to get top-notch information in a short time, suggests Starling, and similar sessions held in other parts of the state have been well received.

HERBICIDE PROBLEMS

Now is the time that farmers are thinking about ordering their summer supply of herbicides. It's also a time to look back on last season's weed control and ponder on what worked or didn't work.

Sometimes you may think that a herbicide has lost its punch because it no longer does a good job of weed control. Chances are, the herbicide has not undergone any change in chemical makeup or has the manufacturer altered the contents of the container.

One cause for failure along with weather, application and the herbicide could be the weeds you are dealing with.

After the same herbicide has been used for several years, the weed population in a field could shift. Weed species readily killed by the herbicide have been eliminated permitting weed species that are tolerant to the herbicide to flourish.

Tremendously heavy populations of weeds require amounts of herbicides to do the job. So in some cases there could be under-application. A third possibility could be that the weeds have developed resistance to the herbicide.

Continuous use of the same herbicide permits resistant strains within the species to survive and multiply. In numerous cases, kochia or fireweed has developed resistance to atrazine. Repeated use of atrazine on the same ground caused the emergence of a strain of kochia able to withstand rates greater than 50 times greater than normally required.

Don't always blame herbicides for failures, it could be the weeds or weather or how applied.

PRUNE FRUIT TREES NOW

Before bud breaks this spring, fruit trees need their annual pruning. Annual maintenance pruning of trees in the home fruit garden keeps them healthy and productive. Usually it is necessary to remove only a small amount of wood each year if the trees have been annually pruned.

Trees that have not been pruned for a number of years require more drastic pruning. Tree height can be lowered five feet each year. Always cut immediately above an outward growing lateral limb. In addition, two or three large limbs may be removed each year to open up the tree.

Remove water sprouts and damaged or diseased wood first. Keep in mind the overall structure of the tree and develop main structural branches on all sides of the tree. Looking down on top of the tree, branches should radiate out like spokes on a wheel with the main trunks as the trunk.

Narrow crotches are weak and should be eliminated during the pruning process. Main structural branches on dwarf trees should be spaced five to six inches apart vertically on the main trunk.

Ag Day observation approaches

People in all 50 states will hear about the importance of our food and fiber systems on Thursday, March 18, according to Jack McConnell, chairman of Agriculture Day for the Midlands chapter of the National Agriculture Marketing Association.

Agriculture Day is a nationwide program of education and celebration of agriculture's contribution to American life, said McConnell. We expect millions of Americans in cities, suburbs and towns all across the country to participate.

The theme of the observance is Agriculture: It's Your Heartbeat, America! The symbol is a print out of an electrocardiogram and farm image shown inside a U.S. map.

This is an occasion to remind other Americans of the strength of agriculture's heartbeat and of its needs, McConnell commented. He pointed to the following facts, dramatizing agriculture's leadership role in the U.S. economy:

- Agriculture is the nation's No. 1 industry with assets of $1.1 trillion, equal to 88 percent of the capital assets of all manufacturing corporations in the United States.

- Agriculture is the nation's No. 1 employer, with over 23 million people employed in the food and fiber system.

- Agriculture is the No. 1 inflation fighter, with each farmer producing enough food and fiber for 78 persons.

Agriculture is the No. 1 exporter, about $44 million in 1981, helping to pay for oil, electronics, automobiles, vital raw materials and other items we import.

Every citizen has a personal stake in keeping agriculture's heartbeat strong, McConnell continued.

He reported that a wide range of projects and events are planned nationwide. These include securing proclamations from governors and mayors; setting up exhibits and small fairs at shopping centers, appearing on television and radio talk shows, serving as hosts of farm, ranch and agribusiness tours, speaking to school children and greeting shoppers with booths at supermarkets.

The observance is directed nationally by the Agriculture Day Foundation, with staffing and program administration provided by the Agriculture Council of America as part of its overall job as a communications link between the farm and nonfarm publics.

Allen HS mechanics, welding teams place

Two vocational agriculture teams from Allen High School will represent their school at the State Voc Ag competition April 2 at Lincoln.

At the District III Voc Ag competition held Wednesday in Norfolk, a mechanics team and welding team both qualified for state.

In the National Agriculture Mechanics Contest, the team of Keith Rhode, John Stapleton, Devin Nice and Dennis Smith placed first to win a purple ribbon and district championship trophy.

Individually, Rhode won the overall competition among 40 contestants and was awarded a purple ribbon and trophy. Stapleton placed third, Nice finished sixth and Smith finished eighth.

The two-man welding team of Derwin Roberts and Jody Mahler won a purple ribbon by placing second in the welding contest. Pender won the close team competition and will join Allen at state.

Roberts placed third in arc welding among 60 individuals and Mahler placed third in acetylene welding.

Another team of welders, Keith Karlberg and Jody Jones, competed in the contest. Karlberg placed fourth overall and earned a blue ribbon in the acetylene division and Jones finished ninth in the arc welding competition.

During the district contest, five other Allen students attended a meats workshop at Roman Packing in Norfolk. The team of Kirk Hansen, Aaron Hough, Doug Ellis, Karey Rahn and Jerry Dickens participated in the workshop.

Instructor for the Allen vocational agriculture students is Tom Wilmes.

Know production costs and yield

Are you producing soybeans at a profit? Or taking a loss? If you know how much it costs you to produce a bushel of beans you know your personal profit margin from a glance at the latest soybean price quote on the board at the elevator. And if you know your cost per bushel you can formulate both a production plan and a marketing plan to help you optimize your profits for 1982.

"A good production plan will include varieties, tillage practices, chemical programs and a good estimate of your production costs. Likewise, your marketing plan will answer the what, when, where and how much you hope to sell and at what price levels. It's not too early to think about your expected selling price for your 1982 crop," Acton reminds.

Another point to remember your cost per bushel goes down as yields increase. If you can produce more beans per acre, your production costs don't rise nearly as fast as your return per acre since you're producing more beans per acre. Acton adds:

"If you're trying to cut production costs, don't do anything that may reduce your yields. That will raise your cost per bushel and reduce your profit margin per bushel," he points out.

Increased demand

Soybean prices on rise

Despite a near record soybean crop, a large carryover and a sizeable total supply, producers can expect soybean prices to rise in the next few months.

Dr. Lynn Lutgen, University of Nebraska extension marketing specialist, cited U.S. Department of Agriculture January production estimates of 2.077 billion bushels, second only to the crop of 1979-80, and carryover of .320 billion bushels, for a total U.S. supply of 2.397 billion bushels.

"With the certainty of a large domestic supply, any major price rise probably will come from increased demand," he projected.

EARLY SEASON forecasts suggest that foreign demand for soybeans and soybean products will rise. Exports also are expected to increase, possibly up to 840 million bushels, compared to last year's 724 million bushels, he said.

The European Common

Market countries, key importers, are experiencing lower bean prices. Lutgen said. Crushing margin and demand for soybean meal are rising because beans are relatively cheap there compared to corn.

Brazil's production and export policy also must be considered, Lutgen said. "Brazil sold heavily last year from March through November, and is devoid of export material, leaving the U.S. as the only major supplier of beans."

The pessimistic outlook for the U.S. economy as a whole can affect bean prices in several ways, Lutgen added. "As a recession deepens, demand for non-durable goods such as meat decreases, thereby lowering margins that would cause expansion in livestock and poultry numbers."

IN ADDITION, the demand for soybean oil generally slows during a recession. But this year, the excess of oil has caused lower prices, making soybean oil very competitive with other oils. Domestic use could rise about 4 percent.

Based on historical patterns, bean prices should strengthen during the first half of 1982, Lutgen said. "During four of the five recessions since 1960, prices fell when the slowdown started, but began recovering about half way through."

Lutgen also pointed to seasonal patterns. "In years of long crops, prices have tended to strengthen 10 to 15 percent in the last quarter, over the first quarter prices," he said.

USDA is projecting a national average farm price for soybeans between $5.75 and $6.75 a bushel, compared to last year's average of $7.41 for last year's short crop. Nebraska producers also can expect prices in that range, Lutgen said.

Grain outlook

Records mean lower prices

Feedgrain producers could see average 1981-82 prices significantly lower than a year ago. That would mean corn in the range of $2.55 to $2.70 a bushel and sorghum at about $4.30 to $4.70 per hundredweight.

Dr. Dean Linsenmeyer, associate professor of agricultural economics at the University of Nebraska, said 1981's record worldwide harvest of feedgrains stuggish export markets and marginal growth in domestic feed usage make these prices likely.

Most of the major feedgrain exporters harvested near record crops in 1981, up six percent from 1980. U.S. production was 24 percent larger than the drought-stricken 1980 crop," Linsenmeyer said. Worldwide 1981 production is expected to exceed use by nearly three percent.

but most of this growth will probably occur outside of the U.S. "The strong U.S. dollar and high interest rates at home make the importer more hesitant to make large purchases of U.S. grain, especially when other exporting nations have plentiful supplies," Linsenmeyer said.

Global usage in the 1981-82 marketing year is expected to increase only 1 percent, he said, and a worldwide increase of carryover stocks is expected. Carryover is expected to reach 97 million metric tons, or 30 million more than last year. "Nearly 94 percent of this increase is expected to occur in the U.S., largely in the farmer-owned grain reserve," Linsenmeyer said.

Given these influences, the U.S. Department of Agriculture is projecting corn prices to average near the loan levels, in the $2.25 to $2.70 range, compared with the $3.10 a bushel national average for the 1980-81 crop, Linsenmeyer said.

million bushels, a 33 percent increase. However, corn exports are expected to increase by less than one percent and domestic feed and industrial use by under three percent, Linsenmeyer said, meaning that carryover could reach 1.7 billion bushels. "That's a 65 percent increase from year-earlier carryover levels and only the second time since 1965 that stocks have exceeded 1.3 billion bushels," he said. This surplus appears to be sufficient to hold the average corn price near the loan levels, he added.

Sorghum, too is a surplus commodity. More than 13.8 million acres were harvested for grain last year, up nearly 50 percent from the depressed harvest of 1980-81, while yields increased 39 percent to an average of 64 bushels per acre.

Domestic sorghum use is projected to increase 44 percent but sorghum exports are expected to decline 10 percent. This will result in a doubling of carryover stocks to nearly 250 million bushels, Linsenmeyer said. Prices are expected to fall in the $4.30 to $4.70 per hundredweight range, down from the average price of $5.36 per hundredweight in 1980-81. "New crop growing conditions in early summer will largely dictate which end of the range the average price may fall," he added.

WITH NEW GRAIN agreements and changing international trade flows, several major exporters have expanded their grain acreage considerably, he added.

World trade in feedgrains is expected to rise slightly, he said.

U.S. CORN GROWERS harvested a record 8.1 billion bushels in 1981 and Nebraska growers harvested more than 802

Feed grain program offered at Wayne ASCS

Feed grain program signups now being taken at the Wayne County ASCS office according to Lynn Morris, chairman of the Wayne County ASCS committee. The signup period started Feb. 16 and continues thru April 16.

Producers can participate in the 1982 feed grain and what program by reducing their base acreage and devoting the reduced acreage to a conserving use. The reduced acreage requirements are 15% for wheat and 10% for feed grain.

Morris explained the feed grain base consists of a barley base and a corn grain sorghum base. Participation can be in either or both bases. The base is the higher of the farms 1981 crop acreage or the average of the 1980-81 averages for the crop. A few farms have a rotation base established.

Benefits of program participation include CCC price support (regular and reserve) grain loans and deficiency payments. Loan rates have been increased to add more incentive to participate, Morris said. Deficiency payments will be made if the National average market price is less than the target price for the first five months of the marketing year.

National loan rates and target prices are as follows: (County loan rates may vary a few cents)

More Valley Corner Systems every year, because it's the least costly investment per acre.

It's going to be harder to make farming pay off in the years to come. Harder for many reasons.

So if anything makes sense, it's to maximize the potential of the land you now farm. Irrigating with a center pivot is one way. Irrigating with a Corner System is even better.

A Corner System can irrigate 19 to 45 more acres than a regular pivot, producing extra income on acres already being farmed. That's why nearly one out of every six pivots sold today is a Corner System.

And when it comes to Corner Systems, nobody knows more than Valmont. They're proven reliable with nearly 3,000 systems in operation. That's at least 20 times more than any other brand.

Before you buy any center pivot, see us. We'll tell you how a Valley Corner System can add to your bottom line profits while being the least costly investment per acre.

Valley dominates the field.
