Administrator accepts Wayne State Foundation post

Wayne State College's president to retire

Dr. Lyle E. Seymour, the sixth president in the history of Wayne State College, has announced his retirement effective June 30, thus ending nearly 30 continuous years of service to the college.

Seymour, who knew the previous five WSC presidents personally, will assume a position with the Wayne State Foundation following his retirement, which is timed to coincide with the end of the fiscal year.

A native of Wayne who has degrees from Wayne State, Iowa State University and the University of South Dakota, Seymour has been WSC president since March of 1973, when he stepped in on an interim basis for Dr. William A. Brandenburg.

BEFORE THAT, Seymour had served WSC as a faculty member, division chairman, dean and vice-president. He began as a chemistry instructor in 1953 and continued to teach science courses after assuming the presidency.

"I started here as a student in September of 1940," Seymour said. "I left after two years because I didn't want to be a teacher at that time the only thing you could do at Wayne State College was be a teacher. So I left, went to Iowa State, then into the service, then came back to Wayne as a faculty member."

His new position with the Wayne State Foundation "will mean, as I see it, a maximum effort to generate private sources of funding to permit those programs which are integral in the maintenance of the quality of programs that we have tried to develop. We know that the tax dollars are probably not going to be available for the next few years."

"One of the real challenges will be to maintain the quality that we have developed," he continued. "Frankly, that is one of the reasons I am going to take the retirement and move into a new role — to provide resources which will permit those quality activities that have gone on at the campus to continue."

REFLECTING on his term as president, Seymour listed several items he considers the most important accomplishments made by WSC under his direction.

"We had peaked in enrollment in 1969/70 at about 3,000 students. Then, because of several factors — the advent of community colleges, the end of the Vietnam War, and several other events — our enrollment declined to about 1,700. We have now grown to where we have 2,300 or 2,400 students. Though I'll not take credit for it, it happened during my term as president."

"I think we greatly strengthened the academic nature" of WSC, he said. "We have a very strong commitment to the liberal arts. We have built sound academic programs."

"I think we've built a strong faculty. We've increased the number of PhDs in each of the various academic disciplines, and that has strengthened the program. Our program for faculty development to encourage faculty members to improve their abilities — is a strong point, and I think that ought to continue."

"I THINK the school has good balance between the academic and the extra-academic. If I had anything to do with that, I'm proud of it because I think that is a real accomplishment. We also completed the renovation of two buildings, and we now have a very complete physical plant. Those two renovations I am very proud of."

J. Alan Cramer, a member of the governing Board of Trustees of the Nebraska State Colleges and himself a Wayne resident, said "I'm terribly disappointed that president Seymour is leaving us. He has been an excellent president and an excellent ambassador for Wayne State College and the state college system."

"I was aware that president Seymour was considering retirement from the presidency within the next year or two, but I was quite surprised that he made this decision so early. It's sooner than I thought it was going to be."

Cramer said the president of the Board of Trustees, Keith Kemper, had already named him chairman of the search committee for the Wayne State vacancy, along with board members George Rebenstorf and Carroll Thompson. Kemper will serve as an ex officio member of that committee.

"In addition to that, there will be a broad-based committee consisting of, I presume, Wayne State Foundation members, alumni and area persons to conduct a search," Cramer added.

PERU STATE College president, Dr. Larry Tangeman, has already announced his resignation and the Kearney State College president, Dr. Brendon MacDonald, is up for consideration at another school outside Nebraska, according to Cramer, who termed it "just a coincidence."

"There are good feelings all the way around (among the college presidents), in every instance, and I'd like to emphasize that," Cramer said.

Seymour will submit his retirement to the full Board of Trustees for approval at their regular monthly meeting next week in Lincoln.

3 candidates in race

Businessman seeks city's mayoral post

Another veteran Wayne businessman has entered the city's mayoral race, bringing the field of candidates to three for 1982's May 11 primary election.

Keith Mosley, 45, district manager for Peoples Natural Gas, Wayne, filed Friday the last day, non incumbents could petition for elective office, for a spot on the city's non partisan mayoral ballot.

Mosley's filing forces the non partisan mayoral election into a three way primary race. The other two candidates are incumbent Mayor Wayne Marsh, 68, also a veteran city businessman and Councilman Gary Vopalensky, 30, a supervisor with Wakefield based Educational Service Unit One.

Keith Mosley

A VOLUNTEER firefighter for more than 21 years, Mosley serves with the Wayne Volunteer Fire Department.

A member of the Wayne Masonic Lodge, he has been a mason for more than 20 years. Mosley also is a past president of the Wayne Kiwanis Club, where he is a 15 year member.

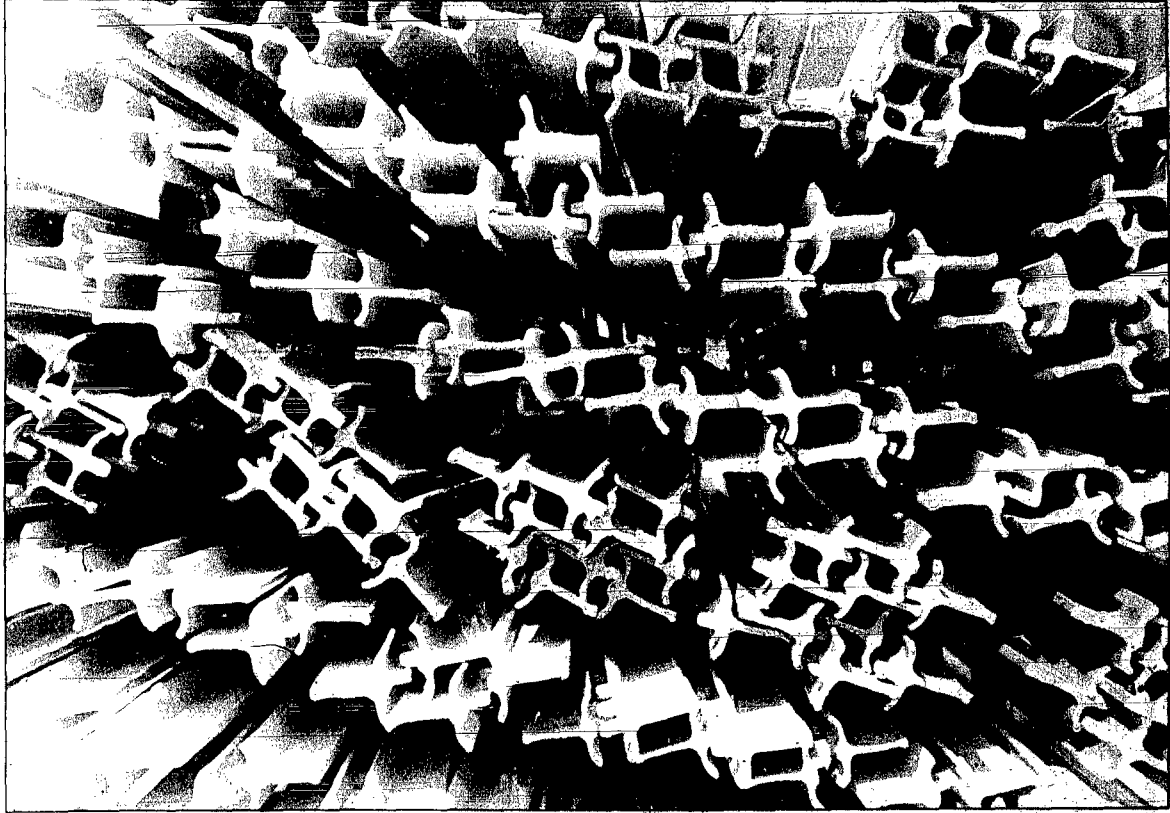

Trained in personnel and financial management, Mosley also is a member of the Wayne Carroll School District's Vocational Advisory Council.

Mosley, who is a member of the Wayne United Presbyterian Church, also serves on the Nebraska Boy Scout Council's advisory committee.

THE LONG TIME Wayne businessman was first elected to a term on the City Council in 1970.

He declined to seek re election in 1973, but was elected to the Ward 3 seat again in 1977. He has represented Ward 3 since that 1977 election.

Mosley and his wife, Carol, are the parents of five grown children — Robin, 23, Sydney, 22, Greg, 20, Joel, 18, and Jill, 17. Robin, Sydney and Joel are students at the University of Nebraska Lincoln.

The country cross

WITH THE LENTEN SEASON in full swing, these country crosses could serve as a symbolic signal to the Christian faithful. While area church schedules are busy with week-day Lenten services, these crosses may offer a reminder that Christians the world over soon will be commemorating the crucifixion of Jesus Christ on a cross He carried to Mt. Calvary. The crosses, scattered in a random arrangement that forms a sober artistic pattern, are formed by the ends of steel fence posts stacked outdoors at a Wayne lumberyard.

Wayne woman in bid for City Council seat

A 38-year-old Wayne woman has filed for the Ward 4 City Council seat.

Michele Flowers, a part time Wayne State College student, filed Friday for the Council seat held by incumbent Larry Johnson, owner-operator of Johnson's Frozen Foods.

Flowers is the wife of Clyde Flowers, who works for the city's engineering consultants — Bruce Gilmore and Associates. He is seeking the office of Wayne County surveyor.

Michele Flowers

BORN IN BRUSSELS, Belgium, she moved to Wayne with her husband three years ago after the family spent more than 10 years in Council Bluffs, Iowa.

A den mother for Cub Scout Troop 221, Flowers is a 1961 graduate of Fernand Cocq High School, Brussels.

She worked as a secretary-clerk in a car rental agency until 1963, when she came to the United States, where she worked in New

Priority project

Winside auditorium renovation fund drive set

A $2,000 donation by the Winside State Bank has kicked off a $10,000 six-month fundraising drive to renovate the village's vintage 1939 municipal auditorium.

The kick-off donation, presented to the Winside Community Improvement Committee Thursday by bank president David Wagnemund, represents 20 percent of the Auditorium Improvement Fund goal.

The Winside CIC, in cooperation with the village board of trustees, has set up the fund drive as a major 1982 community improvement goal, according to Gloria Lessman, committee chairman.

ACCORDING TO Lessman, the auditorium renovation was a top priority in the CIC-sponsored community attitude survey last fall.

The survey, Lessman said, received an 80 percent response from village and neighboring residents. (Wayne County residents within a 3-mile radius of the village participated in the community attitude survey.)

The Winside CIC has been authorized by the village board to receive funds for the renovation project, which has a completion target date of October.

LESSMAN SAID the Winside CIC will conduct the fund drive through Aug. 31, with donations and money from special projects to be deposited in a savings account at Winside State Bank.

Only the village clerk-treasurer, Lynne Wille, has authorization from the board to withdraw funds from the account for use in connection with the renovation of the auditorium, a WPA project built in the late 1930s.

The committee, however, has been directed to provide the board with a month-to-month account of the Auditorium Improvement Fund.

Village board members already have received preliminary estimates on upgrading the auditorium's heating system and insulating parts of the building.

PRIORITY PROJECTS have been set within the auditorium renovation, according to Lessman, who said upgrading the heating system and insulation "have to come first."

Under the proposed improvements, covering the auditorium's big windows ranks with the heating system upgrading and ceiling insulation.

And, painting the interior of the concrete building has been proposed as a second stage of the renovation project.

As part of the painting project, the entry way, restrooms, kitchen, main hall and upstairs meeting room would get attention, according to the priority list.

After that the Winside CIC is expected to turn its attention to the auditorium's floor. Proposals have been submitted calling for covering the floor with non-slip paint or tile or installing a poured flooring.

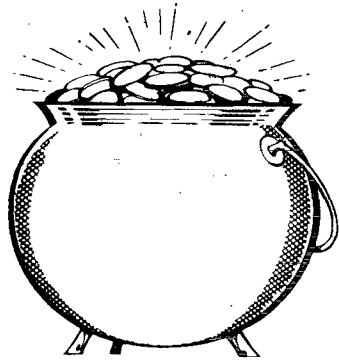

OTHER PROJECTS plans call for putting curtains in the main hall and the upstairs meeting room and installing ceiling fans.

Village trustees accepted the Winside CIC's proposals during its last meeting, with funds to be used in the renovation project, as determined by the board. The board expects to start using funds this spring and

3 candidates put five on ballot for Wakefield board

Melvin Mortenson, James Martindale and Dennis L. Carlson are the latest candidates to file for seats on the Wakefield School District Board of Education.

They join Larry Clay and Jim Stout, who earlier announced their plans to run for the school board.

Clay is seeking his third term on the board. Stout is a non-incumbent. Board members who declined to seek reelection are Randall Larson, who is completing his second term on the board, and Marie Pretzer, who has served one term.

CARLSON, 43, lives on a farm five and a half miles south of Wakefield. A native of Wakefield, he graduated from high school there in 1955.

After high school he farmed with his father and mother for several years before purchasing his own operation. He and his wife, Ellen, are the parents of 20-year-old Douglas, who lives in Denver, 16-year-old Mike, a junior at Wakefield High School, and 14-year-old Lori, an eighth grader.

CARLSON is a member of the Wayne County Farm Bureau and a director of the Nebraska Brangus Breeders Association. He also has served on the Wayne County Extension Board.

He and his family are members of the Evangelical Covenant Church of Wakefield.

MARTINDALE, 33, was born at Wakefield and grew up in Concord.

He is a 1966 graduate of Laurel High School and a 1971 graduate of Wayne State College.

Following graduation from college, he worked two years at the Postal Finance Co in Grand Island, and for the next two years with General Tire Co. He also was employed with the Milton G. Waldbaum Co. in Wakefield.

He has worked for Logan Valley Implement in Wayne for the past two years.

HE IS a member of Salem Lutheran Church in Wakefield and has served on the church council. He currently serves as Sunday School superintendent.

Martindale and his wife, Linda, are the parents of two sons. Matt, 8, is a second grader, and Ryan, 6, is in kindergarten.

Martindale, who said he is interested in the education of young people, believes Wakefield has a good school system and would like to see it stay that way.

"I hope I can make some influence in that direction," he stated.

MORTENSON, who farms two and a half miles from Wakefield, grew up there and served in the U.S. Air Force for five years, five years.

The 36-year-old father of three children returned to Wakefield and worked for his father until 1972 when he began farming on his own.

MORTENSON SAID he is running for a seat on the school board because he feels it is something everyone should do.

"I'm not running because I'm mad about anything," he stated. "It's a duty that everyone should do at least once if they are concerned about education and administration."

The 37-year-old father of three children received his bachelor's of arts in education degree in December of 1971 from Wayne State College.

They are members of the First United Methodist Church, where Peterson serves on the administrative board of youth ministries.

"WAYNE HAS three excellent schools," said Peterson, adding that he has children enrolled in each of the schools who are actively involved in athletics, music and drama.

"I'd like to see that all of these programs are maintained along with the quality education for all children," he stated.

ROHDE, who was born and raised at Carroll, taught school for many years and said she is seeking a seat on the school board because of her past teaching experience.

"I'm interested in education," said Rohde, who has one daughter attending Wayne Middle School and a son enrolled in Carroll Elementary School.

Rohde has served as Carroll Village Clerk for about the past eight years and said because of her experience in budgeting she would like to see that children get the best education possible for the amount of money the school district has to work with.

ROHDE WAS graduated from Carroll High School and Wayne State College. She taught in several rural Wayne County schools for many years, and retired from teaching in 1973 at Winside Public School.

In addition to serving as Carroll Village Clerk, she is employed part-time at TWJ Farms south of Carroll.

SHE SERVES on the board of trustees for Goldenrod Hills Community Action Agency, and is a member of the Carroll Housing Authority.

She was awarded her MLS degree in 1978 from the University of Texas at Austin. She has been a librarian at Wayne State College for the past three years.

HER PREVIOUS work experience includes teaching fifth grade at Bound Brook, N. J. from 1963 to 1965.

She also taught GED classes in Wayne from 1973 to 1976.

Other jobs she has held were in a law library, grocery store, as a substitute teacher, a bookmobile librarian, and full time housewife.

She is a member of several professional organizations, and has worked with scouts and the 4-H program. She also is a member of Grace Lutheran Church in Wayne and has taught Sunday School for eight years.

SHE AND her husband, Howard, a professor at Wayne State College, are the parents of three children.

Rebecca, age 15, is a freshman at Wayne High School. Brian, 13, is in seventh grade, and Greg, 11, is a fifth grader.

"I think this community has shown a concern for excellence in education. I share this concern and am willing to spend my time and energy in working toward continuing this tradition," said Schmidt.

TIEDTKE, who feels strongly about Wayne's special education programs, is a 1969 graduate of Wayne High School.

The 31-year-old native of Wakefield worked in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, for one and a half years following his graduation from high school.

He moved back to Wayne in 1971, where he works in water conditioning.

His wife, Teresa, has been employed at Bill's GW for the past six years. Their two children are 11-year-old Julie, a sixth grader, and 10-year-old Chad, a fourth grader.

They are members of St. Mary's Catholic Church.

"I WANT the best quality education for young people in Wayne at the lowest possible cost," said Tiedtke.

"Although I believe that the Wayne Carroll Board of Education can cut costs, I don't believe that special education is an area that should be cut."

"My main objective is to cut waste," stressed Tiedtke.

3 Wayne principals get contract offers

Wayne's three public school principals have been offered new contracts for the 1982-83 school year.

At their regular meeting last Monday night, members of the Wayne Carroll Board of Education voted to extend the contracts of Wayne High School Principal Donald Zeiss, Wayne Middle School Principal Richard Metfeer, and West Elementary School Principal David Lutt.

Their salaries will be established at a later date.

THE BOARD voted unanimously to rehire the three principals following an executive session to discuss staffing and negotiations.

Meeting with the board in executive session to discuss staffing for the next school year were Darrell and Wilma Moore.

MOORE'S SON, Jeff, a senior at Wayne High School this year, was involved in an incident with Zeiss last July.

The Moores brought the matter before the school board and the Wayne County Attorney filed third degree assault charges against Zeiss based on a complaint by the Moores.

The County Court judge fined Zeiss for $100 and placed him on a year's probation. The case remains under investigation by the Nebraska Professional Practices Commission — an arm of the State Education Department.

In addition, Zeiss was reprimanded by the Wayne-Carroll School Board.

THE BOARD also voted to rehire 59 teachers recommended by Superintendent Francis Haun for the 1982-83 school year.

Teachers rehired by the board include Inge Atkins, Harold Blomkamp, Duane Blomkamp, Ronald Carrnes, Mavis Dalton, Ronald Dalton, Lonnie Ehrhardt, Kathy Fink, Curtis Frye, Allen Hansen, Byron Heier, Darrell Heier, Dale Hochstein, Miron Jenness, Becky Kelley, Harold Maciejewski, Stanley Mallette, Margot Olson, Sharyn Paige, Robert Porter, Karen Roth, Judith Schaler.

summer in hopes of having the renovation done by October for a planned German dinner at the auditorium.

"We'll see how far our money goes," Lessman said during Thursday's kick-off meeting. "It's going to take the help of everyone in a community of our size."

"What we need is monetary help, but we also need ideas and the communities reaction to our ideas," continued Lessman, who is serving her second year as Winside CIC chairman.

"IF WE ALL PITCH in, we will all have a piece of the project and we'll all have a facility we can use."

Last year was Winside's first year of participation in the state's Nebraska Community Improvement Program. The village received an honorable mention.

Lessman said that during the Winside CIC's March meeting, committee members would be developing plans for special fundraising events for the six-month drive.

"The said tentative fundraising proposals include dances (particularly square dances), bingo on a regular basis, skate-a-thons and community theatre presentations."

"We are looking for people interested in helping with projects and ideas," Lessman said. "We need volunteers."

LESSMAN SAID the Winside CIC "cannot do it" alone.

The group, which is 15 to 20 members strong — including village board chairman Marvin Cherry, works to coordinate projects, according to Lessman.

She said the Winside CIC membership represents a cross-section of the community including senior citizens, churches, schools, business, civic organizations and youth.

In addition to Lessman, officers of the committee include Marilyn Morse, vice chairman, Kelly Leighton, secretary, Curt Jeffries, treasurer, Shawn Boldt, photographer and Ron Leapley, publicity.

"We want people from those groups to come to our meetings with ideas," Lessman continued. "We do hope groups will start their own particular (fundraising) projects."

LESSMAN EXPLAINED that the committee felt the fundraising drive could meet some of the goals that village area residents listed on the attitude survey.

"Some of the fundraising activities could provide entertainment and recreation for residents," Lessman said, noting that both were listed among priorities on the recent attitude survey.

The Winside CIC also will accept donations from individuals, according to Lessman. Individual donations should be presented to committee members or sent to the Auditorium Improvement Fund, c/o Winside State Bank.

THE BOARD OF directors of the Winside State Bank is happy to contribute to the Auditorium Improvement Fund," Warnemunde told Lessman, Morse and Jeffries during Thursday's kick-off meeting at the Winside Elementary School library.

"The remodeled auditorium will once again be available for usage by Winside and its surrounding community for all kinds of social events," the bank president continued.

"This will be a real boost to our business district," he concluded.

The auditorium has seen little use in the past few years, particularly during the winter months, because of an inadequate heating system and the high cost of heating the building, according to Lessman.

Boys team posts 9-12 record

Laurel basketball squad misfires

Shooting ability, expected to be one of Laurel's strengths this past season, turned out to be one of its downfall as the Bears finished with a 9-12 record.

The Laurel boys made 35 percent of their shots from the floor and 37 percent from the line while their opponents hit 46 percent from the field and 60 percent at the free throw line.

The Bears were usually at a height disadvantage but outrebounded their foes 468 to 419. The locals stole the ball 212 times but lost it only 114 times on steals. For the season, Laurel averaged 42.7 points a game and the Bears' opponents averaged 44.4 points.

Individually, the Bears showed considerable balance in scoring. Dave Marquardt averaged 8.5 points, Phil Marlin averaged 7.4, Kelly Robson averaged 7.3, Brian Marquardt averaged 7.1 and Tim Bloom averaged 6.5.

Marlin led the regulars with a shooting percentage of 41. The Marquardt brothers each hit 37 percent. At the free-throw line, Dave Marquardt made 73 percent of his shots and Brian Marquardt hit 70 percent.

Leading rebounder was Marlin with 88 rebounds in 27 games. Bloom had 73, Brian Marquardt had 72, Robson had 62, Dave Marquardt had 60 and Todd Hellman had 57. Robson led the team in steals with 47 and assists with 72. Bloom made 44 assists.

Other players on coach Joel Parks' squad were Jerry Kasrup, Mike Jonas, Paul Lotz, Ben Galvin, Mark Pennerick, Mark Herrmann and Scott Rath.

Laurel girls split season

As the season progressed, the Laurel girls basketball team got stronger and by district time the Bears had peaked. They defeated Allen and gave Randolph a good run for its money to finish the year with a 10-10 record.

Anne Schultz led Laurel in several categories this past season.

An individual record book compiled by coach Dwight Iverson shows that Schultz inked her name into the records several times. Three other players made their way into the records lists.

SCHULTZ SET a new record for her way points scored in a game when she tallied 27 against Wayne. She also finished with 246 total points this season for a new single season record. Most of the other records for scoring, shooting percentage and rebounding are held by Cheryl Abbs. Kay Anderson was the leading career scorer in the history of girls basketball at Laurel.

Schultz averaged 11.2 points per game this year to rank fourth on the all-time chart. Abbs averaged 13.0 and 12.7 points respectively her final two seasons (1977 and 1978). Anderson is third at 12.5 her junior year, fifth at 11.1 her senior year and 10.4 her sophomore year.

In the rebounding charts, Schultz is fourth with a 7.91 average per game. Renee Gadeken, just a junior, ranks 10th on the all-time list with a 6.9 average.

THREE MEMBERS of the 1981-82 squad were among the all-time single season scoring leaders. Schultz heads the list with 246 points this past season. Kim Sherry is eighth with 145 points and Gadeken is 10th with 131.

In career scoring, Schultz ranks third with 376 points. Sherry, still a junior, is seventh with 219 and Gadeken is 11th with 186. Cyndi Jonas is 13th at 154 and LaRae Nelson is listed 18th.

Nelson is listed third in career field goal percentage at 34.5 percent with Gadeken, Schultz and Sherry seventh, eighth and 10th respectively.

Among the top free throw shooters for career, Schultz is fifth with a 54.7 percent mark. Jonas is fifth and Gadeken is ninth. Schultz finished just three rebounds shy of the single season mark held by Abbs at 174. Gadeken is fourth on the list at 138 and Sherry is seventh at 130. For career rebounding, Schultz is third with 309, Gadeken is fifth with 207, Sherry is seventh with 195, Jonas is ninth with 161 and Patsy Thompson is 12th.

Wayne State offers March CLEP exams

A program that enables persons to earn college credits by examination will be offered March 17 at Wayne State College.

The College Level Examination Program (CLEP) offers the opportunity to save time and money in pursuing a college education. Students wishing to participate must register on or before today (Monday).

ANYONE CAN take CLEP exams and submit scores to one or more of 7,500 participating institutions.

To receive college credit at Wayne State, students must either be currently enrolled or have met Wayne State admission requirements.

Students can get a good overview of the areas they select to take a CLEP exam on by studying a related text book, which can often be found in local public libraries.

Text books also can be required through an inter library loan or by visiting Wayne State's Conn Library.

CREDIT received for CLEP is entered on a student's record without a grade. Thereby not affecting grade point averages.

There is no official record entered if the CLEP exam is failed, and students can re-take the same exam again provided appropriate fees are paid.

Wayne State places no limit on the maximum number of credit hours earned through CLEP and taken before the senior year.

EACH CLEP exam usually takes about 90 minutes to complete.

The fee for General and Subject Examinations is $25 per exam. Scores are reported to the student and the college four to eight weeks after the test date.

For more information contact the Wayne State College Student Services Office - 402/375-2200, ext. 213.

As with everything, there are two sides to the question of borrowing money. Some say: Never borrow. Pay cash for everything. In today's economy, which is right and which is wrong?

A. In today's economy and, in fact, in all economies, the best advice is to seek the middle ground between the two extremes. There is certainly nothing wrong with borrowing money - when you really need to, and can afford to pay it back within a reasonable amount of time. And, of course, if the cash is on hand, and all other needs are provided for, with a little put aside for emergencies, there's certainly nothing wrong with paying cash. If a situation comes up which is really difficult to decide to pay cash or borrow, talk with someone who can look at both sides objectively and give you good, sound professional advice.

country boy. . .

...by randall howell

Howdy.

The alternate-freezing nights and thawing days of March represent the tick-tock of Mother Nature's clock.

Hour upon hour, the earth turns toward the Northern Hemisphere's summer solstice.

And, the heartbeat of the land throbs on the threshold of birth and rebirth.

LIKE A SLOWLY waking giant shaking off the numbness of a deep sleep from roof to limb, the rebirth begins.

And, the sound of spring is carried on a warming wind that tickles the soft coat of a newborn calf, and beckons the bleat of a day old lamb.

Field and farmyard sparrows tune up earlier each day, practicing for spring concerts with breakfast in their beaks.

And, for country boys who listen closely, there's the plaintive peep-peep of chicks fresh from the hatchery.

They all signal the start of earth's annual springtime explosion — a blast of birth and rebirth that reverberates through a reawakened countryside.

ONE OF THE most exciting things about spring on a farm is the miracle of birth.

There's nothing quite like it.

And, no matter how many times I've experienced it, the fears still come to my eyes.

They are not fears of sadness, but fears of joy for the experience of life for the shared experience of surviving, for the miracle of the moment that grows into the hours of today and tomorrow.

If you ever have held the soft wet head of a newborn calf in your arms, you know what I mean.

If you ever have cradled a newborn lamb to give it the warmth from your own body, you know what I mean.

If you ever have held the squealing mass of a newborn piglet in the palm of your hand, you know what I mean.

And if you've ever felt the fluff of a day old chick on your cheek, you know what I mean.

SOME OF MY fondest farm memories are of such things as newborn calves frolicking about worried mother cows only minutes after birth.

Or, the contented grunt of an old sow nursing her litter for the first time minutes after the birth her piglets.

Or, the apologetic peep-peep of just hatched chicks as they flap and dart about from one imaginary point to another barely balancing themselves on two toothpick legs.

Or, better yet, the proud purr of an old mother cat as she moved her unseeing litter from the birthing room beneath the old milking stool to a makeshift nest in the hayloft.

IT SEEMS TO me that March is the beginning. The real beginning. The beginning that brings all the dreams of January and February to the fingertips of a country boy.

I remember getting the brooder house ready for the new chicks that were scheduled to arrive with the first real sign of spring.

With old hens in the chicken coop, we had to make special arrangements for the new arrivals.

That meant dragging the brooder house across the still frozen yard to a point near water, feed and bedding.

It meant lacking tin can covers over all the holes to keep the cold, wet spring weather outside and the heat from the brooder lamps inside.

THE TIN-CAN covers also served as an effective barrier against rats, weasels and skunks searching for a tender morsel of chicken dinner.

Then, it was time to shovel several wagon loads of corn cobs through the hammermill. The result was some fantastic bedding for the chicks — a bedding that was absorbent and warm.

In addition, it seems to me that baby chicks have a bad habit of swallowing straws. So, the ground corn cob bedding became a safeguard against that kind of behavior.

With the bedding in place, it was time for the waterers and feeders to be placed in the brooder house.

Often the feeders were handmade by my father. In later years, we were able to afford fancy new metal ones.

AND, THE WATERERS were those old, tried and true bubble jars. At least, that's what I called them.

They involved two pieces — a jar, which held the water, and a metal or plastic top that served as a tray.

When the filled bubble jar was turned upside down, a huge bubble of air rose to the top and the water rushed out into the tray through a small hole in the lid.

I remember watching that bubble rise hundreds of times while waiting for one of the trays to run over. They never did.

I know it took my father a while to explain — in my language why the water didn't just rush out and onto the floor of the brooder house.

I DON'T REMEMBER now what he said, but I'm sure it wasn't easy to put physics laws into an understandable form for me at a time when I was having trouble reaching the door handle on the brooder house.

The day the chicks arrived was filled with plenty of excitement.

I remember getting special instructions on how to hold those little balls of yellow fluff without crushing them to death.

Their legs broke like tiny twigs. And, my natural childhood desire to hold them tight so they didn't escape left the chicks — and my father — more than a little worried.

THEY ARRIVED IN cardboard boxes riddled with breathing holes.

And, the din of the peep-peep-peeping that came from the boxes kept me and my brothers and sisters wide-eyed and curious.

As my father took them into their new home, I remember being allowed to carefully catch them in the box and release them onto the strangeness of the ground-corn cob floor.

They always acted so silly, darling from waterer to feeder to brooder lamp, that it was difficult to contain my laughter.

However, my father always warned us that any loud noise would frighten them, resulting in a stampede to a dark corner where they would smother each other in seconds.

THE VERY THOUGHT of it was sobering, even to the mind of a child.

Furthermore, my father always warned us to walk slowly and watch where we place our feet. Of course, the warning was given to prevent the crushing-death of a chick beneath our boots.

I remember accidentally stepping on a chick during choretime one day.

After I quickly jerked my boot from the ball of fluff, it fluttered and gasped in a death rattle that drained all the blood from my face.

I was so scared that I really lost my head for a few moments. First I started crying.

Then, I remember deciding that I wasn't going to be punished for something that was an accident.

THERE WAS A problem. No one saw it happen but me and 999 baby chicks.

They wouldn't say anything, but then they wouldn't come to my aid either.

So, drying my tears, I picked up the still warm, but still quite dead, chick and walked ever so carefully to the brooder house door.

With the chick all but hidden in the palm of my hand, I checked to see if anyone was around.

The coast was clear.

Slipping the chick into the pocket of my overalls, I grabbed my water bucket and casually walked toward the barnyard.

Setting my bucket down at the gate, I climbed over and walked well into the cow yard, which was knee deep in manure.

IT WAS THERE, near the feed bunks, that I gave that chick the best burial I could, given the circumstances.

Putting the chick out of my pocket, while pretending to check over the cattle, I dropped it into the manure.

My next step sent the fluffy corpse knee-deep into the bottom of the cattle yard. The slurrp of the manure closing in over the deep boot print told me that the burial service was over.

I returned to the brooder house to finish the feeding and watering of the chicks.

Not one of them seemed to miss their comrade as I entered the brooder house with empty pockets.

AS I TURNED my full attention to the waterers, being careful not to repeat the accident, I heard my father clear his throat.

My heart jumped into my throat and my head started to pound.

As I looked around, I could barely make out his shape on the feed sacks near the door.

So intent had I been on getting back to work unnoticed that I had walked right past him.

The glare of the brooder lamps in front of me made it difficult to focus in the dark behind me.

He started to talk about what a good job I was doing with the baby chick chores, and how wonderful it was that we hadn't lost any yet.

My heartached to tell him what I had done.

I could not.

AS HE WATCHED the chicks eat, drink and play, tears rolled down my cheeks.

The tears dried, leaving a salty crust on my face, as I finished filling the waterers.

Together, we walked out of the brooder house and headed into the farm house for our own supper.

That night, before I slept, I talked to God about what had happened.

I promised to be more careful.

And, I prayed for that baby chick.

Catch you next week.

Hartington legislator is honored

The Legislature has unanimously passed a resolution honoring and remembering former state Sen. Jules Burbach.

Sen. Burbach was my predecessor in the Legislature and served 20 years as a faithful and dedicated member of the Unicameral.

The Legislature was not in session last Tuesday to allow the senators to attend the funeral in Hartington. I personally presented the resolution to Sen. Burbach's widow, Bernice, after the funeral.

senator elroy hefner

LB 626, a bill that would allow multibank holding companies to operate in Nebraska, gained first round approval this week in the Legislature after one Senator switched votes.

The bill is almost identical to a bill that was quite controversial during last year's session, when the lieutenant governor cast a tie-breaking vote on final reading. The Nebraska Supreme Court ruled this winter that the lieutenant governor cannot break ties on final reading, and so last session's bill did not pass.

The bill allows a holding company to purchase existing banks under specified restrictions. The total number of banks each owned would be limited to nine.

Proponents of the bill said that it would encourage competition with the state's banking industry.

OPponents SAID the bill would create a huge concentration of financial power within the state that would not be in the best interests of consumers and small banks. Opponents felt that the measure would lead to the death of small banks and less attention to agricultural financing needs by giant corporations.

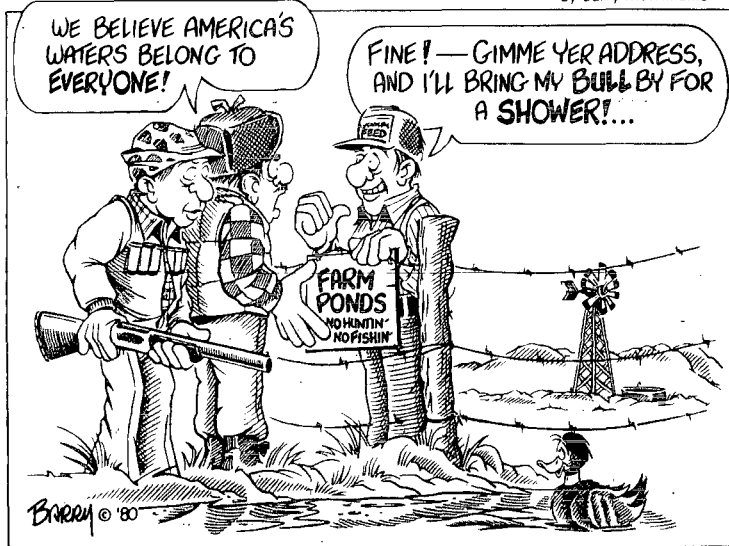

I voted against the bill because I feel that now is not the time to change our banking structure in Nebraska, since economic conditions at the present time are unstable.

A bill that would transfer administration of Nebraska's county welfare programs to the state, LB 522, stalled at the first stage of debate. Several senators suggested that the switch be delayed until the state assumes full Medicaid funding. Counties currently administer welfare programs with supervision from the state.

At the present time in Nebraska the county share of Medicaid costs is 14 percent, with the state and federal government picking up the balance. The introducer proposed an amendment that the counties share be reduced by 2 percentage points each year, beginning July 1983. This amendment also called by a 21-24 vote.

Mood of Congress changes over defense of Japanese

Several months ago in this column I discussed the need for Japan to make greater contributions toward its own defense. Since the conclusion of World War II, the United States has shouldered most of the responsibility for Japan's security.

In the past 35 years, Japan's economic growth has been phenomenal; yet, it has not taken on defense responsibilities commensurate with its economic growth.

In 1981, when Japan registered a $13.5 billion trade surplus with the United States, it devoted only .93% of its gross national product to defense; the United States spent close to 6 percent of its gross national product.

THERE APPEARS to be a mood developing among members of Congress to get Japan to increase its contribution to defense of east Asia.

There are now several bills which have been introduced in the House calling for Japan to contribute a larger percentage of its gross national product to pay for continued United States military operations in east Asia, and to assist the United States in defending waterways in the region.

As Japan's trade surplus with the United States grows, the domestic budget debate intensifies — and, as the United States reassesses its global defense posture, members of Congress will almost certainly expect Japan to play a greater role in defending itself and the surrounding region.

NATIONAL PARKS — Overcrowding is a perennial problem at some internationally famous parks and at many popular areas in lesser-known parks.

Visitors are often disappointed when they arrive to find campgrounds and other overnight accommodations full, forcing them to search for alternatives which may involve many added miles of travel at the end of a day.

The National Park Service is attempting to develop a financially self-sufficient reservations system for arranging overnight accommodations in national park areas.

EDUCATIONAL SERVICE UNIT — Although there were several errors in the recent articles regarding the Educational Service Unit, there is one point that must be rectified.

In last Thursday's (March 4) lead story and in Monday's (March 8) edition, you quoted me as saying that Knox County Special Education Supervisor Richard Genovese has better credentials than the other three supervisors, Duane Tappe, Gary Vopalensky and Larry Clay.

This was an incorrect quote, as what I actually said was: "Mr. Genovese has higher certification than all the other resource teachers working for Education Service Unit One."

All the supervisors have masters degrees in their respective areas of special education.

I was willing to look past the error in Thursday's paper, but when irresponsible reporting is used as the basis for an editorial, I feel it must be addressed.

Harry D. Mills
ESU One administrator

EDITOR'S NOTE: The basis for the editorial was the ESU One administrator's misquoting of the Genovese case, not the supervisor's credentials. The misquoting resulted in Mills receiving a public reprimand from the ESU board. Mills was not quoted in regard to the credentials of Genovese. His statements were paraphrased. If the paraphrasing was in error, an apology is extended. However, the editorial comment stands.

Rough road ahead

The winter of '82 was tough on people and equipment. And, it was rough on northeast Nebraska's street, road and highway system.

In fact, Wayne's Main Street looks, feels and acts like it is about to come unglued beneath the hundreds of cars that travel it daily.

Area parking lot surfaces have crumbled from the effects of severe freezing and subsequent thawing.

Repairing the damage already done is going to cost city taxpayers and several private property owners some money.

Unfortunately, if allowed to go unrepaired for any length of time, the damage will increase, pushing the fix up costs higher.

Bugging litterbugs

Several weeks ago, Greenwood Cemetery was awash in hundreds of wind-blown newspapers.

The papers had scattered throughout the cemetery and cluttered the fence-line.

A member of The Wayne Herald staff, and his family, spent hours that Sunday afternoon picking up the newspapers and filling five garbage bags, as well as a big cardboard box, with the refuse.

The filled garbage bags and cardboard box were piled just inside the cemetery gate.

A check of the mailing labels showed that most of the newspapers, which were dailies and weeklies from throughout Nebraska, came from the Wayne High School library.

Superintendent Francis Haun was informed. He said the school would take care of it. The garbage bags and the box are still sitting in the cemetery waiting for windy weather to scatter the papers about again.

Pork and profits

"Cautious optimism" best describes the 1982 outlook for pork producers. This will be a financially critical year for many producers.

While there may be some improvement in hog prices in 1982, low corn prices are likely to be the primary reason for pork producers to break even or show a profit.

A cutback in production, which normally promises higher prices, was shown by USDA reports in December, 1981. But producers should guard against "false hopes," because 1980 and 1981 forecasts also predicted lower production but neither year was profitable.

Positive impact on prices this year by reduced pork supplies will be offset by increased supplies of beef and poultry and a weak economy. Producers should break even during the first six months of 1982, and if fewer pigs are farrowed and the economy strengthens before fall elections, producers could realize some long-awaited profits.

With reduced marketings, the average price of market hogs for both the first and second quarters should be in the $45 to $47 per hundredweight range.

The outlook for the last half of 1982 is more uncertain, hinging in part on the number of pigs farrowed and ultimately marketed. Reports show that producers intended to farrow 13 percent fewer sows in the December 1981-through-May 1982 period, which provides hogs for marketing during the last half of the year.

A return to an average litter size this year, compared to last year's above average 7.39 pigs per litter, would result in a pig crop 13 percent under 1981. The severe winter of 1982 could cause the litter size to be average or below.

While there is a chance for hog prices which will produce profits for producers, quantity is not the only factor. In determining profit, total meat supplies, the economy and corn prices will be important factors this year.

Pork production costs in 1982 should average lower than in 1981 for most producers. Lower corn prices will more than offset increases in the cost of utilities, repairs, services and equipment.

Feeder pig producers probably will continue to operate at a loss in 1982 unless market hog prices improve to the point that finishers bid up the price of pigs significantly.

More Valley Corner Systems every year, because it's the least costly investment per acre.

It's going to be harder to make farming pay off in the years to come. Harder for many reasons. So if anything makes sense, it's to maximize the potential of the land you now farm. Irrigating with a center pivot is one way. Irrigating with a Corner System is even better.

A Corner System can irrigate 19 to 45 more acres than a regular pivot, producing extra income on acres already being farmed. That's why nearly one out of every six pivots sold today is a Corner System.

And when it comes to Corner Systems, nobody knows more than Valmont. They're proven reliable with nearly 3,000 systems in operation. That's at least 20 times more than any other brand.

Before you buy any center pivot, see us. We'll tell you how a Valley Corner System can add to your bottom line profits while being the least costly investment per acre.

Valley Irrigation is the Best.

The last snow fort

THIS SNOW FORT may be the final one of the year if nice weather decides to stick around. Joe Denton (left), nine year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Denton, and friend Nathan Tompkins, nine year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Rod Tompkins, built the fort last week.

ERA Real Estate expands program for equity buy-out

If you are one of America's families who must relocate but can't sell your existing home, help is on the way from ERA Real Estate in the form of a new ERA Sellers Security Plan, according to Darrel D. Fuelberth, Wayne ERA broker and Polly Spencer, ERA service broker.

Originally introduced in 1979, the new ERA Sellers Security Plan now offers a maximum $100,000 advance from the equity in the seller's present home, plus other advantages.

FOREMOST among these advantages — and the biggest change since the original plan is the program's local scope, as well as its use nationally. In effect, it can help you whether you're moving cross town or cross country, according to Fuelberth.

"We're sure this will attract the attention of new home buyers who would like to have the availability of a guaranteed sales plan," said Spencer. "And in today's real estate market, being able to extract your equity out of your present home is absolutely critical. We feel this program can be helpful to corporate transferees whose company doesn't offer relocation assistance," she added.

"Under the new program, ERA Real Estate may advance qualified sellers up to $100,000 in equity from their present home. ERA will purchase the home if a buyer is not found in seven months.

Naturally, we aggressively market the home during those seven months and in most cases, we're successful in selling the home," he said.

FOR EXAMPLE, the plan works like this: George and Mary Brown are faced with a transfer. They have a $56,000 equity in their home which has been appraised at $96,000.

Thirty days after listing their home with an ERA broker, their home will have been appraised and they will receive a purchase offer from ERA. The advance amount for the closing of the new home will then be forwarded to the escrow agency.

In addition to eliminating the emotional stress of prolonged family separation and months of commuting costs, the plan allows the seller to lock in the price of his next home before appreciation drives it even higher.

That is no small item. If the annual appreciation rate is 10 percent on an $80,000 home, appreciation could increase the price by $4,000 in just six months.

TO QUALIFY for this plan, homes must be owner occupied, single family residences appraised at a value of at least $30,000.

The upper limit that ERA will offer is $250,000.

Other conditions also apply and should be reviewed in the actual Sellers Security Plan contracts.

For more information about the program, contact Fuelberth.

NATIONAL WILDLIFE WEEK

"We Care About Eagles" is the theme for the 1982 observance of National Wildlife Week, March 14-20. This is an appropriate gesture on the 200th anniversary of the Bald Eagle as our national symbol. The Bald Eagle symbolizes not only nobility and courage, but also the dependency of all wildlife on the wise use of natural resources by man. By 1970 the population in the 48 contiguous states was endangered and remains so in 43 states. This was largely due to persistent pesticides. Bald Eagles and some other birds of prey are now making progress, but still require our concern and our wise use of our environment.

As part of the National Wildlife Week observation, the National Wildlife Federation distributes packets of materials to schools and conservation oriented groups. The packets contain:

Teacher's Guides - Contain information and activities for four age groups from Kindergarten-Grade 12.

Wildlife Week News Lists other material that can be ordered and tells what is being done to preserve wildlife.

Bald Eagle Poster - Includes much information about Bald Eagles, pictures and facts about wildlife and habitat types, and Bald Eagle stickers.

For more information or to receive a packet of material, contact the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission office in Norfolk or call 371-4950.

 folk office for three years.

LAST CHANCE FOR WINDBREAK TREES

The Clark-McNary tree program has been accepting orders for tree and shrub seedlings since November 1, and will quit accepting orders within the month. The digging of trees has begun and they will soon be ready for shipment. Red Cedars are about the only remaining evergreens, but most shrubs and hardwood trees are still available.

The cost of the trees is $23.00 per hundred trees delivered to you. Lower Elkhorn NRD provides a planting service at a cost of 16¢ per tree and weed control spray for 11¢ per tree. Cost-share is available through the ASCS office in some counties.

Order forms are available at offices of Lower Elkhorn NRD, Soil Conservation Service,
 Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service and Extension Service. Orders should now be sent to Bessey Nursery at Halsey NE 69142.

PREPARATION FOR TREE PLANTING

With cooperation from the weather, tree planting may begin by late March. Preparation for planting your trees, however, should have begun last fall. Especially when trees are to be planted into former grass land, the area should be fall plowed. This is to ensure a good kill on the grass, stop moisture loss from the soil and make a mellow planting bed in the spring. Weed or grass competition and poor planting conditions are the greatest causes of young tree mortality.

If fall plowing was not done, you should be sure to get the area ready this spring and work it again a few days before planting to get rid of small weeds. After planting, keeping the trees free of weeds and grass will not only improve survival, but can increase growth by 100% in other words, you can have an effective wind-break in half the time if you put some time and effort into it.

SUCCESSFUL TRI-STATE CONSERVATION TILLAGE CONFERENCE

Approximately 600 landowners from the three state area around Sioux City attended the second Tri-State Conservation Tillage Conference on February 17 and 18 at the Marina Inn. Lower Elkhorn NRD provided 56 tickets to landowners of the district who wanted to learn more about reducing tillage operations on cropland.

Most people have heard about the benefits of conservation tillage which include reduced fuel and labor costs, less machinery needed, retaining soil moisture and reduced soil erosion.
 Speakers at the conference reiterated these benefits, but also spoke on research done on areas of concern such as weed control, insects, yield comparisons, and cold ground at planting time.

One major point seemed to come from all speakers.

All soil conserving practices require a certain amount of effort and good management, but the alternative of losing the fertility of our soils makes it very worthwhile.

A high point of the conference was a panel discussion by farmers of Nebraska and Iowa who use different forms of conservation tillage.
 Doree Graheer of Pender, Val Buss of LeMars,
 Iowa, Roland Jensen of Ida Grove, Iowa and Bill Salton of Ruthven, Iowa were the panel members. Each one described his own tillage operation and told how he overcame certain problems.

Bill Salton said that he plants grass on steep or eroded areas. These areas may produce only 30% as well as the rest of the field. If the profits are not large on the rest of the field, you must be losing money on these marginal areas. Roland Jensen said he has been a conservation farmer for years and has never used a conservation practice that lost him money.

The farmers on the panel each used different operations, but they agreed on one thing; ownership of land is a temporary thing, and each landowner has a moral obligation to leave the land as good as he found it.

If you do not make every effort to conserve your soil and water resources, you have failed in that obligation.
