County GOP delegates show party strength

Wayne County's political party conventions are only two months away. Both the county Democratic Party and Republican Party will be holding conventions at the Wayne County courthouse during the first week of June. And, if there is any strength in delegate numbers, the GOP convention will be powerfully big compared to the county Democrats' election year rally. Some 47 official delegates have qualified to attend the Republican Party's election year convention, according to Orgratta Morris, Wayne County clerk.

Court courtroom on the second floor of the county courthouse. The Democratic Party's county convention begins at 7 p.m. according to Bob Ensz, Democratic Party chairman for Wayne County. A date for the county GOP convention has not been set, according to Faye Mann, Wayne County Republican Party chairman. Mann said that the convention would be held during the first week of June at the courthouse, but that a date and time have not been established. AT BOTH PARTY conventions, new party officers will be elected. Democrats will elect a county party chairman and treasurer, according to chairman

Ensz, who will be the party's presiding officer at the convention. Current Democratic Party treasurer is Robert Jordan. GOP delegates will elect a party chairman, vice chairman, treasurer and secretary, according to chairman Mann, who will serve as the presiding officer at the Republican Party convention. Merlin Reinhardt is GOP vice chairman. Charles Maas is treasurer and Bonnie Nelson is secretary. Only delegates may vote, but both conventions will be open to the public. DELEGATES AT both conventions will select delegates for their respective state party conventions later this summer. Also, delegates will be encouraged to discuss party issues, political positions and campaign platforms. The respective party delegates will convene after the May 11 primary election, which is six weeks away. At the county level, the only primary election contests involve the two Republican Party candidates for county attorney and two for county commissioner. The county attorney race pits Todd Bornhoff, son of current Wayne County attorney Budd Bornhoff of Wayne, against John Addison, a Wayne attorney who has failed in two previous bids for the office. THE WINNER OF that GOP primary battle will face Ensz in the November general election.

Ensz is unopposed within his own party. Also, Wayne County Commissioner Gerald Pospisil of Wayne faces GOP primary election opposition from Floyd Burt of Winside, a former commissioner and former member of the Winside Village Board. No other county races show primary election contests. A general election contest is shaping up in the campaign for Wayne County sheriff. LeRoy Janssen, now chief deputy with the Sheriff's Department and the only Republican Party candidate to file for the office, will face William G. Watson Jr., a former member of the Nebraska State Patrol and currently a Stanton County deputy sheriff.

REPUBLICAN PARTY candidates dominate all the other races because the Democrats failed to field any candidates beyond Ensz. Barring the possibility of write-in candidates, opposed Republican incumbents seeking re-election include Commissioner Merlin Beiermann, County Assessor Doris Stipp, County Treasurer Leon Meyer, County Clerk Orgratta Morris, and District Court Clerk Joann Ostrander. Incumbents are seeking seats on the county's noxious weed board. And, Clyde Flowers of Wayne is the only candidate seeking the county surveyor's post, which is on the ballot for the first time this year.

Conviction of former bar owner is upheld

The Nebraska State Supreme Court has upheld the felony drug conviction and sentencing of a former Winside tavern owner. Ruling late last week, the Supreme Court affirmed the jury's verdict and the judgment against Charles Weible, 28. In the case, according to Joann Ostrander, clerk of Ninth District Court. Ostrander also said the state's highest court affirmed the sentencing of the trial court. NINTH DISTRICT Court Judge Richard P. Garden sentenced Weible, son of former Wayne County Sheriff Don 'Butch' Weible, to five to eight years in prison for possession with intent to deliver cocaine. Judge Garden also sentenced Weible to five to ten years for possession with intent to deliver marijuana, and one to three years for possession of cocaine. Weible, who began serving his time at the State Penitentiary in Lincoln after being sentenced in July, appealed his case through Norfolk attorney Vince Kirby. The state Supreme Court took the appeal under advisement in early March. AT THAT TIME, Kirby, who represented Weible in the June jury trial at the Wayne County Courthouse, told the Supreme Court that the prosecution deliberately suppressed evidence that could have been favorable to his client. Kirby also contended that Judge Garden erred in allowing the use of certain prosecution evidence at the trial. Furthermore, Kirby told the court that the sentence imposed was an abuse of discretion resulting from 'passion and prejudice.' Kirby contended that Weible was a respected Winside businessman with no prior criminal record.

Tumbling tumbleweeds Photograph by: Randy Hassall

MARCH MARCHED out like a lion and April lumbered in like a wounded bear in the Wayne area. Wind has whipped bare prairie top soil and anything that would blow with it during the last week. Barbed wire caught these tumbleweeds while they were headed for Kansas. And, as they waited, the wind brought an April blizzard to Wayne Friday night.

Wayne National Guard goes over the top

Wayne's National Guard is the first infantry unit in the state to reach 100 percent strength, according to Capt. Stan Burst of Wayne. But, the guardsmen didn't stop there. No, sir! Company A, (Detachment 1), 1st Mechanized Battalion, 134th Infantry is now 5 percent over its authorized strength of 81 soldiers. The recent enlistment of three Wayne State College students pushed the unit's strength to 105 percent, according to 1st Sgt. Dennis Spangler of Wayne.

DARYL CLINTON of Omaha, a WSC junior; Jim O'Brien of Emmetsburg, Iowa, also a WSC junior; and Tom Winger of Bronson, Iowa, a WSC sophomore, signed up March 20. Actually, the Wayne National Guard unit reached authorized strength earlier this month, according to Spangler. The enlistment of four men since then has pushed the unit to 85 soldiers. In addition, the unit's 1st Detachment in O'Neill reached 100 percent strength at mid-March, according to Spangler. The O'Neill unit, which is under Capt.

Burst's command, has an authorized strength of 78 soldiers, Spangler said. THE COMBINED authorized strength of the Wayne and O'Neill units is 159 soldiers, but the guardsmen now total 163, according to Spangler. That means the combined unit is operating at 103 percent of full strength. Spangler said that the Wayne unit has enlisted 35 soldiers since Jan. 1. During 1981, the unit signed up 39 recruits. And during 1980, Wayne guardsmen enlisted 38 soldiers.

When the guardsmen began what has amounted to a sustained recruitment drive in late 1979, the Wayne National Guard had the lowest strength of any unit in the state, Spangler said. FOR INSTANCE, on Jan. 31, 1979, the unit had dwindled to 14 soldiers. By December of 1979, the unit's strength had grown to 22 soldiers. Capt. Burst joined the unit as commander in March of 1980. City's new store wins license for beer sales

The Nebraska State Liquor Control Commission has been ordered to grant a liquor license to Casey's General Store of Wayne. The convenience store, which is expected to be built at the corner of Seventh Street east and Windom Street north, won an appeal in Ninth District Court, Wayne County, after the state commission rejected the license application last year. On Thursday, Ninth District Court Judge Merritt C. Warren, reversed the commission's denial of a retail beer license (off-sale only) to Gary G. and Victoria Donner, owners of the convenience store franchise for Wayne. JUDGE WARREN remanded the matter to the commission with directions to 'forthwith issue and grant' the retail beer license to the Donners, doing business as Casey's General Store, 619 Windom Street. The Wayne City Council had recommended that the convenience store owners be denied the license. The commission denied the license and used the Council's disapproval to strengthen its arguments for the rejection of the Donners' application. The Donners appealed the commission's decision. THE DONNERS have met the requirements of Nebraska law on their application, said Judge Warren in his decision last week. In addition, the judge said the commission's May 28, 1981, refusal to issue the license was 'unreasonable, arbitrary and capricious.' Judge Warren heard arguments in the case in early March, but reserved decision until Thursday. The Donners' plaintiffs in the action were represented by Lincoln attorney Ray A. Shealy.

police report

Wayne Police are looking for a truck thief with an outstanding record.

The culprit stole a 1974 Ford from Vankar Center last night Thursday and smashed it into a 1981 Mercury Lynx in Annie Ford Mercury lot during the getaway.

The theft and accident were discovered about 7 a.m. Friday.

ACCORDING TO police, the thief was driving the stolen truck west on Fourth Street, apparently lost control, and drove into the car lot near the intersection of Logan Street, striking the 1981 Mercury.

The truck was abandoned at the crash site. Damage was reported to the left front of the car and to the right front of the truck.

Police also are looking for an unknown subject or subjects who opened three city fire hydrants late Wednesday.

Witnesses spotted a dark colored car in the area.

AND, THOUGH Thursday was April Fools Day, the pig running loose in the 400 block of Seventh Street was no joke.

Police, who responded to the complaint of a city resident, found a pig running loose in the neighborhood.

Officers caught the porker about 5:30 p.m. and turned it over to the owner.

AND, in what may have been another April Fools prank, police returned a barricade to the front of the Sears store after finding it in the middle of the 100 block of Main Street at 1:27 a.m. Friday.

Police have found and impounded two bicycles this week.

THE FIRST bike was found abandoned in the 200 block of Main Street on Wednesday.

Both bikes were impounded. Early Friday morning, police were called to 10th Street east, near Wayne Greenhouse, where residents complained of beer drinking and bottle breaking at 12:35 a.m.

Police responded, but found no evidence of beer drinking or bottle breaking.

At 11 a.m. Friday, police investigated a car pickup accident in the 600 block of Main Street.

ACCORDING TO police, a 1974 Pontiac Lumina, driven by Leann R. Warren of Dodge, was struck by a 1974 Dodge pickup, driven by Kory K. Smith of Wayne.

Police said the pickup was southbound on Main Street when it drove left of center, then made a right hand turn toward a gas station.

Warren told police she thought the pickup was going to make a left-hand turn. As the southbound Warren car pulled alongside the pickup, Smith made a right hand turn instead.

country boy. . .

By randall howell

Howdy.

Though my days as a newspaper editor are numbered, my days as a country boy will go on forever.

For me, one of the sad things about leaving the Wayne area is that there is so much I want to share with you and so little time left to do it.

We have shared some things over the course of this past year that are near and dear to me.

MY HOPE IS that this country boy did not become too self-indulgent.

Certainly, you have come to discover that I'm in love with the land we live on.

It goes beyond that, though.

I'm an advocate for rural America, just as many of you are. I've spent many years of my life believing that good things would be done by good people if they were given the opportunity to do so.

However true that may be, I have come to discover that it is not enough.

And, I've come to believe that all it takes for bad things to happen is for good people to do nothing.

No longer is it sufficient for me to simply believe in something as precious as our rural heritage.

EVERY DAY the values and standards that were born and bred in rural America face an incredible onslaught.

They are values and standards that can contribute to the maturing of a country that desperately needs to grow up.

But, for them to be useful to future generations, rural Americans must become more active in the preservation and enhancement of their own heritage.

That requires a good deal more than waxing nostalgic about country boy days spent on a farm in the upper Midwest.

And, that is why I've decided to return to the soil as a steward of the land that nurtured me as a child.

I INTEND to work the soil, but that is not enough.

I intend to continue writing, but that is not enough.

I intend to teach my children about the land and how to love it, but that, too, is not enough.

I intend to be, in every sense of the word, an advocate, carrying the strength of rural America to all those who care to listen.

And, more important, I intend to pay particular attention to those who have the desire and commitment to translate their knowledge into action for the future of rural America.

I believe an advocate who is not working to plant the seed of advocacy is no advocate.

RURAL AMERICA will continue to change, but it need not lose sight of those intangible things that make the quality of life here the best in the world.

The family farm need not die, unless we — as rural Americans — are already resigned to attending its funeral.

Small-town rural America need not die, unless we — as rural Americans — are already resigned to digging its grave.

In some ways, rural Americans — myself included — have been all too willing to believe that the values and standards we hold so dear are so obvious, so clearly stand on their own merits, that the rest of the world would not only share them, but also work zealously to protect, defend and enhance them.

Unfortunately, it is not so.

IT SEEMS THAT, since rural American farmers feed our own hungry and those hungry elsewhere in the world, producing the most economic, nutritious food in the history of civilization, the message would carry the day.

Obviously, it will not.

It seems that, since rural American businessmen supply quality goods and services to consumers in a free marketplace that, in turn, builds the economic strength and well-being of our communities, the message would be there.

Obviously, it has not.

And, it seems that, since the spirit of so many fundamental things — neighborliness, self-reliance, freedom, conservation and fiscal responsibility, to name only a few — that have built this country are the ethics of rural America, the message would be clear.

Obviously, it is not.

I HAVE SPENT a great deal of my life watching and learning.

I have sat on the sidelines cheering and jeering the players participating in a lifelong contest over the land I love, in a country I love.

That's been a very satisfying role in many ways. I've gained so much from the mistakes of others and picked up a dozen or so college educations in the school of hard knocks.

But, it is time to do more and say less. It is time to reset the example that was set for me. It is time to demonstrate what I have been thinking and feeling for years.

It is time for me to replant the seed — the seed set by my father and his father before him.

And, it is time for me to nurse the seedling forth, encourage it to flourish and work that it may ripen.

THE HARVEST, my rural American friends, is for another generation.

And, in the course of placing my hands, once again, deep in the soil of my family farm in rural America, I will write.

I will write, because the soil is the ink in my pen. I will write what I know with the soil bleeding from beneath my fingernails.

I will write because the soil is me and I am one of you... because I belong to rural America, to the backroads and farmsteads of a dream that will not die.

My writing will show, unashamedly, the bias of a country boy born to breathe the prairie wind that blows the smell of fresh-turned earth across the land.

WITH MY BACK bent by a shovel and my fist clenched in a salute to the soil, I will plant the seed of rural advocacy.

And, I will write that it may grow in the minds of rural Americans — sons and daughters of the middle border.

Idealistic? Perhaps.

Practical? Certainly.

I wouldn't have it any other way.

All I ask is that you, my rural American friends, join me in an active effort to work the family farm like it has never been worked before.

The family farm is more than barns and fenceposts, crops and livestock.

It is hopes, dreams, thoughts, cares, values, standards, customs, traditions, and the foundation of our future.

Farm it.

PLANT IT. Cultivate it. Harvest it. Teach it. Talk it. Live it. Advocate it.

Do all these things because you believe in it as a source of strength for the spirit of America and for the promise of tomorrow.

Do it for America.

Do it for Nebraska.

Do it for Wayne.

Do it for your neighbor.

Do it for yourself.

Do it for your children.

Do it for their children.

But, do it.

Believing is not enough, today.

Maybe... maybe it never was.

Become an advocate for a way of life that has made us all stewards of the soil.

I HOPE THAT, during my short stay here, we have talked about some things that are important.

Perhaps those endless stories about a country boy caught in a journey back to the land were nothing more than a harmless diversion from the day-to-day worries of surviving in a world that will go on without us.

Perhaps they were more.

Perhaps they were written about you.

Perhaps you were the country boy.

Perhaps you were the country girl.

And, perhaps... just perhaps... they plowed through the dead furrows in our past so that we could strike out a new land for the future.

Join me, won't you, wherever you are.

IT'S TIME to go to work for the things we believe in.

It is time to farm for the future of the family, for the future of the family farm, for the future of America.

You can do it, if you only see beyond the tractor in the South 40 or the cash register at the front of the general store.

I'm telling you do see it.

And, I'm counting on you to help... to help yourself.

Your the kind of people who can do it. And, it makes me proud to have spent some time with you.

Thank God, I'm a country boy.

Catch you next week.

Budgeting debate is underway

Debate on the state's budget bills has begun in earnest this past week. LB 761 is the mainline budget bill, and accounts for all but about $5 million of the Appropriation Committee's $742 million general fund spending program.

There have been attempts made to both increase and cut the budget in many areas. An amendment was rejected that would have added nearly $1 million to the budget for repair and maintenance of state owned buildings. Several other amendments increasing the budget were defeated.

senator elroy hefner

THE PROPOSED pay raise of 25 percent for the governor and other state constitutional officers may be decreased to a raise of 3 percent per year. This would be a total of 12 percent over the next four years. Salaries for the governor and constitutional officers cannot be raised during the four-year term of office. The salary increase can only be given in an election year.

At this time we anticipate delaying the 5 percent state employee raise until Oct. 1. This would calculate into a 3.75 percentage annual increase.

The state could run into money problems by the end of the fiscal year, June 30.

Both business and individual tax refunds are running higher than anticipated and coming in faster than expected. State tax revenues have been lower than expected because of economic conditions.

THE LEGISLATURE will have to make some hard decisions later when it debates the major revenue raising bills.

These bills include the corporate income tax increase proposal and the cigarette tax hike, which will be debated as soon as first-round consideration of the budget is completed.

An attempt to raise LB 731 out of the Public Works Committee has failed. LB 731 is a bill that would allow public power districts to own and operate cable television systems.

Many of the senators feel that private enterprise should be able to provide this service.

Farms need marketing program

The American farmer provides the people of this country with a steady supply of food and fiber and produces more than half of the world's exports. The consumer is dependent on him for his high standard of living.

Yet, as we all know, a farmer faces innumerable problems: weather, insects and disease, strikes and boycotts, governmental intervention, soaring production costs and unstable prices.

Regardless of how thoroughly he plans, the farmer has no assurance that he will make a profit — or just break even — when he harvests his crop. Prices rise and crash like roller coasters, leaving him in constant doubt.

WITH THE LARGE U.S. crop harvest and weak economic activity, market prices have hit levels far below the cost of actually producing the crops.

Many of our commodities are bringing the same prices that they did in the 1930s. Net cash income is also projected to be down 20 percent from 1979, the third consecutive year of low net farm income.

Because of my concern about this situation and because conditions are continuing to deteriorate, I have joined with 14 other members of Congress, including Rep. Virginia Smith, to support a plan developed by Rep. Charles Stenholm of Texas, for orderly marketing of commodities.

Orderly marketing and orderly production are systems which stabilize prices at levels which make it possible for the farmer to produce and for the consumer to purchase. Supplies are constant and evenly distributed throughout the marketing year.

congressman doug bereuter

The program is designed to systematically feed agricultural commodities into the market at a rate which neither causes price depression nor price escalation.

The voluntary program would consist of four major steps: 1) farmers would agree to participate in production control programs, including the Reduced Acreage Program (RAP) recently announced by the U.S. Department of Agriculture. (The 14 of us have agreed that, in order for the concept to work, there must be at least 70 percent participation); 2) farmers would immediately curtail all sales of nonperishable farm commodities at current prices; 3) producers would agree to participate in an orderly marketing system, called the 20-10-20 Plan, designed to encourage market adjustments; and, 4) increased efforts would be made to use all available resources to increase foreign and domestic sales of farm commodities at profitable prices.

THE 20-10-20 plan would establish a controlled marketing system which would prevent price-depressing surpluses on the market. Farmers would make a voluntary commitment to place 20 percent of their existing supplies (both carryover and new crop) into a farmer-held reserve program in either on-farm or commercial storage, and either through the federal Commodity Credit Corporation loan program or a privately financed program.

Participants would then sell no more than 10 percent of the remaining 80 percent of the crop during any 30 day period in any of the first three months of the marketing year. An additional 10 percent of the balance of the supply base could be sold if the market maintains an agreed-upon price level above the cost of production.

Farmers would then sell up to 20 percent of the balance of the crop during any of the last nine months of the market year and additional 10 percent lots when the market allows, as previously determined.

It's not only the farmer who suffers from unstable prices. The banker, the elevator operator and the consumer feel the pinch. If the American farmer is to continue producing a reliable supply of food and fiber for this country and a protein-hungry world, there must be a method of leveling out prices.

This program would work well within the framework of our current farm legislation. We have the minimum tools available to implement and build an orderly marketing system. The risk to most farmers would be minimal and the benefits clear. The program would be well within the realm of the enterprise system and would not require a federal spending program.

Energy politics

Energy conservation is an important issue in Wayne.

And, the Wayne Energy Task Force needs to continue addressing that issue as an independent organization representing a cross-section of the city.

Recently, a great deal of concern has been expressed that the task force may be perilously close to becoming politicized.

That concern was strengthened when three members of the task force recently filed for election to city government offices.

Two task force members, Kenneth Marra and Dean Metz, have filed for seats on the Wayne City Council.

A third task force member, Gary Vopalensky, has filed for the mayoralty post in Wayne. Certainly, there is no rule barring a task force member from serving in public office. In fact, several members already serve in that capacity.

However, the apparent organization of what appears to be a task force election ticket has some members of the Wayne electorate uneasy.

Energy is a political issue.

In fact, voters may be concerned because they perceive the politics of energy to be one of the problems in this country.

For that reason, the task force needs to exercise caution.

The electorate may just get the impression that energy conservation may become a political football in their own community.

It would be a shame if the reputation of the task force got mired in a political campaign of a time when it was beginning to build its own credentials in the area of energy conservation.

Furthermore, those members of the task force who are working diligently on energy conservation projects may be severely hampered by the political ambitions of their colleagues. If that happens, the task force will suffer a setback at a time when the community needs it the most.

Rural needs

The need for more and better jobs and the physical condition of municipal water and wastewater treatment systems are two primary community development concerns for rural Nebraskans during the coming decade, according to preliminary indications from interviews and public meetings being conducted across the state.

These results are part of a statewide rural development needs assessment being conducted by the State Rural Development Council and seven Substate Rural Development Task Forces.

The Council, established by Gov. Charles Thone in 1981, will identify and evaluate rural needs in Nebraska during the coming months. By fall, the Council intends to provide program and policy recommendations to Thone, the legislature, and government agencies.

According to Stu Miller, Rural Development Council chairman, information gathered for the Council should help target increasingly scarce state and federal resources to rural areas of greatest need.

The concerns mentioned most frequently in interviews are jobs for women and youth, and the need for better quality job opportunities in general.

Information on job training programs in the state is being gathered for additional discussion by the council.

The concerns about water and wastewater treatment systems relate to either poor treatment, inadequate delivery systems, or poor water quality.

Bob Wall, head of the Water and Waste Management Division of the Department of Environmental Control, said that "many wastewater treatment systems in rural Nebraska are nearly at the end of their useful lives, but not at the end of their design lives. This is simply because operation and maintenance have been neglected which relates to the financial and personnel resources put into operation and maintenance."

Other council members said this is also the case for many municipal water systems. According to Hoover, the Council will work with the Departments of Environmental Control and Health in further identifying the extent of the problems and the cost involved in upgrading water systems to adequate service levels. The whole area of water use and development has supreme importance for the state.

Other rural problems frequently mentioned are the difficulty in providing adequate housing in rural areas, the deficiency in available health services in some parts of the state, and the general difficulty in providing adequate streets in communities and bridges and adequate roads near communities.

Seven substate organizations are assisting the council in identifying these and other concerns in rural Nebraska.

HELENE GUNDERSON, at left, and Rita McLean have completed training as Welcome Wagon hostesses and will begin calling on homes in Wayne next month. The women are pictured with the baskets they will take with them to each household, containing gifts from local sponsoring businesses and information for many government agencies and local civic and cultural groups.

Welcome Wagon to call on households in Wayne

Helene Gunderson and Rita McLean of Wayne have completed training as Welcome Wagon hostesses and will begin greeting households in Wayne next month.

Barbara Marshall, President of Welcome Wagon International, Inc., said Mrs. Gunderson and Mrs. McLean will call on new residents to the community, new parents, and newly engaged persons to present gifts from local sponsoring businesses.

They also will call on local residents for special occasions, such as 100th birthdays or 75th anniversaries.

AS A COMMUNITY service, Mrs. Gunderson and Mrs. McLean will also distribute information for many government agencies and local civic and cultural groups.

To request a Welcome Wagon call, residents are asked to contact Mrs. Gunderson, 375-3429, or Mrs. McLean, 375-3520.

THE OLDEST and largest national greeting service, Welcome Wagon has thousands of hostesses and hosts nationwide who call on 1.5 million households annually. The organization, which was founded in Memphis, Tenn. in 1928, takes its name from Conestoga wagons of frontier days.

Loaded with food and gifts, these wagons were sent out to greet passing wagon trains in hopes of enticing travelers to settle in local communities.

"I REALLY think it's going to be a benefit to the community and will help newcomers become better acquainted with our town," said Mrs. McLean.

Mrs. McLean said several businesses have signed up as sponsors to give away free gifts.

A Welcome Wagon call also will include a civic pack with information and maps of the community, including clubs and community organizations, schools and churches.

It will also include a letter from Governor Charles Thone, Mayor Wayne Marsh, and Chief of Police Vern Fairchild advising new residents of local ordinances.

"THE GIFTS are absolutely free," said Mrs. McLean, with no strings attached. Residents receiving a Welcome Wagon call will be asked to go to the stores to pick up their gifts and meet the women.

A directory of sponsoring businesses will include the name and location of the store, the name of the woman, and the store hours.

The hostesses also hope to have sponsoring businesses present various programs for newcomers.

MRS. McLEAN and her husband, Robert, are the parents of two daughters, Megan, age 5, and Mindell, 7.

Randy's Recap

By Randy Hascall

THE NCAA BASKETBALL championship had to be one of the greatest finals in history. I would have enjoyed that game even if I wasn't a Carolina fan.

Georgetown has a legitimate boast as one of the country's top two or three teams. I don't think anyone is any better than North Carolina, Georgetown and Virginia.

Next year those same three teams should be contenders again (provided Sampson returns to Virginia). And if Sam Bowie is healthy, Kentucky should be right up there, too.

Both the Tar Heels and Hoyas put on a fine demonstration of defensive play and the game was in doubt from the opening tipoff until the final shot.

Pat Ewing, Eric "Sleepy" Floyd and Eric Smith were impressive for Georgetown but Carolina's James Worthy stole the show with his brilliant performance. And although Sam Perkins had an off-night for the Heels, Michael Jordan made up for it with a good game.

Games like that beat NBA action for excitement any day of the week. It's almost enough to make a guy wish that the long roundball season wasn't over.

TOWN TEAM baseball returns to Wayne this summer and should be back in high fashion. The locals were accepted into the Tri-County Baseball Association along with newcomers Hartington and Creighton.

Last year, Wayne players were scattered among such teams as Randolph, Hartington, Crofton, Wakefield and Bloomfield. Provided most of those players join the Wayne team this year, there is the making of a good nucleus. Several play for Wayne State College.

Then, add some of last year's Legion players. Wayne should be a contender in its division. Anyone interested in trying out for the Town Team should contact Doug Carroll, team representative.

A meeting for interested baseball players will have to be arranged soon because a roster of 25 players must be turned into the Tri-County League by April 18.

Wayne's renovated ball park should be a showcase for good baseball with the high school team and Wayne Midgets, Legion and Town Team scheduled to play there. A couple of Wayne State games may even be held there this spring. Playing on a nice ball park at home sure beats playing all games on the road.

IT WON'T BE long before another Major League baseball season opens. I haven't done much research on the teams but I'll still make my usual stab-in-the-dark predictions.

Usually, a baseball strike is the only safe prediction. But, I don't think that will happen this year after a strike practically ruined last year's baseball season.

Here are my predictions:

In the American League East, my heart lies with Baltimore and I'm picking the Orioles to win the pennant. Dennis Martinez and Scott MacGregor will battle for this year's Cy Young Award. Milwaukee will be tough and New York's George Steinbrenner is doing too much complaining early. East: 1. Baltimore, 2. Milwaukee, 3. New York, 4. Boston, 5. Cleveland, 6. Detroit, 7. Toronto.

In the American League West, Kansas City has acquired Vida Blue but Billy Martin will lead Oakland to the title. West: 1. Oakland, 2. Kansas City, 3. Chicago, 4. California, 5. Texas, 6. Minnesota, 7. Seattle.

In the National League East, St. Louis is building up a contender and Whitey Herzog has the pennant on his mind. I should go out on a limb and pick the Red Birds to win but instead I'll go with Montreal. East: 1. Montreal, 2. St. Louis, 3. Philadelphia, 4. Pittsburgh, 5. New York, 6. Chicago.

In the National League West, I hope Houston can come through. But Los Angeles, even with Fernando Tatis, will be tough to beat. West: 1. Los Angeles, 2. Houston, 3. Cincinnati, 4. Atlanta, 5. San Diego, 6. San Francisco.

Baltimore will defeat Oakland in the playoffs and Montreal will stop L.A. in the World Series. It looks like Montreal over Baltimore.

HERE ARE SOME predictions I received. From Yankee fan Galen Wilder of Wayne: AL East—1. New York, 2. Milwaukee, 3. Cleveland, 4. Detroit, 5. Baltimore, 6. Boston, 7. Toronto, AL West—1. Chicago, 2. Kansas City, 3. Oakland, 4. California, 5. Texas, 6. Minnesota, 7. Seattle.

NL East—1. Montreal, 2. St. Louis, 3. Philadelphia, 4. Chicago, 5. Pittsburgh, 6. New York, NL West—1. Houston, 2. Los Angeles, 3. Atlanta, 4. Cincinnati, 5. San Francisco, 6. San Diego.

NL Playoffs—Expos over Astros; AL Playoffs—Yankees over White Sox; World Series—Expos over the Yankees.

From Royal fan Dick Buntgen of David City: AL East—1. Milwaukee, 2. New York, 3. Baltimore, 4. Boston, 5. Cleveland, 6. Detroit, 7. Toronto, AL West—1. Kansas City, 2. Oakland, 3. Chicago, 4. Texas, 5. California, 6. Seattle, 7. Minnesota.

NL East—1. Montreal, 2. St. Louis, 3. Philadelphia, 4. Pittsburgh, 5. New York, 6. Chicago; NL West—1. Houston, 2. Los Angeles, 3. San Diego, 4. Cincinnati, 5. Atlanta, 6. San Francisco.

AL Playoffs—Milwaukee over Kansas City; NL Playoffs—Montreal over Houston; World Series—Montreal over Milwaukee.

Wayne State trainer named to committee

Members of District 5 of the National Athletic Trainers' Association (N.A.T.A.) met in Lincoln on March 19 to 21 for their annual spring meeting. Also at that three-day meeting, the Nebraska State Athletic Trainer's Association (N.S.A.T.A.) met and elected state officers and formed a licensing committee for the state of Nebraska.

Steve Monaco, athletic trainer at Creighton University, was elected president and Craig Holz, athletic trainer at Millard South High School, was elected secretary-treasurer.

The licensing committee will be chaired by Guy Shelton, sports physical therapist at the University of Nebraska Medical Center. Also serving on the committee are athletic trainers Kurt Czupryn of Wayne State College, Rogers Wells of Kearney State College, David Middlemans of Grand Island High School and Lynn Conley of College of St. Mary.

District 5, which includes the states of Nebraska, Iowa, Kansas, Missouri, North Dakota, Oklahoma and South Dakota, and the University of Colorado, is headed by Director Frank Randall, athletic trainer at Iowa State University. Jerry Weber, assistant athletic trainer at the University of Nebraska, is the group's public relations director.

Randall stressed the importance of licensing legislation in each state in the district as a goal of the association.

The N.S.A.T.A. coordinates communication among the state of Nebraska's certified athletic trainers and their student trainers at the high school and college levels. The licensing committee will begin researching methods for licensing athletic trainers within the state. Several states have already passed licensing laws, including Oklahoma where the law was passed in November of 1981.

Additional goals of the state association include dissemination of information from the national and district associations to the individual members in Nebraska and communication of the importance of having athletic trainers at the high school level.

Team One conquers Team Five to win B League championship

Team One opened a first quarter lead and kept the momentum to defeat Team Five for the B League tournament championship 58-49 Tuesday night.

The winners jumped out in front 17-11 by the end of the first period and their lead was never again in jeopardy.

THE FIRST period saw Jim Erwin score seven points and Mike Meyer score six. Mark Fleer and Fritz each added four points for Team Five.

Defenses were dominant in the second quarter as Team One held a 12-10 edge. Peters, Brent Johnson and Johnson scored four points apiece to account for Team One's offense. Welble had five to lead Team Five.

Team Five could only muster up a 14-13 advantage in the third period as Fleer and Welble scored four points each. Jake Munter had four points for Team One.

Running short of time, Team Five resorted to fouls in the final period in a desperate attempt to rally. Team One made 10 of 12 free shots to hold off the attack. Meyer scored six points and Peters scored four free throws.

TEAM FIVE was led by Lynn Lessmann with eight points and Fleer with four.

For the game, Team One was led by Meyer with 14 points; Erwin with 13 and Peters with 12. Other scorers were Johnson with six, Abts with five; Mike Loofs with four and Munter with four.

Team Five was paced by Fleer and Welble with 15 apiece and Lessmann with 11. Bob Kruger scored four points and George Eynon and Roger Langenberg added two each.

Beyond the carrot.

These days many financial institutions are dangling a carrot in front of you to get your checking account dollars...in the form of Now Account checking minimum balances...free checks...all sorts of temptations.

But if that dangling carrot doesn't hold the promise of experienced personnel, accuracy in working with checking accounts, unmatched convenience as well as a total package of financial services, the carrot may not be quite as good as it looks.

So, instead of looking for the differences in Now Accounts, look for the real differences...the experience, service and convenience that only the State National Bank can offer you. You'll see why hundreds of people have already opened a Now Account at State National Bank and Trust Co.

Exchange student from Mexico not fond of Nebraska's winters

MARIA DIAZ (right) is attending Winside High School and staying with the Dave Warnemunde family. Julie Warnemunde (left) is an eighth grader at Winside.

By Randy Hascall
 Maria Elena Diaz Lammoglia quickly learned that Nebraska winters aren't much fun.
 The 17 year-old Mexican exchange student from Orizaga, Veracruz—a city with a population of 100,000—is presently a senior at Winside High School.
 The change in latitude from the gulf coast of Mexico to northeastern Nebraska wasn't an easy one for the exchange student, known by her friends and classmates as Maria Diaz.
 "Here it's very cold. I liked the snow but not the cold," said Maria, who saw snow for the first time in her life. "I like it here but I get home sick."
MARIA IS STAYING with the Dave Warnemunde family in Winside. She is visiting the United States from September until June through the International Fellowship Program. The Warnemundes have two children, Julie (age 12) and Jeff (21).
 The Mexican native, who has one brother and one sister, studied English every year. She graduated from an all-girls school. Her education included three years of kindergarten, six years of elementary school and three years of secondary school. When she returns to Mexico she will enroll in college.
 Maria, who visited California three years ago, enjoys swimming and reading. She likes to study, watch television and go out with her American family. She says television programming in Mexico is similar to the United States but Spanish is spoken.

THE ONE THING Maria misses nearly as much as her family is Mexican food. Tostados are her favorite food but she also enjoys American hamburgers with hot sauce. She says she doesn't care for most Mexican food restaurants in this part of the country but added that she ate at "Acapulco" in Omaha where the food was "really good."
 Breakfast in Mexico is similar to lunch or dinner in the United States, Maria said. A typical breakfast may consist of meat and soup. Tacos are a common food but not eaten all of the time, she emphasized.
 Maria's father sells Chrysler cars in Mexico. Her mother is a house wife. Some of Mexico's largest industries are shoes, leather and beer. Maria said. She added that the farmers raise corn and coffee.
WHEN MARIA first came to the United States, one dollar was the equivalent of 25 pesos. Now it takes about 50 pesos to equal a dollar, she said. A liter of gasoline used to sell for seven pesos.
 Maria said she likes the small-town life. She is taking biology, algebra, American history, English and home economics and says biology is her favorite subject. Sometimes she has trouble understanding English, she added. Maria would like to one day become a biochemistry engineer.
 The Winside senior writes her family or friends nearly every day. She and a friend in Long Beach, Calif. exchange letters written in English.

MARIA SAYS she enjoys traveling and said she would like to visit Italy someday. Her grandfather is Italian, she explained.
 After all girls school in Mexico, students were required to wear uniforms. Otherwise dress is about the same in the two countries, she said.
 "I think the people here are closer than in Mexico. I think the people my age are more liberal," Maria said.
 My family is very good to me. I feel like I'm a part of the family," she said referring to the Warnemundes. "When I first came here I was afraid because I've never been separated from my real family before."

Q. I've read quite a bit about Individual Retirement Accounts, both in your column and from other sources. With the new rules, I've pretty well decided to set up an account. Is it difficult to set up an IRA?

A. Not at all. An Individual Retirement Account is simply an investment through a trustee approved by the Internal Revenue Service - in this case, the savings and loan association. To open an IRA, you will sign a simple agreement with the association, and make an initial cash contribution or deposit, much the same as setting up a savings account. If you choose to fund your IRA with 30-month certificates of deposits, your money will be invested just as it would have been had you bought the CD outside an IRA. You may open as many separate IRAs as you wish as long as your total annual contributions do not exceed $2,000. No special IRS tax forms are required. Deductions are simply claimed on your regular tax form. Come in and let us spend a few minutes with you, setting up your new IRA.

Visiting April 8 Med student to speak about health careers

Dave Felber has assumed many roles in the community of Laurel. He is a native son, a graduate of the high school, a former pharmacist in a Laurel drug store and a community activist.
 When he visits Laurel Thursday (April 8) he will be in yet another role - that of advisor. He will talk to high school students that afternoon about health career opportunities and the educational preparation needed for them.
FELBER WILL be representing the University of Nebraska Medical Center's Student Association for Rural Health. The association is composed of health professions students who tour the state to encourage rural high school students to pursue health careers.
 "We feel that if we can get some high school students interested in the health professions, they may be eventually attracted back to their home communities to practice," said the 34-year-old Felber.
 Felber, the son of Mr. and Mrs.

Neal Felber, Laurel, is a second year medical student. He, his wife Linda and three children moved from Laurel to Omaha in 1980 after he was accepted in the College of Medicine.
 This is his second stint in a health professions school. From 1965 to 1970, he attended and subsequently graduated from the Medical Center's College of Pharmacy.
FOR THE NEXT 10 years, he practiced in his father's pharmacy in Laurel. But his work in the family business did not satiate his desire to study medicine.
 "I was part of a group to recruit physicians for Laurel when I saw the handwriting on the wall," he said. "I knew that I wanted to enter medicine. The interest was there even before I graduated from pharmacy school."
 "I want these Laurel students to know that what I did is nothing unusual," said Felber. "If they want a health career, all they have to do is plan and work for it."

CAPT. STAN BURST of the Wayne National Guard swears in three new recruits at the National Guard Armory. The three soldiers put the unit over its authorized strength. The new recruits are Tom Winger, Jim O'Brien and Daryl Clinton, all Wayne State College students. With them is 1st Sgt. Dennis Spangler of Wayne.

Guard

enlistment of new recruits has been Sgt. Al Gusner of Norfolk. Gusner is a full-time recruitment officer for the Norfolk and Wayne area and works with another full-time recruiter, according to Spangler. Spangler said the recruiters were responsible for enlisting 25 recruits, but that Wayne National Guard members signed up 30 themselves. The first sergeant's recruitment efforts and walk-in enlistments totaled 37.

WAYNE NATIONAL Guardsmen represent successful recruitment efforts in dozens of northeast Nebraska towns. Home towns for Wayne guardsmen include Emerson, Wakefield, Allen, Pender, Bancroft, Wisner, West Point, Beemer, Newcastle, Omaha, Winslow, Norfolk, Randolph, Laurel and Hartington. "It's a lot easier to train and maintain the training level of soldiers with 100 percent strength," Capt. Burst explained. "We can fill all our slots as far as responsibility, which means the sergeants won't have to do double duty," Burst explained.

BURST SAID that "one of the biggest benefits" that has come from the recruitment drive is that "about 70 percent of the company is 21 years of age or under." According to the captain, that gives the company "a real good mix" of veteran soldiers and young recruits "who aren't afraid to go out and work." Burst said the full-strength operations would give the unit's experienced sergeants "an opportunity to utilize their talents." He said he expected the young recruits to "really challenge" the officers.

Supermarket files Chapter XI

The owners of a Wayne supermarket have filed for debt reorganization under Chapter XI of the federal Bankruptcy Law. Richard and Sandra Anderson, owners and operators of Rich's Super Foods, 1024 Main Street, Wayne, have filed Chapter XI proceedings in U.S. District Bankruptcy Court in Omaha. The Andersons filed for debt reorganization on March 31, after the First National Bank of Wayne filed a replevin action in Ninth District Court, Wayne County, against the supermarket on March 25.

The recovery of goods or chattels. In its petition filed with the court, the First National Bank claims the supermarket owners are in default on two separate bank notes. The brief states that the defendants have "failed to make payment since March 17, 1982." The payments due, according to the bank's petition, involve $32,698.77 plus interest on one note and $75,341.61 on another. One note was secured in 1978 and the other in 1981, according to the bank's statement.

been scheduled by U.S. Bankruptcy Court Judge David L. Crawford for 2 p.m. Tuesday, April 20, in the new federal building in Omaha. The Andersons have been asked to appear in person at the meeting, which will provide a forum for the filing of claims, according to Judge Crawford. The Chapter XI filing by the Andersons has temporarily barred further foreclosure actions against Rich's Super Foods pursuant to the federal bankruptcy laws. Marion Pruss, an Omaha attorney, has been retained in the case by the Andersons.
