Spring spruce up

AS THE WEATHER WARMS, cleaning fever sets in at Allen. On Tuesday, members of the Allen Community Betterment Club sponsored a community clean-up day. Over 50 residents of all ages combed the town to collect tree branches and other debris strewn about. Pictured

Jail sentence provision dropped

In one of its shortest meetings in history, the Wayne City Council eliminated a possible jail sentence for minor violations of city ordinances.

Other routine business was discussed throughout the 16-minute meeting.

THE JAIL sentence provision for violations of city ordinances was dropped to save the city money. Under the provision, violators of city ordinances could have faced a possible jail sentence.

Thus, the city was obligated to provide legal counsel for any defendant who asked for it. The provision cost the city $140 in legal fees the last time a defendant asked for legal counsel.

Considering the city's tight budget, the council voted unanimously to eliminate the jail sentence provision.

Wayne attorney Bob Ensz recommended the elimination because he felt there was no need for it. There was no possibility of jail sentences for violators of minor ordinances and serious violations usually led to prosecution under state statutes, Ensz explained.

THE COUNCIL'S legal advisor said no one has been sent to jail for violation of a city ordinance for years.

Because of the council's decision to drop the jail sentence provision, the city of Wayne will no longer be obligated to supply legal counsel for defendants.

The City Council also amended its Wayne Municipal Code to include changes in the Nebraska Liquor Council controls for liquor license renewal. The decision merely updates the code to comply with new regulations.

The council awarded a bid to E.A. Pedersen Co. of Omaha to upgrade the municipal electric system. The company's bid of $73,182.18 was nearly $77,000 below the engineering estimate of $150,000 for the project.

WAYNE SENIOR Citizens coordinator Georgia Janssen was given the okay to again apply for a Senior Citizens Mini-Bus Grant.

The City Council also touched on the possibility of road reconstruction work and questioned the use of pop machines in alleys that are closed by the city.

Concord man is participant in Ag leadership program

A relatively new agricultural program in Nebraska has received a five-year grant of $200,000.

The Nebraska Agricultural Leadership Education Action Development (LEAD) Program was awarded the grant from the W.K. Kellogg Foundation. As a result, 30 persons will participate in a two-year program.

GERALD MULLER of Concord is one of the 30 participants in the 1981-83 LEAD program. More than 100 agriculturalists from across the state applied for the 30 fellowships. Muller was selected last summer.

The LEAD program was initiated by the Nebraska Agricultural Leadership Council, a non-profit corporation. It consists of seven three-day seminars conducted on a dozen various college and university campuses and agribusiness establishments across Nebraska.

The program is designed to increase knowledge and understanding of economics and social changes affecting agriculture and rural area. It provides an opportunity to develop knowledge of organizational decision-making processes and the role of political institutions.

There are three basic parts to the program: education in the use of basic skills; intensive study by small groups on the special problems and concerns of Nebraska agriculture and the nation; and development of broad sensitivity to the views and problems of other segments of our society and other countries.

MULLER TOLD The Wayne Herald that the program is not production oriented but rather deals with issues that indirectly affect agriculture both nationally and internationally.

Applied for the program and was fortunate to be accepted. The program has gone beyond my expectations," said Muller. "It gives people a chance to reach out and broaden their horizons."

Because Muller's association with LEAD has been through the winter he said he has had the opportunity to advance his education without taking time away from farming. Much time has been spent working with other agricultural groups.

Throughout their two years in the program, participants will attend 14 leadership seminars and two study/travel seminars. The seminars are designed to promote skill and learning in such areas as communications, government, economics, social and cultural understandings, as well as a better knowledge of the role of government and business in decision-making processes which affect agriculture.

APPLICATIONS ARE now being accepted for the second class of LEAD which will begin in October. Deadline for applications is June 30. Further information or application packets may be obtained by contacting Jim Horner, executive vice president, 202 Agricultural Hall, University of Nebraska-Lincoln, 68583.

Horner stopped in Wayne briefly on Friday to promote the leadership program. He will coordinate seminars on human relations, agricultural financing and thinking futuristically. He also will head up a study/travel seminar to Chicago, Detroit, Kansas City and Washington and another to Asia.

Three-fourths of the 30 agriculturalists (age 25-40) are engaged in production while the others are in related agribusiness. Their products range from alfalfa to Angus cattle, pigs to popcorn; poultry to pinto beans; hay to horefores; milk to milo; sheep to sugar beets; soybeans to sorghum, and sunflowers to wheat and corn.

GERALD MULLER of Concord chats with Jim Horner.

Executive director speaks 'Mentally retarded can be and are productive'

"Mentally retarded people can be and are productive people."

That was the message delivered Monday night in Waynes by Dave Powell, executive director of the Nebraska Association for Retarded Citizens, headquartered in Lincoln.

Powell spoke to a small group of persons attending a meeting of the Wayne County Association for Retarded Citizens (ARC).

POWELL, SPEAKING in the Wayne Chamber of Commerce meeting room, expressed disappointment in the number of parents of handicapped persons who were not present at Monday night's meeting.

"We've got to take advantage of these trying times," said Powell, referring to proposed budget cuts at both the federal and state levels.

"We've all got to join together to worry and work," Powell said, adding that parents of handicapped persons who are not joining in efforts to support programs for the handicapped are going to have a "very rude awakening when budget cuts come through."

"I'VE GOT a terribly important message I'm trying to deliver throughout the state," said Powell.

"We're in a time of crisis. We have to be stronger than ever. Involve more parents than ever."

Powell said that although the state legislature recently overrode Governor Thorne's veto of $500,000 in statewide mental retardation funding for the next fiscal year, the fight cannot stop there.

"It's a very temporary victory," warned Powell. "It's a short-term gain."

"THE REAGAN administration is raging a war on handicapped persons," Powell told the group.

Powell updated the group on cuts the Reagan administration is proposing with regard to mental retardation services.

Powell said the federal government is seeking about a 25 percent reduction in special education funding.

The federal government also is proposing additional cuts in Medicaid, a primary source of funding for the mentally retarded and elderly in nursing homes and state facilities, according to Powell.

"They're proposing that some of the costs of Medicaid be shifted to the families of the recipients," Powell said.

"IN ADDITION," said Powell, "the Reagan administration is seeking to cut low-income housing programs entirely, and to completely eliminate CETA employment and training programs."

Powell said the federal government also is proposing that the prognosis period for persons applying for supplemental security income be extended from 12 to 24 months.

"It goes on and on like this," declared Powell.

POWELL ALSO blasted state legislatures, accusing them of being more interested in money than with people's needs.

"They know the needs can't be met so they avoid the issue completely," said Powell.

Powell said although the state legislature is proposing a 7 to 8 percent cutback in mental retardation funding, those cutbacks have been given over the last three to four years.

"We can't keep cutting the fat forever," said Powell.

POWELL COMPARED the cost of keeping a mentally retarded person in the Beatrice State Home to housing and job programs such as those provided in Wayne by Region IV.

While it costs approximately $40,000 a year for a resident of the Beatrice State Home, it costs between $10 and $12 thousand for the services provided to clients in Wayne.

POWELL SAID another level of crisis is that we are beginning to attach heavier and heavier labels to mentally retarded children.

"Appropriate medical care also is a problem," said Powell, adding that normal surgical procedures often are not provided simply because a young person is retarded.

POWELL SAID that while the Association for Retarded Citizens has 50,000 members last year, nationwide and 200 members statewide, it is still the largest membership organization in the United States dedicated to a health issue.

"Where are the parents of persons with learning disabilities in Wayne County tonight?" questioned Powell.

"WE MUST work together," said Powell. "Sell yourselves, and sell our programs as something valuable to the entire community."

"I'm constantly amazed at what people can accomplish if we give them the chance and provide them the resources," he concluded.

Dave Powell

GARY WEST (center) was recently awarded a Red Cross Certificate of Merit for saving a life by use of CPR last May. Berniece Fulton, safety chairman of the Wayne County Red Cross, and Dick Armstrong, Wayne County Red-Cross chairman, presented the award. Bob Schleicher, a Wayne State graduate who now lives in western Nebraska, was mailed an award for his role.

Life savers earn awards

A Wayne man and a Wayne State College graduate were recently honored by the Red Cross "for selfless and humane action in saving the life of a victim of cardiac arrest."

Gary West of Wayne and Robert Schleicher were presented citations this past week for saving a life last May.

West trained in Red Cross first aid, and Schleicher trained in Red Cross first aid, water safety and cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR), responded to an emergency call at a neighbor's residence last May 8.

The two men determined that the victim had neither pulse nor respiration and began CPR. They continued their efforts until an ambulance arrived. It was believed beyond doubt that the use of CPR saved the victim's life.

For their action, West and Schleicher were given the Red Cross Certificate of Merit. This is the highest award given by the American Red Cross to a person who saves or sustains a life by using skills and knowledge learned in a volunteer training program.

The citation was presented to West by Berniece Fulton, safety chairman of the Wayne County Red Cross, and Dick Armstrong, Wayne County Red Cross chairman. Schleicher now resides in western Nebraska and was mailed his citation.

An eight year old Wayne boy was treated for bruises and abrasions at Providence Medical Center following a car-bicycle accident Monday afternoon.

Governor Thone speaking at TRI-COG birthday celebration

Nebraska Governor Charles Thone, state senators, county and city officials as well as the general public are expected to be on hand, Monday, May 3, at Laurel for a unique birthday celebration.

The occasion is the 10th anniversary of the formation of the TRI-County Council of Governments (TRI-COG), according to John Young, TRI-COG Chairman. Young said that Gov. Thone will be the key-note speaker at a 9 a.m. breakfast at the Laurel City Auditorium that is open to the general public. Gov. Thone helped form the organization when he served as U.S. Congressman from that district.

TRI-COG is a planning agency and service provider in Dixon, Cedar and Knox counties and works closely with the Nebraska Department of Economic Development. Jeff Jorgensen will represent the department at the breakfast, Young said.

TRI-COG is governed by a board of directors made up exclusively of elected city and county officials. The organization strives to eliminate duplication of governmental services in the three counties as well as providing a unified approach to common problems, Young explained.

Goldenrod Hills Community Council has provided the staff and office facilities in Hartington for the past year and a half as an ongoing community contribution.

Mrs. Anita Saunders is the program coordinator and Jim Hayes the inter-governmental liaison staffer assigned to TRI-COG. In addition, TRI-COG Communities utilize Goldenrod's planning and grants writing personnel.

Brownie Event

Mime artist entertains 150 Brownies at Laurel

Brownies from throughout the area were entertained by mime artist Ricky Smith during Brownie Adventure Day held Saturday in the Laurel city auditorium.

Laurel Brownie Troop 255 hosted 150 Brownies from District IV at the annual event.

The Brownies came from Laurel, Wayne, Wakefield, Belden, Randolph, Allen, Plainview, Niobrara, Pierce, Bloomfield and Creighton.

SMITH'S PERFORMANCE was sponsored by the District IV Girl Scout Council and the Nebraska Arts Council.

As a mime artist, Smith makes use of illusion to re-enact situations from real life and fantasy.

In one he enacts the trials of a father with his son at an amusement park. In another he confronts a venus fly trap.

AN ARTIST in residence with the Metropolitan Arts Council in Omaha, Smith serves in a program designed to bring theatre to deaf and hearing impaired people.

Through Metro Arts, he works with teachers at the Iowa School for the Deaf to present ideas and concepts to deaf children more clearly than is possible with words alone.

He also assists local theatres in their productions of interpreted performances for the deaf.

SMITH, WHO has been deaf since birth, turns what could be a handicap into a strength through mime.

Because he is deaf, he relies on physical gesture in all his communication.

Smith is well known in the schools, community centers, and performance halls of Omaha and other communities.

He has toured Nebraska and Iowa performing through the Artists-in-School program and the Nebraska Touring Program.

Writing like mad

St. Mary's youngsters build friendships across the miles

A classroom full of youngsters writing letters and not grumbling?

That's what's happening in Ellen Imdieke and Wanda Schmidt's classrooms at St. Mary's School in Wayne because of the Weekly Reader Writing Pals program.

The youngsters are writing to pen pals in kindergarten through second grade at the Bellevue Santa Fe School in San Luis Obispo, Calif., and they're finding out that writing assignments are fun.

THE ST. Mary's kids have written all kinds of things to their writing pals in California.

They've told their unseen friends about such things as this year's blizzards, their families and hobbies, and what they are doing in school.

In return, the California students have told local youngsters their favorite colors, hobbies, pets, birthdays, and phone numbers.

One student received a phone call from her pen pal in January.

THE WRITING Pals program, which is sponsored by the editors of Weekly Reader, has matched more than a million children in this nationwide letter-exchange program during the past three years.

Students exchange letters with pupils of similar ages but different backgrounds who are located many miles away.

ELLEN AND Wanda's classes write to children who live in an area that is warm year round with quite a lot of rainfall.

The children from Bellevue Santa Fe have to travel to the mountains to see snow.

DR. LYNNEL Johnson, Editorial Director of Weekly Reader, says "It's great to see how excited children and teachers get about the Writing Pals program."

"It's not just fun. It's also very much worthwhile. The program builds friendships across the miles. It teaches kids about other parts of their country. And, it gets them writing."

TERESA PROKOP, a student at St. Mary's School in Wayne, writes a letter to her pen pal in San Luis Obispo, Calif. Teresa, a second grader, is the daughter of Ken and Shirley Prokop. Teresa, along with other students in Ellen Imdieke and Wanda Schmidt's classrooms, are writing to pen pals as part of the Weekly Reader Writing Pals program. The program has matched more than a million children nationwide during the past three years.

Wildcat defense shuts down alumni in annual WSC game

As one would expect in a spring football scrimmage, the defense was dominant as the Wayne State varsity humbled the college alumni squad to the tune of 21-0 before a good crowd on Saturday.

Coach Del Stoltenberg's varsity squad showed defensive power aplenty, but his offense was sluggish against an extremely talented bunch of alums. The varsity scored via the run, the pass, and the defensive fumble recovery while keeping the alums from seriously threatening the varsity goal line.

EVEN STOLTENBERG admitted some surprise at the final outcome. "The coaching staff had the feeling that this was the year the alumni could win it," he said.

"Our (varsity) defense played very well—the most pleasing part was that they got one score, and forced the alumni to turn the ball over and give the offense additional chances to score."

Senior fullback Tony Marinella got the varsity on the board in the second quarter on a nine yard burst over the left side of his line. John Boykin kicked the extra point for a 7-0 lead.

That score stood at the halftime, but it didn't take long into the second half and the varsity was on the board again. The alumni took possession on their own 30 to start the second half, but on the first play the snap sailed over alumni quarterback Kelly Neustrom's head and continued into the end zone.

Sophomore defensive end Kevin McArdle scooped the ball up and the varsity stretched their lead by another touchdown. Tom Wingert converted the extra point.

SENIOR QUARTERBACK Mike Warren, guiding the top varsity offensive unit, connected with Wingert on a 10 yard scoring pass later in the third quarter for the final points of the day. Boykin again added the PAT for the final 21-0 margin.

Meanwhile, defensive coordinator Dr. Ralph Barclay's varsity units were terrorizing the alumni offense. Alumni quarterback Kelly Neustrom, a record setter with the varsity last fall, was sacked 11 times for 129 yards in losses, and the alums had a net of 122 rushing. Combined with just 66 passing yards, the alums registered a net of 56 total yards.

Senior linebacker Ron Gilbert topped the varsity tackle chart with nine stops, including two quarterback sacks for 19 yards in losses. McArdle had eight tackles including two sacks for 38 yards in addition to his fumble recovery for a touchdown. End Kirk Schroeder had a pair of sacks and a fumble recovery.

Defensive back Ken Kohliho deflected one pass and intercepted two others, which he returned for 63 yards. Casey Thomas also had an interception.

MARINELLA WAS the day's top ground gainer with 32 yards on eight rushes. Sophomore fullback Bob Norris added 29 on seven tries. Wingerl caught four passes for 54 yards, as Warren was six of 13 for 73 yards with one interception.

"More consistency in the offensive line is needed," Stoltenberg said, "though at times they did a good job—they really did better than I thought they would against a fine alumni defense."

For the alumni, Kelly Neustrom completed five of 20 passes for 66 yards with three interceptions. Offensively, no one caught more than one pass and no back gained over eight yards. Charlie Curryn had five tackles and a fumble recovery. Greg Welch had five stops and two quarterback sacks, and Donn Landholm had a pair of fumble recoveries. Brent Moeller had the lone alumni interception.

Districts approach

High school games split by Laurel and Wakefield

Errors plagued both teams as Wakefield and Laurel split an impasse double header in Northeast Nebraska Baseball League action Monday at Wakefield.

The host Trojans won the first game 6-2 and Laurel won the late game 7-4. Both games counted toward league standings. Wakefield is now 4-1 in league play and 5-7 overall. A total of 18 errors were committed in the two games and Laurel made 12 of those.

JEFF COBLE and Mark Starzl were the heroes in the first game while Dave Marquardt was the hero in the second game. Coble topped his season batting average to .545 with a 5 for 8 performance at the plate Monday. He went 3 for 4 in the first game and scored two runs. Meanwhile, Starzl struckout 14 batters in the seventh inning contest. He gave up four hits and five walks to improve his record to 4-0.

Mark pitched a real good, strong game. He had real good stuff and his breaking pitch was extremely effective," said Trojan coach Joe Coble. The veteran coach also praised catcher Kent Roberts for doing a "super job." He explained that many of Starzl's strikes are breaking balls in the dirt and are extremely difficult to handle.

Laurel scored the game's first run in the top of the first inning when Dave Marquardt clubbed a solo homer over the centerfield fence. The Trojans retaliated with two in the bottom of the second and a four run third inning put the hosts in front to stay.

COBLE AND STARZL each scored two runs in the game. Wayne Guy and Troy Greve also collected hits and Greve and Soderberg scored. Laurel had four batters, Mark Herrmann, Dave Marquardt, Ron Hirschman and Phil Martin, with one hit each. Marquardt and Hirschman scored the runs.

Martin started the game and pitched four innings before giving way to reliever Kelly Robson.

In the second game, Marquardt, who went 3 for 5, added to his homer with a key double in the sixth inning. The score was tied 4-4 at the end of three innings and remained tied until the bottom of the sixth.

Although Laurel committed seven errors in the ball game, it was Wakefield's mistakes which were the most costly. The Bears scored three runs on three hits and three errors in the sixth inning. Brian Marquardt, Dave Marquardt and Ron Hirschman all scored. At least two of the runs were unearned.

AS FAR AS Wakefield coach Coble was concerned Dave Marquardt was "a thorn in our side both offensively and defensively." The senior pitched all seven innings, gave up six hits, one walk and struckout four. Brian Marquardt, Phil Martin and Dennis Martinson each had a hit and run in the game. Tim Bloom had Laurel's other hit and Mark Herrmann and Ron Hirschman had one run apiece.

For Wakefield, Coble had two hits and a run. Lee Foote had two hits, Mike Clay had a hit and hit, Troy Greve collected a hit and Brian Soderberg scored a run.

Wayne Guy started as pitcher but retired only one batter before he was relieved by Starzl for the final two outs of the first inning. Guy made the first out of the second inning but Brian Soderberg finished the game and suffered the loss.

SODERBERG GAVE up four hits and six walks while striking out four batters in 5 1/2 innings. Coble said he felt Soderberg pitched well enough to win but was the victim of the three run sixth inning and Wakefield's errors.

Wakefield is scheduled to play at Boys Town today (Thursday) in a double header.

The Wayne boys easily won their division with 79 points to overdistance Emerson with 48 and Pender with 14 in the girls competition. Wayne scored 46 points to edge Pender (44) and Emerson (34).

Governor Thone speaking

Big weekend at Wayne State College

Hundreds of faces not usually seen in Wayne will be around this weekend as Wayne State College prepares for one of its biggest weekends of the year. Highlighting the weekend will be Sunday's commencement exercises, plus the dedication of the recently remodeled Education and Humanities Buildings. In addition, Saturday will be the first of four registration programs for new students who plan on attending Wayne State College next fall. Throw in a college conference track meet on Friday and Saturday and, possibly, baseball games on Friday and Saturday, and Wayne State College should have something to interest nearly everyone.

NEBRASKA GOVERNOR Charles Thone, himself a native Northeast Nebraskan, will be the guest speaker at spring commencement exercises at Wayne State College this Sunday, May 23. Commencement exercises are scheduled to begin at 2 p.m. in the college Willow Bowl south of the Hahn Administration Building. In the event of bad weather, the ceremonies will move indoors to Rice Auditorium.

Keith Kemper, chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Nebraska State Colleges, will officially greet the crowd. Dr. Lyle Seymour, WSC president, will confer the various undergraduate and graduate degrees to the approximately 190 students who will graduate. Family and friends of the graduates are invited to attend a reception ceremony in the Birch Room of the Student Center, which will follow dedication ceremonies of the Education and Humanities Buildings.

IMMEDIATELY FOLLOWING Sunday's commencement, everyone is cordially invited to take part in the dedication program for Wayne State's newly-renovated Education and Humanities Buildings.

The new Education Building was constructed as the first college administration building in 1915, while the Humanities Building was originally Wayne State's first library and science building when it was constructed in 1912. Renovating them into these modern facilities came at a cost of $2.28 million, or "roughly half the cost of new construction," according to President Seymour.

The Education Building will be officially dedicated the Dr. William A. Brandenburg Education Building in honor of the fifth president of Wayne State College. Dr. Brandenburg (1910-1976) served as WSC president from 1956 through 1973. Among the many improvements realized by Wayne State under the Brandenburg presidency were the construction of six major buildings on campus.

Renovation of the Education Building included the restoration of the original campus theatre, which will be named the "Henry and Dorothy Ley Theatre" in honor of the late Mr. and Mrs. Ley. Mr. Ley, a former WSC student, served as a member of the Board of Trustees from 1971 until his death in 1979. He helped initiate the Wayne State Foundation. Mr. Ley taught at Wayne State from 1952 through 1974, and was active in numerous community and civic projects.

KEITH KEMPER, chairman of the Board of Trustees, will give the welcome at the dedication ceremony followed by the introduction of special guests by President Seymour, J. Alan Cramer, vice-chairman of the Board of Trustees, will next present the buildings to Governor Thone for his acceptance.

Following the dedication by Governor Thone, responses will be received by Mrs. William A. Brandenburg in behalf of the late president; by David Ley, son of Henry and Dorothy Ley; by Dr. Joseph Fleck, head of the division of education and psychology, in behalf of his division; and by Ruby Pedersen, head of the division of humanities, in behalf of her division.

A program designed for students who will begin their education at Wayne State College next fall is planned for this Saturday, according to Dean of Students Dr. Max Lundstrom. The purpose of the registration program is to give both students and their parents an idea of the "how to's" and "where to's" of college life at WSC. Dr. Lundstrom said, "It's an opportunity for students and advisors to get acquainted as the students proceed through the registration process." Dr. Lundstrom noted.

PARTICIPANTS WILL arrive on campus between 9-9:30 at the Val Peterson Fine Arts Center. Dr. Seymour will welcome the group, followed by a discussion of student life by Dr. Lundstrom and by Steve Oetken, president of the WSC student Senate. Ms. Lin Brummels, academic advisor, will coordinate the advising/registration process.

Clifton Ginn, head of the social sciences division, will discuss general education, WSC's academic structure, and other information. Mr. Pat Coward, director of the teaching-learning center, will talk about academic assistance available at the college.

The groups will then break up, with students scheduled to meet with faculty advisors and campus tour guides. Parents will hear talks by Dr. Bob Lohrborg, director of housing and placement, on housing; by Frank Teach, director of student activities and intramurals, on food service, intramurals, and student activities; by Mr. Florence Pankratz, college nurse, about WSC health services; by Donna Bliss, director of counseling, on WSC's counseling services; by Chuck Kay, director of financial aids, on financial assistance and aid; and by Adrie Nab, director of college relations, on college relations.

THE DAY'S PROGRAM is scheduled to conclude at about 3 p.m. Those who are unable to attend Saturday's registration program should note they can take part in similar sessions on June 4, June 25, or July 23.

For more information about the 1982 student registration programs, contact Jim Hummel, director of admissions at WSC, by calling 375-2200, ext. 234.

farm briefs

Farmers Union seeks signatures

Nell Oxtou, Nebraska Farmers Union President, released signature quota figures for Wayne County for the constitutional amendment designed to outlaw non-family owned corporations from buying further farmland in Nebraska.

"We need, at a minimum, 316 signatures from Wayne County if we are to reach our goal of 49,200 valid signatures, or 10 percentages of the 1978 gubernatorial vote. This is going to take a lot of hard work from many people, but we have a good chance to reach our goal if we all pull together. I want to emphasize, however, that we're going to have to greatly exceed the quota figures in many of our stronger counties or we won't reach the 49,200 valid signature goal."

Oxtou said that he was pleased with the progress that had been made on the petition drive. He noted that more than 6,500 petitions had been distributed statewide, but that a big job remained to reach the signature goal.

"I'm convinced that the vast majority of Nebraskans, both in rural areas and urban areas, want to keep Nebraska farmland for Nebraskans. I don't believe that Nebraskans want to see their land controlled by giant corporations and absentee investors, most of whom drain their profits out of the state."

Oxtou encouraged anyone interested in circulating a petition to write the Committee to Preserve the Family Farm, Box 2677, Lincoln, Nebraska, 68502.

A step closer to planting

FARMERS HAVE been fighting strong winds to fertilize their fields in the past week. The farmers keep working nearer to a possible planting date if the weather cooperates.

Fight leafy spurge early

Once a leafy spurge gets a foothold, watch out. The time to win the battle against this nemesis of pasture and rangeland is before it spreads over a large area.

Leafy spurge is on the increase in Nebraska, said University of Nebraska extension weeds specialist, Alex Martin. Large areas in North and South Dakota have been abandoned to the weed, he said. It crowds out desirable grasses making the infested area worthless for grazing, he explained.

"It is essential that leafy spurge be controlled to protect your investment in grazing land," Martin added. "Correct identification is the first step in a control program."

LATE SPRING is the time to spot leafy spurge and "nip it in the bud," Martin said. This year, based on current weather conditions, the last two weeks of May would be a good time for spurge control, Martin said.

The perennial weed reproduces by seeds and roots. Stems may reach a height of 36 inches and are stiff and woody at maturity, he explained. The stems are green in the summer and may turn red in the fall, Martin said. The leaves are bluish green and long and narrow. The plant takes on a yellow green coloring during late spring and early summer, he said.

"All parts of the plant contain a white milky sap — as good key for identification," Martin said.

Herbicides are an important ingredient in a control program, Martin said.

"Grazing management alone will not control the plant once it becomes established," he said.

BUT GOOD GRASS management discourages leafy spurge from invading an area. "A thick stand of grass provides good competition against leafy spurge, particularly seedlings," Martin said. "This is important because leafy spurge first gets started in grassland from seed.

Martin said that good herbicides for spurge control are 2,4-D ester at 2 pounds per acre or 1 pound of 2,4-D and 1 pint of Banvel per acre.

"Don't expect to get rid of leafy spurge in one or two years," Martin cautioned. This is particularly true with 2,4-D or Banvel, he said. Toron 22K is more effective. A 2 quart per acre application provides about 75 to 85 percent con-rol, he said, and 4 quarts per acre gives nearly 100 percent control.

Treatments should be made in the spring during the early bud stage, Martin explained. If moisture permits, good regrowth a second treatment in the late fall increases control, he said.

"If only one treatment per year is possible, make it in the spring," Martin said.

DANDELION CONTROL

Scattered plants can be effectively controlled by digging with a knife or special dandelion digger. Cut the root off four to five inches below the ground. Deep cutting is necessary to prevent regrowth from the root. Killer Kanes that dispense a squirt of herbicide into the center of individual weeds also works well for treating scattered plants.

Heavy infestations of dandelions, shepherds-purse, mustards, chickweed, and henbit are best controlled with 2,4-D. Both granular forms are often combined with fertilizer for a once over weed and feed treatment.

When using liquids, keep sprayer pressure as low as possible to avoid fine droplets that are more likely to drift to non target plants. Nozzle applicators that fit on gallon jugs reduce drift hazards, are inexpensive and easy to use.

WEED CONTROL AROUND TREES

Simazine, sold commercially as Princep, is one of the most widely used and readily available herbicides for weed control in shelterbelts and orchards. It should be applied at rates of 2 1/2 to 5 pounds of Princep 80W per acre. Use the lower rate on sandy soils and higher rates on heavier soils. The chemicals should be applied to weed-free seedbeds.

A two foot band on each side of the row reduces chemical costs and risks from chemical injury. One to two ounces of Princep 80W per 1,000 square feet is equivalent to 2 1/2 to 5 pounds per acre. The label gives complete instructions on usage and list woody plant species that are tolerant of Simazine.

GULLS IN NEBRASKA

The fact that farmers are working their fields is why gulls appear in Nebraska for a short time. By working the soil, the farmers expose grubs, worms, and insects which provide a needed protein-rich diet for the gulls.

Primarily, four species of gulls migrate through Nebraska — herring, ring-billed, Franklins, and Bonapartes. The ring-billed gull and Franklin's gull are the most common.

Franklin's gull is small by gull standards (about 11 inches long), has a black head and black wing tips. It is the common gull of the prairies, wintering south of the United States and breeding in North and South Dakota and the southern part of Saskatchewan and Alberta.

The ring-billed gull also is relatively common inland. It is somewhat larger than Franklin's gull (about 16 inches long) and does not have a black head. The ring-billed gull gets its name from a black ring around its yellow bill. These gulls winter along the Gulf Coast and breed in the wetlands from northern Idaho on up into Alberta.

The gulls will leave in another few weeks but will return next fall.

Make every pasture acre count.

Banvel® Herbicide makes every pasture acre count.

Musk thistle can rapidly overrun pasture grasses. When weeds move in, pasture carrying capacity drops... cattle compete for forage... daily weight gains drop... profits fall. Your lush pastures turn into poor pastures.

You can break the broadleaf weed takeover with Banvel® Herbicide. It effectively controls dozens of broadleaf weeds like musk thistle — and many that 2,4-D alone often misses. Banvel Herbicide circulates throughout this weed to kill the entire plant, above and below ground, from leaf tip to root tip.

If you're using 2,4-D now, put the extra punch of Banvel Herbicide in a tank mix. You'll add an impressive hit-list to your 2,4-D program — including dogfennel and Canada thistle.

For added convenience and weed control, Banvel Herbicide can be applied with fluid fertilizers as part of a Weed and Feed program.

This spring, break the broadleaf hold on your beef-making potential. Ask your ag chem dealer about cleaning up your pastures with Banvel Herbicide.

Method of transplanting trees is improved by horticulturist

A University of Nebraska horticulturist has developed an improved method of transplanting shade trees. It provides accelerated growth, enhances root development and allows for planting trees suited to Nebraska's climate that previously were too difficult to transplant.

And he does it with a wire screen, milk cartons and some plastic tubes.

"It's simple. We just had to think about it," said Bill Gustafson, NU extension horticulturist. GUSTAFSON EXPLAINED that when he first arrived in Lincoln he was puzzled that local nurseries weren't selling trees better adapted to southeast Nebraska's climate than the pin oaks and silver maples that abound in the area.

Bur oaks, red oaks, walnut and even pecan trees are all well adapted to this climate. Gustafson said. But when he surveyed local nurseries in the summer of 1978, they told him that homeowners didn't like small trees. The trees he felt were more suitable also grew more slowly and were harder to transplant, they said.

But they weren't doing homeowners any favors in the long run," Gustafson said. For one thing, the pin oaks that have been so popular also have been plagued by an iron deficiency problem called iron chlorosis, he said. In addition, local landscapes, particularly in urban and suburban areas, were not as interesting as with a variety of trees.

Besides wanting to improve the selection of trees in the area, Gustafson noticed some problems with the popular practice of transplanting seedlings by digging them up, cutting off the tap root and placing them in a plastic pot.

WHILE IN the artificial growing media, the roots would begin to grow in a circle around the bottom of the pot, Gustafson explained. When homeowners transplanted the trees, the roots would continue to grow in a circle. A tree can actually strangle itself that way, he said.

Gustafson said he thought a container was the right approach, but he wanted to try an unconventional style one without a bottom.

By placing the truncated tap root in an open ended milk carton, Gustafson used a technique proven with vegetables to foster greater root growth. Air pruning

Exposed to air, the tap root dries up, he explained, and creates lateral root development similar to the way pruning branches generates more branches, Gustafson said.

Equally effective, he said, was a plastic tube about 4 inches in diameter.

Then he added a feature to further enhance fibrous roots.

These are the secondary roots that supply most of the nutrients to the tree, whereas the taproot stores food, Gustafson said.

PLACING THE CONTAINER over a hair screen table produced "billions" of fibrous roots, he explained.

"It looks like a Fuller brush," he said.

He also explained that it is the lack of fibrous roots that keeps many trees from making good growth for a few years after they are replanted.

"We've increased the absorption of that tree," Gustafson said. Since most trees are in shock when transplanted because their roots have been cut, they spend the first few years growing another root system, he said. The greater number of "feeder" roots created by the new system means homeowners can buy seedlings at a more reasonable price since they spend less time in a greenhouse, he explained.

SUCH TREES also make more rapid growth after replanting. Within a few years a tree that is only 3 feet tall when it's transplanted can grow to equal to one standing 4 feet when replanted, he said.

Concerning the whole process, Gustafson said, "We've known these things for years. But now we've put the pieces together differently."

With the new system, the nurseryman can buy lots of different kinds of native trees, the homeowner can buy them at a reasonable price and the landscape will be beautiful by the variation in trees, Gustafson said.

"I think everybody will benefit from this in the long run," he said.

Director visits field lab

CLARE PORTER (left), retired seed company executive from Lincoln, and Dr. Cal Ward, director of the University of Nebraska Northeast Station at Concord, were among the 200 guests for a celebration April 16 at the NU Field Laboratory near Mead. The occasion marked the complete transfer of the field lab lands to NU; the university has been receiving title to five percent of the land each year since 1962. The lab was formerly an ordnance plant and many of its facilities are still in use, including a former bomb load line building where the celebration was held.

Grants offered to 4-H members

Present and former 4-H members may be eligible for $5,750 in college scholarship grants if they meet requirements set by the Cooperative Extension Service.

Five of the grants, valued at $1,000 each, are primarily for young people planning careers in agriculture, or such related fields as forestry, veterinary medicine or animal science. The other scholarship, valued at $750, has no limit placed on choice of study. These scholarships are provided by private sector donors and arranged by National 4-H Council, a not-for-profit organization supporting the 4-H program through private resources.

The $750 scholarship, in memory of Gertrude L. Warren, a pioneer 4-H leader often described as the "Mother of 4-H," is awarded to one present or former 4-H member matriculating this fall at an accredited college, university, technical or trade school. The recipient can major in any recognized field of study and must have been influenced by 4-H in selecting a future career.

A $1,000 scholarship, donated by Education Foundation of Alpha Gamma Rho, goes to a current 4-H member who will be enrolled as a college freshman this fall. The recipient must be planning to major in agriculture, forestry, veterinary medicine or a closely related field.

Wayne Feed Division, Continental Grain Company donates scholarships to two present or former 4-H members who will be enrolled as college juniors this fall and plan to major in animal science.

Two former 4-H members, currently enrolled in a college of veterinary medicine, can receive $1,000 scholarships provided by Champion Valley Farms, Inc.

All scholarship applicants must have completed at least one year of 4-H work. Winners are selected by the Cooperative Extension Service and are announced prior to the 61st National 4-H Congress, Nov. 28-Dec. 2, in Chicago, Ill.

Present and former 4-Hers interested in applying for these scholarships should contact their state 4-H office at the land grant universities, or county extension offices for more information and application forms.

More Valley Corner Systems every year,

because it's the least costly investment per acre.

It's going to be harder to make farming pay off in the years to come. Harder for many reasons. So if anything makes sense, it's to maximize the potential of the land you now farm. Irrigating with a center pivot is one way. Irrigating with a Corner System is even better.

A Corner System can irrigate 19 to 45 more acres than a regular pivot, producing extra income on acres already being farmed. That's why nearly one out of every six pivots sold today is a Corner System.

And when it comes to Corner Systems, nobody knows more than Valmont. They're proven reliable with nearly 3,000 systems in operation. That's at least 20 times more than any other brand.

Before you buy any center pivot, see us. We'll tell you how a Valley Corner System can add to your bottom line profits while being the least costly investment per acre.

Banvel HERBICIDE

Overlay Early.

Up to a pint of Banvel® Herbicide over your grass herbicide knocks out broadleaf weeds before corn is 5 inches tall.

Broadleaf weeds are at their weakest as seedlings. That's the time to hit them with up to a pint of Banvel® Herbicide as part of a two-step overlay program in your corn.

First, apply your pre-plant or pre-emergence grass herbicide as usual. Then, lay down Banvel Herbicide when broadleaf weeds germinate — before corn is 5 inches tall. (The length of a ballpoint pen is a handy measure.)

By holding back until broadleaf weeds germinate, Banvel Herbicide is ready to work when it's needed most ... and over a longer period of time.

Banvel Herbicide controls dozens of broadleaf weeds in corn — even tough customers like sunflower, cocklebur and velvetleaf (buttonweed). Compared to other broadleaf herbicides, Banvel Herbicide gives you cost-per-acre advantages, a wide spectrum of control, excellent crop tolerance and no worries about carryover.

Talk to your ag chem dealer. For broadleaf weed control in corn, overlay early with Banvel Herbicide.

Wanted: One governor — no experience necessary

By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association
Wanted. One governor. No experience necessary. Must be able to govern. Annual salary $40,000 for four years. Contact State of Nebraska, an equal opportunity employer.
That fictitious want ad reveals something Nebraska's current governor has more or less etched in stone for the duration of the next governorship. Gov. Charles Thone has decreed that the next governor, whether it's him or someone else, won't get the five percent salary increase passed by the legislature.
In vetoing the raise, Thone also locked in the current salaries for other constitutional officers and judges. In the case of the attorney general, that means $39,500 a year for four more years. The salary for secretary of state, auditor and state treasurer is frozen at $32,000.

THE MAN who promised during the 1978 campaign to look after the state's money like his mother protected his family's egg money finds Nebraska today in much worse financial straits than he probably imagined.
Thone's motto to the untrained eye might seem to be "cut, cut, cut." The state is experiencing a severe cash-flow problem, and revenue from taxes is down considerably from what had been projected.
Thone, at first seemed to hesitate, but finally conceded state tax rates must go up. He also declared that state budgets had to be cut, cut, cut. It started with the special legislative session last year, moved on to his budget blueprint this year and extended to a much-revised spending plan that emerged in the final weeks of the 1982 session.
Thone squawked off with the Legislature over how much money to allocate for state employee raises, and when those higher salaries should go into effect. Thone opted to delay the raises such that they would translate into a 2.5 percent increase; the Legislature wanted to grant them sooner, a move that would come closer to a 4 percent.

Thone won, despite a futile attempt by some lawmakers to override a gubernatorial veto.
THEN THONE had to grapple with the bill giving a 5 percent raise to constitutional officers and judges. After the 1982 legislative session had ended, Thone spread the word that he had vetoed his own raise. This wasn't the time, he said, and he was willing to pay the price.
"The constitutional officers and judges must share in our efforts to keep state spending to a minimum," Thone said.
And there was no talking back to the governor on the issue. The session had ended, and there was no chance for an override attempt. Chances are, however, it wouldn't have been successful if it had been tried.
Lawmakers, who earn a mere $400 a month and took the lead in calling for a tax hike and cutting budgets, probably would have gladly left Thone's veto intact.

Some might argue Thone's stance on the constitutional salary issue was simply a campaign ploy. But even if it was, it was probably the humane thing to do. Everyone else was forced to hold the line and cut back, so why not some of the state's highest paid officials?
SEN. EARNEST CHAMBERS of Omaha, an articulate lawmaker who angers some people and endears others, scored a partial victory this year on his long-fought battle to repeal the death penalty in Nebraska.
Although Chambers several years ago won passage of a bill to repeal capital punishment, only to have it vetoed by the governor, he hasn't given up the fight.
Lawmakers this year agreed to do away with the death penalty for juveniles. They passed a bill that prevents imposition of capital punishment for someone who was convicted for a capital offense before their 18th birthday.

Chambers can be expected to continue his fight to repeal the death penalty for everyone, especially as some death row inmates get closer to the end of their appeal process.
WHETHER CHAMBERS ultimately succeeds will depend on the makeup of the Legislature, the person in the governor's office and society's view of capital punishment.
Based on some expert's views on the youth of today, the growing up of baby boom babies and the decline in certain age groups of the population, Chambers might succeed in a few years.
But considering the composition of the Legislature when Chambers did get his repeal bill passed several years ago, the current make-up is not what it will take for him to succeed. And considering the types of legislative candidates seeking office in this year's elections, 1983 might not be the year for him either.

LEGISLATIVE SPEAKER Richard Marvel missed the final stretch of the 1982 session because he was suffering from fatigue, exhaustion and stress.
His doctor had him go through a series of tests, and hospitalized him briefly for rest. Marvel, who has served more than 27 years in the Legislature, recently admitted to being totally drained.
Now that the session is over, Marvel will have more time to relax. He said he won't seek an unprecedented third term as speaker (No. 2 was unprecedented too), and he hasn't decided whether he'll aspire to a committee chairmanship next year.
But all indications are Marvel will be back to serve the next two years of his current term. And why not? The Hastings lawmaker has never been one to back out on something before it was finished.

'Unwanted stepchild'

The University of Nebraska has treated its Northeast Nebraska Experiment Station at Concord "like an unwanted stepchild," according to Margaret Robinson, Norfolk, candidate for the university board of regents in the 3rd District.
A request to the university administration and the regents to finish off the second floor of the office building at the station has been pending for more than six years. Mrs. Robinson said in remarks prepared for a candidate's forum Saturday (APRIL 24) at the Norfolk Holiday Inn.
"When I'm elected regent, I'll get action on this," she said.
The Concord station has the fulltime equivalent of 11 1/2 professional people, compared to 15 at Clay Center, 17 at North Platte and 18 at Scottsbluff, the president of Norfolk Iron & Metal Co. noted.
The Concord station needs more personnel but if it got them there wouldn't be any place to put them. Already the help has been put in the reception area in order to provide offices for personnel. Summer time help work at desks in hallways," Mrs. Robinson reported.
Research at Concord has shown that nitrogen leaches down into the soil and that corn roots can pick up nutrition from past fertilization that is 5.6 feet below the surface.
The Concord experiment station working with area county agents have done farm tests that on rare occasions demonstrated that no yield loss would result if no nitrogen were added to a field in a year. Typically farmers have saved 60-80 pounds of nitrogen per acre as a result of this Concord research and demonstration," Mrs. Robinson explained.
The Northeast Nebraska Experiment Station also does "unique research in swine housing and management in conservation tillage and in pasture improvement," the 3rd District regent candidate said.
The Concord station built in 1964-65 is partially a two-story building and the remainder is one story. The building was designed for all of it to have two floors, so it would be relatively economical to finish off the building," Mrs. Robinson declared.

Investigation called for Zorinsky seeks elevator improvements

Senator Edward Zorinsky (D-Nebr) reacting to Tuesday's grain elevator explosion in Council Bluffs, Iowa, called today for an all-out government effort to investigate such accidents and improve grain elevator safety.
"This tragic occurrence stands as a monument to government intransigence and outright neglect on the issue of grain elevator safety," Zorinsky said, noting that USDA's Federal Grain Inspection Service recently abolished its small office for keeping track of these explosions and coordinating investigations into them.
"Last year alone, there were 19 explosion incidents in U.S. grain handling facilities and three more in foreign countries," Zorinsky said. "Together, they accounted for 14 deaths and 76 non-fatal injuries."
"With six more learned dead in Council Bluffs, one just wonders when the carnage will end?" the senator added.

USDA Administrator Kenneth A. Giles has told the USDA soon will establish a new, coordinated, high level position on grain elevator safety, Zorinsky said. "Given the number of accidents in recent years, this sort of action is long overdue. And I hope USDA sentiment is to do more than just pay lip service to this very serious problem."
"What's needed and what's been lacking in the past—is an all-out government effort to probe the causes of these explosions and to come up with ways to prevent them in the future," the senator said. "Let's hope USDA is serious about doing just that. Otherwise, the tragedy that befell Council Bluffs this week is destined to be repeated again and again."
Tax dollars wasted
The millions of dollars wasted on repeatedly unsuccessful efforts to try to help Oglaia Sioux Indians at Pine Ridge, S.D., is just the latest example of the "outrageous and asinine ways federal bureaucrats can find to throw away precious tax dollars."
Reacting to press reports of more than $4 million in failed efforts at the Pine Ridge Reservation, Zorinsky blasted the government for what he called "gross misuse of hard earned dollars contributed by waste weary taxpayers."

THE PINE RIDGE problems came to light through an audit done by the Inspector General's Office of the Interior Department. The audit cites a consistent series of failures in economic development projects at the Reservation.
The major debacle was a $2 million attempt to turn the Oglaia into farmers. After 4 1/2 years, the effort left the Reservation worse off than when it started. The audit said the attempt failed because "farming appears to conflict with (the Oglaia's) tribal traditions and values."
"Other efforts failed, the audit said, "because chronic unemployment has created an unskilled and unreliable labor base."
Zorinsky termed the Pine Ridge experience a textbook example of why throwing money at a problem rarely results in any improvement.
"If someone had just stopped to think about what they were doing here," he said, "if these bureaucrats had just looked before they leapt with millions of taxpayers' dollars, everyone would be better off, and the federal budget would be $4 million closer to being in balance."

To the editor:
This letter is being written to support the letter writer who protested R-rated movies. I agree wholeheartedly with that person's view.
We have a wonderful skating rink in Wayne now as well as a bowling alley. Evidently many of our young people feel these activities are far more after being exposed to the lust and lewdness of the R-rated as well as many of the PG rated movies along with the vice of the beer parties.
Many people in the Wayne area attended the James Dobson, "Focus on the Family" film series. Dr. Dobson has expressed a very deep concern over the profanity which has become commonplace in the movies, TV programs, and books which are in many of our school libraries even as low as 5th grade level.

The old cliché, "History repeats itself," is well known. If you will study nations that were once great, you will see that in the last years before their destruction, extreme moral decadence prevailed. It has been said there isn't a sin of ancient Sodom that isn't being committed in present day America. Not only are they being committed, but they are in living color on our movie & TV screens.
Perhaps the most fitting thing to say is found in the Holy Bible, Ezekiel 16:58: "You will bear the consequences of your lewdness and your detestable practices, declares the Lord." (New International Version)

MARKING STATE HIGHWAYS FOR MOTORISTS
Motorists, road maps in hand and signs at convenient intervals along the highway, have little difficulty finding their way around Nebraska. It was not always so. In the early automobile age, beginning in the first two decades of this century there were practically no markings, and most roads were dirt.
Town boosters soon began banding together to denominate, mark and improve stretches of highway in order to cash in on a new industry — tourism — and to lure trade from surrounding areas. There were perhaps 25 or so "name" highways in Nebraska and on its periphery to assist the "autofists" when the highway map first made its appearance. Distinctive signs had been painted or placed on telephone posts, buildings, or attached to specially made wooden or metal standards.
By 1924 the state had instituted a series of numbers to designate principal highways. When the C and M Company copyrighted a "Mileage Map of the Best Roads of Nebraska" in 1924 (see Nebraska State Historical Society map collection, Lincoln), it printed both highway numbers and names of certain highways. There are few if any of the old road markers remaining. Some of the trails listed on the 1924 map are:
Black Hills — Sioux Trail (black-orange marker with trail name) — Hot Springs, S.D. to Pine Ridge, Rosebud, Winner, Norfolk and southeast

Cornhusker Highway (red and white, CH monogram) — Wymore through Lincoln, Lyons, Sioux City
George Washington National Highway (red, white, blue with W initial) — Sioux City south to Fremont
Blue Pole Highway (blue and white, no insignia) — Harrison, Chadron, Valentine, O'Neill and southeast
Custer Battlefield Highway (red and white, tipi in center) — through Rapid City, S.D., Chamberlain and Mitchell.
Detroit — Lincoln — Denver (blue and white, D-L-D monogram) — Denver, Sterling, Colo., McCook, Hastings, Lincoln, Omaha.
Goldenrod Highway (yellow and black, G-R monogram) — east from McCook, Red Cloud, Fairbury.
Midwest Highway (no marker) — east and west through Fairbury.
Grainfield Highway (orange and black, GH monogram) — paralleling Platte River on north side, east of Central City.
Lincoln Highway (red, white, blue, L in initial letter) — through Kimball, Ogallala, North Platte, Kearney, Grand Island, Columbus, Fremont.
Meridian Highway (red and white, MH monogram) — north from Hebron to York, Columbus, Norfolk, Yorkton, S.D.
North and South Pike (red and white, NS monogram) incorporating No. 10 —

Franklin north through Kearney, Taylor, Bassett.
North Platte Valley Highway (blue and yellow stripes) — from Wyoming through Scottsbluff, Oshkosh, North Platte.
North Star Route (blue and white with star) — Sidney north through Bridgeport.
Polish Highway (black and white, PH monogram) — east of Alliance through Antioch (WWII Polish center), Hyannis, Mullen, Theford, Broken Bow.
Red Star Highway (red and white with star) — north from Kansas through Arapahoe and Lexington.
Seward — York, Aurora (yellow and black with SYA monogram) — connecting towns named.
Upland Highway (yellow and black, with letter U) — across lower Sandhills from Broadwater east through Arthur, Tryon.
SOME OF the state highway numbers of 1924 (numbers placed in outline map of Nebraska) still are used, though the federal marking system has superseded many numbers and state roads for the most part carry new numbers. However, 14 still runs north from Superior; 2 bisects the Sandhills east of Alliance; 15 heads north from Fairbury.
A chapter, "The Age of the Automobile," in George E. Johnson II's book, "The Nebraskan," describes the formative years of the state highway system. The author's father, George E. Johnson Sr., was state highway engineer from 1915-1923.

Interest only one problem for farmers

By M.M. Van Kirk
Nebraska Farm Bureau
High interest rates are one of the problems contributing to the economic stress which is plaguing the nation's farmers and ranchers. A South Dakota agricultural banker told the Subcommittee on Agriculture of the Joint Economic Committee holding hearings on interest rates last December.
The banker was speaking for one of six banks that rank among the top 100 lenders in agriculture and his testimony provides some clues as to how the present situation developed and what he sees as a possible outcome.

HE SAID SOME of the problems in farming and urban businesses did not begin with high interest rates. They started back in the 1960s when some operators were marginal at best and barely getting along at 6 percent to 8 percent. He said the 1970s brought a period of inflation when interest rates were from 8 percent to 10 percent and inflation rose as high as 15 percent or more.
During that period the marginal operators looked better as they were able to pay their interest and operate with cheaper dollars. Some people went further into debt, buying land, expanding their business, increasing inventory and living up to the inflation psychology of "buy it today because it will cost more tomorrow."
The banker said that next came a period when it was determined that inflation simply had to be controlled, and that they way to do that was to control the money supply and let interest rates seek their own level. He said that is what happened. Inflation has been controlled (in a holding pattern) but interest rates have reached record highs. The real culprit, he told the subcommittee, is the deficit between what the government spends and what the government takes in. This gap has to be financed, which puts government borrowing in competition with the private sector.

THE BANKER'S predictions included the following: "Despite some improvement in the agricultural sector in 1982, a more complete recovery is probably at least a year or more down the line. There is no quick fix to the current problems facing agriculture. In our rural communities nor am I calling for a quick fix."
He also warned, "Efforts to artificially prop up commodity prices would simply be capitalized into higher land values and would not offer a lasting solution to our problems. The root of our problem goes well beyond weak farm income. Agriculture has been a victim of inflation and an irresponsible government fiscal policy. In particular, the underlying causes of our problem can be traced to: 1. unacceptable high inflation; 2. a much too rapid growth in Federal expenditures; and 3. an explosion in government providing credit on easy terms.
On the latter point, the banker cited the various farm loan programs of the Farmers Home Administration since 1975. He said the FmHA's share of total non-real estate farm debt was less than 3 percent on Jan. 1, 1975 but increased to over 14 percent at the beginning of 1981. He said this provided an easy credit program during a period of inflation which had the effect of inflating land and livestock prices and stimulated a rapid expansion of credit on easy terms.

HE DECLARED that lack of credit is not the problem in agriculture today and that providing more credit is not the solution to the present lack of income in agriculture.
He believes that reducing the growth in Federal expenditures and borrowing will ultimately "bring our" inflation, lead to a decline in interest rates, and bring about a much healthier economic period for rank and file farmers and ranchers in the second half of this decade. He added that the great majority of farm operators can get along until then by reducing their purchases of machinery and equipment and general belt tightening.
Admittedly he is advocating some tough medicine as congressed to those who want some kind of magic government cure. But right now those in the most trouble are those who have over-used easy credit and are carrying the heaviest debt loads.

Other life insurance companies may find Northwestern Mutual's new Extra Ordinary Term policy a little hard to swallow.

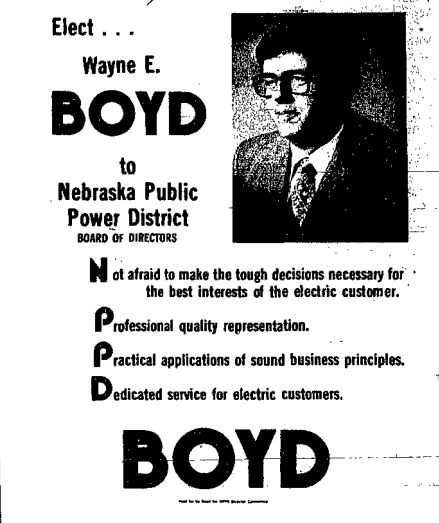

Until now you had two choices. Whole life or term insurance. Until now...

Recently, Northwestern Mutual Life has unveiled an entirely new life insurance plan called Extra Ordinary Term. "Irma Foulks does a good job as Clerk of the District Court. She has the necessary experience. It would be hard to step into her job without prior experience. I think we should keep Irma Foulks as Dixon County Clerk of the District Court."

MAEVIN GREEN, Albia, says:
"Let's re-elect Irma Foulks as Clerk of the District Court. We need this good Christian leadership in our County office. We appreciate her cheerful cooperation including help in connection with the Dixon County Historical Society, of which I am president at the present time."

Margaret Robinson

University Regent 3rd District

Margaret Robinson on cutting University of Nebraska overhead:

"Of nearly 5,000 employees added by the University in the past 12 years only about 20 percent have been faculty. As a Regent, I will work hard to see to it that less of the University's budget is put into administration and more is put into teaching."

Margaret Robinson A successful businesswoman

Margaret Robinson knew little about the steel business when her husband died suddenly in 1974, leaving her as President of Norfolk Iron & Metal Co. Since then, sales have quintupled, while employment increased 35 percent. The steel service center employs about 100 and has annual sales in excess of $25 million in 12 states. The U.S. Small Business Administration in 1979 named Mrs. Robinson's firm as the Small Business of the Year for Nebraska.

Margaret Robinson & Education

Margaret attended what is now the University of Nebraska at Omaha and has a bachelor and master's degree. All four of her children have college degrees including a masters and an M.D. from the University of Nebraska.
