Salary negotiations end

Wayne-Carroll school board, WEA approve salary package

The Wayne-Carroll Board of Education ratified at their regular meeting Monday night a salary package which would increase the beginning salary of teachers by 6.5 percent.

The board agreed to again pay full premiums for health insurance for single and family coverage.

Mettler, who is on a 10-month contract, will see a pay increase from $27,155 to $29,056, which includes special education responsibilities.

The Wayne Education Association (WEA) had voted earlier in the month to accept the salary package.

There were no changes in disability insurance.

BOARD MEMBERS also approved salary schedules for bus drivers, secretaries, teacher aides, cooks, custodians, housekeepers and substitute teachers.

The present salary for a beginning teacher is $11,550 per school year.

Board members serving on the negotiation team were Neil Sandahl, chairman, Becky Kettel and Milton Owens.

The schedule outlines a $30 a month increase in the base salary for bus drivers.

The beginning salary for the 1982-83 school year will be $12,300.

Richard Powers, superintendent of buildings and grounds, David Lutt, elementary principal, Richard Metteer, middle school principal, Donald Zelss, high school principal, and Superintendent Houn.

Bus drivers are, under the new schedule, at $400 per month for nine months of service, plus compensation for additional school activities.

IN ADDITION to increasing the beginning salary by $750, the board approved an increase in district term life insurance from $10,000 to $15,000.

HAUN'S SALARY will increase from $35,853 this year to $38,362 for the 1982-83 school year.

THE SCHEDULE outlines a 30 cent per hour increase for secretaries, cooks and custodians, and jumps the substitute teacher salary to $43 per day.

The cost of the $5,000 additional insurance will be $1.70 per month or $20.40 per year for each teacher.

Zelss' salary, based on a 10 1/2 month contract, will be increased from $29,592 to $30,600.

District runner-up Winside boys qualify for 10 state events

The Class D-2 District boys track championship came down to the final event Tuesday and Winside lost by a matter of a few inches.

The Wildcats led powerful Beemer 123 to 118 entering the day's final event—the 4-by-400 relay. A fourth place finish by Winside and second place finish by Murdock would have given the Cats the district track title.

Winside's team did its job by placing fourth in 3:52.6 but Beemer edged Murdock by inches at the tape to pick up 10 team points and nip Winside by one point in the team race. Beemer finished with 128 points and Winside racked up 127 points.

THE WILDCATS did win the battle for most qualifiers. Winside will send athletes to state in 10 events while Beemer sends athletes in nine events to the state meet.

For Winside, Barry Bowers qualified for state in four events. John Hawkins qualified in three. Mark Koch qualified in two and Jon Meierhenry qualified in one. The top two finishers in each in individual event and the winning relay teams all qualify for next week's state tourney.

Bowers won the discus with a heave of 122.4, the shot put with a toss of 44.2, the 110-meter high hurdles with a time of 1:12 and placed second in the 300-meter intermediate hurdles with a time of 4:13.

Hawkins won the 100-meter dash in 1:12 and set a school record of 22.7 while winning the 200. He also placed second in the shot put with a toss of 42.6.

KOCH WON the 300-meter intermediates with a time of 4:13 and took second in the 110-meter high hurdles in 1:16.4.

Jon Meierhenry, although failing in his attempt to clear six feet for the first time in competition, won the high jump by clearing 5'11" Mick Murphy of Beemer also cleared 5'11" but had more misses at lower heights.

Those four individuals will represent Winside at the state track meet next Friday and Saturday at Omaha Burke.

Winside's three relay teams won district medals. The 3,200-meter team placed second in 9:23.6, the 400-meter team was third in 4:17.1 and the 1,600-meter squad finished fourth in 3:52.6.

FRESHMAN KEVIN FALK was fourth in the discus with a mark of 101.9 and Brian Bowers was fourth in the 3,200 with a time of 11:19.3.

Fifth place finishers were Jim Krajcek in the triple jump with a leap of 37.7 and Brian Bowers in the 1,600-meter run with a time of 5:16.5. Finishing sixth were Krajcek in the high jump (5'6"), Meierhenry in the triple jump (37'6") and Dan Mundt in the 800 (2:18.0).

Lady Cats third in District II

Strong showings in the sprints and relays once again highlighted the track efforts by the Wayne State Lady Wildcats as they earned third place in the NAIA District II outdoor track and field championships last weekend at Kearney State College.

Several members of the men's and women's squads continue working out in preparation for the NAIA nationals, to be held later this month in Charleston, West Virginia.

THE KEARNEY STATE women won the women's district title as expected, scoring 174 points. Powerful Midland earned second with 140, while Wayne State followed with 77 3/4. Doane was close behind with 77 3/4, followed by Chadron State, 24 3/4; Hastings, 25; Concordia, 22; Peru State, 11; and Doane, 1 3/4. As extremely strong Doane club won the men's team title with 170 1/2 points, Kearney State was second with 144, followed by Midland, 98; Chadron State, 92 1/2; Concordia, 58; Hastings, 40 1/2; Wayne State, 24; Peru State, 9 1/2; and Doane with 6.

Premier hurdler Ed Blackburn cruised to a blazing 14.0 time in the 110-meter high hurdle preliminaries, but the two-time All-American pulled a muscle in the finals. His time dropped a full second, to 15.0, but Blackburn won the event anyway for the lone Wildcat first place. He was also on the fifth place 4 x 100-meter relay team.

Pole vaulter Scott Driver cleared 14'0" for the Cats next highest individual placing, a third. High jumper Joe Ortmeier earned fifth in the high jump with a leap of 6'6" for WSC's only other individual honor. Ortmeier also took part in the fifth place 4 x 100-meter relay team.

DAN KENKEL was on the fourth place 4 x 400-meter relay squad and on the fifth place 4 x 100-meter relay team, as was Pat LaPadula. Freshman Tod Heier and Troy Brende rounded out the WSC scoring with their part in the 4 x 400 relay team. Juniors Marian Borgmann and Vicki Quiles earned three first-place medals each to lead the Lady Wildcats. Borgmann won the 200-meter dash while Quiles topped the 90-meter dash field, and both were on the victorious 3 x 100 and sprint medley relay teams. Borgmann was also on the third place 4 x 400-meter relay squad.

Kelley Peterson finished a narrow second in the 110-meter hurdles, and she was on the winning sprint medley and 4 x 100-meter relay teams. Peterson also claimed third in the 90-meter dash.

FRESHMAN LISA PYLE earned numerous medals, including a first place award for her spot on the sprint medley relay team. She was on the third place 4 x 400-meter relay team, and placed fifth in the 400-meter dash.

Lori Schulenberg earned a first place medal as a member of the 4 x 400-meter relay team. Janet Lee claimed second place in the 1500-meter run. Stacy Moore and Connie Starman took third place medals as members of the 4 x 400-meter relay team. Tracy Newberger claimed third in the shot put. Vicki Wamberg tied for fourth in the high jump. Tracy Stoltenberg claimed fifth in the 110-meter hurdles. Melissa Gottschalk placed sixth in the 800-meter run.

Relay team goes to state

It hadn't been an easy season for the Winside girls track team but all the hard work paid off Tuesday as the Wildcats' 1,600-meter relay team qualified for the state meet.

The Winside team is made up of only eight girls and has had trouble scoring many points in large invitationals against Class C opponents. However, competing in Class D districts was a big improvement.

WINSIDE'S 4-by-400-meter relay team won the final event of the day to earn a spot in next week's state track meet. Team members are Patti Langenberg, Tammy Brudigan, Susie Peterson and Missy Jensen. Langenberg and Brudigan built up a surprisingly large lead on the first two legs of the race and Peterson and Jensen took it from there. The Wildcats won the race with a school record time of 4:29.7—six seconds faster than second place Beemer.

Those four will compete in the state meet scheduled Friday and Saturday of Omaha

Burke. Other qualifying times by relay teams in the other two Class D districts held Tuesday are 4:26.9 by Newcastle and 4:33.0 by Gilmer.

The Winside girls team scored 31 points to finish sixth in the 12-team field. The 400-meter relay team placed third in :55.1 and three individual fourth place medals were captured.

Tammy Brudigan ran the 400-meter dash in :67.3 and the 200 dash in :28.8 to finish fourth in both events. Missy Jensen cleared 4-6 to finish fourth in the high jump.

Other scoring was done with three sixth place finishes. Patti Langenberg took sixth in the long jump with a mark of 14-5 1/2 and Susie Peterson doubled in the 100-meter dash (1:39) and 200 (1:29.0).

Four-game sweep

Baseball team prepares for playoffs

A four-game sweep of the Chadron State Eagles and a loss to the University of Nebraska served to prepare the Wayne State Wildcats for this week's NAIA District 11 playoffs.

The Cats, 20-19, were to face Bellevue College in the playoffs on Wednesday at Dana College in Blair. Other schools taking part include host Dana and Kearney State Antelope.

By taking all four games from Chadron, Wayne State earned the top state college seed in the districts. The loss to Nebraska left WSC with no wins in their six games against major college opponents.

WAYNE STATE put on a great show at the Wayne City ballpark last Friday by downing Chadron State by 9-6 and 7-6. Grady Hansen went the distance in the first game to pick up his fifth win in eight decisions. Chadron jumped to a 6-4 lead heading into the bottom of the fifth, but the Wildcats rallied for four runs on the strength of a pair of doubles by Craig Ladwig and Tom Todd. Todd went 3-for-4 in the game and drove in four runs.

Outfielder Ken Murcek added an insurance run in the sixth on a solo home run, while Ladwig blasted a homer also. Things looked bad for the Cats in the nightcap, with Chadron time of :26.3. Ever-improving Fran Gross won the 400-meter dash in :52.3.

Missy Stoltenberg continued to dominate the sprint events in northeast Nebraska by extending her win streaks in the 100 and 200-meter dashes. The junior ran the 100 in :12.5 and the 200 in :26.1.

The 400-meter relay was impressive while winning that event in :52.5. Team members are Jill Zeiss, Mosley, Gross and Stoltenberg. Zeiss took second in the 100-meter low hurdles with a time of :16.1.

In the shot put, Jo Carlson placed second with a loss of 33-8/8 and Kelly Bartholomew was right behind in third place at 33-3/4. Lisa Jacobsen was fourth in the low hurdles at :44.4. Wayne's 1,600-meter relay team of Jody Allen, Zeiss, Jacobsen and Gross was fourth with a time of 4:31.9.

In the high jump, Jody Allen cleared 4-3 to finish sixth.

Next action for the Blue Devils is scheduled today (Thursday) in the Class B-4 district meet at Pawnee Park in Columbus.

Players named all-stars

Three members of the 1982 Wayne State College Wildcat baseball team have been named to the NAIA District 11 all-star squad, according to Don Briggs, district information director.

First-team All-District players are now eligible to compete with players from teams in the Dakotas, Kansas and Oklahoma for spots on the NAIA All-Area III team. Top Area III players are then eligible for NAIA All-America honors.

Standout catcher Mike Meyer is the only repeat selection. Meyer's honor marks the fourth time he has earned All-District honors, a relative rarity.

Outfielder Craig Ladwig, the Cats' top batter in 1982, was also named to the first team, as was ace pitcher Dan Hilgenkamp.

Four Cats earned honorable mention consideration. They include outfielders Ken Murcek and Tom Todd, first baseman Bill Schwartz, and designated hitter Gregg Cruickshank.

Dana catcher Dale DeBuhr was named the District "Player of the Year." DeBuhr leads the district in both runs scored and RBI's, and sports a .462 batting average.

holding a 5-2 lead with two outs in the bottom of the seventh. But pinch hitter Craig Gentzler stepped to the plate and drilled a three-run homer over the right field fence to send the game into extra innings.

Chadron responded by taking a 6-5 lead in the top of the eighth, but with two out in the bottom of the eighth, Ken Murcek rapped a two-run single to give the Cats the victory. Relief pitcher Joe Olsen earned the victory in 2/3 of an inning of action. Starter Randy Frink pitched the first 7 1/3 innings.

THE CATS didn't need to rely on late-inning heroics on Saturday as they tripped the Eagles by 10-0 and 8-1. Pitcher Dan Hilgenkamp went the distance and scattered two hits to pick up the first win, shortened to five innings by the ten-run rout.

Wayne State ripped CSC for seven first-inning runs on their way to the rout. Senior first baseman Bill Schwartz led the Cats offensively with a double, a single, and four RBI's. Chico Mason hit two singles for three RBI's.

Chadron saw their hosts score in all but the second inning enroute to the 8-1 Wildcat victory in the series finale. Pitcher Rocky Thompson upped his mark to 3-1 with the complete-game win.

Tom Todd paced the WSC batters by going 3-for-4 with a pair of RBI's. First baseman Gregg Cruickshank was 2-for-4 including a triple and a homer with two RBI's and three runs scored.

The University of Nebraska belted three home runs, including a first-inning grand slam by designated hitter Mark Mauer, to crush Wayne State 15-3 in Lincoln on Monday. The Huskers tagged four WSC pitchers for 15 hits, while Wayne State managed six singles.

Starting pitcher Rick Guy took the loss, his second to UN-L this year. Wayne State scored a run in the eighth and two in the ninth.

BLACK SPOT OF ROSES

Roses are one of our most popular flowers. This flower requires special care throughout the growing season. Care should include control of Black Spot, a common destructive disease on roses grown in Nebraska.

Black spot is caused by fungus that remains alive throughout the winter in partially decayed plant residue. As spring time temperatures become warmer, the fungus produces spores which will infect this year's foliage.

This disease continues to develop throughout the summer. Symptoms appear as black spots which have a "feathery" type margin. These lesions may vary in size from small dots to spots one half inch in diameter. The infected leaves tend to turn yellow and drop, often causing extensive defoliation. When this occurs, the plants are weakened and become subject to winter injury and other diseases. Defoliated plants will also produce fewer blossoms the following year.

To prevent an outbreak of black spot, begin control in the fall. Remove old leaves and refuse surrounding the plant to help decrease disease potential.

Phallan or Benlate are the preferred fungicides for black spot control because they also control powdery mildew. Daconil 2787, Dyrone, or products containing Maneb, Zineb or Captain also give good control of black spot but not mildew.

TOMATO SPACING

How do you plan to grow tomatoes in the garden? Will the tomatoes grow sprawling on the ground, will you take time to stake and prune your tomatoes or will you grow your tomatoes in cages? When planning tomatoes take these considerations into account.

If you have a number of tomato plants, staking and pruning involves a great deal of time. Tomato fruits may also be subject to sunscald using this training program.

Tomatoes could be allowed to sprawl over a bed of straw. The only disadvantage being the cost of straw and slightly smaller tomatoes.

Many home gardeners prefer to use wire cages made of concrete reinforcing wire to train tomatoes. These are wire hoops, two feet in diameter, 6 feet high with large enough openings to harvest the tomatoes. Anchor these to the ground with a stake. You will not need to prune tomatoes if they are grown in cages.

Cattle ear tags aid fly control

Pesky flies cost cattle producers money. Cattle don't spend much time grazing when they're tossing their heads and running around the pasture to elude horn and face flies.

A producer raising calves to slaughter, weight over the summer could lose as much as $20 a head due to the stress caused by biting flies, according to Don Mahle, livestock specialist at Land O'Lakes, Columbia Heights, MN.

Mahle cites a recent University of Nebraska study which showed loss in production ranging for 15 to 25 pounds per calf over the five-month trial.

GOOD SANITATION, along with one or more commercial fly-control products, goes a long way toward reducing cattle discomfort. Fly sprays for the animals and premises, fly strips in the farm buildings, and oral larvacides all offer good protection, Mahle noted.

Ear tags offer a low cost, easy-to-use, labor-saving way to control flies, especially well-suited for cattle in pasture conditions, Mahle said.

"In the summer when pasturing plays an important part in cattle production, ear tags are a portable fly-killing product," Mahle said. "To be effective, sprays must be used every two to five days. It's not practical for a busy farmer to round up cattle that often."

"Oral larvacide products are very effective at keeping fly populations down, but there's no guarantee every pastured animal will eat the treated feed. It is possible for the few who didn't wreck the fly-control program."

EAR TAGS are attached to the center of the cow's ear, Mahle said. There's minimal discomfort or danger of infection to the animal. Once in place, the tags go to work immediately and are effective for five months.

Mahle said the manufacturers of Echrin ear tags recommend two ear tags for each animal, although one tag gives up to 90% control.

"An animal's ear or nose can touch any part of its body," Mahle said. "Every time the animal turns its head, a little bit of the insecticide on the ear tag rubs off to protect it."

Besides saving the producer, time and money, ear tags also fit well into marketing plans. There is no withdrawal time, but producers must cut off the tags before sending cattle to market.

Cost of Echrin tags is about $1 per animal, Mahle said. The ear tags may also be written on with indelible ink and used in a numbering system.

Spring blossoms

SPRING BLOSSOMS add lots of color to the countryside and fill the air with a sweet scent. Fruit trees across northeast Nebraska are filled with blossoms of all colors.

Leafy spurge is spreading across northern Nebraska

Leafy spurge, a stubborn pasture weed, will cause permanent damage to grazing land unless it is sprayed this spring before it spreads, according to Alex Martin, University of Nebraska extension weeds specialist.

The weed is spreading across northern Nebraska, Martin said in an interview for Farm and Ranch Report, a new television program to be aired May 13 and thereafter throughout the summer on Thursdays at 12:30 and 8 p.m. on Nebraska Educational Television Network.

"If you let the thing go, it will reduce livestock carrying capacity by 10 to 60 percent," he said. "It also reduces the market value of the land."

MARTIN AND OTHER NU specialists will talk about factors that affect profit in agriculture every week on the 30-minute Farm and Ranch Report Show. The program will give tips on how to cut costs, increase production and prepare for changes in weather and marketing.

Farm and Ranch Report is a co-production of the NU Department of Agricultural Communications, Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources and ETV. The series is being made possible through contributions from a number of Nebraska agricultural commodity organizations.

In his segment, Martin said the last two weeks of May offer the best time to spray for leafy spurge with herbicides.

"The best time is in the spring, just before or as the plant begins to flower," he said.

Leafy spurge is easy to identify in the flowering state by bright yellow leaves on the tops of the plants, Martin will identify samples of the pest on the program.

"Grass can't crowd it out. There's no effective way to control it except for herbicides," Martin said.

HOWEVER, THE WEED is stubborn and may require repeated applications of herbicides such as 2,4-D, or 2,4-D plus Banvel, he said. Treatment probably would cost $6 an acre every year for several years.

A more effective herbicide, Tordon, would require fewer applications, but it would cost up to $100 an acre to reduce the leafy spurge to non-problem levels, Martin said. There are some restrictions on Tordon use, he added. The herbicide cannot be used in a high water table area, nor can it be used near trees in shelter belts.

Alfalfa weevils pose another problem that should be dealt with this spring. Cool weather may trigger a cyclic population explosion of an eastern strain of an alfalfa weevil, according to George Mangiltz, University of Nebraska professor of entomology.

"This weevil invaded us eight or 10 years ago," he said in an interview for Farm and Ranch Report. "Now it's on the upswing again. We're on that part of the cycle which is the damaging part, and we will notice it for this season and maybe the next couple," Mangiltz said.

ECONOMIC LOSS will vary, he said. Fields with 40-percent or more infestation should be sprayed the second or third week of May, Mangiltz said. The alfalfa should be 10 to 15 inches tall—no taller than that, he advised.

Farmers need to check their plants for tiny holes chewed in the leaf tips by larvae, Mangiltz will demonstrate on the May 13 Farm and Ranch Report.

"Certainly as much as 50 to 60 percent of the first crop could be lost," he said.

Focusing on another threat to crop production, Panhandle farmers are in danger of losing their wheat crop because of a lack of rainfall.

"It depends entirely on the rain we have from now on," Frank Anderson, extension sales specialist at the NU Panhandle Station, Scottsbluff, said in an interview May 6.

"We haven't gotten enough rain to do any good," he said. "We're going to have an inch a week for two to three weeks."

Anderson will provide an update on the Panhandle wheat situation on Farm and Ranch Report on May 13. The extent of current crop loss has not been determined yet, he said. However, if the dry trend continues, it could wipe out 50 to 75 percent of the wheat crop in the Panhandle, Anderson said.

Alfalfa weevils pose threat

Watch out for alfalfa weevils. That's the warning to Nebraska farmers and ranchers from University of Nebraska extension entomologists, who advise checking alfalfa fields for the next few weeks.

Signs of weevil feeding are beginning to show up in southwestern counties, according to David L. Keith, who said, "we anticipate more problems in the state this year because of the build up in 1981."

THE INSECT specialist advised alfalfa growers to consider spraying if 30-40 percent of the alfalfa plant tips have been fed upon.

Missouri and Kansas are reporting problems with the weevils now. Keith said, and weevil activity is likely to continue in some portions of Nebraska until mid-June.

The alfalfa weevil overwinters in the adult stage, Keith explained, and lays eggs in the stem of the alfalfa plant in the spring. Once in the larva stage, they crawl upward to feed on the growing plant terminal. The weevil larva is green with a white stripe down the back and has a dark brownish head. Adults reach a length of about a quarter of an inch.

Several chemicals will control alfalfa weevils, Keith said. He suggested that farmers contact extension offices around the state for a copy of the alfalfa weevil Neb Guide, 673 30 (revised February 1982). It lists several control alternatives including appropriate chemicals, rate-of-application methods, waiting periods and other restrictions.

Engineer says nitrate doesn't corrode systems

Ammonium nitrate fertilizer does not seriously corrode irrigation systems, as some recent reports have indicated, a University of Nebraska extension irrigation specialist said.

"Newspaper accounts are simply erroneous in saying that nitrate nitrogen in the concentrations irrigators use causes thousands and thousands of dollars of damage to irrigation systems," said agricultural engineer Paul Fischbach.

Studies show that recommended concentrations of 20 to 40 parts per million of ammonium nitrate or urea added to irrigation water will not corrode irrigation systems, Fischbach added.

"SPRINKLER APPLICATION of some of the ammonium nitrate or urea that a crop needs is actually preferred. The incremental feeding of these fertilizer through sprinklers helps control nitrate leaching and promotes the efficient use of nitrogen by the crop," he said.

"Our biggest problem with corrosion of sprinkler irrigation systems is from salts in ground water, not nitrate nitrogen fertilizers," Fischbach added. "One of the worst situations is when iron and sulfates in groundwater combine and are eventually deposited as a crust on the outside of pipes and towers."

Pipe that has been galvanized, coated with plastic or made of Cor-Ten-A steel is recommended for use in systems where water is high in iron and sulfates, Fischbach said.

The NU Cooperative Extension Services does not recommend sprinkler application of nitrogen phosphate or anhydrous ammonia fertilizers, he added. The materials can form a crust on the outside of pipes and plug sprinkler nozzles.

Electrolysis of systems is also a serious problem in area where water has a high content of salts, Fischbach said. In these areas, the extension service recommends using plastic pipe or plastic coated aluminum or steel pipe.

Small grain reports due

Farmers have until June 15 to report the sizes and intended uses of their wheat, oats, barley and rye to the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

Wayne County ASCS official Ray Buils said small grains which are not certified by the deadline will be ineligible for program benefits.

ASCS randomly checks farms to verify that the acreage reports are accurate and also provides aerial photographs for farmers to identify their fields. "The acreage reports will be used to determine compliance with farm programs and will also serve as a basis for the 1983 program base acres for farms," Buils said.

To be eligible for price support loans, target prices and other program benefits, farmers who participate in the 1982 program are required to report the actual planted acreage on a field-by-field basis. "Farmers who did not sign up for the program could benefit also by certifying their planted acres because the 1983 base acres will be based on the certified 1982 acreage," the ASCS official said.

Wayne County farmers who have not certified their small grains are urged to do so by June 15. The local ASCS office is open from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Entomologist urges care in insecticide handling

A few granules of corn root-worm insecticide leaked from a bag into a pickup box and inadvertently mixed with feed hauled on the next load could result in sickness or death for livestock.

This possibility calls for extreme care in handling and hauling insecticides, according to Dr. David L. Keith, University of Nebraska extension entomologist.

He advised farmers to take the following precautions:

- Examine the floors of the truck bed following transport of soil insecticides to detect any granules.

- Sweep it thoroughly just to be sure.
- Use a plastic sheet to line the truck bed before picking up the pesticides, as granules could lodge in floor cracks.

"If any bags are accidentally punctured, be certain to place any spilled granules into the other pesticide bags. Never place spilled granules in any unmarked containers, or in livestock feed supplement bags," Keith warned.

"Bury granules spilled onto the ground at least 18 inches deep, away from water supplies," he concluded.

Stored grain moisture content higher than in previous years

Members of the grain trade have indicated that more grain in storage this year carries a higher moisture content than in previous years.

This is a problem because the quality of corn stored at 15.5 percent moisture — an acceptable market level — can deteriorate as the weather warms, according to Richard Pierce, University of Nebraska extension grain engineer specializing in processing and materials handling.

Row crops in 1981 were slow drying down in the fall and went into storage at higher than usual moisture levels, said Duane Foote, NU extension grain specialist. Also, air used to aerate grain last fall may have been higher in humidity, which didn't allow the grain to dry as thoroughly or as fast, he said.

IT APPEARS that most stored grain came through the winter with no greater problems than usual, Foote said, but he is concerned now because high temperatures can cause grain with a high moisture content to deteriorate rapidly.

Because grain that has deteriorated may be discounted 25 cents or more per bushel from already depressed prices, farmers with stored grain should keep close watch on it, Foote said.

For short-term storage, such as over the winter, Pierce said producers can maintain grain quality by aeration for moisture content below 18 percent.

Maintaining grain at 18 percent moisture content presented no problems up to March 1, he said, however, grain held in storage until May 1 should have been kept a 15 to 15.5 percent moisture content, he said.

GRAIN STORED one year or more, such as that going into the reserve, should be kept at 13 percent moisture, Pierce said. And low quality grain being held for more than one year should be maintained at 12 percent moisture, he said.

Pierce said acceptable levels for soybeans are 13.5 percent moisture content over the winter and 11 percent moisture content for one year or more.

Producers with moisture content above acceptable levels should dry grain down to those levels before summer, Pierce said.

Producers should not confuse natural air drying with aeration systems, which are mainly designed to control temperature, Pierce said. The primary difference between natural air drying and straight aeration is the rate of airflow. Whereas airflow rates of one-tenth to one-fourth cubic foot per minute per bushel are typical for aeration, natural air drying usually produce airflow at about one cubic foot per minute per bushel, he said.

Producers using aeration on grain with a moisture content of 15.5 percent probably can't dry it out to 13 percent moisture in time to prevent spoilage, particularly if they are putting it into the reserve, Pierce said. It would take until fall to reduce moisture content that much by aeration, he explained.

FOOTE SAID that in addition to high moisture and high temperature, producers should keep an eye on insect activity and mold development. If insects are present in significant numbers, producers must consider fumigation, he added. They should level grain on the top of the bin for effective fumigation, he said, and suggested commercial fumigants if large quantities of grain need to be fumigated.

Keeping moisture content down and the temperature below 60 degrees Fahrenheit will help prevent insect and mold problems, Pierce explained. If the grain has deteriorated to the point where it cannot be stored without further loss, the producer should find an immediate outlet for it, he said.

because it's the least costly investment per acre.

It's going to be harder to make farming pay off in the years to come. Harder for many reasons.

So if anything makes sense, it's to maximize the potential of the land you now farm. Irrigating with a center pivot is one way. Irrigating with a Corner System is even better.

A Corner System can irrigate 19 to 45 more acres than a regular pivot, producing extra income on acres already being farmed. That's why nearly one out of every six pivots sold today is a Corner System.

And when it comes to Corner Systems, nobody knows more than Valmont. They're proven reliable with nearly 3,000 systems in operation. That's at least 20 times more than any other brand.

Before you buy any center pivot, see us. We'll tell you how a Valley Corner System can add to your bottom line profits while being the least costly investment per acre.

Paid inspection fee refunds are not forthcoming

By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association
Are people who paid the state for motor vehicle safety inspections, recently struck down by the Nebraska Supreme Court, entitled to refunds?
No, says Harry "Pete" Peterson, state motor vehicles director. He said no refunds of the portion of the inspection fee paid to the state will be forthcoming pending resolution of a court suit in Lancaster County.

The high court's ruling did not render safety inspections invalid. Instead, it disallowed exemptions for certain vehicles that the justices said should be treated equally with other vehicles.
Lawmakers no doubt will review the opinion and consider drafting legislation to meet the court's objections. A number of senators, after all, believe safety inspections are worthwhile and indeed promote safety.
Whether pro-safety inspection types can find the support to enact a new program in a large part will depend on what type of legislation they draft. Another determining factor will be what accident and fatality records reflect during the months when the inspections are not required.

Whether pro-safety inspection types can find the support to enact a new program in a large part will depend on what type of legislation they draft. Another determining factor will be what accident and fatality records reflect during the months when the inspections are not required.
SUPPORTERS of the program believe lives can be saved and injuries avoided by having safety inspections. But there no doubt will be considerable lag time before the fact, if true, shows up in the statistics.

In the meantime, eyes will be on the Lancaster County District Court, which is expected to conduct a spring trial on Mrs. Gessman's suit.
Christian Schools In Court
The Legislature's failure to act on the Christian school controversy during the 1982 session has prompted county attorneys across the state to begin filing court suits against unapproved church schools.
Lancaster County Attorney Mike Heavican, for example, recently filed suit against two unapproved Christian schools in his county. Lack of state-mandated teacher certification is among the key issues.
Perkins County also is seeking an injunction to close a Mennonite school in its boundaries. Again, teacher certification is at issue. A key difference, in this case, however, is that Mennonites do not believe in education beyond the eighth grade.

Everett Silven, pastor of the church, which operates the school, back to jail.
Silven earlier was sentenced to four months in jail for operating an unapproved school in the church basement. He was released after it was determined the school was no longer in session.
But the school reopened in April, and Case SAID the sentence was to coincide with the planned reopening of the school this fall. Although Silven is free on bond, he was ordered to turn himself into the sheriff when his term is scheduled to begin.

Other county attorneys pressing unapproved school cases in various parts of the state have indicated it might be fall before their cases go to trial.
Considering the precedent set in Cass County, pastors of the other church schools might find themselves in jail too if they open their schools in violation of state law.

Tornado safety rules

When a tornado approaches, your immediate action may mean life or death. Seek inside shelter, preferably in a tornado cellar, underground excavation, or a steel-framed or reinforced concrete building of substantial construction. Stay away from windows.

- In cities or towns
- In office Buildings, get to an interior hallway on the lowest floor, or to the designated shelter area.
- In factories, workers should move quickly to the section of the plant offering the greatest protection in accordance with advance plans.
- In shopping centers, get to the designated shelter area—not to your parked car.
- IN HOMES, the basement offers the greatest safety. Seek shelter under sturdy furniture if possible. In homes without basements, take cover in the center part of the house, on the lowest floor, in a small room such as a closet or bathroom, or under sturdy furniture. Keep some windows open, but stay away from them.
- Mobile homes are particularly vulnerable to destructive winds. Proper tie-downs to prevent overturning will minimize damage. A warden should be appointed in mobile home parks to scan the skies and listen to radio and television for warnings.
- There should be a designated community shelter where residents can assemble during a tornado warning. If there is no such shelter, do not stay in a mobile home during a tornado warning. Seek refuge in a sturdy building or a ditch, culvert or ravine.
- In schools, whenever possible, follow advance plans to an interior hallway or the lowest floor. Avoid auditoriums and gymnasiums or other structures with wide, free-span roofs. If a building is not of reinforced construction, go quickly to a nearby reinforced building, or to a ravine or open ditch and lie flat.
- In open country, if there is no time to find a suitable shelter, lie flat in nearest depression, such as a ditch or ravine.

TORNADOS COME and go so quickly there may not be time for a warning. During a tornado watch, be alert for the sudden appearance of violent wind, rain, hail, or funnel-shaped cloud. When in doubt, take cover, for tornadoes are often obscured by rain or dust. Some occur at night.

Remember:
Tornado Watch means tornadoes are expected to develop.
Tornado Warning means a tornado has actually been spotted. Persons close to the storm should take cover immediately. Those farther away should take cover if threatening conditions approach.

Producers disappointed

We're disappointed that Agriculture Secretary Block has chosen not to accept an industry proposal to solve current milk surpluses and instead seems tied to price reduction as the principal remedy.

Since the inception of the milk price support program in 1949, all Secretaries of Agriculture have had discretionary authority to raise support levels. Mr. Block's request for additional authority could only signal an intended price cut, a price cut would serve no constructive purpose. In the short run it would aggravate surplus conditions by forcing many dairy farmers to increase production to meet heavy cash-flow requirements. In the long run, it would drive many dairy families out of business — which would push the cost of milk up for consumers.

We're disappointed that Secretary Block is trying to solve the dairy surplus situation through price rather than addressing the source of the problem. Depression conditions throughout the rest of agriculture have forced farm resources into dairying. Adjusted for inflation, net farm income for 1982 is sinking to its lowest levels since the Depression — the worst years in U.S. agricultural history.

There are only two ways to reduce milk production. You can eliminate cows or you can eliminate dairy farmers. The "Dairy Stabilization Plan" represents a responsible approach to eliminate unneeded milking cows and it would continue to assure consumers of dependable supplies of milk and dairy products at reasonable prices.

Stability is the key objective for producers and consumers. The U.S. milk price support program has provided market stability enabling dairy farmers to make continuous gains in productivity. This, in turn, has kept increases in milk prices consistently below both increases in the general inflation rate and cost of all food items.

The Administration's proposal ignores the need for stability. It does not represent the kind of rational public policy that agriculture and the entire nation must have.

High time for export policy

In all its history the United States has never developed an export policy, and it's high time we set one.
If we do determine such a policy, I'm certain it will emphasize the importance to America of agricultural exports.
That's why obtaining consensus on such a policy is my first goal both as chairman of the agriculture committee of the National Governors Association and as chairman of the subcommittee on agriculture of the President's Export Council.

govornor charley thone

If America would have had an export policy in the 1970's, it seems clear that we would not have had the several self-imposed embargoes on shipping our agricultural products abroad.
We would not have sacrificed long-term energy advantages for short-term and illusory foreign policy benefits. Virtually all now agree that those embargoes were detrimental not only to U.S. farmers but also to the national economic interest.

THE EMBARGOES provided artificial stimulus to America's competitors to increase their production. The self-imposed trading ban gave our competitors an excuse for whispering to foreign buyers that the U.S. is no longer a reliable supplier.
If you examine our international trade balance, you will realize that our foreign trade would have come to a disastrous halt in recent years if our agricultural exports hadn't amounted to more than half of what our bill was for foreign oil.
Nebraska is one of 16 states where more than a third of farm income comes from agricultural exports. With the coincidence of my holding the positions I now do on both the President's Export Council and the National Governors Association I'm hopeful of establishing for the first time a national export policy.

Case for freezing automatic cost-of-living

Richard L. Leshler
U.S. Chamber of Commerce
Sooner or later, if it will dawn on members of Congress that the only workable strategy for reducing projected budget deficits is to seriously attack the spending side of the equation. In anxious and hopeful anticipation of this awakening, I would like to propose an action which would in a single stroke reduce the projected deficit for fiscal 1982 by $20-25 billion.
Congress should freeze for one year the automatic cost-of-living adjustments (COLAs) contained in more than 70 federal programs, including Social Security, veterans pensions and federal civilian and military retirement pensions.

the short-run financial problems of the Social Security system for up to 10 years.
The evidence is overwhelming that a one-shot freeze of the cost of living adjustments in Social Security and other programs is a reasonable measure that would not cause undue suffering among retirees. No one is suggesting that any benefits be cut — only that we skip an increase just once. This would enable us not only to significantly cut the budget and score further victories in our battle against inflation and high interest rates. It would restore financial viability to Social Security and restore some fairness to a situation in which those who still work have been getting far smaller increases than those who no longer work.
At a time when thousands of workers are foregoing additional benefits and pay increases in order to keep their jobs, and when millions of Americans don't have jobs, it is really too much to ask the beneficiaries of federal programs — for this one small sacrifice?

FOR GENERATIONS, Sandhills ranchers have spaced their windmills and watering tanks to reduce the creation of blowout areas that quickly spread if not controlled. Oldtimers have spent lifetimes combing the effects left by the "Kinkaiders" and other assorted developers who insisted on moving in and trying to crop those marginal lands.
Soil conservation specialists estimate that it could cost at least $10,000 to reseed the 135 acres of sandhills land found under the average center pivot and the cost could be as high as $77,000 per 135 acres, with the land out of production even for grazing for at least five years until the grass cover is adequately restored. One may be sure that an individual or corporation who has abandoned such land and original investment and left it to blow, is not likely to spend the money and effort to restore the land to its original use.
That means that to prevent what could turn into a desert of shifting sands, the Soil Conservation Service will be called upon to use already-short conservation funds to perform the restoration. Consider that bills introduced in both the 1981 and 1982 sessions of the Legislature would have required revegetation of the land in cases of abandonment but they never got beyond the Agriculture Committee.

I RECOGNIZE that any proposal to change these programs is by nature the hottest of political potatoes, and subject to extremist demagoguery about throwing the nation's riches out into the streets. So before the politicians beat up on the idea, let's take a dispassionate look at the facts:
—The rapid growth of COLAs has been a major cause of runaway federal spending. From 1978 to 1981, these increases in benefits cost the American taxpayer $69 billion. Over the next two years, they will cost $47 billion.
—Most federal COLAs compensate fully for increases in the Consumer Price Index (CPI), a measurement that has long been recognized as an overstatement of inflation. By contrast, less than five percent of private pensions have automatic COLAs at all. And, the average yield of cost of living wage hikes granted in collective bargaining agreements is about 60 percent of the CPI. This amounts to a great inequity for those who are still working in the private sector.
—In every year since 1970, Social Security benefit increases have gone up faster than wage increases. Since 1978, benefits for

The recent death of the Down's Syndrome baby in Bloomington, Ind., has prompted the Wayne County Association for Retarded Citizens to publicly respond.
One of the founding principles of the ARC has been the valuing of every individual, and it is clear that there was no value placed on the life of "Infant Doe."

Editor's Note: The action referred to in the letter concerns a baby born with Down's Syndrome. The baby needed serious but feasible surgery to enable food to reach its stomach. The parents refused the surgery, and presumably refused to yield custody to any of the couples eager to become the baby's guardians. The parents chose to starve their baby to death. Indiana courts refused to order surgery, and thus sanctified the death.

Center pivots are being abandoned

By M.M. Van Kirk
Nebraska Farm Bureau
One of the most discouraging commentaries on the current status of soil and water conservation in Nebraska was the report by the U.S. Soil Conservation Service that more than 10 percent of the 5,437 center pivots installed in the Sandhills since 1972 have been abandoned.
Figures from the University of Nebraska Conservation and Survey Division report that while the Sandhills area in 1981 accounted for almost 29 percent of the state's total center pivot irrigation systems, that area also accounted for more than 42 percent of the pivots abandoned.

THOSE WHO have witnessed the results of previous attempts at plowing up and farming the light marginal soils of the Sandhills dating back to the early years of this century, have shuddered and shaken their heads as they watched the plows, bulldozers and land levelers tear up sensitive rangeland to convert it to wet corn production. They were especially concerned when large conglomerate developers moved in to buy up huge blocks of rough sandhills land and then conducted "knob-knocking leveling of humus-deficient blow sand" to prepare it for corn production.
This type of soil cannot be irrigated by gravity flow methods so center pivots are a necessity. The water supply from Nebraska's famed underground aquifer is abundant and operators who apply enough fertilizer have been able to obtain high yields. The results have been good enough that they have been defending their practices with, "See it works, so what are you hollering about?"
Unfortunately, there have been some serious side effects such as pollution of underground water sources because of excessive fertilizer use on the highly permeable soils. Irrigators naturally are inclined to minimize such dangers and claim that they are being exaggerated. But the Sandhills are the great sponge which serves the reservoir for much of the state's splendid water resource system. When one sees bulldozers moving onto the wet meadows of the North Loup headwaters area in Cherry County, one can't help having serious doubts about the wisdom of such indiscriminate development.
Damage once inflicted is usually irreversible and the dangers are real enough to arouse questions even when the land so developed and cropped is given careful management. But the thought of 10 percent of that acreage being abandoned and left to blow and drift onto adjacent pastures and meadows is something else.

FOR GENERATIONS, Sandhills ranchers have spaced their windmills and watering tanks to reduce the creation of blowout areas that quickly spread if not controlled. Oldtimers have spent lifetimes combing the effects left by the "Kinkaiders" and other assorted developers who insisted on moving in and trying to crop those marginal lands.
Soil conservation specialists estimate that it could cost at least $10,000 to reseed the 135 acres of sandhills land found under the average center pivot and the cost could be as high as $77,000 per 135 acres, with the land out of production even for grazing for at least five years until the grass cover is adequately restored. One may be sure that an individual or corporation who has abandoned such land and original investment and left it to blow, is not likely to spend the money and effort to restore the land to its original use.
That means that to prevent what could turn into a desert of shifting sands, the Soil Conservation Service will be called upon to use already-short conservation funds to perform the restoration. Consider that bills introduced in both the 1981 and 1982 sessions of the Legislature would have required revegetation of the land in cases of abandonment but they never got beyond the Agriculture Committee.

Unfortunately, there was no outpouring of Sandhills people supporting and demanding legislation to permit them to control and conserve the destiny of their precious soil and water. Those who were heard most frequently were the opponents of such measure — the would-be developers and equipment manufacturers whose major interest lies in continued exploitation of the Sandhills area and who can abandon their mistakes if they find them unprofitable.
