Task force to address needs of school's academically talented

The Wayne-Carroll Board of Education voted last Monday night to appoint a task force to study the needs of academically talented students in the school district.

The vote came following a lengthy discussion during which the need for such a program was questioned.

Voting in favor of the resolution were board members Milton Owens, Dale Stoffenberg, Jim Hummel, Becky Keidel and Neil Sandahl.

VOTING AGAINST the proposal was Wilbur Giese.

"It seems to me that if you gear your educational programs to the vast majority of kids, those who have additional abilities are still going to be able to excel and find their way," Giese said.

"What disturbs me is that we have had so many bright kids that have been so very, very slow in achieving after they leave high school. A lot of it must come from home motivation, and maybe the school can't do it all," he added.

Milton Owens, president of the board of education, said he was in the dark as to how the task force would be chosen and what powers it would have.

BOARD MEMBER Keidel, who drafted the resolution, told the board that the task force would be appointed by the school board and would not have any power other than to advise the board on the needs of the academically talented.

"They would be charged with the responsibility of looking at what we have done, what we are doing, and what we should do," said Keidel.

Keidel added that one of the functions of the task force would be to recommend to the board of education a K-12 program for meeting the needs of academically talented students.

"IS THIS A new problem," questioned Giese.

"No," responded Keidel, "but educators are only beginning to recognize that these students not only need something different academically, they also need counseling so they recognize that they are not freaks, but extremely gifted."

"We're looking at individual students — that's what our school is all about," said Keidel, adding that the school already has several fine programs for students gifted in other areas, such as sports, music and drama.

"We have to accommodate the academically talented kids the way they need to be accommodated," Keidel stressed.

"I THINK THEY (academically talented) can be instructed over what they can emotionally handle," said Giese.

"Yes," said Keidel, "but what about the child who comes home crying every night because he or she is doing the same thing again and again in school."

"Many bright students are not now achieving because they are frustrated and they give up," she added.

"How did the world get along up to now?," Giese questioned.

BOARD MEMBER Stoffenberg asked Keidel if there were any studies showing what happens to kids who graduate from college at the age of 13.

Keidel said she had no such statistics and added she did not feel that members of the proposed task force would even suggest such a thing.

"I would like to commend Becky for a very well put together proposal," said board member Hummel. "It was well thought out and well laid out."

THE RESOLUTION as passed by the board states that the task force would be appointed to address itself to the needs of academically talented students.

The task force would be appointed by the board of education and be comprised of administrators, classroom teachers, guidance personnel, board members, parents, and other interested citizens.

Functions of the task force would be to work within parameters set by the board of education: define "academically talented" for the purposes of a district program; assess the needs of the academically talented; and recommend to the board of education a K-12 program for meeting those needs.

MEMBERS of the task force would expect to serve approximately five years, with two years devoted to assessment and development, and another three years to implementation and evaluation.

The task force would have no administrative or board powers, but would serve in an advisory capacity with the understanding that it would be the intent of the board of education to implement an educationally sound and fiscally responsible K-12 program to meet the needs of the students.

IN OTHER action Monday night, the board passed on a spill vote, 4 to 2, a motion to instruct architects to proceed with finalizing plans for bid letting on the proposed addition to the school's vocational education

Request to vacate alley turned down

The Wayne City Council, in a regular meeting on election night, held first reading on a tree trimming ordinance, passed a resolution to collect delinquent assessments and denied a request that the City of Wayne vacate an alley and deed it to adjoining property owners.

With Councilman Darrell Fuelberth absent, the council discussed the city's responsibility to trim trees which overhang power lines.

ORDINANCE 82-8, if passed, will place possible penalties on property owners who fail to trim trees and eliminate the city from responsibility. However, the city would continue to trim trees which overhang power lines because of a question of liability.

The second reading of the proposed ordinance is scheduled at the next council meeting on Tuesday, May 25. A vote to waive the three-reading requirement failed when Councilman Jim Craun and Gary Vopalsansky voted no. In order to waive the final two readings, three-fourths of the council is required to vote in favor.

A resolution for the city to collect a delinquent street-improvement assessment was passed unanimously.

VIRGIL KARDELL spoke to the council about a resolution to vacate the closed alley between the Diamond Center and the Montgomery Ward-Timberline building. Kardell compared the alley to two other alleys in Wayne which were vacated by the city.

The City Council responded to Kardell's questions by explaining that it may be unwise to vacate the alley because of fire protection purposes and because utility and sewer lines run through the alley.

City Administrator Phil Kloster recommended the alley remain closed and not vacated. A motion was made to pass the resolution but the resolution died for lack of a second on the motion.

In other action, the council decided to make a request that the state of Nebraska put Wayne's proposed Seventh Street-Highway renovation project on its One to Six Year Plan.

Wood art

Students as varied as the projects they create

By Jackie Osten

There is a certain satisfaction that comes from making something yourself.

The members of the Basic Woodworking Class, an adult education course sponsored by Northeast Technical Community College, are all experiencing that satisfaction as they create useful and beautiful pieces of furniture and household items from scratch.

THE CLASS is taught by Wayne native Bill Wilson, an instructor at Wayne's junior and senior high. He was approached by Northeast Tech four years ago with the offer to teach the class, which is held twice a year in the fall and spring.

The variety of projects that are selected is as wide and varied as the people who attend the class, ranging from small jewel boxes and doll cradles to cedar chests and wall cabinets. No experience is necessary, according to Wilson, and people with all levels of ability have come into the class.

Once someone has attended the class, that person tends to come back again and again to progress on to more difficult items or make something he has "always wanted to make." Some use their own plans that they have picked up or seen in magazines, while others come in with ideas and make the plans themselves. They also can learn to repair the lumber before they use it, and how to refinish the piece once it is completed.

There is an initial fee that the members pay when registering, plus they purchase their own wood for the projects. The wood they use is either bought from the school or from lumber companies and shops that specialize in wood for those types of projects. They also use the junior high's woodworking facilities as a class meeting place.

WILSON SAID that there has been a good response from Wayne and the entire area, including towns like Allen and Laurel. The class structure is not strict, in that it opens up the shop and lets people come in and make what they want, and receive individual help. "It helps give them confidence in their personal ability," said Wilson. The size of the class usually ranges from 10 to 15, and the ratio of men to women is always changing.

There is a spirit of cooperation within the class, the members helping each other with tasks such as placing clamps on large cabinets or asking opinions and advice. Ann Barclay, a member of the class, sums it up as "a joint effort," everyone helps everyone.

Ann labels herself "the cradle lady" in reference to her first projects, baby and doll cradles. She has been in the class almost every term since it started, and enjoys coming back to learn and try new ideas. Some of her other projects include a cabinet with glass shelves and currently four roll-top bread boxes made from an old cabinet.

Char Blake, another class member, feels that things "get easier" as you go along. Her past projects include easels, cigarette lighters, wallclocks, and the latest, an inlaid box.

THE INLAID BOX was her own idea and involves fine detail work. The shape of the inlay is traced on the top of the box, and then evenly hollowed out only a sixteenth of

Carroll housing project complete

An eight-unit housing project for senior citizens has been completed in Carroll. The new edition, named Countryside, will provide housing for senior citizens with payment set according to economic status.

There are four units in each of the two buildings which are located in the southeast corner of Carroll. Experimental passive solar energy systems were installed on two of the housing units.

The Carroll Housing Authority planned the project to "keep senior citizens at home with their loved ones," said committee chairman Phil Olauson. Other members of the housing authority are Alice Rohde, Kathy Hankins, Joe Kenny and Etha Fisher.

The project was made possible by a grant from the Aging Agency of Norfolk. Olauson praised Robert Jellicka and the Farmers Home Administration for their "efficient handling of the project."

Architect was Associate Engineers of Storm Lake, Iowa and contractor was Acklie Enterprises of Elk Point, S.D. An open house was held two weeks ago.

Olauson said some senior citizens already are living in the complex and added that others are welcome to apply.

A NEW senior citizens housing project is now open at Carroll.

Wayne Regional Arts Council postpones release of balloons

The Wayne Regional Arts Council postponed its releasing of over 400 balloons in downtown Wayne Thursday night because of adverse weather.

Weather permitting, the Arts Council will release the balloons promoting its annual Chicken Show on Thursday, May 20, at 8:15 p.m.

Balloons can still be purchased for $1.

PERSONS who find a balloon and return it to The Wayne Herald will receive $5 in "chicken bucks." The owner of the balloon returned from the greatest distance will receive $100 in "chicken bucks," which will be redeemable for purchases in any participating Bonus Buck stores in Wayne.

POTENTIAL "owners" of balloons are urged to sign up before Thursday in order to avoid any delay in releasing the balloons.

Balloons may be purchased from Pearl Hansen, Karen Mendenhall, Karen Wiseman, Gail Korn, Mike Carney, Jane O'Leary, or at the Wayne Chamber of Commerce office.

Export trading companies supported

Recently I spoke on the Floor of the House in support of a bill that would allow the formation of export trading companies. All of us are aware of the value of U.S. sales abroad to our national economic health, but I did bring some important facts to the attention of my colleagues.

Overall world trade volume grew only 2.5% in 1981, compared to a 4.5% growth rate in 1980. The value of those exports fell 1% to $2 trillion, the first decline in value since 1958. Given these deteriorating economic conditions, Congress must move aggressively to give American exporters and potential exporters the tools to compete effectively in a tough international market.

congressman doug bereuter

I am a cosponsor of the bill, H.R. 4016, and I cosponsored similar legislation in the 96th Congress. This bill has the strong support of the Administration and the majority of members in both houses of Congress but has been blocked by recalcitrant committee chairmen in the House. Now legislative pressure is being brought to bear on them, if need be we will pull the bill to the House Floor by the petition method.

THE NEBRASKA NATIONAL FOREST is looking for range conservationists, or rangeland ecologists, paleontologists, foresters, entomologists, photographers, librarians and historians. ## ASK A LAWYER

A PUBLIC SERVICE OF THE NEBRASKA STATE BAR ASSOCIATION

Q: During every wedding ceremony the minister asks if there is anyone who has reason why the two should not be joined in marriage. What would happen if someone spoke up? Could the marriage actually be stopped? What could the couple do?

A: The person performing the wedding ceremony frequently asks those in attendance if there is any reason why the couple should not be married. This question appears to be a matter of tradition and is not required by law.

If someone speaks up, it is possible that the person performing the ceremony might refuse to continue. Since that person could not be forced to marry the couple in the first place, there is no legal way in which the person could be forced to continue with the ceremony. The couple would presumably have to go elsewhere to be married.

In some circumstances, of course, there are legitimate reasons why a marriage ceremony should not take place—for example, when one of the parties is already married at the time. However, a marriage conducted under these circumstances would be void or voidable by a court, regardless of whether or not someone objected during the wedding ceremony.

If someone did object, the person performing the ceremony could still choose to go ahead with the wedding, or could refuse to continue. A court would then have to determine at a later date whether or not the marriage was valid.

Q: If a married couple has a bank account, car, home, truck, bonds, treasury bills, etc., held jointly, and each has a will, when one passes away does the will require probate? The will leaves the deceased's property to four people. Does each one get a copy of the will? Or does the joint tenancy hold until the other spouse dies?

A: If joint properties are, in fact, held in joint tenancy, the property described in your letter would not go to the survivor by will but pass "outside the will", by joint tenancy. Accordingly, the will does not have to be probated when the first joint tenant dies. Since the will would not be needed, copies do not have to be sent to anyone.

After property passes to the surviving joint tenant, he or she may dispose of it as desired, regardless of the terms of the will left by the first joint tenant. When the surviving joint tenant subsequently dies, the property would then pass under the terms of his or her will.

Foward-looking plans for seniors

Nebraskans can serve the special needs of senior citizens if we use our resources wisely, administer programs prudently and work in a spirit of cooperation.

That's what I told the 1982 Governor's Conference on Aging in Kearney May 4. This is the fourth year I've spoken to such a conference, and I had a special reason to speak with pride at this year's session.

The 1982 legislature passed the Nebraska Community Aging Services Act, which I had sought. The new law will be helpful in state efforts to aid elderly citizens in living independently as long as possible.

State funding for this program was one of only a handful of new revenue initiatives authorized for the fiscal year beginning July 1. Total state spending for the new year will be less than was appropriated last May for the current year, so I really look the highest priority to provide start up money for this new effort.

The same new law also brought the aging program under the direct control of the governor. That will make certain that the aging program is coordinated better with the efforts of other departments under the governor's jurisdiction.

governor charley thone

Already, I've set up procedures for officials of the aging agency to meet regularly with representatives of other human service agencies. John Knight, who serves as my coordinator of human services, will make certain that all of the agencies are going in the same direction and are not duplicating services.

All the conference, I mentioned that state efforts to encourage industrial development in Nebraska can have a great influence on the independence of the elderly. If sons and daughters find it necessary to move out of Nebraska in order to find good-paying jobs, then it will be more difficult for their parents to maintain their independence when they become elderly.

That's one reason I'm making such a concentrated effort to provide plenty of attractive jobs in all the hometowns of Nebraska. I want sons and daughters to be on hand to provide those extra little helps that allow elderly parents to remain in their own homes longer.

As the only governor who has a delegate to the 1981 White House Conference on Aging and because I was also on the advisory council that organized that conference, I have some idea of programs for the aging in other states. I believe that in Nebraska we can have one of the best programs for the elderly in the nation. One of the reasons why we can is because we will do more to help each other voluntarily—and will be less likely to depend solely on government—then citizens of most states.

It's not easy

If you pick up almost any newspaper today, you will see, probably more than once, the words "budget cuts." Many of us have heard those words so often that we tend to tune them out. It's not so easy, however, to tune out something that affects you and your friends.

The Reagan Administration has made many funding cuts in the past few months and is constantly proposing more. Most of these cuts will affect only the poor population. One program which I am personally concerned about is the Legal Services Corporation.

The Legal Services Corporation provides free legal services to low income individuals in civil matters. Legal Services, however, has lost one quarter of its budget for this fiscal year. Though it still exists, many offices have been closed, many employees have been laid off, and thousands of needy clients have been turned away.

In June, 1978, the Legal Aid Society of Omaha opened a branch office in Wayne. The office covered a nine county service area and provided free legal services to financially eligible clients. In December, 1981, the Wayne office was closed because of funding cuts. The office was moved to Norfolk and consolidated with a Columbus, Nebraska office which was also closed because of funding cuts. The Columbus office had been serving seven counties.

The new Norfolk office provides services to all 16 counties formerly covered by the two offices, in addition to several other counties under a separate contract from the Northeast Nebraska Area Agency on Aging. Because of funding cuts, however, the staff of the Norfolk office is limited to handling only cases of an emergency nature. As a result, many people who would have been accepted for free legal services last year are now left to seek other alternatives.

What are the alternatives? At present, there are practically none. Most people seek help from private attorneys before coming to Legal Aid. There are private attorneys willing to handle cases for a reduced fee or, depending on the circumstances, for no fee. Unfortunately, with the poor population in Nebraska averaging around 187.611, it is impossible for the private bar to keep up with the demand and still stay in business. When someone is rejected by both the private bar and Legal Aid, there is simply nowhere else they can turn.

Many poor people simply go unrepresented in matters that can affect the rest of their lives. What about court appointed attorneys? The court is under no obligation to appoint an attorney for someone unless the person faces a possible jail sentence.

If the Legal Services Corporation is dismantled, and that is the current plan of the Reagan Administration, thousands of poor people in this state alone will be denied access to the legal system. Justice belongs to everyone; not just to those who can afford to buy it.

Fixing the economy

The United States is presently facing severe economic problems of a large magnitude. As the crisis has deepened, various attempts have been made to put the economy back on track. But none of them have worked. If anything, the situation has gotten worse.

There's a reason why these attempted solutions haven't worked: they all miss the point. We are not living on earned income but on borrowed money. This fact, stark and simple as it is, is the true illness afflicting the economy at its very heart.

SO FIXING the economy isn't a matter of putting on more band-aids. It's a matter of repairing what's really wrong. To understand that and to see what must be done, we have to take a look at the basic facts.

In many ways, our economy is like a tree. The roots take minerals and water from the soil and make a life-giving sap that flows through all parts of the tree and supports its growth. The minerals and water are raw materials or new wealth. The roots are the producers—the farmers, ranchers, miners, lumbermen, oilmen and fishermen—who make them available to the tree, who provide the economy with its lifeblood. No tree can live if its sap is separated from its roots; it withers and dies. The same thing holds true of the economy: cut off the roots—the raw material producers—and the tree—the rest of the economy—dies.

Unfortunately, most of us have lost sight of this basic fact of economic life, and so have the policymakers. They ignore the importance of new wealth, focusing mistakenly on other areas. And that's why their solutions don't work; none of their ideas really cut to the heart of our problems.

There is a simple and precise relationship between farm income and national income. It can be proven that whenever farm income equals one-seventh of national income, times are good. And whenever farm income falls below one-seventh, economic downturn, even full-scale depression, soon follows. With agricultural products comprising 70% of the raw material or new wealth production, the income of the family farm and ranch is therefore the key to our economic well-being.

Chart Prepared by AAA

Regular exercise is an important key to fitness and weight control. When food calories equal calories expended through activity, weight should remain about the same. Sports buffs are reminded by the AAA Cornhusker Motor Club to shape up before beginning strenuous summer activities. It is important to start with moderate activities, such as walking or bicycling, then gradually build to vigorous ones. Before beginning any exercise program, the guidance of a physician or other health professional should be sought, especially by persons with medical problems or those over age 35. Calorie stated should be adjusted and will vary with the vigor of activity and a person's weight.

Wayne girls edge Schuyler for district track title

By Randy Hascall
The rain drops that ran down the face of Mavis Dalton Thursday night couldn't hide her proud smile and look of satisfaction. Dalton's track team put together a strong performance to surprise its foes by winning the Class B-4 district track meet at Pawnee Park in Columbus. Wayne edged Schuyler 68 to 66 for the first place trophy.

"I was just stunned," coach Dalton said one day after the meet. "The girls bettered all of their times. Last year we won our meets by lots of points. This year, we were just hoping for as many individual qualifiers as possible."

THE BLUE DEVILS qualified in eight events Thursday and were expected to add a ninth qualifier. In Class B, the top three individuals qualify for state and the next six fastest times across the state also qualify. Fran Gross ran the 400-meter dash in :60.4 to finish fourth in the district meet. With results of two districts not complete, her time appeared likely to qualify her for the state tourney.

Wayne's fearless foursome of Missy Stollenberg, Jill Zeiss, Jill Mosley and Fran Gross continued its season-long success. However, it was Wayne's two shot putters who sparked the team to the district championship.

Kelly Bartholomaus tossed the shot 36.4 1/2 to place second and Jo Carlson finished third with a mark of 35.9 1/4. Dalton said those two girls were discouraged prior to districts because several individuals had longer throws this spring. "Their showing was a pleasant surprise," said Dalton.

STOLLENBERG, UNBEATEN in the sprints this season, won the 100-meter dash in :12.7 and led a one-two Wayne finish in the 200. She ran the 200 in :26.1 and teammate Mosley placed second in :26.4. Mosley also qualified in the long jump by placing third at 14-5 1/4.

Those two sprinters teamed up with Zeiss and Gross to win the 400-meter relay in :50.9. Zeiss led the 100-meter hurdles race until the final 15 meters and finished third with a time of 15.8.

Team standings-qualifiers: Wayne 68 8 2, Schuyler 66 6 3, Albion 61 7 4, O'Neill 43 4 5, West Point 37 3 6, Ord 37 2 7, North Bend 36 2 8, Col. Scotus 31 3 9, Col. Lakeview 31 2 10, Hartington CC 23 2, Ainsworth 7 0.

Kubik's school record, Brink's medal pace Wayne

For the second consecutive week, Wayne's Mark Kubik set a school record in the pole vault.

However, it was Eric Brink's sixth place finish in the 300-meter intermediate hurdles that accounted for the Blue Devils' only point in Thursday's B-4 District Track Meet at Columbus.

Kubik, who last week cleared 12 feet, this time cleared 12-1. However, the top six pole vaulters all cleared at least 12-6, leaving Kubik out in the cold in the race for a medal.

Brink hit one hurdle hard and ran the 300 in :41.7. Wayne came close to placing in other events but failed to score any more points. Kevin Koenig reached the finals of the shot put but had to settle for seventh place.

Standings-qualifiers: 1. Col. Scotus 117 1/2-10, 2. Albion 67-6, 3. Schuyler 62 1/2-7, 4. West Point 58 1/2-5, 5. Ord 52-4, 6. Col. Lakeview 42-3, 7. Ainsworth 41-4, 8. O'Neill 40 1/2-5, 9. North Bend 36 1/2, 10. Hartington CC 9-1, 11. Wayne 1-0.

Area teams qualify in five events

Wakefield and Allen each qualified individuals in two events and placed fourth and fifth respectively in the boys division of the Class C-3 district track meet held Thursday at Wayne. Laurel qualified one individual and finished 10th out of 14 teams. Marty Mahler of Allen led area athletes in qualifying by winning the 1,600-meter run and 3,200-meter run. His winning times were 4:50.2 and 10:16.9.

SCOTT HAAHR of Laurel was first in the discus with a throw of 157.4. Wakefield's two qualifiers are Jerry Roberts in the 100-meter dash (1:11.4) and Rod Nixon in the 200 (2:23.1).

Roberts also appears to qualify in the 400. The top two individuals in each district and the next six fastest times qualify for state. Unofficially, Roberts, who set a school record of :50.7, had the sixth fastest time of the non-qualifiers.

Discus—1. Scott Haahr, Laurel, 157.4. 2. Dave Brown, Lyons, 153.5.

Jeanne Warner qualified in the discus.

In addition to Haahr's performance in the discus, Laurel scored points in five other events. Michael Jones placed third in the 1,600-meter run and sixth in the 3,200. The relay team of Scott Curry, Shane Heydon, Dennis Hart and Don Luhr was fifth in the 4-by-400 relay. Sixth place finishes were captured by the 4-by-100 team of Heydon, Tod Hellman, Jones and Hart and the 4-by-800 team of Lathan Asbra, Heydon, Luhr and Curry.

Nixon and Dirk Carlson also placed third and fourth respectively in the 100-meter dash although neither runner qualified. Both had times of :11.4.

Carlson ran a :52.8 in the 400 to finish sixth and the Trojans' 1,600-meter relay team placed second with a time of 3:37.2. Team members are Nixon, Roberts, Carlson and Gary Tullberg. The 400 relay team was disqualified for passing out of its lane.

ALTHOUGH MAHLER was Allen's only qualifier, the Eagles also placed in three other events. Jeff Chase was fifth in the 300-meter intermediate hurdles. Vinif Kwankin placed third in the triple jump—1/2 inch short of the qualifying mark. Allen's 400-meter relay team of Robb Linafelter, Deven Nice, Dan Nice and Robbie Ridgeway tied for third.

State Qualifiers

Pole Vault—1. Bill Lowe, Ponca, 11-4. 2. Jeff Samuelson, Winnebago, 11-4.

Two Allen girls make it to state

Allen was the only team in The Wayne Herald coverage area able to qualify anyone for next week's state track at Thursday's Class C-3 district.

Competing on the Wayne State track, the Eagles scored 38 points and had two qualifiers. Jeanne Warner threw the discus 103-11 to place second and Michelle Harder ran the 400-meter dash in :52.5 to finish second.

Wakefield and Laurel were both shutout in the bid for state qualifiers.

LAUREL SCORED 15 points in the competition. The 3,200-meter relay team of Cyndi Jonas, LaRae Nelson, Dee Maxon and Patsy Thompson had a third place time of 10:39.6.

Carla Stage won two medals. She tossed the shot 33-6 for fourth place and threw the discus 92-0. The 1,600-meter team of Jonas, Nelson, Maxon and Lori Lindsay was fifth. Kim Sherry placed sixth in the long jump with a leap of 14-6.

Wakefield's four points were scored by Karla Stelling who placed fourth in the 3,200-meter run. Brenda Jones just failed to score with a seventh place finish in the discus.

Laurel downs Bancroft; other games postponed

Led by the pitching of Brian Marquardt, the Laurel Bears eliminated Bancroft from district baseball play with a 7-1 win Tuesday at Wakefield.

Marquardt fired a no-hitter and the Bears pounded eight hits to win the tournament's preliminary game. Bancroft nearly broke up the no-hitter when Marty Roth reached second base on a hard hit ball. An error was ruled on the play.

The Bears scored two runs in the fifth inning and two more in the fifth. Bancroft's only run came in the first inning.

Laurel was scheduled to meet Wakefield in first round action and Wayne was scheduled to meet Omaha South. However, both of those games were postponed until today (Monday) because of rain. The Wayne-South game is scheduled at 2 p.m. and the Laurel-Wakefield game will follow at approximately 4 p.m.

The state tournament will open Monday, May 24 at Reiston's Oval Smith Field. Semifinals are planned on Tuesday, May 25 with the championship game scheduled at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, May 26.

State qualifiers will be seeded according to winning percentages.

More Valley Corner Systems every year,

it's the least costly investment per acre.

It's going to be harder to make farming pay off in the years to come. Harder for many reasons. So if anything makes sense, it's to maximize the potential of the land you now farm. Irrigating with a center pivot is one way. Irrigating with a Corner System is even better.

A Corner System can irrigate 19 to 45 more acres than a regular pivot, producing extra income on acres already being farmed. That's why nearly one out of every six pivots sold today is a Corner System.

And when it comes to Corner Systems, nobody knows more than Valmont. They're proven, reliable with nearly 3,000 systems in operation. That's at least 20 times more than any other brand.

Before you buy any center pivot, see us. We'll tell you how a Valley Corner System can add to your bottom line profits while being the least costly investment per acre.

facilities... Bids would include a basic plan which calls for doors on the south side of the school with entrance for four vehicles. Bids also would include an alternate plan which would be nine feet longer and allow room for eight vehicles.

VOTING AGAINST instructing architects to proceed with the plans were Giese and Stoltenberg. "I'm not saying this program is totally without merit," said Giese. "But I question how worthy it is." "With the economy the way it is, I question if it isn't foolhardy to add any other financial burdens than are absolutely necessary."

Stoltenberg asked Superintendent Francis Haun if it had ever been discussed how much money would be spent on the proposed addition. Haun said he had recommended that the board not spend over $90,000, adding that there presently is $87,000 in the district's sinking fund.

BOARD MEMBERS attending Monday night's meeting heard a report by Haun on a lawsuit filed in Ninth District Court, Wayne County, by several taxpayers seeking tax levy relief from the county's Board of Equalization.

The suit, initiated in dozens of counties across the state through the efforts of the Nebraska School Improvement Association, seeks a ceiling, or relief, regarding non-resident high school tuition levies. Haun said the school is not able to receive tuition monies collected after January of 1982. "We don't know when the case is going to go to court," said Haun. "The money is being collected but not dispersed."

THE BOARD also received information on a school board workshop to be held June 24 at Wayne State College. Superintendent Haun and one board member, to be named at next month's board meeting, have been asked to lead the afternoon session.

BOARD MEMBERS were invited to attend graduation exercises on May 19 for TMR (Trainable mentally retarded) students Rick Kenny and Tami Hartmann. They will receive their diplomas at 8 p.m. in the high school lecture hall. Mrs. Gertrude Vahkamp is the TMR instructor.

"These are very impressive ceremonies," Haun told board members. "I cannot describe the happiness in these kids' eyes."

HAUN ALSO announced to the board the retirements of Bessie Nettleton, housekeeper at Carroll Elementary School, and Irene Blecke, housekeeper at Wayne elementary school.

Haun said Norma Thies has been hired to replace Mrs. Blecke. Eighteen persons applied for the position.

IN OTHER action, board members denied a request by the American Diabetes Association to rent the high school lecture hall. The board approved a contract with Educational Service Unit One for special education services.

Teacher assignments for the 1982-83 school year include moving Lisa Streff to kindergarten from second grade, Jacquelyn Day to second grade from Title I, and Roberta Mitchell to Title I. Dale Hochstein will replace Becky Kelley as head girls basketball coach, with an assistant to be named. Girls track coach will be Darrel Heler, who replaces Mavis Dalton.

Haun reported to the board that the school can expect to employ a half time aide next fall for a handicapped youngster who will be entering kindergarten. BOARD MEMBERS approved a request by Mike Mallette that the salary of drivers education teachers be increased from $58 a pupil to $66 a pupil.

Ron Carnes and Mallette are co-teachers of the drivers education program. Before adjourning Haun asked the board to express its appreciation to Mary Ann DeNaeyer, middle school math teacher, for assisting faculty members in a computer literacy workshop.

School board presentation

Kindergarten teacher receives Distinguished Service Award

Viola Hartman, Wayne kindergarten teacher, was presented with a Distinguished Service Award from the Wayne Board of Education during its regular monthly meeting May 10. Board president Milton Owens made the presentation, which was accompanied by a letter of commendation from the board for the high type of professional service Mrs. Hartman has provided children of the Wayne schools for the past 18 years. Mrs. Hartman will retire at the end of this school year.

Viola Hartman Photography: LaVon Anderson

IN THE LETTER from the board of education, Mrs. Hartman was commended for the highest type of professional service she gave for the young people of Nebraska.

"You set the best kind of personal example, demanded that children give of their best and were always willing to give of yourself over and above the normal call of duty," said Owens on behalf of the board of education.

"We have the highest respect for you and for those who pattern their professional work after the example you have set."

IN PRESENTING Mrs. Hartmann with the Distinguished Service to Education Pin, President Owens said the pin was symbolic of the loyal and precious service the longtime kindergarten teacher gave to young people during her distinguished career.

"You are most deserving of this honor and it gives us sincere pleasure to award it to you," said Owens.

MRS. HARTMAN began her teaching career in McCook County, S. D. in 1934 when she was 19 years of age.

She continued working in various schools in South Dakota until moving to Wayne in 1961, where she was employed by Wayne State College as a campus school teacher.

When the school at the college merged with the Wayne Public Schools in 1964, Mrs. Hartman transferred to the Wayne school district and continued her work as a kindergarten and learning disability teacher.

MRS. HARTMAN recalls during her teaching days in South Dakota when the eighth grade boys came to school with the measurements of the corn field. "The teacher was to tell his dad how many bushels of seed corn he would need to plant," she says.

The nearly square building where she taught was located near the road "with the outhouses in the extreme far corners of the yard."

There were no lights or phone if a youngster became ill — which wasn't often — a bed was made on the seats of the double desk with coal.

"The older ones helped him get home when school was dismissed at 4," she recalls.

"WHEN THE BELL rang," recalls Mrs. Hartman, "everyone went inside and had a drink from the dipper in the can of water the teacher brought each morning."

"During the winter, meals and recesses were spent with our backs toward the pot bellied stove."

"After getting warmed, youngsters played hangman or tick tack toe on the chalkboard."

"If there was time for music on a Friday afternoon, the smallest boy would get on the floor to push the pedals of the old fashioned organ."

THE LONGTIME kindergarten teacher also recalls during snowstorms when the teacher rode home with the last parent that came for his family — sometimes staying with the family for a couple days. On the last day of school, when the entire district came for a picnic, it was customary for the teacher to furnish ice cream for the group, even though she was paid only $50 a month.

AFTER TWO years of teaching, Viola had saved enough money to go to Aberdeen to work for a two year certificate.

Four more years of teaching at $60 a month, and she married Stan Hartman. The couple resided in Marlon, S. D.

In 1957, when the fifth and sixth grade teacher resigned, Mrs. Hartman took over her duties until moving to Wayne in 1961.

THAT FALL she enrolled in classes at Wayne State College, with Dr. Skov as her advisor.

"But he kept adding one course then another to the required list," says Viola. "One day, very disgusted, Viola told Dr. Skov she would be 50 years old before getting a degree, adding "who would hire a 50 year old teacher?"

"You get the degree, I'll see that you get a teaching position," replied Skov.

"He did it," says Viola, who began teaching the campus school kindergarten.

"THAT WAS like a dream come true," says Viola.

"It was something I didn't believe would ever become a reality—but there it was—a band box, slippery slide, bicycles, wheelbarrow, and most importantly, the special five-year-olds."

"MY WORK at West Elementary has put the frosting on the cake," says Viola. "How could one person be so fortunate."

KENNETH EDMONDS DOUBLE checks wood measurements for his grandfather clock.

Woodworking

an inch. The inlay, usually ordered from a company that specializes in woodworking items, is placed in the hollowed-out space. The protective layer that covers the surface of the inlay must then be carefully scraped away with a small chisel to uncover the design. It is then lightly sanded to even the surfaces and a finish is applied.

Actually, the box is just a warm-up, because Char plans to make a set of simple furniture for her basement, which will tentatively include an inlay table.

Jill Perry, a long time class member, has produced a wide variety of wood items, the latest being a hanging wall cabinet with glass doors. In past classes, she has made game tables (including one of solid ash), baby cradles and bread boxes. She eventually plans to build an ash cabinet to match the table.

Perhaps the most interesting of all the projects being made in the class this term is the grandfather clock being built by Rev. Kenneth Edmonds. He is building the clock with the help of Bill Wilson, without any written plans or directions, entirely from scratch.

EDMONDS HAS DONE some woodworking before around his home, but this is the first time that he has taken a class on the subject.

clocks and wanted to try making one. There was no set pattern for the clock, so Wilson did much of the drawing and diagraming. According to Edmonds, "the main problem was figuring out what to do...with just a picture and the drawing. Getting started was the hardest part, especially with the base of the clock. You must figure out where all the pieces and parts go," he said. It turned out to be a matter of figuring out what to do and then doing it, he said.

"With kits, the pieces are all pre-cut, ready to put together...it's simple." Compared to the kits that are available, the grandfather clock "is maddening at times."

THE FINISHED CLOCK will stand seven feet tall, with a width of approximately two feet. While Edmonds was not sure of the finished weight, he estimated that it will weigh around 150 pounds, including the works which are specially ordered "it just keeps getting heavier all the time."

A unique feature of the clock will be the glass over the face and the pendulum. Edmonds said the glass, which is being specially made, will be beveled glass, on which the corners and edges will be cut on the bevel or slant instead of having the usually flat edge. It will appear neater on the finished clock and fit better. It is also a finer and heavier glass than normal.

The clock is being built from walnut, which Edmonds says is unusual because more are built from oak. Walnut was chosen because it is a very fine wood, the one that he and his wife wanted to add to their home.

In some areas, such as the back of the clock, the wood strips are placed together and held in clamps while glued with a special wood adhesive. They are then sanded until all of the edges and joints are smooth. This gives the appearance that the back is all a solid board.

Edmonds doesn't plan to do much staining to the clock once it is finished, possibly just a little to blend the areas of the wood that aren't quite matched, followed by a hand rubbed tung oil finish.

He began working on the clock in the fall of last year and feels that it is "going faster now than I know what is going on." The entire project usually takes up to a year to finish.

This is last week for Rent-A-Kid ads

Hey kids! Looking for a summer job but not having any luck? Don't fret. Clip the coupon from The Wayne Herald's Rent-A-Kid ad in today's paper, fill in out and drop it by The Wayne Herald office by Friday, May 21. If won't cost you a cent. We'll publish your "job wanted" ad in The Wayne Herald during the week of May 24-31 at absolutely no charge. The ad isn't guaranteed to get you a job but it will increase your chances and it sure can't hurt. So, take five minutes to find today's Rent-A-Kid ad and fill it out. This is the last week for the offer. So take advantage.
