Teacher challenges Winside grads

"Go forth and make the world a better place in which to live."
That was the message teacher and coach Jim Halferty delivered to Winside's graduating seniors Sunday afternoon.

"Success is knowing who and what you are, and where you're at. It's happiness," said Halferty.

HALFERTY TOLD the graduates they are given two gifts early in life — roots and wings.

"Your roots are the foundation to work from," said Halferty, "and wings make you free to take chances."

Halferty told the gowned graduates the transition from roots to wings is loaded with conflicts.

"You have three teachers in life — home, community and peer group," said Halferty, adding that graduation is the beginning of the transition from childhood to adulthood.

"Remember who you are," he concluded.

THE 22 graduating seniors were led into the gymnasium by honor escorts Judy Bauermeister and Janie Koch.

After a brief invocation by the Rev. John Hafemann, the senior girls sang "You Must Fly."

Responsive reading, led by Pastor Hafemann, was followed with honor awards presented by Principal Ron Leapey, and scholarship awards presented by Counselor Lee Johnson.

RECEIVING engraved desk pens were students in the top 10 percent of the class. Darla Janke, Lisa Jensen and Julie Smith.

Students receiving scholarships were Diann Suehl, Board of Governors Scholarship to Northeast Technical Community College and Feischman Yeast Scholarship; Duane Suehl, alternate for the Board of Governors Scholarship to Northeast Technical Community College;

Darla Janke, James and Ruth Troutman Memorial Scholarship and Fleischman Yeast Scholarship; Lisa Jensen, Winside State Bank Scholarship; Jim Krájecek, Football Athletic Scholarship to Peru State College; and Mark Koch, Wrestling Athletic Scholarship to Kearney State College.

MEMBERS OF the Class of '82 who received their diplomas from Dean Janke, President of the Board of Education, were:

Barry Bowers, Maria Diaz, Rochelle Doffin, Roxanne Doffin, Kim Frederick, Kent Glassmeyer, Doug Jaeger, Joni Jaeger, Darla Janke, Lisa Jensen, Mark Koch; Jim Krájecek, Kelly Leighton, Julie Smith, Joel Spittgerber, Diann Suehl, Duane Suehl, Angela Thies, Cheryl Tillema, Val Walker, Dale Westerhaus and Tom Willis.

SENIOR GIRLS closed the ceremony with "Time is My Friend."

After a benediction by Pastor Hafemann, seniors marched out of the gymnasium for an afternoon of receptions as the Winside School Band played the recession.

Recount is planned for mayoral race

Although the votes were counted more than a week ago, results of Wayne's primary mayoral election won't become official for at least another week.

Because the race between two of the candidates was so close, a recount has been ordered. Wayne County Clerk Ogretta Morris said. Incumbent Wayne Marsh easily won the primary election but Gary Vopalensky narrowly edged Keith Mosley for the second position in November's general election.

After the Wayne County Canvassing Board tallied all absentee and disabled votes on Thursday, Vopalensky's margin of victory over Mosley was nine votes.

NEBRASKA STATE law calls for a mandatory recount when the difference in votes is less than two percent of the total number of votes. Nine votes is approximately seven-tenths of one percent of the total vote (1,229). Vopalensky needed to defeat Mosley by 25 votes to avoid a recount.

Marsh, who successfully staged a write-in campaign four years ago, collected more than double the votes of his nearest rival in last Tuesday's primary election.

By law, a recount must be made within the fifth Wednesday following the election. Morris said she hopes the recount will be completed by the end of next week.

The Wayne County Canvassing Board must do the recounting. Geraldine Marks and Linda Janke will form the canvassing board and Clerk Morris will work with the two in a supervisory capacity. Recounting will consist of the four wards of Wayne with the top two vote-getters advancing to November's general election.

The last recount in Wayne County involved the state legislature race between Senator Marie Von-Minden and Gerald Conway in 1980.

Allen residents selected to receive Ak-Sar-Ben Good Neighbor Award

Two residents of Allen have been selected by the Knights of Ak-Sar-Ben to receive its annual Good Neighbor Awards.

Keith Hill and Pearl Snyder are among 164 individuals and 12 groups chosen to receive the honor.

The program, in its 39th year, recognizes the neighborly acts and deeds of individuals and groups "performed unselfishly without personal gain or reward during 1981."

A spokesman for Ak-Sar-Ben said nominations were made by friends and neighbors through Ak-Sar-Ben Ambassadors.

The recipients will receive a framed citation and a gold lapel pin.

HILL IS caretaker of the Allen Cemetery. His job includes trimming, cleaning and repair work.

He also places flags and poppy crosses each Memorial Day on veterans' graves, afterward removing and storing them.

Hill also was cited for his assistance to the elderly of the community, including delivering groceries and mail.

MRS. SNYDER spends many volunteer hours with the community's Brownies and Cub Scouts.

She also teaches Sunday school and is a member of the Emergency Medical Ambulance and Rescue Squad. She is a CPR instructor and conducts many classes in the area.

She also provides assistance to the Senior Citizens Center, is active in Extension Club work, and helped organize a "DAY" to raise funds to defray expenses for a young quadriplegic in the community.

Iowa native is named as new editor at The Herald

Paul Farmer, a graduate of the University of Iowa's School of Journalism, has recently been hired as managing editor of the Wayne Herald newspaper. The announcement of the hiring was made by Jim Marsh, business manager of the newspaper.

Farmer, a native of Mason City, Iowa, entered college at Miami-Dade Community College, Miami, Fla. Following a transfer he completed his undergraduate work at the University of Iowa.

Specializing in writing, communications and business, Farmer gained wide experience in his fields while in college.

For several years he had been employed as a managing editor for an Eastern Iowa newspaper corporation and has recently completed post-graduate course work in the fields of business and computer science.

"I've met many people in the short time I've been in Wayne," Farmer said, "and feel it is a very vibrant area. Along with an excellent newspaper staff I look forward to serving the information needs of the area and meeting many more people."

Farmer, who is single, added "I was very impressed with the community the first afternoon I was over and the few days I have lived in the community has reinforced my opinion."

"I've always been a writer," he said, "and through the years have developed a strong interest in business, both locally and the business of agriculture."

Farmer who has two cats said he plans to take an active role in the community. "A great deal of my time will be spent with a pencil and paper or camera, taking notes and photos but in time I hope to become involved in several things that the area offers that I have interest in."

When not working Farmer said he enjoys racketball, tennis, guitar playing and several outdoor sports.

"All in all," he said, "I'm very pleased to be in the community and hope the newspaper will continue to receive the active support of the community as it has in the past."

WAYNE FIREMEN battled a blaze four hours started by a lightning bolt, gutted Dale Gutshall's Wednesday morning. The fire, believed to have been house.

Fire destroys Wayne home

A fierce thunderstorm took its toll on the Wayne community early Wednesday morning as a fire gutted Dale and Wilma Gutshall's house at 510 Crescent Drive. Dale and Wilma both escaped injury.

Cause of the fire was not official but it was believed to be lightning. There were no lightning rods on the house.

Wayne firemen braved heavy rain and lightning to get the fire under control. The fire was reported at approximately 4:40 a.m. Wednesday and was under control by 9 a.m. Smoke smothered the northwest corner of Wayne as rain pelted the blaze during those four hours.

WAYNE FIRE CHIEF could not be reached Wednesday morning but fireman Denny Spangler said the fire was believed to have started in the basement.

Spangler said the weather was miserable but added that the heavy rain didn't hamper the fire department much. Four tankers and two support trucks responded to the call.

Flames swept through the home and it appeared the house was totally ruined. Spangler said smoke did damage the interior of a nearby house and may have done interior damage to some homes.

Pastor Carter said the story is not without humor and suspense.

Local churches as well as the community are invited to attend. There will be no charge, however a free-will offering will be taken to defray expenses.

Cook-off

Chicken Show stirring up national omelet champ

The first National Omelet Champion will be chosen this summer in Wayne by the Nebraska Egg Council and the American Egg Board.

The cook-off will be held July 10 in conjunction with the 1982 Chicken Show sponsored by the Wayne Regional Arts Council (WRAC).

The Chicken Show, now in its second year, is primarily designed as a day of good natured fun, according to WRAC member Mrs. Jane O'Leary.

MRS. O'LEARY said the chicken theme was originally chosen because it is adaptable to so many puns, costumes and contests.

The Arts Council is doing most of the work, with the support of the business community and volunteers.

This year's Chicken Show will once again feature a free omelet feed provided by the Milton G. Waldbaum Co. of Wakefield.

Ingredients for the omelet feed are provided by the pork industry, dairy industry, and local merchants.

Omelets will be served from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m.

THE OMELET cook-off will begin in the morning and continue through the noon hour, depending on the number of contestants.

The Grand Champion cook-off is scheduled to begin about 2 p.m.

Contestants will be provided with propane burners and eggs, and will be asked to furnish their own omelet pans, utensils and ingredients necessary to enhance their entry.

OMELETS WILL be judged on cooking technique, texture, taste, quality, appearance, and overall presentation.

Each contestant will provide the judging committee a copy of their recipe when they register at the contest area.

All recipes become the property of the American Egg Board to be used at their discretion for publications with the contestant's name.

CONTESTANTS will be divided into groups of 10 for the individual cook-off. Judges will score the contestants during the actual cooking time, and afterward at a judging table.

The top three winners in each division will cook a second omelet at the end of the activities to determine the Omelet Champion.

THERE ARE four divisions in the contest, including Junior (17 years of age and under); Women (18 to 64); Men (18 to 64); and Senior (65 and over).

The overall Grand Champion will receive $100.

The first place winner in each division will be awarded $25; the second place, $15; and the third place, $10.

All correspondence regarding the cook-off should be sent to Omelet Cook-Off, Box 165, Wayne, Neb., 68787.

Mad dash for shelter

GOLFERS BEAT the oncoming storm. Clouds darkened and sprinkles fell to the course as these golfers moved on to the second hole at Wayne CC.

Randy's Recap

By Randy Hascall

ENOUGH IS ENOUGH! I feel like a web-footed fowl with all of the rain this area has received lately. The farmers have had all the rain they can handle and I think it's time for the precipitation to stop.

The District 11 college baseball tournament was cancelled, the Class A district baseball tournament at Wakefield has been indefinitely postponed, town team baseball games are backlogged and the Wayne Country Club golfers have been rained out in three of four scheduled men's league nights.

I've heard of wet springs but this is getting ridiculous. The weather better clear up by Friday so we can have a nice weekend for the Nebraska State Track and Field meet.

I'll be there but I hope I'll be wearing a short sleeve shirt and tennis shoes—not a rain coat and galoshes.

IF THE RAIN ever stops, some softball teams will have make-up games to get in. Hank Overin's field is available for make-up games, practice games, league games and tournaments.

A donation of $2.50 per team will be asked for practice games. Two Wayne league teams can play for a total cost of $5. A donation of $10 will cover a game against an out of league team.

Weekends will be available for fun games and tournaments. Donation fees will be arranged by the organizer and Hank Overin. For reservations or more information contact Overin at 375 2484.

BUY A SEASON ticket and save some bucks. The Wayne Baseball Association is offering season passes for $10 each. The tickets will enable the holder to attend 10 home-town team, Legion or Midget ball games.

That's a pretty good savings from the regular gate price. Anyone who is interested in purchasing a ticket, can contact any Wayne Baseball Association member or get in touch with me.

THE LINCOLN MARATHON drew more than a thousand contestants a couple of weeks ago and among the finishers were two of my brothers in law.

I have a difficult time running from home plate to first base in men's softball league so I can't imagine running more than 26 miles. But, two of my sisters' husbands, John Vasina of David City and Jim Robins of David City, entered the race and both finished.

John's time of less than three hours qualified him for the Boston Marathon. I think he's 40 now and it's quite an honor to qualify for the big event at any age. I hope he runs.

AT THE TIME this column was written, the Wayne State baseball team was enroute to Tulsa for the NAIA Area 3 Tournament. The Wildcats hit some inclement weather but hopefully Tulsa will be dry and the games will go on.

Because of wet fields, Wayne State won the area tourney berth inside. Districts could not be completed in time for the area tourney, so the coaches of the four teams in districts had to take a vote.

Wayne State was voted by the narrowest of margins to represent District 11. Dana was second in the voting, Kearney State was third and Bellevue was fourth.

Each coach was asked to rank the four teams in order of strength and Wayne State won out. Now, I hope the Cats can represent their district well in a tough area tournament.

Area athletes prepare for state track meet

The Wayne High School girls are hoping for some nice weather and a high finish in Class B at the Nebraska State Track and Field Meet opens tomorrow (Friday) at Omaha Burke.

The Blue Devils will compete in eight events at state. Missy Stoltenberg will lead the locals in the 100 and 200-meter dashes. Jill Mosley will compete in the 200 and long jump.

Jill Zeiss qualified in the 100-meter low hurdles. Kelly Bartholomew and Jo Carlson both will compete in the shot put. The 400-meter relay team of Zeiss, Stoltenberg, Mosley and Fran Gross will participate in the state relay race.

No Wayne boys will compete at state.

ALLEN QUALIFIED two girls and one boy for the state Class C meet. Michelle Harder will compete in the 400-meter dash and Joanne Warner will compete in the discus. Marty Mahler will compete in both the 1,600 and 3,200 meter runs.

LAUREL SENDS one individual to state. Scott Haahr will compete in the discus. No Laurel girls qualified.

WAKEFIELD HAS three qualifiers—all boys. Jerry Roberts will compete in the 100 meter dash and was named as an additional competitor in the 400 because his time was one of the best in the state. Rod Nixon will run the 200.

WINSIDE WILL make a run for a high finish in the boys division of Class D. Barry Bowers will compete in the shot put, discus, 110 meter hurdles and 300 meter hurdles.

John Hawkins will compete in the 100 meter dash, 200 dash and shot put. Mark Koch will compete in the 300 meter intermediate hurdles and the 100 meter high hurdles. Jon Meierhenry will compete in the high jump.

The Winside girls will be represented by the 1,600 meter relay team of Patti Langenberg, Tammy Brudigan, Susie Peterson and Missy Jensen.

WSC selected as tourney rep

The District 11 Baseball Tournament championship was decided behind a closed door as rain forced cancellation of the tourney. Games, which were originally scheduled in Blair, were rescheduled in Wayne but had to be cancelled as rain pelted the area.

Coaches of the four tournament teams met and voted for Wayne State to represent the district in the NAIA Area 3 Tournament, which was scheduled Thursday through Saturday at Robert Sutton Stadium in Tulsa, Okla. The Wildcats left Wayne early Wednesday morning.

Wayne State (20-19) will play Mayville State of North Dakota (21-8) in first round action of the double elimination tournament. That game is scheduled at 2 p.m. today (Thursday). This marks the first time since 1979 that Wayne State has competed in the area tourney.

Northwest star signs at WSC

Wayne State College head basketball Coach Rick Weaver has announced that Omaha Northwest High School cage standout Calvin Sprew will attend Wayne State and participate in Wildcat basketball.

The 6-4, 185-pound Sprew averaged 16.5 points and 10 rebounds per game for Coach Dick Koch's state Class A runners-up last winter. Calvin is the son of Oscar and Thelma Sprew, 3918 N. 25th Avenue in Omaha.

Sprew was named to numerous honor squads, including All-Metro. He was a member of the Nebraska All-Star team that went to Las Vegas last year, and has been selected to participate in the North-South Shrine All-Star game in Omaha and the Coaches' Pepsi-Cola All-Star game in Lincoln this summer. "We feel Calvin is one of the top seniors in the state this year," Coach Weaver said. "He's got good quickness and leaping ability and we hope to use him as a small forward or big guard. We are certainly happy to have this young man as a part of the Wildcat basketball program."

Tennis tourney plans underway

The second annual Wayne Community Tennis Tournament is scheduled Saturday and Sunday, July 24 and 25 at the Wayne State tennis courts. Once again, tournament directors will seek local sponsors to help with the cost of the tennis balls and trophies.

Any entry fee money left over will be donated to a worthy community cause. Further details on the tournament plans will be given later. For more information, contact tournament directors Nick and Keith Zimmer at 519 Crescent Drive, 375-1176.

Season tickets for sale

Baseball season tickets for Wayne summer baseball games are on sale for both adults and students.

Adults may purchase $10 season passes which will allow admittance to 10 home ball games. Each ticket is good for Midgets, Legion or Town Team regular season games. Students age 13 through high school can purchase tickets for $5.

One punch will be made on the cards at each game attended. A Midget/Legion double header will count as only one game. Members of the Wayne Baseball Association will be selling the season passes. They may also be purchased by calling Randy Hascall at The Wayne Herald (375-2600).

Cost of admission at the game is $1.50 per adult and 75 cents for each student. Youngsters age 12 and under will be admitted free.

Youth track meet in late June

A Track and Field Association, U.S.A. Youth Athletic Age Group Track & Field meet is planned at Wayne State College in late June. The meet is scheduled to begin at 8 a.m. on Saturday and 11 a.m. Sunday, June 26 and 27.

District baseball is postponed

Heavy rains Tuesday night forced postponement of the High School District baseball tournament. Wayne was scheduled to face Omaha South and Laurel was pitted against host Wakefield in semi-final round action.

Conde Sargent of the Nebraska School Activities Association said that although rain has hampered various districts, he expects the tournaments to be completed Saturday. Moving to another site is one option, he said. The state Class A Tournament is scheduled to open Monday at Ralston.

Wakefield tee ball to begin

All interested boys and girls who will be in the second and third grades next school year are invited to participate in Wakefield's summer tee ball program. Dick Brownell and Sam Ulecht will be in charge. Any boy who is playing pee wee baseball is not eligible to take part in tee ball, Brownell said.

Tee ball is played with a baseball with a batter hitting the ball off of a stationary stand. Practices will be held on Mondays and Thursdays starting at 5 p.m. The first practice will be held June 3 north-west of the baseball field. A $3 fee per participant will be needed for insurance.

The intent of the program is to learn fundamentals of the game, develop coordination of the athlete, promote good sportsmanship and to have fun, Brownell said. He stated that fans are welcome to cheer the participants on but are asked to remember the purpose of the program.

Students are to have their name on their baseball glove and to wear a baseball cap, shirt and jeans.

South Sioux Raft Regatta set

It's that time of year again when preparations are being completed for the running of the 11th annual South Sioux City Jaycees National Missouri River Raft Regatta, this year to be held on June 19.

Starting at 10 a.m. from Ponca State Park, an estimated 150 hopeful teams of rafters will wind their way down 22 miles of the Missouri River, finishing at Scenic Park in South Sioux City. The twelve fastest teams along with the first women's team, first man/woman team and oldest combined age team to finish will be awarded cash prizes.

Started in 1971 through the efforts of the South Sioux City Chapter of the Jaycees, this annual event has grown in size and recognition. Originally run from Vermillion to South Sioux City, the course was changed three years ago to bring the distance down from 44 miles to 22 miles. Entrants come from as far away as Colorado and prize money has reached $2,500.

Entry fee is $50 a team. For more information contact: South Sioux City Jaycees, P.O. Box 701, South Sioux City, or Jerry McAndrews at 494-4251.

Doane College signs Brink

Doane College football coach Brian Naber has announced that five athletes have signed letters of intent to play football at Doane. They are: Eric Brink, a defensive end from Wayne; Troy Jones, Norfolk, defensive back and receiver; Bob Wieser, Columbus, Scotus, running back and defensive back; Dave Taylor, McCook, tight end; Don Odell, Elkhorn, linebacker.

A year-round runner

ALLEN'S MARTY Mahler kicks during the final stretch to finish first in the 1,600-meter run.

Allen graduate credits success to enjoyment

Coaches know that dedication to a sport is one of the most prized qualities in an athlete.

That's one of the qualities that makes Marty Mahler one of the best in his event. The Allen High School senior is a distance runner.

At the Winside Invitational, he won the 3,200-meter run and the 1,600-meter run, placed second in the 800 and led Allen's 3,200-meter relay team to a second place finish. In all, Marty ran approximately four miles throughout the day.

He competed in four events at the Lewis and Clark Conference meet and the Class D-3 district meet. Marty qualified for state in the 1,600 and 3,200.

THROUGHOUT the past three years, Marty Mahler has worked out by running to and from school. Nearly every day of the school year except when football or track practices interfered, Marty covered the six-mile round trip.

The Allen senior could be seen braving the winter winds and snow each morning. From Nov. 1 through the middle of March he jogged the three miles from home to classes.

Marty said he feels his road running to and from school have improved his distance running. During the summer he also competes in road races and works out.

"I'VE ALWAYS liked track because it's an individual sport," he said. Marty has two younger brothers in high school, and a kindergarten sister who "doesn't like Gatorade." He said Jody, a junior, is the brain of the family and freshman Shawn will probably also become a distance runner.

Marty isn't sure if he holds the Allen High School record in the mile because he says no track records were kept in past years. But, he has run the fastest mile in the last six years.

The 5-7 track star is short compared to most runners in his class. In fact, he jokes that with his short legs he needs to "take three steps to each one the taller kids take."

Two WSC players selected to all-conference squad

Two members of the 1982 Wayne State College baseball team were this week named to the first team of the Central States Intercollegiate Conference All-Conference squad.

Senior catcher Mike Meyer of Wayne was one of only three players to repeat on the honor team. A 6-2, 205-pound son of Don and Edna Meyer is currently batting .356. He is a four-year letterwinner and was previously named to the NAIA All-District 11 team as a repeat choice.

Craig Ladwig of Omaha a junior outfielder, was also a first team choice. Ladwig currently leads WSC with his .379 batting average. At 5-8 and 170 pounds, Craig is the son of Eugene and Rose Ladwig, 3717 Cornhusker Drive in Omaha. Craig was also an All-District 11 choice.

Three Cats were named to the CSIC honorable mention team. They include senior first baseman Bill Schwartz of Wayne and outfielders Ken Murcek, a senior from Omaha, and Tom Todd, a junior from Vineland, N.J.

Conference champion Emporia State placed six players on the first team of the 1982 CSIC All-Conference baseball squad.

The Hornets, who earned their fifth straight conference title after defeating Wayne State and Missouri Western in a double elimination tournament early this month, placed pitchers Dave Root and Paul Stucky, outfielders Brad Hill and Shawn Smith, designated hitter Cliff Thompson and shortstop Ron Taylor on the select team.

A vote of conference coaches resulted in 13 first team selections and 16 honorable mention picks. Kearney State had three players named to the first team, Wayne State two and Fort Hays State and Missouri Western one apiece. Wayne's senior catcher Mike Meyer joined two other players, who received first team status for the second consecutive year - Emporia State's Smith, a senior, and Hill, a sophomore.

Wayne sales mark tops in state

Statistics recently released by the University of Nebraska Business Research show that Wayne had the best retail sales during January among the major Nebraska cities.

The statistics, based on sales tax receipts excluding motor vehicles, indicate that January sales in Wayne were 98.5 percent of the January 1981 total.

AS A COMPARISON, the state showed only an 87.7 percent total as compared to the previous year. The Wayne-Norfolk region, which has been leading the state average for several months, fell behind in January due partially to an 82.7 percent mark for the city of Norfolk.

The West Point region exceeded the state average with 91 percent but the city of West Point was only at 81 percent. South Sioux City had 76.2 percent and the city of Columbus rated 70.2 percent—lowest in the state. Other areas which exceeded the state average were Omaha, Lexington and O'Neill Valentine areas.

The December to January decrease in the state's economic activity was recorded in all sectors of the economy with the exception of construction, where a small increase was recorded. Agriculture and manufacturing had the largest monthly declines.

Wayne's mark of 98.5 percent was one of five totals in the state higher than 90 percent. Omaha had a mark of 96.9 percent, Kimball had 94.8 percent, Blair was at 91.2 percent and O'Neill hit 90.6 percent.

PARTICIPANTS in a sheep shearing school learned the basics on Monday and Tuesday at the Wayne County fairgrounds.

Photography: Randy Hascall

Shearing tricks are shared

Enough wool was sheared at the Wayne County fairgrounds Monday and Tuesday to knit quite a few sweaters. A two-day sheep shearing school drew nine persons from as far away as Herick, S.D. Steve Gramlich of Wayne and Don Olsen of Bloomfield, both professional sheep shearers, conducted the workshop which was sponsored by the Northeast Nebraska Sheep Producers.

Sheep were furnished by A. Len Spittiger and the Bob Nissen family. Five shears were in use at all times and each individual sheared about 10 head of sheep. The University of Nebraska Extension Service, which held schools at Mead, Brainard and in the Nebraska Panhandle, provided equipment. Gramlich said the shearers did real well and improved considerably from the Monday.

Wool caused some problems that day. He said the students learned to keep the comb next to the sheep's skin and were learning how to position the sheep and how to hold on. The right-handed Gramlich learned that teaching the art of sheep shearing is difficult when he had to instruct a young, left-handed shearer from South Dakota.

CEDAR APPLE RUST

If your cedar tree has what you think are cones, take another look. Remember that cedar trees have a blue berry-like fruit. That brownish-green dry, cone-like growth on the cedar is probably that gall of cedar apple rust.

After a spring rain, these galls produce orange gelatinous projections and are carried by the wind to infect apple trees. Actidione sprayed early in the spring directly on the cedar galls and before the galls become active, does an excellent job of killing them.

Apples that are not resistant to cedar apple rust should be sprayed with Zineb or Ferbam at flower bud break followed by a second application at petal drop. Three additional sprays at 7-10 day intervals are recommended. Correct timing of fungicide is important because fungicides are preventatives and not a cure.

Cedar apple rust appears on apple trees during June and July as yellow orange spots on the upper surfaces of leaves and crown-like cups on the lower side of the leaves.

Spray the cedar trees three times at three-week intervals from July through September with Ferbam or Bordeaux to prevent infection. Both cedar and apple trees are required and it takes two years for cedar apple rust to complete its life cycle going from one host to the other.

EAR TAGS FOR FLY CONTROL

Research shows that the two kinds of insecticide-impregnated ear tags (fenvalerate and permethrin) on sale in Nebraska are equally effective and provide excellent fly control.

One tag per cow will provide horn fly control for both cow and calf. If face flies are present, two tags per cow and per calf are recommended. In steer or heifer herds, one tag per animal will provide excellent horn fly control but two tags per animal will give the best face fly control.

AMMONIA LOSS IN FIELDS

What causes the smell of ammonia in a field as much as 48 hours after application of anhydrous ammonia?

When direct ammonia losses from soil occur generally one of the following is the cause: (1) faulty application of equipment, (2) incomplete closure of the injection channel, or (3) application is made too near the soil surface.

Faulty application equipment may be associated with gaseous leaks very near the soil surface—one knife running shallow while others run at an adequate depth, or unequal distribution of ammonia to each knife making the application through one knife excessively high.

Incomplete closure of the injection channel is usually a factor of soil moisture conditions. Optimum soil conditions are a moist, friable soil which readily closes behind the applicator knife with or without the aid of closing devices. Ideal conditions for disk or plowing are also good soil conditions for application. When knife silt does not close properly, the cause may be high soil moisture.

Shallow application will allow some gaseous ammonia to be absorbed very near the soil surface. Some of the ammonia is retained in the soil moisture which upon drying will lose ammonia.

Wetterberg's principal duties will be to help farmers solve their conservation problems. He said he is looking forward to meeting and working with SCS cooperators in both Wayne and Dixon counties.

Larry and his wife, Debbie, are the parents of three children: son, Craig (5), daughter, Karl (2), and son, Ryan (1). Larry's interests include baseball, camping, fishing, and all sports in general. "This time like all times, is a very good one if we but know what to do with it."

—RALPH WALDO EMERSON

Sure it's tough. Ask any businessman up and down main street. When times are tough for agriculture, they're tough for everybody, especially in middle America.

But there is a silver lining out there in the clouds. Today's challenges can be just that... challenges. The challenge to re-evaluate practices, take a hard look at the operations, tighten up management.

Despite the difficulties in the near term, the net result can be a stronger ag economy in the years ahead. If we're willing to accept the challenge!

And America's agricultural producer has never been one to back down from a challenge.

More Valley
Corner Systems
every year,

because it's the least costly investment per acre.

It's going to be harder to make farming pay off in the years to come. Harder for many reasons.

So, if anything makes sense, it's to maximize the potential of the land you now farm. Irrigating with a center pivot is one way. Irrigating with a Corner System is even better.

A Corner System can irrigate 19 to 45 more acres than a regular pivot, producing extra income on acres already being farmed. That's why nearly one out of every six pivots sold today is a Corner System.

And when it comes to Corner Systems, nobody knows more than Valmont. They're proven reliable with nearly 3,000 systems in operation. That's at least 20 times more than any other brand.

Before you buy any center pivot, see us. We'll tell you how a Valley Corner System can add to your bottom line profits while being the least costly investment per acre.

Valley dominates the field.

Professor says calibration can save up to $12 an acre in chemical spray

A simple, cheap, quick job - calibration - can save from $2 to $12 an acre in chemical costs during spraying, according to Leonard Bashford, associate professor in agricultural engineering at the University of Nebraska.

Bashford will demonstrate how to calibrate spraying equipment on Farm and Ranch report, a new Nebraska Educational Television series, on May 20 at 12:30 and 8 p.m. The series is presented by the Nebraska Cooperative Extension Service and is aired every Thursday on ETV.

"A lot of farmers need to calibrate" their equipment, Bashford said. "They think, 'Well, it worked for me last year, why should I do anything about it this year?' But it needs to be done regularly."

ON THE AVERAGE, six out of every 10 farmers miss the proper application rate by more than 10 percent, according to a study released in 1980 by the Agricultural Engineering department and Successful Farming Magazine.

This represents a national loss of $1 billion a year for farmers in the United States, Bashford said. The planting season is already underway, but there is still time to take the 15 or 20 minutes needed to calibrate spraying equipment, he said.

"Over the year, the herbicides farmers have used have been pretty forgiving," Bashford said. In the past, farmers had a wide range of control leeway for over or under spraying, he said.

"But some of these herbicides that they use now are much more selective," Bashford explained. "The range of control is narrowing down."

FOR INSTANCE, one new herbicide is registered at only one-sixth ounce per acre and needs to be applied precisely. Over-application by more than 5 percent is illegal, costly and potentially damaging to crops, according to Emery Nelson, extension specialist in pesticide training.

"Over application could burn crops or cause growth problems and a residual effect into the next season," Nelson said.

"Under application could cost you more," he added. "It can reduce your yield dramatically by not controlling pests."

Equipment may need to be calibrated several times a year to keep up with changes in soil, chemicals and equipment wear, Nelson said.

"You have to watch your equipment on a day to day basis," he said. "Be aware of how much you are applying on your field. See how far off you are."

"Calibrate at least once a year twice if you use the sprayer all summer," recommends Bruce Meyer, farm manager of the agronomy research farm in Lincoln.

"Otherwise, you begin to put on more and more, and you don't get as many acres as you used to," he said.

MEYER USES a 500 milliliter graduated cylinder to measure how much solution his spraying equipment delivers in a given amount of time.

"It works pretty well if you time it 30 seconds and check and see how much each nozzle is putting out," he said.

Ticks are abundant in Nebraska

Of all creatures great and small that "bite" humans and pets, most people find ticks especially disgusting, says University of Nebraska extension entomologist Dave Keith.

Most ticks attach to and feed on any warm blooded creature that accidentally brushes against their perch, Keith explains. In Nebraska, the two common kinds of ticks are the American Dog or wood tick and the Brown Dog tick.

The American Dog tick is always abundant in Nebraska in May and June. It is considered dangerous to humans because it can transmit spotted fever and rabbit fever, although it rarely does," he says.

THIS TICK populates woody or brushy areas because it needs field mice, rabbits or other animals to feed on. If people or animals brush against the grass or tree ticks are waiting on them to be picked up.

Dogs should be checked regularly if they are allowed to run loose, he adds. Owners should consider spraying, dusting or dipping them periodically, because pets can die if many ticks attach themselves to the neck and upper spinal area.

The other species commonly found in Nebraska, the Brown Dog tick, almost always feeds on dogs, but has occasionally been reported to feed on humans. This tick is found more often near homes, especially in kennels and in pet's sleeping quarters. They also occur in homes if dogs are allowed inside.

If ticks have their mouthparts embedded in the skin, they can be pulled out steadily with a forceps. If the head breaks off, it can cause infection, Keith advises.

HOWEVER, "If a person is bitten, he or she shouldn't get upset. The probability of dying from auto accidents, falls or old age is far greater than dying from a tick borne disease," he notes.

There are several ways to lessen the chances of being bitten, Keith says, but the only way to avoid all contact with the pests is to stay out of tick infested areas.

One method that helps, but is not entirely reliable, is spraying repellents on clothes before entering wooded or brushy areas. Another is spraying Sevin insecticide on infested areas near the home, to reduce the number of ticks waiting for a host, Keith advises.

Banvel Herbicide is your best choice for velvetleaf control in 8" to 24" corn.

Banvel Herbicide hits the broadleaf weeds 2,4-D gets, plus many more.

If you've been disappointed in your 2,4-D weed control. Now's the time to look at Banvel Herbicide.

Apply Banvel in 8" to 24" corn to control dozens of broadleaf weeds, including: velvetleaf, pigweed, smartweed, sunflower and cocklebur.

Banvel penetrates leaf surfaces. Plus, it moves through the soil to attack weed roots. Then translocates throughout the broadleaf weed, killing leaf-tip to root-tip. Yet Banvel offers excellent crop tolerance. No other herbicide comes close. Not even 2,4-D.

For best results, always use drop nozzles when the crop is 8" or taller. By directing the spray under the corn canopy, you'll hit more weeds for better control.

If you have broadleaf weed problems in 8" to 24" corn, make your best choice for best control. Banvel Herbicide. See your ag chem supplier today.

Mid-size farms squeezed as total numbers increase

By M.M. Van Kirk
Nebraska Farm Bureau

The number of farms in the United States showed an increase last year for the first time since 1935 and another though smaller increase of 1,000 farms is predicted this year to boost the 1982 total units to 2,437,000 according to the United States Department of Agriculture's (USDA) latest farm numbers report.

But before anyone starts pointing to these figures as evidence that there has been a big turn around in the farm economy and claiming that the family farm unit is out of danger, a careful analysis of those figures and what they represent is advisable.

Economists Don Reimund and Neal Peterson in the latest issue of Farmline, published by the USDA's economic research service, put perspective in those figures with an article, "Will Mid-size Farms Fade as Small and Big Farms Multiply."

They find that two kinds of farms are increasing in number — the small ones and the very large ones. And between them they are putting the squeeze on the middle-size farms and ranches that are declining in numbers, and unfortunately these are more likely to be the family-type operations that are full-time commercial operations.

The economists point out that by definition, all that's needed to qualify as a farm is $1,000 in annual sales of agricultural products. In many cases, that may mean no more than a few hogs or steers sold during a given year. Even sales of $5,000, $10,000 or $20,000 a year do not indicate that a farm is a full-time commercial enterprise. In 1980, they report, farms with annual sales between $10,000 and $20,000 netted an average of only $4,300. It was off-farm income that pushed the total earnings of the average operator family to more than $17,000.

For many of them, farming is serious business, but they farm by choice and not by necessity. Farming for them is only a part-time, extra-income activity often chosen more as a lifestyle than an occupation. For others, it is pursued solely as a hobby or to take advantage of laws that offer tax breaks on agricultural real estate.

So far, the apparent comeback in farm numbers, the researchers say, seems to be confined to these small-size units where farm status is most controversial. And most of these units are showing up in the Eastern and Western areas of the nation, near the cities and industrial areas where employment opportunities are more numerous.

The category of growth is in the numbers of large farms, those with annual sales of $100,000 or more. From 1970 to 1980, these farms registered nearly a fivefold increase to 282,000 or 12 percent of all farms. Large farms now produce most of the nation's cotton, potatoes, orchard crops, eggs, broilers and turkeys. In 1980, they took in 69 percent of all cash receipts from farming as compared to 33 percent in 1970.

Like affluent small farm residences, these large farms are also in position to bid resources away from mid-size family farm units. The resulting concentration of farm sector wealth and farm output on larger farms leaves the food production system — and those who rely on it — more dependent on fewer producers.

This concentration is also a threat to the traditional role of the modest-size commercial farm. Ten years ago, farms in the under $40,000 sales classes took in 45 percent of all cash receipts from farming. By 1980, the figures was only 12 percent. Thus it is the mid-size family farms that are slowly disappearing. Inflation pushes some into higher sales brackets, others expand their operations, and still others are forced to scale back and depend more on off-farm income. The researchers observe that these mid-size farms seem to be too large for part-time farms and too small for full-time farms.

Opportunities for new farm entrants and the expansion of part-time farming operations are limited by the rise in capital requirements. Analysts estimate capital requirements for a full-time commercial farm at more than $500,000 and say the effect is essentially to reserve commercial farming for existing farmers and their descendants.

Caution urged

Caution should be the byword for motorists when traveling on highways or county and local roads during the spring season due to planting time for farmers.

The equipment used today by farmers often takes up more than one land of the roadway and at times it is difficult for the operator to see approaching traffic from the front or rear. Soft or narrow shoulders also contribute to the danger farmers must handle when traveling from field to fields with their equipment.

Another danger the equipment operators face are impatient motorists who fail to exercise proper driving procedures. Often drivers are in a hurry and the few minutes spent behind slow moving equipment seems like hours as they wait to pass, finally rushing by the equipment and often failing to give the farmer adequate time to see the auto coming around clearly in order to pull farther off the roadway.

Each year we all hear the horror stories of accidents involving automobiles and farm equipment, many of which result in serious injury, death and the loss of thousands of dollars in property.

This spring, let's all remember the dangers, be aware of the problems the farmers face when traveling with their equipment and exercise caution and good driving skills when traveling in the rural areas.

Action taken to release highway funds for nebraska

Last week, at my request, the House Public Works and Transportation Committee inserted language in the Surface Transportation Assistance Act which would permit the state of Nebraska to spend a total of $12.1 million in federal highway funds which has been withheld by the Federal Highway Administration.

In securing the funds, I worked closely with Congressman Don Clausen of California, ranking minority member of the Public Works Committee, who introduced the amendment on behalf of Nebraska.

THIS ACTION WAS A MAJOR VICTORY for Nebraska's highway program. Because some of the more efficient states, including Nebraska, have essentially completed construction of their interstate systems, the Congress has provided those states with a minimum allocation of one half of one percent of the total funds authorized under the Federal-Aid Highway Act. It was the intent of Congress that, if a state's interstate system had been completed and adequately maintained, those funds could be used to construct and maintain non-interstate roads.

For the past three years, however, the Federal Highway Administration has refused to allow the Nebraska Department of Roads to spend these funds, which were already allocated to the state.

The amendment which was adopted last week, at my urging and with the help of Congressman Clausen, will remove the technical objection of the Federal Highway Administration and permit the $12.1 million to be spent.

The amendment was added to the Federal-Aid Highway Act, which was reported out of full Committee last week and which now awaits action by the full House.

A COMMEMORATIVE ENVELOPE FOR SMALL BUSINESS

Last year I co-sponsored a resolution requesting that the Postmaster General consider issuing a postage stamp in honor of America's small businesses. The Postal Service issues a very limited number of commemorative stamps each year and these stamps are decided on at least two years in advance, sometimes more. Because of this delay, some alternative efforts have been made to recognize small businesses.

Postmaster General William F. Bolger announced last week that the Postal Service will issue a commemorative envelope honoring small businesses. It is significant that the announcement was made during Small Business Week — a time set aside to recognize our nation's small business men and women. Next year at this time the envelope design will be unveiled, and the envelope will be released in 1984.

Elevator break-in leads to proposed federal legislation

Senator Edward Zorinsky (D-Neb.) has joined five of his colleagues in sponsoring legislation that would provide a way out for farmers unable to touch their own grain for long periods because it's tied up in a bankrupt storage warehouse.

A reaction to the highly publicized case of jailed farmer Wayne Crys, the bill authorizes the Agriculture Department to purchase from farmers on request grain stored in bankrupt warehouses. The purchase price would be the prevailing market rate.

THE GOVERNMENT THEN would take the farmer's place as a party to the bankruptcy proceeding and ultimately would receive payment under the settlement agreement.

"The Crys case has focused nationwide attention on the injustice done farmers who are unable to retrieve their own grain because it is in a bankrupt warehouse," Zorinsky said.

"This bill gives farmers a way to keep going while the bankruptcy proceeding drags on."

IN THE CASE, CRYTS and several of his fellow farmers removed from a bankrupt Ristine, Mo. warehouse an amount of soybeans equal to what he had warehouse receipts for. The warehouse had gone into bankruptcy almost two years earlier and Crys' action was contrary to the bankruptcy court's direction. Crys was jailed for contempt of court for refusing to reveal the names of his accomplices.

"One may not condone Mr. Crys' actions under the technicalities of the bankruptcy laws," Zorinsky said. "But the fairness and equity of these laws are subject to challenge and amendment. I certainly understand Mr. Crys' frustration and feel that, in the case of a bankruptcy court, his grain is not his and an asset of the warehouse company, to be used to settle all outstanding debts.

"THIS BILL ALLOWS FARMERS to get the market price for their grain and to finance the next year's crop regardless of the status of the bankruptcy proceedings," Zorinsky said. "It's based on the premise that the government can afford to wait out these drawn-out proceedings far better than an individual farmer."

THE LEGISLATION ALSO WOULD help prevent future bankruptcies by limiting the government's authority to buy grain to that stored in federally licensed warehouses or warehouses licensed under a comparable state system, such as that under Nebraska's Public Service Commission.

"A year ago, the General Accounting Office said at least 200 grain warehouses around the country were in enough financial trouble that bankruptcy could result," Zorinsky said. "This bill will keep more farmers from going through the ordeal of Wayne Crys if GAO's estimate proves accurate."

Economic upswing predicted

By Richard L. Leshner
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

The recent agreement on a budget blueprint reached by the White House and Senate Republicans may leave you with the impression that the logjam in Washington has finally been broken, and a 1983 budget will now sail smoothly through Congress.

Guess again. The package of tax increases and budget cuts will face rough sledding as it makes its way through various congressional committees. It is important to remember that while neither President Reagan nor many senators must face the voters this fall, each and every member of the House will—and their political instincts tell them that the public is unalterably opposed to tax increases.

But this is not the principal subject I wanted to discuss today. About a month ago, I described what I believed were the first signs of recovery from the recession. While my optimism was greeted enthusiastically by scores of readers, more than a few of the "old hands" in Washington raised their eyebrows at my prognosis.

Today it seems that my one-man band has become a bandwagon. Numerous business publications and analysts are surveying the economic landscape more judiciously now and reaching the same judgment: The recovery has begun. It has begun despite the best efforts of the gloom and doom peddlers to suggest that this recession was somehow different from the previous seven recessions; we have experienced since World War II—that the bottom would fall out and the typical upswing that invariably follows a typical downswing would not occur this time.

But this is precisely what is happening now. And you can be sure that politicians on all sides will try to take credit for our private enterprise economy's ability to correct its own course.

Yes, unemployment is at an intolerable level. But most economists agree that it is a lagging indicator, telling us more about where we were than where we are today. Your list of good news indicators is as long as the arm and it is growing week by week.

- *Consumer prices from January through March increased at a compound annual rate of one percent, amounting to a healthy increase in consumer purchasing power.
- *The combined total of inflation and unemployment fell to 5.7 percent in March, down from February's 11.4 percent.
- *Home mortgage rates have declined to a 9 1/2 month low.
- *Housing starts in March were up 11 percent and building permits up 20 percent since their October low.

- *Office building construction increased four percent in March over February, and was up 44 percent from one year ago.
- *Orders for durable goods have risen for two consecutive months, and are now 5 1/2 percent above their January level.
- *Business travel, depressed since the spring of 1980, made a sharp turnaround in March. Auto rental companies reported increases of anywhere from 23 to 40 percent. One hotel chain reports an increase of 50 percent in advance bookings.

- *International Harvester just announced it was recalling 4,150 employees after a two-month layoff. General Motors will return an additional 9,000 workers to the job by June 1.
- *There is even good news for government. Individual income tax receipts have grown 9 1/2 percent over last year. Corporate receipts are virtually unchanged, despite forecasts that they would drop by a fourth.
- *Companies reduced their inventories by an annual rate of $40 billion during the first three months of 1982, the sharpest decline in decades. As a result, increases in demand brought about by July's 98 percent tax cut will have to be met by increased production—and jobs.

To the editor:

Your cover story on the Corbit family and the letter "to the editor" from the Wayne County Association for Retarded Citizens has, once again, prompted me to write.

The letter from the A.R.C. referred to "Infant Doe" (a Down's Syndrome baby) who was born on Good Friday in Indiana. Baby Doe weighed 6 lbs., and had a condition known as tracheoesophageal fistula, which means the stomach cannot receive food orally. A consulting physician, Dr. James Laughlin, a pediatrician at Riley Children's Hospital in Indianapolis, stated in an interview the chances of a successful operation to correct Baby Doe's condition were about 90%. But as we know the parents and doctors decided not to operate and withheld all food, water and antibiotics. Baby Doe died six days later, literally starved to death.

As horrible and heart-breaking as this is, it is happening more often than we would like to believe. Down's Syndrome babies all over this country are being "allowed to die" because they are unwanted by their parents and society. Rightly so, the A.R.C. is asking for us to come forth and re-emphasize the value and meaning of life.

There are organizations doing just that. In Nebraska there are over 20,000 persons on the mailing list of the Nebraska Coalition for Life. The N.C.L. has for years, since the 1973 Supreme Court Decision legalizing abortion, tried to educate people on abortion, infanticide and euthanasia. They have continual, proclaimed that once human life was no longer sacred and the unborn child could be aborted it would only be a matter of time before the unwanted mentally and physically handicapped and the elderly would be in jeopardy.

We who are members of right to life groups take our hats off to people like the Corbits and organizations like the A.R.C. Only with love, understanding and a whole lot of hard work can we educate people as to the worth of all God's children and perhaps someday soon we will cherish all human life as a gift... an obligation.

MAIL FRAUD PROGRAM
As part of a nationwide effort by the U.S. Postal Service to alert the public to mail fraud schemes, the Norfolk Management Sectional Center has scheduled a series of programs for the general public throughout North-eastern Nebraska during the week of May 17-21. Postal Inspector D.E. Armstrong, a consumer protection specialist, will be speaking to service organizations, professional clubs, community groups and senior citizens, and will conduct interviews with area radio and television stations.

Mr. Armstrong will conduct a Consumer Protection Program at the fire hall, Main Street, in Allen tomorrow (Friday) at 2:30 p.m.

The Postal Service has two major goals with its Consumer Protection Program. First, they want to increase public awareness of the type of schemes being perpetrated upon the public, with special emphasis on senior citizens. The second goal is to publicize the way in which the Postal Service can aid citizens who are victims of mail fraud.

The Postal Service requests individuals noting questionable business transactions or who believe they are victims of fraudulent promotions to forward the complaint or information to their local Postmaster or to Inspector Armstrong at P.O. Box 43558, St. Paul, Minn. 55109.

Without the complaints of consumers, many fly-by-night schemes would not be identified before numbers others fall prey to the scam promoters.

MSC Manager Keonlian urges consumers to take advantage of this opportunity and to benefit from what he considers to be an interesting and informative program.

This program is being sponsored by the Allen Senior Citizens.

Coffee and cookies will be served.

Everyone is invited to attend.

Wayne guard team takes second place in competition

Company A, 1st Battalion, 134th Infantry of Wayne finished second in Nebraska National Guard combat competition in late April.

The second place team consisted of Robert Ulrich, Roger Hansen, Kendall Lohse, Douglas Delancey, Fred Barge and Robert Krueger.

The adjutant general's combat marksmanship matches were held at the National Guard training site near Hastings April 24 and 25 with nearly 300 men and women from Army and Air Guard units across the state competing.

An annual event, the combat shoot is part of the Guard's program to improve physical fitness and proficiency with military weapons, according to marksmanship coordinator, Lt. Col. Ross Winters of National Guard Headquarters in Lincoln.

Individuals fired Saturday on all three ranges, M-60 machine gun, .45 caliber pistol and M-16 rifle. Then Sunday, team competition was held on all three ranges. A new requirement for team participation was that before shooting, each rifle and machine gun team member ran two miles with combat gear including weapon.

Awards were presented to the top three individuals and teams in each category by Maj. Gen. Edward C. Binder, the adjutant general of Nebraska, at a Sunday afternoon ceremony.

The combat matches prepare marksmen for the National Guard composite matches scheduled for June 26 and 27 at Hastings. The best shooters in the state will compete on both days at the Winston P. Wilson Marksmanship Center.

NURSING HOME WEEK
Hillcrest Care Center concluded "Nursing Home Week" activities on Saturday with a dog show. Twenty dogs were shown to the residents. Judges for the contest were Harold White, Gertrude Gadeken, Edie French and Glenn Rice.

First prize winners were Joey Cunningham, Sherri Weimers, Shane Kardell, Mark Lute and Beck Rippen.

Sherri Weimers with her Kesh Hound and Pekings were chosen "best of the show."
