ESU board tackles problems of equipment loans; benefits

The problem of allowing school districts to use loan equipment without being under contract was approved by the Educational Service Unit 1 board during the monthly meeting Tuesday night in Laurel.

The problem arose when several districts informed the ESU they would not fully participate in contracts for services in the coming year but wished to continue using learning and testing equipment that usually is provided to contracting districts.

Districts that have not signed a contract with the ESU or that have failed to return them by the June 1 deadline are Creighton, Verdigris, Niobrara, Santee, Bloomfield and Crofton.

THE BOARD APPROVED 7-1 a motion made by Randy Shaw to allow the districts to use the equipment with the understanding that districts that contract fully with the ESU will have first priority of use. A letter will also be sent to the six districts informing them that they will be held accountable for the loaned equipment.

Voting against the motion was board member Bill Morvick. Board member Dr. V. A. Walstrom was absent from the Tuesday night meeting.

The board was unsure as to whether it was purchased under the levy assigned to districts or from other funding sources.

The board also wrestled with another contract problem Tuesday night involving TMH (trainable mentally handicapped) students in the Crofton district.

ACCORDING TO Harry Mills, ESU administrator, Crofton was under contract and had been sending two or three students to Bloomfield for the TMH classes for about a month and a half.

After about six weeks "They pulled their students out and started their own program," Mills said.

The board advised Mills to contact the board's attorney concerning the problem and report back to them. Mills said he expects the matter of the broken contract will end up in court.

Early in the meeting, the board began an initial review of an evaluation of the unit that had been prepared for them over the past year.

THE REPORT IS a complete evaluation of the unit from the board and its policies down to programs and staff members. It includes commendations, concerns and recommendations on each area of the unit.

The evaluation information was drawn from interviews, questionnaires, existing information and on site observation by the compilers of the evaluation.

Board members will be studying the evaluation through the month and it is expected they will formerly discuss the report at their July meeting. A second report, dealing with the area of special education, will be presented at a later date to the board.

The evaluation of the ESU will be reviewed in The Wayne Herald when a copy is made available.

IN A MATTER dealing with health benefits, the board voted not to supply an $11 benefit difference each month to Beulah Noecker, a TMH teacher at Hardington. Since March when Noecker turned 65 years of age, Blue Cross coverage has limited her coverage and as a result the cost has dropped $11 per month.

Noecker requested the board to supply her with $11 each month to go toward Med care coverage.

Many of the board members were concerned about starting a precedent that may carry over to other benefits and as a result the request was denied.

IN OTHER EMPLOYEE business, Mills recommended the firing of Lyle Smith as business manager for the unit.

Before approval could be gained however, the board realized Smith had been offered dental coverage as part of her benefit package.

"If we give the dental coverage to her," board chairman Bill Wiese said, "we may find that other employees will be wanting it also. I'd rather see her receive the dollar difference rather than the actual coverage."

The board agreed and Smith's hiring was approved with the change in the original offer.

IN OTHER ACTION Tuesday night the board reviewed several lines of authority charts. The one approved includes the administrator, an administrator, assistant administrator and one director. Several board members wished to wait until they had reviewed the evaluation report before approving the line of authority chart, however approval of the chart had been set to be received before July 1.

In final action, Mills presented the board with a tentative budget for next year.

"It's ridiculous to present this when we don't even know what 80 percent of our costs will be or the revenues we will have but everyone is in the same boat," Mills said. "I just want you to go over it, it's not complete but just a tentative start on the budget."

WSC administrator resigns athletic duties for 82-83

Dr. John Merriman, who has served Wayne State College for five years as its director of athletics and head of its division of health, physical education and recreation, is stepping down from those duties effective Aug. 15, according to Dr. Ed Elliott, WSC vice president.

Merriman has requested to be relieved of those duties to return to the classroom, Dr. Elliott said.

An associate professor in WSC's HPER division, Merriman is a native of Maryville, Kan. He received his undergraduate degree from the University of Kansas and his post-graduate degrees from the University of Northern Colorado.

Prior to his arrival at Wayne State in 1977, he was aquatics director at Kansas State University. Dr. Merriman previously taught and coached at Great Bend High School; College High School in Greeley, Colo.; and Adams County School in Northglenn, Colo.

ACCORDING TO Dr. Elliott, the vacated position will be filled during the 1982-83 academic year on an interim basis. It is announced later. A search for a permanent replacement will begin this fall, Dr. Elliott said.

During his term at WSC, Merriman was director of all athletics. Current sports at Wayne State include football, volleyball, men's and women's basketball, baseball, softball and men's and women's track.

Several improvements in Rice Auditorium, WSC track, softball field and baseball field were accompanied under Merriman.

Merriman and his wife Jan have resided in Wayne for five years. He is out of town on vacation until Monday and unavailable for comment.

Plans were unveiled this week for the first rural United Way fund-raising campaign in northeast Nebraska. Filing has been made with the Nebraska Secretary of State for the incorporation of Northeast Nebraska United Way, Inc., according to Fred Pape of Waterbury, the organization's first president.

The United Way program conducts one fund drive per year and represents a number of charitable and service organizations. The proceeds are distributed among the participating organizations.

Counties involved in the new organization include rural Wayne, Burl, Cuming, Stanton, Pierce, Knox, Antelope, Cedar, Dixon, Thurston and rural Dakota.

Diabetes doll presented

AN EDUCATIONAL medical doll was presented by the Northwestern Bell Telephone Pioneers to Providence Medical Center last week. The hollow "Sugar Babe" is designed for insulin-dependent diabetics. Under supervision, the doll will be used to teach diabetics the actual injection, measuring of insulin and adjustment of insulin dosage. The doll and instructional tape are expected to help diabetics adjust emotionally to diabetes and learn the basic diabetic concepts needed for daily care. The doll's specially formulated skin has a natural feel upon injection with site marks clearly indicated by rows of red dots on its arms, legs, buttocks and abdomen that correspond to the proper insulin-injection sites. The insulin may be measured and injected with the same sense of touch as an injection into real skin. The liquid is eliminated from the doll's body through drain plugs in the feet. Hospitalists in Norfolk and Omaha also have been presented similar dolls. Ken Berglund, John Melena and Lee Lamp presented the doll to Marci Thomas and Louise Jenness. ## police report

A break-in some time this weekend occurred at Kinder's station on 1088 Main according to Wayne Police Chief, Vern Fairchild. "Access was apparently gained through a window," he said. Various items were taken, including cigarettes, candy, fruit and a small amount of money, according to the report. "There are some leads in the case and we will continue the investigation," Fairchild added.

On Saturday, two loud party complaints were investigated and subjects advised to quiet down. Noisy car stereos and wreckless driving near the Rain-free Drive-In were also reported and subjects told to leave the area.

Also on Saturday several trips were made from Providence Medical Center to various patient's homes when transportation was requested. A dog at large was impounded and a lost dog found by police.

On Sunday, an accident between cars owned by Alan Cramer and Curtis Sauer, both of Wayne, was investigated by the department. The Chapman car was backing from a parked position on the 900 block of Nebraska street when it was struck by the Sauer car.

On Monday, police were called to Scott's restaurant to confiscate a gun which was lying nearby. The police discovered it was only a toy and brought it back to the station.

During the last weeks of May, Wayne police investigated several incidents including complaints, an apparent alarm malfunction and one accident during the last week of May.

On May 25 an apparent alarm malfunction occurred at the First National Bank with officers responding to the alarm. A car fire at Thies Bridgman was also reported and police notified the fire department.

A family dispute at Woehier's trailer court resulted in police being called. Following a settlement the police again responded to the trailer court a few hours later.

On May 23, police responded to a complaint concerning juveniles with trapezoids at Wetland's parking lot. The subjects were let off with a warning and advised

Local president; trustee refute weekend charges

According to a story published Saturday, May 29 in the Omaha World-Herald, outgoing Wayne State College president Lyle Seymour was forced to leave the president's position because of the State College Board of Trustees, and in particular because of trustee J. Alan Cramer of Wayne.

The charges were made in an Omaha World-Herald interview with David Martin, former U.S. Congressman, who has resigned effective May 29 from the State College Board of Trustees.

According to the story, "Martin said board member J. Alan Cramer of Wayne is 'more or less responsible' for Seymour's leaving but would not give details."

In a follow-up article published Sunday in the Omaha newspaper Seymour denied Martin's charge of Cramer asking questions that were out of line during an annual review.

"I don't know what questions he (Martin) means," Seymour was quoted as saying. "Nothing was out of line to me. There were some questions about time spent away from campus but nothing unusual."

Seymour recently resigned as president of Wayne State College to take up a newly expanded position as executive secretary of the Wayne State Foundation.

Seymour told the Omaha World-Herald that he had planned to resign as far back as two years ago and denied it had anything to do with board member Cramer as Martin alleged when he resigned from the board.

Seymour added that "We've had problems caused by budget cuts, but they would have been problems for any president Alan Cramer and I have been friends for more than 20 years." The wives of both Cramer and Seymour also operate a novelty shop in Wayne called "The Cupboard."

According to the Omaha World-Herald's articles, Martin has also charged there was too much "cronyism" on the State College Board of Trustees.

"I guess he (Martin) means by cronyism is the fact that a lot of us on the board are friends. You can't help but be friends with people you work with all the time. I've known some board members for 12 years but I've had disagreements with all of them," Cramer said.

Martin also indicated to the Omaha World-Herald that the board of trustees and board president Keith Kemper were responsible for the resignations of Peru State College president Larry Tangeman and Kearney State president Brendan McDonald.

"The decision to resign was wholly mine. It's unfortunate that three people reached a crossroads in their careers at the same time, but that can't be blamed on Keith Kemper," Seymour was quoted as saying.

219 delegates attend PEO state convention in Wayne

Wayne was host to the 93rd annual PEO State Convention May 26 and 27. The convention, held on the Wayne State College campus, was attended by 219 delegates from Nebraska's 222 PEO chapters.

Seven state officers and 15 past presidents of the Nebraska State Chapter also attended. Members of honor present were Mrs. Irene Van Brunt of Omaha, past president International Chapter, and Mrs. Vera Koefoot of Grand Island, member of the finance committee, International Chapter.

SPEAKING at the convention banquet Wednesday night was Mrs. Margaret Lundstrom of Wayne. "Sometimes when someone asks me where I live, I say I live in Nowhere, Nebraska," Mrs. Lundstrom told the nearly 500 members and guests attending the banquet. "I'm glad that I live in Nowhere, Nebraska," Mrs. Lundstrom said, adding "I believe there are probably lots of you that live in Nowhere, Nebraska too."

"HOW DO you know if you live in Nowhere?" Mrs. Lundstrom questioned. "It's nowhere if you do something at 3 o'clock and everyone knows about it by six," she continued.

"It's nowhere if you can count the stop lights on the fingers of your hand." "You know it's nowhere if everyone knows everything about everybody but they take the paper anyway to see if they got caught."

"You know it's nowhere if the high school kids' main recreation is driving up and down Main Street, or if you can chat on the phone for an hour, even when it's a wrong number."

"It's nowhere if your kids can walk to the park after dark, and if 20 neighbors pull their rigs onto Joe's land and do the plowing and planting because he's laid up with a bad back."

"You're sure it's nowhere if you are in the hospital and the Catholic priest comes in, sits down, and has a chat and you're a Presbyterian."

"Whether you're from Somewhere, Nebraska, Almost Somewhere, Nebraska, or Nowhere, Nebraska, we're in this thing together," smiled Mrs. Lundstrom.

The sandy soil, to the town of Plattsmouth where it merges with the Father Missouri," she said.

"Along its banks rolled the white-sailed prairie schooners, carrying the adventuresome ones to new homes in Oregon and California."

"But always their eyes searched the far western horizon — looking for Chimney Rock, looking for Scottsbluff, looking for evidence they were leaving behind the Great American Desert!"

"When did someone's eyes finally leave the horizon and take in the beauty that surrounded them? When did someone think that perhaps here — right here — was opportunity?"

"Not far away beyond the blue mountains, but here among the waving grasses and softly undulating hills, beside the spreading water."

"Aren't we fortunate that they did?" Mrs. Lundstrom questioned. "Now this beauty belongs to us."

"NEBRASKA IS beautiful," Mrs. Lundstrom stressed.

"Those of us who call it home know that it's beautiful — throughout the whole year."

"In June," said Mrs. Lundstrom, "summer will seize the plains in its torrid grip."

"July finds us watching corn tassels and milo heads, and the ripeness of August hurries to complete its business before the first freeze sends life scurrying below ground."

"In Nowhere, sometimes you can smell the autumn bonfire of your youth, then comes the gift of Indian Summer which is nature's way of reminding us that death is not the end."

"Then, before the calendar marks its official entrance, winter has swooped in on us in a flurry of white."

"The silent season begins — a time to rest, to reflect, to regroup our forces, to enjoy the stillness."

Starzl-powered Trojans finish in state's final four

Northeast Nebraska has produced some fine pitchers over the years and Wakefield's Mark Starzl has etched his name among some of the best.

Saturday the Trojan senior battled Omaha Paul VI batters and his teammates used a balanced attack to earn a 4-0 win in opening round play of the Nebraska State High School Baseball Tournament in Raiston. The tourney had been scheduled four previous times and postponed four times due to rain.

Because Wakefield, Wayne, Laurel and Bancroft are the only schools outside of Lincoln and Omaha which play baseball, all teams were lumped into Class A this year.

Starzl pitched against Omaha's best batters in last year's Nebraska All Star series, fooled Paul VI batters with his breaking pitches. He gave up only one hit—an infield single—and retired 11 batters on strikes. Not one ball was hit out of the infield off of the Wakefield ace. Omaha's number three batter struck out all three times as Starzl demonstrated good control and a mixture of speeds.

Omaha teams feast on fastballs so we relied on breaking balls. Mark threw at least 50 percent breaking pitches," said Wakefield coach Joe Coble. He was real rested and strong. That's as sharp as he's been all year.

THE TROJAN defense made only one error as Paul VI hit nothing but grounders and pop ups. Four Omaha batters reached base on two walks, a single and the lone error. None made it past second base.

While Starzl's pitching and Wakefield's defense handicuffed the opposition, the Trojan offense put some runs on the board. All nine Wakefield batters reached base in the game and four scored. The seven hits were scattered between six individuals.

It was apparent through the Wakefield lineup that the state's 10th rated Trojans had every intention of swinging the bat. The first four batters produced two grounders and two fly balls to the outfield to issue a challenge with their bats.

"Our first couple of hitters in the lineup hammered at the first pitch and made contact. If the pitch was in the strike zone our batters hammered away at it," Coble said.

Junior Wayne Guy broke the hitless string with a single in the second inning. In the third, the Trojans scored their first run

With two outs, number nine hitter Mark Kubik drew a walk. Lead off batter Jeff Coble also walked to move Kubik into scoring position.

Mike Carlson pinch running for Kubik, scored when freshman shortstop Brian Soderberg pounded a grounder toward the second baseman. It was a difficult play and the fielder was assessed an error when his throw to first was wide.

Paul VI collected its only base hit in the top of the third inning. Scott Hendricks nailed a hard grounder back toward the mound and Starzl deflected the ball. It rolled astray in the infield allowing Hendricks to reach base.

WAKEFIELD CONTINUED to pound the baseball in the fourth inning but stranded two runners on base. Clay singled, Wayne Guy hit into a fielder's choice, Kent Roberts dropped a base hit over the infield. Keith Roberts hit into a fielder's choice and Troy Greve was called out in a close play at first base to end the inning. A run would have scored if Greve would have reached base safely.

Apparently unaffected by the close call the Trojans came back with three hits in the fifth inning. With one out, Coble ripped a single and moved to second on a throwing error. Starzl, who struck out three consecutive batters in the top of the inning, launched a double to the left center field fence, scoring Coble. The rally ended with runners on second and third.

A pair of insurance runs were added in the sixth inning. The Trojans again started off with an out but Keith Roberts drew a walk to start a rally. Tom Schwarzen replaced Roberts as a pinch runner and moved to second base as Greve took first base on an error. Kubik drew a walk to load the bases.

Coble made the second out on an infield fly but Soderberg dropped a base hit into shallow center field to drive home two runs. Paul VI, which defeated Omaha Ryan and Omaha Benson in districts, had one final opportunity in the seventh inning. The first batter walked and moved to second base on a wild pitch. The second batter was retired on a fly ball caught by Soderberg.

The third batter hit a ground ball back to Starzl on the mound. The Trojan senior caught Paul VI's base runner in a rundown between second and third for the second out.

The hitter moved to second base on the play in a pickoff play. Starzl caught the runner off base and a second rundown brought an exciting end to the game.

Starzl picked up the victory while Paul VI's number two pitcher Rich Kudlacz suffered the loss. Their number one pitcher Bill Mulligan led the Metro in strikeouts but threw Thursday in district finals.

ONLY THREE SENIORS, Starzl and the Roberts twins, were members of the Wakefield team this past season. Starters Guy and Clay were juniors, Coble and Greve were sophomores and Soderberg and Kubik were freshmen. This is the last year for Wakefield baseball as the program is being dropped at the end of this season.

Coble praised his three seniors and was especially pleased with catcher Kent Roberts.

"Someone is always beating him for all star this or that but I'm not trading him for anyone. He does a superb job," Coble said. "Mark feels he can throw any pitch, any time in any location and not worry about the ball getting by Kent. A lot of his breaking pitches are in the ground but Kent does the job and doesn't expect any credit. He sacrifices himself to keep the ball in front of him. His brother has also done a good job at first base this year."

Coble said his team wasn't in awe of its large Class A foe. "We've played Class A competition the last four or five years and Paul (Midget and Legion coach Eaton) isn't afraid to play anyone in summer ball," he explained. "We weren't scared or trembling."

WAYNE SECOND baseman Bill Vrtiska makes the catch as this Norfolk runner steals second base. The throw was not in time for Vrtiska to make the tag.

Wayne's Legion lost 5-4 to Norfolk Monday night in the Chuck Ellis Tourney.

Legion loses in Ellis Tourney

Two stolen bases and a sacrifice fly in the sixth inning gave Norfolk a 5-4 win over Wayne's Legion team in opening round action of the annual Chuck Ellis Memorial Tournament played Monday at Wakefield.

Wayne led 4-1 through the fourth inning but Norfolk scored one run in the bottom of the fourth, two in the fifth and one in the sixth.

Centerfielder Jeff Dostal drew a walk, stole second base and then stole third. He scored on a sacrifice fly to right field by Troy Jensen.

With Bill Vrtiska on third base, Todd Pfeiffer on second and pinch runner Mark Kubik on first, Todd Schwartz blasted a line shot to the right side. The second baseman made the catch and threw out Kubik at first to complete the double play.

WAYNE TOOK the lead in the third inning when Vrtiska and Pfeiffer scored. Vrtiska walked, Pfeiffer singled and McCright grounded a single into right field. Both runners scored on the hit as fielding error by Norfolk's third baseman on the throw in.

In the fourth inning, Tom Haver reached base on an error and Sperry and Vrtiska drew walks to load the bases. Pfeiffer hit a deep pop-up into foul territory behind first base. An off-balance catch was made and heier tagged-up and scored.

Then, Jeff Allen, Wayne's only returning starter, ripped up a single up the middle to score Sperry. Vrtiska was tagged out trying to score on the play.

Norfolk closed the difference to 4-2 in the bottom of the fourth and then tied the game with a two-run homer by Kelly Kenny in the fifth.

The loss eliminated Wayne from the tournament while Norfolk advanced into the semifinals.

First seeded Westside turns back Wakefield bid

Wakefield's baseball program ended with a loss Tuesday night but coach Joe Coble and his players felt they ended on a winning note.

The Trojans, rated 10th in the state, put up a gallant fight before losing 7-4 to second rated and undefeated Omaha Westside. Westside entered the game with a 16-0 record and was rated behind Omaha Creighton Prep. However, Prep was upset by Lincoln Southeast in the state tourney.

"There's no way we're losers down here. We lost a game but the kids grew into better players and people. We're proud of the program and feel it served its purpose," coach Joe Coble said.

Wakefield lost in district play but qualified for state by virtue of a wildcard berth. All of the state's baseball teams competed in Class A this year since only four teams outside of Omaha and Lincoln fielded teams. This was Wakefield's third trip to state in the past five years.

THE TROJANS impressed the Class A field by defeating Omaha Paul VI on Saturday and then challenging Westside in Tuesday's semifinal game. The game was tied 4-4 at the end of four innings.

"If we could have punched across the lead run we might have been able to hold them. But the kids never laid down—they didn't fold," said Coble. "If we had to end the season on a losing note, it was nice to reach the top four in state before losing. There's not much gloom in Wakefield."

Coble, who said he felt the best team won, was extremely impressed with Westside. "They're a very murderous ball club. All of their scoring came with two outs and usually with 1-and-2 or 0-and-1 counts."

Mark Starzl, Wakefield's workhorse pitching ace, seemed to be bothered some by the short, two day layoff between games. He threw a gem of a game against Paul VI on Saturday.

"Mark had only two days rest and wasn't as sharp as usual. He had a hard time getting his breaking pitch down and had to throw too many fastballs. Westside has an outstanding team."

Westside collected 11 hits compared to three for the Trojans. The Omahans were led by pitcher Jeff Taylor with a homer and two other hits and Steve Mariucci with two doubles and two singles.

Mariucci lined a double to drive home Taylor with two out in the first inning. In the third, Westside threatened to blow the game open with another two out rally. A Wakefield error, back-to-back doubles by Taylor and Mariucci and singles by Rick Dolezal and Paul Meyers resulted in three runs.

THE TROJANS initiated a rally of their own in the top of the fourth inning. Mike Clay and Wayne Guy opened the inning with singles. Kent Roberts walked, Clay scored on a wild pitch, Keith Roberts was hit by a pitch and Wayne Guy scored on a passed ball.

Mark Kubik hit a sacrifice fly to center field to score pinch runner Tom Schwarzen and Jeff Coble drove in pinch runner Mike Carlson with a line shot single.

Westside scored one run in the bottom of the fifth inning and two more in the sixth to claim the victory. Starzl, who pitched 6 2/3 innings, suffered the loss. Wayne Guy threw the final 2/3 of an inning.

Westside was scheduled to meet Omaha Northwest in the state championship Wednesday night. Northwest defeated Lincoln Southeast in Tuesday's other semifinal game.

Randy's Recap

By Randy Hascall

WHILE HIGH school athletes across the state were competing in the rain at the Nebraska Track and Field Championships in late May, more than 1,400 lesser-known athletes were giving it their best shot in a nice indoor facility.

These athletes didn't receive a fraction of the publicity that was given the high school state participants. But, they deserved it.

Those contestants were participating in the Nebraska Special Olympics at Creighton's Kewell Physical Fitness Center. It's doubtful that any state meet contestant tried harder than a Special Olympic contestant.

There were no 10-foot sprinters in the 100-meter dash. And nobody jumped 23 feet in the long jump or cleared six feet in the high jump. Those marks don't stand up to the enjoyment, satisfaction and pride attained by the Special Olympics athletes.

In 1968, the first Special Olympics Games were held and 1,000 mentally retarded children from all over America travelled to Soldier Field in Chicago to take part in what was then a daring experiment.

Two years ago, the Nebraska Special Olympics drew 490 participants. That number was up to 1,400 this year. Some of those participants are confined to wheel chairs. Some can barely walk and others look as normal as your neighbor.

Watching two or three races of the Special Olympics can bring tears to a person's eyes. Not tears of pity but tears of pride. Not tears of sorrow but tears of joy. Special Olympics mean more to some of the participants than any state meet could to most athletes.

There's nothing quite as rewarding as watching a contestant's face light up as he heads toward the finish line with an ear-to-ear smile on his face. Applause echoes in the air as an exhausted runner uses up his last ounce of energy to finish last in a one-lap race.

Parents beam with pride as their children compete against others. In addition to track and field events, participants can compete in swimming and diving, bowling, gymnastics and basketball.

This reporter was fortunate enough to witness about an hour of the Special Olympics between events at the State Track Meet. It was an experience that will not soon be forgotten and one that hopefully will be repeated. The Special Olympics are truly "special."

The motto of the Special Olympics is a motto that can be followed by any athlete: "Let me be a winner; if I can't, let me be brave in the attempt."

THE COLLEGE WORLD Series will hit Omaha again beginning this week and the annual event promises to be exciting as usual.

Several tickets are available for anyone who would like to attend any of the games. Six reserved seats were purchased by Wayne baseball fans and will be sold at cost ($3.50 per session) to interested persons. Each session includes two ball games.

To purchase tickets for a game or for more information contact Galen Wisler at 375-1130 or Paul Otte at 375-2609. The World Series is scheduled June 4 through the 12th or 13th.

Region IV contestants win medals

Jean Lierman won a gold medal in the softball throw to lead Region IV athletes in the Nebraska Special Olympics held May 22 at Creighton University in Omaha.

Eight contestants participated for the Wayne team.

Karyn Lindner won a bronze medal in the 200-meter run and placed fourth in the softball throw. Karen Nieman also earned a fourth place finish in the softball throw.

David Ackman won a bronze medal in the 200-meter run. David Kvols placed third in the frisbee throw and seventh in the softball throw. Larry Kubik was fifth in the 200-meter run.

Dennis Vrtiska placed fourth in the frisbee throw and eighth in the softball throw. Clifford Brown also earned a fourth place in the frisbee.

Coaches were Karen Oswald and Bob Gullickson. Trainers were Mark Shuteff and Frieda Brazeal.

Region IV has scheduled training sessions this summer and is looking for anyone who is interested in volunteering time to assist the trainers. Anyone who would like to contribute money to equipment and uniforms can call Karen Oswald at 375-4884.

The Wayne Federated Women's Club and Winsler Jaycees contributed money for the purchase of athletic uniforms. Pam Boehle made a banner for the Region IV team.

Devils' comeback effort stopped

A seventh inning rally fell just short as the Wayne Blue Devils were edged 7-6 by Omaha South in the high school district baseball semifinals held Thursday at Wayne State College.

The Devils trailed throughout the game but started to charge in the fifth inning and continued to do so in the seventh. Early in the game, defense kept South from putting together a streak.

Jim Sperry fielded a grounder, threw to Steve Overin at second base and Overin fired to Tim Heier at first for a double play in the third inning. Catcher Dennis Lebsack gunned down a runner attempting to steal second base in the second inning.

Trailing 3-0, Wayne scored its first run in the fourth. Jeff McCright drew a walk, stole second base, moved to third on a passed ball and scored on another passed ball.

Overin and McCright added a pair of runs in the fifth. Overin walked. Todd Schwartz singled. McCright drew a walk and Lebsack added a sacrifice. Jim Sperry forced home another run when he drew a bases-loaded walk.

When South scored three runs in the sixth inning, things looked shaky for the Blue Devils. However, Wayne refused to give up and was within one hit of tying the game.

Tim Heier led-off with a base hit, Randy Gamble and Jim Sperry hit into fielder's choices for two outs and Kevin Maly walked. A base hit by Todd Pfeiffer drove home Sperry. Overin drove in Maly with a single and Schwartz clubbed a hit to score Pfeiffer.

Trailing 7-6 with two outs, Jeff McCright filed out to end the game.

Pfeiffer pitched the first five innings and Overin threw the final 1 1/2. McCright finished the year as Wayne's leading hitter with a .419 average. Pfeiffer was right behind at .400.

The loss ended the Blue Devils' record at 7-5.

Laurel eliminates Wakefield nine

In a game delayed two days due to rain, the Laurel Bears eliminated Wakefield from district baseball action on Thursday.

The win advanced Laurel into the district championship against Omaha South while the Trojans had to rely on a wildcard selection to gain a berth in the state tourney.

The game was suspended Monday afternoon when rains drenched the Wayne State ball park. It was resumed Thursday with Laurel leading 6-3 in the third inning.

The Bears scored five runs in the third inning to hand pitcher Mark Starzl his first loss of the year. Starzl didn't pitch on Thursday when the game was resumed.

Laurel scored one run in the first inning, five in the third and three in the fourth. Wakefield scored its three runs in the first inning. Jeff Coble, Brian Soderberg and Starzl scored for the Trojans.

For Laurel, Kelly Robson, Phil Martin and Mark Herrmann each scored two runs. Brian Marquardt, Tim Bloom and Dennis Martinson scored one run apiece.

South eliminates Bears in high school final

Laurel, runner-up in last year's Class B High School State baseball tournament, lost its hopes of an appearance in this year's state tourney when Omaha South downed the Bears 12-6 last Thursday.

The Bears defeated Wakefield to reach the championship game and South defeated Wayne.

South led 1-0 after one inning, 3-2 after two innings and 4-2 after three.

Ron Hirschman and Dennis Martinson scored for Laurel in the second inning but unfortunately the Omahans exploded for seven runs in the bottom of the inning.

The Bears loaded the bases in the sixth and seventh innings but managed only two more runs in those innings.

South advanced to the state tourney while Laurel's year came to an end with the loss.

Athletic awards given at Wayne

The first Wayne Carroll High School all sports athletic banquet sat a successful stage for future banquets in late May.

A meal, a speech by Nebraska assistant coach Jack Pierce, award presentations and special entertainment kept athletes, coaches, trainers and parents entertained for three hours.

The evening's top awards were presented to three seniors, a junior and a freshman. Junior Missy Stoltenberg and senior Eric Brink were named athletes of the year. Seniors Jill Zeiss and Mark Hummel were presented the Warren H. Moller Awards for sportsmanship, scholarship and citizenship. Freshman Karen Longe was awarded the Terry Johnson Memorial Award for talent and hard work by a freshman or sophomore in basketball.

Pierce told the audience that the athletic stars and the last ones to enter are "all the same in my mind."

He reminded the athletes that someone has to lose and said he hoped they have learned maturity to accept defeat. "All tempers and bad actions must be controlled. Bad talk deteriorates the whole system," Pierce said.

The Nebraska assistant also joked throughout his speech and said that all basketball coaches need wives "because it's inevitable that something will come up that they can't blame on the referee."

In addition to the top awards and letters, awards were given in the following sports:

Football: leading defender Tim Heier, most valuable, Eric Brink, most improved, Dan Freyer, captains, Eric Brink, Rich Poehlman.

Wrestling: most pins, Eric Brink; fastest pin, Gerald Monk; most takedowns, Steve Pospishil; most reversals, Steve Pospishil; most team points, Eric Brink; best record, Eric Brink.

Volleyball: most valuable Jill

Zeiss, most improved, Deb Prenger, captain, Sandy Utech, Girls track: most valuable, Missy Stoltenberg, most improved, Lisa Jacobsen, captain, Jill Zeiss.

Boys track: most valuable, Mark Kubik, most improved, Blaine Johs, captain, Mark Hummel.

A four man band called the South Ridge Boys and composer of Wayne High instructors, entertained with a comical song about the Wayne coaches. A group of parents performed a short skit to conclude the banquet.

Mine's Jewelry Store awarded identification bracelets to 10 persons whose names were drawn at the athletic banquet.

Bid rigging: a perpetual state problem

By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

Controversy and impropriety have surrounded the state's highway bid letting system, which is finally getting back on track after a delay of several months.

Federal indictments for illegal bid rigging prompted Nebraska officials to suspend bid lettings on millions of dollars of state highway construction and improvement projects while federal and state investigations continued.

STATE OFFICIALS realized the delay was pushing back the 1982 construction season and might delay some projects until next year, but they weren't about to let bids knowing that illegal bid rigging could take place.

Getting to the bottom of the scandal and making it perfectly clear to violators bid rigging would not be tolerated seemed to be at the heart of the delay.

Although federal indictments still were coming down and the state investigation was ongoing, a late-May bid letting was scheduled for an estimated $57.2 million in contracts.

The state Roads Department said 57 new contractors had qualified for the bidding, and seven of those contractors were somehow associated with bid rigging.

STATE ROADS DIRECTOR David Coolidge said the seven contractor reorganized and dissolved themselves of any connection with indicted, convicted or implicated companies.

The state finally resumes bid letting with record numbers of qualified bidders and a record contract letting. Officials seem fairly certain the widespread attention given to bid rigging will curb the illegal practice in the future, but there's probably nothing that can be done to prevent bid rigging again if conditions are ripe and enough time has passed since this scandal.

Johnson for Thone
Gov. Charles Thone has named one of the Republican party loyalists — and more particularly a Thone loyalist — to coordinate his re-election campaign.

Thone's general election coordinator is state Sen. Lowell Johnson, North Bend, who was Thone's field representative in northern Nebraska when he was our first district congressman.

IN THE EFFORT TO defeat Democrat Bob Kerry in the November gubernatorial race, Johnson will make sure Thone's troops are in line as well as informed.

"He'll make certain that all volunteers, the candidate and employees know what the others are doing and that all are going in the same direction," Thone said in explaining Johnson's role.

Lessons learned in Thone's 1978 campaign no doubt can, and should be, carried into the 1982 contest. The last time around there reportedly was some confusion, with people at times being unable to identify Thone's running mate.

LT Gov. Roland Luedtke ran with Thone on the 1978 ticket, and he won the right to do so again this year. He once said some 1978 campaign workers didn't know who he was, and hopefully that won't happen again this year.

It probably won't because, if for no other reason, Luedtke has the benefit of incumbency to ensure some recognition among the campaign workers.

Money for GOP Senators
The Nebraska Republican party apparently is still trying to determine which of 11 legislative races where Republicans face Democrats will receive financial support for the November election.

In 1980, the state GOP mounted a record effort to get Republicans elected to the technically non-partisan legislature. The effort did help: there were 12 races in which Democrats faced Republicans, and in nine of those contests the GOP won.

BUT STATE PARTY Chairman Ralph Knobel, Fairbury, recently noted the GOP is involved in a lot more races — partisan races — now than it was in 1980. This year, there also are the Statehouse offices and congressional races.

Knobel told a Lincoln reporter the party has budgeted $21,000 for cash and in-kind support for GOP candidates. Legislative races, however, will get a lower priority assignment this year because of the many other partisan races, he said.

The party's state convention will be in Lincoln in late June, and GOP executive director Bill Hamilton said decisions will likely be more solid than about which legislative races will merit contributions.

In the meantime, party officials no doubt will be examining the races to determine which ones are sure bets and which ones pose a potentially significant Democratic challenge.

The prospects of winning, after all, are a factor in determining how badly party support is needed to ensure GOP dominance in the legislature.

Continuing the myth

Time magazine's labeling of Governor Charles Thone as a "colorless conservative" continues the myth of recent years that politicians are elected because of appearance rather than because of programs. Thone was elected to the House of Representatives four times and is finishing his first term as Governor. Nebraska's voters continue to show faith in him not because of flamboyance or the lack of it, but rather because of a reputation for hard work, honesty and a tight-fisted fiscal policy. Nebraska is a state with a small population. Its public officials are extremely visible. We know the candidates and what they stand for. Charles Thone has stood well the scrutiny of decades of public service.

Big brother...?

In an ongoing effort to protect the integrity of the food stamp program, the U.S. department of Agriculture (USDA) has issued two separate sets of rules that enable states to match wage data on food stamp applications with unemployment compensation (UC) and Social Security (SSA) records. The first set implements a law to allow wage matching as an option and the second set is a proposal to make wage matching a requirement.

The incentives to report earnings and benefit payments accurately in filling out application forms should increase substantially once recipients realize computer matching will disclose earnings and benefits information, said Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Mary C. Jarratt.

The first set of rules implemented provisions of the 1980 Amendments to the Food Stamp Act of 1977. It allows state agencies access to SSA data on food stamp participants' wages and other income if the state chooses to use wage matching to deter fraud and abuse in the food stamp program. States will have access to this information as soon as they negotiate data exchange agreements with SSA.

The second set of rules on wage matching is a proposal that will require all states to match food stamp participants' wage data with UC agencies quarterly or semi-annually. This proposal is based on the 1981 Farm bill passed last December.

Information resulting from matching the data through computers would be used to verify a household's eligibility for food stamps and establish the proper amount of benefits. Wage matching would identify those households that receive benefits to which they are not entitled and by aiding in civil and criminal prosecution, would also prevent error and abuse.

Comments on the proposal should be sent by July 6 to Thomas O'Connor, supervisor, policy and regulations section, program standards branch, program development division, food and nutrition service, USDA, Alexandria, Va. 22302.

To the editor:

The recent tornado scare is typical of springtime in Nebraska. Around April 15, after taxes are in and the only other thing left to worry about are tornadoes, the citizenry becomes wary "Is that a tornado or what?"; I overheard one downtown shopper whisper to another one day. The other, quite obviously a retired sporter, told the naive hysterical woman that the "cloud" was in deed not a tornado, it was the top of a roof.

And what about those confusing sirens? I personally saw no confusion present. People, these same ones frightened by severity, calmly drove by, listening to some obscure ballgame on the radio, 1. of all places to be, was serenely bathing at the time.

I heard the siren go off and looked cautiously around for a fire. Finding no fire present (at least not in my bathroom) I proceeded to ignore the whistle.

After I got dressed I heard the news, between innings, ten minutes after the siren had been silenced. As an employee of the care center I felt guilty I hadn't run over to help evacuate the residents. This, in an otherwise rather amusing incident, made me angry.

So, after it was all over and dead news, several late, perhaps also bathing citizens, wrote angry condemnations of our city's alert system. These they promptly sent in to The Wayne Herald for publication. "It blew too long; it didn't blow long enough; there wasn't an all-clear; we don't need an all-clear; the fact we didn't blow away speaks for itself" etc., etc. ad nauseam!

One lady, I'm happy to report, did write a letter to the editor. She'd done it before and instead of finding fault she praised the efforts of the staff in protecting her and her other neighbors at the Wayne care center. We've heard enough bad things about it too! I join Anna Meier in her praise of my fellow aides and staff at the care center for their handling of this whole otherwise bungled affair. I also want to thank her. We certainly need more people like Anna Meier in the world.

Now, which is it? One long blast or one short one?

To the editor:

If you visited Greenwood Cemetery over the Memorial Day holiday I hope you noticed the freshly painted fence and entry. If you didn't, why not drive by and take a look? It looks marvelous and thanks go to dozens of volunteers who helped with the painting and numerous other "clean-up" operations. We are sincerely grateful and the whole community also should be. There were so many kind persons involved in the effort that we hesitate to mention names for fear of forgetting one or two. Suffice it to say that we thank all of you very much.

Agricultural exports bring in 88 billion dollars for economy

As agricultural production has improved in the United States, American farmers have turned to foreign markets to sell their crops. Today one of every three farm acres in the United States goes to produce crops for export, generating more than one-fourth of American farm income.

In 1981, American farmers sold over $41.8 billion of agricultural products to customers overseas. This was an eight percent rise over exports in 1980 and a 450 percent increase over exports 10 years earlier.

For every dollar of agricultural exports another $1.05 is generated in economic activity such as transportation, financing, warehousing and production of supplies sold to farmers. The total impact of last year's exports on the economy as a whole was over $88 billion and more than 630,000 off-farm jobs.

Accentuate the positive

A long time favorite song of mine is the one by Johnny Mercer with the words, "You've got to accentuate the positive, eliminate the negative and don't mess with Mr. In-between."

My best guess is that the economy of our state is about to show significant improvement. Therefore, I think it's time for Nebraskans to "accentuate the positive." By so doing, we will improve the psychological climate for rejuvenation of commerce and industry in cornhuskerland.

WE DO HAVE some solid indicators which to base our positive mental attitude. The latest Nebraska employment figures available are for April when we had 15,700 more people employed in the state than in March. The unemployment rate went down over a full percentage point, from 6.3 percent in March to 5.2 percent in April.

A new study by the Agricultural Council of Nebraska shows that between 40 and 50 percent of all payrolls and corporate profits in metropolitan Omaha can be attributed either directly or indirectly to agribusiness. If our largest city is that dependent upon farming and ranching, just think how closely tied to agriculture the rest of the state is.

And there is some good news in agriculture. Hog prices are better than they've been in seven years. Cattle prices are improving. These better prices for livestock producers, together with the small amount of grain being marketed, surely will force some gain in the prices for grain producers.

Nebraska has not been as hard hit by the recession as most states. The recession hit here late and we have reason to hope it will leave Nebraska early.

If you can invest in Nebraska's economy, I think it would be prudent to do so. And each and every one of us can help improve business and provide more jobs if we "accentuate the positive."

Trade barriers are problem

By M.M. Van Kirk
Nebraska Farm Bureau

Advocates of world free trade policies are finding that further expansion of export markets for U.S. farm commodities are being limited by discriminatory tariffs, quotas and trade practices applied by some of America's best customers.

Total U.S. farm product exports this year are now projected to be off several billion dollars from last year's $43.6 billion. Asian nations, who have now replaced Western Europe as the best U.S. customer for farm product exports, are expected to purchase $13.6 billion worth this year with Japan taking about $6 billion; the People's Republic of China, $1.9 billion; South Korea, $1.7 billion and Taiwan, $1.4 billion, according to United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) estimates.

The USDA figures show that the U.S. agricultural trade surplus may grow to a record $27 billion since the value of agricultural goods imported into the United States, forecast at $15 billion, is expected to be the lowest in four years. That sounds great except that the best customer, Japan, is selling us so many automobiles, electronic gadgets, cameras, etc. that overall they are expected to run up a $20 billion trade surplus for the year.

A RECENT FARM Bureau trade mission to Japan seeking to get the Japanese to increase their imports of U.S. food products, notably beef and citrus products, ran into a hot-bed of opposition from Japanese farmers who enjoy a highly protected position and see no relationship between Japanese automobiles pouring into the American market while strict quotas are imposed on U.S. farm imports. A U.S. steak that costs $4.50 in Hong Kong, for example, would cost $15 or $17 in Tokyo. If it were even available.

Often the U.S. farm group who told that the Japanese people had all the food they wanted to eat, and that if trade was liberalized beef imports would come from Australia, orange juice would come from Brazil and flour from France. The group got more favorable response from manufacturing groups and workers interested in preserving their present highly favorable open access to American markets.

Researchers have reviewed some background on this situation. At the end of World War II, the Japanese feudal estates were broken up into small farms by the U.S. occupation government. People who were landless rural peasants before the war were given small patches of land to farm, basically by hand. The average farm size there today is 2.9 acres. Most of those farmers are now around 65 years of age and their sons have mostly gone to work in the factories.

The U.S. occupation government set up the legislative districts for the Japanese Diet (parliament) so that the rural areas would control the government. The rural people were more conservative than the city people, and the occupation authorities wanted to keep the influence of the socialists and communists at the lowest possible level. The districts have not been changed and the rural areas now control an estimated 60 percent of the members of the lower house of the Diet that has the legislative power.

MOST OF the prime ministers and other government leaders since the end of the war have come from rural areas and each has a group of farm constituents that they must protect. The combination of seeking food self-sufficiency and political power has led to such government policies as supporting rice at $3,400 to $1,500 per ton, three times the world price. Even though Japan has a surplus of rice, it supports soybean prices at $27 per bushel, and limits imports of high quality U.S. beef to 30,000 tons in 1982 when demand is far greater. The Japanese government doubles the import price of wheat before it goes to the miller in order to limit consumption and then uses that money to pay for some of the cost of the domestic farm program.

The Japanese industrial productivity is much to be admired for they import all their raw materials and yet out-produce and out-compete much of the rest of the world. But in effect, their restrictive trade practices cause U.S. consumers to subsidize their economic prosperity to the detriment of the American economy.

Free seed available for wildlife

Seed to plant for wildlife food and cover are available free of charge for youth and other "young-at-heart" Nebraskans, a University of Nebraska extension wildlife specialist said this week.

Ron J. Johnson said the seeds are being made available for the fourth year under a cooperative program between the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission and the Nebraska Cooperative Extension Service.

The seed mixture contains milo, a cultivated sunflower variety and millet, and can be obtained by asking for "wildlife seeds" at Cooperative Extension Service offices, Johnson said.

Each bag contains enough seed to plant a quarter-acre food patch, he said. The sunflower is a cultivated variety grown as a crop in the Dakotas and other states, he added.

Seed from the bags must be used only for planting and not for direct feeding, because it may have been treated with agricultural chemicals, the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources specialist said.

Soybean seminar scheduled

Soybean farmers and elevator operators throughout the Midwest soybean belt will gather in Omaha on June 23 to learn first hand the potential of expanding West Coast shipment of U.S. soybeans to markets in the Far East. The one-day seminar will be held at the Red Lion Inn in Omaha. Registration begins at 8 a.m. with the seminar commencing at 9 a.m.

It is sponsored by the American Soybean Association in cooperation with Pioneer Hybrids.

"Results of the West Coast Shipping Seminar held in San Francisco will be presented substantiating ideas on this increasingly important method of exporting our soybeans," said Marilyn Groot, an Iowa soybean farmer and chairman of ASA's transportation committee. "Processors, exporters, railroad officials, transportation experts, elevator operators and soybean farmers will all be sharing ideas and concerns about the potential growth of soybean exports from West coast ports."

State 4-H conference slated

A day of career exploration in Omaha and a government day experience in the Statehouse will be among the highlights of the Nebraska State 4-H Conference, to be held June 21-25.

"Approximately 200 4-Hers ages 14-18 are expected for the traditional week-long convalesce to be headquartered on the University of Nebraska-Lincoln East Campus," according to Dr. John Orr, University of Nebraska extension 4-H specialist.

Kicking off the conference, with the theme "4-H - The Best Is Yet To Be," is the State Timely Topics Public Speaking Contest Monday morning. Karen Gatzmeyer of Bancroft, president of the Nebraska Porkettes Association, and Nebraska Park Queen, Verlynn Dannehl of Bertrand, will discuss becoming involved in industry associations and volunteer organizations, followed by a picnic sponsored by the Nebraska Porkettes.

Career day in Omaha on Wednesday is designed to give 4-Hers an opportunity to explore career opportunities in visits with local businesses to learn about the job interview process. An evening at the Firehouse Dinner Theater and an exploration of careers in theater management will conclude the day.

A government day in Lincoln will conclude the week with 4-Hers learning about legislative procedures and current issues. An address by State Sen. Dave Landis of Lincoln will be featured. A banquet sponsored by the Lincoln Chamber of Commerce and a dance will follow.

A number of workshops and daily publication of the "Cloverleaf," the conference newspaper staffed by 4-Hers, are scheduled in addition to the other sessions.

Winside girls attend 4-H camp

Two Wayne County 4-Hers attended camp counselor training May 26-29 at the Nebraska State 4-H Camp near Halsey. They are Cynthia and Turena Walde of Winside. Both girls attended the camp on scholarships received from the Knights of Ak Sar-Ben and the Wayne County 4-H Council.

The camp was for 4-Hers age 16 years and older. Cynthia and Turena will utilize the information they gained by serving as senior counselors at District 4-H Camp at Ponca State Park June 29 and 30.

Some of the activities in which Turena and Cynthia participated in the counselor camp include project adventure, camp ceremonies, counseling, recreation and emergency preparedness.

The camp was sponsored by the Knights of Ak Sar-Ben and the Cooperative Extension Service in Lincoln.

4-H sheep weigh-in today

The annual 4-H sheep weigh-in and shearing day will be held today (Thursday). Sheep members should bring sheep to the Wayne County fairgrounds between 8:30 a.m. and 10:30 a.m.

4-H market lambs will be weighed for the rate of gain contest. Sheep will be sheared at the same time. Sheep are sheared now because they will look more uniform at fair time and they will be cooler and gain better in hot weather. Lambs that have already been shorn may still be weighed.

Wool will be sold in order to purchase trophies and sheep equipment for sheep project members.

4-Hers attend shortcourse

Nine Wayne County 4-Hers joined approximately 34 other 4-Hers from Cedar, Dixon, Dakota and Thurston counties on a trip to Washington, D.C. to attend the citizenship shortcourse there.

They are Karen Sandahl of Wakefield, Jon Melcher of Hoskins, Joan Loberg and Shaun Niemann of Carroll, and Steven Bethwisch, Blaine Johs, Connie Hansen, Shelley Emry, and Julie Anderson of Wayne.

The 4-Hers left by bus May 20 and visited such cities along the way as St. Louis, Nashville, Knoxville and the Worlds Fair, Gettysburg and New York. They will be attending the shortcourse at the National 4-H Center in Washington, D.C. June 6-12. The group will then return by plane to Omaha.

The group will be sponsored by Andrew Christensen, Thurston County extension agent, and his wife, and Cindy Willers of Wayne.

Two selected for institute

Renée Wenzel and Michael Muller of Wakefield have been selected to attend the Nebraska Agricultural Youth Institute.

They were selected on the basis of their interest and involvement with agriculture and leadership abilities and potential. Renée is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Wenzel, and Michael is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Muller.

The 11th annual institute will be held July 19-23 at the Nebraska Center for Continuing Education in Lincoln, and is sponsored annually by the Nebraska Department of Agriculture in cooperation with the Nebraska Agricultural Youth Council.

Two hundred high school juniors and seniors will be attending the institute to become better informed on current topics in agriculture and to look at career possibilities.

Water eats away the soil

WATER EROSION has probably never been worse in this part of the state than it has been this spring. And no farm has probably been hit as hard as the Bob Faus farm, north of Wayne on Highway 15. Top soil was redistributed over several acres of land and canal paths were left as the water washed valuable soil.

Beef grading changes proposed

Proposed beef grading changes may have an effect on beef palatability, according to University of Nebraska extension meat specialist, Dr. Dwight Loveday.

"Three proposals are being considered by the United States Department of Agriculture in response to a growing demand by consumers for leaner beef," Loveday said. These are a new USDA proposal, National Cattlemen's Association (NCA), and a "New Grade" proposal.

"Economic times have not been real good for beef producers and the USDA is hoping that by changing the grade standards, producers could make a profit and strengthen the need to produce a greater percent of lean and less waste fat," he said.

"The current USDA beef grading system is a dual system having two separate grade types, quality grade and yield grade. It is a voluntary system in which packers pay a fee of over $23 an hour to sort carcasses into like groups in order to facilitate marketing, he said.

"The quality grades are intended to evaluate the meat palatability while the yield grades identify differences in the percentage of retail cuts," he said.

CURRENT BEEF QUALITY GRADES are maturity - A, B, C, D and E. A maturity cattle are the youngest followed by B, C, D and E being the oldest. "The grade proposal is really dealing with the young cattle, those in the

A and B maturity groups," Loveday said.

A maturity cattle are generally less than 30 months of age. B maturity are between 30 and 42 months of age.

Young cattle (A and B maturity) are graded as prime, choice, good, standard and utility, while the older maturity (C, D and E cattle) are eligible for a commercial, utility, cutter or canner grade.

Marbling is the flecks of fat in the rib eye muscle. The degree of marbling is used to indicate the juiciness, flavor and tenderness of the cut. "A slight degree of marbling is the minimum amount required to get into the current good grade, while a moderately abundant degree is typical of average prime," Loveday said.

One of the three new proposals, the USDA proposal, calls for a reduction in the marbling requirement from slightly abundant to moderate for the prime grade. For choice grade, "the minimum requirement would be typical slight or halfway through the slight degree of marbling," Loveday said. The good grade would consist of traces of marbling and the standard grade would be eliminated. In the B maturity group there would be an increase from one to two units of marbling for each increasing unit of maturity. Also, cattle not meeting the good grade would be graded USDA utility. "The utility grade cattle are generally used in manufacturing sausage and ground beef," Loveday said.

"THERE WOULD BE NO CHARGE in the yield grade, although some groups, particularly certain packing groups, have requested a change in yield grade producers," he said.

"The proposal adopted by the National Cattlemen's Association would call for the lowering of the prime requirements to a moderate degree of marbling," Loveday said. "The big difference between NCA and the other proposals is that it would include all cattle with a slight degree of marbling provided they have 3 of an inch of fat cover and have no more than slightly yellow fat color, which would insure that the cattle have been on a positive plan of nutrition and not coming off of a grass feeding regimen. The good grade would be comprised of practically devoid of marbling and the standard grade would be eliminated.

"The people supporting the NCA proposal suggest that this system would encourage a shorter feeding period, which would result in leaner beef and again give feeders flexibility in

EARTAGS FOR FLY CONTROL

Eartags for control of horn and face flies for beef cattle give excellent control.

Eartags now on the market can provide excellent control of face and horn flies. In University trials last year, tags were effective for 20 weeks and tag loss was minimal. That's considerably better than some of the early tags developed a few years ago.

The ear tags are made by two companies and while they are not exactly the same, they basically provide the same control. One type contains tencelate (ectrin) and the other has permethrin (cybex).

The number of tags used depends on the kind of flies attacking cattle. In face fly areas use two tags per cow and one tag per calf. Yearling steers and heifers should each have two tags. Horn fly control can be provided with only one tag on yearlings and mature cows and no tags are needed on calves.

While ear tags provide excellent control on horn and face flies, they do not provide relief for feedlot cattle which battle stable and horse flies. Horse flies are all over the cattle and stable flies concentrate on the lower legs. Sanitation practices, knock down or residual sprays are used for feedlots.

BEEF COW PROFITS

A measure of reproductive efficiency in the cow herd is the number of cows conceiving early in the breeding season. Special attention involving the breeding herd is particularly important to improving net profit.

In preparing for the breeding season, several management concerns should be evaluated.

The nutrition level must be high enough to support milk production as well as to provide for rebreeding. The number one factor involved in early breeding performance will be feed conditions. If pasture is short it will probably pay a producer to supplement feed for two or three weeks in order to ensure rebreeding performance.

Replacement bulls should be purchased and located on the farm prior to any breeding season. A thorough evaluation of his reproductive tract, semen quality, and overall soundness needs to be made prior to the breeding season so that any sterile or low fertility bulls can be replaced.

The number of bulls needed depends to a large extent on age of the bulls being used and the size of pasture. A normal rule of thumb is that a young bull yearling can serve 15 to 20 cows whereas a mature bull may be expected to serve 30 to 50 cows.

It often pays to watch the herd closely during the breeding season. Animals with noticeable defects such as injury or shy breeders should be replaced immediately. If it is noted that particular cows are returning to heat in the second cycle, bring in new bulls.

More Valley
Corner Systems
every year,

because
it's the least costly investment per acre.

It's going to be harder to make farming pay off in the years to come. Harder for many reasons.

So if anything makes sense, it's to maximize the potential of the land you now farm. Irrigating with a center pivot is one way. Irrigating with a Corner System is even better.

A Corner System can irrigate 19 to 45 more acres than a regular pivot, producing extra income on acres already being farmed. That's why nearly one out of every six pivots sold today is a Corner System.

And when it comes to Corner Systems, nobody knows more than Valmont. They're proven reliable with nearly 3,000 systems in operation. That's at least 20 times more than any other brand.

Before you buy any center pivot, see us. We'll tell you how a Valley Corner System can add to your bottom line profits while being the least costly investment per acre.

Valmont dominates the field.

Today
management is the difference.

Today the management skills required for maximizing profits or minimizing losses are different than those needed before.

Today's successful producers recognize that it's not "business-as-usual" and adjust. They accept the challenge and discipline themselves to make the difficult decisions needed — from decisions affecting the conduct of their business to those affecting home and family needs. They examine every management resource and evaluate their own management skills.

The economy is hard, but with management equal to the times, it's workable... profits are being made. It's survivable... losses can be controlled.

The producer who rises to meet today's challenge will build a stronger, more efficient foundation from which to enjoy the opportunities ahead.

Today, management makes the difference.

Heavy rainfall may have washed nitrogen

Have heavy rains leached away (moved below the crops' root zone) some or all of the costly nitrogen fertilizer farmers applied earlier on fields to the extent that additional nitrogen must be applied?

"The answer can be yes, no, or perhaps—depending on the kind of nitrogen carrier used and how much moisture has moved through the soil," according to R. A. Olson, professor of agronomy at the University of Nebraska.

"Nitrogen will not move through the soil any faster than the wetting front of water that carries it," Olson explained.

"The average medium textured soil in the state holds around 2 1/2 to 3 inches of water per foot depth. Thus, to move nitrogen that is leachable out of the 6-foot rooting depth of soil, 15 to 18 inches of moisture, all of which penetrated into the soil, would be required," he continued.

FEW PLACES in Nebraska have received that amount of effective moisture—meaning no runoff—this spring, Olson said. In sandy soils, however, the amount of water required to leach nitrogen out of the root zone would be much less—in the order of six to eight inches, he pointed out.

The second consideration is the kind of nitrogen carrier used, some are readily leachable and others are not, Olson stated.

"Approximately two thirds of the nitrogen fertilizer used in Nebraska is an anhydrous ammonia. It's doubtful that much of this material has moved beyond its initial zone of placement from either fall or spring application. The soil simply has not yet become warm enough for extensive nitrification to occur—the process that changes the non-leachable ammonium ion to the readily leachable nitrate ion," Olson stated.

In the case of ammonium nitrate, the readily leachable nitrate ion portion of this material could have been leached to whatever depth moisture has penetrated from spring rains since the time of application, Olson confirmed.

"The case for the 28 and 32 percent nitrogen solutions constituted of urea and ammonium nitrate is more complicated," the agronomist said. The urea component is leachable immediately on its application. But it is also changed over to ammonium (non leachable) nitrogen in soil quite rapidly even at cool temperatures.

"Thus, with extensive rainfall received immediately after fertilization, much of the urea and the one-fourth that is nitrate could have moved to the depth of moisture penetration since application. But this is not likely and most of the material should be found as ammonium nitrogen within the surface foot or two of soil," Olson said.

The final consideration on possible fertilizer loss concerns the amount of denitrification that may have occurred under water-logged conditions where water has stood in a field, he said.

Here, again, it is only the readily leachable nitrate ion form of nitrogen involved where microbes use the oxygen in the nitrate, releasing the nitrogen in gaseous form. The non leachable ammonium form is perfectly safe as far as this type of potential loss is concerned," Olson concluded.

Liska attending Institute

Bert Garvin, director of the Nebraska Department of Agriculture, has announced the acceptance of Bob Liska, Wayne, to attend the Nebraska Agricultural Youth Institute (NAVYI).

The 11th annual Nebraska Agricultural Youth Institute will be held July 19-23 at the Nebraska Center for Continuing Education in Lincoln.

TWO HUNDRED high school juniors and seniors will be attending the institute to become better informed on current topics in agriculture and to look at career possibilities within the industry of agriculture.

The Institute is annually sponsored by the Nebraska Department of Agriculture in cooperation with the Nebraska Agricultural Youth Council, a group of 22 college-age counselors who assist in the planning and implementing of the program.

All costs and institute fees, including meals, lodging and sessions, are paid for by the Nebraska Department of Agriculture.

LISKA's selection was based on interest and involvement with agriculture and leadership abilities and potential.

He is the son of Dr. and Mrs. J.J. Liska.

Hardwood trees being hit by Anthracnose diseases

Anthracnose diseases stimulated by steady rains and cool temperatures over the past several days are threatening many hardwood trees in eastern Nebraska. A University of Nebraska forest pest specialist said last week. Mark O. Harrell said the diseases are caused by fungi and are very common on green ash, maple and sycamore.

Harrell said the plant disease diagnostic laboratory on the NE East Campus and Cooperative Extension Service offices around the state are fielding many calls about ash anthracnose and questions about maple and sycamore are expected to start pouring in soon. Anthracnose fungi infect buds, leaves and twigs, with the first symptoms generally recognized on the leaves, Harrell said.

"Infected immature leaves typically have patches of brown, dead tissue, and the remaining part of the leaf is somewhat curled because it has continued to grow around the dead areas," Harrell stated. If leaves are infected after they have expanded, they will have the brown, dead patches but will not be curled, he continued.

"It is common for leaves to fall from the tree if much of the leaf tissue has been killed. Infected twigs and elongating shoots may have brown, dead areas, or they may wilt and die completely."

It is generally too late to treat anthracnose if the symptoms have already been observed, Harrell advised. Anthracnose is seldom serious enough to warrant the use of chemical controls, because a healthy tree will quickly replace the leaves it has lost with new ones, he explained. If a tree has been severely infected and defoliated, an application of a balanced fertilizer will help it to recover strength. Removing fallen leaves may reduce the severity of later infections. If chemical controls are desired, fungicidal sprays need to be applied beginning at budbreak, Harrell concluded.

Herbicide authorized

The Nebraska Department of Agriculture has authorized special local need registration of the restricted soybean herbicide Hoelon, University of Nebraska extension pesticide training specialist Emery Nelson said Thursday, May 20.

The special registration—for Nebraska only—became effective Thursday and continues for one year. It was granted as a special local need because of the late planting season and the need for a postemergence control for grassy weeds. Because of delayed planting, farmers may not be able to use the usual soil-incorporated herbicides, he said, or the usual products may not be as effective.

Hoelon, manufactured by the American Hoechst Corporation of Somerville, N.J., is a restricted-use pesticide, meaning that it can only be used by certified pesticide applicators, Nelson said.

Applicators who use Hoelon are required to wear gloves, water-proof boots, impermeable pants and shirts, goggles and a cartridge type respirator during handling, mixing and ground application, Nelson said. Hoelon is not registered for aerial application in Nebraska.

Lunch was served by Mrs. Cheryl Svoboda.

Next meeting will be June 14 at 2 p.m. in the Wakefield Park. Members will go swimming and have a picnic supper at the park. Kudi Nelson, news reporter.

Dad's Helpers
Several demonstrations were given at the May 10 meeting of Dad's Helpers 4-H Club.

Monica Nelson gave a demonstration on rabbits and told how to groom a 4-H calf, and Chona Van-Buskirk presented a demonstration on cameras.

Mr. and Mrs. Olson showed slides on market lambs and rabbits.

Upcoming 4-H events include a trail ride in the Newcastle-Maskell area on June 5 from 4 to 6 p.m., and a bicycle meeting for club members at the Concord park on Saturday, June 5, at 12:45 p.m. Members need not bring bicycles.

A horse judging contest is scheduled June 9 at the Pitzer ranch near Burwell. There will be a district horse show at West Point on June 24, and Ponca Day Camp at the park on June 29-30.

with other products, Nelson said, nor should another product be applied to a field within one week after use of Hoelon.

"Hoelon is highly toxic to man, other warm-blooded animals and fish," Nelson emphasized. It is to be kept out of lakes, streams, ponds and drainage basins and is not to be applied within 100 feet of aquatic habitat. It should not be applied when weather conditions favor runoff or drift.

Further, farmers should avoid contaminating arable land or water through cleaning of equipment or disposal of waste, Nelson said.

Despite the need for extreme caution, Nelson said the special registration of Hoelon is an important break for soybean producers. "We haven't had a real good product to use postemergence on soybeans for grassy weeds. It's an added tool but one we must be careful with."

Nelson noted that Hoelon has federal registration for use in 13 other states.

Wayne Vets Club
Try our Thursday Night's Special and be sure to be at the Vets Club at 8 p.m. for the Give-Away drawing.

Next regular meeting will be June 14 at 8 p.m. at the Northeast Station, near Concord.

LESLIE LIVEWIRES
The Leslie Livewires 4-H Club met May 17 with all members in the Lois Svoboda home. Pender Members discussed mowing Pleasant Valley Cemetery for Memorial Day.

Games pertaining to 4-H furnished the entertainment.

Next meeting is scheduled June 21 in the Ivan Svoboda home. Valorie Krusemark, news reporter.

Program lets farmers inspect for insects

Insects can be a serious problem in grain storage. In fact, a bin of grain can be ruined if an insect problem is not watched closely.

Now, farmers can test their corn free of charge through a self-help program offered in Wayne County. The Integrated Pest Management program, originated by Wayne County Extension Agent Don Spitze, is believed to be the only such program in the United States.

Farmers should inspect their stored corn every two or three weeks during the warm growing season and every four to six weeks in cold periods. Inspection includes checking grain for odor, crust, webbing by insects or warmth. Then, if a problem is suspected, the self-help program—a thorough examination—will be helpful.

There are two other reasons to use the program. One is if grain is to be stored through the summer and the other is if a farmer is uncertain whether to sell or keep his grain.

"If a farmer wants a thorough inspection, the only sure way is through this program," said Spitze. "Anyone who is interested in the program should contact the Wayne County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) office."

Farmers may then check out equipment and instructions to inspect their stored corn.

The program was initiated because of a survey done by Spitze two years ago. Many possible insect and temperature problems were found in 200,000 bushels of corn that were tested.

After a farmer checks out the equipment from the ASCS office, he takes it to his corn bins. Then, he follows the following steps:

1. Temperature of corn should be checked.
2. Samples should be taken to check for moisture and insects.
3. A visual inspection is recommended to check for webbing and crust on the surface.
4. Moisture samples should be placed in plastic bags provided and labeled.
5. Surface samples should be taken. Some insects live only on the surface of stored grain.
6. The farmer should place the samples in the sieve and shake so insects will fall through into the flat pan. The insects should be identified, placed in bottle of alcohol provided and labeled by location in the bin.
7. The equipment should be returned to the ASCS office and ASCS Agent Ray Butts will make a moisture check and take the insect samples.
8. Information pertaining to the test will be forwarded to Spitze.
9. Spitze will inspect the insects under a microscope, write out a recommendation and send it to the farmer.

A sieve allows insects to filter through.

The corn temperature is taken.

A new Lake Erie

SOME FARMERS may need motor boats to venture into their fields after several weeks of heavy rain. This farm near Laurel resembled a fishing pond last week. The only things missing were fish and ducks. The excessive rains have delayed planting and washed out many fields which were planted before the rain. Farmers are hoping their fields dry out enough to allow for planting, replacing and cultivating.

Know about your SSI resources

People in the Northeast Nebraska area who receive supplemental security income (SSI) payments should remember to keep close track of their resources - what they own, including money, Dale Branch, Social Security district manager in Norfolk, said recently.

There is a limit on the amount of resources a person can have and still be eligible for SSI payments. The limit is $1,500 for an individual and $2,250 for a couple. Not everything counts, however, Branch said. The home a person lives in does not count. A car or small insurance policies may not count, depending on their value.

What does count is money, stocks, bonds, and other similar items of value. Money includes cash on hand and checking and savings accounts. Accounts include those owned by a person alone as well as joint accounts.

A PERSON MUST REPORT TO Social Security if the total value of all resources rises to above the allowable limit. Failure to report can result in an overpayment, which must be repaid. A penalty can also be imposed for failure to report.

Resources of parents, a husband or wife, or sponsors of eligible aliens can also affect SSI eligibility.

SSI is a Federal program that provides a basic cash income to people in need who are 65 or older or blind or disabled. Although SSI is administered by Social Security, its funds come entirely from Federal general revenues, not Social Security taxes.

More information about proper SSI reporting can be obtained at the Norfolk Social Security office, located at 1310 Norfolk Avenue, Norfolk, NE. The telephone number is 1 800-442-8310.
