Store's future unsure

"There are parties interested in purchasing the Wayne store and it's not one of the stores originally scheduled to begin going out of business sales due to closing," said Robert Portwood, J. M. McDonald's main store.

"THE ALTERNATIVES differ for each store," said Portwood. "Each case is different from the other." The corporation which owns the J.M. McDonald Co. store in Wayne, Wickes companies, Inc., has filed for bankruptcy under Chapter 11 of the federal bankruptcy code.

FOR WAYNE'S STORE, the possibility exist that it will be forced to close, however, there are interested parties, according to Portwood, but they may be more interested in the building's location than in the store and its merchandise.

Council drops election day liquor ban; possible paving application receives approval

Residents living South of Fairground ave. in the Nebraska street area who are tired of poor streets and water problems may get a reprieve, and, with any luck, it could be better than first expected.

Tuesday night following an update by city administrator Philip Kloster, the council voted to approve an application for a grant totaling $119,200 which will be used to pave the area South of Fairgrounds streets and update the water system for the area.

Kloster told the council the city has been trying to work with residents of the area to find out just exactly what the problems are in the area and how they can best be corrected.

PEOPLE FROM THE city, Kloster said, have been in touch with them numerous times.

"Thanks to the efforts of councilmember Darrel Heier, we recently had a meeting here with people who lived in a one block area. All evening we talked and worked out the cheapest method possible for a water project and paving, Kloster said.

In the mean time, back in November of 1981, Kloster and Mayor Wayne Marsh, attended a meeting scheduled by the Department of Economic Development and the Northeast Council of Governments.

Kloster explained that with President Reagan's new Federalism program, the area of grants to cities is being turned back to the states, here in our area, through the Department of Economic Development and the Council of Governments.

IN MARCH of this year, again Kloster along with Heier, attended a second meeting with the Council of Governments to learn more specifics on the grant guidelines.

"Shortly thereafter we decided there were a couple areas we might be able to apply in for the grant," Kloster said.

Since then, Dennis Hirschbrunner, who is employed for engineering services by Wayne, did a work-up on the project as a favor to the city and the application was written.

"We're looking at a total project of $149,000," Kloster said. The project will include paving for two blocks of Nebraska st. from Fairground ave. to Connable; two blocks of Windom st. from Fairground ave. to Connable and one block of Folk st. from Nebraska st. to Windom st.

Deadline for filing the grant application is June 15. Kloster told the council he expects to receive word back sometime in July.

"If the grant is not approved this year, the city will have to look at paving just one block of Nebraska st."

THE COUNCIL ALSO approved 5-2 an ordinance which, in effect, will allow the sale of alcoholic beverages in Wayne on the primary election day.

The ordinance gained quick approval Tuesday night, with the necessary three readings rule suspended by vote. Voting against the passage were councilors Heier and Darrel Fuelberth.

Before the voting, Heier asked if this (allowing election day sales) was the way most communities were going? Councilor Gary Vopalensky said it was his understanding this was the route the Unicameral had intended when the legislation was approved to allow the sales.

Also during the evening, the second reading on an ordinance regulating the maintenance and placement of trees in the public right-of-ways was given a second reading.

RICHARD STAFFORD, an attorney representing the Curt Fryes of Wayne, was present to formally review a tort (liability) claim the Fryes have with the city.

On three separate occasions, two toward the end of 1981 and the third in January, the Frye's sanitary sewer backed up.

According to city officials, each time the problem was corrected and, early this year at the direction of Kloster, the Fryes presented a memo and bill to the city for the costs they incurred.

The claim was passed on to the city's insurance carrier, Employer's Mutual Company, who recently told the city that nothing should be done on the matter.

STAFFORD TOLD THE council they are really under obligation to the Fryes, not to the insurance carrier. He also said in addition to the tort claim there may be legal contract problems as well.

City attorney Ken Swarts recommended the council go along with the insurance companies request and do nothing.

"According to Nebraska law," Swarts explained, "once the tort claim has been filed, there is a six month waiting period before the matter can go to district court." He added that in many cases the claims are withdrawn before they can reach district court.

Problems with the rental of tables and chairs from the city's auditorium was also on the agenda Tuesday night.

KLOSTER TOLD THE council there are problems in scheduling times for picking up and returning the equipment since the city no longer has a full time auditorium manager.

"A lot of the tables are in poor repair and some of the chairs are in a bad way," Kloster said.

Councilors agreed, suggesting that some of the chairs are 30 years old or more.

Kloster outlined a plan for the council which dealt with giving some of the equipment to the National Guard Armory and, in turn, they would add to the donation and take over the renting of tables and chairs.

"THERE WOULD HAVE to be arrangements made in such a way so the city could borrow the equipment rent free when extra is needed," Kloster said. "Wayne State would have to be included in that arrangement because they generally can use everything we have."

Councilors agreed that the idea had merit however they deferred the matter until the next meeting, June 29. City officials will be preparing facts and figures for the council, specifying how much equipment is involved and the revenues the city would be losing if they got out of the rental business.

Wayne fiscal year 1982-83 budget drops 13.8 percent

A total budget for fiscal year 1982-83 has been projected for the city of Wayne to be about 13.8 percent less than the current 1981-82 year budget according to city officials.

The city council has been meeting this past month to consider budget issues as presented by the city's staff.

During a public hearing, scheduled for July 13, city residents will be asked to give their approval for a budget totaling $5,058,316. That's $812,030 less than the current $5,870,346 budget.

THE SAVINGS OVER the current year budget mainly come from $372,000 in bonding reductions. Another $185,000 in savings will come from a reduction in extension projects. Extension projects are such things as capital replacement or additions, which the city feels next year they will not be able to afford.

Employee wages for the next fiscal year will see increases of about 4.31 percent across the board.

"There are a couple employees who will be receiving more but most of the employees will generally fall around that increase level," according to city administrator Phil Kloster.

Initially, city officials had recommended a 4.4 percent increase for employees, however, the council refigured the recommendation and came out at the lower 4.31 percent level.

For Kloster's position, however, the council voted unanimously to raise his salary 7.1 percent.

WITH THE NEW salary schedule approved June 8, salaries will range from grade 1, part-time at $3.35 to $5.35 per hour to grade 20, $7.15 to $9.65 per hour.

Individual fund comparisons between the current year and the 1982-83 budget show the general fund will increase from $881,956 to $976,932.

The electrical fund is currently set at $3,327,191. It will decrease for next year to $2,716,774.

Revenue sharing is also expected to decrease next year from $89,412 to $68,184.

Revenue sharing is one area that has affected the way the budget will be figured this year.

ACCORDING TO KLOSTER, in previous years, revenue sharing money has been used for the purchase of books and periodicals for the library and for equipment and capital purchases by the police department.

This year, these items have been put back into the next budgets instead of coming from revenue sharing.

percentage increases in the library and police budgets, but actually those increases are deceiving. You have to look at the past to realize why they seem so high," Kloster said.

The library budget in the general fund will increase 26.8 percent over the current year budget. The police department's will increase 15.5 percent.

In other general fund areas, the administrative fund will increase 5.4 percent; the recreation area is up 7.7 percent over the current year and the senior citizens budget is 6.2 percent higher than the current budget.

THE COUNCIL IS also attempting to build up a higher cash reserve than the city has previously relied upon for emergency or unexpected costs.

"In 1980-81, the cash reserve was about $10,000. We've been able to increase that the past year so this coming fiscal year will see a reserve of $21,000 or a $45,000 increase.

Cities the size of Wayne are allowed a reserve of up to $250,000.

If the city can keep a good cash reserve year to year, it will lower the chances the city will have to borrow money for emergency use at high interest rates.

Republican resolutions approved

During the Wayne County Republican convention on June 4, the delegates approved 12 resolutions which had previously been drawn up under the direction of Mrs. Fay Mann, former county chairman.

The resolutions approved are:

- We recognize that the foundation of America is based on faith in God, the constitutional Republic and the free enterprise economic system and that everything possible must be done to preserve all three.
- We deplore the size of the national debt — over $1,000,000,000. National government spending must be decreased.
- All government budgets must be balanced and the government debts reduced by cutting spending, not by increasing taxes. This must be done at the earliest opportunity.
- We endorse the Reagan philosophy to lower inflation and improve the economy.
- We commend Governor Thone for vetoing salary increases for the constitutional officers and judges and for lowering the cost of state government.
- We recommend that aid to college students be limited to the truly needy.
- The federal Department of Education should be abolished — not made into a Foundation.
- We recognize that no special rights for homosexuals should be legislated.
- We urge that the state Department of Education enforce the state statutes (79-213; 79-216) that pertain to patriotism and citizenship.
- Parents must have the primary right and responsibility to make all decisions concerning the care and education of their children within the limits of the United States constitution. We urge repeal of all laws, rules and regulations that limit this right and responsibility.
- We urge that state and federal laws be changed and grant to any farmer storing grain in a state approved elevator the right to claim his grain and remove such commodities before any legal claims can be made on a bankruptcy of an elevator.
- We urge adopting the gold standard to stabilize our monetary system, to end the grain embargo to the U.S.S.R., to raise the price of grain to Soviet bloc countries and to demand payment in gold.

Police investigated criminal mischief at the Roller Rink and Wellman's parking lot areas and several wreckless motorcycle incidents. A fight between two male individuals, early Tuesday morning, was broken up by police, and several dog at large complaints resulted in impounding of some animals.

Hot shooting Erwin breezes to Wayne Memorial win

Dale Erwin drives the ball on number two.

Photography: Randy Hascall

Gusting winds didn't seem to affect Dale Erwin as the Sioux City golfer burned up the Wayne Country Club course with a four-under par 104 to win Sunday's Wayne Memorial Golf Tournament.

Erwin fired a 68 on the first 18 holes and then coasted to a par 36 on the final nine to win by five strokes over Bob Prazak of West Point.

Wayne's Jay Stollenberg, using a 40-year-old putter given to him by his father, put together his best performance on the course to finish third with a score of 110. His ball seemed to have eyes on many of his putts.

The second lowest score by a Wayne golfer was a 115 turned in by Cole Froeschle, a junior to be at Wayne High School. Si Prather shot a 117 and Bill Erickson carded a 119 to round out the list of Wayne golfers who made the top 25.

ERWIN SCORED eight threes, 16 fours, two fives and a six over the 27 holes. He had a three-under par round of 33 on Wayne's back nine and finished the day with nine birdies.

Stollenberg, playing consistently, carded five birdies and had no worse than a five on any hole.

Craig Waugh of Atlantic, Iowa, Larry Sock of Norfolk and Steve Belitz of Omaha all shot identical scores of 115 on the final nine. Twenty-five golfers who had best scores on the regulation 18 holes qualified for the final nine.

A total of 174 golfers competed in 12 flights. Wayne winners were Ken Whorlow with an 81 in the third flight, Royce Anderson with an 83 in the sixth flight and Max Kathol with a 92 in the 11th flight.

The first flight was won by Pete Sponder of Sioux City with a 77. Kirby Marsh of Plainview won the second flight with an 80.

The fourth flight was won by Jack Best of Stanton. The fifth flight was won by Bob Forinash of Omaha.

Doug Raelz of Stanton won the seventh flight with an 83. Jerry Heitshusen of South Sioux City won the eighth flight with an 88. Jim Mabie of Pender claimed the ninth flight with an 88 and Ken Christiansen of Pender won the 10th flight with an 89.

All ties for places were determined by a sudden death playoff from the scorecards. The Wayne Open Golf Tournament is scheduled July 31.

Laurel's 7th inning rally counters McCright's slam

Kelly Robson's one-out, double to the center field wall scored Jamie Johnson for the winning run in the bottom of the seventh inning as Laurel's Legion team nipped Wayne 11-10 Monday night in Ralph Bishop League play.

The game was a slugger's duel with both teams putting together explosive innings. Host Laurel jumped out in front right away with six runs in the first inning. Wayne scored six in the top of the fourth.

Brian Marquardt had one of the most important hits in the game when he led-off the seventh with a single. Jamie Johnson then beat out a bunt.

With no outs, Laurel coach Bob Weisenberg gave batter Robson the bunt sign. Both runners took off on the pitch but Robson didn't bunt. Marquardt was called out at third base on a line throw from Wayne catcher Dennis Lebsack to Todd Pfeiffer.

Johnson stole third base on a wild pitch and Robson redeemed himself when he launched a fastball into deep center field. Johnson easily scored the winning run as the ball hit the outfield fence on the fly.

THE COMEBACK capped fine offensive showings by several Laurel players. Ron Hirschman led the way with a three-run homer, a double and a single in four plate appearances.

Brian Marquardt went 2-for-5 at the plate. Dennis Martinson was 2-for-3 and Robson was 2-for-5. The hosts pounded out 13 hits on the night.

If it had to be a disappointing finish for Wayne which rallied back from a five-run deficit. Probably the most disappointed was Jeff McCright who helplessly watched the winning hit fly over his outstretched glove.

McCright blasted a grand slam home run in the fourth inning and played excellent defense. He made two diving catches to save runs and pegged a nice throw for an out at second base to save another run.

Laurel's big first inning knocked Wayne starting pitcher Todd Pfeiffer out of the game. Brian Marquardt, Jamie Johnson and Dave Marquardt all reached base on errors and Hirschman's three-run homer gave the hosts a 4-0 advantage.

Dennis Martinson walked, Tim Bloom singled and Mike Jonas rapped a double to bring home both runners.

TRAILING 6-0, Wayne gradually cut Laurel's lead. Pfeiffer led-off with a double in the first inning and scored on a single by McCright.

The visitors added another two runs in the second inning. Jim Sperry, Tim Heier, Bill Vrfska and Al Lindsay all drew consecutive walks. Jeff Allen drove in another run when he grounded out.

In the fourth, Heier led-off with a double. Vrfska and Lindsay walked and Pfeiffer singled. With bases loaded, McCright hit his grand slam homer. Todd Schwartz followed with a stand-up triple and scored on a Laurel error for a 9-6 lead.

Wayne added to its lead in the fifth when Heier smacked his second consecutive double and later scored on Al Lindsay's base hit.

That put an end to Wayne's scoring and Laurel rallied for five runs in the final three innings to gain the victory.

In the bottom of the fifth, Dennis Martinson, Tim Bloom, and Mike Jonas scored. Hirschman and Martinson singled and Tim Bloom reached base on an error to load the bases in the sixth. Hirschman scored the tying run on a sacrifice by Mark Herrmann.

The Marquardt twins teamed up to pitch the distance for Laurel. For Wayne, Pfeiffer started and was relieved by Bill Vrfska. Todd Schwartz pitched late in the game.

Laurel is scheduled to play Midget and Legion games at Wakefield Friday and Wayne will play Midget and Legion contests at Emerson.

Chuck Ellis tourney

Laurel takes runner-up trophy

Small town Laurel gave metropolitan Sioux Falls all it could handle in the championship game of the Chuck Ellis Memorial Tournament played last Friday in Wakefield.

The game was tied up when a missed fly ball allowed the Dakotans to score the winning run in the bottom of the seventh inning for a 4-3 win and the first place trophy.

"We played aggressively," Laurel coach Bob Welsenberg said. "We ran the bases well and competed real well."

Phil Martin limited Sioux Falls to eight hits and Laurel scored three runs to make an excellent challenge.

The Dakotans scored in the first inning but Laurel tied the game in the fourth. Jamie Johnson drew one of his three walks, stole second base and took the next two bases by virtue of errors.

Laurel reached the championship game with wins over Sioux City Heelan and Emerson.

Midget squad takes advantage of 16 walks to defeat Laurel 11-7

Laurel's pitching troubles led to a downfall as the Wayne Midgets literally walked away with an 11-7 victory Tuesday in Ralph Bishop League play at Laurel.

The winners drew 16 walks and took advantage of Laurel errors to put runs on the scoreboard. Laurel's comeback attempt in the fifth and sixth innings just wasn't enough.

Chris Wieseler led Wayne in batting with a double and single in three at bats. Laurel was led by Brian Haisch and John Chace with two hits apiece.

THE HOSTS PUT scored the game's first run in the first inning when Mike Granquist walked and was driven home on a double by John Chace.

Wayne scored a pair of runs in the second inning. Pete Warne reached base on an error and stole second and third bases. He scored on a passed ball. Randy Gamble added the other run when he walked, moved to second on a passed ball and came home on Chris Wieseler's double.

Kyle Daberkow ripped a two-out double down the left field line for Laurel in the bottom of the inning. He stole third base and scored on a wild pitch.

The third inning was the big one for Wayne. Jeff Jorgensen walked. Todd Dorcay sacrificed him to second base. Rick Nelson walked and Pete Warne's sacrifice brought in a run. Don Larsen reached base on an error and another run scored.

After Gamble walked and Wieseler singled, Steve Overin hit a sky high infield pop up. The ball was missed and three runs scored on the play. Overin stole third base. Kevin Maly walked. Jorgensen walked and Todd Dorcay walked in the run.

Wayne protected its lead by countering with three runs in the top of the inning. Jeff Sherer walked. R.J. Mettler reached base by virtue of an error and Rick Nelson drew a walk. Dan Gross reached base with an error and Darrin Barner and Wieseler both walked.

THE HOSTS RALLIED in the bottom of the fifth with three runs on two walks, an error and two hits. Mike Dietrich reached on an error. Granquist drew a walk. Chase grounded out. Mark Herrmann walked and Brian Haisch lined a two-run double. Brent Haisch brought him home with a single.

Another two runs in the sixth inning cut the final margin to four runs. Dietrich and Granquist both scored on a double by Chace—his second on the game. Rick Nelson went the distance and struck out seven batters to pick up the pitching victory for Wayne.

Laurel is scheduled to play at Wakefield Friday and Wayne plans to play at Emerson.

Rosters for teams in the Wayne Men's Slow Pitch Softball League must be turned in to a board member by June 12. The deadline was originally set for June 1 but extended due to the many rain delays in the season schedule.

Team captains should turn the rosters in to either League President Denny Robinson, Vice President Randy Hascall or Treasurer Ron Brown. Sanctioned teams must have their rosters in to the state by June 15.

The league officers also decided that last week's postponed games and any previous postponed games can be made up at the conclusion of the regular season.

To help cut costs of Koch's trip, a fund-raising drive was started in Winside. Donations may be made at Winside State Bank.

Budget

THE COMING FISCAL year will also see a carry forward amount of more than $75,000. The city must operate for about 4 months at the old assessed tax level when the new fiscal year begins, even though the operating costs have increased.

"What this means is for about four months we have a gap bet ween revenue costs and expenditures. The carry forward amount is necessary to cover that gap each year," Kloster explained.

The main area that will see increased expenditures for this coming fiscal year will be public works and energy costs.

"We've got to start doing some conservation measures such as work with storm windows. We're projecting we can get some of this work done this year in order to save money down the road," Kloster said.

The public hearing on the budget will be held on the regular council meeting date. The public is invited to attend and review the budget with councilors.

Vets reimbursed for correspondence classes

The Veterans Administration is now able to reimburse Vietnam era veterans and eligible dependents for correspondence training begun after Sept. 30, 1981.

which had been imposed for fiscal year 1982.

INDIVIDUALS MAY now receive reimbursement for 55 percent of the total cost of correspondence lessons completed and submitted to the school.

He said that Vietnam era veterans and dependents who have been continuously enrolled in correspondence training since Sept. 30, 1981, are not affected.

Most Vietnam era veterans enrolled in correspondence training under the contributory veterans education program continue to receive full reimbursement.

Smith urged eligible veterans or dependents who started correspondence courses since September, or plan to, to contact the VA Regional office in Lincoln for details.

Tiny tots treated

TINY TOTS OF THE LAUREL community were entertained Friday by the 12 members of the Magic Fingers 4-H Club as part of the club's child development project. Three and four-year-olds taking part in the outing made peanut butter play dough, colored balloon pictures, made clown faces on paper plates, took part in a bean bag toss, were treated to a puppet show, and served a lunch of hot dogs, finger gelatin and clown ice cream. Jeanie Adkins is leader of the 4-H Club, Megan Adkins, upper left photo, shows off her newly painted clown face, while Jeff Wattler, upper right photo, blows up the balloon nose on the clown-faced paper plate he constructed. Little Alicia Parks, bottom right photo, enjoys her popcorn and the puppet show at the same time. Youngsters in the center bottom photo take aim for the bean bag toss, and Erica Iverson, bottom left photo, discovers that the peanut butter play dough is as tasty as it is fun.

Market lamb show entires

Entries are due June 16 for the 1982 Nebraska Spring Market Lamb Show to be held June 26 at Fanner Park in Grand Island. Doyle Wolverton, extension 4-H livestock specialist at the University of Nebraska, said the show is open to all Nebraska 4-H and FFA members who were not 19 years of age by Jan. 1 of this year. Persons 19 and older may enter in the adult division. All lambs exhibited will be consigned to slaughter and carcass data will be gathered. Exhibitors may enter a maximum of three lambs. The minimum weight at show time will be 90 pounds, and classes will be divided by weight, not breed, Wolverton stated.

Entries should be sent to Tom Drudlik, Hall County Extension Office, 2925 W. Stolley Park Road, Grand Island, Neb. 68801. A $1 entry fee is payable at weigh in.

An evaluation contest and meats identification program will be held at 10 a.m. followed by the show at 1 p.m.

Sponsors include Fanner Park, the Nebraska Sheep Council, Grand Island Chamber of Commerce, Nebraska Registered Sheep Breeders, NU Cooperative Extension Service and John Morrell & Co., Slough Falls, S.D., where the lambs will be slaughtered and carcass data evaluated.

Leadership, environment camps set

Approximately 310 Nebraska 4-Hers are expected for the 1982 Leadership and Environment Camps to be held at the State 4-H Camp located in the Nebraska National Forest near Halsey.

Louie Rudman, extension 4-H youth development specialist at the University of Nebraska, said that Leadership and Environment Camp is designed for young people ages 13 to 19 years old.

"One of the main objectives of the camp is to develop leadership talents in areas of outdoor education that will better enable teen leaders to assist in leading projects when they get home," Rudman said. Workshops in outdoor education, project adventure, wildlife, energy, fisheries and others provide a wide choice for involvement, he added.

Dates for this year's camps are: June 7-11, June 14-18 and July 5-9.

USDA seeks twin-producing cows

Cows not more than eight years old, that have a history of producing twins and are located within a 600-mile radius of the Roman L. Hruska U.S. Meat Animal Research Center (MARC) at Clay Center are being sought for use in a research study.

According to project leader Dr. Keith E. Gregory, research geneticist at MARC, breeds of primary interest in the project are those that seem to have a relatively high twinning frequency — Holstein, Simmental, Brown Swiss, Gelbvieh, Charolais and Shorthorn. "Cows must also be free of communicable disease and structurally sound," he said.

"The cows will be used to determine the effectiveness of selection for twinning in cattle, as well as gaining understanding of biological factors involved in ovulation rate and embryo survival in cattle," Gregory said.

Cows to be purchased will meet one of three standards for twinning history — three sets of twins out of the first five calving, two sets of twins out of the first three calvings, or twins at first calving if there is an outstanding record of twinning by close relatives, he said.

Cows that have an outstanding record of producing twins are put in an embryo transfer program in order to increase the number of their progeny in the project. "Thirty cows representing the Holstein, Simmental, Charolais and Shorthorn breeds have been acquired during the last year for this project, but more are needed," Gregory said.

Anyone with a cow meeting the criteria is asked to contact Gordon Hays, Roman L. Hruska U.S. Meat Animal Research Center, P.O. Box 166, Clay Center, Neb. 68933 (telephone 402 762 3241).

Dixon County 4-H sheep day

The Dixon County 4-H Sheep Shear, Weigh, Tag Day is scheduled for Saturday, (June 12) from 8 a.m. to 12 noon at the Dixon County Fairgrounds, reports Stan Starling, county extension agent. The shearer this year will be Harold Murdoch of Onawa, Iowa. 4-H members can sell their wool to the buyer at current prices or can keep it if they prefer. The fee for shearing will be $1.30 per lamb.

The lambs will also be weighed and tagged. The official weigh in marks the beginning of the 4-H rate of gain for the 1982 Dixon County Fair. Sheep project leaders are asked to help with the weigh in, tagging, and shearing. All 4-H Sheep project members are encouraged to attend.

Dairy days planned at Laurel

The Laurel Chamber of Commerce is planning for June Dairy Days on Friday and Saturday, June 25-26.

June 25 will be a day of fun and games for all. Any organization including ball teams, 4-H Clubs, church groups or senior citizens may provide a stand and operate the games. They will be set up on a profit sharing basis. If your group would like to reserve a booth you may contact Armin Urwiler or Marlene Jussel at Laurel.

Storage loan rates down

Commodity and farm storage facility loans disbursed in June by the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Commodity Credit Corporation will carry a 13.625 percent interest rate, according to CCC Executive Vice President Everett Rank.

The new rate, down from 14.125 percent, reflects the interest rate charged CCC by the U.S. Treasury in June, Rank said.

Farm Bureau picnic Monday

The Wayne County Farm Bureau picnic will be held at the home of Melvin "Bud" Froehlich, 614 West 3rd Street in Wayne, at 7 p.m. Monday (June 14). All farm members and any prospective members are invited. Each family is asked to bring a salad or vegetable dish, cookies or bars and also lawn chairs along with table service.

Please make reservations at the Farm Bureau office by June 11.

Grain certification deadline near

Farmers having oats, barley, wheat or other small grain crops are reminded to report these acreages to the County ASCS office no later than June 15. This word comes to us from Erwin Morris, chairman of the Wayne County ASCS Committee.

Morris advised that all producers should report their crop acreages to the ASCS Office. Even those not participating in the acreage reduction program will have their crop history preserved for future programs if they report their acreages.

Acreages of other program crops can be reported at the same time small grains are reported if plantings are complete. This could save another trip to the ASCS office later, Morris said.

Several farmers did not report by the deadline last year and came in later to certify. "We can accept late filed certifications," Morris explained, "but if costs the producer a measuring certificate fee and evidence of the crop will not be in the field."

Helpful snakes often unwanted

With warm weather, snakes are out in full force and moving about. Snakes are plentiful this season, and people see them around homes and in lawns and gardens. The question, what to do about them and are they dangerous?

Ron Johnson, University of Nebraska extension wildlife specialist, says these snakes generally are harmless ones such as garter or bullsnakes. But people often don't like to see these near their homes.

"To discourage snakes around homes, the number one thing to do is remove hiding places such as boards, tall weeds, trash or rock piles," Johnson advises. "Close openings where they might get into buildings or under porches or foundations, and, if necessary, you can even construct a snake-proof fence." If you see snakes around your home, you can kill them with a long handled hoe or club.

But, Johnson advises, "Snakes eat lots of mice and insects and are an important part of our natural environment, so if they're not where they're causing you a problem it's best to leave them alone. Snakes do not dig holes, but they may use holes made by other animals, he adds.

Johnson notes that myths about snakes abound. For example, snakes are dry and smooth and not slimy as many persons think. They are cold blooded which means their body temperature changes with the temperature of their surroundings. On a hot morning, a snake likes a place where he can sun himself and get his body temperature up so he can move around. Conversely on a hot day, a snake must get under something to keep from drying out and dying from overheating, because it doesn't sweat.

cows or stick out their tongues to hypnotize their prey, Johnson continues. The tongue picks up air and the snake smells with that air because it has an olfactory organ in the top of its mouth. When a snake sticks out his longue at you, he's kind of asking your name or what do you want," he adds.

Nebraska is home to only four kinds of poisonous snakes, he points out. The prairie rattlesnake can be found in western Nebraska, while three others are very infrequently found in southeastern Nebraska. Those three are the Massasauga rattlesnake, the timber rattlesnake and the copperhead snake.

How can you tell a poisonous snake if you should encounter one? All have vertical eye slits, Johnson explains — "like a cat's eye, only vertical." In addition, all of Nebraska's poisonous snakes are pit vipers, that is, they have a two- to three-millimeter pit ahead of the eyes and behind the nostril on each side. The pit is smaller than the snake's eye and is a heat sensitive spot which helps the snake aim when it strikes.

The home gardener isn't at all likely to encounter any of the four poisonous snakes, Johnson emphasizes, so if a snake is not where it's causing you a problem, it may be best to just leave it alone.

IRIS SHOULD BE REPLANTED NOW

Probably the most grown flowering plant in Nebraska is the iris. Irises become crowded after five to ten years, and usually they divide in size and appearance.

To correct that is simple—the irises need to be dug and divided. And now—after they have bloomed—is the best time to do that. Before digging, cut the leaves to one-third their height. Lift out the whole clump with a spading fork and wash away the soil. Cut the rhizomes (those rootlike underground stems) with a sharp knife. Each division should have at least one fan of leaves and some good roots.

Then replant, allowing space for the plants to multiply. Planting depth should vary with soil type. The top of the rhizome should be just below the ground level.

HARVESTING ASPARAGUS

When the spear size of asparagus begins to decline in the asparagus bed, it is time to stop harvesting the crop. Eight to 10 weeks of harvest is usually maximum harvest for a mature asparagus bed.

After the harvest is complete, several maintenance steps should be taken to assure an equally good harvest next year.

Two pounds of urea or ammonium nitrate per 1,000 square feet side dressed on the rows after harvest will increase vegetative growth and strengthen the plant for next year's production. If fertilizer is unavailable, compost or well-rotted manure should be used on the asparagus bed after harvest.

Simazine, a preemergent herbicide, could be used in the asparagus bed after harvest is completed. If label directions are followed many weed problems will be solved after using simazine.

STRAWBERRIES

Only vigorous planting of June-bearing strawberries should be maintained for next year. Weak, weedy or diseased plants should be destroyed following harvest.

June-bearing strawberry beds should be renovated immediately after harvest. Yields and size of berries are usually less in second and third year beds.

Row widths of June-bearers should be narrowed with a cultivator or plow. Original plants in the center of the row should be plowed out, leaving a row six inches wide to the right or left of the original row. Spacing between the new rows, center to center, should be four feet. Cultivate between new rows and use mulch to kill competing weeds.

Commonly asked farm questions

- Q: I certified my oats as grain before June 15, now I decided to participate in the program and use some of the oats acres as Conserving Use Acres (CUA). Can I change my certification?
- A: Yes, however, remember to clip the oats before the dough stage. The change must be reported to an ASCS Office as soon as possible.
- Q: What is the smallest my Conserving Use Acreage can be?
- A: One acre and at least 66' wide. There are limited exceptions and if you think you may be entitled to one, please check with this office.
- Q: I want to plant more Soybeans this year. Is this OK?
- A: Yes. There is no planting limitation on such crops as soybeans, Sudex, etc.
- Q: Should I certify my acres, even though I do not plan to participate in the program?
- A: Yes, all producers should certify their acreage in order to preserve the history on the farm. This could be very important in future years.
- Q: Am I able to disc the oats on CUA instead of clipping them?
- A: Yes, however, they may not be allowed to mature and a cover must be left on the land.

There is still time to hit rootworms

If you didn't use a corn root worm insecticide at planting time this spring, your corn crop may be in trouble, says Dr. Wayne Smith, crop production specialist with Technology Resource Systems, Chicago. He reminds farmers that a cultivation application may be in order.

Smith refers to the new practice of applying a soil insecticide when cultivating. With this post plant application, growers can still act to protect their corn crop. Smith points out that growers can make the cultivation treatment for approximately $10 per acre, and it is the only remaining option to protect against rootworms. He states that losses from rootworm range from 8 to 12 bushels per acre. In severe cases, the yield loss can reach 20 bushels.

European corn borers can also be controlled with the same equipment, and both can be done during normal cultivation with new, multi-purpose applicators—though not at the same time.

For corn borers, a spreading accessory drops the insecticide into the whorl of the three foot high corn. Drop tubes put the insecticide at the base of the plant for rootworm control. The equipment is available from most farm machinery dealers.

Control at cultivation depends on soil moisture to activate the chemical, Smith said. But, unless there is an unusual lack of moisture, the cultivation time application will control rootworms. "If a grower missed his planting time application, his only alternative right now is cultivation time use of a corn rootworm insecticide," he said.

Banvel Herbicide is your best choice for velvetleaf control in 8" to 24" corn.

Banvel Herbicide hits the broadleaf weeds 2,4-D gets, plus many more.

If you've been disappointed in your 2,4-D weed control. Now's the time to look at Banvel Herbicide.

Apply Banvel in 8" to 24" corn to control dozens of broadleaf weeds, including: velvetleaf, pigweed, smartweed, sunflower and cocklebur.

Banvel penetrates leaf surfaces. Plus, it moves through the soil to attack weed roots. Then translocates throughout the broadleaf weed, killing leaf-tip to root-tip. Yet Banvel offers excellent crop tolerance. No other herbicide comes close. Not even 2,4-D.

For best results, always use drop nozzles when the crop is 8" or taller. By directing the spray under the corn canopy, you'll hit more weeds for better control.

If you have broadleaf weed problems in 8" to 24" corn, make your best choice for best control. Banvel Herbicide. See your ag chem supplier today.

A WELL-MAINTAINED grass waterway will carry runoff water without erosion and is an attractive addition to a farm. This particular waterway has existed for 10 years at the Bernard Splittgerber farm south and west of Wayne.

Grass waterway fights erosion

"A grassed waterway is not a waste area," says Larry Wetlerberg, SCS district conservationist. "It is an essential part of the soil and water conservation practices on your farm."

Maintaining a good grass cover will protect the waterway from erosion from runoff waters it conveys. Moderate use for pasture or hay is one of the best ways to maintain grass vigor. Control the grazing on the waterway as you would on a well managed pasture.

Leave enough plant growth to maintain a healthy, vigorous stand. Grass should have about six inches of top growth before going into the hot summer and winter months. Do not mow or graze the waterway when the soil is wet and soft.

It may be necessary to fertilize your waterway to keep a vigorous dense grass growth. Soil tests will show whether you need fertilizer and how much. Mowing or spraying may be needed for weed control.

Check your waterways after each rain. Washed out areas should be repaired with sod or filled with topsoil and reseeded.

Avoid all vehicle and equipment travel up and down the waterway if possible. If you must occasionally use your waterway as a road, drive along the edge and not down the center. Care should also be taken when applying herbicide near a waterway.

Spray drift or runoff may damage or kill some species of grass and expose the soil to water erosion.

Well maintained grassed waterways will support your other conservation practices, which insure the value and productivity of your land. For assistance with waterway maintenance or selection of grass species to fit your needs, contact your local Soil Conservation Service office.

Agricultural leaders are sought

Young agriculturists, ages 25-40, with proven leadership potential have until June 30 to apply for acceptance in the two-year LEAD (Nebraska Leadership Education Action Development) program.

Dr. Jim Horner, LEAD program director, said that the second group of 30 individuals, 24 in production agriculture and six in supporting agribusiness, will be selected to begin the program in October 1982.

This fall, at the same time that the newly selected group begins its program, the class selected in the summer of 1981 will begin its second year in the leadership development program.

"The LEAD program is sponsored by the Nebraska Agricultural Leadership Council chaired by Mickey Stewart, executive director of the Nebraska Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service. It is designed to develop recognized local community leaders as effective spokesmen for Nebraska and agriculture," Horner said.

period as well as two study/travel seminars. One of the travel seminars will be to sites in the U.S. while the second travel seminar will be abroad.

Cost to participants will include transportation to and from the seminar sites. All other seminar and travel costs will be paid by the Council.

"Estimated worth of the fellowship received by each of the 30 participants selected is about $10,000 for the two year period," Horner said.

During the LEAD program experience, participants (Fellows) are expected to:

- Develop a higher level of self confidence and progress in achieving their potential
- Sharpen their leadership and communication skills.
- Become knowledgeable to public affairs, government, monetary and fiscal matters, environmental concerns, domestic and international trade and foreign relations.

Initiated in 1981 by a seed money grant from the Kellogg Foundation, the council is also supported by businesses, industries, colleges and universities around Nebraska.

Junior livestock show is planned at Wisner

The Wisner Jaycees are pleased to announce that good community support again surrounds the seventh annual Wisner Junior Livestock Show. The event will be held July 9-11 at the River Park.

Chairmen for this year's show are Bruce Bloedorn and Chuck Popken, and co-chairmen Curt Llerman and Randy Stelmeyer.

Only minor changes have been made in rules for the livestock show. Participants from Cuming, Wayne, Stanton and Thurston counties are encouraged to take part in the show. The addition of cash prizes for the grand and reserve champions of the three market divisions and dairy, coupled with trophies should make this one of the finer livestock shows in the Midwest.

The event will unfold Friday, July 9 with weigh-in from 5:10 p.m. Ball games are scheduled and a square dance will be held at 8:30 p.m.

Judging of livestock will take place from 8 a.m. to approximately 10 p.m. A new attraction this year will be a pet show for pre-4-h children starting at 2:30 p.m. The tractor driving contest and frisbee contest will occur simultaneously at 3:30. This year's show will feature a tractor pulling contest starting at 5 p.m.

Along with the tractor pull will be a pedal tractor pull allowing 5 to 10 year age drivers a chance at a ribbon or trophy. At 8 p.m. Saturday there will be a puppet show presented by Kurt Hunter and at 9 a free dance will begin with the queen coronation.

On Sunday the annual Horse show unfolds at 12 noon. The car rally will also return at 1 p.m. The parade will begin at 5:30 to avoid the heat. Following the parade will be the barbecue.

Entertainment for the evening will feature a mime and a totally new and unusual event called "Almost Incredible", which will be hosted by area community clubs. The auction of trophies will follow and cash give away names drawn.

Decision time is near

Farmers with nine-month ASCS loans on grain stored in 1981 must weigh the cost of storage and interest against the possibility of market price increases before they decide to extend their loans, according to Dr. Roy Frederick, University of Nebraska extension economist.

The loans, most of which have an interest rate of 12.25 percent and come due in July or August, can be extended for another six months, he said. Farmers who extend their loans can wait for better prices, but they also must pay the cost of added interest and storage.

"If interest plus storage is less than the increase in price, that would be the major reason for applying for a six-month extension," he said.

Options for farmers with the nine-month loans will be the subject of the Nebraska Educational Television network show, Farm and Ranch Report, on May 10 at 12:30 and 9:30 p.m. Frederick and Doug Jose, an NU extension farm management specialist, will discuss the mathematics of making the right decision.

For example, if the original loan was at $2.40 a bushel with an interest rate of 12.25 percent, in nine months the principal plus interest would equal $2.70 a bushel, Frederick said. If a farmer continued to store the grain for six months, it probably would end up costing $2.90 a bushel, he said.

"Unless the market price equals that, there would be no reason to store. The longer you hold it, the more you would have to pay price increases," he added.

The cost of carrying grain has gone up considerably in recent years, Frederick said. Farmers with ample on-farm storage may want to extend their loans if they expect corn prices to rise. However, producers who have signed up for the Reduced Acreage Program may make more money by moving out old crop corn and using the storage space to put 1982 corn into the reserve, he said.

Loans on nearly 70 million bushels of corn in Nebraska come due during July and August, Frederick said. This represents slightly less than 10 percent of total 1981 production in Nebraska.

"If you look at it on a percentage basis, that's not much. But if farmers could pick up 10 cents a bushel on that, it would mean 7 million more dollars," Frederick said.

Agriculture is still the backbone of this country. Some people have forgotten that. But more and more of them are finding it out again. The television pictures of empty grocery shelves in Poland can't help but bring home to consumers how fortunate they are.

They may never realize the toil, the frustrations, the grief and sometimes the disappointments that go into making sure our citizens stay well-fed. But then, few of them will ever know the pride in a row of corn breaking through the soil, the pleasure in watching a new calf nurse for the first time. Or the satisfaction in seeing a youngster take the wheel of a tractor by himself.

Despite today's trials, let us not forget the heritage that is American agriculture.

It's going to be harder to make farming pay off in the years to come. Harder for many reasons.

So if anything makes sense, it's to maximize the potential of the land you now farm. Irrigating with a center pivot is one way. Irrigating with a Corner System is even better.

A Corner System can irrigate 19 to 45 more acres than a regular pivot, producing extra income on acres already being farmed. That's why nearly one out of every six pivots sold today is a Corner System.

And when it comes to Corner Systems, nobody knows more than Valmont. They're proven reliable with nearly 3,000 systems in operation. That's at least 20 times more than any other brand.

Intelligent voters look beneath the labels

by Melvin Paul Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

If Time magazine's characterization is to be believed, Nebraska's November gubernatorial election pits a "colorless conservative" against "an imposing speaker."

That characterization translated to names, of course, reads Republican Gov. Charles Thone vs. Lincoln Democrat Bob Kerrey.

Time examined politics in the nation's heartland in a story with the subtitle "GOP Governors in the Midwest are giving up or losing ground." Thone was viewed as a Republican governor who is losing ground.

THE INCUMBENT GOVERNOR in Republican strong Nebraska offers a slight, if different assessment from Time's Thone. He acknowledges he's "not the flamboyant type," and considers himself "a down-to-earth Nebraska type."

Both Time's and Thone's assessments have merit. But the basis of those assessments won't be the determining factor in November's election.

Thone, after all, is the same man Nebraska picked four years ago to lead the state. He no doubt is still viewed in many quarters as colorless, conservative, down to earth and not flamboyant.

The numerous media reports about the May 31 Time article said less about Kerrey than the magazine did. Time noted "some of his causes — a gay rights ordinance, for instance — may be too permissive for his generally conservative state."

THAT NARROW EXPLANATION of Kerrey points up the key difference between the two gubernatorial hopefuls. Kerrey does take stands on controversial issues, while Thone frequently does not.

Reporters who cover Thone at the Statehouse sometimes get frustrated because of the governor's apparent reluctance to announce his position on issues. That is especially true during legislative sessions.

Kerrey at the moment seems more willing to state his position, but there's no guarantee that would continue if he was in the governor's office.

Based on Thone's four years in office, Nebraska can mold their own views on what kind of a job he has done. If they're satisfied, they'll probably leave well enough alone and reelect him.

IF NEBRASKANS ARE disappointed with the job of their so-called "colorless conservative," the alternative is Kerrey. It's not what type of speaker or person a candidate is that matters, it's what they've done, what they can do and whether they can be trusted to lead the state.

Nebraskans in November won't be voting for a "colorless conservative" or "an imposing speaker." The intelligent voters must look beneath the labels and support the candidate that seems to best represent their views, needs and desires.

Rarely in government is an agency, board or commission exempt at one time or another from charges of political motivation.

That charge at times has been — and will be — made of every branch of government, and each of its subunits. The allegation isn't new, but it makes news every time it's levelled.

A recent example is discussion of a proposal to create an independent revenue production board. Democratic gubernatorial candidate Bob Kerrey, Lincoln, suggested the board, with an eye on impartiality in setting tax rates.

Once again, the current state Board of Equalization has faced allegations that it is politically motivated. The tax-setting board is dominated by Republicans, headed by Gov. Charles Thone.

KERREY APPARENTLY figures an independent board would be exempt from political motivation. It might be, but probably even a so-called impartial entity is subject to charges of political motivation from people who disagree with its actions.

As long as political rivalries and party politics are part of the system, charges of political motivation are inevitable.

And even if party politics no longer existed, like-minded people are bound to disagree. If the phrase "political motivation" was no longer applicable, detractors would find some other way of expressing their disagreement. Perhaps "personal motivation" would become the byword of the day.

It's unlikely Kerrey's proposal for an independent revenue production board will fly this year. It hasn't met widespread opposition, and some politicians didn't even know it was proposed. But it's a low priority suggestion.

EVEN IF SUCH AN entity were created, a person probably would be dreaming to think it could be viewed in all quarters as being totally impartial.

Perhaps the state Board of Equalization should get out of the tax-setting business. A lot of Nebraska politicians think the Legislature should have that role, something that occurs in many other states.

If the Legislature was the tax-setting body, charges of political motivation still would exist. But at least the decisions — politically motivated or not — would be made by more politicians than the current five who set tax rates.

Card carrying workers?

In Richard Leshner's column this week, he discusses a plan by Senator Alan Simpson (R - Wyo.) for controlling the tide of illegal aliens into the United States.

Leshner said the plan puts a great burden on businessmen who would be required to obtain some major form of identification from a person before they would be allowed to work.

"While the bill is short on specifics," he said, "it is likely that after three years a national identity card would be issued to every U.S. citizen and permanent resident."

The entire area of illegal aliens in the United States is wrought with moral and legal questions that our representatives have been wrestling with for some time.

Leshner's argument is that Senator Simpson is attempting to pass part of the burden from federal to individual jurisdiction and, in the process, he suspects we'd all be issued work cards.

I'm not all the pleased with the present system we have yet it is a much better system than that proposed by Senator Simpson. I agree with Leshner but for different reasons than he later advocates. He assumes businesses would have problems but would comply and play the detection game by the proper rules. I don't.

Each year we hear and read story after story about someone being caught employing illegal aliens and paying them little to nothing in return for their work. Slavery cases have also been reported.

By placing part of the burden of detection on businesses it seems unreasonable to assume more not less problems would occur with unscrupulous employers.

For this reason and his "McCarthy like" notion of everyone carrying work cards, I cannot support Senator Simpson's proposed legislation.

Illegal immigration

by Richard L. Leshner
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

Controlling the flood of immigrants and refugees to our shores is quickly emerging as one of the most serious challenges of the decade. As I've said before, despite our problems America is still a box office smash — and the whole world is trying to get in.

A lesser nation would solve this problem simply by slamming the door shut. But welcoming manageable numbers of the world's oppressed and impoverished peoples has been and must remain an important part of our heritage. At the same time, Americans have every right to expect that the tide of illegal aliens be controlled and that newcomers do not overtax our limited resources, jobs and social services.

Finding a way to perform this balancing act through legislation is no simple task. With the backing of the White House, Senator Alan Simpson (R-Wyo.) has formulated an approach that will be considered on the Senate floor within several weeks. I respect the Senator and his efforts to call attention to the problem, but unfortunately, there are features of his bill that should be reconsidered.

PROVISIONS SUCH AS these miss the mark, while making targets out of law-abiding citizens. Employer sanctions would not be effective in stopping illegal aliens from entering the country, or even from obtaining jobs, given the easy access to forged identification. Instead, they pass the buck to millions of businesses and workers who would have to conform to yet another routine of regulations, red tape and paperwork. The bill paid by the taxpayers would be enormous — at least $2 billion for photo identification cards alone, not to mention the countless bureaucratic costs. These burdens would fall most heavily on smaller businesses and discourage job creation.

The responsibility for securing America's borders belongs to the federal government and the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service. Yet, today there are more guards patrolling the halls of Congress than are patrolling all of our nation's borders. In one south Florida port, for example, three border guards are on duty between the hours of 8 a.m. and 12 midnight. It doesn't take a genius to figure out the best time to enter the country from that port.

The Senate bill seeks to attack a serious problem, but in the process would create a new one: unnecessary and unwarranted intrusion in the workplace and the private lives of Americans. It is time to better police our borders, rather than our law-abiding citizens and businesses.

Far reaching implications for Great Plains

Congressman Doug Bereuter recently made clear his continuing support for the Prairie Bend project and for a conflict resolution study that would set future priorities for all water resource development on the Platte River in Nebraska.

In a statement before the House Interior Committee's Subcommittee on Water and Power Resources, a committee on which Bereuter serves, the First District Congressman emphasized that these two measures and a third, addressing the problem of groundwater recharge (H.R. 6187), are all sound water development projects that are desperately needed in the water-short High Plains region.

Bend study was introduced by all three members of Nebraska's House delegation and the broader Platte River measure is sponsored by Bereuter and Second District Congressman Hal Daub.

Speaking of the broader study, intended to resolve conflicts about use of the water, Bereuter said, "Although I fully support the Prairie Bend proposal, I do believe that it is essential that the needs of all Nebraskans be considered as the state proceeds to allocate these waters and attempts to maintain the required minimum stream flows for fish and wildlife habitat."

BEREUTER NOTED that the Prairie Bend project would help recharge local groundwater tables which have suffered some of the most significant declines of any area of Nebraska in recent years.

The congressman expressed optimism that the panel would approve both H.R. 5536, a Prairie Bend feasibility study, and H.R. 6188, a broader study of Platte River water resource use and development. The Prairie conflict resolution bill would simply provide the necessary federal funds for a cooperative state — local study already approved in Nebraska.

In the course of the hearing, the committee also heard from Administration officials about Bereuter's bill to provide the Bureau of Reclamation with an entirely new approach for water resource management and development in the High Plains states.

Bereuter's bill, the High Plains States Groundwater Demonstration Program Act, would authorize the Bureau of Reclamation to design and construct at least 12 such demonstration projects in the High Plains states of Nebraska, Colorado, Kansas, New Mexico, Oklahoma, South Dakota, Texas and Wyoming to explore the concept of artificial groundwater recharge.

IN ADDITION, the measure would also grant specific authority to the Bureau of Reclamation to alter existing projects to make use of groundwater recharge and to design and construct future projects using the concept. Finally, the bill requires the development of a method of assessing the benefits and costs of groundwater recharge to project beneficiaries.

In opening remarks before the subcommittee, Bereuter said, "This bill has the most long-range implications for the future of water resource management of any water legislation in many years, perhaps since the original 1902 Reclamation Act. I believe that further research and exploration of this concept could result in a feasible and cost — effective alternative to the economic disaster which will certainly accompany the depletion of our groundwater supplies."

Price supports questioned

By M. M. Van Kirk
Nebraska Farm Bureau

For the past 50 years the political answer to helping farmers and ranchers deal with their problems of inadequate market prices resulting from over production, has been to ask Congress to increase government price support levels, as is now going on with various proposals to rewrite the 1981 farm law.

To question the wisdom of such proposals has always been as politically damaging as to vote against increases in welfare or Social Security benefits. As a result, politicians, even though they may acknowledge privately that such remedies invariably are counter productive, are inclined to vote for them to avoid a sweeping denunciation from their political opponents at the next election.

A PRIME EXAMPLE of how the policy of high price supports, with periodic built-in increases mandated, can work against the long-term best of producers is to be found in the dilemma of the dairy support program. A 3-year buildup of government-held dairy stocks encouraged by higher and higher price support levels induced dairy farmers to keep an estimated million head of excess milk cows in production despite declines per capita consumption of dairy products.

This has meant that the Commodity Credit Corp. has been buying and storing the excess fluid milk which has been converted to dry milk, cheese and butter. Last year the government unloaded 243 million pounds of butter that was going rancid, injecting it into the international market through New Zealand. Recently the Commodity Credit Corp. has been giving away millions of pounds of cheese, which is better of course than letting it spoil. The program however is extremely costly and nobody seems to know how to get rid of the huge surpluses. And worse, the dairy producers are encouraged just to keep on producing at maximum levels.

The situation has become so intolerable and so expensive that even the Congressional representatives from the major dairy states have admitted that there must be some sort of end to it. The catch is to find a way to maintain a viable dairy support program that will provide a floor under milk prices without encouraging production of large quantities of milk for which there is no market now or in the foreseeable future. So far that kind of solution has never been obtained because through the years it has been politically rewarding to do otherwise.

THE SAME PRINCIPAL apply to all the other commodities involved in government support programs. Started originally as loan programs to help farmers hold their crops off the market at harvest time and sell them later in the year when prices were more favorable, the programs in the 1950's, 1960's, 1970's and now the 1980's have consistently built up troublesome surpluses whenever export demands slackened off. Currently, with both domestic and export sales falling behind, billions of bushels of wheat and feed grains are stored under various government programs and with meager prospects for relief of the situation.

So the answer, it seems to many of the farm interests testifying for current "crisis remedies" pending in Congress, is to increase the levels of government farm commodity support. On the basis of past history, this will encourage greater production, add to the costs of building more storage facilities, prolong storage investment, and further depress the operation of the cash market.

The same economic principles work worldwide. The Japanese support their rice farmers at levels three times the world price and are feeding surplus rice to their livestock. The European Common Market nations maintain tremendous support levels for their farmers and are subsidized the sale of their surplus dairy and grain products on the international market. This complicates export markets for U.S. farmers.

The sad part is that such solutions are not saving farmers in this country or anywhere else in the long term nor are they providing food for the very large segment of the world's population which goes to bed every night with empty stomachs.

IF YOU AREN'T IN LEGAL TROUBLE, WHY DO YOU NEED A LAWYER?

A better question might be "When do you need a lawyer?" At one time or another, everyone needs legal advice and the best time to get it is before legal trouble occurs. Like preventive medicine, preventive law can save you a lot of money and misery. So, the answer to the question, "When do you need a lawyer?" is, "Now." As a matter of fact, an annual legal checkup is a good idea. That way your lawyer can catch and cure small difficulties before they grow into big disputes. Talking to a lawyer costs money. But legal advice from anyone other than a lawyer could cost you a fortune.

BIBLE SCHOOL
The Concordia Lutheran Church held their Vacation Bible School May 31 to June 4 daily from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. with 25 students and nine teachers and helpers attending.
The general theme was "Living in God's Love."
The kindergarten class course, "The Life for Me" was taught by Jeannine Anderson and assisted by Suzie Johnson and Lella Fischer. In their course the children learned that it is God's love that makes us a part of his family and that our Christian living is our response to God's love.
First and second grade course, "God is here" was taught by LaRae Nelson. The course focused on God's people living together in the world. The children were asked to consider how our relationship with God affects how we can be of real service to people in the world. They also learned how we should care for God's creation.

The third and fourth grade course, "God's People are Needed," taught by Donella Johnson explored the part they play in relationships with God and with others. The students learned that God has made each of us a unique individual and an important member of the faith community. That one of the keys of Christian living is accepting responsibility for the world's people and resources. By doing this we thank God for the gifts and blessings we receive.
The fifth and sixth grade course "God Calls to Life" was taught by Betty Anderson and assisted by Evonne Magnusson. They helped the learners find ways to share God's love with all people. Because of the love God shows us we are called into a new life as his creation.

The confirmation class course "God Calls Us to Love" was taught by Pastor David Newman and assisted by Suzie Johnson and Alyce Erwin. This course encouraged the students to understand and live in the love that God offers his people. They should trust in God's love so their own lives might be filled with challenge, service and happiness. His love is for the entire creation and their responsibility extends to the creation also. Stay in touch with God through prayer, Bible reading and sacraments of the church.
Pastor Newman was in charge of daily devotions.
Naomi Peterson was in charge of the music classes.
