Blaze under control

WAYNE VOLUNTEER firefighters responded to the Larry Thompson farm southeast of Wayne on Tuesday morning to help control a blaze started earlier in the day. According to chief Richard Korn, Thompson had been burning a shed and, when radiant heat threatened another structure, Thompson called the department. Minimal damage was done by the fire with four units and about 20 men responding to the alarm. Everything was under control in about 20 minutes.

Howling values are set for Tuesday in Wayne

Merchants in Wayne will be going crazy on Tuesday, June 22, as Moonlight Madness comes to town.

Most merchants will be closing their doors at 5 p.m. and reopening to the public at 7 p.m. for the special sales.

There will also be a "worst-dressed" clerk contest sponsored by the retail merchants and the Wayne Chamber of Commerce.

The winner of the contest will receive free dinners for two at a participating eating establishment in Wayne.

Reasons explained for no 'all-clear'

With tornado season here, it's important to know what the civil defense siren signals mean and how to react to them. The tornado siren in Wayne is a steady three minute blast, which means a tornado has been sighted in the area and to take cover immediately.

"There is no such thing as an all-clear signal," Wayne police chief Vern Fairchild said, "and there hasn't been for about ten years now."

According to Fairchild, national civil defense officials and Wayne's own local defense people decided to eliminate the signal because it caused too much confusion.

"People were coming out of their shelters," Fairchild said, "when the all-clear signal blew and quite often a second twister would follow, finding people unprotected."

"If a second warning would sound," he added, "it was quite often mistaken for the all-clear signal."

"People can listen to the local radio station," Fairchild said, "to find out when everything's clear."

Last month there was some confusion with the tornado siren blast due to a fire signal blast following the first alert.

The alert of a fire is a waveling, three minute signal. The remaining signal, used in case of attack, is a ten second, on and off signal during a three minute period.

PMC 'Lifeline' extends aid to elderly and disabled

By LaVon Anderson

"Lifeline," a new emergency communication service for elderly and disabled persons, will become available in the Wayne area through Providence Medical Center, beginning this summer.

The program is intended to keep persons out of hospitals and nursing homes by increasing the security of individuals who prefer to remain independent, confident that medical or emergency assistance is close at hand.

Lifeline is a system consisting of electronic equipment, hospital emergency coordinators, and neighborhood responders.

The combined features reduce isolation and provide 24-hour emergency response.

PROVIDENCE MEDICAL Center was recently awarded a $15,500 grant from the Northeast Nebraska Area Agency on Aging to help purchase the Lifeline Personal Emergency Response System.

Mrs. Thomas, Providence Medical Center administrator, said the system will be the first in Nebraska.

The nearest lifeline system in operation is through the Marian Health Center in Sioux City, she said.

"Providence Medical Center is the first hospital in the state to actively request the Lifeline system," said Mrs. Thomas, adding that since then she has received numerous requests from hospitals throughout Nebraska inquiring how they can obtain the system.

LIFELINE CONSISTS of a small electronic unit attached to the telephone and a lightweight portable transmitter which is carried in a pocket or attached to the clothing of the subscriber.

When a Lifeline subscriber needs help at home — if they become ill, fall, hear a provider — a button on the transmitter is pressed.

The Lifeline communicator on the telephone receives the wireless signal and automatically dials the hospital, sending a digital message to the 24-hour emergency response center.

At the hospital response center, a Lifeline coordinator reads the subscriber code from the printed tape and retrieves the subscriber's information card containing their name, address, telephone number, a brief statement of medical or physical problems, and a list of pre-arranged responders.

The responders are selected by the subscriber when Lifeline is installed, and includes neighbors, relatives or friends willing to help in the event of an emergency.

Also on the hospital's list are municipal response agencies, such as police and ambulance, which could respond in the event that volunteers were not available.

AFTER A Lifeline emergency call is received at the hospital, the Lifeline coordinator immediately places a call to the subscriber.

If the subscriber cannot be reached by telephone, the coordinator evaluates what help may be needed and what response is required. Immediate action is taken to contact a responder who can arrive on the scene quickly.

Mrs. Thomas said Lifeline is foolproof in its design. "Several checks are built into the system to ensure its full operation through to the arrival of a responder on the scene," she said.

Mrs. Thomas said when a responder answers a call he or she must send an "all clear" signal to the Emergency Response Center by pressing a button.

If medical help is needed, the responder can either take the subscriber to the hospital or have an ambulance sent to their home.

Throughout the operation the subscriber receives feedback to reassure him that he is "in touch" with help.

The timer can be set for 12 or 24 hours and is reset manually by pushing the reset button on the unit. Lifting the telephone handset during normal use automatically resets the timer.

Mrs. Thomas said monthly calls to the subscriber to test the system also help reinforce the feeling of being in touch with the hospital.

"The Lifeline system in its entirety reassures subscribers that they are never alone — they can get help if they need it," said Mrs. Thomas.

"Lifeline is easy to use," added Mrs. Thomas. "You don't have to dial a telephone, and it works even if your phone is off the hook or there is a power interruption."

MRS. THOMAS said Providence Medical Center will initiate the program with 25 Lifeline units.

Subscribers will be selected by a committee comprised of Ann Witkowski, home health nurse; the Rev. Daniel Monson, president of the Wayne Ministerial Association; Sister Gertrude, who is in charge of pastoral care at Providence; Dr. Willis Wrayman, Chief of Staff; and Mrs. Thomas.

Mrs. Thomas said a staff nurse may also be involved in the evaluation of the needs and requests for the system.

medically vulnerable as well as socially and functionally impaired, including the elderly and disabled.

Because of the $15,500 grant which the hospital received from the Northeast Nebraska Area Agency on Aging, Mrs. Thomas said there will be no charge to subscribers for the use of the units.

Mrs. Thomas said subscribers may be charged a small amount for the installation. Although subscribers will not be charged for the units, Mrs. Thomas said donations received will be used for the maintenance and upkeep of the system.

TOTAL COST of the Lifeline system is $20,750, including the $15,500 grant and local funds which will amount to $5,200.

Mrs. Thomas said the Wayne Kiwanis, Club and Wayne County Red Cross have agreed to donate $1,000 each for the system.

The hospital will count donated space and staff time towards its share.

Mrs. Thomas said the Wayne Community Hospital Auxiliary has been contacted and may help with the training of the persons who react to the Lifeline system.

Thomas said home health nurse Ann Witkowski proposed the Lifeline system, which was discussed and pursued as a project.

A grant application made to the Nebraska Area Agency on Aging revealed that Wayne County has approximately 1,500 residents over the age of 62. That figure represents 16 percent of the total population in the county, compared to a national average of 11.3 percent.

"Because of this factor we decided we could make use of the Lifeline system and that many persons in this area could benefit from its use," said Mrs. Thomas.

MRS. THOMAS said the Lifeline system is expected to be installed July 29 and 30, and said she hopes operation will begin shortly afterward.

The units and receiver monitor were purchased from Lifeline Systems, Inc., who have sold the equipment in 20 different states.

Lifeline was designed by Andrew Orloff, a Boston University specialist in geriatric health care technology. The system was studied and tested under a grant from the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Requests for Lifeline information should be directed to Providence Medical Center.

Rights for all

If the whole issue underlying the equal rights amendment had not been pushed to the foreground, life would have progressed with little difference. Change is a natural part of life. What began with the economy back in 1965 as "double-bang" inflation, is continuing today. For over 15 years, women have been entering the work force at a rate not seen since declared war's time. That rate has been sustained through the years. Why?

Initially, the reason was probably in order to help the family gain a higher income but the reasons have multiplied. Coming out of the turbulence and social changes of the 1960's, 1970's and the Vietnam war, not only women but many groups have been waking up. Waking up to the realization that they can compete for jobs, for educations, for a lifestyle which had previously only been gained by a minority of Americans.

Weekly now, since joining a national service organization, I say a pledge which ends "with liberty and justice for all." I do not insert, "for some".

The equal rights amendment on the surface, gives nothing to women that they have not already earned, let alone have been guaranteed under other constitutional amendments.

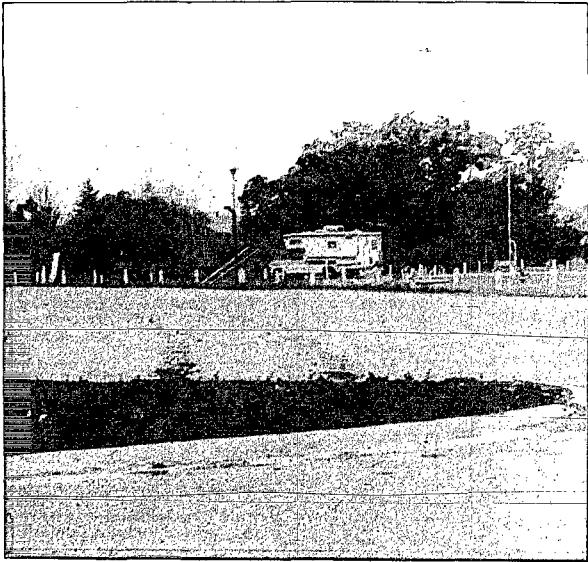

It does not mean co-ed restrooms, gay marriages, an instant breakdown in society and all the other nonsense people have been throwing out.

It appears to date that the amendment will not gain passage. Supporters claim, however, that the amendment is not dead.

If it were passed, it means very little as read and in given rights under our constitution. But as has been voice, without passage, it is a tacit approval, by Americans, that women are not equal, that a section of our daily society does not enjoy "liberty and justice for all."

ASK A LAWYER

Q. Please explain what "due on sale" means. A. A "due on sale" clause is commonly contained in home mortgages and land contracts. It means that when the property is sold, the total amount of the mortgage becomes due and payable immediately. The effect of this is that when an individual decides to sell his home, if his mortgage contains a due on sale clause, he cannot allow the next buyer to assume the mortgage without the consent of the lending institution.

Q. I have been divorced for over three years, and have two children ages 4 and 15. My ex-husband does not pay child support and is not allowed to see the children. Since my younger child does not know his father at all, I would like to change both his name and my name back to my maiden name. Is this possible? I do not want to change the older child's name, just the younger one. If it is not possible to do both, can I just change my own name back?

A. A person may change his or her own name without a legal proceeding simply by adopting another name, provided that the name change is not for fraudulent purposes. Nebraska law provides that a person may file a petition in the District Court to change a name. This means that the law does not require a court proceeding to change a name, but it does set forth the procedure for changing your name in court if you so desire.

Q. The question of whether the names of minor children should be changed is determined by what is in the best interests of the child. It is difficult to answer your question without knowing why your husband does not pay child support and is not allowed to see the children. Generally speaking, the court will try to preserve the parent-child relationship to the extent possible even when the parents have been divorced. Nebraska courts have been very reluctant to grant name changes for children when the non-custodial parent is paying child support and exercising visitation rights.

Your situation is further complicated by the fact that you want to change the name of one of your children, but not the other. The court might not allow you to do this due to the potential confusion and emotional difficulties which this could cause both children.

Tell us your lawyer about the circumstances of your own case. He or she can advise you whether a court proceeding is desirable in regard to your name change, and what courts of action, if any, would be best for you with regard to a name change for your younger child.

It is recommended that you consult with a lawyer before making any name change. This column is intended to provide general information only and does not constitute an offer of legal advice. It is a public service of the Nebraska State Bar Association.

It's been one heck of a month...makes me almost wish I had some stock in Rockwell Electronics or an aircraft manufacturer. In between the Falkland Islands dispute and the Middle East's latest war I could be rich or at least have a few more dollars in my bank account.

Small arms manufacturers would be a good one too but, I don't know, I've always been more interested in things that fly...like one of those drone aircraft that home in on radar.

At any rate, it's been entertaining to sit and watch wars on television again; always reminds me of the Vietnam war at 5:30 p.m. every evening over supper, brought to us by Uncle Walter.

WHAT I'VE always found amazing though is how fast news coverage switches. Wasn't it just last week we were all watching Poland the week before Afghanistan, the week before Africa...the week before...

There's always something going on so I guess it's difficult to cover everything (sort of like newspaper work) but from time to time I wish some newscaster would say something like "Hey, you remember that war in Afghanistan? Well, since the Falklands are over we'll be switching you back to live war coverage there."

With a little planning, they could make it like Saturday and Sunday afternoon sports. Former generals could be hired to do the broadcasting dressed up in matching blazers and say things like "Well it looks like the Afghan home team forces are succeeding in their bid to overcome the visiting Russian team forces in the skirmish, of course they have the home court advantage, but the Russians are a fiery bunch with what appears to be better equipment...we've just had a special report from anchor General Moreguns Simplify in the Falklands where regular coverage is set to begin at 3:30 p.m."

Eastern daylight time...come in General...

MAYBE THAT'S THE problem with wars, the governments and generals really don't know how to sell a war anymore.

In Korea, we had MacArthur telling us we had to stop the commies, that it was our duty...in World War II, Hitler had to be stopped before he ate up all of Europe, Asia and Africa...things just don't seem the same anymore.

Maybe instead of investing in the companies that produce those high technology weapon systems, I should branch out of the news business and into public relations and advertising.

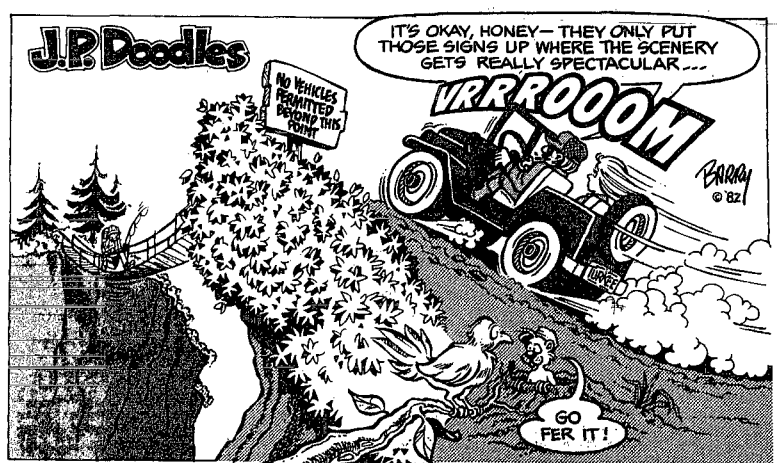

New York would be the place to start. They always have generals and government leaders coming to the United Nations.

Maybe I could open an office nearby and take out an advertisement in the United Nation News...Tired of having world opinion go against you? Need to revitalize your citizens, troops, allies and arms suppliers that your war is the best thing going? Well, stop in to War-promo, Inc., your one stop war planning center. I could even use a slogan like "Your Campaign Starts Here"...or words to that effect.

EVENTUALLY WHO KNOWS, just like the big boys I could branch out into all sorts of natural services (like Millo Milbenber in Catch-22)...planning, purchasing, supplying advisors, generals, troops, contract bombing and maiming, etc., taking the amateurs, like governments, out of the war business and putting in professional war planners.

Maybe that's the way we should go in the future. There's just not enough entertainment value in people like Begin and Thatcher trying to run wars anymore. People are just too sophisticated--pjf.

New service inaugurated to find jobs

Through marvelous cooperation of organizations, Nebraska state government has inaugurated a new program to help people find jobs. The program is being pilot tested in the Omaha area. If it succeeds, we hope to expand it to other parts of Nebraska.

Budget fiasco causes wonder

Several years ago, I saw a letter to the editor in one of our top newspapers that cleverly expressed the absurdity of many of our government's policies and practices. For obvious reasons, the recent budget fiasco on Capitol Hill brought this letter vividly back to mind.

Begging the writer's indulgence, I would like to update his letter with current circumstances. It goes something like this: I was raking the leaves the other day when I was approached by a visitor from outer space and he asked for directions.

He said, "How do I get out of this insane asylum?" "Well, the next shuttle flight departs later this month," I replied. "But this isn't an insane asylum. This is the United States of America."

He looked at me and said, "Isn't this the place where you pay farmers not to grow crops while some people go hungry?" I said, "Yes, but..."

"Isn't this the place that is constantly threatened by cutoffs of foreign oil while your government prohibits energy companies from drilling in your richest oil fields in Alaska?" "Well, yes..."

"And isn't this the place where the overwhelming majority of people want spending cuts, but your Congress votes to increase spending to record levels?" "Yes, but..."

"Isn't this the place where your leading officials and economists are actually considering raising taxes in a recession—the same policy tried by Herbert Hoover in 1932?" "Yes, but you have to understand that..."

"Isn't this the country where your clean air law often causes dirtier air because it prohibits construction of cleaner factories?" "Yes, sometimes..."

"And isn't this place where your government can't keep track of aliens like me entering the country, and yet now it wants to require Mom and Pop's grocery store down the street to detect us or risk a fine?" "Yes, but..."

"And isn't this the place where something you call a hamburger is governed by 41,000 regulations?"

"Yes," I said, "but in defense of my country, pizza has only 310 regulations..."

With that, the strange visitor thanked me and walked away. As he left I heard him say to himself, "I guess I shouldn't have asked an inmate how to get out. If he knew, he wouldn't still be here."

I hasten to add that America is not an insane asylum. Indeed, it has been an asylum of freedom and opportunity for millions of the world's oppressed and impoverished peoples. Yet the current mass confusion over economic policy in Washington and the penchant of our government for adopting foolish, contradictory policies makes one wonder: What will it take to get our politicians' heads out of the clouds and their feet back on the ground?

To the editor: The volunteers that painted the fence and entrances should be commended for their efforts and time in improving the appearance of the Greenwood Cemetery.

The volunteers that worked on the Veterans Memorial Cemetery should also be commended for their efforts and time for the improvements of the Cemetery.

I participated in the Winside Memorial Day program, but took a drive through the Greenwood Cemetery and with the flags and improvements it was very impressive. All comments that I have heard have been positive. The disturbing part is that I have heard that some negative comments have been made.

I am not aware of the reason for the negative comments, but would think that cooperation between the organizations would accomplish more than bickering and would also prevent hard feelings.

Husker Power Clinic at Wayne High

A power clinic, sponsored by the University of Nebraska and UNL power coaches, is planned July 9 at Wayne High School. The Wayne clinic will be one of 14 across the state and high school boys and girls will be tested on agility, power and speed. A minimum of 60 students is required.

Tests will include an agility drill, vertical jump, seated shot put and 40-yard dash. Winners will be presented awards and advance to a state-wide contest scheduled Aug. 8 in Lincoln. There will be two divisions for boys and girls: 9-10 grades, 11-12 grades.

The clinic is designed to promote physical fitness and get an earlier look at potential college athletes. UNL strength coach Boyd Eppley plans to compile results of all his clinics and make a computerized printout sheet for every college in the state.

Eppley would like to coordinate the high schools in the state of Nebraska on a weight training program. Six Nebraska University strength coaches will conduct this clinic which is expected to last a couple of hours. A film about the NU weight program will be shown.

Entry forms may be picked up at the Wayne High School office. The Wayne Herald building or from coaches, Lonnie Elberhard, Ron Carman, Mavis Dalton and Dale Hochstein.

The only other clinic in northeast Nebraska is planned July 10 at Norfolk High School.

McCright led a triple and double to lead Wayne's offense. Pfeiffer, Lebock, Heier and Lindsay added one hit each.

Wayne girls triumph

Girls softball 15 and under
Wayne 14, Carroll 4: Wayne's girls collected 11 base hits and dumped Carroll 14-4 in a six-inning game Wednesday.

Lisa Jacobsen had three base hits and scored three runs to lead the winners. Lori Jacobsen scored three runs and hit a triple.

Sarah Lebock, Paula Koplin and Amy Jordan each ripped home runs for the winners.

Wayne scored two runs in the first inning, four in the second, one in the third, three in the fourth and four in the fifth.

For Carroll, Dahikoetter smashed a homer. Burbach, Schluns and Rohde also scored one run apiece.

Laurel, Wayne split

Little League

Laurel 11, Wayne 1: Manz threw a four-hitter and struckout 10 Wayne batters in five innings as Laurel defeated Wayne's Little League in Ralph Bishop action.

Jess Zeiss and Scott Hammer had two hits apiece to lead Wayne. Zeiss had a double and single and Hammer had a triple and single and scored the only run.

Laurel was led by Cunningham with two hits and Marquardt, Hansen and Nixon with one hit each. Twohig scored three runs and Marquardt, Manz, Cunningham and Sherry scored two each to round out the scoring.

Pony League

Wayne 7, Laurel 0: Pitcher Don Larsen was untouchable as he retired 16 batters on strikeouts and fired a no-hitter to lead Wayne to a six-inning victory.

Larsen struckout the first four batters he faced and the final six to dominate. Two Laurel base runners prevented Larsen from recording a perfect game. One batter walked and another was hit by a pitch.

Offensively, Brent Pick and Larsen collected Wayne's only two hits. Runs were scored by Shannon Dorsey, Larsen, Casey Nichols, Tim Fleming, Tom Pery, Tom Miller and Luft.

Town Team downs West leader

The best of the East met the best of the West Wednesday night and East Division leader Wayne had no trouble disposing of West Division leader O'Neill 11-3 in Tri-County League baseball play.

O'Neill ripped starting pitcher Darrell Mueller with two home runs in the first inning to account for its three runs. From that time on, Mueller pitched no-hit baseball and shot down 12 batters on strikeouts.

It took Wayne five innings to make up for its slow start. In the top of the second, Mike Meyer scored on an error and Tim Pfeiffer scored on a sacrifice fly by Doug Starz. Both players singled to reach base.

The tying and go-ahead runs were scored in the fifth inning on consecutive base hits by Jeff Zeiss, Joel Ankeny and Bill Schwartz. Schwartz drove in both runners with his hit.

Pfeiffer scored again in the sixth inning on an infield grounder by Mueller. A solo home run by Schwartz gave Wayne a 6-3 edge in the seventh.

The ninth inning put things way out of reach as the visitors struck for five runs. Zeiss, Schwartz, Neil Blohm, Pfeiffer and Jeff Dion all scored for the winners.

For the game, Schwartz had three hits and Pfeiffer had three runs. Wayne improved its Tri-County League record to 6-0 while O'Neill fell to 7-2. Both teams are idle this week because of Sunday's (June 20) Tri-County League All-Star game at Battle Creek.

Water over the dam?

Nebraskans who thought a lot of water went down the stream in May were right. Although the rains in general came slowly in most areas, the water that found its way into streams was way above average.

The table below indicates the acre-feet of water carried out of Northeast Nebraska by each stream in May, and how it stacks up against past flows. One acre-foot of water is the amount of water it takes to cover one acre of land, one foot deep, or 325,851 gallons.

Stream Gauge	Discharge AC. Ft. AC. Ft.	Discharge (drought year) May, 1981	Mean Discharge For May, 1981	During Entire Period of Record
N.F. Elkhorn R. at Pierce	21,143	1,700	6,040
Elkhorn R. at Norfolk	52,369	14,030	45,750
Union Crook at Madison	12,539	752	1,256
Pablo Crook at Scribner	19,300	358	804
Maple Crook nr. Nickerson	14,200	44	5,200
Logan Crook at Uehling	48,300	3,260	13,530
Elkhorn R. at Waterloo	172,100	28,340	101,450

These figures compiled by U.S. Geological Survey and Nebraska Department of Water Resources shows not only that a great deal of water flows out of the basin, but the flows are very erratic. The discharge of the entire Elkhorn Basin (at Waterloo) is six times as great for May, 1982, as for May, 1981.

One of the primary beneficial uses of surface water in Northeast Nebraska other than for fish and wildlife is for irrigation. This need is greatest in July and August when stream flows are low. On the other hand, about half the annual flow leaves the Elkhorn basin in the spring causing flooding and erosion problems, with little beneficial use.

Nebraska so far has failed to follow the example of our neighboring states in storing excess stream flows. Storage projects not only have flood control benefits, they store water for beneficial purposes and enhance streams by maintaining a more constant flow.

With the demands for water growing and increased pressure on groundwater aquifers, Nebraska must begin to put significant dollars into water storage projects, if we wish to continue irrigated agriculture and maintain the integrity of our streams.

Irrigation hotline reports

Local radio stations will again air "Irrigation Hotline Reports" beginning mid to late June. Cooperative Extension and Lower Elkhorn NRD personnel will calculate crop water use by obtaining data from three weather stations around the district.

This information is accurate for a forty mile radius around each station. The information will be broadcast to assist irrigators in applying the correct amount of water at the right time. For information on irrigation scheduling, contact your local Cooperative Extension Service office.

The reports will be aired on these stations Monday through Saturday:
KHUB-AM-Fremont - 1340 - 6:25 a.m. and Noon
KNEN-FM-Norfolk - 94 - 12:15 p.m.
KTCH-AM-Wayne - 1590 - 6:50 a.m. and 12:50 p.m.
WJAG-AM-Norfolk - 780 - 7:32 a.m.

Recycling

Recycling like many other enterprises is struggling through tough economic conditions. High fuel costs and slow downs in industries that use recycled materials have reduced the cost effectiveness of recycling programs. However, according to the Nebraska State Recycling Association (NSRA), volunteer efforts throughout the state are keeping programs going. There are also some bright spots concerning new recycling efforts.

In western Nebraska, the Make Ogallala Beautiful committee is attempting to start a glass recycling program with Adolph Coors Company of Colorado. Such groups can receive up to $55/ton for crushed glass. Frank Smith, of the Coors Company, says Coors will help communities in establishing a glass recycling program.

The Nebraska legislature passed a resolution to have its public works committee study a process of mixing ground rubber with asphalt for road construction. This process could increase the life expectancy of roads by several years at relatively small additional cost and utilize the 10,000 tons of waste rubber generated in Nebraska annually.

For information on recycling programs, contact the Nebraska State Recycling Association, 746 Garfield, Lincoln, NE 68502 or call (402) 433-0622.

Check your cedar windbreak

This spring many landowners to the south have called Extension Foresters saying, "My cedars look like they're dying - what's wrong?" These trees are suffering from a severe case of Corcospora needle blight.

Corcospora needle blight is readily distinguished from other juniper diseases because the disease infects older foliage first. Browning of foliage occurs from the interior of the tree crown outward and from the lower branches to the higher branches. Severely infected trees may only have a small tuft of green foliage on the branch tips.

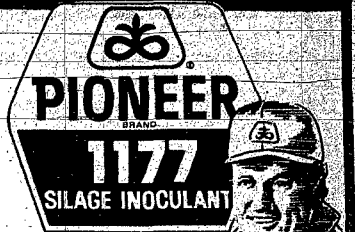

Corcospora needle blight must be controlled since severe infections over three years can kill a tree. At least two spray applications of bordeaux are necessary for best control. The first treatment should be applied during the second or third week of June. The second treatment about the third week in July.

Other Tree Pests To Control In June:

Pest and Host	Chemical Treatment	No.	Applications and Date
Elm Leaf Beetle (Elm)	Sevin Methoxychlor	2-3	Mid-June and mid-July as larvae collect at base of trunk.
Bagworms (Juniper, Spruce, Pine)	Diazinon, Orthene, Sevin, Cygon, Dofend	1	After eggs hatch about mid-June
Walnut Caterpillar (Walnut)	Sevin, Malathion	1	When webs appear.
Cottony Scale (Maple)	Diazinon, Sevin Orthene	2	Late June when eggs hatch; repeat in 10 days.
Greenstriped Mapleworm (Maple)	Sevin	1	When larvae appear (June-August).
Brown Spot (Scotch Pine)	Bordeaux, Bravo Manzate D	2-3	When needles half grown; repeat at 2-3 week intervals

Fewer housing permits issued during quarter

Housing permits issued in Nebraska during the first quarter of 1982 fell more than 55 percent from the same period a year ago, according to information compiled by the Department of Economic Development.

During the first three months of 1982, 450 housing permits were issued compared with 1,062 during the first quarter of 1981. Single family home permits numbered 258, down from 810 in January through March, 1981. Multi-unit permits issued totaled 192 compared to 252 in the first quarter of 1981.

The Department's data show the Federal Home Loan Bank in Topeka reporting $41.1 million in mortgage loans to Nebraska's federally insured savings and loan associations during the period. During the first quarter of 1981, $87.7 million in statewide mortgage lending was reported. The data also showed the Omaha and Lincoln area savings and loans reported $27.5 million in the first quarter 1982 mortgage loans compared to $61.9 million in the first quarter of 1981.

The Nebraska Mortgage Finance Fund's 1982 Series A single family bond issue has made available $36.6 million in below-market rate mortgage funds to qualified first-time home buyers. An estimated $14 million of this total is projected to finance newly constructed homes in Nebraska. Assuming an average mortgage of $55,000, this could involve as many as 250 new single family homes, according to the Department's data.
