Chicken Show attracts over 1,000 people for day's events

By LaVon Anderson

The Wayne Regional Arts Council hatched another successful Chicken Show Saturday as over 1,000 persons flocked to the community to pay salute to the fowl friends.

Whether or not the show returns to roost next year is yet undecided.

"The show has just gotten too big for the Arts Council to do alone," said Chicken Show coordinator Jane O'Leary.

Mrs. O'Leary said the Arts Council is hoping that additional persons in the community will volunteer to help coordinate another show in 1983, adding that the Arts Council would be more than happy to share information and experiences gained during the past two years they have sponsored the show.

This year's show was considered a big success by Mrs. O'Leary. "We thought it went very well. We were pleased with the number of persons who attended locally and from out of town.

Among those attending from out of town were Abby Carbine and Connie Backers of North Platte who traveled about 300 miles to take part in the day-long activities.

The two clucked along in a parade and strutted their stuff in a clucking rendition of "In the Mood."

Other activities they participated in included the cluck-off, egg toss, and chicken calling contests.

CARROLL BANKER Phil Olausen cooked his way to gain the title of National Omelet Champ in the first national omelet cooking contest sponsored by the American Egg Board and the Nebraska Egg Council.

Olausen's traditional bacon omelet captured the attention of the judges who awarded him the top prize of $100.

Olausen plans to donate his $100 grand champion prize to Wayne Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts.

Judging the omelets, some of which contained mixtures of water chestnuts, shrimp and fresh fruit, were Mrs. Tama Krause of Wayne, Dr. Glen Fromm and Dr. Dan Bigbee of the University of Nebraska Lincoln poultry division, and Mrs. Margaret Hansen in the Wayne State College home economics department.

Other winners in the omelet cook off were Manjit Johar of Wayne in the women's division, and Steven Marra in the junior division.

Second place winners were Jeff Carstens (men's division), Denise Woodbury (women's division), and Jed O'Leary (junior division).

Capturing third place were Don Koeber (men's division), Eileen Mieler (women's division), and Jackie Fitter (junior division).

WINNER OF A Fun Run which kicked off the day's events at 7 a.m. was Steve Monson of Wayne who ran the 10.3 mile distance from Wakefield to Wayne in 67 minutes.

Chairman Pat Gross said 23 runners, including four women, took part in the event and all came across the finish line.

Don Pearson, of Pender came in second, with Mark Buschkamp of Wayne following. Crossing the finish line fourth was Dr. Ed Elliott of Wayne.

The top female runner was Kathy Cook from Carroll, now living in Omaha.

"It was a perfect morning for running," said Gross, adding that he was pleased there were so many runners.

AN ESTIMATED 1,300 persons were served at the free omelet feed sponsored by the Milton G. Waldbaum Co. of Wakefield, local grocery stores and State National Bank, Well's Blue Bunny Products, Midwest Dairy Products and Kraft Foods.

Assisting during the feed were members of the Wayne Jaycees.

Local radio announcer Dean Craun and Omaha radio announcer George Murphy served as masters of ceremonies during the day's events.

Spirits of chicken enthusiasts weren't dampened as a light shower fell during the morning's parade, featuring youngsters and adults in a mishmash of chicken costumes and floats, a number of small cars by Shriners, and a motor scooter patrol by the Fraternal Order of Eagles club from south Omaha.

Winners in the kids' division included the cast of "Little Chicken on the Prairie," comprised of Emily, Amanda and Spenser McBride, J. J., Jeff and Jessica Erwin, and Courtney Berg; an entry by Slevers Hotchery; an entry entitled "Gone Hunting With Ma and Pa"; a wagon float by Darrell Johnson; an entry by Heidi Reeg and Marne Bruggeman, who wore original chicken masks; and "Can-Canned Chicken" by Jennifer Schmitz.

Capturing prizes for their floats were Lyle's Repair in Battle Creek; the Milton G. Waldbaum Company's "Coach Egg"; and two "clucks" from North Platte.

Serving as grand marshal of the parade was Wayne Mayor Wayne Marsh.

Other dignitaries taking part in the parade were Nebraska Lieutenant Governor Roland Luedtke, and State Senator Merle Von Minden.

A CHICKEN song contest opened activities in the afternoon near the city auditorium.

Winning the youth division of the contest were Kerry McCue and Jennifer Schmitz.

In the junior division, the Gingham Gals 4-H Club took first place. The group was comprised of Marsha Von Seggren, Margie, Marla and Karen Sandahl, Mary Pat Gross, Karmyn Koenig, Tera and Tonya Erleben, and Christy Heinemann.

The adult division was won by John and Julie Waters.

Mike Carney, chairman of the song contest, provided his interpretation of "Grown Accustomed to Her Beak."

Dirk King of Wayne was the only contestant in the chicken calling event who was able to "egg-on" a chicken to stroll three-fourths of the way down an enclosed ramp.

Other contestants who tried unsuccessfully to urge the chicken down the ramp came from Texas, California, Iowa and Nebraska.

OTHER CONTEST winners included: Cluck-Off — Abby Carbine and Ross Carstensen (hens), and John Agler, Mathew Redhage and Shane Geiger (roosters).

Egg Toss — Ted McCright and Jon Stoltenberg (first), Ted Barner and Shane Geiger (second), and Heide Reeg and Marne Bruggeman (third).

A CELEBRITY Auction held in conjunction with this year's show featured over 40 items donated by movie, television and sports personalities, as well as from President Gerald Ford, Governor Charles Thone and Ralph Nader.

Chairman Cheryl Lindau said the top items in the auction were a script from the Lou Grant television series, autographed by star Ed Asner, which brought $31, and a Walter Matthau autographed script of "I Ought to Be in Pictures," which went for $30.

Proceeds from the auction will go to the Regional Arts Council.

Also held during the day was a contest and bake sale co-sponsored by the American Cancer Society and Second Guessers.

Council approves budget

The adoption of the fiscal year 1982-83 budget, ordinance changes and appointments were on the agenda for the Wayne City council Tuesday night.

As reported earlier, the budget this year totals $5,058,316 which is a 13 percent reduction over the current year's budget. Savings mainly come from the elimination of indebtedness but also from cuts in capital projects and employee wages.

Added during the last council meeting in June was the cost for the purchase of an ambulance.

ACCORDING TO city manager Philip Kloster, the approved budget calls for an expenditure of about $25,000 for the purchase of the emergency vehicle.

Kloster said about $10,000 will come from revenue sharing funds with the remainder coming from the section allotted to the mayor and council in the general fund.

During the last meeting, the council went on record as supporting the purchase of a new ambulance which will be garaged at Providence Medical Center. Marcel Thomas of Providence had approached the council with the request.

Councilmember Carolyn Fitter pointed out during that meeting that the city had previously made an oral agreement with Providence to provide funds from time to time for the purchase of emergency vehicles.

ALSO INCLUDED in the coming year's budget is $976,922 for the general fund, $2,274,724 for the electrical fund and $364,215 for water and sewer.

In other action Tuesday night, changes were made in the penalties specified in several ordinances. The changes reflect a recent Supreme Court ruling which now allows that if ordinances include a jail term as part of the penalty, those individuals charged must be provided with an attorney, at cost to the city, before going to court.

According to city officials, late this spring such a case came up in Wayne and the city was forced to pay for attorney costs.

The changes Tuesday night dealt with three ordinances: excavations on city property or on city right-of-ways; stopping to render assistance and provide information when involved in an auto accident and the safe and lawful operation of snowmobiles within the city.

THE CHANGES, which drop any jail term from the ordinances, also increase the fine in the snowmobile ordinance to $500. The other two ordinances already provide for fines up to $500.

Mayor Wayne Marsh, with council approval, made several appointments during the meeting to city boards.

Margaret Lundstrom was appointed to the library board and appointed to the board of health were Dr. Robert Benthack, police chief Vern Fairchild, councilmember Darrel Fuelberth and Dean Metz.

During the last meeting, several appointments were also made which included Bob Ensz and Becky Keldet to the college community board.

APPLICATIONS OF TWO firefighters to the Wayne department were acted upon Tuesday night with the approval of Wayne fire chief Richard Korn. Applications were approved for Kevin Brockmoller and Sandra K. Bull.

Not appearing on the agenda Tuesday night, but discussed under the "communications received" item was a problem with a storm sewer on Main street.

Businesses located North of Third street have complained of flooding problems during heavy rains. Water has reportedly seeped into a couple businesses and in one case, an owner wishes to remodel but cannot do so because of the threat of water damage.

The council has considered the problem before but Tuesday night decided to discuss the item in formal session during the next meeting.

PUBLIC WORKS DIRECTOR Vern Kloster and Kloster told the council it would cost about $40,000 for a project to eliminate the flooding along Main street. Kloster added that such projects are usually funded through the issuance of general obligation bonds.

Kloster told the council the problem is not at Main street, rather over near Arnie's Ford on Third street.

Schultz explained that it is a collector area with several tubes converging at that location and the file, which is to accept the flow from the collectors, is too small to handle a heavy flow.

The project would involve installing a bigger file to accept the flow. Schultz told the council he thought it could be done with a minimum of engineering costs.

ACCORDING TO ONE councilmember, the problem on Main street is so bad that during heavy rains, the resulting pressure, due to the back-up, is strong enough to pop the manhole covers off of the storm sewers.

In other action Tuesday night the council:

• Approved the issuance of a Class C liquor permit to Wayne Vogel and Georgia Baker for the Glass Act, which is currently Big Al's bar.

• Was informed by councilmember Gary Vopatensky that he has received phone calls congratulating the city pool staff on the excellent job they are doing this year.

Vopatensky said people have been pleased with the way the staff has handled the crowds during the existing swimming conditions and overall during the summer.

• Kloster read to the council a letter of appreciation received from the Alton Shrine Temple for the help the city gave to the swimmers during the recent summer in Wayne.

Officials informed district is $103,000 short in tuition money

The Wayne-Carroll Board of Education reviewed the 1982-83 school budget during their regular meeting Monday night.

Superintendent Francis Haun said this year's proposed $2,056,649 budget is "essentially a maintenance budget."

In a letter prepared for board members, Haun said there are no proposals in this year's budget for new programs and no proposals for the cutting of programs or pupil services.

In the letter, Haun outlined facts regarding sources of revenue for the district that he feels need to be highlighted.

AS OF Monday night's board meeting, the Wayne-Carroll School District is short $103,000 in high school tuition money due for the 1981-82 school year.

Haun said litigation instituted by taxpayers in Wayne County has delayed the distribution of funds payable to schools in Wayne County for free high school tuition purposes.

By agreement of the parties, a portion of the free high school tuition funds will be released but full distribution will be delayed until there is disposition of the litigation.

Plaintiff taxpayers instituting the suit are Cyril Hansen, Dwayne Retzwich, Martin Reinhardt, Richard Lund, Frederick Mann and Gene Luft.

Haun warned that should the free high school tuition funds not be paid, local taxpayers would be asked to make up the difference in subsequent years.

HAUN ALSO told board members that State Aid budgeted at $326,300 for School District 17 in 1981-82, has been cut to $286,201 in 1982-83.

He said the reduction in State Aid of $40,099 will need to be made up by local property tax.

Haun reported that the school district will stay within its budget for 1981-82 and 1982-83, and that the present budget is about $12,000 below the 7 percent lid imposed upon school districts.

A public hearing on the proposed budget has been set for Aug. 9 at 8:30 p.m.

ALSO DURING Monday's meeting, a report was presented from a board committee on appointments of persons to serve on a task force on gifted education.

Committee chairman Neil Sandahl read a list of several persons the committee felt could aptly serve on the special task force.

Board members were asked to review the list of names and mark their choices for discussion at next month's board meeting.

The task force, which is expected to begin work in September, will study the needs of academically talented students in the school district.

BOARD MEMBERS were reminded of a special meeting set for 8:30 p.m. July 29 for the opening of bids on the high school's proposed vocational shop addition.

Base plans call for a 50' x 60' expansion to the west of the existing shop facility.

The addition would be used for auto mechanics and metals, including electrical work, small engine repair and welding.

The existing facility would be expanded for woodworking and would include a classroom for both woodworking and auto mechanics and metals students.

BOARD MEMBERS voted Monday night to raise the price of school lunches by five cents for the 1982-83 school year.

The five cent increase brings the cost of weekly high school and middle school lunch tickets to $4.80, or 1.05 daily.

Cost of elementary lunch tickets next year will be $4.30 weekly, or $95 daily.

Adult meal tickets will cost $6.65 weekly, or $1.25 daily.

The board also voted to raise the fee for non-resident pupils to ride bus.

As of next year, non-resident students will pay $5 a week to ride the school bus. Cost during 1981-82 was $4 per week.

Board members also voted to increase the mileage paid by the district for personal vehicle use to $2.1 per mile to correspond with the State of Nebraska.

Mileage paid during 1981-82 was $2.0 per mile.

In final action, the board named the State National Bank and Trust Co. the official depository for district funds for the next three years.

The board changes responsibilities for school accounts on a three year basis. The First National Bank has been the official depository for district funds the past three years.

Sudden death

Erwin claims Wayne open title

Dale Erwin must be growing quite fond of the Wayne Country Club golf course by now. The Sioux City golfer, parred hole number one to steal the championship from Dru Lammie of Omaha in a sudden death playoff Sunday in the Wayne CC July Open.

Erwin, who also won the June open tournament at Wayne CC, duplicated last month's 27 hole score of 104. His four under par round was tied by Lammie so a sudden death playoff was held and Erwin outscored Lammie four to five on number one.

The hopes of a second Wayne championship appeared dim for Erwin when his second shot on the par five number nine hole appeared to be headed for out of bounds. However, the ball hit a tree and bounced in to the fairway and he salvaged par on the hole.

Lammie had the best nine-hole score of the day when he carded a five under par 31 on the front nine. The course record for the front nine is 30.

RIGHT BEHIND Erwin and Lammie was Steve Belitz of Bellevue with a 105. His first round of the day—a 38—on the front nine, killed his hopes of a championship.

Tim Marchese of Omaha, who finished second in last year's classic, was fourth with a 107. Clark Coco, formerly of Wayne and now of Yankton, was the leading contender among all Wayne Country Club members. He shot a 108 to finish four strokes back.

Bob Prazak of West Point, Steve Tangdahl of Omaha and Cole Froeschle of Wayne tied for sixth with identical scores of 109.

Other championship flight golfers who qualified for the final nine hole playoff are: Bill Erickson, Si Prather, Bill Hornbeck, Chuck McHarg, Morgan Stratton, Mark Schram, Hank Thompson, Pat Ward, Jim Weidert, Steve Urwiler, Mark Morrisey, Steve Statton, R.B. Lau, Dick Lott, Bill Fry, Jerry Nelson, Dave Knievel, Dave Lammie, Dan Freed, Mike Goller, Jay Muller.

Three golfers tied for best score on the final nine: Hornbeck, Belitz and Statton finished with 34s.

AREA GOLFERS fared quite well in the other flights. Jim Lindau of Wayne won the third flight with a 77. Don Sund of Wayne won the fourth flight with an 80. Val Kienast of Wayne won the fifth flight with a 77. Morrie Sandahl of Carroll won the eighth flight with an 85. Ron Stanfill of Carroll won the ninth flight with a 90. Erle Racely of Pender won the 10th flight with an 86, and Rich Anderson of Wayne won the 11th flight with an 85.

Other than the first place sudden death playoff, all ties were broken by scorecard and sudden death playoffs.

Town Team gets 10th win

It took the Wayne town team six innings to get things going well but the hosts broke loose with six runs in the seventh inning to wrap up a 9-3 Tri-County League victory over Battle Creek Tuesday night.

The locals trailed 3-2 after five innings and finally tied the score in the sixth when Mark Gansbom scored. He singled, stole second base and scored on a double by Doug Starzl.

Gansbom and Starzl were the big hitters for Wayne in the triumph. Gansbom went 3 for 4 with two runs and Starzl was 3 for 3 with one run and two RBIs.

IN THE SEVENTH, Jeff Dion started things off when he reached first base on a fielding error. Doug Carroll moved him to second with a sacrifice bunt and Mike Meyer lined a run scoring single for the go-ahead run.

Meyer was forced out at second and Kevin Nissen was safe at first on a fielder's choice. Then, Gansbom hit his third single of the game and Dean Carroll's walk loaded the bases.

Tim Pfeiffer rapped a two out, two run single and Starzl and Bill Schwartz followed with run scoring singles to stretch Wayne's lead. Those three players added Wayne's final three runs for the final 9-3 count.

Schwartz was 2 for 5. Pfeiffer was 2 for 4 with two runs and Meyer was 2 for 4. Kevin Nissen, making his first pitching start for the East Division leaders, went the distance and held Battle Creek to seven hits. He had five strikeouts.

Equipment from California

DAVID KRACL (center) of San Leandro, Calif. presented a set of sideline equipment to the Wayne State College Athletic Department, Tuesday. KrACL, a WSC alumnus who invented and improved his own style of equipment, now sells it nationwide. Clemson, Michigan, Arkansas, Oregon State, Stanford, Arizona, Arizona State, Cal State Berkeley, Wichita State, Kansas State, Oklahoma State, Missouri and Boise State have placed orders for the equipment. Coach Del Stottenberg (left) and sports information director Kant Propper (right) accepted the equipment for Wayne State. KrACL once was coach at Hooper and coached against Stottenberg who was at Scribner.

Randy's Recap

By Randy Hascall

SOME EXCELLENT sports accomplishments have gone almost unnoticed in recent weeks. This column will devote some space to those accomplishments.

In the area of track and field, at least half a dozen area athletes competed in the "I'm a Pepper" Track Classic held at Wayne State College June 26 and 27.

Although the Topeka and Independence Track Clubs, which were scheduled to compete, didn't show up, there was still plenty of stiff competition.

Some individuals placed while others found that the level of competition was just a tad too high. Wayne athletes Cindy Brown, Jim Poehman, Kevin Koenig, Kris Baier and Jess Zeiss all fared well in the classic.

The top performance of a Wayne athlete was that of Jill Mosley who won the 200-meter dash in :26.7 and the long jump with a leap of 17-8. Jill has high hopes in next year's state high school track meet.

Hopefully, the Mid-Continent Bottling Company and Dr. Pepper will make the classic an annual event to give athletes an opportunity to compete against others in a several state area.

WAYNE HIGH SPRINTER Missy Stottenberg was elated when she was asked to join about 100 other girls in an Olympic training camp this week at Lincoln.

She received a letter in the mail informing her she was one of 20 Nebraska athletes selected to the elite group. She joins girls from Colorado, Michigan, Wisconsin, Kansas and other midwest states.

Coaches at the training camp come from all across the country. Missy also was asked to join the South Lincoln Track Club in a regional track and field meet at St. Louis this past weekend. However, she wisely elected to attend the training camp.

IN THE WORLD of golf, Cole Froeschle of Wayne nearly qualified for the National Junior Golf Championship in West Beach, Fla. Aug. 18-22.

Pat Higgins of Lincoln shot a 139 to win the spot in a Grand Island regional tournament. Froeschle, who shot a 142 to finish second, is now first alternate.

ANN BARCLAY, a veteran golfer, may have set a course record for women at the Wayne Country Club course a couple of weeks ago. She fired a 37—one stroke over men's par—on the front nine. No women's course record has actually been kept.

WAKEFIELD PITCHER and infielder Mark Starzl is the only Northeast Nebraska to be selected to the annual all-star baseball classic between the Omaha All-Stars and the Nebraska All-Stars.

The pitcher has used his famous breaking pitches to make some batters look silly at the plate.

IN CASE YOU haven't heard, the Husker Power Clinic, which was scheduled last week at Wayne High School, was postponed indefinitely.

According to Wayne High football coach

Lonnie Ehrhardt, there has been some question concerning the right to compile results of all Husker Power Clinics across the state.

Nebraska strength coach Boyd Eppley had planned to compile all individual statistics into a booklet and distribute them to all colleges in the state. He originally gained approval from the University of Nebraska but is now waiting verification from the Big 8 Conference and the NCAA.

Eppley will reschedule the clinic if possible. Otherwise, Ehrhardt plans to conduct a power clinic of his own.

TWO FINE baseball conferences are planning an all-star shootout. An all-star game between the Tri-County League (Wayne, Laurel) and the Dodge County League (Wakefield) is being planned in Wakefield in mid-August. Details will be worked out later.

WORD ARRIVED this week that Windsor's Paul Sok and Mark Koch had a pleasant and successful trip to Mexico and Venezuela.

Sok coached Nebraska wrestlers to victory in all but one dual. Koch won 31 matches and lost 7 on the trip. He placed fourth in an international tournament at Mexico City. National teams from Cuba, Argentina, Canada, Mexico, Venezuela and other countries competed.

Sok said Koch appeared to be mentally drained while wrestling the last of 15 matches in six days.

Wakefield's Midgets take advantage of miscues

A throwing error in an extra inning let Wakefield's Midgets score two runs and trim Wayne 3-1 Monday night in a key Ralph Bishop League game at the Wayne city ball park.

With two outs and bases loaded, Wakefield's Brian Soderberg slipped an infield grounder. An overthrow allowed pinch runner Kirk Roberts and Mike Murphy to score. Wayne was retired on two fly balls and a strikeout in the bottom of the inning.

The game, scheduled to go six innings, was forced to go seven when each team was held to one run in a pitcher's duel. Steve Overlin threw a three hitter for Wayne and recorded 10 strikeouts while Jeff Coble recorded a three hitter with four strikeouts.

WAKEFIELD'S RUN came with two outs in the third inning. Troy Greve singled and was moved to third base on Soderberg's base hit. Wayne Guy then hit a grounder down the third base line. The ball was stopped but no runners were thrown out and Greve scored on the error. The hosts knotted the game at 1-1 in the bottom of the fourth inning. Randy Gamble reached base on an error and Chris Wieseler moved him to second with a two-strike sacrifice bunt.

Trying to score on a base hit by Overlin, Gamble was tagged out at home. Overlin, who moved to second on the throw home, scored the tying run when Kevin Maly lined a single.

There was no more scoring until the seventh inning when Wakefield took advantage of two walks and two errors. The winners stranded six runners in the game and Wayne left two on base. Wayne stranded the go-ahead run in the fifth and again in the sixth.

Wakefield's three hits were collected by Greve, Soderberg and Coble while Overlin, Maly and Todd Dorcay each added one for the locals.

Wayne is scheduled to host Pender Friday while Wakefield will entertain Bancroft.

Upset bid by Wayne's Juniors stopped short in extra inning

When Wayne and Wakefield get together to play baseball, you can usually bet it will be a heck of a game. Records don't mean a thing when the rivals clash.

Entering Monday's matchup, Wakefield was the hottest team in Northeast Nebraska. The team had won 17 consecutive ball games since losing its season opener. A pair of losses to Sioux Falls and Vermillion in a Vermillion, S.D. tournament here's past weekend, ended that string.

Wayne, the defending Class B state champion, was suffering through what seems like a mediocre year for the perennial powers—but certainly not mediocre by most teams' standards.

THE LOYAL FANS of both teams were treated to another typical Wayne-Wakefield ball game. Wakefield came out on top 8-4 but it took eight innings instead of the scheduled seven.

In the third inning, the game looked like it could be a blow away. Wakefield broke loose with four runs and had an opportunity to score more.

Keith Roberts started things off with a lead-off double and Troy Harder reached base on an error. Mark Starzl's base hit loaded the bases and Brian Soderberg drew a walk to bring home Mark Kubik, who pinch ran for Roberts.

With one out, Wayne Guy ripped a triple to the wall down the right field line to clean the bases for a 4-0 lead. The visitors loaded bases again but failed to score any more runs as the next two batters flied out.

Starting pitcher Todd Schwartz and reliever Todd Pfeiffer only let three other runners get past first base in the first seven innings. The two pitchers combined to throw a five hitter with eight strikeouts.

WAYNE WAS DOWN momentarily but came back to its feet in the fourth inning. Schwartz, Dennis Lebsock and Todd Heier hit three consecutive singles to load up the bases. Schwartz was forced out at home on a fielder's choice but bases remained loaded.

Chad Dorcay, batting in the number eight slot, blasted a fly ball into deep right field. The ball cleared the outfielder's glove, bounced once and hit the fence but Dorcay had to be satisfied with a long single as he had to wait for a runner who was tagging up at first base on the play.

Nonetheless, Dorcay's hit easily drove in two runs. The next two batters were retired to put an end to Wayne's rally.

The hosts rallied again in the sixth inning to tie the score. Catcher Dennis Lebsock clubbed a fastball over the left field fence for a home run to open the inning in style. Tim Heier walked and was moved to second base on a sacrifice bunt by Mark Kubik.

Jeff Moore, substitute for Chad Dorcay, lined a double past Wakefield's diving left fielder which drove home Heier with the tying run.

IN THE SEVENTH inning, Wakefield left Soderberg on second and Wayne stranded Pfeiffer on third. The eighth inning was all Wakefield's.

With one out, Jeff Coble was hit by a pitch and Ken Roberts singled. Steve Schram hit a hard grounder for a possible double play but the ball was dropped and then a overthrow of first base allowed Coble to score.

Mark Starzl walked and Soderberg lashed a two-run single to bring home Roberts and Schram. Starzl scored the game's final run on a bad throw of Rod Nixon's grounder. Wakefield is now 18-3 for the year.

Shopping In Big Cities Can Be Hazardous... To Your Health AND Your Wealth!

Fighting dangerous traffic on the way to, and in, the big city is no fun and it costs nearly 45¢ per mile at today's gas prices!

You risk life and limb while driving, and even as a pedestrian crossing the city's over-loaded streets

To make matters worse, when you get home you'll often discover you could have spent less on your purchases by buying at home!

Then, if you need service or an adjustment on what you bought, your local stores, which you trade in or visit almost every day, are far more likely to be concerned about keeping you happy with your purchases than big city stores.

No need to roam... the best shopping's here at home!

4-H forestry contest held

The top winner in the Dixon County 4-H forestry contest held July 8 was Lisa Hansen, daughter of Kenneth Hansen of Allen. Tied for first in the junior division were Patricia Wilson, daughter of Larry Wilson of Ponca; and Tabitha Burnham, daughter of Paul Burnham of Allen. Lisa and Patricia are members of the Martinsburg Merry-makers 4-H Club. Tabitha is a member of the Pleasure and Profit 4-H Club.

Ribbon placings were as follows: purple — Lisa Hansen and Tabitha Burnham of Allen; Patricia Wilson, Ponca; blue — Brian Hansen, Deanna Hansen, Derwin Roberts, Annetta Noe, and Tamie Noe, all of Allen; red — Angela Jones, Barbara Hansen, Ron Obermeyer, Troy Hingt, Robert Kumm, Sandy Noe, Kristy Taylor, and Terri Ellis, all of Allen; Tonya Wilson and Christina Wilson of Ponca.

The contest included identification of 25 trees and shrubs, answering 20 questions on forestry, and a short essay on wind breaks.

Individuals who are now eligible to compete in the State Fair contest are Lisa Hansen, Derwin Roberts, Deanna Hansen and Brian Hansen.

Search for Livestock Queen

The Northeast Nebraska Livestock Feeders Association will select a queen to reign over its organization. The outstanding miss will be crowned at the Wayne County Fair Aug. 5 and will assume the position now held by Teresa Bruhn of Pender.

Her duties will include representation of the livestock feeders at fairs and events and promotion of the red meat industry. To be eligible as a candidate, a girl must be at least a senior in high school, but not more than 21.

She must be a daughter of a bonified livestock feeder who is currently a member of the Northeast Nebraska Feeders Association. The queen will be judged on beauty, neatness, personality, poise and awareness of the red meat industry. She must also be able to meet the public readily.

Any girl interested should notify the chairman of the queen committee, Donna Knecht, at Winnebago, 878 2443. The queen will also be eligible to compete in the state contest this December.

Livestock judging approaches

The Area 4-H Livestock Judging Contest will be held on Friday, July 16 at the Laurel Sales Barn, according to the Dixon County Extension Service. A 4-H members from Thurston, Dakota, Cedar, Wayne, and Dixon counties will compete in the contest, but contestants from each county will be scored separately. Registration will be held at 1 p.m. the day of the contest.

The contest will include judging of classes of beef, sheep, and swine. The official judge will review the classes following competition. Juniors (Under age 12) and seniors will compete in separate divisions. The top four Senior Division contestants will be chosen to represent Dixon County at the Nebraska State Fair and other livestock judging contests.

4-H members may attend to observe if they do not wish to compete. However, all Dixon County 4-H members are encouraged to participate in this educational project.

Pork producers meeting held

Dick Sorenson of Wayne, state director from the Wayne County Pork Producers Association, attended the Nebraska Pork Producers State Meeting in North Platte on Thursday, June 17, in conjunction with NEBRASKAland Days.

A major item of discussion was the promotional activities of the Nebraska Pork Producers Promotion Director Barb Wiegert of Fairbury, reported that for the first time the Nebraska Pork Producers will have the opportunity of sponsoring a pork concession at the 1982 Nebraska State Fair, Sept. 12-13. Pork chops and pork burgers will be served to fairgoers. Location site of the concession is the former Blue Flame Gas Display on the State Fairgrounds.

Promotion Director Wiegert also reported that the Nebraska Pork Producers will be participating in an upcoming major promotion at Ak-Sar Ben, September 26. "Swine Day" in Omaha, A Whole Hog Bar-B-Que and various other activities will be taking place.

Reduced tillage session set

Concern over recent wet spring weather and the need to increase economies in the field has sparked interest in reduced spring tillage techniques. Questions about these techniques will be answered during a one-day session on Tuesday, Aug. 10, at a farm near Wayne.

Local farmers will be introduced to a method of herbicide incorporation, known as Surface Blend, designed to increase fuel and time efficiencies, while maintaining soil quality. Weed specialists from Monsanto Agricultural Products Co. will be on hand to discuss how these techniques can be adapted to farmers' operations.

Representatives from local equipment companies, include John Deere, International Harvester, Genco, McKee and Kent will also be on hand to answer questions on what to look for in secondary tillage equipment. The "C" shank and Danish "S" tine field cultivators, ideally suited for one-pass incorporation techniques, will be displayed and demonstrated throughout the day.

The demonstration will begin at 11:30 a.m. and continue throughout the afternoon, and is free to interested farmers. The demonstration site is located 15 miles west of Wayne, on Highway 98, or six miles east of Highway 81 junction.

Further information on the event may be obtained by calling the Monsanto District Office in Sioux Falls, at 605 334 6022.

Sudangrass grazing has poison risk

Cattle grazing on sudangrass are in double danger of poisoning from both cyanide and nitrate content in the grass, according to test results from a 1981 University of Nebraska study.

Cyanide poisoning has long been recognized as a danger of grazing cattle on sorghum and other forage species. The NU study shows, however, that nitrate content in sudangrass presents an equal, if not greater, risk of poisoning.

Dr. Norman Schneider, NU veterinary toxicologist, presented results of the study at the North Central Conference for Veterinary Laboratory Diagnosticians held in Columbia, Mo., recently. Representatives from 12 states attended the conference. Schneider said:

"Strains of the sudangrass cultivar 'Greenleaf' were developed to yield low cyanide content and high cyanide content. Yearling heifers were grazed on these strains and on certified Greenleaf throughout the summer growing season.

Hansen wins horticulture contest

Lisa Hansen, daughter of Kenneth Hansen of Allen, won top honors at the Dixon County 4-H horticulture contest held July 8 at the Northeast Station near Concord. Lisa scored 423 points out of a possible 450. She is a member of the Martinsburg Merry-makers 4-H Club. The junior division winner was Tabitha Burnham, daughter of Paul Burnham of Allen. She is a member of the Pleasure and Profit 4-H Club.

Ribbon placings were as follows: purple — Lisa Hansen, Deanna Hansen, Brian Hansen, and Tabitha Burnham, all of Allen; March Barthe of Dixon, Patricia Wilson of Ponca; blue — Barbara Hansen, Angela Jones, Troy Hingt, Sandy Noe, Tamie Noe, Ron Obermeyer, and Kristy Taylor, all of Allen; Christina Wilson of Ponca, Doug Olson of Concord; red — Tonya Wilson of Ponca, Robert Kumm, Annetta Noe, and Terri Ellis, all of Allen.

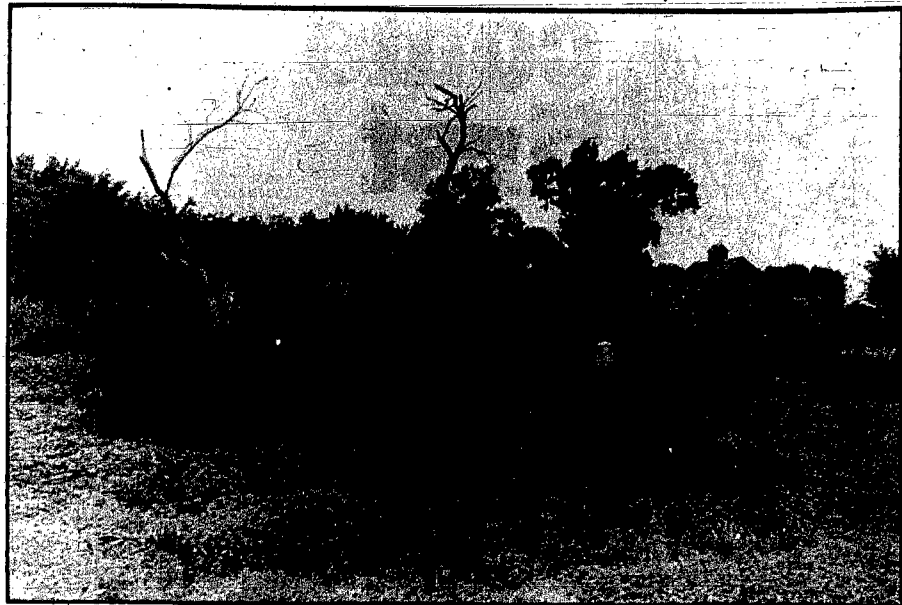

Participants competed in the identification of plant parts and seeds, a gardening knowledge quiz, and judging of five classes of vegetables.

Lisa Hansen, Brian Hansen, Deanna Hansen, and Angela Jones will be given an opportunity to represent Dixon County at the Nebraska State Fair Horticulture Contest.

Hog inventory down nine percent

Nebraska pork producers had 3.55 million hogs and pigs on hand June 1. This inventory was down nine percent from last year and was 13 percent below two years earlier. The market hog inventory at 3.1 million head was nine percent less than June 1 last year while hogs kept for breeding showed a seven percent decrease.

The weight breakdown of market hogs was as follows: Under 60 pounds — 1,270,000, down 17 percent; 60-119 pounds — 765,000, down four percent; 120-179 pounds — 570,000, down two percent; 180 pounds and over — 479,000, down three percent.

Years of changes

AN OLD farmstead west of Winside has seen many years of livestock raising, hay stacking and harvesting. Now, buildings have weathered, trees have died and weeds have taken root.

Milk production ahead of demand

Milk production continues to outdistance consumer demand, despite fundamental changes in the dairy price support program. More change is likely as dairy producers as well as the government attempt to cope with oversupply according to Dr. Roy Frederick, University of Nebraska extension economist.

The U.S. has had a dairy price support program since 1949 which has changed over the years, Frederick said, but the restructuring of the program in the 1981 Farm Bill was more far-reaching. The bill substantially eliminated milk's direct tie to parity and in its place established certain absolute minimums for each fiscal year through 1985.

A bit of history is needed to understand the significance of the changes, Frederick said.

THE AGRICULTURAL ACT OF 1949 established "permanent" authorization for milk prices to be supported by a parity-based formula to assure an adequate supply of milk, reflect changes in the cost of production, and assure a level of farm income adequate to maintain productive capacity sufficient to meet future needs.

The 1949 act provided a support level of not less than 75 percent of full parity price, with the U.S. Secretary of Agriculture having the authority to determine the support level within that range.

Two parts of the dairy support program are especially important, Frederick said. "There are no production controls on farmers as a prerequisite for price support, and the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Commodity Credit Corporation purchases excess cheese, butter and non-fat dry milk when the surpluses of these products accumulate."

The 1977 farm bill raised the minimum allowable support level from 75 to 80 percent of parity with semi-annual adjustments and the program continued through 1981, Frederick said, although the two adjustments scheduled for 1981 were skipped.

Prior to the increase in the minimum support level, "There were occasional periods of large government purchases, but the program could generally be described as one that stabilized prices in the short run and provided sufficient flexibility in the long run to balance supply and demand," Frederick said.

However, with the minimum 80 percent support level, the picture changed. Net government purchases increased from 1.1 billion pounds milk equivalent in 1978-79 to 12.7 billion in 1980-81. "The conclusion by many policy makers was that minimum supports were high enough to encourage excess production," he said.

DESPITE THE STEPS taken last year, which established an absolute minimum of $13.10 per hundred weight in 1982, production still has outdistanced demand, Frederick said. "During the first seven months of fiscal 1982, or October to April, net removals by CCC were equivalent to 7.9 billion pounds of milk, compared with 7.4 billion a year earlier. The price tag for the government is likely to be around $2 billion for the full fiscal year," he said.

Policy makers, particularly in the Executive Branch, believe that further initiatives must be taken. "A proposal to Congress which would give the Secretary of Agriculture discretionary authority to adjust support prices up or down is not viewed favorably by dairy farmers and their organizations because the assumption is that adjustments in the short-term would be down, not up, Frederick said.

Frederick called this proposal "by far the most controversial agriculture issue in the current session of Congress." However, he said he does not expect action on the proposal to be delayed until after the November congressional elections.

Several other alternatives for bringing production in line with demand have been advanced, Frederick said. "To their credit, dairymen generally recognize that current dairy product surpluses are a problem," he said.

DAIRYMEN INDIVIDUALLY and through their organizations have suggested alternatives, including the following, Frederick said.

- Voluntary cow culling. Cow numbers have increased during each of the past two years so above average culling may be in order.
- Reduce imports, which currently are equal to about 2 percent of total domestic production.
- Increase exports. However, surpluses elsewhere in the world make this difficult to do without using export subsidies.
- Expand domestic consumption. A milk check off plan is being proposed to provide for promotional activities.
- Have producers pay the cost of surplus removal. The government would limit its purchase responsibility to a predetermined level and producers would be responsible for disposing of the remainder on the world market.
- Control production through bases. Each producer would receive price supports on an established base for his farm. Producers would assume all market risk for production beyond the base.

"At present, it looks like no single alternative will emerge to deal with this problem. Instead, some combination can be expected by year-end," Frederick said.

County 4-H members attend camp at Ponca

Fifty-five Dixon County 4-H members participated in the Ponca 4-H Day Camp held June 29 and 30 at Ponca State Park. More than 290 4-H members from Thurston, Dakota, Cedar, Wayne and Dixon Counties attended the camp.

Older 4-H members were the camp counselors. The counselors led small groups of campers in activities such as a nature hike, craft period, gun safety (using BB guns), a citizenship program, singing and swimming.

Dixon County 4-H members attending the camp were Brian Anderson, Aaron Dietrich, Robert Nelson and Diane Olson, all of Concord; Brenda Hintz, Shane Jacobsen, Steve Johnson, Tim Johnson, Monica Nelson, Kathy Plance, Jeremy Quist, all of Dixon; Mark Bauman, Tim Book, Brent Litjen, Elizabeth Von Minden, Kurt Von Minden, Chip Watchorn, Dean Watchorn and Doug Watchorn, all of Ponca; Kevin Haberman, Kimberly Haberman, Michelle Haberman and Lori Miller, all of Newcastle; Karen Hallstrom of Wayne; Paul Brentlinger, Kristi Chase, Brenda Fiscus, Ben Jackson, Mike Johnson, Dana Kliver, Daniel Kliver, David Kliver, Heidi Lund, Deanna Mulhair, Malinda Puffi, Renee Plueger and Lynn Wood, all of Allen; Matt Anderson, Kelly Ekberg, Jim Erickson, Kristen Miller, William Miller, Jennifer Neal, Sean Neal, Suzanne Stelling, Theresa Stelling, Debra Turner and Keith Wensstrand, all of Wakefield.

Older Dixon County 4-H members serving as counselors at the camp were Donna Rhodes, Kathy Rhodes and Mary Lehman, all of Concord; Julie Book and Rusty Harard of Ponca; Mike Muller of Wakefield and Linda Wood of Allen.

VOLUNTEER CORN IN SOYBEANS

Heavy volunteer corn populations reduced yields by as much as 83 percent in Minnesota experiments.

The researchers planted corn in clumps of 10 kernels each, at three spacing rates: two, four and eight feet apart in soybeans planted in 30 or 40 inch rows.

The two foot corn spacings cut yields in 83 percent; the four foot spacings, 58 percent; and the eight foot spacings, 31 percent. These are averages of two-year tests at three locations on University of Minnesota experimental plots. The average loss of soybeans per clump of volunteer corn on the plots with the lightest rate, one clump per eight feet, was 32 pounds.

In other words, every 180 clumps of volunteer corn per acre will reduce the yield about one bushel. This estimate would include only the direct reduction in seed production. There would be additional losses due to harvesting problems caused by the corn.

The researchers were also comparing two herbicide treatments for volunteer corn control, early postemergence spray application of Hoelon, and rope-wick application of Roundup.

The researchers found Hoelon was more effective in increasing soybean yields than was Roundup at the higher corn densities. This was probably because the Hoelon applications, being a spray method, could be made an average of 19 days earlier than the rope-wick applied Roundup applications, allowing the corn less time to compete with the beans. Rope-wick applications had to wait for the corn to grow above the soybeans.

The researchers suggest early overtop application of Hoelon for heavy infestations of volunteer corn. For lighter infestations, it may be cheaper to use Roundup applied with a selective applicator such as a rope-wick unit.

VITAMIN A

Cattle deficient in vitamin A appear to be 50 percent more susceptible to infestation by larvae of the common cattle grub than cattle fed a normal, adequate diet. That's because the parasites don't penetrate the animal's healthy skin as easily.

On the other hand, animals with deficiencies of vitamin A often end up with dry, thin and scaly skin. This allows cattle grub larvae to penetrate lesions around hair follicles, mainly on the animal's legs.

The results are particularly important to cattlemen who rely heavily on pastures and other dry areas during the winter months. During that time grasses, which are rich in vitamin A during the growing season, lose the vitamin as they cure. Hay can also have poor quality and lose vitamin A because of improper and long storage.

Vitamin A made little difference on survival of grubs on animals that had grubs injected beneath the skin by the researchers.

After infestation, all animals were fed the vitamin A rich diet until the end of the eight month test.

Specialist predicts severe fly problem

Livestock producers will have to combat heavy fly infestations in feedlots this summer, according to Jack Campbell, University of Nebraska extension entomologist at the North Platte Station.

Wet weather has provided many breeding areas for flies—especially stableflies and houseflies—in debris areas of feedlots. Cool temperatures kept the problem to a minimum, but with hot weather approaching, the fly population will rapidly increase, he said.

"With the conditions we've had in Nebraska this year, we're bound to have a real severe fly problem in feedlots," Campbell said in an interview for Farm and Ranch Report, to be aired July 8 at 12:30 and 9:30 p.m. on the Nebraska ETV Network.

STABLEFLIES are blood-feeding insects and cause losses in weight gain performance and feed efficiency, Campbell said. Houseflies do not feed on blood, but they are notorious disease carriers and gather on the eyes and nostrils of the animals.

Flies breed in wet places, so it is important to clean up drainage areas where moisture collects. Mounds can be altered to help drain water out of the feedlot, Campbell said.

Insecticides also can help. Two types, knockdown and residual, are the best methods to kill adult fly populations, Campbell said.

"Most feeders in Nebraska use a 'mist blower' which is the application of a knockdown insecticide into an airstream into the feedlot and along the edges of the feedlot," Campbell said.

"With sanitation measures, you should be able to get by with about a two week interval on treatment with the mist blower to knock down adult populations," he added.

SWINE FEEDLOTS are plagued by houseflies more than by stableflies. In confined housing, producers can rely on residual insecticides because the flies will rest inside the buildings. Also, shade protects the insecticide which otherwise would break down in heat and sun in outdoor feedlots.

Other methods meet with less success, the NU specialist reported. Ear tags with insecticides are not effective against stableflies and houseflies. Campbell advised. However, they are very effective against hornflies and fairly good against faceflies.

Feed additives do not work in areas where stableflies are a major problem—the eastern two-thirds of Nebraska, from Ogallala east—because the additives work best in fresh manure, and stableflies breed in older accumulations, he said.

Biological controls that use natural predators of the flies need more research, Campbell said. Commercially-sold parasites do not work in Nebraska, he said, although native species may show more promise.

"In fact, that's what we're starting to do now in the unit in Lincoln is to rear some of the native parasites and release those in time," Campbell said.

Tests indicate best wheat choices

The best varieties to choose for winter wheat planting in the fall of 1982 have been determined by University of Nebraska research. With the 1982 wheat harvest underway, producers should decide which varieties to plant in the fall in order to improve next year's harvest, according to NU agronomy specialists.

Major shifts in choice of variety reflect the effort to choose wheat that is resistant to the constantly changing leaf and stem rust races. Gus Dreier, NU extension crops specialist said. Varieties were also chosen for disease resistance to Hessian fly and soil-borne mosaic. Findings are listed in NebGuide G73-24 for June of 1982.

THE WHEAT varies in ability to adapt to different areas of Nebraska. Varieties were judged on yield, maturity, winter hardiness and straw strength. Protein content of the grain was also taken into consideration during testing. The topic will be featured on Farm & Ranch Report to be aired on Nebraska ETV, July 15 at 12:30 and 9:30 p.m.

This year's scab problem should have little bearing on the choice of wheat variety for next season according to Duane Foote, NU extension grain specialist. Scab is believed to recur only every 30 years. However, if the disease returns next year, choice of wheat variety would not guarantee any inherent resistance to scab, he said.

Varieties tested were as follows: Agate, Bennett, Brule, Buckskin, Centurk 78, Dawn, Eagle, Gage, Homestead, Lancer, Lancota, Larned, Lin-don, Newton, Roughrider, Sage, Scout 66, Scoutland, Sentinel and Vona.

Poor winterhardness created difficulty in producing Lindon, Newton and Vona in Nebraska. On the other hand, Agate, Bennett, Brule and Lancer showed good winterhardness according to the tests.

Brule, a medium early wheat, had the best overall resistance to disease of the four winterhard varieties and also had strong straw. It was released by Nebraska in 1982 and is adaptable to almost all parts of the state. Registered seed will be available for fall planting.

AGATE IS primarily adapted to the Panhandle and surrounding regions. Bennett is best planted in south central and southeast Nebraska. Lancer has excellent winterhardness and is well adapted to western Nebraska. It was the leading variety in acreage planted in the state during 1980 and 1981.

Centurk and Centurk 78 made up more than 40 percent of the total wheat planted in Nebraska since 1978. More than half of the winter wheat in the Panhandle during the fall of 1980 and 1981 was planted to Centurk. Yield potential is high, winterhardness is fair, but the variety is susceptible to leaf rust and moderately susceptible to Hessian fly and soil-borne mosaic. Scout 66 and Scout combined made up the most acreage planted in Nebraska during 1970 to 1973. However, the variety is susceptible to leaf rust and lacks straw strength.

Homestead was the only wheat variety that had good resistance to soil-borne mosaic combined with fair winterhardness, making it a good choice for southeast Nebraska.

Guidance system exhibited

A NEW GUIDANCE system for farm tractors will be among exhibits at Tractor Power and Safety Day, July 22 at the University of Nebraska Field Laboratory near Mead. Called "Freedom Drive," the system frees the tractor operator from steering. A sensor mark for the device is made by the disk marker of the planter and the furrow serves as a guide for the tractor when cultivating. According to Dale Rolofson, manager of the ag engineering farm at the field lab, one major advantage of the device is the ability to monitor the trailing equipment much better. With multi-row equipment, it's a big chore to operate the tractor and also watch how the trailing unit is operating, he says. Rolofson sees much use for the new device, based on his experience with it this spring. The device is easy to mount since it ties into the hydraulic steering unit on the tractor. Other new farming equipment also will be demonstrated and displayed during Tractor Day, which is free and open to the public. The event kicks off at 9 a.m. Field demonstrations and tours of the Energy Farm are scheduled during the afternoon.

Wayne, Winside girls participate in contest

Two 17-year-old girls from Wayne and Winside participated in this year's Dairy Princess contest sponsored by the Norfolk chapter of the Nebraska Dairy Women.

Judy Bauermeister, daughter of Vernon and Carol Bauermeister who operate a Grade A dairy farm southwest of Wayne, was named first runner-up in the contest held last month in Battle Creek.

Miss Bauermeister will be a senior this fall at Winside High School and has been involved in a dairy club seven of the nine years she has been a 4-H'er.

In her resume, Miss Bauermeister wrote, "Being on a Grade A dairy farm, I am chosen as Dairy Princess to promote the products and to inform people about dairy."

For her participation in the contest was Lori Schrant, daughter of Allen and Lavon Schrant of Winside.

Lori also will be a senior this fall at Winside High School. Her family has operated Roadside Dairy at Winside since 1957, producing, processing and delivering one-half gallon cartons of Grade A milk within a 25-mile radius.

CHOSEN to represent the Norfolk chapter of the Nebraska Dairy Women as their 1982-83 Dairy Princess was Jane Lienemann, the 18-year-old daughter of Arnold and Phyllis Lienemann of Pierce.

She will vie for the state title this fall. Serving as judges for the event were John Volk and August Klug of Battle Creek, and Mrs. Laverne Hauptmann of Clearwater.

Candidates feud over state employment situation

By Malvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

Like feuding parents in a custody fight, Republican Gov. Charles Thone and Democratic challenger Bob Kerrey disagree who is the true guardian of this election year of the job creation and industrial development issue.

The disagreement presents a perfect example of the age-old dilemma: Is the glass half-empty or half-full?

Thone argues the glass is at least half full, and in his more expansive moments, he tells listeners that the glass is brimming.

CITING STATE Department of Economic Development figures, Thone claims that over the last three years new and expanded plants in Nebraska have announced their intentions to add 9,000 jobs to the workforce. He said the capital investment represented by the announcements totals $309 million, an improvement of 24 percent over the last three years of their administration of Gov. J. J. Exon.

Thone told Republicans gathered in Lincoln on June 26 for their state convention that job creation will be a major theme in his campaign for reelection.

The governor says his administration and its emphasis of industrial development is responsible for a good many of the new jobs. Those plant expansions and relocations in which the state had no direct hand, Thone says, also reflect favorably on his administration. His steady hand at the wheel of state government must have been attractive to those industries contemplating an increased capital investment in the state, he said.

Among the plants for which Thone and other administration officials take credit are the new Sundstrand Corp plant in York and the proposed Corn Nuts plant in Grand Island.

IN ARGUING THAT the glass is half empty, Kerrey has Nebraska unemployment figures in his favor. Thone's efforts pale when considered against the backdrop of 43,200 unemployed persons in the state. The figure is nearly double the 22,820 jobs which was recorded shortly after Thone took office.

Thone responds that his job development efforts have minimized the effects of the recession on the state.

But Democrats insist that he who takes credit for the rain must take credit for the drought.

State AFL-CIO president Gordon McDonald, whose organization has endorsed Kerrey, said Thone should be accountable for businesses that have left the state, if he is going to take credit for those who relocated or expanded. Among the plants that have left while Thone has been governor, McDonald notes, are Morfon House in Nebraska City, Russell Stover in Lincoln and Safeway stores statewide.

HE ALSO faulted Thone for allegedly failing to act in 1981 when the Falstaff brewery in Omaha temporarily closed down.

If it had been left up to the governor, that entire operation would now be in Indiana, McDonald said.

The brewery reopened after an appeal by McDonald and a delegation of state senators to Falstaff owner Paul Kalmanovitz. The brewing magnate, in a 1981 advertisement in Nebraska newspapers, told Thone: "You could have prevented this entire fiasco from happening."

State officials have their fingers crossed that the revenue from the newly-enacted increases in sales and income tax rates will be sufficient to allow them to meet their large financial obligations which start coming due in the fall.

THE STATE general fund ended the fiscal year on June 30 with a meager $2.9 million. Actually, the true balance was a negative $15.7 million, but the Thone administration had exercised its legal authority to transfer idle cash funds from various agencies to keep a positive balance in the general fund.

Traditionally, the general fund builds up over the summer months, when spending obligations are relatively light. The first real test will be the start of massive aid payments to local governments that come due in the last months of the calendar year.

Revenue from the new 3.5 percent sales tax rate and the 19 percent individual income tax withholding rate is just beginning to arrive in Lincoln.

A stable or improving economy would allow the state to meet autumn obligations with ease. Further deterioration of the economy could stir up the pot considerably, and perhaps necessitate a special budget-cutting session of the Legislature smack dab in the middle of an election campaign.

Room for improvement

Although the findings of Dr. Arnold Emry and Waldo Johnson, in their evaluation of Educational Service Unit One, have concluded that overall the unit is performing at a satisfactory level, the ESU administrator and members of the board of directors readily admit that there is always room for improvement.

Although there were several areas of concern mentioned in the evaluation, the primary area, which seems to be the leading cause of problems in other areas, is communication.

Poor communication, or a need for improved communication, was sighted by Johnson and Dr. Emry at almost every level: between the board and the administrator; between the administration and staff and between the unit as a whole and those it is intended to serve.

The ESU is composed of professionals, from administrators and supervisors to highly trained staff members. Somewhere along the way in their education they no doubt have received training in how to be good communicators but in the course of their professional job roles, have failed to draw upon that knowledge.

Often good communication is simply a matter of time and, as the evaluation points out, in some areas time is a very precious commodity. However by donating a block of time out of each day toward improving communication in their own area, unit members may find that better communication leads to a decrease in the number of problems they must face during the day.

Improved communication will not solve all the problems mentioned in the evaluation, but it will go along way toward helping to promote a better understanding within the unit, and among those it serves, of the role the ESU can and should play in the educational process.

Bridge problems

Over the past few years practically all states have neglected their bridges in light of the tight money needed to just maintain their highways and streets. As a result the whole country now faces a gigantic problem in that as a nation we are looking at over $41 billion in replacement and rehabilitation costs. In figures compiled by the National Highway Users Conference, they claim that on the Federal-Aid Highway System that 194,956, or 76%, of the bridges are safe. But, that 23,689, or 9.2% are structurally deficient and 27,860, or 14.8% of them are functionally obsolete.

And on the non-federal-aid system, there are 117,181 bridges that are safe, representing 43.7% of the total. And there are 83,054, or 30.9% that are structurally deficient and 68,126, or 25.4%, are functionally obsolete. This is a total of 268,361 bridges in the country.

In most other measurements connected with highways, Nebraska comes in at about 1% of the total. That is, we collect about 1% of the federal gas tax, we have about 1% of the number of vehicles, and we get about 1% of the federal aid that is passed out each year. Realizing that this isn't a real accurate measurement that might apply to bridges, but is a figure to use for the sake of this story, then the cost of putting our bridges into a respectable condition would cost us about $400 million.

These figures come from the estimate the NHUC used when it said that it would cost $4.1 billion to take care of all the bridges in the country.

We know that this is a big worry for a number of our State Senators who have brought this matter to the floor of the Legislature through the introduction of bills relating to bridges. But to date they have not interested enough of our lawmakers to see any positive action taken on the part of that body as a whole.

Of that $41.1 billion cost figure for bridge replacement and rehabilitation, $20.5 billion is for bridges on the non-federal-aid system. In other words, if we in Nebraska want it fixed, we pay the whole bill. And $20.6 billion is on the federal-aid system.

It really makes little difference to Nebraskans whether it is on the federal-aid system or not, as it is all road taxes and we are one of the states that receive back as much money from the feds for roads, as we send in, or close to it.

The fact is, we have one big bridge problem, that is national in scope, and now that the Interstate Highway System is nearing completion, we feel that the feds should begin planning on a bridge program of the same stature as the Interstate System, and let the states know so that planning can begin at this level.

Economy is picking up steam

In a time when good news of the nation's economy is eagerly sought by the public, there are now at least modest encouraging notes.

The Commerce Department's preliminary estimate of real gross national product for the second quarter reveals that the economy seems to be expanding at a 0.6% annual rate after inflation.

Personal income rose 0.7% in May to a seasonally adjusted $2,548 trillion annual rate. That followed an increase of 0.3% in April.

Accompanying the rise in personal income was a sharp increase in consumer spending. Personal consumption expenditures rose 1.3% in May, after increasing 0.3% the previous month. The May increase was the largest one since last August.

New factory orders for durable goods rose 1.4% in May. Retail sales rose 1.5% in May following an April rise of 0.7%.

New car sales were up 6.4% in the last 10 days of May as compared with the same period a year ago. This is the first time since last summer that there have been three straight 10-day periods of sales increases.

New private housing building permits have climbed almost 70% since November, 1981. Housing starts rose 22% in May to an adjusted annual rate of 1,086,000 units—above the one million unit annual level for the first time in 10 months.

I AM VERY ALARMED that the Administration might accept a request to dispatch American military forces to help evacuate Palestinian Liberation Organization fighters from Beirut.

Last Wednesday, in telegrams to President Reagan and to House Minority Leader Robert Michel, I expressed my strong and total opposition to sending American personnel to Lebanon and my confidence that most Nebraskans, also oppose this action. There are all kinds of reasons why any such United Nations sanctioned force should not include American personnel. We should only assist the negotiations for a peaceful settlement in every way possible.

July work period in the First District, much of my time was spent in the northern counties. One of my stops was at the senior citizens center in Bancroft. Coupled with an earlier visit to similar centers in Crofton and Hartington, the visit to Bancroft reinforced my belief of the importance of senior citizens not only organizing themselves in our communities, but securing locations in which to conduct their activities. Senior citizens continue to impress me with their knowledge of events through question and answer sessions which range over a wide variety of issues.

Last week was also an opportunity to continue my visits to First District industry. Included among my tours were Dale Electronics at Norfolk, the Iowa Beef Processors pork plant at Madison, and the Beclon-Dickenson plant on the Santee Sioux Reservation, an excellent example of private industry and reservation cooperation where 80 percent of the workers are Santee Sioux. I also addressed service clubs in Sioux City and Norfolk and discussed the possible impact of budget cuts on extremely northeast Nebraska with United Way of Siouxland.

Although Congress has resumed its work in Washington, it will continue to return to the First District as time permits to keep in touch with my constituents. Knowing your concerns and suggestions is important to me.

An experienced biddy sat on her eggs one day
And decided there must be a better way
To hatch baby chicks for her cocky spouse
And spend all her time in an old chicken house.
She didn't mind laying the eggs, don't you see,
For she was equipped with the machinery.
But wasting three weeks on a nest of hay
On a setting of eggs and receive no pay,
While her rooster was out just fooling around
With all the young pullets that he easily found.
She thought to herself a machine could be invented

So all my tedious jobs could be prevented.
She took her problem to a kindly man
Who said, "I'll solve it as soon as I can."
He rigged up a box and added some heat,
Put in some eggs in rows very neat
And in 21 days the babies were there.
And another advantage they were no care.
For they didn't know her as their mother,
So they could be cared for by another.
So now she had freedom like her cocky spouse
And got herself out of that old chicken house.
Now if there's to be equality for women
And men
Maybe there's a lesson to be learned
From that wise old hen.

Report casts doubts

By M. M. Van Kirk
Nebraska Farm Bureau

Release of a National Academy of Science Report entitled "Diet, Nutrition and Cancer," recently produced a reaction in livestock markets and has cast further doubt among consumers toward meat and meat products.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture has issued a statement saying it wants to preclude public over reaction to the report and says it will have a committee of experts review its findings. The Department pointed out that the Academy's report acknowledged that its recommendations were based on uncertain and incomplete scientific evidence.

THE ACADEMY OF SCIENCE Report was prepared by a special ad hoc committee appointed in June 1980 with an assigned task of conducting a comprehensive study of scientific information pertaining to the relationship of diet and nutrition to cancer. In approximately one year, the committee will consider potentially profitable areas for future cancer research and these recommendations will be released in report form.

Very few people will ever read the complete report, as is true with all such reports, but instead will read the attention-getting stories and headlines concerning its recommendations. One analyst observed that the public's reaction indicates people are ready to do whatever they can to reduce the incidence of cancer and will grasp at any suggestions and recommendations whether based on inconclusive or insufficient evidence or whatever.

The committee said it was not now possible to specify a diet that would protect everyone against all forms of cancer but the members believed enough evidence was available to recommend some interim guidelines that they thought might reduce the risk of cancer.

- THESE INCLUDE the following:
- 1.) Reduced consumption of both saturated and unsaturated fats in the average U.S. diet. The target level is a reduction from the present approximately 40 percent of total calories from fat to 30 percent.
  - 2.) Emphasize fruit, vegetables and whole grain cereal products which contain vitamin A and those that are members of the family of plants that produce heads—cabbage, broccoli, cauliflower and brussels sprouts.
  - 3.) Minimize the intake of foods that are preserved by salt-curing or smoking.
  - 4.) Continue efforts to minimize contamination of foods with carcinogens from any source.
  - 5.) Identify and continue further testing for "Mutagens" in food and test for their carcinogenicity. (Mutagens are substances that cause heritable changes in the genetic material in cells, said to be an important factor in the case of meat and fish cooked at high temperatures.)
  - 6.) Moderate the consumption of alcoholic beverages. Increased risk for development of cancers is seen for a person who combines excessive consumption of alcoholic beverages with cigarette smoking.

IT IS DIFFICULT to see how these guidelines generated so many controversial conclusions as they did. People who have been enjoying good steaks, ham, bacon and other quality meat products for some 60 to 70 years of their lives are not inclined to take too seriously the advice of a committee which says such things are not good for them. But one shouldn't underestimate the reaction of impressionable people who will try every new fad and accept pronouncements cloaked with claims of scientific authority.

Most of us would agree that fruits, vegetables and whole grain cereals are good eating and belong in a well-balanced nutritional diet—whether a study committee recommends them or not. And several generations ago, school children were taught that using tobacco would "harm their growth", and that alcoholic beverages used to excess would lead to an early grave.

The Academy of Science Report guidelines are really not very new or revolutionary but the inferences and interpretations that some people put on them make it seem so.

Hundreds of young musicians expected at WSC music camp

Several hundred young musicians will be assembling on the campus of Wayne State College soon to take part in the 38th annual Wayne State College High School Summer Music Camp, the oldest such camp in the Midwest.

Area music teachers will have an opportunity to learn, too, as Derryl Goes, a nationally known jazz and percussion authority, will conduct a "Jazz Band Workshop" at the camp.

Goes is from the University of Northern Colorado.

Interested educators can sign up through the first day of the workshop.

THE WAYNE State College High School Summer Music Camp is for students who finished the eighth grade last spring through last May's high school graduates.

The camp is scheduled for Sunday, July 25, through Sunday, Aug. 1, at Wayne State.

The "Jazz Band Workshop" which is offered for two graduate credit hours, is set for July 27 to July 31.

THE HIGH school camp attracted over 360 students last year.

Cost is $105, including room and board. A $35 scholarship is granted to those who earned a "B" rating in a solo event in a Nebraska School Activities Association sponsored music contest last spring.

Students may still register through Friday, July 16.

The camp offers three bands, three choirs, orchestra plus jazz bands, swing choirs, and a number of class electives.

Instructional tracks are offered in band, band choir, choir, string, and piano.

THE CAMP is staffed by Wayne State music faculty plus a number of area music educators.

Wayne State faculty on the camp staff include Dr. Cornell Runestad, who also serves as the camp director; Dr. Jay O'Leary; Dr. Ray Keltin; Dr. Mike Patumbo; Connie Webber; and James Day.

U.S. Treasury procedures are explained

When John Q. Citizen wants to borrow money so he can buy a house or a car, he goes to his local bank, savings and loan or credit union, has his credit checked and goes home to await the outcome. But larger borrowers — corporations, municipalities, state governments — don't have to go through all those steps. Since their credit is good, investors stand in line to lend them money, and the bonds or other financial instruments they issue are, most often, bid upon eagerly.

THE BIGGEST borrower of all is the federal government. The U.S. Treasury frequently offers its bills, notes and bonds to investors all across the nation in exchange for a reasonable rate of return and the knowledge that no money can be safer than that which has been loaned to the U.S. government.

However, there's one drawback. The Treasury sits in Washington, D.C., with only a few other outlets here and there, while potential buyers are scattered all over. So Treasury securities are offered for sale by the 12 Federal Reserve Banks and their 25 branches.

In this part of the country, individual and institutional investors can go or write to the Federal Reserve Bank of Kansas City or its branches in Omaha, Oklahoma City and Denver.

"THE TREASURY offers 3-month and 6-month Treasury bills every Monday, and one-year bills once a month," said Bill Stanley of the Securities Department at the Kansas City Fed. "Notes and bonds, which have longer maturities, are offered at various times."

When the Treasury is ready to sell securities, the news goes out via teletype to the Federal Reserve Banks and branches.

The telex message, carrying the basic information about that particular issue of Treasury securities, puts into motion the well-oiled machinery that will accomplish that sale. Each Reserve Bank retains the data to the financial institutions in its district. These institutions can then decide what securities they'd like to buy for their own accounts, and they can also accept subscriptions from their customers.

OTHER PEOPLE come directly to the Fed where trained personnel take their subscriptions and accept payment for the securities.

The closing time for every auction is 1:30 p.m. in Washington, D.C. (12:30 p.m. in Kansas City and 11:30 a.m. in Denver). At that precise minute, Reserve

Banks all over the country close their doors.

"If someone walks up to the window five minutes later, we may turn them down," Stanley said.

RIGHT AFTER 12:30 p.m. central time, the securities staff in Kansas City starts totaling subscriptions received at all four of its locations. Purchases over $500,000 in Treasury bills (or $1,000,000 in notes and bonds) will have come from large bidders such as large commercial banks, and will be competitive. In other words, these bidders will have specified the price they're willing to pay.

Smaller subscriptions, usually from individuals, will probably be noncompetitive. In this case the customers state the amount of securities they'd like to buy and agree to pay the average price as determined in the auction. However, anyone has the option of submitting a competition bid even for, say, a $1,000 note or bond.

Totals are run on competitive and noncompetitive subscriptions, and all the required information is wired to Washington.

"Within a couple of hours after the closing time, the Treasury has all the information from all the Federal Reserve districts."

Stanley said.

LATE THAT day, or perhaps early the next day, the Treasury sends back the high, low and average prices that were accepted in the auction. The results appear in almost any large newspaper the day after the auction.

The bidding is over and the results are out, but the Fed still has work to do. "If it was a sale of Treasury bills, we must be ready to put them into book-entry form," Stanley explained. "If we sold the securities, we'll set up an account for the purchaser with the Treasury. If a financial institution made the sale, they'll set up the account."

"You see, bills are what we call book-entry securities. You receive a receipt for them, but they're kept in an account for you. This means there is no certificate that can be lost, stolen or counterfeited."

"NOTES AND bonds come in what we call a definitive form, since you receive tangible evidence of your purchase — an engraved certificate," Stanley continued. "So if it was a sale of notes or bonds, we'd have to have certain forms ready to send to Washington so the Treasury can prepare the engraved certificates the purchasers will receive."

The Fed also handles customer requests for changes to their securities. For example, some people may decide they'd like their notes or bonds converted from registered form to bearer form, or vice versa. (The registered form is safer, but the securities can more easily be sold if they're in bearer form.) Or a customer may request a name change.

Finally, the Fed must be prepared to redeem securities when they mature, or pay interest to people who hold them in bearer form. Securities in this form have coupons which the owner must clip and present for his interest payments either at the Fed or at a commercial financial institution.

THE FED has a similar role in the sale of another standby of the Treasury Department, U.S. Savings Bonds. Savings bonds are distinguished by their smaller denominations and by the fact they're nonmarketable, as opposed to Treasury bills, notes and bonds which can be sold in the secondary securities market.

There's one thing, however, the Fed never does in connection with the sale of any Treasury securities: act as a financial adviser.
