Early shoppers

WHEN DOG DAZE hits Wayne, people come out in flocks to find the bargains. Sidewalk sale enthusiasts were in front of participating businesses by 6 a.m. Saturday hoping to find some good deals before the goods were picked over. The bargain hunters didn't even let the flow of traffic on Main Street slow them down as they scurried from one store to another across the street. Nice weather prompted a large turnout at the annual event.

Disaster aid change sought

On Wednesday, Governor Thone-toured Cuming County by car and State Patrol helicopter, surveying the damage to that county caused by the storm of July 19.

Following his tour he indicated that he will probably be recommending that disaster aid, in the form of low interest loans, be made available to those who suffered losses.

Part of the problem with the federal aid deals with the regulations. Currently a county must have received 30 percent crop loss in order to be eligible for the aid.

Thone however has indicated he will recommend the regulation be bypassed or changed for the case of the six counties affected, requesting instead that aid be made available to those residing within the 22 mile strip that was affected by the storm.

Jack Hart of the governor's office on Friday indicated that plan, in all probability, will be pursued.

The federal department that will be involved in the aid will be the Department of Agriculture with the Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS).

"After a storm," Hart said, "the local boards send in a flash report to the state ASCS office." In Wayne county that board is composed of the county agent and agents from the ASCS, Soil Conservation Service and Farmer's Home Administration.

"Following the flash report, if the state ASCS office considers sufficient damage has been reported, they pass the report to the Governor. A more detailed report is then requested from the local boards," Hart said.

The six counties affected have submitted their reports to the state which is in the process of compiling the data. Hart said that task should be completed the latter part of next week.

"After a review of the entire situation by the state ASCS, they may recommend to the governor's office whether to go forward in seeking aid," Hart explained. "Then it is up to the governor to contact the U.S. Secretary of Agriculture."

Hart said the Governor hopes the Secretary will agree to bend the rules or change them so the aid will not be effected by county boundaries. "The 30 percent regulation for disaster aid includes all crops and hay in the pastures for each county," Hart said. He indicated the Governor hopes to be able to work around that following Monday's storm in Northeast Nebraska.

In local developments, county agent Don Spitzke said the local board has sent in their preliminary report to the state ASCS office and are ready to send in a detailed report as soon as it is requested.

He also said the local board has determined that in addition to the $10 million market value crop loss there is about $1/2 in property damage in Wayne County.

Total damage by the county has been set at about 108,000 acres. According to figures supplied by Spitzke, that means about 38 percent of Wayne County's crops were affected by the storm.

Housing situation for city reflects changing markets

(Editor's note: This is the second of two articles dealing with the housing and home buying situation in Wayne.)

Although real estate agents, whether in a franchise business or independent, have been coming up with some creative ways of financing over the past few years, many financial institutions across the county refuse to transact business using these new methods.

By downs, where the seller buys down the interest rate, graduated payments, where the buyer's payments are lower at the beginning and rise as their income does and co-ownership, where an investor works with the buyer for several years for the benefit of both, are all new ways of financing that have come about in the past few years.

FmHA Many lending institutions however can not, or will not enter into such agreements. At the Federal Farmer's Home Administration (FmHA), Quane Havrda said part of their requirements are that they may not compete with local lending institutions. "When we review someone's eligibility for a loan, Havrda said, "part of it involves the people not being able to obtain commercial credit. They must have been turned down for a housing loan with the local lending institutions before they can be considered for an FmHA loan."

Havrda said this regulation keeps FmHA from competing directly with commercial institutions. "They must also meet certain income guidelines to be eligible for a loan and, of course, their credit must be adequate," he explained.

FmHA is currently making loans at 13 1/2 percent interest on 33 year conventional loans. Monthly installment payments must be made. Insurance is required on the property, property taxes must be paid and the people taking out the loan must live in the home.

"We are allotted so much money for housing each year which is broken down into quarters," Havrda said. "Our purpose is to help eligible applicants obtain a loan for a home."

Along with the conventional loan situation, Havrda said the loan is periodically reviewed. "If it appears that the people, after a few years with FmHA, may obtain commercial credit due to a rise in income or other reasons, they must seek the commercial credit and pay off their loan with FmHA," he explained.

This allows funds to circulate back through the federal loan system.

Active Community One local real estate agent, Joe Lowe, said he uses the services of FmHA fairly extensively in his dealings with those seeking a home.

"We've seen a lot of activity in the community these past few years," he said, "I'm showing homes all the time. Now is really the time to buy a home if they can."

As most real estate agents in town agree, Lowe said obtaining financing is the key. Lately Lowe has been working closely with FmHA but also with contracts.

There are sellers, Lowe said, who are no longer under mortgage conditions and are willing to set up contracts with potential buyers of the property.

Lowe, an independent real estate agent for many years in the community, said he believes cooperation among agents has also aided potential buyers greatly in Wayne.

"If I have a buyer who is interested in a home listed by another agent, we try to work together for the benefit of all concerned," Lowe said, "and that also works in reverse. Several agents in town have shown homes that I list. I think it's a very good cooperative arrangement."

Lowe also said he believes the time of multiple listing is coming to the Wayne area. Multiple listings would open up everything to all agents in the community to better serve the potential buying public.

Existing Loans An additional financing avenue in use in the community, which is offered by lending institutions, involves existing loans. Betty Addison, vice president of Midwest

Federal Savings and Loan explained that "it's a blending of rates with the result that the buyers assume a mortgage at lower than current market interest rates."

She said if the lending institution currently has a loan, buyers and sellers are able to get together. "By using the interest rate on an old loan, then the current rate on any additional money to finance the sale, we are able to blend these into a below market rate which can be an aid in helping to move these homes," she said.

Addison also agreed with real estate agents that the days of the fixed rate loan are no more. "We all must be more flexible in the methods by which we lend out money for loans," she said.

Under the old conventional loan process, the loan is amortized over several years, generally from 20 to 35 years. Amortization is merely the periodic reduction of the debt. Payments are split between the interest and the principle or cost of the home. When the loan starts out, the principle is high so the interest on the amount is high. Over the years however, more and more of the payment is applied to the principle.

"I think young people still have that dream of owning a home. We are all condi-

Advice given after losses

Some cautious advice has been offered to area farmers who suffered crop loss and damage as the result of Monday night's hail storm, from the Wayne County Extension Service.

County agent Don Spitzke said that farmers who are considering grazing their land damaged by the storm should be aware of the possibility of nitrate poisoning.

"Cattle should not be allowed to graze on the lower parts of the corn stalks," Spitzke said. He advised farmers that if the corn was about 6 feet tall, cattle should not eat the bottom three feet of the stalk. If the corn was originally about three feet tall, he advised not letting the livestock eat the bottom foot of the corn.

"Of course nitrates are of no concern if the corn is going into silos and through the fermentation process," he said.

Farmers may send samples to laboratories or through Spitzke for analysis but he said, "It will take a week to 10 days for the results."

If the crops are a total loss, Spitzke said there are several possibilities for farmers. "Mainly what they can do is to try forage sorghum for silage," he said.

"If some of the corn tassels are broken and will not develop ears it could still be left and harvested later for silage. It's generally two to three percent higher in protein than normal corn silage with ears," Spitzke said. He added that it will not dry out well however since it tends to retain moisture.

"An alternate crop for silage might be oats for silage," he said, "if the previously used herbicide will allow oats to be planted."

As far as alternate crop planting, Spitzke said sunflowers for silage won't mature enough to make good silage. "Soybeans that have extremely short seasons such as some of the Northern varieties, won't be worth the expense because of the low yields. There's not enough pay-back and I think the farmers would just be spinning their wheels," he said.

Those farmers that are irrigating their damaged corn, particularly hail damaged corn should try 20 pounds of nitrogen in the water. "This should prove helpful in offsetting some of the hail damage but it should only be done before the corn starts to tassel," he said.

He also cautioned farmers using 2-4-D herbicide on their corn to use the minimum of one pint Amine 2-4-D.

Sudan also reminded farmers that they need to put cover on set-aside acres.

"Sudan, Sudan hybrids or oats could be considered and later in the fall grazed but not harvested."

Strikers

STRIKING WORKERS FROM Iowa Beef Pack began picketing at the Amber Inn motel on the Eastern edge of Wayne on Friday afternoon drawing attention to the fact that IBP officials were taking job applications for employment from area residents. The striking workers said they wanted to inform those applying that there is a strike in progress at the plant. They also blamed recent violence at the plant on a small group of the union's members and said in no way does the violence of the past. IBP officials have said they received applications from Wayne area residents for employment at the plant.

Tuition litigation reviewed

This summer, several Wayne area taxpayers initiated litigation aimed at reducing the cost of a high school education at Wayne-Carroll's high school in Wayne.

Although six names have been released in connection with the litigation, papers filed with the district court in Wayne, make it clear that the action is not only brought on behalf of those who filed but "for all of the other owners of property similarly situated in the non-high school districts of Wayne County, Nebraska," according to the filed petition on appeal.

Taxpayers bringing the suit are Merlin Reinhardt, Richard Lund, Frederick Mann, Gene Lull, Cyril Hansen and Dwayne Rathwisch.

The case is only one of many across the state, brought against county governments, but ultimately aimed at high school boards. Wayne-Carroll superintendent Dr. Francis Haun explained the situation. "To begin with, the notion of a 'free high school tuition' is a misnomer. It's not free."

Haun said the situation begins with the different classes of schools that exist in Nebraska.

Class I schools are any school district that maintains only elementary grades under the direction of a single school board. In Wayne county there are 12 Class I schools.

In order for these boards to provide high school education for their youngsters, they must pay the Class III, or above, districts a dollar amount, the minimum of which has been set by the Unicameral.

"Therein lies the problem," according to Haun. "The legislature has set the minimum that must be charged, which is the cost per pupil in each district, however, they had, previous to the coming school year, not set a maximum amount that could be charged."

Haun said many taxpayers across the state who reside in non-high school districts, feel they are being overcharged. "In some cases they probably are," he said.

Cases of people being charged over $7,000 annually have been reported around the state for the right to send their youngsters to high school.

"In Wayne," Haun said, "we try to figure the cost by starting at our per pupil cost."

The average per pupil cost at Wayne-Carroll high school for the last school year was $2,716. The district's board of directors begin with that figure, then, according to Haun, add on two additional factors — one for the expected rise in prices and the other for what Haun termed an inflation factor. Haun admitted that the costs at Wayne-Carroll high school may be a bit out of line, but not by much.

The whole situation takes on a different shape beginning this next school year.

The Unicameral, this past session, approved new legislation which, in effect, places a maximum amount districts will be able to charge non-high school district residents.

Basically, the legislation is a formula in which various figures are plugged into it to arrive at the dollar amount the districts may charge.

Next year for Wayne-Carroll the figure will be about $4,727, or $70 less than had previously been approved by the board.

The current litigation in Wayne county has frozen the amount payable to the district with the county treasurers office.

The suit has been filed against the county instead of the school district because it is the county which is responsible for assessing the tax to the residents in the non-high school districts for the tuition costs.

Recently, in a separate filing, county attorney David Barnhill, John Ruckner, counsel for the plaintiff and David A. Donahue, counsel for the school districts troned to it. People must however look at their financial situations before considering home ownership," she said.

"Even with the changes being made by congress dealing with financial institutions, savings and loans have a traditional commitment to communities. I'd like that commitment to continue within the industry," she said.

Changing Patterns

Dale and Brian Stoltenberg at Stoltenberg Partners real estate say they are doing a very good business in the area, good enough to move out of rented quarters and purchase a building.

Partners, which has grown nationwide since it's beginnings several years ago in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, were "kind of the first to introduce the co-ownership arrangement last year," Dale Stoltenberg said. "They tried it out in the Cedar Rapids area as a pilot program and had very good results," he said. "Last year we began using the program. There's nothing typical about the investor. They may be family members, business associates, family doctors or personal consultants. Generally however they are people in a higher tax bracket that need the deductions of a home."

Stoltenbergs said usually the program involves new home buyers or people who have not built up equity in a home.

Dale said the past few years the role of the real estate agent has changed. "I would suppose that now we spend 70 to 80 percent of our time working out financing. You have to be willing to look for it and work closely with the buyer in order to make sales," he said. Brian, who is also a financial consultant said, "the days of people driving around, seeing a for sale sign and calling up the real estate agent for the price of the home is gone. They usually decide that they can't afford the home without taking the time to review their financial situation with us."

Brian said potential buyers should first come to them and plan to spend "a couple hours reviewing their needs and financial ability before looking at homes."

In this way, Brian said, we can better match up homes with buyers.

Dale added that they are working with financial institutions all over the area, helping buyers and sellers reach workable agreements for both sides.

Forced Sales

Another agent in town, Keith Jech, indicated one of the main problems in Wayne is when people are forced to sell their homes due to a job change out of town. "These people can really feel the pinch," he said. "There are a lot of people that would like to sell but simply can't."

Although real estate agents and lending officials agree the market is good in Wayne for the buyer, sellers have been lowering the price of their homes down to the minimum.

The market has stabilized, according to these observers, with home prices not rising, as in the past and often falling. But with new financial arrangements, agents and lending institutions working closely together and in depth work by everyone, the housing market in Wayne is still moving and has not stagnated as it has in many parts of the country.

Litigation

Hau said he expects the outcome of the tuition litigation will eventually reach the state Supreme Court, as a similar filing did in the late 1960's.

"I'm guessing that the districts that are definitely charging too much will end up in court and when a compromise agreement is reached with a few districts, most of the litigation will be settled out of court by agreement."

Hau said one of the worries across the state is that people from the Class I districts will challenge the new law which goes into effect for the coming school year using the new formula.

"If that happens and the funds are again frozen, a lot of districts may be in trouble," he said. Hau added that if it does happen, in all probability, Wayne Carroll will be forced to borrow the necessary funds from local banks, in order to make up the difference in the budget.

He added that although the money does not represent a great part of the budget for Wayne Carroll, freezing of future funds, on top of the current freeze, could mean some trouble for the district. "Another point, not dealing directly with the currently litigation, involves transportation, or busing of the non-high school district students to the educational centers."

Hau admitted that the old formula allowed for a transportation factor to be charged. He also said Wayne Carroll currently charges non-high school district students an additional $5 for transportation. He said these students are picked up only if they live along district routes. Separate routes are not run into the non-high school districts.

"This seems to be one of the factors behind the litigation across the state," he said.

Also by way of explanation for the assessments on taxes, Hau said, "In Nebraska, school district board request an actual dollar amount to be collected by the county. The county then turns around and breaks this figure down into so many dollars per valuation. The district does not set how much is to be collected per

Information needs

It would appear that the information needs of Wayne's city councilors has not fully been met by administrators and support personnel of the city.

Should Wayne Marsh as mayor, Phillip Kloster as city administrator and city department heads be blamed for these deficiencies? Should they bear the brunt of responsibility?

No. Although councilors should not have to be overly aggressive in seeking information they feel is needed or usable in the decision making process, they have a duty to perform.

In any group situation, personality conflicts will arise. Voters expect however that our politicians, on all levels, lay aside these petty difference and work together for the benefit of our society.

Yes, Mayor Marsh and Phillip Kloster are responsible to see to it that information is provided yet at the same time, not overwhelming councilors with it. Councilors however are still on the hook. They have a job to do which, to a great extent, they have been doing very well and we thank them for their time and work.

However, we strongly suggest, that misunderstandings be worked out, personality conflicts laid aside and all parties strive for an improved information flow, for better decisions by the council as a whole. No matter which way the vote goes, the overall situation will improve.

Wife becomes partner

When I was a boy, a typical farm wife might tend the vegetable patch and keep some chickens, and that was the full extent of her participation in agricultural production.

Not so today. On most Nebraska farms, husbands and wives are partners in trying to make a living in spite of the weather, high production costs and low commodity prices for producers.

governor charley thone

Many farm wives sometimes operate tractors in the field. Even more importantly, some farm wives do all the bookkeeping, keep production records and do the scientific computations to determine when to irrigate and how much water to put on.

The knowledge and interest of farm women had not been utilized before I became governor. I have appointed a number of farm women to agricultural boards and commissions whose members had all been men before the present administration.

Doris Royal of Springfield served until recently as the first woman of the Goshute Committee. She resigned because she is tremendously busy as the nation's number one campaigner for changing federal inheritance laws as they affect farmers.

Three women I appointed served on commodity boards where none had served before. Verda Fentiman, Unadilla, is on the wheat committee; Louise Merchant, Polk, on the corn board; and Caroline L. Bargman, Beatrice, on the grain sorghum board.

Women are also serving on agriculture-related boards created by the legislature since I became governor. Wynne Nuckolls, Fairbury, and Alice Litch, Lincoln, are on the council to revitalize branch railroad lines and Anna Mae Schmaderke, Albion, and Heloise Bresley, Ord, are on the state board created to make low cost loans to young farmers.

As governor, I'm trying to utilize all of Nebraska's best talent.

For the first time in four weeks I'm whistling in the shower again and feel like my old charming and lovable self. Dr. Bob let me out of that blasted harness on Friday after noon. The broken clavicle is mending nicely or in Dr. Bob's words, "the glue's starting to set."

With the help of a few colleagues of mine I was able to properly take care of myself and get out of the posture harness in four weeks instead of six.

That doesn't mean I can jump (roll, dive, etc.) into sports again but, by the onset of cooler temperatures, I should at least be able to squeeze in some tennis. Like I said before, I'm going back to the courts where it's safer. In any case, if I haven't said it before, thanks for the help gang - it's appreciated.

To my friends over at State National: Whatever possessed me to put my full name down on those official papers I'll never know. After signing my entire signature on countless documents, I sure wish I would have simply used my initials instead. Know what I mean?

There seems to be very, very few alternatives for people in the farming community in much of the county. That hail really did a bang up job on peoples morale. They sweat their fannies off in plowing and planting - worry about all the rain we've had this spring and then this happens.

I've got an uncle that has a lot of river bottom land. Every two or three years he floods out, but he keeps on planting...keeps up the hope.

I guess that's the name of the game - hope. I don't know if this proposed disaster aid will help. If it comes through, but at the paper we're all pushing for it in the hope that it will give some help to people that need it...plf.

Senate approves new copywrite legislation

The Senate has approved legislation authored by Senator Edward Zorinsky (D-Neb.) that would save the nation's non-profit fraternal and veterans organizations up to $5 million a year.

The bill reinstates an exemption from paying annual copyright fees to allow these groups to hold events with live music.

Zorinsky forced Senate consideration of the bill by putting a legislative "hold" on another copyright measure, in which there was considerable Senate interest. The complicated parliamentary action led to consideration of Zorinsky's bill as an amendment to yet another copyright bill before the Senate.

That bill with the Zorinsky amendment attached, also was passed. It now goes to a House-Senate conference.

The copyright exemption for fraternal and veterans groups was eliminated five years ago during a Congressional revision of the copyright laws. It had first been put on the books in 1909.

Affected by the exemption were such groups as the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Royal Order of Moose, Lions Clubs, Shriners, Elks and Eagles. Zorinsky's legislation restores the exemption as it existed from 1909 to 1976. While it will save the non-profit organizations from $3 million to $5 million a year, that's still only one percent of the copyright owners' gross annual income, Zorinsky pointed out.

Zorinsky was alerted to the situation addressed in the bill by a fellow member of the Fraternal Order of Eagles in his hometown of Omaha. "As I looked into the problem," he said, "I became convinced it was only fair to provide this minimal relief to organizations that do so much in the way of community service and public good.

"The Eagles, for example, have been very involved in the development of Nebraska's Boys Town and with the Boys Clubs across the country," Zorinsky said. "In the 1950s, the Eagles raised more than $1 million for the Damon Runyon Cancer Funds and, in the last 10 years, they founded the Max Baer Heart Fund, which has donated more than $4 million for heart research.

"Currently," he said, "the Eagles pay more than $50,000 a year in fees to copyright owners and the American Legion has the potential annual liability of more than $1.5 million. I feel it makes sense to allow them to use this money for their worthwhile charitable pursuits."

Federal loans

Reliable sources in Washington have put together some of the facts on the real status of these loans. These are times of recession in many farm communities and outright depression where unemployment and bad weather have combined with low farm prices to produce an economic disaster. These FmHA loans are extremely important as last resort credit for hard-pressed farmers.

It's a good news-bad news story but a hard one to turn into a joke or a big laugh. The controversy surrounding reliable reports on the status of FmHA loans was kicked off in a press conference by Frank W. Naylor Jr., Under Secretary of Agriculture, to whom the agency reports.

At that time Naylor, who is regarded as a tough but capable administrator of a strong conservative political bent, sought to downplay stories of widespread foreclosures or accelerated closeouts within the FmHA.

On that occasion, Naylor defined a delinquency as "anybody 15 days late in making any payment that is due." He said that such delinquencies were drifting overall around the 20 percent level. When reporters persisted in trying to learn how many cases were in serious trouble or threatened with some kind of foreclosure, the response was "around 1 percent of our cases."

Of the current amounts delinquent nearly one-half of them are loans made three or more years ago.

Numbers of foreclosures and closeouts in earlier years are hard to ascertain. However, for the fiscal year, 1982, certain reliable conclusions are possible. Of the total number of outstanding loans, about 267,000, there were 8,400 receiving loan acceleration letters or similar pressure to liquidate their holdings in the first seven months of the year ending next Oct. 1.

In the same period slightly over 1,200 went through formal foreclosures or bankruptcy actions. Well over 5,000 FmHA farm borrowers have faced decisive action to pay up or get out. It seems safe to assume that the glint in the eye of the government loan man is now quite similar to the traditional cold glass eye of the banker who believes his security is in jeopardy.

ASK A LAWYER A PUBLIC SERVICE OF THE NEBRASKA STATE BAR ASSOCIATION

Q. Our neighbors have junk piled all over outside their home, they stay up late and play loud music, have junky cars all over the place, let their dogs run loose in our yard and they use terrible language. We are sure they are involved with drugs. We have called the police but they can't seem to do anything. These people are making our lives miserable. Is there anything we can do to get this situation cleared up? The people own this home, they are not renters.

A. The problem you write about is one that exists too often and does not have an easy solution. You may, however, have some legal remedies if you are unable to settle the matter through negotiation with your neighbors.

The accumulation of junk may not lend itself to any legal remedy unless the junk is causing injury to your health or property. Nebraska law does provide that remedies in such situations are to be implemented through the health departments of a particular community. You may also have local ordinances dealing with this situation.

Junk cars are specifically dealt with in certain cities' municipal codes, prohibiting the keeping of non-operating motor vehicles for more than 30 days in an unenclosed location. Certain municipal ordinances also govern the playing of loud music, and in some instances this could constitute disturbing the peace (a misdemeanor which can carry both a fine and a jail sentence). There are also laws in many communities prohibiting persons from allowing dogs to run at large. These are generally enforced through the local health department or the city attorney's office.

The use of abusive language may be prohibited by a local ordinance, but there is a fine line between the enforcement of such types of laws and an individual's right to free speech, even though it may be offensive language.

The alleged use of drugs is something that can only be controlled by your local law enforcement agency because that would constitute a crime. However, you indicate that the police have not taken any action, and therefore, we assume that there is not sufficient proof to file a charge against your neighbors for the illegal use of drugs.

If the police refuse to issue a citation to your neighbors for these offenses, you should consider consulting with the city or county prosecutor and making a formal complaint yourself. You may also wish to consult an attorney to determine whether your neighbor's behavior and the condition of their property might constitute a nuisance. There is a possibility that a court would force your neighbors to "clean up their act." If you were to file a civil suit for an injunction to have the nuisance stopped.

If you have a legal question, write "Ask a Lawyer," P.O. Box 7399, Lincoln, NE 68502. This column is intended to provide general legal information, not specific legal advice. "Ask a Lawyer" is a public service of the Nebraska State Bar Association.

To the editor:

Our warm memories and feelings for the community of Wayne linger on. The visit to your town for the annual Chicken Show was most enjoyable. We felt you took us "under your wings" and made us feel at home. Everyone we met was so hospitable and friendly. The town was so clean and neat. Already, plans are in the making to come back next year to honor the chicken and have fun. All of North Platte has heard about Wayne, our visit, warm people, the Arts Council and the Chamber of Commerce. We have been busy promoting our community by being on KODY radio, KAHL radio, KNOP-TV and in the Telegraph, our local newspaper. We would like to invite you people to come to our Nebraskaland Days the third week of June.

I do hope that Real People finds this interesting and worthy of national TV because your entire community is definitely REAL PEOPLE.

Thank you to each and every one of you for making our trip and the Day of the Chicken enjoyable and memorable. Believe me, it was well worth our trip.

Carmie K. Beckers North Platte, NE 69101

To the editor:

I'm really concerned about the stealing and vandalism that is happening so often in our Northeast Nebraska communities.

Fans have been stolen from the Logan Center Church, hogs from farmers, tools from the Concord Cemetery building, redwood picnic tables from the Concord park, a car from in front of the Methodist Church in Allen, items from the garage in Wayne, a stalled motorcycle from a roadside near Laurel, bicycles, yard ornaments, gas from vehicles and barrels, and much more.

We need to keep a neighborhood watch and if we see anything suspicious, we must report it immediately. Knowing where our family members are in the early morning hours may also help.

It is sad to see our community becoming a haven for thieves and vandals. Let's all become concerned.

Senior horse show at Hoskins

A senior horse show is scheduled Saturday (July 31) at the Hoskins arena. There will be 20 events beginning at 5:30 p.m.

Kiwans to host swim meet

The Wayne Kiwanis Club will host a seven-team swim meet Thursday at the Wayne State College swimming pool. The event, beginning at 1 p.m., will attract nearly 200 swimmers from Albion, Elgin, O'Neill, Hartington, Norfolk, Tekamah and Wayne.

International wrestling results

Entire results of the Midwest AAB cultural exchange wrestling trip were released this week by Nebraska team leader Larry Munn. The Nebraska all-star wrestling squad toured Mexico and Venezuela in late June.

Coached by Paul Sok of Winstate, the Nebraskans placed fifth in the 14-team field at the International Agustín Briseno-Isles Tournament in Mexico City. The tourney was won by the Cuba National Senior Team. In duals, Nebraska won five matches and lost one on the trip. Individually, Mark Koch of Winstate had a 7-5 record and placed fourth in the tourney. Other records of Northeast Nebraskans: Paul Peterson of Osmond, 2-6; Tom Molini of Norfolk, 5-2; Tom Woodward of Columbus and Steve Strobel of Clark each tallied a 10-2 record to lead the team.

Players join WSC team

Rick Weaver, head basketball coach at Wayne State College has announced the names of three individuals who are joining the Wildcat basketball program.

Wendell Denton, a 6-3, 180-pound forward from Shelbyville, Ind., was recently granted a hardship ruling by the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics. Denton was a two-year starter at North Idaho Junior College in Coeur d'Alene, and was on the 1980 squad that took part in the national junior college tourney.

Denton originally came to Wayne State in the fall of 1980, but shortly thereafter was diagnosed as having "Cron's Disease, an intestinal malfunction. He was hospitalized as a result, but seems to have the problem under control, Weaver said.

"He's an excellent jumper and extremely quick," Weaver noted. Denton will be joining a former teammate from North Idaho Junior College, Renee Taylor. Taylor is a 6-0, 160-pound guard from South Bend, Ind. Taylor was on the WSC campus last year, but was red-shirted due to a blood clot in his left arm. That problem has also apparently been brought under control.

Bill Marshall, a 5-11, 170-pound guard from East Orange, N.J., will be rejoining his former coach on the Wildcat hardcourt. Marshall was a two-year starter and double figure scorer under Weaver at Westmar College in LeMars, Iowa. Marshall sat out of school last year.

"Taylor and Marshall both have excellent quickness and ability," Weaver said. "All three of these young men are ready to move in and play right now."

A bad throw and bobbed catch gave Wakefield's Juniors new life and they took advantage to come from behind and edge Emerson 4-3 Friday night in the Class C, District 3 baseball tournament at Laurel. Wakefield, which had a 17-game winning streak at one time this season, came within a whisker of defeat. Emerson controlled the ball game until the top of the seventh inning. The winners struck for four runs in the miraculous finish.

Trailing 3-0, Wayne Guy drew a walk to start the rally. One out later, Troy Greve hit a ground ball back to the pitcher for a possible double play. A high throw to second base pulled the second baseman off the bag and both runners were safe.

The next batter popped out and Emerson was within one out of ousting Wakefield from the tourney. Keith Roberts hit a grounder and was safe at first base when the first baseman dropped the throw. Guy scored on the play.

At that point, Kent Roberts took over by driving in Greve with a base hit. Mark Starzl singled to drive in Linafeller and Brian Soderberg dropped in a bloop single to score Roberts for the go-ahead run. Starzl then struck out the final three Emerson batters to preserve the win. Starzl recorded nine strikeouts and gave up four hits.

Emerson scored two runs on two hits in the first inning and one run on two hits in the third. Another runner was tagged out trying to score in the first inning.

The win advanced Wakefield into Saturday's championship game against Laurel. That game was scheduled at 8 p.m. following a 6 p.m. Midget championship game between Emerson and Laurel.

Winside led 2-1 in the first inning as Ann Melerhenry and Hartman scored in the first inning and Jodi Dittman scored Wayne's first run.

Leaders near shootout in East Division race

By avenging one of its two season losses, Wednesday night, the Wayne Town Team maintains a 1 1/2 game lead in the East Division of the Tri-County League.

Wayne met in the final regularly scheduled game at Laurel. The locals defeated Bloomfield 7-3 to make up for a 9-5 setback in late June.

Wayne was scheduled to play at Hartington last night (Sunday) in an opportunity to avenge its other loss.

Third place Crofton invades Wayne Wednesday night and the East Division title could very well be decided on Sunday, Aug. 1 when second place Laurel and first place Wayne meet in the final regularly scheduled game at Laurel.

For pitcher Joel Ankeny, Wednesday's win was especially sweet. Ankeny was the starting pitcher in the first game with Bloomfield and was relieved by Vic Sharpe in the seventh inning with the game tied 5-5.

This time, Ankeny had control of the game, giving up one run in the third, one in the fourth and one in the fifth while going the distance. He gave up six hits in nine innings.

Wayne's offense gave Ankeny some protection with five runs in the first five innings. In the first inning, Jeff Zeiss walked, moved to second base on a sacrifice bunt by Dave Schwartz and scored on a double by Bill Schwartz.

After Bloomfield tied the score in the third inning, Dean Carroll took advantage of an error to score Wayne's second run in the bottom of the inning.

Bloomfield tied the game in the fourth when Wayne State athlete Tony Scudder scored. In the fifth, Dan Hagge added a run to give the visitors a temporary 3-2 edge.

Wayne finally took the lead for good in the bottom of the fifth. Doug Starzl singled and moved to second on a sacrifice fly. Then, Neil Blohm drove him home with a base hit. Tim Pfeiffer singled and Ankeny drove home both runners with a two-out double.

The hosts added another two runs in the seventh inning to provide some breathing room. Starzl led things off with a triple and scored when Mike Meyer's hard-hit ball was booted. Meyer scored on a single by Pfeiffer.

For the game, Pfeiffer was 3-for-4 and Starzl was 2-for-4 with two runs. Scudder led Bloomfield with a 2-for-4 game.

Falcons hold onto 2nd place

The Laurel Town Team stayed within striking distance of East Division leader Wayne by shipping defending Tri-County League champions Crofton 12-0 in seven innings Wednesday night.

Wayne State College pitcher Rocky Thompson fired a six-hit shutout and his team set up 14 hits including two home runs.

A two-run single by George Schroeder got things rolling for the Falcons in the first inning. Brian Johnson then drove in a run with a single in the second inning.

The third inning put things out of control as the Falcons erupted for six runs. Chris Sledge drove in two runs with a base hit and Rod Ervin followed his team to drive in a pair of runs with another single.

John Manganaro's bases cleared one run in the sixth and the other was scored on a triple by Joe Brandel. Brad Ervin put the finishing touches on the triumph with a solo homer in the seventh.

Laurel, which was scheduled to play at Wausa last night (Sunday), is in Wednesday and will finish its regular season by hosting Wayne Sunday in a game which could decide the district championship.

Wayne sweeps Pender, Wakefield

Little League
Wayne 10, Pender 0: Jeff Lutt fired a one-hit shutout as Wayne pounded Pender in Ralph Bishop Little League baseball action.

Only one ball was hit out of the infield and that was a fifth inning single against Lutt. The winning pitcher also was the leading batter with three hits and two runs in four at bats.

Jess Zeiss and Bill Behling were 2 for 4. Zeiss scored the game's first run in the opening inning.

In the third, Zeiss, Lutt, Tommy Baier, Scott Hammer, Behling and Bill Sperry all scored to give Wayne a 7-0 lead. Lutt and Baier accounted for two more runs in the fourth and Hammer scored in the sixth.

Pony League
Wayne 10, Pender 0: Brent Pick and Don Larsen teamed up to pitch a no hit shutout over Pender in Ralph Bishop League play.

Offensively, Shannon Dorcay, Scott Baker and Casey Nichols had two hits and two runs apiece to pace Wayne's attack.

Dorcay and Dan Gross scored in the first inning. Nichols scored in the third, Larsen scored in the third and Baker, Scott Stollenberg and Dorcay all scored in the fourth.

Pick, Baker and Nichols added the final three runs for a 10-run triumph.

Little League
Wayne 12, Wakefield 8: In a high-scoring contest, Wayne trimmed Wakefield. The winners collected nine hits to five for Wakefield.

In the first inning, Tommy Baier and Scott Hammer scored on a three-run homer by Bill Behling. For Wakefield, Looft, Roberts, Lund and Kratke all scored.

Wakefield padded its lead when Roberts and Greve scored in the second. Wayne came back to tie the score in the third as Jess Zeiss, Jeff Lutt and Hammer crossed the plate.

Four more runs by Anderson, Zeiss, Baier and Behling in the fifth gave Wayne a 12-6 edge. Wakefield's Greve scored in the fifth and Looft scored in the sixth but it wasn't enough to catch Wayne.

Pony League
Wayne 6, Wakefield 2: No-hitters are usually a rarity—but not for Don Larsen. The Wayne pitcher recorded his fourth no-hitter of the season and second in a row to defeat Wakefield Thursday.

In 11 consecutive victories this season, Wayne pitchers have now held opponents to a total of only 17 base hits.

Larsen retired the first 10 Wakefield batters on strikes and finished with 16 strikeouts out of a possible 38 in the six-inning game. Navrakal and Looft scored Wakefield's only runs in the sixth inning.

Sporting events highlighted on NETV

The powers within the international grain market and taped coverage of national junior sports are highlights of programming scheduled in August on the statewide Nebraska Educational Television Network.

"Merchants of Grain," an unprecedented inside look at the extraordinary world of Andre, Bunge, Cargill, Continental and Louis Dreyfus — the five giant multinational, owned and operated by seven publicity-shy families. The documentary investigates the power wielded by these families who control the global food supply, the problems posed by this grain monopoly and explains how grain is used by governments as a political and economic weapon.

Junior Sports Future U.S. Olympic hopefuls will be featured in videotaped highlights of "The 1982 National Junior Olympics" telecast on Sports Nebraska, Saturday, August 7, at 1:30 p.m. over the statewide NETV network.

Taped July 30, 31 and August 1 at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln's Ed Weir Track, the event will feature youthful competition from across the U.S. in track and field events. The meet is the final event in a nationwide system of qualifying meets, featuring regional winners in two age groups — intermediate (14-15) and young men and women (16-17). This meet is considered to be a preview of many young athletes who hope to participate in the 1984 Olympic Games in Los Angeles.

Lincoln sportscaster Jim Miller will provide play-by-play coverage of the three-hour program with UNL assistant track coach Dick Railsback providing color commentary.

Other programs of interest this week on the Nebraska ETV Network are:

—The incomparable Ethel Merman belts out a medley of her favorite Broadway tunes on EVENING AT POPS, Monday, August 2, at 8 p.m.

—Laurence Luckenbill and Mary Beth Hurt star in "The Five-Forty Eight," an adaptation of a John Cheever story, on GREAT PERFORMANCES, Monday, August 2, at 9 p.m.

—English barrister Horace Rumpole returns to the MYSTERY! series, beginning Friday, August 3, at 9 p.m. in a rebroadcast episode Rumpole defends an elderly vicar on a shopping charge. MYSTERY! is telecast with closed captions for hearing-impaired viewers.

—"Survivors," airing Wednesday, August 4, at 9 p.m., explores the experiences and hardships of Japanese-American survivors of the Hiroshima and Nagasaki bombings.

—A look at how major nuclear decisions were made as the U.S. has expanded its nuclear arsenal over the past two decades is presented by CRISIS TO CRISIS WITH BARBARA JORDAN, Friday, August 6, at 10 p.m.

—Considered the first motion picture to use sound, The Jazz Singer (1927), is broadcast on SILVER SCREEN CLASSICS, Saturday, August 7, at 8 p.m. The motion picture also marked the debut of ex-vaudeville performer Al Jolson.

Nebraska rock hounds discover riches of state's rural areas

Nebraska's landscapes are familiar to most state residents, who can easily scan our wide open western spaces or gently rolling river plains.

Hidden beneath the fertile soil and rangeland are lesser-known natural resources increasingly popular with hunters and collectors: colorful rocks. Nebraska never quite rivalled its neighbors in the gold rush days, but widespread occurrences of other gems and ornamental stones or fossils still dot the state.

Rock hunters can refer to the accompanying map for a general idea of areas known for various gems or minerals in Nebraska. Best pickings are usually found along river basins, stream beds, sandpits and quarries.

Most of these sites are located on privately owned land in Nebraska, so potential hunters will need permission from owners before beginning their search.

More accessible, though, are recent road construction cuts or gravel ridges along unpaved roads, which offer frequent finds. Agates, chalcedony and fossils can also be found in the Panhandle's Ogallala National Grassland, which is open to the public for hunting.

Some of Nebraska's gemstones were first formed within the state, others were transported in by streams from the west or glaciers of the north eons ago. These different sources account for the variety of agates, jade, jasper, petrified wood and other gems found in Nebraska today.

In general, rock-hunters will find eastern Nebraska holds more deposits of Lake Superior agates, jasper and quartz, as well as buried fossils and artifacts. The west is more plentiful in Fairburn and prairie agates, petrified wood, and beautiful Blue Chalcedony — named our official state gemstone.

For those people content to view the state's minerals and gems without hunting or collecting themselves, rock museums and shops across Nebraska display colorful cases of specimens, and help to educate rockhunters before their field expeditions.

County-wide Republican picnic slated

A county-wide picnic supper will be held Friday, July 30, at 7 p.m. at the Harold George farm near Dixon, sponsored by the Republican Party County Central Committee of Clark and Concord townships.

Among those expected to attend are Senator Merle Von Minden, former Senator Bob Murphy, and county GOP Chairman John Kingsbury. County Republican candidates have also been invited.

The public is welcome to attend the potluck supper and program, which will include explanations of the workings of the Republican Party and the role local townships play.

Financial concerns will be discussed and contributions accepted for credit to Clark and Concord townships. Persons attending are asked to bring their own food, table service, and lawn chairs. Coffee and cold drinks will be provided.

Those attending are asked to notify Mr. and Mrs. Harold George, 584-2625, Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Borg, 287-2582, or Rozanne Hintz, 584-2293.

The George farm is located two miles north and three quarters east of the U.S. 20 and Nebraska Highway 116 Junction.

One of this nation's leading health problems, one that affects an increasing number of Americans every year, has just been made a little less burdensome.

The disease is diabetes and though still not curable, controlling it has recently been made much easier. Diabetics dependent on insulin must keep a close watch on the levels of sugar in their blood to control their disease. They must adjust their diet, exercise and insulin intake to the sugar in their blood.

Scientists have long sought ways to monitor glucose (sugar) levels quickly, accurately and inexpensively.

Allen-Waterbury squad, PMC ambulance inspected by State Health Department

The Allen-Waterbury Rescue Squad and Wayne's Providence Medical Center Ambulance Service meet or exceed the requirements for State Licensure.

That was the report filed by Ed Craren of the State Health Department's Division of Emergency Medical Services following his inspection of both services.

Items inspected included ambulance equipment, record keeping, maintenance, sanitary procedures, and personnel training.

Connie Johnson accompanied Craren on his inspection at Allen and was provided a copy of the inspection report.

Accompanying Craren in Wayne was Dennis Spangler.

Craren stated that the Providence Medical Center Ambulance Service received a superior rating based on the inspection items and the overall operation of the service.

Annual ambulance inspections are required by a law passed by the 1975 Legislature to assure that ambulance services and rescue squads in Nebraska have the capability to provide quality emergency medical care for victims of accidents or sudden illness.
