New ambulance agreement is expected soon

A special agreement, discussed between officials from the city and Providence Medical Center, was explained to the city council Tuesday night and received their approval to be formally drawn up by the city attorney's office.

The agreement, according to Kloster, will allow for a better funding structure of future ambulance purchases as well as provide for a smoother working structure for the service.

Currently Providence Medical Center operates the ambulance service for the city by providing medical personnel and volunteer drivers for the emergency vehicles. The vehicles are also garaged at Providence.

Kloster said the city has subsidized the service in the amount of about $7,000 a year, "and it's still operating in the red," he said.

Several years ago when Providence officials agreed to operate the ambulance service for the community, a verbal agreement was worked out with the city and Providence officials whereby the city agreed to purchase replacement emergency vehicles as the need arose.

Providence officials this summer approached the city and indicated that it is now necessary to replace one of the vehicles, a 1968 model.

The city has agreed to provide up to $25,000 for the purchase of the vehicle but, as Kloster told the council Tuesday night, it's a large amount to have to come up with every 10 to 16 years.

In the new agreement between the city and Providence, the city will provide $10,000 per year for the ambulance service which will include costs of equipment and vehicle replacement.

The 1982-83 agreement to be signed in August will initially provide $27,500. The money will be used toward the purchase of a new ambulance late this summer and $2,500 of it will represent the first quarterly payment of the annual $10,000 to the ambulance service which includes equipment replacement and purchase costs in nine or 10 years for a replacement vehicle.

"Instead of having to come up with a lump sum, the $10,000 annually will be sufficient to amortize the cost of future ambulance and equipment purchases for the service," Kloster said.

In addition, Kloster said by signing the agreement, Medicare will reimburse 50 percent of the expenses of the ambulance service.

Councilors felt the new agreement would benefit the community and the city by providing for the continuation of the service with new and late model vehicles and provide better funding for the service and its replacement costs with Medicare now able to participate more fully in the program.

Currently a special board composed of officials from the city, Providence and community residents, are looking at the purchase of a type 3 van model ambulance. The purchase price is about $33,000 and features an expanded carrier in back, dual rear tires and will be able to carry three patients in addition to emergency medical personnel. The committee feels this type model will best serve the needs of the community for its expected 14 to 16 year usage.

Providence will absorb the difference in the cost between the available money from the city and the actual purchase price until such time as the new agreement can provide funds.

Storm Sewer Update
City engineer Dennis Hirschbrunner of Bruce Gilmore and associates, Columbus, was present during Tuesday night's meeting to outline for the council the problem associated with flooding in the center section of town during heavy rain storms and suggested procedures to eliminate the problem.

During the last meeting, councilors discussed the problem which, this summer, has resulted in water damage to some downtown businesses.

Hirschbrunner said there is a bottleneck at 3rd street and Logan, at Logan and Nebraska South to the recently installed 72 inch tube.

At 3rd and Logan, there is a 30 inch line which serves the North-central part of the city. With an 18 inch and 15 inch line coming from the West, the 30 inch overloads and backs water up into the central part of the city.

Hirschbrunner proposed the city work along the lines proposed in 1976-77 to take care of the problem which would mean installing an additional 36 inch tube, parallel to the 30 inch tube. "A junction box should be constructed at 3rd and Logan, tied into the existing box and the water would then feed down to the 72-inch line."

He said he would not guarantee it would handle a heavy rain, "but at least there will be no back-up into the center of town," he said.

Cost for the project is expected to run between $40,000 and $50,000.

City officials were directed by council to work out the details and funding possibilities and report back when they have completed their studies.

The city hopes they can complete the work before the spring rains of 1983.

In other action Tuesday night, the council reviewed seven bids received for disability insurance for city employees.

The council voted to accept a bid from Mutual Benefit Insurance Company which will cost $397.72 per month. The premium is guaranteed at that level for two years and provides $3,000 per month up to age 65 for disabled employees.

The premium was the lowest of the seven bids and only one of two which provided benefits up to age 65.

Bids were reviewed from Aetna, Bankers Life, Combined Insurance Co., two from Mutual Benefit, Ohio National Insurance Co. and Travelers Insurance.

The council also Tuesday night:

- Approved several ordinance changes which reflect a change in the city pension plan as approved by the fiscal 1983 budget, increasing the city's percent from three to four; defined the duties of the coordinator of the Wayne senior citizens center and amended a section to reflect current administrative titles and duties.
- Approved a preliminary plat for Western Heights second addition as submitted by Jim Coan.
- Approved the writing off of about $390 in uncollectable accounts dealing with city bills. Although the accounts will be taken off the books, as requested by city auditors, payment of the accounts will still be sought. Last year the city wrote off approximately $1,600 in uncollectable accounts.

Received an update on the dedication of the new baseball field in the city. The dedication was set for Wednesday night (July 28) if it does not rain.

Approved appointments to several city boards and commissions: Willard Biecke, Housing Authority; Kent Hall and Paul Peterson, Planning Commission and Thomas R. Jones, Board of Adjustment.

Two problems cause outrage

Residents living in the Northwest part of Wayne experienced a loss of electrical power to their homes and businesses on last Friday.

According to Dan Kohls, Wayne's superintendent of electrical distribution, Friday was a busy day for his crews.

Kohls said trouble first developed in the Westwood area in the underground lines and power was lost in a majority of that area.

"We were in the process of switching the power and were just about done when we lost power in the Northern part of town," Kohls said.

City crews located the problem of a mini-substation near the closed Fat Kat restaurant. "The problem there was with an oil switch that resulted in lost power to the area. We lost the center phase of the three phase power but eventually were able to bypass the switch," Kohls said.

Kohls said power was lost to the Westwood area about 2 p.m., followed by the problem with the mini-substation. The entire Westwood section of the city was back on line about 7 p.m.

State plans expenditures of $157.3 million for road projects

Recent plans have been announced by Director State engineer David O. Coolidge for the fiscal 1983 highway construction and improvement program for the state.

The program calls for expenditures of $157.3 million on the state system and $26.9 million on the local system.

Included in the $157.3 million on the state program is $14.7 million in fiscal 1982 funds slated for 16 fiscal 1982 standby projects, 13 of which were let for contract by June 30. "It was possible to add the standby projects to the fiscal 1982 program because additional funds became available principally when bids on the announced 1982 program were more favorable than had been anticipated.

Adding that $14.7 million to the fiscal 1982 program makes the bottom line increase to the fiscal 1983 program $5 million more than last year's construction program.

The state's fiscal 1983 program, thus, of $142.7 million, calls for improvements to be made on 502.8 miles on the primary, secondary and urban primary systems and for major repairs on 141 miles of the interstate system during the new construction year. In addition, the new program contains a number of bridge and other structure improvements, many of which are not designated by mileage figures.

Local Projects

Several projects in the fiscal 1983 program will be contracted this year, however, construction may not be completed within the fiscal year.

For U.S. highway 23 (US-23), plans call for 17 miles to be resurfaced and the shoulders hard surfaced with possible grading and widening work done on the shoulders from US-81 to Laurel. Cost of the project has been estimated at $2,431,000.

For Nebraska highway 15 (N-15), two bridges will be widened, according to district three engineer Thomas McCarthy. The bridges, located Northwest of Concord will be widened at a cost estimated at $208,000. The project was originally part of the improvement project for N-15 North of Wayne. McCarthy said the project was split so funds for the projects could be spread over a two year period.

Grading, some structure work, surfacing and shoulder work has been scheduled along N-35 from Norfolk to Hogskins. The work, passing through Wayne, Stanton and Madison counties will total $2,531,000. Total distance involved is about 7 miles.

Other area projects scheduled for the new program year by the Nebraska Department of Roads includes:

- US-275, East and West of Pilger involving resurfacing and shoulder work for a total of about 15.4 miles. Cost is expected to be about $2,352,000.

- Northwest of Norfolk on US-275, a bridge will be replaced at a cost estimated at $1,168,000.

Five Year Plan

Included in the fiscal 1983 program report is the updated five year plan for the district and state which has projects tentatively scheduled through fiscal 1988 by the Department of Roads.

McCarthy said with the projects there is no actual ordering of the time table for letting of bids or construction start time rather "they depend on completion of such things as environmental impact studies, any court action and road conditions."

Although some of the projects have been estimated to begin in a particular fiscal year, due to the changing structure of funds and other items, these estimates may shift within the five year period.

For Wayne County, two projects have been scheduled within the five year plan.

N-15 South of Wayne has been scheduled for resurfacing and shoulder work for 8.3

miles. Cost of the project has been set at $1,407,000, according to the five year plan.

The second project involves resurfacing 9 miles of N-35 in Wayne at a cost of $250,000.

Several projects have been planned for Dixon County ranging in costs from $2,427,000 to $542,000.

There are four separate projects planned for N-9, beginning with a seven mile stretch from Wakefield to Emerson that will be resurfaced at a cost of $562,000. An 8 1/2 mile stretch North of Wakefield along N-9 will be graded, some structure work performed along with surfacing and resurfacing work at a cost of $1,574,000.

From Allen, North and South, N-9 will be graded, surfaced and some structure work performed at a cost of $2,427,000 for the seven mile stretch. Finally along N-9 from Ponca Southwest, the five year plan calls for the road to be resurfaced for a 10 mile stretch at a projected cost of $839,000.

Highway N-12 in Dixon County has been planned for grading and surfacing from Maskell to Newcastle at a cost of $1,449,000.

US-20 has also been scheduled for repairs in the five year plan which will include projects of resurfacing. The projects have been slated for the highway from N-114 to the junction of N-9 at a cost of $701,000 and from the junction of N-9 to N-12 at a cost of $972,000.

The Wakefield bridge has been scheduled for replacement on N-35 within the five year plan at a cost of $542,000.

For Cedar County, projects planned in the next five years include grading, structure work, resurfacing and shoulder work coming out of Pierce county on US-81 at US-22 to N-59 at a cost of $1,471,000. Similar work will be done on US-81 in Cedar County alone, from N-59 to N-84, in a separate project estimated at $1,979,000.

District Wide Costs
On a district wide level, counties of Wayne, Knox, Cedar, Dixon, Antelope, Pierce, Dakota, Thurston, Boone, Madison, Stanton, Cuming, Burl, Platte and Colfax in the Nebraska Department of Roads estimates, for fiscal 1983, expenditures of $3,300,722 on physical maintenance, $732,988 for traffic control and $944,051 for Winter operations.

Along with indirect charges, the total for the district has been estimated at $5,481,377 for fiscal 1983.

Financing for the state fund comes from four major sources of revenue: gasoline tax, special fuels tax such as diesel, motor vehicle registration fees and the sales tax on motor vehicles, trailers and semi-trailers.

Additional sources include special motor vehicles fees, truck fines, mileage permits, and excess limit permits.

Motor fuel taxes have, in the past, made about 60 percent of the revenue obtained for the state fund. Gasoline consumption has continued its downward trend, about 2.49 percent in fiscal 1982 compared to the previous year. Diesel fuel consumption however has risen 6.79 percent for the same period.

With the implementation of the variable tax as a portion of the motor fuels revenue, the department of roads says it has been able to stabilize its income from the motor fuel tax in spite of the downward trend in some consumption areas.

Total funding of the fiscal 1983 program, which includes several fiscal 1982 standby projects, is $184,200,000. Of that amount, $105 million will come from the federal government with the state responsible for $72.7 million and $5.5 million being made up from local city and county government sources. The local shares generally represent their share in matching state and/or federal funds on projects located on the state and local highway systems.

Second Guessers selling ads

The Second Guessers Club of Wayne area athletic boosters are in the process of selling advertisements for the 1982-83 Wayne State College athletic brochure. Proceeds go to support all the Second Guessers' activities throughout the year.

Ad sales will continue for a short while longer. Members of the Second Guessers Club have been contacting a number of area businesses, but the volunteers may have been unable to contact everyone. Anyone who is interested in advertising in the brochure, which is distributed free of charge at Wayne State football and basketball games, can contact Ron Sladek at 375-2590.

Rates vary depending on the size of the ad. All advertisers are eligible for a free pass to all regularly scheduled home athletic events at Wayne State College.

This year, for the first time, individuals are being sought to purchase "Prestige Memberships" for the Second Guessers Club. "Prestige Memberships" cost $100, again with the proceeds going to support Second Guessers activities.

The Second Guessers are gearing up for their annual membership drive. Basic membership fee is $20. More information regarding the membership drive will be forthcoming.

The Second Guessers Club is a private, non-profit organization.

Sirens will be tested

The City of Wayne will conduct the monthly testing of Civil Defense sirens at 1 p.m., July 30.

Sirens will be allowed to run only one minute with a three minute pause between each siren test. Sirens will be tested in the following sequence:

- ALERT (used for tornado or other natural disaster warning) both high and low siren on for one minute.
- PAUSE three minutes
- ATTACK both high and low siren on for ten seconds, off for ten seconds, continuing for one minute.

Normal time sequence for each of the sirens would be a full three minutes. Since this is for testing purposes only, they will shut off after one minute each, so that the public can quickly determine the difference between test and actual warning.

If any resident living near a siren should fail to hear the test, please contact the Police Department promptly, so that the siren can be checked for malfunction.

In the event of bad weather, the ceremony will be moved indoors to Rice Auditorium. Everyone is invited to attend and take part in the celebration.

According to Wayne State Registrar Virginia Wright, nearly 50 students will get their undergraduate degrees, while about 30 will receive Master's degrees. She will present the undergraduate candidates, while Dr. Bartholomew Brady Ciampa will present the graduate candidates.

College president Dr. Ed Elliott will confer the degrees. The graduating class will be addressed by Dr. Richard Bringselton, executive officer of the Board of Trustees of the Nebraska State Colleges.

Reports will be received from the board of directors and manager. The group also will elect members of the board of directors, and will review articles of incorporation and revised by-laws as recommended by the board of directors.

The proposed revised articles of incorporation and revised by-laws may be reviewed at the office of the Co-Operative.

Refreshments will be served at the Allen Methodist Church following the meeting.

Rescue squads pass inspections

Ed Craren of the Stater Health Department's Division of Emergency Medical Services recently inspected both the Winside and Hoskins rescue squads and said that they met or exceeded the requirements for state licensure.

Items inspected include: ambulance equipment, record keeping, maintenance, sanitary procedures, and personnel training.

Bill Anderson and Arvon Kruger accompanied Craren and were provided copies of the inspection report.

Annual ambulance inspections are required by a law passed by the 1975 Legislature to assure that ambulance services and rescue squads in Nebraska have the capability to provide quality emergency medical care for victims of accidents or sudden illness.

Work begins on Wayne's 'College Park'

Wayne State College students, residents of Wayne, and visitors to the city will soon be able to make use of a new park while at the same time enjoy the artistic creations of the area's talented.

Work on the new park has begun through the efforts of Wayne State College art instructor Pearl Hansen with the assistance of the community, the college, and the Wayne State Foundation.

"And while the park, tentatively called "College Park," is intended for the use and betterment of both the community and the college, Hansen readily admits she has built an "artistic wall" — not one designed to keep persons out, but rather one to bring people into the park.

Last fall, Hansen came up with the idea that led to initial plans to construct the park on college ground near the Wayne State maintenance building and north of Providence Medical Center.

A college park committee was organized, with Kent Hall chosen as chairperson.

Other members of the committee are Hansen, Dr. Ed Elliott, Adrie Nab, Pat Gross, Sam Schroeder, Dr. Don Koerber, Earl Larson and Linda Kuhl.

Work was initiated in mid-July with the setting of fence poles by Wayne State maintenance personnel, under the direction of Earl Larson. Hansen said Larson and his crew have been "super," and significant progress has already been made.

More assistance arrived last week in the form of student help.

First of all, Hansen organized a course for art students and teachers through the Wayne State College Extended Campus division. Fifteen members of the "Projects in Situation — Wood Relief" class put up a fence that they will decorate with their own artistic creations.

Members of the class include Pam Greckbitt, a teacher from Aurora; Mary Ann Clark, a teacher at Northeast Technical Community College in Norfolk; Deb Fonder, a teacher in Orchard; Donald Kingsbury from Onawa, Iowa and a teacher at West Monona High School; David Smith, a teacher at Brainard East Buller High School; Nancy Wraga, a teacher at Scotus High School in Columbus.

Ruth Vacha, a teacher at Rogers School District 56 near Schuyler; Marlene Zurovski, a teacher at Pierces; Candia Guenther, a Wayne State senior from Wisner; Lansing Hankins, a Wayne State senior from South Sioux City; Gail Nichols, a Wayne State sophomore from Hornick, Iowa; Karen Palersen, a Wayne State junior from Wolbach; Sandy Sanders, a Wayne State junior from Norfolk; Mary Wiebelhaus, a Wayne State senior from Hartington; and Susan Sandahl of Wakefield.

Thursday brought even more student aid, in the form of high school artists from Wayne-Carroll High School and Wakefield High School.

They will be participating in a high school art workshop that Hansen hopes will be a forerunner of an annual high school art camp, similar to the extremely successful Wayne State College High School Music Camp which has been held annually the past 38 years.

The students, who helped with various aspects of the park project, included Brenda Jones and Sonja Porwood from Wakefield, and Jill Dion, Colleen Hammer and Rod Luff from Wayne.

Lunch on Thursday was provided by the Wayne Regional Arts Council.

Hansen hopes the fence work and ground clearing at the new park, as well as some artwork, will be completed by the time school starts this fall.

Further improvements, such as barbecue grills, water, electricity, and a shelter house, will require some fund-raising efforts and probably won't be implemented until next year, according to Hansen.

The park will be open to the public free of charge. In addition, heavy usage for Wayne State functions and by various campus organizations is anticipated.

Hansen's "Projects in Situation" classes have become increasingly popular throughout the area, with most focused on construction of playground or park equipment.

The construction of "College Park," however, is the first time Hansen has undertaken an entire park project.

Helgenberger gives lift to Arabians

By Randy Hascall

Saudi Arabian pilots flying over the Sahara have some Americans including a Wayne State graduate to thank for their physical condition.

Dan Helgenberger returned to Wayne last month after spending one year as strength and conditioning coach for the Royal Saudi Air Force. He worked in Arabia from May 26, 1981 to May 26, 1982 under a contract with the United States Sports Academy.

His main duties were to train Saudi officers and pilots. He put the F-15 and F-5 pilots on weight training programs to give them greater body strength and condition them for G forces. He also trained them for various sports, reconditioned injuries and coached the weight lifting team.

Helgenberger was fortunate to work in a new $79 million sports facility which was built at King Abdul Aziz Air Force base at Dhahran, Arabia. The complex was designed with a swimming pool, shooting ranges, a gymnastics room, a fencing room, basketball courts, bowling lanes, squash courts, handball courts and other facilities for various sports.

"They are still chopping off hands and heads."

"Saudis don't really have a concept of what physical fitness is. It's new to them and it will take years to catch on," Helgenberger said. "We got it started and made believers out of some."

Helgenberger lived in a villa which was owned by the base commander and located 15 minutes from the sports complex. The American staff consisted of karate champions, boxing champions, professional soccer players and others who excelled in their specialized field of athletics.

The 26 year old Scribner native says he "learned a lot" during the once in a lifetime experience. Yet, he adds he was "never really comfortable or relaxed" the entire time he was in Arabia.

The toughest thing was learning to adjust to their religion.

Communication was a big problem because most officers and pilots were fluent in English, said Helgenberger.

"There was no social life. It's against their religion for women to drive or hold jobs. The women have to wear veils over their faces and it's forbidden for the sexes to mingle. Helgenberger explained, "If men look at them and the women are offended, the men can get in trouble. We had to look away from Saudi women and not talk to them."

Although Saudi Arabia is a tremendously rich country, Helgenberger said there is virtually no problem with stealing. "They are still chopping off hands and heads."

There is no stealing because if you're caught you lose a hand. Anyone caught drinking spends six months in jail. If you have an accident and a person is injured, you spend as much time in jail as he does in the hospital.

Programming of two television stations was received but the shows were cut and censored. Thus, most spare time was spent either working with weights or competing in sports with friends.

For the whole year, I was primarily a recreation expert. I made the best gains in weight lifting ever because there was nothing in my spare time but weights and recreation. Despite the lack of a social life and a dispute with the Sports Academy over a promised bonus, some of Helgenberger's fondest memories are related to his job in Arabia.

He and some of his American friends stationed in Arabia went scuba diving in the Red Sea, an opportunity not many Americans get because of the requirement of work visas.

"There is nothing prettier than the Red Sea. The aquatic life is unbelievable. It was fantastic," said Helgenberger who noted that they scuba dived at the same location as famous undersea explorer Jacques Cousteau. Also included in the contract was a trip around the world. The former Wayne State College dormitory director visited Honolulu-Hong Kong, Bangkok, Thailand, Singapore and Bali. He was given a world trip ticket and given the opportunity to set it up for any part of the world. In addition to a set salary, Helgenberger received housing and two meals a day which were furnished by Filipino cooks in the villa. He says he and other staff members were promised bonus checks which they never received.

He conducted one weight lifting exhibition which was attended by generals, officers and princes. "There was a lot of pressure to come through," he understated. Helgenberger, who originally applied for the job through the Chronicle of Higher Education, also was assistant director of research. He conducted physical fitness tests for 1,000 Saudi Air Force cadets and calculated and processed the data.

"Saudis don't really have a concept of what physical fitness is. It's new to them and it will take years to catch on."

Many of the Saudis were educated in the United States and all had to sign 10-year contracts in order to join the Air Force.

Recalling one of the lighter moments of his one-year stay, Helgenberger said he and six of his American friends went skinny dipping at Half Moon Bay during a Moslem holiday, when no Saudis were allowed on the beach. "We renamed it Seven Moon Bay," he joked.

Top notch consultants were sent over to Arabia from the United States throughout the year. Included were U.S. track stars Charlie Foster and Steve Riddick. Helgenberger says he helped Foster with a weight program designed for sprinting. The 5-9, 190-pound weight lifter's best mark in powerlifting is a total of 1,701 pounds in three lifts. His best bench press is 400 pounds, his best squat is 640 pounds and his best deadlift is 641 pounds. He set those marks while training for last year's exhibition in Arabia.

Helgenberger, who has been lifting weights competitively for seven years, has won several weightlifting championships. He qualified for the National Powerlifting Championships held last month in Portland, Ore. and finished in the top 10 despite what he considered a sub-par performance.

"I plan to push by body weight up to 210 and I'm looking forward to nationals next year," he said.

The national lifter makes it clear that he is not a body builder. "Body builders are worried about muscle size and lifters are worried about muscle strength," he explained.

Most national weight lifting qualifiers are in their 30s so the 26 year old Helgenberger may have a bright future ahead of him. He currently devotes two hours a day and four days a week to weight training.

As his body adapts gradually and quality of muscles improves, the time factor involved with training decreases. "Strength gains can only be made at so fast of a rate. It's not a sport to just walk into. Weight lifters must be very disciplined, they can't quit. I want to go as far as I can in power lifting."

"I eat like a horse to gain weight. The secret is very, very high quality exercises and a high protein, high carbohydrate diet," he said.

Laurel Juniors upset Wakefield for Area 'A' berth

JAMIE JOHNSON of Laurel slides home safely for the winning run against Wakefield. The two Legion teams completed Saturday night in the finals of the District 3 baseball tournament at Laurel. The berth was an advance to this week's Class C, Area A tournament at Wakefield. Johnson scored when Dave Marquardt bunted. Laurel, a 2-2 victor, now prepares to play Elgin.

Wakefield threatened to post its second in credible come-from-behind victory in two nights but Laurel resisted the rally to knock off the perennial power 3-2 Saturday in the championship game of the District 3 baseball tournament.

Dennis Martinson, catcher for the host team, ran down Troy Greve and tagged him for the final out to end Wakefield's bid for an area tournament berth and shot at a Class C, state tourney qualification.

With one out in the top of the seventh inning, Greve represented the tying run at third base. Laurel pitcher Brian Marquardt had a two-ball, two-strike count on batter, Jeff Coble.

Double play Wakefield coach Paul Eaton called for a squeeze play and signaled for Coble to lay down a bunt. Pitching out of the stretch, Marquardt threw a hard strike. Coble missed the ball on the attempted bunt for a second out and Greve was more than halfway home.

Martinson darted out after the retreating Greve and tagged the base runner before he could return to third base. The Laurel fans breathed a sigh of relief and gave their team a standing ovation as the final out was called.

"We got them when we had to," said winning coach Bob Weisenberg. "Our team played real well and Kelly Robson played exceptionally well. He is a very good high school shortstop. The kids really batted. They batted every pitch and gave full concentration—even on the bench. All of our players had a common goal of winning. It was a great ball game."

The key play in the ball game came in the bottom of the third inning when Laurel scored two runs. Tim Bloom led-off with a single off of starting pitcher Wayne Guy. Mark Starzl came in as relief pitcher and struck out the next batter.

With one out, Jamie Johnson smacked a hard line drive into right-center field. The right fielder, Greve, running hard to his right, made a diving stab at the line drive. His outstretched glove missed the ball by inches and it bounced out to the fence.

Bloom scored from first on Johnson's double and Johnson moved to third on the throw home. Laurel coach Weisenberg called for a squeeze play with the "speedy" Johnson on first but changed his mind when he recognized a call from the Wakefield dugout for a pickoff.

Squeeze play cancelled He didn't have time to change the call for batter Dave Marquardt but did make the change with Johnson. Marquardt bunted the pickoff out to pitcher Mark Starzl.

Starzl turned and stared down Johnson, who was frozen with a good lead off of third base. He then turned and fired to first base for the force out.

Johnson broke for home on the throw and beat the throw to the plate from Wakefield first baseman Keith Roberts, who had to step on the bag before firing the ball home.

"A key in the game was that Jamie was hitting well and running well. It was a tough decision for the outfielder to make whether to dive for his line drive or to let it hit and take in on one hop," Weisenberg said about Johnson's double. "We were going to try the squeeze play with Dave (Marquardt) but caught the signal in their dugout. I called it off to Jamie but couldn't to Dave."

Each team scored one run in the first inning of the championship game. Starzl singled, took second and third bases on a sacrifice bunt by Brian Soderberg and then scored on a wild pitch.

For Laurel, Brian Marquardt walked in the bottom of the first inning and moved to second on a single by Johnson. He was safe at third when Starzl, playing third base, fielded a grounder by Dave Marquardt and unsuccessfully attempted to tag Johnson as he ran by. The throw to first base was also too late to force out Dave.

Scores on double play With bases loaded, Soderberg, Coble and Keith Roberts combined to turn a double play on a grounder by Ron Hirschman. But, Brian Marquardt scored the tying run on the play.

Trailing 3-1, Wakefield got one run back in the fifth inning. Mike Clay walked and moved to second base on an overthrow of an attempted pickoff play at first. He stole third base and scored from there on an overthrow during the play.

The tying run was stranded on third base in the fifth when Soderberg doubled and advanced on a sacrifice by Rod Nixon. Brian Marquardt went the distance for Laurel and threw a four-hitter. Starzl, Soderberg, Greve and Keith Roberts each had one hit.

For Wakefield, Guy and Starzl combined to toss a four-hitter. Johnson had two hits and Phil Martin and Bloom had one apiece.

"Starzl had good stuff. He's with no question as good a pitcher as anybody in this part of the state since Rick Guy. He should have a future as a small college pitcher," Weisenberg said, complimenting the Wakefield ace who pitched Friday's complete victory over Emerson.

Laurel now advances into Area A action tonight (Thursday) at Wakefield. The District 3 champions will meet Elgin at 5:30. A game between Crofton and Stanton Juniors is scheduled to follow.

Local players dominate Wayne tourney

Even temperatures that reached the lower 90s couldn't spoil the success of the Wayne Community Tennis Open held Saturday and Sunday at the Wayne State College tennis courts. Nearly 40 entrants participated in the second annual event which last year was marred by rain.

It was a successful day for the host city as Wayne players won all of the individual titles and half of the doubles title.

Tom Roberts of Wayne and Pete Vogel of Omaha, a Wayne State graduate, teamed up to win the open doubles title with a 2-6, 7-5, 6-0 win over Joe Strahm and Mark Nohrenberg of Pender.

Roberts then defaulted because of exhaustion to Doug Rose of Wayne in the open singles division, giving defending champion Rose the singles title in an anti-climactic finish to the tournament. Rose won three other matches in his title quest.

The women's open singles title was won by Meg Lodes with a win over Gale Hansen of Wayne. Lodes won the first set 6-3 and Hansen retired in the second set because of exhaustion, giving Lodes the first place plaque.

Another repeat champion was Keith Zimmer of Wayne in the 18 and under singles. He defeated Paul Lotquist of Laurel 6-1, 6-1 in the championship match.

Other division champions were Vini Johar of Wayne in the 14 and under singles and John Meyer of Wayne in the men's novice singles.

In those finals, Johar defeated Ajay Desai of Norfolk 6-2, 6-2 and Meyer defeated Ted DeTurk of Wayne 6-2, 6-3.

The men's open singles division drew 18 players, the open doubles drew 11 entries, the novice singles drew nine, the women's open drew eight, the 14 and under singles drew five and the 18 and under singles drew five.

"We were happy with the turnout," said tournament directors Keith and Nick Zimmer. "There were some good matches and a few surprises."

LAUREL'S JOHN Chace dives back to first base after Emerson's catcher contained a passed ball.

Surging Laurel Midgets win Class C district title

Through the past couple of months the Laurel Midgets have evolved from an inexperienced team into a state contender. Laurel took its lumps early in the season, getting battered around by more experienced teams in the area. Now, the Midgets are through getting pushed around. On Saturday night, host Laurel reached its high point of the season by clobbering Emerson 13-3 in the championship game of Mike Dietrich drew a walk to start things off in the bottom of the first inning. He moved to second base on a sacrifice fly by Mike Granquist and a wild pitch moved him to third. Brian Halsch walked and stole second base to give Laurel a double threat.

Two-run homer Brent Halsch, who will be an eighth grader this fall, blasted a three-run homer over the left field fence to tie the score. It was his second home run against Emerson this year.

Mark Herrmann scored on a wild pitch and John Chace was walked home by Dietrich with bases loaded to give Laurel two more runs in the first. The hosts drew 14 walks off of Emerson pitchers.

In the second inning, Brian Halsch singled to lead off Laurel's attack. Two outs later, John Chace, Kyle Daberkow and Marly Jonas drew three consecutive walks to force him in.

Four more runs in the third inning put Laurel in complete control. Dietrich and Granquist scored the first two runs and John Chace doubled home Brian and Brent Halsch to round out the scoring.

Final run walked in Dietrich and Chad Blatchford, pinch running for Jonas, scored in the fourth to give Laurel a 12-3 lead. With two outs and bases loaded in the bottom of fifth inning, Dietrich walked and Herrmann scored the final run in a 13-3 romp. The triumph improved Laurel's record to 8-10 and sends them to the Area A tournament at Wakefield. Winning pitcher was Brian Halsch who threw a three-hitter. Dietrich and Brent Halsch each scored three runs and Dietrich and Chace collected two hits apiece. "We've really improved a lot," said Laurel coach Bob Weisenberg. "Brian (Halsch) has become a fine pitcher and Brent (Halsch) is a power hitter. We're playing pretty good baseball now."

State softball championship next goal for Wood Plumbing

No teams prefer a losers bracket to a winners bracket but the Wood Plumbing women had to work their way through the losers bracket for the fourth time this season to earn the runner up trophy in the district tournament this past weekend at Norfolk.

The Wayne team, playing with temperatures in the low 90s, rebounded from a second round loss to notch seven straight wins before losing to Coors in the district finals.

The locals defeated Natural Light, lost to M & D Steakhouse and then earned consecutive wins over Arby's, ABC, Norfolk Auto, Terry Tap of Wakefield, Preston's Bar, Babes Lounge and Oasis Lounge. Twenty three teams participated in districts.

The top five teams qualified for state Aug. 13, 14 and 15 at Crete. The top five are: 1. Coors, 2. Wood Plumbing, 3. Oasis, 4. Babes and 5. Preston's.

Leading batter for the tournament runner-up team was Lisa Lundergard with 13 hits in 21 at bats for a .619 average. Donna Kelly had 18 hits and a .529 average.

Players who hit more than 400 are: Paula Rager, 478; Deb Poehling, 471; Jolene Bennett, 467; Sue Plumb, 406; Jo McElvogue batted 367 and Deb Bodenstedt hit 343. Other players on the team are Kathy Milligan, Becky Kelley, Linda Henderson, Sue Chevalier, Sue Wood and Deb Janssen.

Coors 5, Wood Plumbing 3
 Wood Plumbing got off to a good start but lost a tough one in the final game of the district tournament Sunday at Norfolk.

Deb Bodenstedt, Donna Kelly and Sue Plumb each scored in the top of the first inning. Kelly, Plumb, Deb Poehling and Jolene Bennett collected singles. Coors tied the score in the bottom of the inning with three runs on three hits. A run in the fourth and another in the sixth provided the winning margin.

Woods Plumbing 6, Oasis 5
 In a gruesome, extra inning battle, Donna Kelly scored the winning run to edge Oasis Lounge in the finals of the losers bracket. Kelly, Sue Plumb and Deb Poehling hit consecutive singles in the bottom of the 11th to produce the winning run.

Deb Janssen, Kelly and Plumb had three hits each and Lisa Lundergard had a pair.

Wood Plumbing 5, Babes Lounge 0
 Donna Kelly, backed by an excellent defense, pitched a six hit shutout as the Wayne team rolled to victory in the sixth round of the losers bracket.

Kelly was 2-for-4 at the plate and scored three of the winners' runs. In the first inning, Kelly reached base on a fielder's choice, Paula Rager singled and Sue Plumb blasted a three run homer.

Kelly scored in the third when Rager and Plumb whacked singles and again in the fifth on base hits by Deb Poehling and Jolene Bennett.

Wood Plumbing 11, Preston's Bar 6
 A 14 hit attack led Wood to victory in the fifth round of the losers bracket. Becky Kelley had three of these hits and Deb Bodenstedt, Deb Poehling, Jolene Bennett and Lisa Lundergard collected two hits apiece. Poehling scored three runs.

Wood Plumbing 10, Terry's Tap 0
 Competing against Terry's Tap of Wakefield, the Wayne women scored six runs in the first inning and four more in the third to win in a game shortened by the 10 run rule.

Donna Kelly led the offensive showing with a 3-for-3 performance and two runs. Deb Poehling was 2-for-2 with two runs and Paula Rager and Jo McElvogue were each 2-for-3.

Wood Plumbing 12, Norfolk Auto 0
 Norfolk Auto was walked over by Wood Plumbing in the losers bracket third round. The locals scored nine of their runs in the fifth and sixth innings.

Becky Kelley was 3-for-3 with three runs and Deb Bodenstedt, Donna Kelly, Sue Plumb, Jolene Bennett and Jo McElvogue each made two hits.

Wood Plumbing 13, ABC 0
 The second of four shutouts was recorded when Wood's bats took control early to rack up the runs. In the first inning, Becky Kelley, Donna Kelly, Paula Rager, Kathy Milligan and Jolene Bennett scored one run apiece.

Bennett had three hits in three at-bats including a home run. Bodenstedt, Rager, Milligan and Sue Chevalier each added two hits.

Wood Plumbing 7, Arby's 0
 Leading 13-0 the Wayne team had to settle for victory by forfeit as Arby's catcher became overheated and had to leave the game. Arby's had no replacement and was one player short of the limit.

Jolene Bennett and Deb Janssen each had two base hits. M & D Steakhouse 5, Wood Plumbing 4. A three run seventh inning led to Wayne's first loss. The locals led 4-2 through six innings.

Hits were collected by Becky Kelley, Lisa Lundergard, Sue Plumb, Paula Rager, Deb Bodenstedt and Donna Kelly.

Wood Plumbing 10, Natural Light 0
 The Wayne squad earned its first victory and first of four shutouts by topping Natural Light in the opening round of district action. Leading hitters were Lisa Lundergard, Donna Kelly and Jo McElvogue with 2-for-3 performances. Deb Bodenstedt and Donna Kelly each tallied three runs.

Apply for deer hunting

A total of 2,573 permits will be available to hunters for Nebraska's 1982 rifle deer season when the open application period begins Aug. 2.

During the open application period resident and non resident hunters alike may obtain permits on a first come, first served basis. All applications must be mailed or delivered to Game and Parks Commission Headquarters, 2200 No. 33rd, Lincoln, Ne. 68503.

Rifle deer hunting permits are $20 and entitle the permit holder to hunt only in the unit for which it is issued. The following units and the number of remaining permits are: Calamus East, 368; Calamus West, 183; Keya Paha, 237; Loup West, 80; Pine Ridge, 612; Plains, 128; Sandhills, 816; Upper Platte, 149. Hunters must purchase a 1982 Habitat Stamp to hunt any game species Nebraska's 1982 rifle deer season will be November 13 through November 21.

The 1982 archery deer season will begin September 15 and continue through November 12, then close during the rifle deer season, to reopen again November 22 and continue through December 31. Archery deer permits are $20 and entitle the archer to hunt in all management units across the state. They may be purchased over the counter at any Game and Parks Commission office in Lincoln, Omaha, North Platte, Norfolk, Bassett, or Alliance.

Turkey permits available

Resident hunters who did not have a fall shotgun turkey permit during 1981 may apply for their 1982 fall shotgun turkey permit between Aug. 1 and Aug. 17.

There will be a permit drawing for over subscribed units Aug. 24. All resident hunters, whether they had a 1981 fall shotgun turkey permit or not may apply during the second application period, Sept. 1 through Sept. 14. There will be a permit drawing for over subscribed units Sept. 21 and then all resident hunters and non resident hunters alike may apply for the remaining permits on a first come, first served basis beginning Sept. 27.

The fall shotgun turkey early seasons are scheduled to begin Oct. 23 and the late seasons are scheduled to begin Oct. 30. In areas not having a split season the season is scheduled to begin Oct. 23.

Archery turkey season will begin Oct. 1.

Fall turkey permits are $15 and must be accompanied by a 1982 Nebraska Habitat Stamp. The fall shotgun turkey permit entitles the hunter to hunt in the management unit named on his permit. An archery turkey permit allows the archer to hunt turkey in any open turkey units.

The Game and Parks Commission, encourages hunters to make arrangements for a place to hunt prior to applying for their permit, as most turkey hunting is done on private land.

Squirrel season to open

Nebraska's 1982 squirrel hunting season begins with a bang Saturday, Aug. 1 and will continue through Jan. 31, 1983.

During the 1982 season hunters may legally take seven squirrels per day and have a total of 21 in their possession. Shooting hours are one half hour before sunrise to sunset, except after Jan. 1 when all shooting must cease at 4 p.m.

Resident squirrel hunters 16 years of age or older must have a valid Nebraska hunting license and a habitat stamp in their possession while hunting. Nonresidents of any age must have in their possession a valid Nebraska hunting license and Habitat Stamp.

Wayne's division lead is slipping

The Wayne town team left its hold on the East Division lead of the Tri County League start to slip away Sunday night when Hartington defeated Wayne for the second time this season.

The locals suffered a 9-2 loss and now lead Laurel by one game in the loss column.

Tri-County standings	East
Wayne	14-3
Laurel	14-4
Crofton	12-5
Coleridge	10-6
Hartington	10-7
Bloomfield	7-9
Wausa	5-11

Bill Schwartz, led the locals with a 3-for-5 attack and clubbed a double to drive in a run in the fourth inning.

Hartington was led by Wakefield High School coach Scott Miller who blasted a two run homer and went 3 for 4.

Wayne was scheduled to play Crofton last night in a town team game which was moved to Hartington because the Area 3 American Legion was scheduled to open in Wayne. The locals then must face Laurel on the road Sunday in the season finale.

Joel Ankeny and Tim Pfeiffer handed pitching duties in Sunday's losing effort.

Laurel closes in on shot at title

Laurel moved within half a game of the East Division lead Sunday with a 12-7 win over Wausa in Tri County League baseball action. The Falcons are now 14-4 while Wayne is 14-3.

The person who set up the league schedule deserves a medal as Wayne and Laurel are scheduled to meet Sunday night in the season finale.

Wayne played Crofton last night (Wednesday) while Laurel was idle. A Wayne win in that game coupled with a Laurel victory over Wayne Sunday would result in a two-way tie for first place. Two Wayne victories would clinch the division title while two Wayne losses would give Laurel the top spot.

Brad Erwin shredded Wausa with three home runs. His team mates added two more to give Laurel five in the game. Erwin rapped a solo home run to start things in the first inning. Brian Johnson and John Manganaro added homers in the third inning.

Erwin added two more solo home runs in the fourth and sixth innings to pace the winners Steve Thompson drove in two other runs with an eighth inning single and Manganaro singled in two others in the ninth.

Jeff Creamer and Marty Summerfield pitched for the Falcons. Laurel 102 103 122-12 13 1 Wausa 002 200 003-7 10 2

Loyal fans

Meyers are Wayne's sports nuts

By Randy Haseall
Every team could use fans like Don and Edna Meyer.

The Wayne couple has been following athletics since 1959 and hasn't lost interest. Although Don says his favorite sport is whatever is in season, baseball has to be right at the top. Edna says her favorites are baseball and basketball.

Following athletics hasn't always been easy for the Meyers. The biggest hurdle to clear has been Don's health problems over the years.

In 1964, doctors told Don not to farm anymore because of arthritis in his spine. "It's been 18 years of vacation," Don jokes in high spirits. In 1966, he suffered a heart attack and stroke on his right side.

Don spent two months in the hospital and Edna was at his side every day. He suffered another major stroke in 1972. That same year, Edna underwent a mastectomy in a Sioux City hospital. They moved from the farm to Wayne in 1973.

Sports has helped Don and Edna pass time and keep their minds off of their ailing health. Through the years, Don was picked for the 1940 Wayne High baseball team. He has grown into an encyclopedia of sports.

He and Edna can still recall the Wayne High basketball team of 1956 which defeated Hebron 61-56 to win the Class B state title. Don said that team—coached by Harold Maciejewski—is the best Wayne High team he has seen and added that any player on the team could score 20 points.

He ranks Wayne's 1982 team as second best and 1981's team as third best. The Meyers can still name the starters on all three of those teams.

Don and Edna, both 58, have been married for 38 years and have four children: living—Donald, Wayne, 38; Jeanie, 31; Nahn, 28; and Mike, 25. Both girls played recreation softball under their father but graduated before girls' athletics were organized in high school.

Donald, who is now head basketball coach at David Lipscomb College in Nashville, Tenn., was named Class B player of the year in 1963 and named to the All-State basketball team in 62 and 63.

At age 11, he made the Wayne Middle school baseball team. Last year, his son Jerry was named most valuable player on a Nashville all-star basketball team.

Jerry's baseball team won the Florida state tournament this past week and will now compete at regionals in Pensacola, Fla. Thirteen year-old Jerry was the winning pitcher in the 8-1 championship win. Don and Edna's granddaughters Brooke and Britany are also active in sports.

Mike played collegiate baseball at Wayne State College the past four years and may be the only WSC player to ever earn four all-conference awards. The baseball catcher now farms on the Meyers' land near Wayne and plays for the Wayne town team.

Don and Edna went to all of Wayne State's baseball games during Mike's career except for southern trips into Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas. They treated the Wildcats to supper twice during that time.

The Meyer boys were not natural athletes but were hard workers. When Mike was eight years old, he caught pitches from his brother Donald in the haymow of their barn. Donald also used to pitch to his father, who sat on a five-gallon bucket because of a bad back.

Donald's sisters and cousins threw corn cobs for batting practice.

One of the most memorable events of Edna and Don's trip with friends Helen and Norris Walbie to Kansas City last year to watch David Lipscomb College play in the NAIA Nationals. The trip turned sour as David Lipscomb lost to Kearney State.

Don was asked to throw out the first ball at the Area 3 American Legion Baseball Tournament which was rained out Monday and Tuesday but rescheduled to begin last night (Wednesday).

Photography: Randy Haseall

EDNA AND Don Meyer are proud of the plaque which was given to them for their support of the Wayne State baseball team.

Edna, who has driven more miles than many people do in a lifetime, drives Don to town team ball games throughout northern Nebraska and has made many trips which were much longer. Often their friend Robert "Mom" Walle, a storm director at WSC, accompanies them on their game trips.

In the Meyers' home are two plaques which were given to them for their support of Wayne State baseball by the WSC baseball team and fan Mom Walle. The most recent award was made in May at a supper for the Wayne State players.

Each team has its avid followers but few fans offer the kind of support that the Meyers offer.

The free and reduced price meal policy for school children unable to pay the full price of meals and milk served under the provisions of the National School Lunch, School Breakfast and Special Milk Programs was announced recently by Ray Steiner, Director of Child Nutrition Programs for the Nebraska Department of Education.

"Local school officials have adopted the Department of Education's family size income criteria to assist them in determining eligibility," Dr. Steiner said. "Children from families whose income is at or below the designated levels are eligible for free or reduced price meals."

The income poverty guidelines for School Year 1982-83 include:

Family Size	Free Lunches	Reduced Price Lunches
1	$6,080	$8,660
2	8,090	11,510

5	14,090	20,050
6	16,090	22,900

For each additional family member add - 2,000 2,850

Application forms are being sent to all homes in a letter to parents. Additional copies are available at the principal's office in each school. The information provided on the application is confidential and will be used only for the purpose of determining eligibility. Applications may be submitted at any time during the year. A simple statement of income and family size is required.

plus a signed certification by the parent or guardian that the information provided is correct.

In certain cases foster children are also eligible for these benefits. If a family has foster children living with them and wishes to apply for such meals and milk for them, the school should be contacted.

In the operation of child feeding programs, no child will be discriminated against because of race, sex, color or national origin.

THE NORTHEAST Station is a familiar sight to farmers in Northeast Nebraska.

Photography: Michelle Kubik

25th anniversary celebration planned for Northeast Station

To its backers in Northeast Nebraska, the University of Nebraska Northeast Station is NU. So assesses Station Director Dr. Cal J. Ward.

"Lincoln's just where the football team plays," jokes Michael Brumm, an extension swine specialist in charge of the Station's 25th anniversary plans, as both men talk about the attitude area residents hold towards the Station.

They say this because many area residents helped get the Station established. Some of them formed the Northeast Nebraska Experimental Farm Association in 1954. They recruited members and raised funds, and in doing so, laid the ground work for the Station's birth. What began in 1957 as a half section of farmland donated to NU has grown into a modern ag research facility.

Station personnel are planning to recognize this support during the celebration of the facility's 25th anniversary. It will be held during the Station's annual field day, Tuesday, Aug. 24. They dub a part of it a "homecoming" for past NNEFA officers and expect 1,500 people to attend. That's more people than have ever attended a single event at the Station.

"More than any other station, this station exists because the residents said 'We need one,'" Ward explains.

"And they drove up and down the roads, grabbing people by the coattails," selling memberships in NNEFA and seeking donations, he says. They wanted money to buy land to give to NU, he explains. They want a research facility which could devote its work to meeting the area's agricultural needs.

The initial fund drive during 1957 netted some 2,000 memberships and other donations, which totaled $40,000.

Sometime in there, the drive caught the late C.D. Haskell of Laurel's attention. And one day, when Warren Patfield, a NNEFA Cedar County director, was doing carpentry work for him Haskell said he wanted to donate a half section of land to the group. He wanted to donate it for use as an ag experiment station, and as a memorial to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John D. Haskell.

In exchange for the land donation, NNEFA also agreed to set up a scholarship fund in the name of Margaret T. Haskell, his wife, through the NU Foundation. A $25,000 fund was created to provide interest free or low interest loans for northeast Nebraska ag students.

While an agronomy research program began there in 1956, the land was officially deeded to NU in 1957.

NNEFA and the Haskell family continued to cooperate in helping the Station develop. In 1959, the Association began a fund drive to build a headquarters building. They raised $8,850, and Haskell matched that amount with funds of his own.

The late Richard Adkins of Osmond was a member of both the NU Board of Regents and NNEFA. According to Ward, Adkins secured state funds to pay for the headquarters building's construction, citing these local contributions as proof public support for the idea.

Still interested in the Station's development, NNEFA loaned it $4,000 to set up an experimental cattle operation. And in 1967, the Association, in cooperation with a pork producers group, conducted a third fund drive. They raised $22,000 earmarked for building a swine research facility.

According to Ward, the Association has remained active and supports the Station with advice and occasional small grants. And NNEFA will help the station celebrate its 25th anniversary. It's sponsoring a free barbecue lunch for Field Day visitors.

Ward says he thinks the station owes much to the people of northeast Nebraska. "The whole point is the people in this area think this is their station. The way it was established helped us develop the right kind of relationship with the people of northeast Nebraska," Ward says.

"They call it 'our' station, rather than 'the university's station,'" he explains. "It's the way they view an institution — we're able to have greater impact on their lives because they have this close, personal feeling about the work we do."

Part of the Station's tax supported purpose is to do research oriented towards northeast Nebraska's farm needs. And since 1965, when extension and research purposed for a five county area were combined, the Station's job has been to do the research and get the resulting information out to area residents. Finally in 1967, the Station assumed duties as extension headquarters for the 13 county district it serves today.

According to Ward, the NNEFA's bylaws state the organization's objectives were to get a research facility established to focus on the area's needs, to get that information to people who could use it and, in the end, to improve family living for people involved.

Ward says the Station has been fulfilling this purpose. He cites fertilization research that improved fertilizer application efficiency for farmers who follow Station guidelines. Even if only a portion of the million or so acres of corn in the northeast district are fertilized according to the guidelines, the savings are astronomical, he says.

"Other types of information and service the Northeast Station has provided to area residents follow.

"It found that the return to bromegrass pasture for fertilization was one pound of beef for each pound of nitrogen applied. Also, the combination of rotational grazing and fertilization doubled the amount of beef produced per acre.

It developed the modified open front swine finishing house, now widely adopted throughout the state and region.

It showed that shelled, high-moisture corn stored in whole form and fed that way increased the rate of gain more than similar corn stored and fed in ground form.

"It found that steep backslope terraces with underground waterways reduced soil loss to less than one-tenth loss from non-terraced fields.

"It provided leadership for a statewide mastitis control program, surveyed sample farms and coordinated dairy in industrywide efforts.

"It demonstrated that bleeding pig disease could be controlled by the addition of vitamin K to swine rations at a cost of less than one dollar per ton of feed.

The Station doesn't dwell on past success. And visitors at the Field Day will be able to tour current research test areas. But not to sell themselves short, Station personnel will set up a tent with displays highlighting past accomplishments.

After the NNEFA barbecue, Dr. Roy Arnold, NU vice chancellor for agriculture and natural resources, will present a charge to the Station for the next 25 years.

Ward says Arnold will rededicate the Station, and provide a glimpse toward its future.

"It'll be a time to say 'this is all well and good, and now let's get going again,'" Ward concludes.

Weather favors corn wilt

Stormy, turbulent weather, warm temperatures and high humidity this past week favored development of Goss's Wilt on susceptible corn hybrids, the Ag Climate Situation Committee of the Nebraska Cooperative Extension Service said last Monday.

Several less important leaf spots diseases in corn and sorghum also were favored by the weather and have occurred in eastern and central Nebraska, the committee said. Dry, windy weather would suppress further spread while continued high humidity and frequent rains would favor spread and severity.

Western bean cutworm is becoming prevalent in Holt and Antelope counties and the Central City area, the committee said. Egg masses may be seen on the upper one-third of the corn plant. Heavy rains would wash the egg masses from the upper surfaces of the plant.

The economic threshold recommended by the Cooperative Extension Service calls for treatment if 95 percent of the field has tasseled and 8 percent or more of the field is infested with eggs or larvae. However, farmers may want to apply insecticide earlier to protect tassels from being chewed off by the cutworms, the committee said.

Although the state as a whole has experienced warm days, the growing season for corn is still nine calendar days behind normal, the committee said. In addition, the weather is more variable than normal. Rains ranging from three to six inches have occurred in small areas.

Wakefield man enters nationals

Robert D. Hansen, Wakefield, has entered a spotted barrow in the 1982 National Barrow Show Production Tested Barrow Show. The barrow was delivered to the National Barrow Show Testing Station at New Ulm, Minn., and will be fed out along with 780 other barrows from across the United States and Canada.

The barrows will be taken off test as they reach 220 lbs. live weight and the carcasses will be evaluated at Geo. A. Hormel & Company's Meat Packing Plant in Austin, Minn. The final results will be announced and the winners will be honored at the National Barrow Show held in Austin, Sept. 13, 14, and 15.

The National Barrow Show is an all breed event which attracts hogs from throughout the United States and visitors from many foreign countries. In addition to championship barrows, the National Barrow Show also features judging of the nation's finest breeding stock which represent the major purebred breeds of hogs in the United States.

By submitting his entry, Hansen, a producer of purebred breeding stock, has indicated his intentions to place his hog in competition in the 1982 Show.

The National Barrow Show is sponsored by Geo. A. Hormel & Company, The National Association of Swine Records, Iowa State University, and the University of Minnesota.

all around the house

Before air conditioning became commonplace, people went to the ice cream parlor to keep cool under a tarp, slowly revolving fan suspended from the ceiling. Now ceiling fans are back.

The promise of energy savings has turned this old idea into a new fad. Can swirling blades overhead cut cooling costs? A ceiling fan will save energy only if it persuades the homeowner to turn the thermostat up or off in an air-conditioned home. Research reports suggest that moving air can compensate for a six to eight degree temperature increase. On a hot day then, the air conditioner could maintain 84° rather than 78°. Since it costs only about 1¢ an hour to operate a fan, the same research calculates that 5 to 6 percent savings is a realistic estimate for total summer energy savings.

Ceiling fans are available from more than 50 manufacturers. You can find them advertised by all kinds of dealers, costing from less than $100 to more than $1,000. So take time to consider the many variables before investing in ceiling fan installation.

—Many kinds of fans can provide moving air to keep you comfortable. A portable fan might be a more economical choice. —A room must have a minimum of an 8-foot ceiling to provide 7-foot clearance below the revolving blades. —Proper installation is essential and can add to the cost. Some ceiling fans weigh as much as 50 pounds.

—Study fan models in showrooms to observe if they are well balanced. Be sure the dealer will correct problems if the fan turns out to be a wobbler. —Energy savings in the cooling season depend on house design, number of fans needed, quality of insulation, humidity, and so on. Be wary of claims to cut costs by 50% or other advertisements that seem to be exaggerated. Ceiling fans can add to the charm and comfort of your home. If you have questions about home cooling, contact me through your nearest Nebraska Public Power District office.

INTERESTING QUESTION

Gardeners sometimes fear the rumor that melons planted beside cucumbers will develop an off-taste. Similar rumors suggested that squash, pumpkins, cucumbers, and melons should not be planted near each other because they'll develop the flavor of one another due to cross-pollination. But these rumors are not true.

Let's take a closer look at this group of garden plants. Squash, pumpkins, cucumbers and melons are all members of the same plant family called the cucurbit family.

The reason pollination from another variety does not alter flavor is that the edible portions of these cucurbits are genetically the same as the plan on which the fruit or vegetable grows. Pollination introduces new genetic material only into the seeds within the fruit. Therefore, the fruit is the same regardless, but the seeds inside may be different genetically.

For example, if a flower of a Buttercup squash plant is fertilized with pollen from a neighboring Gold Nugget squash, the resulting squash fruit will be the typical Buttercup type in both looks and taste.

But if you save the seed from inside that squash and plant them, the resulting plants and fruits may look and taste like either or both of the parents. To assure that the seeds you buy will truly be the variety labeled, seed companies carefully isolated fields in which varieties are grown.

Therefore, if cross-pollination does occur it's only the seeds affected, not the fruit. Plus cucumbers and watermelons cannot cross with species other than themselves. Muskmelons will cross with honeydew and Casaba melons. However, some varieties of squash and pumpkins will cross with one another.

So squash, pumpkins, cucumbers and melons can be planted side by side with no danger of fruit quality melons occur, it's usually the results of a cool, damp weather period during ripening.

The one vegetable that needs isolation is sweet corn. Sweet corn fields need to be isolated from planting of dent, popcorn or other types of corn. The picture is further complicated by the need to isolate a given type of "supersweet" corn from another one. By planting cultivars of sweet corn to flower at different types of supersweet corn cultivars in the same garden.

Urban tilt means less for rural areas

By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

Sen. John DeCamp of Neligh rarely gets boxed-in by political adversaries, but now he appears to be just that in his effort to get state courts to dump the new local aid distribution formula adopted by the 1982 Legislature.

The urban tilt to the new formula — which city senators argue should be viewed not as a windfall but simply an adjustment of a previously "unfair" formula — has caused great consternation among government officials in rural areas.

Beginning in December, the state is scheduled to begin distribution of $78.7 million in aid to local governments under the new formula. Many local governments in rural Nebraska will receive significantly less than what they received last year.

DeCamp fought a tough but losing battle during the legislative session to keep a rural-oriented distribution formula. Now he thinks the court should strike down the new law on constitutional and procedural grounds.

In an effort to find an affected party to challenge the law, DeCamp has been talking to supervisors in various counties.

BOND PROBLEMS
At his urging, the Antelope County Board of Supervisors adopted a resolution disapproving the new formula and directing its attorney to file a lawsuit blocking implementation of the distribution formula.

The resolution was adopted before the supervisors realized that the county would have to post a bond that could range in the millions of dollars in order to have the courts halt distribution.

When legal counsel made that clear, county officials said they'd retain the part of the resolution opposing the formula but rescind the portion calling for a lawsuit to be filed, leaving court action to other dissatisfied parties.

When Antelope County backed off,

DeCamp expressed confidence that he'll still be able to find someone to file suit to block distribution.

DeCamp expressed hope that a suit challenging the law without asking the court to block distributions could be filed and settled prior to the first payment next December. Such a suit would alleviate the problem of posting a bond.

But the bond requirement is no small impediment to DeCamp's efforts. The first payment is only five months off, which doesn't leave much time to file and complete a lawsuit.

TRUMP CARD
The issue of posting a bond with the court was the trump card during the 1982 session for urban lawmakers such as Omaha Sens. Dave Newell and Vard Johnson.

While state law requires Antelope County and almost every other local government to post a bond in such an effort, it exempts a metropolitan class city from the requirement. Only the city of Omaha falls into that classification.

Newell, Johnson and other urban lawmakers were armed during the session with a written commitment from Omaha officials that the city would go to court immediately to block the implementation of any rural weighted formula that the Legislature might pass.

In other words, the Omahans were in a position to promise colleagues that the courts would have a say in the issue, if the court's ruling was adverse to rural interests, as it had been in other recent rulings, senators faced the likelihood of coming back in special session during an election year for yet another run at what has been one of the longest-running and divisive legislative battles of recent years.

Faced with the prospect of the city of Omaha tossing the issue back to them for further consideration, urban lawmakers were finally able to swing enough votes to get the kind of distribution formula they had been seeking for years.

Compromise

President Reagan is now expected to sign a one year extension of the grain trading agreement with the Soviet Union, according to his aides. The current agreement ends Sept. 30.

Proponents of the agreement have been pushing the administration for a long term grain agreement, as we currently have with the Soviets. However, due to Russia's foreign actions, particularly in Poland, President Reagan has seriously considering letting the current agreement lapse, without a renewal.

Under the current agreement, the Soviets have agreed to purchase a minimum of six million metric tons of corn and wheat per year. They are also allow to buy up to eight million tons, without consultation with our government, and may negotiate a higher level at any time.

This past year, they have been offered 23 million tons of grain by our country and have purchased a little over 14 tons.

Agriculture Secretary John Brock has been advising President Reagan not only to sign a new agreement to aid American farmers faced with huge surpluses who need the additional market but he also has pushed for a higher minimum than the current six million tons.

We support President Reagan's compromise of extending the current agreement for one year. The terms, as they are now, would keep a close watch on the Soviet purchases, as Mr. Reagan seems to wish, yet would also aid American grain farmers by continuing to provide a market for their crops. The one year agreement would also mean Mr. Reagan and administration officials could continue to study the problem of Russian aggression and whether to retaliate in economic fashions.

We believe this represents a workable agreement for all concerned and is a good compromise between proponents and opponents of a new long term grain agreement with the Soviet Union

If you followed the media's coverage of the speeches by the Democrats' leading presidential contenders at the party's recent midterm conference, you probably learned that:

1. Walter Mondale wowed 'em, but Ted Kennedy wowed 'em even more.
2. The others, Senators Glenn, Cranston, Hart and Hollings are already also-rans a year and a half before the first primary.
3. Ted Kennedy's new eye glasses and slimmer appearance reveal that he's serious, organized and off to a fast start.

The horse race aspects of presidential politics have become an obsession for some national media. How about what these gentlemen had to say about our economic policies and prospects?

Actually, something interesting and widely unreported occurred at this conference. While the six contenders all roundly condemned the President in the strongest terms, only one, Sen. Ernest Hollings of South Carolina, acknowledged the basic philosophical switch that led millions of Democrats to vote for Reagan in 1980 and to continue their support for the basic tenets of Reaganomics up to the present day.

The five others echoed one another in their hyperbole about budget cuts, in pointing the finger of blame at the President for the recession, and in their advocacy of new spending programs and higher taxes.

To the editor:

Having read your recent editorial about the lack of information being provided by the Mayor, City Administrator, and support staff of the City of Wayne to members of the city council, we the undersigned wish to set the record straight.

Prior to each council meeting, we the council are provided with an agenda and a packet of information covering the agenda at least four days prior to the meeting. If the information included in the packet does not provide us with the information that we feel is sufficient to render a decision on a matter, we simply need to pick up the telephone and call the Mayor, or the City Administrator to get the additional information.

Since March 1, 1981, when Mr. Kloster became City Administrator, we have never been turned down by either Mr. Kloster or the staff in our request for information. We do know that we can usually call on Mr. Kloster or the staff at any time of the day — seven days a week — and they will get us the requested information. We also acknowledge that if the requested information is not available at the time we request it, Mr. Marsh and Mr. Kloster will see that we receive the information (either pro or con) prior to the time that we are expected to vote on the issue.

In addition to the above, we acknowledge the responsibility that we have as council members to research matters that come before us and we have consulted with the Mayor, City Administrator, and the support staff whenever we felt it necessary.

More of a state's concern

Last week the House Agriculture Committee's Subcommittee on Wheat, Soybeans and Feed Grains held a hearing on a report released by the National Research Council of the National Academy of Sciences. The report, which makes a number of suggestions, stresses the extremely explosive nature of grain dust, the intensity of grain dust explosions, and emphasizes the importance of good housekeeping practices in the industry.

In my testimony before the committee, I called for state governments to assume a major role in monitoring safety efforts at grain elevators. It is important that state government work closely with the federal government, industry and labor to help prevent grain elevator explosions.

Through their own state departments of agriculture, state fire safety agencies, and other regulatory agencies, state governments are closer to the situation and can take into account the specific nature of grain handling within their own jurisdictions.

These state government agencies, working in conjunction with industry and labor, can and should develop housekeeping guidelines, training programs, necessary inspection procedures and cooperative research efforts. There may well be some role for the federal government in assisting the individual states in their efforts, but the primary emphasis must rest with the states.

I believe that more basic research is required on the concentration levels of dust which can explode. Also, additional emphasis must be placed on the need to locate the elevator legs, which the report called the most dangerous area of any grain storage facility, on the outside of the structure wherever possible. In addition, further effort is needed in the design of the buckets or cups used to lift the grain, development of methods to reduce breakage of the grain congressman doug bereuter

kernel during handling, and dust suppression techniques such as treatment with soybean oil.

Overall, however, I believe that the National Academy of Sciences study, in conjunction with the on-going efforts of the industry itself, represents a meaningful first step in our efforts to reduce the incidence of these disasters which exact such a heavy toll in lost lives and destruction of property in the grain producing areas of the country.

PUBLIC VIEWS INVITED

Secretary of Agriculture John Brock has invited rural citizens across the country to participate in developing recommendations for rural development policies and strategies.

The Rural Development Policy Act of 1980 calls for the Secretary to submit to the Congress a comprehensive rural development strategy that is based on the needs, objectives, and recommendations of the states and localities. The first strategy report will be submitted to the Congress in January.

The Secretary said he is particularly interested in recommendations on strengthening the role of state and local governments in rural development, finding new ways to finance rural development, increasing private sector involvement in rural development, streamlining federal regulations, finding new opportunities for volunteerism in rural development, and improving public and private sector rural leaders' access to information and expertise.

The Secretary also invited rural people's views on what they believe are the most critical new or emerging rural issues. To be included in the first strategy process, views and recommendations should be sent by September 1 to the Office of Rural Development Policy, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250.

AMERICA'S FREEDOM RIDE

This year marks the 200th anniversary of the United States Constitution. Beginning on August 9, in New York City, a group of cyclists, "America's Freedom Ride", will be embarking on a journey through our 50 states. Their trip will be the first step in our nation's celebration of the Constitutional Bicentennial. The event will not only be an example of our American freedom but will also encourage more people to become aware of the importance that physical fitness plays in our lives.

One component of their program is the "pony express". The "pony express" will give over 1000 communities the opportunity to express their views to the President, the Speaker of the House and the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court on our constitutional heritage of freedom and our hopes for the future of America.

This organization needs the participation of local communities in this historic journey. The pony express will pass through Dakota, Dixon, Cedar, and Knox counties in the First District. To find out when America's Freedom Ride will be passing through your area, call the toll-free 24-hour hot line. The number is (800) 525-9391, ext. 677.

Trading problems

By M.M. Van Kirk
Nebraska Farm Bureau

Leveling off and even declines in the volume of U.S. agricultural exports after a decade of unprecedented growth, has spotlighted the increased competition in world markets for both agricultural and manufactured products.

Currently there is serious friction and the hint of a trade war between the United States and its principal trading partners—the European Economic Community (Common Market nations of Western Europe) and the Japanese.

In the case of the EC nations, the complaints involve their use of subsidies to capture foreign markets and dump their surpluses. With the Japanese, the complaint mostly involves restraints and duties imposed on U.S. agricultural products such as beef and citrus while insisting on unlimited access to the U.S. market for their automobiles, motorcycles, cameras, etc.

U.S. Trade Representative William Brock has stated that one of the goals of the U.S., at ministerial meetings of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) this fall, will be to move rules for agricultural trade closer to rules that apply to industrial trade. The GATT currently prohibits subsidies for manufactured goods but not for grain.

The July-August issue of "EUROPE" magazine published by the European Community carries articles dealing with the controversy under the caption, "Farm Trade: A Harvest of Blame." The magazine presents two opposing views, one provided by Paul Daiseger, EC commissioner for agriculture, and the other by U.S. Secretary of Agriculture John Brock.

EUROPEAN VIEW

In essence, Daiseger's article says that U.S. complaints are unjustified, that subsidies for agricultural exports are accepted procedure and GATT rules apply only to manufactured goods, not farm commodities. He cites big gains in EC agriculture production in wheat and barley, milk, meat, beet sugar and wine, with sales subsidized to the point that EC is now a major exporter of these products.

His tone is arrogant and bitter as this quote indicates: "It is understandable that this should bother U.S. farmers who were accustomed to a dominating position on world markets, though the EC is not the only or even the major competitor that U.S. farmers have to face on world markets. In addition to traditional exporters, such as Canada and Australia, there are for instance, Brazil and Argentina, which have put an end to the American exclusivity of soybean exports."

AMERICA'S SIDE

Block in his statement, notes that the EC has more than doubled its sugar exports in four years, that it has become the largest exporter of poultry, and is now the second largest exporter of beef and veal, very close to overtaking Australia, despite the fact that its own per capita consumption is not greater than that of the Soviet Union.

And Block adds, "The United States does not fault the EC for reaching and exceeding self-sufficiency in major agricultural commodities. If EC consumers are content to pay far above world prices, this is, after all, their own concern. Our concern is that the EC continues a policy of all-out production, which it continues to subsidize into export, disrupting trading patterns and challenging market shares of traditional exporters, including the United States."

It is obvious that what Japanese and European interests really want is unlimited access to the U.S. market while being very selective in protecting their own producers of both manufactured and agricultural products. Unemployed auto workers of both manufactured and agricultural products, unemployed auto workers in Detroit and steel workers without jobs in Pittsburgh have common cause with economically depressed farmers and ranchers of the West and Midwest in demanding that the principles of free trade and fair trade be observed by all trading nations, not just by America.

The opinions expressed here are not necessarily those of The Wayne Herald editorial board.

Video game enthusiasts warned of hand problems

Millions of habitual video game players may be facing potentially serious musculoskeletal problems, according to a report delivered recently at the Pan-American Congress of Rheumatology.
"Since an average player spends upwards of two hours per week at the controls of a video game, we are likely to see chronic problems developing in the hands, wrists and perhaps even shoulders," said Gary E. Myerson, M.D., who headed the study.
In a study of 142 video arcade patrons, rheumatologists from Emory University in Atlanta have found that 67 percent had at least one of these physical complaints: blisters, callouses, or sprains or tendonitis, the latter two being temporary arthritic conditions. In one of the first "field" studies of its kind, Dr. Myerson and his colleagues—John Goldman, M.D., and Stephen Miller, M.D. observed people as they played the games and then conducted physical examinations of them.
"We examined them where they stood, in front of Donkey Kong, Centipede, Space Invader and Asteroid," Dr. Myerson reported. "The complaints and clinical findings were found from the repetitive action required to manipulate the game controls. The repetition is unavoidable, but we've computed changes in the positioning of the controls which should at least moderate some of the trauma."
Initially conceived as an introduction to the use of computers, the video game industry has developed into a multibillion dollar field, even outstripping movies as a per capita entertainment expenditure. Current estimates have 75,000 man-years spent playing video games in America annually at a cost of over $6 billion.

Health tip

There are seven key things to remember if you are a hay fever sufferer, the Nebraska Medical Association advises.

- 1) No matter how badly you suffer during the season, hay fever will not kill you. It may have troublesome complications, however.
- 2) Consult your doctor and get help in identifying what causes your hay fever, plus advice on what to do about it.
- 3) If you can, get away from the substance that causes your reaction. Air conditioning and air purification may help you rest, sleep and work.
- 4) Use antihistamines sparingly — always with your doctor's advice. Don't try to medicate yourself.
- 5) If your doctor thinks injections will help, start them well before the hay fever season and stick to them without skipping. The doctor can help after symptoms have started, too.
- 6) Don't get discouraged if you get rid of one sensitivity only to find you have developed another one.
- 7) Be sure to let your doctor know if you think a complication — such as a real nose or throat infection — has developed.

Neihardt workshop set at Wayne State

The life and works of Nebraska Poet Laureate John G. Neihardt, one of Wayne State College's best known alumni, are the subjects of a workshop for 25 students of his writings.

According to Ruby Pedersen, head of the humanities division at Wayne State, a number of applicants had to be turned down because the class was limited to 25 students.

The "Workshop in John G. Neihardt" is scheduled for July 29 through Aug. 6 at Wayne State. Offered through the Wayne State English department, participants will earn three undergraduate or graduate credit hours.

Dr. Sally Boschwitz McCluskey, a Neihardt scholar and 1962 Wayne State graduate, will instruct the course. Dr. McCluskey is a native of Omaha.

Ruby Pedersen is coordinating the class. The students will study several of Neihardt's publications in the lecture/discussion-type class. In addition, participants will view three NETCHE films on Neihardt, including "Neihardt on Creative Writing," "A Journey Home," which was his last film; and "Always But a Beginning," his autobiography.

A special activity the class will be involved in is taking part in the "Neihardt Day" celebration in Bancroft on Sunday, Aug. 1. Theme of this celebration is "The Music of What Happens," a special tribute to Neihardt's wife Mona.

Special events scheduled for "Neihardt Day" include a talk by Hilda Neihardt Petri, John and Mona Neihardt's daughter and a former Wayne State student, and a reading of Neihardt's work by Marshall Jamison of ETV.

The Neihardt Center in Bancroft will open at 10 a.m. on Aug. 1, with the main program set to begin at 3 p.m.

Answer is short jaunts

"Riding out" the current American depression may mean small weekend car trips for many Nebraskans. While they can't always escape summer's heat or the oppressive economy, short jaunts into 19th century Nebraska may be just the tonic for sagging morale.

The only time-machine needed to re-enter our past is an auto or cycle, as modern highways transport drivers through State Historical Parks scattered across the state.

Unlike other parks or recreation areas, these sanctuaries are set aside solely to recreate Nebraska's adventurous past. The remaining wagon wheel ruts, early forts, home and flour mill stand to tell the story of our early pioneers and settlers.

"Living history" demonstrations by Game and Parks Commission people show how feller was originally pressed from tall apple harvests at Nebraska City's Arbor Lodge. A blacksmith still stokes up the forge occasionally at Fort Kearny, and the ruts those horses and wagon trains created are embedded in the earth at Rock Creek Station.

With reconstructed log barracks and early infantry uniforms worn by park personnel, forts like Hartuff and Atkinson that were built to protect pioneers now help set the stage for Nebraska's past. The eight Historical Parks are open to summer visitors for a seasonal $5 State Park permit, or a $2 per day entry charge for each park.

Technique to improve body's movements highlighted on NETV

Lincolnton Marj Barstow, who is in her 80's, is an internationally recognized teacher of the Alexander Technique, a method of physical reeducation used to help restore natural body movement and posture habits.

On Monday, August 2, at 7 p.m., the Nebraska ETN Network will air a special edition of THE GRAND GENERATION, "Moving Naturally...A Profile of Marj Barstow"

Barstow moved to Lincoln around 1900. In the 1920's she moved to New York, where she studied dance with some of Isadora Duncan's students. There she read about F. M. Alexander, an English actor who had discovered a way to help people rediscover a natural sense of body movement.

She set sail for England and became a member of Alexander's first teacher training class—a class with only eight students. Alexander had discovered that we make slight, almost imperceptible, movements which serve no purpose. When they become habits, these movements begin to sap the body's natural vitality, producing an assortment of aches, pains and ailments.

After years of giving private lessons in Boston and New York, Barstow returned to Lincoln. Much of her time is still devoted to holding workshops on the technique across the country, often for professionals in the performing arts.

The technique emphasizes the interrelatedness of the mind and the body. "I think Alexander's discovery proves very definitely that if we are busy with what we might call mental things—long hours of study or concentration on work to be done for example—there is a physical reaction that goes along with that. And in many cases our physical reaction is also linked with habits of body use that can interfere with the quality of our thinking," she said.

Although many of Barstow's students are professionals who work in the performing arts, she stresses that the Alexander Technique is also helpful to people who want to improve performance of daily tasks, such as housekeeping or office work.

"By changing the relationship of the head to the body, unnecessary tension becomes released and we can come as near to our own freedom and flexibility as can be," Barstow said.

The program repeats on Saturday, August 7, at 1 p.m., on all stations of the Nebraska Educational Television Network.

Changes must be reported

People in the area who receive supplemental security income (SSI) payments have responsibility to report any change in their circumstances which could affect the amount of their payment according to Dale Branch, Social Security district manager in Norfolk.

- Not only must the reports be made, but it is very important that they be made as soon as possible after a person knows something has occurred, Branch said. Late reports can result in overpayments, which must be repaid, and they can also result in a penalty.
- People getting SSI must report:
 - Moving or change in address
 - Any change in the household—someone moves into or out of the home
 - Entering or leaving an institution
 - Improvement of a blind or disabled person's condition
 - Leaving the United States for 30 days or more
 - Any change in income
 - Any change in resources owned
 - A drug addict or alcoholic stops treatment

Someone should report for a person who cannot manage his or her funds or if a person dies. Although SSI is administered by Social Security, money to make SSI payments comes from Federal general revenues, not from Social Security taxes. More information about SSI reporting responsibilities can be obtained at the Norfolk Social Security office, located at 1310 Norfolk Avenue, Norfolk NE. The telephone number is 1-800-642-8310.
