Paving district recommended

By a 62 vote, with one member absent, the Wayne Planning Commission voted to recommend to the city council that an improvement district for paving be set up for the proposed Western Heights Second Addition.

The recommendation was made Monday night with developer Jim Coan present during the meeting.

The recommendation is for a paving improvement district to be set up for the West 3rd Avenue extension from Oak drive to the fairgrounds property, as well as for the two streets in the proposed subdivision, Pine Street and Emerald Drive.

Voting against the recommendation were Kent Hall and Ron Sladek with Robert Meyer absent from Monday night's session. The commission was mainly concerned with whether or not to recommend that West 3rd Avenue's paving should extend past Pine Street.

Planning member Hall said he felt that by not paving past Pine Street, the end result would be more appealing and would also save money by having gravel run for about 218 feet to the dead end rather than paving up to the fairgrounds property.

Other considerations the commission reviewed included the width of the proposed West 3rd Avenue extension. Currently the city's comprehensive plan calls for West 3rd Avenue to eventually be a collector street. A collector requires widths of 70 feet of right of way and 40 feet of paving.

The comprehensive plan also includes for the avenue to run through the fairgrounds property and connect with the county road West of the property in the future.

Most commissioners agreed that the avenue should probably be installed as a local street instead of a collector, doubting if the extra width would be needed in the area in the future.

A local street calls for widths of 60 feet of right of way and about 31 feet of paving.

A problem involved with extending the paving to the fairgrounds property also involves property owned by Joe Dorcay. Part of his property extends into what would be the right of way for the local street on the North side near the fairgrounds property line.

It was reported Monday night that Dorcay might consider exchanging the piece of property for paving, however the commission felt it would be up to the city council to decide how the situation should be handled.

The recommendation will be reviewed by the Wayne City Council during their Aug. 10 meeting. The recommendation is only for setting up a paving improvement district for the subdivision with an extension of West 3rd Avenue to the fairgrounds property.

The commission did not recommend whether or not an improvement district should be set up in the area for utilities such as storm and sanitary sewers.

In Wayne, city subdivision regulations allow for either the developer or the city, if council agrees, to provide the financing method for the paving.

According to reports Monday night, the city has previously agreed to provide improvement districts for two past subdivisions. For a third subdivision, the developers were responsible for financing and installation of the paving.

An improvement district generally allows for a lower financing interest rate. Assessments are made on the property taxes for eventual payment of the project. When the project is handled by the developer alone, the cost of the paving is generally reflected in higher lot cost to the buyer of the property.

The Western Heights Second Addition preliminary plat has received approval from both the city's Planning Commission and the City Council. It is expected, that if the council agrees to set up a paving district for the area during the August 10 meeting, a final plat will be filed with the city later this month for final review by the commission, and the council.

Beating the heat

WITH TEMPERATURES hovering in the 90's over the Northeastern part of the state, nothing felt quite as good as a cool dip in the Wayne pool this week. Cloudy skies brought some relief to the area at mid-week however temperatures are expected to remain high the remainder of the week.

Something for everyone during this year's annual county fair

Where can you see a La Mancha goal or a sunflower with the largest head or even 23 different types of pickles? At the 1982 Wayne County Fair — of course!

Manager of the fair, Marilyn Koch, said on Tuesday that it appears, overall, there will be even more exhibits than during the fair last summer. "Some classes will probably be down a little," he said, "but we're expecting more, in total numbers, than last year."

The fair kicks off on Thursday morning with the entries coming in at 8 a.m. Exhibits will be judged in the 4-H building, beginning at noon.

Animal judging will begin about 1 p.m. with the 4-H and open class dairy; judging of rabbits, poultry and pigeons and the judging of 4-H horses.

Open class economics projects will be judged at 3 p.m. and all exhibits and booths will be open to the public at 6 p.m.

The Northeast Nebraska Feeders Association queen's coronation will be at 7 p.m. and at about 7:30 p.m. on Thursday evening the mini-rod tractor pull will be held.

The judging of 4-H and open class hogs and sheep will be the first events on Friday, beginning at 8 a.m. At 9 a.m., 4-H and open class goats will be judged.

From 10 a.m. to noon, free rides will be available for the handicapped at the Midway. Again this year the midway will be operated by Spooner Amusements.

"They are really a great bunch of people," Koch said. "Last year was the first year for the free rides for the handicapped people which was the company's idea. They aren't just coming to the fair to pull dollars out, they really are interested in providing good entertainment for everyone in the county."

At noon on Friday, judging of the 4-H beef class will begin and, at 12:30 p.m., judging in the open class for horses will start.

The Friday evening events will be kicked off with the big barbecue at 6 p.m.

Koch said this year donations of in the neighborhood of $5,000 have been received.

"Of course that doesn't even count all the donations of plates, cups, napkins and everything else it takes to put on the barbecue."

"It's not us, the fair management or board, that puts on the fair each year. It couldn't be done without the cooperation of people in the whole county," Koch said. "Like during the barbecue — people feel it is a real pleasure to come out. It's that sort of feeling that makes for a very good fair, year after year."

For the barbecue this year, the 800 lbs. of beef and 800 lbs. of pork will be cooked in propane gas cookers instead of in the pits as in previous years.

"We expect there will be no taste difference and, of course, it's not going to take nearly as long to prepare and cook," he said.

Add to the 1,400 lbs. of meat about 110 lbs. of potato chips and 100 gallons of beans and you have enough food for an army of people. Last year Koch estimated 3,500 to 4,000 people enjoyed the barbecue.

Following the barbecue, at 7:30 p.m. there will be the 4-H livestock parade and at 8:15 p.m. the Pioneer farm awards will be presented to three Wayne County farm owners.

At 8:30 p.m. featured entertainment for the evening will be the Tommy Cash show, scheduled in the Grand Stand area. Saturday's events begin with the market hog show at 8 a.m. followed by the open class beef judging at 9 a.m. and the judging of draft horses at 10 a.m.

Afternoon events for Saturday include the horseshoe pitching at 1 p.m. and the tractor pull at 1:30 p.m.

On Saturday evening there will be a sanctioned pickup pull at 7:30 p.m.

For Sunday, events begin at 2 p.m. with the 4-H pen of three market beef show. At 4 p.m. the 4-H livestock bonus auction show begins.

The demolition derby will be held Sunday evening at 7 p.m.

Interim post filled at WSC

Wayne State College President Dr. Ed Elliott recently announced the appointment of Ron Jones as interim athletic director and head of the health, physical education and recreation (HPER) division, effective Monday, Aug. 16.

Jones replaced Dr. John Merriman, who is stepping down from those duties to return to full-time teaching. Elliott mentioned that a "coordinator of academic programs" will be named in the near future to assist Jones.

"I am pleased that we have a person of Ron's ability to step into this interim situation," Elliott said. "I know that he will have the full support from people across the campus and throughout the community."

"He has an excellent background in athletics as a player and as a coach, and he has the preparation in his academic area to continue to move the division forward with its wide range of academic programs," Elliott said.

The 41-year-old Jones is a native of Farmington, Iowa and attended Cedar Valley High School. He attended junior college in Ft. Dodge, Iowa and was a two-year letter-winner in both basketball and baseball.

After transferring to Wayne State, Jones added two more letters each in basketball and baseball. He was captain of both the baseball and basketball teams during his senior year, and was the school's "Most Valuable Player" in both sports that year. He was all-district and NAIA All-American (honorable mention) in basketball his senior year.

Jones received his bachelor's degree from WSC in 1963. That fall he undertook a graduate assistantship at WSC and served as freshman men's basketball coach. He spent the next three years at Osage

High School in Iowa where he taught physical education and served as head baseball and basketball coach as well as assistant football and track coach.

After gaining his master's degree from WSC in 1966, he joined the Wayne State physical education staff in the fall of 1967. He began as assistant coach in both baseball and basketball.

He became head men's basketball coach in the fall of 1967. He began as assistant coach in both baseball and basketball.

He became head men's basketball coach in the fall of 1969, and served in that capacity for four years, compiling a 53-46 mark. He took a leave of absence during the 1974-75 academic year to begin doctoral work at the University of Kansas.

He became head baseball coach in 1978 and has held that position ever since, except for the 1979 season when he again took a leave of absence. His career baseball coaching mark stands at 81-79. His last three WSC squads have been the district title finalists, including taking the district title last season and earning a spot in the NAIA Area III tourney.

Jones said "This appointment is a real challenge, and it is something I look forward to. I'm just beginning my 16th year at Wayne State College, and I have a lot of pride in and loyalty to this institution. 'I've seen Wayne State's ups and downs through the years, and I see us now headed for the up cycle. I am happy to be a part of it. I am entering this challenge enthusiastically. I don't look upon it as a one-year appointment and therefore as a time to take it easy — I want to make our division as well as our athletic program a viable one."

Ron and his wife, Karen, have four children: Brielle, 8; Britney, 6; Brystal, 2; and Brandon, 11 months.

Dr. Elliott noted that the search for a permanent athletic director and division head will begin early this fall with the selection occurring late winter or early spring and the hiring date effective not prior to July 1, 1983.

Projects and changes in 4-H events are reviewed by superintendent

There will be some new things and some changes along with the annual variety of projects, booths, shows, rides and special events at this summer's Wayne County Fair which begins today (Thursday).

Extension agent Don Spitzer, who is the 4-H superintendent for the fair, highlighted some of the events and explained what type of information is available for those attending the fair.

"There will be some changes in the cards the 4-H'ers have with their livestock," Spitzer said. "These cards provide all kinds of information about the project and the 4-H'er."

The cards will tell what breed the animal is along with the date it was born and who it is owned by. They also show who the animal was bred by if different from the owner.

"This year, for the beef, if the animal was raised in the county, it will have a green sticker attached to the card indicating it is home raised beef," Spitzer said.

He explained part of the reason for the fair is to highlight what is being raised in the county. The green stickers will indicate to those attending the fair the amount and type of beef being raised in Wayne County. The animals rate-of-gain is also shown on the cards. These calculations are made by weighing market steers in December and sheep in May, then calculating the difference with what the animals weigh at fair time.

An optional program for the rate-of-gain for hogs began last year. The animals are weighed when they are around 40 lbs. and again at fair time.

A gold star on the cards will indicate a progeny award for the 4-H'ers. Spitzer said there are three ways to earn the star award but they all mean that the animal is an offspring of one shown at last year's fair. It's an experimental program this year for beef projects including cow-calf and breeding heifer projects.

In addition, 4-H'ers may earn an extra 50 percent in the premiums if the animal is raised in the county and an additional 50 percent if it is a progeny.

Cow-Calf Projects
This year, in the cow-calf projects, "just for the fun of it," Spitzer said, they will be shown in the ring and will also have their 285 day weight formula calculated.

Spitzer explained this can be valuable information for the 4-H'er. Through calculations, the projects are adjusted for better comparisons. The whole idea, Spitzer explained, will be in the end results. If the 4-H'ers come up with a cow weighing 1,000 lbs. and a calf weighing 400 lbs., that's much better than say a cow weighing 1,200 lbs. and a calf weighing 400 lbs. because of the feed used for the cow.

He said through this new exercise, the 4-H'ers will be raising better projects at a better cost.

Showmanship
4-H'ers will also be competing for showmanship awards in the livestock classes. These awards are given in three areas: senior, intermediate and junior. They are based on not only the appearance of the animal but the awards are also given for the way the animal is shown to the judge, the appearance of the 4-H'er and their sportsman like manner while showing.

Pens-Of-Three
A project designed exclusively for Wayne County 4-H members by Spitzer, Gus Krack and Vernon Krause, is for the pens of three market beef. "The project is designed for different age and experience levels of the 4-H'ers," Spitzer said. "A very detailed program must be followed in order to provide experience so the member learns how to select and feed market beef to be sold for maximum profit."

The program involves the use of a computer and lots of information supplied by the members. The members estimate what their projects will sell for back in January and, at fair time, a buyer from a meat packing company places an appraised value on each of the pens.

The computer printouts show the members what it cost to produce their pens of three and what variables can be changed to allow for maximum profit. Suggestions are made to the members how to improve their skills and, as an option part of the program, the animals may be sent to the Norfolk packing house for slaughter. Carcass information will be supplied to the 4-H member and they are given the chance to examine the carcass if they wish.

All in all, those attending the fair may not realize all of the information that must be supplied to judges by those involved in 4-H. What they see is the end result of a year's worth of learning and work on the part of the 4-H'ers.

Republican get-together

An informal get-together sponsored by the Republican precinct committee members in Springsbank, Galena II and Otter Creek precincts, will be held Tuesday, Aug. 10, from 7 to 10 p.m.

All Republicans and other interested persons are invited to attend the get-together at the Senior Citizens Center in Allen. The entrance to the center is off the alley back of the Farmers Cafe. The program, conducted by County GOP Chairman John Kingsbury, will be brief and informative. Questions and concerns will be discussed and answered. Financial concerns also will be discussed and contributions will be accepted. County Republican candidates have been invited to attend.

Coffee, iced tea and cookies will be served.

For more information, contact Merle Von Minden, Kathy Boswell, Dwight Gotch, Vicki Hingst or Cliff Rasmusen.

Tractor driving contest set

The Allen High School FFA Chapter is planning a tractor driving contest behind the Allen school house at 6 o'clock tonight (Thursday). A barbecue will follow.

Courthouse will be closed

The Wayne County Courthouse will be closed Friday afternoon, Aug. 6, beginning at noon to allow county employees to attend the fair.

Correction

In the Aug. 2 issue of The Wayne Herald, William Finn was incorrectly reported as dying at his home July 30. The services pending notice should have been for Warren Finn, who died at home Friday evening. A complete obituary for Mr. Finn is included in this issue.

police report

A loud party early Sunday morning resulted in the arrest of one subject for disturbing the peace. A total of three calls, concerning the disturbance, were made to police. Subjects were advised to quiet down and turn down the stereo on the first report; they were advised to move inside on the second call and the third time the arrest was made, when loud music and people screaming outside were cause for action.

The alarm sounded at the State National Bank on Sunday, but police checked the building and found everything to be clear.

A purse and billfold belonging to a Wayne woman were found by officials in Pierce and returned to the owner.

A complaint was made of a car which was illegally parked on Second Avenue and police rescued a small dog which was stuck in the gutter at 7th and Logan Streets.

Two witnesses also reported an attempted hit-and-run of a man who was walking on the street by the corner of Fairgrounds Avenue. A pickup with an out-of-county license plate was identified as being involved.

First time members appointed to city boards

Several residents of Wayne have recently accepted appointments to city boards and commissions. What follows is information about the new members and their comments concerning their new civic appointments.

Margaret Lundstrom, a 24-year resident of Wayne, was recently appointed as a new member to the Library Board. The board, which deals with the policies and budgets of Wayne's Public Library had members appointed by Mayor Wayne Marsh at a council meeting held in July.

She has been a teacher at Wayne State, and is presently a part time math instructor for the college. She served on the Wayne High school board for six years, beginning in 1972. Mrs. Lundstrom is also a member of the PEO organization.

Margaret's husband, Max, is the Dean of Students for Wayne State and they have two daughters. Elaine, who is married and lives in Des Moines, is a social worker for Lutheran Social Services. Their daughter, Marjle, is employed as a feature writer for the Denver Post. The Lundstroms are originally from Kansas and lived in Springfield, Mo. for one and a half years.

Randy Pedersen, owner and manager of the Diamond Center in Wayne, was selected as a new appointee to the Wayne State College Community Board.

Pedersen, who has lived in Wayne for four years, was previously a store manager for Zale's Jewelry in Grand Island and in Omaha. He moved to Wayne and purchased the Diamond Center in 1978.

He is currently the President elect of the Wayne Chamber of Commerce and serves on the board. He is also on the Second Guessers board of directors and was recently elected to the N.F.S.D. Jeweler's Association board of directors.

Pedersen sees his new appointment as a chance to promote and recruit students to attend Wayne State College through city funded programs.

He and his wife, Rozan, have one son, Joel.

Cliff Ginn was also a new appointee to the College Community Board and will serve a one year term.

Ginn, who has lived in Wayne for 14 years is presently the head of the college's Social Science department at Wayne State. He has served in this position for two years and teaches half time. As an Associate Professor of Political Science, he taught full time for several years.

Ginn sees the board as a chance for better relations and communication between college personnel and people in the community. It will also deal with promotion of the college through advertising and recruitment of new students.

Before coming to Wayne, Ginn was in the Air Force and travelled to many parts of the United States. He and his wife, Toni, have five children: Rick, who lives and works in Lincoln; Mike, who is married and lives in Lincoln; and Tom, who attends Nebraska-Westaway in Lincoln. They also have two daughters, Mary Ann Lull and Teresa Kay, both of Wayne.

Becky Keidel, manager of the Hallmark Department at Sav Mor and The Loft in Wayne, was also recently appointed to the College Community Board by Mayor Wayne Marsh.

Keidel, who also manages the Hallmark Card and Gift Shop in Denison, Iowa, purchased Sav Mor with her husband in 1971. She was a part time English teacher at Wayne State for five years until she became more involved with the business. She is also a member of the Wayne Hospital Foundation Board and is presently on the Wayne High School Board. The Keidels have lived in Wayne since 1967.

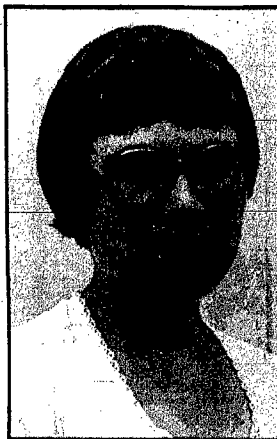

Keidel, who was a 1967 graduate from Wayne State, sees the position as an opportunity to create a better mind set between people of the community and college students. She hopes that the board will work on relations between both parties and try to prevent separation of college people from those in the community.

Becky and her husband, Dick, have two children. Jeff is 15 years old and Bethany is 12.

Cornell Runestad, Director of Choral Activities at Wayne State College, was another new appointee to the College Community Board at a recent city council meeting.

Runestad, a graduate of the University of Illinois, came to Wayne in 1970 where he began his teaching. He is the former head of the Division of Fine Arts and held the position from 1973 to 1980.

Runestad's present position as Director of Choral Activities at Wayne State, involves regular choir classes at the college and many guest conducting jobs. He also helps with district and conference choral clinics in the area and has served as guest conductor for the Nebraska All-State choir. Some of Runestad's highlights have been an International Music Camp in Canada and he just returned from conducting a group of 4,000 at Birmidji University in Minnesota.

Robert Ensz

Runestad sees the board as an organization which can be mutually beneficial to both the college and the community. They will act on matters of common concern to Wayne State College, such as promotion and recruitment.

Runestad and his wife, Diana, have two sons. Kurt is age 14 and Eric is 11. They have lived in Wayne for about 12 years.

Robert Ensz, who was also a new appointee to the board, is a lawyer with the Olds, Swarts and Ensz law firm in Wayne.

He attended school at the University of Nebraska Lincoln and graduated with a Bachelor's degree in 1968. He graduated from law school in 1973 and served as legal counsel for the Nebraska Department of Agriculture in Lincoln for four years. Ensz came to Wayne in 1977 and has been with the legal firm ever since.

Ensz is also taught college classes in business law and finance. He is a member of Second Guessers and also a former president of the organization. He is currently the president of Wayne's Chamber of Commerce.

Ensz is planning, as a new board member, to see that the funds set aside for the board's work are used to provide the best promotion and recruitment possible. He feels that the board has a tremendous purpose and hopes that all college and community relations will improve.

He and his wife, Debbie, who is a Wayne native, have three children. The eldest, Susie, is seven years old, David is age three and Jeffrey, a recent arrival in June, is almost two months old.

Housing Authority

Willard Blecke, a long time resident of Wayne County, was recently appointed to the Housing Authority by Mayor Wayne Marsh.

Blecke, a retired farmer, is well known as the former owner of Farmer's Cash Market which was located south of Wayne. After five years of operating the market, Blecke proceeded to build a hog operation. He sold the business in 1972 and moved into town that same year. Blecke and his wife also operated the roller skating rink in Wayne from 1957 to 1966.

Blecke and his wife, Joy, have three children. Gary, who lives south of Wayne and will soon be moving to Missouri; Ronald, who lives in Kansas City; and their daughter, Carol, who is now Mrs. John Messersmith, lives in Columbus.

The housing authority is responsible for proposed contracts and housing projects in the area. Blecke will serve a five year term.

Board of Adjustment

Thomas R. Jones, current postmaster in Wayne, was appointed to the Board of Adjustment at a recent city council meeting. Jones, who has been postmaster since January of this year, has been with the postal service for 22 years.

He began in Nortfolk as a substitute carrier and became a full-time city carrier. He was later transferred to North Platte, where he was made superintendent of delivery and collection. Jones was also made officer in charge of the mail distribution center at Alliance. Before coming to Wayne, he was the acting supervisor of postal operations in Ogallala. Jones has attended postal academies in Los Angeles, Chicago and Washington, D.C.

Jones' father was an army chaplain and the family travelled a lot. He attended 19 different schools before he graduated from high school. He also attended Stanford University.

Jones' wife, Winnie, is a graduate of Wayne State College and has taught lower elementary classes in public schools for 29 years. They have one daughter, Judy, who is married and lives in Virginia.

Jones has worked before with a planning commission in North Platte and he hopes that his experience will be helpful on the Board of Adjustment. The board deals with zoning ordinances and making them practical for all individuals involved.

Planning Commission

Kent Hall, owner and manager of the Wayne Greenhouse was recently appointed as a new member to the Planning Commission. The greenhouse, which has been in operation for 40 years, was inherited by Hall and he has been running it ever since.

Hall, who was on the planning commission back in 1968, has a past background in city government. He was a member of the city council from 1962 to 1966 and was mayor of Wayne from 1970 to 1974. The long-time florist is also a member of Kiwanis.

Hall's term will be three years and will consist of research into building projects. He emphasized the fact that the commission centers on making recommendations for the community and is not centered on the individual. Alterations can be made by the commission, but the city council must accept and approve all recommendations.

Hall and his wife, Lois, have four children. Steve, who lives in California; Lori, who lives in Minneapolis; and LouAnn and Scott, who are both living in Wayne.

Paul Peterson, manager of Kuhn's Department Store, was also a new appointee to the Planning Commission at a recent city council meeting. Peterson, who has been in Wayne since 1978, was with the department store previously, but left in 1961.

Budget stays the same

The 1982-83 budget for the Win side Public school system will remain at $868,430, the same level it was for the 1981-82 school year, according to Superintendent Don Leighton.

The tax request, however, will go up about $92,613, due to several factors including the Class I school district court case, which the Wayne Carroll school system is currently involved in.

According to Leighton, the Win side system has not received about $31,500 in non-resident tuition from the last school year.

Another factor involved in the tax request hike is the loss of $26,000 in property tax relief, the result of a new law in effect on the 1982-83 school year.

Leighton also said that this year, a surplus cash balance was used to lower taxes by $68,000 which will be available this year.

The total tax request is $550,058, the same amount requested during the 1979-80 school year.

The budget categorical breakdown, which shows the general areas where funding cuts were made or where modest increases were approved, is as follows:

	81-82	82-83
Instruction	$503,080	$522,825
Pupil Support Program	21,821	21,813
Instructional Support	11,402	13,671

Common problems with money

What are some of the common errors people make with their money? Many people fail to define their goals, says Kathy Prochaska-Cue, University of Nebraska extension family economics specialist. Everyone should define short, intermediate and long-term goals and revise them as necessary.

Others fail to follow through on their goals.

"As time goes on, we have two options for reaching our goals. It takes time, effort and will power to make goals a reality," she says.

Beyond goals, other common mistakes people make with money include:

- Not knowing how money is spent.
- Not having a will can be expected to increase estate settlement costs.
- Relying too much on professionals or not getting advice from qualified people—failure to adequately use professional advice is a common financial error.
- Not having current investment knowledge. Investment options change with time.
- Failure to communicate about money. Everyone in the family should be encouraged to talk about money.

- Inertia and laziness—failure to update financial strategies, such as transferring savings from low-paying accounts to higher-earning certificates costs consumers money.
- Not planning for retirement—it's never too soon to start.
- Overextending credit—not knowing and controlling total indebtedness costs money in interest paid.
- Failure to plan for big-ticket items such as furniture replacement or college education expenses.

- Exaggerated expectations—failing to separate wants from needs can put the best financial plans in jeopardy.
- Not keeping careful records—and then not using them for planning purposes.
- Failure to actively practice legitimate tax avoidance—either find out for yourself or hire someone to do it for you.
- Not maximizing employment opportunities—"staying put" rather than actively seeking better opportunities, if available, can be costly.

JEFF SHERER (top photo) looks like a cloud of dust as he slides safely into home plate. A Schuyler player is put out at second base after he forgot to tag up on a caught line drive. Catcher Randy Gamble threw to Jeff Jorgensen for the out as Kevin Maly and Jeff Sherer back him up.

Midgets are bound for state tourney at O'Neill

The thought crossed Hank Overin's mind at least once this past week that the superstitious number 13 could plague him in 1982.

Last year was the 13th year that Overin coached at least one American Legion state qualifier. On three or four occasions, his Midget and Legion teams qualified in the same season.

But, he watched his Junior Legion team fail last week in its bid for a state berth. That left his successful Midget team to carry the load. The Midgets held a 1-0 lead in the third inning but Schuyler had bases loaded and threatened to score with only one out. The game ended up in a 20-0 whitewashing with Overin's son throwing a one hit shutout.

A good defensive catch and incorrect call may have been the loose rock which started the avalanche. With bases loaded, Schuyler's Jay Berry pounded a line drive. Wayne shortstop Jeff Jorgensen snagged the line shot and threw to third base hoping to catch the base runner who was off of base.

The ball sailed over third baseman Rick Nelson and the runner, Mike Draper, tagged out and headed home to score. The throw home was too late.

Don Zrust scurried from second base to third but, fortunately for Wayne, forgot to tag up. Wayne's defense noticed the mistake and catcher Randy Gamble fired to Jorgensen who stepped on second base forcing Zrust out to end the inning.

An umpire's call ruled that the run didn't score because of the force out at second. According to Overin and home plate umpire Robbie Jacobsen, the run should have counted. No appeal was made by Schuyler on the call.

Overin could relax at least a little bit by the end of the fourth inning. His team blew the game open with nine runs in the top of the fourth.

Jeff Sherer walked to start things off and Don Larsen drove him home with his second double of the game. Jorgensen drilled a base hit to bring home Larsen and Jon McCright came in to pinch run for Jorgensen. McCright stole second base and moved to third on an overthrow of second by the catcher. Kevin Maly singled with two outs to drive in McCright for the first run of a seven-run, two-out rally.

Maly stole second and scored on a single by Chris Wieseler. After he stole second base, a hit by Steve Overin scored Wieseler. Gamble rapped a base hit and Overin scored on an error by the centerfielder.

Nelson, who was 2-for-3 in the game, slugged a two-run single to bring home Sherer and Larsen who had walked. On a delay steal play by Nelson, Larsen scored on a bad throw. Larsen's run made the score 10-0.

Wayne shelled Schuyler with 10 more runs in the fifth inning to turn the championship game into an embarrassment.

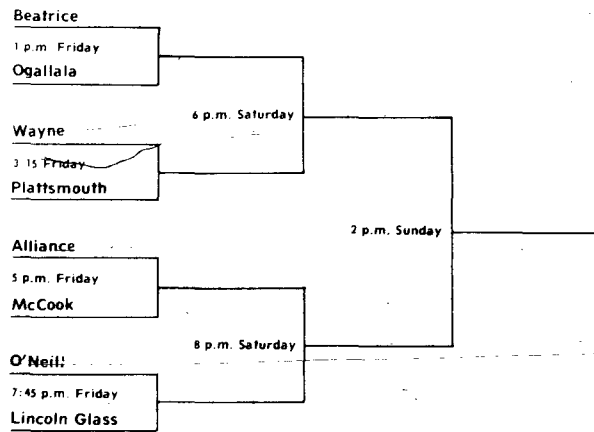

Pete Warne led-off with a base hit, Maly walked and Overin double in two runs. Gamble singled in Overin. Larsen walked and Nelson drove in two runs with a single. Jorgensen walked, Dan Gross singled in a run. Pat Melena singled, Overin reached base on an error and Darrin Barner singled to round out the action.

Overin had one of his sharpest pitching performances of the season. Utilizing his fastball, he fired a one-hitter and struck out nine batters in the five inning game.

"We played a relaxed ball game and Schuyler got tense. A lot of the balls we hit looked like they could have been caught with 100 percent effort," Overin said. "Schuyler proved by beating O'Neill (in first round tourney play) that they're a good team."

"We thought this was going to be a rebuilding year and didn't expect to make it through the area tournament," Overin continued. "Some of the strongest baseball in the state is played in northeast Nebraska."

Wayne snatches Tri-County championship title

BRANDL of Laurel is forced out at first base as Wayne's first baseman stretches for the throw.

The Tri-County League East Division title was decided Sunday night as Wayne protected its first place hold with a 5-1 win over runner up Laurel.

Pitcher Darrell Mueller making his final appearance in a Wayne uniform, went out in style. The tall, lanky left-hander retired 16 Laurel batters on strikeouts and limited the hosts to four base hits.

Mueller moved to Yankton last month and had asked to be paid to drive to any of Wayne's games. Wayne's Town Team decided not to pay him to pitch in the playoffs which begin this week. The top three teams in each division—Wayne, Claiming the East Division title was only one step for the Wayne team. The locals were scheduled to host West Division champion O'Neill last night (Wednesday) for the regular season championship.

In Sunday's victory over Laurel, Mueller helped his own cause with the biggest hit of the ball game when he drilled a three-run home run in the second inning.

Mike Meyer opened the inning with a walk and designated runner Mark Gansbom took his place. Tim Pfeiffer singled and Mueller cracked his two-out, three-run shot over the right field fence.

Brian Johnson rattled in the third inning when he fanned one out of the ball park for a solo home run. Unfortunately for the home crowd, that ended the scoring for the explosive hosts.

DARRELL MUELLER receives congratulations from his teammates after smacking a homer.

Wayne added a run in the fourth. Meyer led-off with a single and designated runner Gansbom scored when Pfeiffer and Jeff Dion both reached base on errors by Laurel infielders.

The final score came on a solo homer by Dion to lead-off the ninth inning. Rocky Thompson then relieved starter Jeff Creamer who allowed six base hits in eight complete innings.

Wayne's seven hits were spread among seven players. Jeff Zetas, Gansbom, Meyer, Pfeiffer and Joel Antony had one single apiece while Dion and Mueller added the homers. For Laurel, George Schroeder had half of the home team's hits. Brian Johnson had a homer and Dan Erwin singled.

Wayne finished the regular season with a 14-7 record. Two losses were to Hartington and one was to Bloomfield. Laurel finished at 14-5 with two losses to Wayne-Crofton and Hartington tied for third at 12-7. O'Neill and Norfolk tied at 14-5 in the West Division as O'Neill was given the title based on head-to-head performances.

Eight teams opened post-season play last night in single elimination competition for the two remaining playoff spots in the Tri-County tourney. Wednesday's winners will play on Friday and advance to the eight-team, double-elimination playoffs scheduled to begin Aug. 8.

The top five seeds in the playoffs are: 1. Wayne, 2. O'Neill, 3. Laurel, 4. Norfolk, 5. Crofton.

Wayne wins three titles

Wayne earned two first place titles and shared another in Ralph Bishop League baseball and softball competition this past season. Wakefield won two championships, Wisner won one and Winside tied for one.

Wayne won the 15 and under girls softball title over runnerup Wakefield and the Pony League baseball title over Wisner. Wayne and Winside tied for top honors in 13 and under girls softball.

Wakefield won both the Legion and Midget baseball championships with Wayne second in the Midget division. Little League baseball was won by Wisner with Wayne finishing second.

Wildcat basketball camp near

The annual Wayne State College Wildcat basketball camp is scheduled Aug. 9, 10, 11, 12 and 13 at WSC's Rice Auditorium. The morning session will begin at 9:30 a.m. each day and is scheduled for boys in grades 5-9.

The afternoon session begins at 1 p.m. and is open for girls in grades 5-12. Cost for the day camp is $25 per person.

Entry blanks will be published in the next edition of The Wayne Herald or can be picked up at Rice Auditorium. Checks should be made out to the Wildcat Day Camp. Entry forms may be sent to WSC coach Rick Weaver or brought along on opening day of the camp.

Roberts wins consolation trophy

The Missouri Valley District Closed Tennis Tournament proved to be the high point of the season for Tom Roberts of Wayne. After suffering a loss, he came back to win the Men's B singles consolation tournament with three consecutive victories.

Roberts received a first round bye, lost 7-5, 7-6 (7-4) to top seeded Greg Allen of Omaha, defeated Jack Mallet of Council Bluffs 6-0, 6-1, topped Bill Houston of Omaha 4-6, 7-5, 6-3 and then downed Jim Engelhart of Omaha 4-6, 6-3, 6-2 in the finals.

The Missouri Valley Tennis Association encompasses the five-state area of Iowa, Kansas, Missouri, Oklahoma and Nebraska.

Women's golf tourney scheduled

The Women's Golf Tournament will be held August 10 at Wayne Country Club with all women members of the club eligible to play. A total of 54 women have registered but further registration can be made by calling Marilyn Pierson at 375-1715.

Coffee and rolls will be served, beginning at 7 a.m. that morning and a luncheon following the tournament will begin at 12:30, rather than the usual 12:00 time. Tee off times and flight lists will be posted in the clubhouse on Saturday, August 7.

Moore's win father-son tourney

Darrell Moore and son Brad claimed first place in the championship fight of the annual Father Son golf tournament held Sunday at Wakefield.

The Wayne golfers teamed up to shoot a 66 in the Texas scramble. They had a first round of 32 and second round of 34.

Benson places second at Riviera

Wakefield's Mike Benson placed second in his heat, second in the trophy dash and sixth in the A feature at Saturday's late model stock car races at Norfolk's Riviera Raceway.

On Sunday, he placed second in his heat and third in the A feature at Interstate Speedway, Jefferson, S.D.

Pre-fall bowling meeting scheduled

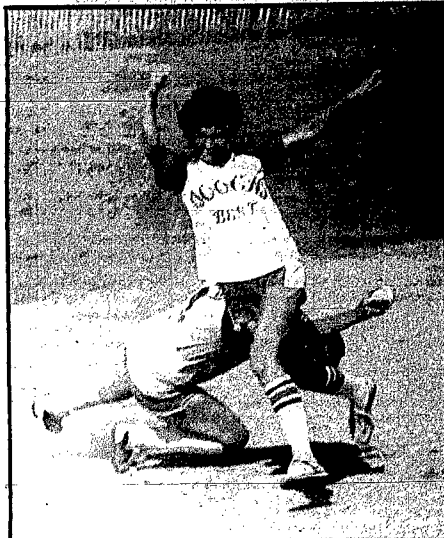

An organizational meeting will be held for all bowlers at Melodee Lanes on Wednesday, August 11 at 8 p.m. Each league will have their individual meetings to vote on rules and regulations at this time. Anyone interested in bowling is welcome to attend.

Rules committee appoints Robinson

Denny Robinson of Wayne has been appointed to represent the district on the state rules committee for Class B slow pitch softball.

Elgin eliminates Laurel's Juniors in Class C area

A nine-run rally in two innings sent Laurel's Juniors home from the Class C, Area A baseball tournament Sunday night at Wakefield. Elgin eliminated Laurel 9-7.

The Laurel Legion team, which had defeated Wakefield for the District 3 tournament championship last week, led 6-0 after four complete innings and added another run in the top of the fifth. Elgin scored four runs on five walks and two errors in the bottom of the fifth inning. With two outs in the sixth, a five-run rally made the score 9-7.

Offensive leaders for Laurel were Brian Marquardt with a run-scoring single in the second inning, Tim Bloom with a two-run single in the third and an RBI single by Marquardt again in the fifth.

Brian Marquardt and Mike Jonas handled Laurel's pitching duties. The locals out-hit Elgin 15 to 6.

Laurel, which defeated Stanton in opening round play last Friday, suffered its first loss 9-4 to Crofton on Saturday. In that game, Crofton scored six runs on six hits and four errors in the third inning.

Once-beaten Elgin edged Crofton 9-7 Monday night to force a championship rematch between the two teams on Tuesday. Crofton nipped Elgin 2-1 in 12 innings in Tuesday's title game and now advances to Class C state play.

Dave Marquardt, participating in a teen program at St. Cloud, Minn., didn't play in either ball game.

There were nine entries in the second annual draft horse pulling contest held at Wakefield on Sunday, July 25. Those entered came from Watertown, S.D., Missouri and Kansas. The event was held at the west side of the school.

In the 3,300 and under pound class Eugene Boyd of Redfield, Kan. placed first with his team Pat and Bob. The horses weighed 3,200 pounds and pulled 4,500 pounds 22 feet, five inches.

Second place went to Roy Schuchard of Watertown. His team Price and Dick, weighed 3,280 pounds and pulled 4,300 pounds 18 feet, five inches.

Harold Wilkenson Jr. of Corning, Iowa was third with his team Bob and Bird weighing 3,200 pounds. Billie Wimer of Grant City, Mo. placed fourth with his team, Rod and Mack, weighing 3,220 pounds.

Schuchard won the 3,301 and over pound class. His team, Mike and Dan weighing 4,000 pounds, pulled 4,400 pounds 23 feet, six inches.

Buck Schaak of Watertown was the second place winner. His team, Tony and Jim, weighed 3,800 pounds and Schuchard's team, Prince and Charley, won third place. The team weighed 3,400 pounds.

Mert Nison and Eugene Bartels were co-chairmen of the event. A $4,000 purse was given at the sanctioned pull.

Swim for Heart planned

Wayne County residents will be swimming for heart on Saturday, Aug. 7, beginning at 9:30 a.m. at the Wayne city pool, according to Swim for Heart coordinator Sherry Dobbe.

Swim for Heart is sponsored by the University of Nebraska swimming and diving team and is endorsed by the Nebraska Recreation and Parks Association, for the benefits of the American Heart Association Nebraska Affiliate.

Swimmers will compete by obtaining pledges for the number of laps they can swim in an hour.

The event emphasizes the importance of regular exercise for heart health while raising funds needed for Heart Association activities that benefit the public through research, professional and public education and community programs. Statewide heart programs include blood pressure screenings and cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) classes.

Physicals given at Allen

Physicals will be given Aug. 10 and 11 for boys and girls planning to participate in athletics at Allen Schools.

The physical for girls is scheduled at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 10 and the physical for boys is scheduled at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Aug. 11 at the office of Dr. Coe in Wakefield. A $5 fee will be collected by the coaches.

Athletes planning to take physicals should bring urine samples and a bus will leave from the school at 7 o'clock each evening. Anyone not taking a physical at the scheduled time may pick up a physical form at the school office. All students in grades 7 through 12 out for sports or physical education are required to have physicals.

Ainsworth schedules road race

The Ainsworth Fellowship of Christian Athletes is sponsoring a 10 kilometer (6.2 mile) road race at 7 p.m. on Friday, Aug. 13. The race will start and finish at the Ainsworth East City Park.

Trophies will be awarded in men's high school, open, masters 130 and over, and women's categories. All entrants will receive a jersey. Entry fee is $7 and can be sent to Dr. Melvin Campbell, 394 North Osborne, Ainsworth, 69210.

Entries will also be accepted before the race. There will also be a 2.2 mile fun run. The entry fee for the fun run is also $7 and all entrants will receive jerseys.

Winside plans coed tournament

A benefit coed softball tournament is being planned for Aug. 13, 14 and 15 at Winside. The tourney is a benefit for Barb Stenwall who suffered a broken cheek bone in a prior Winside tourney.

Entry fee is $50 and one restricted flight softball. Plans call for 16 teams in the double elimination tourney. For more information contact Bob Bowers at 286-4814 or Russ Longnecker at 286-4941.

Nevada sports line available

Effective last June the daily Nevada Baseball odds became available free of cost to sports fans around the nation every morning at 8 a.m., PDT.

This free service will also cover football, basketball and all major sporting events. The J.K. Sports Wire also offers up to the minute scores and total sports news. Call (213) 761-3300 24 hours a day.

B District title is won by Winnebago

The team that did the best job of hitting the long ball claimed the Class B District Slow Pitch Softball title Sunday as Winnebago topped the High Rollers of Walthill 11-6 in the championship game.

Nineteen teams competed in the two-day, double elimination tournament and the top three qualified for state scheduled Aug. 20, 21 and 22 at Sidney.

Winnebago finished first, the High Rollers placed second and Emerson took third place. Of the 19 teams, six were from the Wayne league.

Two of those teams, Godfathers and Star Body Shop, tied for sixth place. The TP Lounge finished tied for ninth. The other Wayne teams all lost their first two ball games.

In the championship game Winnebago scored nine runs in the final four innings. The champions also defeated Calahaus of South Sioux, TP Lounge, Waldbaum's of Wakefield and Emerson.

The High Rollers defeated Ray's Locker of Winside, lost to Waldbaum's, defeated Newells of Lyons, Star Body Shop, Alley Winery of Dakota City, Star Plating of South Sioux and Emerson.

Emerson defeated Mitchell's Construction, Sioux Plating and Alley Winery. Losses were to Winnebago and the High Rollers.

The wildest game of the tourney was Winnebago's 22-1 win over Emerson in the final game of the winners bracket. Both teams clubbed home runs as well as doobies and triples as the lead bounced back and forth between the squads.

THE HOT AND DRY weather has had its advantages this week. The sunny weather has enabled this local farmer to begin his long job of combining his oats.

Hoffman is top area finisher in Ponies of America's Show at Hoskins horse arena

The Hoskins, NE Ponies of the America's Shows were held with the show having 48 events. There was one complete show Saturday and another show Sunday. POA (Ponies of the Americas) is a breed developed for the youth. Ages of the competition, except for the halter class's, are 18 years old and younger. The POA is a type of pony that is a happy medium of a Quarter Horse and an Arabian in miniature with a height of 46 inches to 54 inches, which must have appaloosa color and characteristics. All of the ponies must be registered with the National Office to be able to compete in any POA shows. National points on the pony are awarded from the home office from the show results. People from South Dakota, Iowa and Nebraska competed in the shows. Their were 30 ponies at the show Saturday and 23 ponies at the show Sunday. SATURDAY FIRST PLACES AND AREA FINISHERS 1982 Colts: 1. Farm transportation options, costs need to be considered

Farmers need to view transportation costs and options in the same way they consider production costs in order to make the most profit, University of Nebraska grain marketing specialist Dr. Lynn Lutgen said Friday. "Just as farmers need to look at storage costs in deciding whether to sell now or in six months, they also need to consider transportation costs when deciding whether to sell locally or at a more distant market," he said. The changing role of transportation in agriculture during the past few years forces producers to reevaluate their own situations, he said. Price differentials between locations in Nebraska have arisen because of unit train rates, local demand situations and other factors that have developed in the recent past. "Timing and efficient movement of ag products to both domestic and export markets affect location, structure and profitability of farms and ranches throughout the Great Plains," Lutgen emphasized. Although vitally important, transportation is also one of the most fragile links in the food production and marketing chain. It accounts for only 8 percent of the difference between farm price and what the consumer ultimately pays, he added. "The producer of today and tomorrow will be faced with continually changing options of how, where and when to market a crop," Lutgen reiterated. Currently producers can market grain through cash sales, forward cash contracts, delayed pricing contracts or the futures market, he said. Even long prohibited trading in agricultural commodity options is now being considered, he added. In addition, innovations in the transportation industry will influence where the producer actually delivers the crop, Lutgen said, and how and when it will be sold. In the future, the availability of transportation will have a greater influence on the decision to sell grain at harvest or to store it while waiting for a better price, he said. "The producer needs to evaluate transportation costs in deciding where to sell," he emphasized. Marginal costs such as maintenance, energy and time, as well as changes in the grain industry's marginal cost structure, need to be considered. A quick way to analyze differences in transportation costs is to do a "basis" analysis of the elevators a producer might deliver to, Lutgen said. Basis is the difference between the futures market price and the local cash market price for a specific elevator at a specific time. "By comparing these basis differentials, producers can use that knowledge to determine what type of quote they would receive in relation to the distance they would have to haul to market their grain," he explained. For example, a Nebraska farmer found last spring that he could deliver corn to his local elevator three miles away for $2.17 a bushel. Forty miles down the road, another elevator was paying $2.52 per bushel delivered or would pay $2.44 if the farmer wanted the elevator to pick up the grain on his farm. This true example is dramatic, Lutgen said, but it illustrates that the basis spread between two delivery points in fairly close proximity can be quite wide. The farmer in this example could make 27 cents more a bushel by having the distant elevator pick up his grain than he could if he delivered his grain to the closer elevator. The transportation options the producer chooses will depend heavily on such price differentials, Lutgen said, as well as on fixed cost structures and the value the producer places on market flexibility. The producer has four basic options in regard to transportation, according to Lutgen who is chairman of the Great Plains Extension Transportation Task Force and a member of the national Extension Committee on Transportation. The producer can own transportation equipment, rent or lease it, use a cooperative pooling agreement with others to own or lease, or become a private grain dealer. Most producers have some form of transportation and have already incurred fixed costs related to it. But when evaluating whether to purchase more equipment, producers should do a complete cost analysis to determine if the new investment will more than pay them to haul a further distance, Lutgen said. By doing a continual market analysis, the producer can identify and analyze significant changes in the market as they occur, he added. "The producer might find that a combination of transportation alternatives will be best. It might pay to own your own equipment to haul up to 25 miles from the farm. But at different times during the year, it might be more profitable to hire a trucking firm to transport your product to a more distant terminal market," he explained.

Monica Hanson, daughter of Roy Hanson of Concord, was the top Dixon County contestant at the area 4-H livestock judging contest held July 16. She scored 525 points out of a possible 590 points. Tim Johnson, son of Lee Johnson of Dixon, was the top Dixon County junior division participant. Monica and Lee will each receive a trophy donated by the Wakefield National Bank. Both are members of the Dad's Helpers 4-H Club. Senior division ribbon placings were as follows: purple, Monica Hanson of Concord; Keith Curry of Ponca. Mike Muller and Dobi Meyer of Wakefield; blue, Derwin Roberts, Ryan Creamer, Jay Jones and Mitch Pettit of Allen; Denise Dempster and Nancy Dempster of Dixon. Mike Anderson of Wakefield; red, Alice George, Penny Dempster, and Larry Jacobsen of Dixon; Doug Olson of Concord; Brad Stewart, Steve Jones, and Jeanne Warner of Allen; Sean Neal and Lori Meyer of Wakefield. Junior division ribbon placings were as follows: purple, Tim Johnson of Dixon, Renee Plugger of Allen, Mall Anderson of Wakefield; blue, Craig Bathke, Marc Bathke, and Clinton Dempster of Dixon. Malinda Pettit of Allen; Dianne Olson of Concord; Dennis Rickett of Ponca; Keith Wenzstrand of Wakefield; Rock Mohr of Laurel. The contest included judging of beef, sheep, and swine classes, answering questions about the classes, and giving oral reasons for their placings of the market swine class. Monica Hanson, Keith Curry, Mike Muller, and Dobi Meyer will represent Dixon County at the State Fair and other judging contests. Derwin Roberts is first alternate, and Denise Dempster is second team alternate.

NEW LAWN

If any of the lawn grass around your home is new this year, keep a close eye on it through this summer.

Newly planted cool-season grasses will not have the hardness of mature grass that has weathered a couple of growing seasons.

Don't allow it to wilt excessively before watering. When a choice has to be made in watering, favor the new grass over any established sod. Shallow, frequent watering is not good; give it a good soaking when you do water.

Mowing practices also are important to new grass. Mow frequently to prevent shock and sunscald caused by cutting off too much grass at one time. And keep the mower blade sharp to avoid bruising and tearing grass blades.

Protect the grass from heavy use this first year. New grasses often thin out or are invaded by weeds, or they may be lost completely because of summer heat stress. Good management is critical at this time.

TIPS ON WATERING LAWN

Your lawn grass will use about a half inch of water per day from the upper 12 inches of soil in your yard. Coarse and sandy soils may not hold much more than 1/2 to 1 1/2 inches of water in that upper foot. Heavy soils may hold up to 3 inches.

This means lawns on sandy soils may need to be watered every other day during hot, dry weather. Lawns on heavy soils, however, may need watering only once a week.

Watering should supply sufficient moisture to wet the soil to a depth of 4 to 8 inches. That's to encourage normal root development. Light sprinkling, even if it's done more often, means most of the water is lost to evaporation and little moisture gets down to the grass roots. As a result, the roots don't grow as deep nor develop as well, and that leaves the grass even more subject to drought stress.

It is difficult to get water to soak in to the 8-inch depth in one application on heavy soils. Water until runoff occurs, then switch to another area until water is soaked in, go back and water again until runoff.

Keep up the procedure until the required amount is put on, then back off until you observe the beginning of visual drought symptoms in the grass such as gray-green color or footprints. Then repeat the cycle.

Use cans to determine how much water is being applied in terms of the number of inches per hour.

Quality of wheat seed a concern to farmers

Nebraska wheat growers have more reason than ever this year to plant certified seed, according to the Nebraska Crop Improvement Association.

With wheat scab widespread in the east and central parts of the state, farmers should be concerned about the quality of the seed available to plant the 1983 crop.

Testing laboratories are finding lower germination in combine run wheat seed, according to Larry Prentice, seed analyst with the Crop Improvement Association. However, when certified seed has been prepared for sale, germination increases of up to 20 to 30 percent have been found. In addition, the conditioned seed exhibits fewer disease symptoms, Prentice said.

Certified seed producers must always clean and condition their genetically pure seed, Prentice said. But this year for wheat seed produced in the scab-infected area many are also considering treating with a fungicide.

"Producers should have no problems with seed availability," he added. Wheat seed acreage was up nearly 10 percent in Nebraska this year, with yields ranging from 20 to 60 bushels per acre.

even in the scab-infected areas.

Seed will likely cost a little more, perhaps 10 to 20 percent or about $1 more a bushel, according to Roger Hammons, associate manager of the Crop Improvement Association. The extra labor required for the seed treatment and the fungicide account for the additional cost.

"This is a year not to try anything experimental," Hammons noted. "Observe the best cultural practices and don't put too much stress on the seed."

One such practice is timely planting, close to the optimum planting date for the area, he said. Farmers may be tempted to plant a couple of weeks ahead of the optimum date, he said, but U.S. Department of Agriculture studies suggest that later planting decreases the chance of problems related to the scab fungus.

"Long term research at the Nebraska Agricultural Experiment Station shows there's no yield advantage to planting early," Hammons added. So growers should plant near the optimum date when soil moisture is adequate for good seedling development. Harder seedlings are less susceptible to the fungus, he said.

Loss of nitrogen now showing in corn fields

Corn growers who applied nitrogen early this year may be seeing the final effects of the wet spring in their fields right now.

"Look for yellow areas, lighter green, and shorter corn. Most of this can be attributed to leaching losses and gaseous losses of nitrogen fertilizer applied preplant," said Dr. Dick Wieser, University of Nebraska extension soils specialist.

The degree of loss from excessive rainfall depends on a number of factors, Wieser said, including time of early nitrogen application, amount of N applied, the source of N used, the amount of ammonium (NH4) oxidized to nitrate (NO3), rainfall intensity, water infiltration and variable movement of water through the soil.

Fortunately, rescue treatments can still be made to assure the corn crop of adequate nitrogen, Wieser said.

Irrigators with sprinkler systems can add nitrogen in water. From 20 to 60 pounds of N applied with water could offset losses from pre-plant N application, he said.

Irrigators with gravity systems can add N in the water to assure adequate nitrogen nutrition ahead of grain-kill.

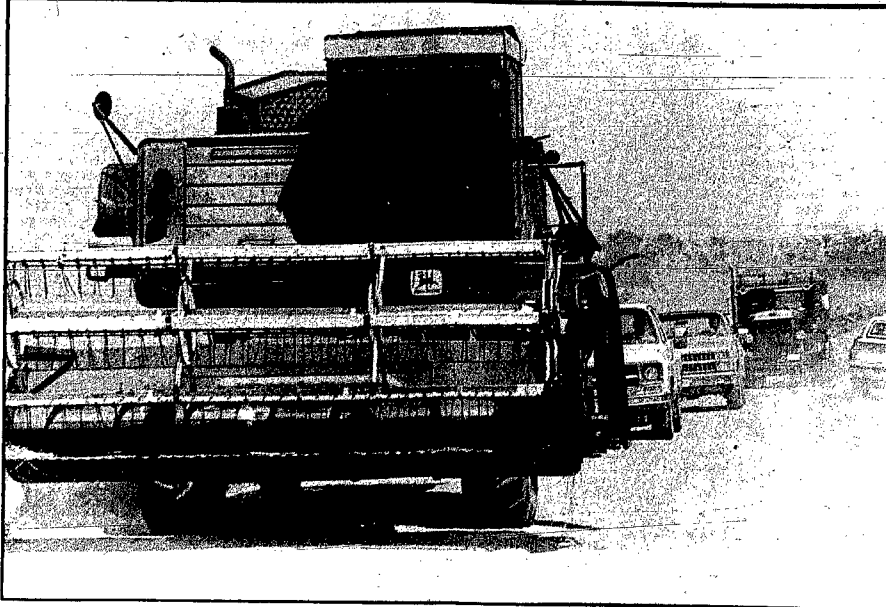

Farmers with non-irrigated fields would have to resort to high clearance ground equipment to add 40 to 60 pounds of N on the light green or yellow areas of the field.

These rescue treatments have been shown to pay off, according to Illinois research undertaken after very wet springs, Wieser noted.

Farmers should look at their corn fields closely to see if a rescue treatment is needed, he advised.

"A windshield survey isn't adequate. Corn may have normal green colored leaves on the top one-third of the plant and be yellow below. Or field edges may be normal green but the middle of the field may have yellow spots," he said.

"Look for nitrogen deficiency symptoms in the lower leaves," he emphasized. "When the lower leaves show yellow leaf tips now, it might very well pay to add additional N by whatever method is available to the grower."

Gotch meets at Land O'Lakes

Bill Gotch, representing the Farmers' Coop Elevator Co. Allen, met with top management of Land O'Lakes, Inc. this month at a special report-to-owners meeting in Fort Dodge, Iowa.

At the meeting, Land O'Lakes president, Ralph Hofstad, reported on operating conditions of the regional cooperative. Hofstad told the Land O'Lakes owners that their cooperative is suffering, along with the rest of the farm economy, from high interest rates and depressed farm prices. But Land O'Lakes continues to maintain a steady course through a program of strict cost containment. He also said the cooperative supports lobbying efforts in Washington, D.C. to tell the farmer's story to legislators.

During a question-and-answer period, Hofstad fielded questions from member-owners concerning specific programs of the cooperative including petroleum, beef sales, fertilizer and research programs.

Members also heard from Duane Halverson, Ag Services group vice president. He reported on after-merger progress in Ag Services, telling owners that more than $8 million in savings have been identified. He announced that the new trademark and brand name have been chosen and will begin appearing in the country September 1, along with a new feed program.

Storage loans changed

The U.S. Department of Agriculture will resume approval of new applications for Commodity Credit Corporation farm storage facility loans, up to a total of $40 million.

Secretary of Agriculture John R. Block said this will allow farmers to begin making their storage plans for 1982 crops. Loan disbursement will begin after Oct. 1, he said.

No storage facility loan applications made since Feb. 8 have been approved "to permit the department to review program regulations in light of changes in the legislation authorizing the program," Block said.

Now that this review has been completed, Block said the following modified requirements will apply:

— storage needs of loan applicants will be based upon the availability of storage for one year's production of wheat, feed grains or rice produced on farms participating in the acreage reduction program for those crops. The production of soybeans, dry edible beans, peanuts, sunflower seeds, high moisture forage and silage will not be considered.

— new CCC storage loans will be limited to $25,000 per farmer. Loans will be considered for one-year's storage needs and will be repayable in five years. Loans will be available for building new storage structures and for remodeling existing structures but not for electrical, handling, or drying equipment. Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation county committees may approve loans for up to seventy percent of the eligible cost items. Ineligible items which are an integral part of the structure must be paid in full before loan disbursement.

— an extended interim rule requesting comments on the new eligibility requirements will be published in the Federal Register. All comments from the public concerning the regulation will be considered before the department publishes the final rule.

Block said that producers with pending applications will be given the opportunity to revise them based upon the new program requirements.

Expenses misleading; no teeth in new law

By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent

The Lincoln Star added some grist for legislative campaigns across the state when it recently published a ranking of state senators' spending during the past fiscal year for certain types of official expenses.

The newspaper calculated senators' spending for long distance telephone calls, aides' salaries and travel, and developed a composite ranking.

At the top of the list are Sens. William Nichol of Scottsbluff, John DeCamp of Neligh, Loran Schmit of Bellwood, Gerald Koch of Ralston, Rex Haberman of Imperial, Howard Lamb of Anselmo and Karen Kilgarrin of Omaha.

At the bottom of the ranking is Sen. Larry Stoney of Omaha, who is not seeking reelection. Others, in ascending order on the list of spenders, are Sens. Harry Chromister of Schuyler, Emil Beyer of Groton, Howard Peterson of Grand Island, Ron Cope of Kearney and Jerome Warner of Waverly.

Several variables affect the amount a senator must spend to carry out his duties. Committee chairmen, for example, have greater demands for staff than other members of the Legislature. The top three on the list — Nichol, DeCamp and Schmit — each chair a standing committee.

The distance from Lincoln that a senator lives affects the amount a senator must spend on long distance tolls and in-state travel. The six Lincoln senators are bunched between sixteenth and thirty-ninth on the list.

The newspaper drew such distinctions in the story which accompanied the rankings. The distinctions, however, will no doubt be lost by the time the information makes its way to campaign speeches and brochures.

Fair or not, the expenditures and senators' ranking will be cited widely by challengers of those at the top of the list and by incumbents at the bottom of the list.

The rankings will be used to portray the incumbents as the taxpayer's best friend or his worst enemy.

DRUNK DRIVING LAW

The get-tough-with-drunk-drivers movement in the Legislature encountered a public relations problem recently with a Nebraska Supreme Court decision to release two prison inmates serving time for third offense DWI.

Until July 17, the maximum penalty for third offense DWI had been five years in prison. With the new law, the maximum became six months in county jail. The released prisoners, whose cases were on appeal, had served more than the new maximum. The courts ruled the maximum custody provision of the new law apply.

On its face, that seems to conflict with the ballyhoo during the 1982 session suggesting that the drunk driving law was being toughened. It really doesn't. Senators reduced jail time for third offense to what they considered a more realistic sentence. The new penalty is likely to reduce plea bargaining and promote uniformity in sentencing, senators figured.

The new law increases the non-jail penalty for third offense DWI, calling for permanent suspension of a convict's drivers license. The court is expected to hear oral arguments next month on the question of whether the offenders who were released from prison will lose their licenses under the new provision.

All this is of fleeting importance, as the legal system adjusts to the provisions of the new law.

But senators who are staking their reelection hopes partly on their support for the tough new DWI law are likely to have trouble explaining to constituents why the prison doors have been opened for some offenders.

In another court matter, Hall County Judge Richard Weaver ruled the license suspension portion of the law unconstitutional. It's cruel and unusual punishment, he said. The ruling is under appeal to the district court, and a lot more is likely to be said on the matter before that portion of the law is stricken.

Always needed

Voluntary service by community members is something that most cities find is a very necessary, and often mandatory, part of operation.

From the smallest of towns to the large metropolitan areas, without the support of active community members, willing to give of their time, the communities do not prosper and grow; do not continue to change in positive ways and may not be able to adequately provide for the needs of the citizens.

These needs not only reflect the leisure activities of a community, finding people to serve as game officials, sponsors and coordinators of events, but also the day to day operations of a community.

The area and its communities are fortunate in having very active citizenry. As one member said, "We are a community of 'doers', there is always something going on."

From serving on boards and commissions, both public and private, coordinating the efforts for special and annual events and keeping programs running smoothly, volunteers are responsible for seeing to it that the needs of the community are met.

Generally these voluntary acts are done without fanfare, without a lot of thanks and praise for their efforts.

We take time now, as we enter the last month of summer, to thank those people who have served through the year on city boards and commissions, on special and annual events committees, for setting up and running sporting events of all types, and many, many other projects and programs for which we all benefit.

These things could not be provided for the area and its communities without your support. Thank you!

Agreement sought

The history of the west is filled with accounts of individuals taking extreme measures to establish and protect their water rights. The privilege or right to divert water from streams for use in irrigating crops was often the difference between an abundant harvest or a crop failure — the difference between helping to contribute to a budding agricultural community or need to move on in search of other opportunity.

The principle of first-in-time, first-in-right has served as the guiding tenet in Nebraska surface water law since before the turn of the 20th Century. While modern technology has made tremendous strides in improving irrigation equipment, farm machinery, crop varieties, production and marketing techniques, these advances have only heightened the intensity of competition for use of limited water resources.

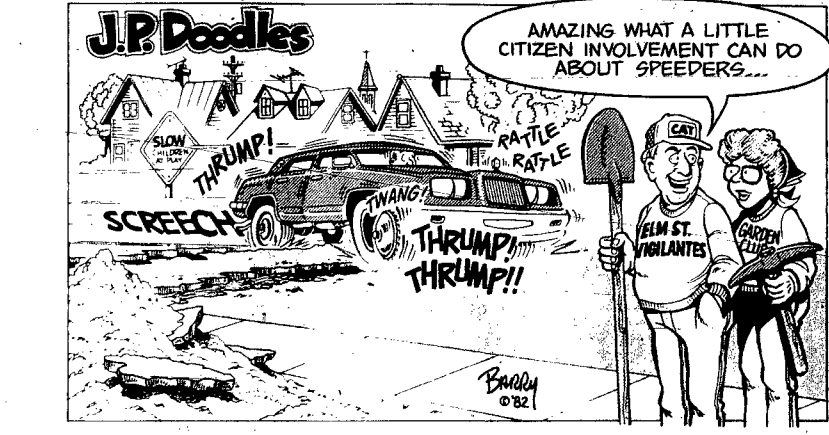

The early pioneer often found it expedient, if not necessary, to protect his water rights with a faithful Winchester. More modern times have seen the National Guard called into action to prevent the destruction of legal diversion structures. Today disputes are readily taken to the courts for resolution. While the courts continue to be a crucial part of our democratic process, the proliferation of case load, the opportunity to use the judicial system to delay action and the burgeoning of regulations by all levels of government, have resulted in very little irrigation project development during the past couple of decades. It now takes an average of 26 years from the time that planning of a typical Federal water resources project is authorized until the initiation of its actual construction. Such delays are caused by a variety of factors, including the failure of the Federal government and the States to establish an effective system to develop priorities for project development.

As we move toward the 21st Century, it appears that consensus building leadership will be necessary to bring about change in the status quo.

If it is a well-established principle of management that individuals who participate in the decision making process are more supportive of the decision than those who were not involved.

The Platte River Forum for the Future is an effort by the Nebraska Natural Resources Commission to build on the participatory principle by bringing together all competing interests and by use of computer technology attempt to reach some degree of agreement on the "best uses" of the remaining water of the Platte.

Rules for better suppliers

By M.M. Van Kirk
Nebraska Farm Bureau

Maintaining an image in world markets as "reliable suppliers" is an overworked phrase these days but it is an important factor in whether the U.S. retains both its share of agricultural export markets and recovers the economic health of its farm and ranch economy.

One of the disturbing features of the agricultural outlook at present is that the United States is the only one of the major grain exporting nations which is cutting back on its planted acreage of wheat and feed grains. Australia, Canada, Argentina and the European Common Market countries are increasing their plantings and seeking increased production.

This is not to say that the United States, with more than 2 billion bushels of grain in the farmer-held reserve and surpluses depressing cash market prices below costs of production, should not be engaged in acreage reduction programs. But in the long-term view, it is not encouraging to see competing nations following a policy of all-out production aimed at gaining a larger share of world markets. A very sizable part of the world's burgeoning population is on food-short status, capable of absorbing all that the world can produce but lacking the resources to pay for it in cash or trade.

Those who recall the world hunger conferences of the mid-1970s may be sure that there will again be great need for America's vast agricultural production and it would be foolhardy and unwise to dismantle or cripple the world's most efficient agricultural supplier. American farmers cannot afford to let their products be outsold, outsubsidized, and out-manuevered from their world customers.

Disagrees with agreement

I was extremely disappointed to learn of the decision last week to abandon plans for negotiations with the Soviet Union of a new long term grain agreement. Instead, the President announced that the U.S. would pursue a one year extension of the current agreement.

The current agreement, which expires September 30, requires the Soviets to purchase a minimum of six million metric tons (MMT) of grain per year, three MMT each of wheat and feed grain. The Soviets also have the option to purchase an additional two MMT of grain with a guarantee of delivery. Additional sales by U.S. exporters are allowed, but cannot be guaranteed.

While not a surprise, the announcement came as a particular disappointment to me in light of my efforts urging the Administration to pursue a long term agreement with considerably higher minimum purchase levels. I had twice written President Reagan pointing out to him the advantages of such an agreement to our farmers and the distinctions between his recent efforts to block construction of the Siberian natural gas pipeline and the need for a long term grain agreement.

A recent Wall Street Journal editorial also correctly stressed the differences between aiding construction of the pipeline by providing vast amounts of Western capital at below-market rates, creating a drain on the limited resources of the United States and our allies, and U.S. grain sales to the Soviets, which are cash sales creating a substantial outflow of Soviet resources into the pockets of the American farmer. There are no subsidies or other concessions on sales of grain to the Soviets by U.S. grain merchandisers and cooperatives.

The existence of a long-term grain agreement is important to the farm sector in that congressman doug bereuter

it enables producers to gauge production in accordance with the expected demand. The severe fluctuations in supply and demand which have such a devastating impact upon commodity prices can only be exacerbated by our continued reliance upon short-term year-to-year marketing decisions and the lack of a long range trade policy with the Soviet Union.

Recent reports of continued serious shortfalls in Soviet production levels present the U.S. with a prime opportunity to negotiate a new agreement with substantially higher minimum purchase requirements. USDA reports indicate that the Soviets will be required to import 40 to 60 MMT to meet their needs this year following three previous years of poor production in the Soviet Union. In addition to the serious drain on Soviet resources needed to meet these requirements, resources which could otherwise be devoted to military forces, I believe that it would benefit the U.S. to provide the Soviet people with a better diet and raise the expectations of the food consumer in that country.

The best mechanism to accomplish that objective would, of course, be the negotiation of an agreement by which the Soviets could be assured of a reliable supply of American grain.

BETTER THAN NOTHING

Of course, while I am disappointed in the lack of a new long term agreement, a one year extension of the current pact is certainly better than no agreement at all. Without the protection of any grain compact, we would run the risk of another raid on our grain supplies similar to the disastrous sale of 19 MMT of grain to the Soviets in 1972. That sale, which became known as the Great Soviet Grain Robbery, seriously depleted U.S. stocks and enabled the Soviets to make up a severe shortfall in their production of discount prices. Now the lack of a long-term agreement will once again help the Soviets set the stage for similar manipulation of the market to the detriment of the producer.

If we fail to assure an established quantity of grain accessible to the Soviets, we can be assured that the other major grain producing countries of the world will continue to expand their production to meet Soviet demands as they have in the past. We will then once again become the supplier of last resort.

Although nothing in the President's announcement would specifically prohibit sales of more than eight MMT by private U.S. grain traders, in light of past embargoes and the lack of guarantees against future trade restrictions, we can expect the Soviets to look elsewhere for their agricultural needs, and the American farmer will continue to suffer from interference in the market by his government.

EMBARGOES

There is little doubt but that the use of embargoes in the 1970s and early 1980s by both Republican and Democratic administrations helped the competition and accomplished none of the so-called purposes for which they were used. The limitation placed on soybean exports to Japan in 1973 resulted in vast expansion of the soybean producing capacities of Brazil and Argentina.

The Carter Administration's 1980 embargo of grain sales to the Soviet Union has had no apparent effect on the USSR's attitude toward suppression of human rights. The Russians are still in Afghanistan, they are still applying political pressure on Poland and they are buying more of their grain from other sources. Being a "reliable supplier" entails delivery of goods as contracted without the constant threat of changing the rules and withholding delivery.

To the Editor:

I am incensed! The Police Report column from the most recent Wayne Herald described a citizen complaint of a noisy gathering at Wellman's parking lot last Thursday. The report stated "police found a group of only eight people", leaving the impression the noisy gathering complaint was unwarranted.

When yelling, breaking bottles, music, fire crackers, squealing tires, loud mufflers and incessant horn honking can be heard through closed doors, in a room with air conditioner and television on, it surely is a noisy gathering, regardless of the number of people disturbing the peace.

made frequently. How long will this problem continue?

weekend. Tournaments like this are far too important to have the extremely poor facilities and management that we had.

Name withheld

Those of us who live near Main Street are growing restless about the lack of consideration by an obnoxious group of constant offenders, and are growing dissatisfied with the seemingly endless cycle of noise - complaint - police response - noise again shortly thereafter.

We don't object to young people gathering, however, when that gathering disturbs others unnecessarily the gathering needs to be controlled.

Although we do have local ordinances controlling unnecessary horn honking, disturbing the peace and reckless driving, these ordinances seem largely ignored or sporadically enforced. This parking lot is not a one time occurrence - complaints are

To the editor:

I'm writing this letter with the hope that in coming years something as important as the district men's softball tournament that was held last weekend in Wayne will never come off as unorganized as it was this year. This is an important tournament for all these ballplayers and to be subjected to the type of facilities these guys had to play on and with is a joke.

Possibly in future years this field will be very adequate but for right now the people involved had no business bidding on a tournament this size with what they had to offer. "I feel very poor judgment was made in overall handling of this tournament."

"Throw out the rulebook on this one!" was a quote of a commissioner because there were too many illegal rosters that were never checked in the beginning; head umpires that never umpired games before and did not know the rules — this should never happen — especially in a district tournament.

I'm not writing this letter merely to be critical. But I feel rules are made to be followed and they weren't in this tournament. I am only one of many, many people who were upset and for the sake of all ballplayers and fans, I hope we never see the disorganization that was witnessed last

To the editor:

That zipper and I. Did you ever have a fight with a dress zipper that absolutely would not slide either way? Well that happened to me last evening before bedtime as I was trying on a cotton dress. It seems like everything went along smoothly until it stuck, a tiny piece of cloth and there I was stuck with a zipper that wouldn't zip.

Well I pulled and pulled both ways but it wouldn't budge. Also, I tore my fingernail in the ordeal.

Then I was reminded of Schneider the handyman in the TV series "One Day at a Time." He had his pliers handy and zipped up Mrs. Kamaria's dress zipper.

I finally managed to get out of the dress and got ready for bed. When Cindy the night charge nurse came in to get me in bed I told her my troubles with the zipper. Thanks to her kindness and patience she got it started working again. So now I have decided never to buy another dress with a zipper. Heads and eyes can cause enough trouble but they don't cover so much territory. Good old plain buttons are good enough for me.

Jaws of Life received

THE ALLEN-WATERBURY RESCUE Squad last week took delivery of its new Jaws of Life equipment. The equipment was purchased through the joint efforts of Allen community residents and the Martinsburg Aid Association for Lutherans (AAL) Branch 1443. Allen residents contributed $4,970 towards the purchase of the Jaws of Life. Those funds were matched by the Martinsburg AAL. Pictured receiving the new equipment are, from left, Ken Haas of Smeal Fire Equipment in Snyder, makers of the Jaws of Life; Duane Mitchell, treasurer of the Fire Department; Bob Noe, captain of the Rescue Squad; Elsie Rasmussen, secretary-treasurer of the Martinsburg AAL; and Dale Strivens, Fire Chief.

A TRIBUTE TO LIFE

All through life we mark our lives with milestones. These noteworthy events are marked with ceremony. Mankind has done this since the beginning.

We celebrate births, baptisms, graduations, weddings and a variety of anniversaries. Ceremony and rituals are best done with family and friends because sharing the event gives it greater meaning.

When death occurs, family and friends also gather to celebrate a life that was lived and to share the sorrow that is present.

Oftentimes, it is difficult for one's emotions to accept the loss of a loved one. We understand what has happened, but the emotional adjustment is difficult. Ceremony affects the emotions... music... drama... people relating as a group to one purpose. For this reason, a funeral service... a funeral ceremony... has a healing effect on the emotions. A funeral is a tribute to a life lived.

For that sincere dignified funeral service you most appreciate.

Rodeo ribbons awarded

Several Wayne County 4-H'ers earned blue ribbons for demonstrating their abilities in bike safety during the 4-H Bicycle Rodeo July 19.

Participants included Amanda and Lori Bruns, Jeff and Tammy Criesch, Brian Lentz, Matthew Moitz and Amy Wriedt.

Ribbon placings were based on scores received when the 4-H'ers rode through a designated course. The also received a ribbon in the shoe scramble and ribbon placings for a quiz on bicycle safety. Ribbon placings were averaged together and final placings were then determined.
