ONE-HUNDRED SIXTH YEAR

Property tax rate highest in Wakefield area; Wayne's rate jumps to second place

Wakefield property owners who live in Wayne County will face again this year the highest tax rate of any taxpayer in the county for the 1982-83 fiscal year.

But Wayne residents will be close behind, due to a hefty increase in the tax rates, as shown by figures recently released by the Wayne County Clerk's office.

Wayne County property owners in Wakefield will be paying $2,8137 per $100 valuation for the year and Wayne property owners will face $2,6777 per $100 valuation, up .656 per $100 valuation over the 1981-82 fiscal year.

Part of the increase can be attributed to seeking revenues lost due to an error last year in the County Assessors office. The figures also represent a tax rate, rather than the mill levy used in previous years.

The rate is no longer expressed as 35 percent of valuation using the mill system, but in dollars and cents per $100 of actual valuation of the property. The last fiscal year was the first year for computing tax rates on an actual valuation basis. The rates may also be expressed as dollars and cents per $1,000 of actual valuation.

In the case of Wakefield property owners in Wayne County, they will pay $28.13 per $1,000 valuation, up from last year's tax rate of $26.55 per $1,000 valuation.

And Wayne city property owners will be paying $26.77 per $1,000 valuation, up from $20.21 last year or about $6.56 per $1,000 valuation more than last year.

COMMUNITY RATES

A large increase also occurred in Carroll for fiscal year 1982-83. They will be paying $2,488 per $100 valuation or $24.88 per $1,000 valuation. That's up from last year's figure of $17.13 per $1,000 valuation.

Windside residents will jump from last year's tax rate of $21.25 per $1,000 valuation to $23.91 per $1,000 valuation this year.

Hoskins will be the only community with a lower rate in the county this year. They will be paying $17.12 per $1,000 valuation, a drop from the 1981-82 fiscal year figure of $20.94 per $1,000 valuation.

The tax rates includes a county wide levy and special levies for the Wayne County Agricultural Society, Lower Elkhorn Natural Resource District and Northeast

Nebraska Technical Community College.

Every property owner in the county pays those rates along with a rate assessed for one of three educational service units that provide services to Wayne County schools.

COUNTY RATES

The county wide tax rate per $100 valuation for 1982-83 will be about $3.34 or $3.47 per $1,000 valuation. That rate is based on a county wide valuation of $244,015,440.

The rate breaks down per the $1,000 valuation to about $3.47 for the general fund and $2.59 for bridges and roads.

The County relief and medical fund will receive about $1.26 per $1,000 valuation and the noxious weed control fund about $1.10 per $1,000 valuation.

The Wayne County improvement fund tax rate is $1.042 per $1,000.

FREE HIGH SCHOOL TUITION

Free high school tuition tax rate will drop substantially from last year's high of $6.36 per $1,000 valuation to $3.42 per $1,000 valuation.

Wayne County Clerk Oregretta Morris said the drop can be attributed to the way the rate figure is arrived at.

"We look at the request, the cash on hand and subtract that amount from the expected state aid before the rate is set," she said.

With litigation pending on the free high school tuition matter, and some funds frozen, there is a higher amount of cash on hand than usual. Wayne County officials suspect that the rate will jump even higher than last year's rate for the 1983-84 fiscal year in order to make up the lost funds. In the meantime though, the rate will be almost half of what it was last year.

SPECIAL SERVICES

Special services tax, that all property owners pay are, per $1,000 valuation: Wayne County Agricultural Society, $0.041; Lower Elkhorn NRD, $0.35; Northeast Nebraska Technical Community College $0.51.

Depending on where property is located in the county, owners will also pay an educational service unit rate. Although the rate for Educational Service Unit 2 is, as yet, unavailable, ESU-1, which covers most of Wayne County, will be receiving about $0.30 per $1,000 valuation. ESU-8 will be receiving $0.34 per $1,000 valuation.

WAYNE

Rates per $1,000 valuation for the City of Wayne is $6.50 for the city's demand against real property for the general fund, special assessment fund, various purpose funds, fire protection and the airport.

The city's actual valuation has been set at $62,406,805. The total tax rate for the city, $26.77 per $1,000 valuation, a combination of rates for municipal services, county government and special services, includes $15.59 per $1,000 valuation for district 17, Wayne-Carroll schools.

OTHER COMMUNITIES

Windside's municipal tax rate, about $4.31 per $1,000 valuation is stacked against a village valuation of $4,845,440.

The levy includes rates for the general and park fund, street and lighting fund, auditorium fund, fire and rescue fund, amusement fund, social security fund and library fund.

Carroll with a valuation of $2,249,325, will have a municipal rate of $4.04 per $1,000 valuation for the general fund. Property owners in Carroll also must pay the Wayne-Carroll school district rate and $0.20 per $1,000 for fire protection.

Hoskins, whose residents will be paying the free high school tuition levy, will pay $7.18 per $1,000 valuation. Property valuations in Hoskins have been set at $3,238,445. The rate includes those for the general fund, street lighting fund, fire fund, sewer bond fund and refunding bond fund.

Wakefield residents living in Wayne County will pay a $15.52 per $1,000 valuation for the school district and $7.92 for municipal services. Wakefield valuations have been set at $1,423,330.

Rural residents of the county will be paying rates to Wayne County, Wayne County Agricultural Society, Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District, Northeast Nebraska Technical Community College, to a rural school district and thus free high school tuition, an educational service unit rate and fire district rate.

Chamber elects directors

Lois Hall was elected to a three year term in her own right, to the board of directors of the Wayne Chamber of Commerce, joining Grant Ellington and Dale Stoltenberg as new directors.

Hall is presently completing the last year of a three year term formerly held by Bill Lueders Jr. She was appointed to the position last year by then Chamber president Pat Gross. The votes were tallied on Sept. 20 according to Chamber president Bob Ensz.

Ellington and Stoltenberg will be replacing Ensz and Paul Peterson on the board.

Remaining Chamber of Commerce directors are Randy Pedersen, Lyle Seymour and Ron Sladek, who are in the second year of their three year terms and Cap Peterson, Galen Wisner and Jim Marsh who are completing the first year of their terms.

ELECTION PREVIEW

Final reading requirement

EDITOR'S NOTE

Nebraskans will be voting on six issues when they go to the general election polls on November 2. So that voters can better understand these important proposals to change the state's Constitution, the Nebraska Press Association in cooperation with this newspaper has prepared a series of news reports on each of the six proposed issues. Each story in the series concentrates on a single issue, briefly defining it, explaining its purpose and finally stating the arguments for and against it. These arguments for and against are not the actual language that will appear on the official ballot.

The following is the first in the special public service series.

"Constitutional amendment to require reading of bills of large before final passage only if requested by a member of the Legislature."

PURPOSE: The Constitution currently requires the Clerk of the Legislature to read every bill aloud in its entirety before the Legislature votes on final passage. The proposed amendment would eliminate the requirement. The clerk would have to read the bill only if a legislator requests it.

WAYNE VOLUNTEER FIRE FIGHTERS responded to a grease fire in the city at a residence on Walnut Drive on Monday. Most of the department's equipment rolled to the scene and the fire, which was located in an oven, was put out with a fire extinguisher in a matter of minutes by fire fighters. As a precautionary measure, department members shut off the gas to the house at the meter and an exhaust fan was used to clear the house of smoke. No structural damage was reported.

Shriners drive will be Sunday

The Shriners of Abu Bekr Temple, which encompasses much of Northeast Nebraska, Northwestern Iowa and Southeast Dakota, will be on the streets and roads in the Wayne area Sept. 26 from 9 a.m. till 2 p.m. conducting what has been billed as the 2nd annual Abu Bekr "Paper Sale". In actuality, the Shriners will be passing out a tabloid style paper, telling about the work of the Shriners' Hospitals for Crippled Children and the Shriners' Burns Institutes.

According to Abu Bekr Potentate Kermit D. Lohry, local Shriners will be calling on their neighbors with the tabloid and asking for donations to help in what's become known as "The World's Greatest Philanthropy".

The local kids are what's bringing the Shriners out on a weekend. The more than $1 million that will be spent next year on the 22 hospitals and burns centers will be covered by Shriners dues, memorials and wills. Interest on investments and national events such as the East-West football game.

Each local Temple, however, must provide transportation to and from the hospital for each patient and accompanying parents and room and board for the parents during the child's stay.

The Abu Bekr Shriners must have really spread the word about the hospitals, as there are now more than 250 children from this area receiving in and out-patient treatment in the system. This is twice the number of patients that some Temples much larger than Abu Bekr have in the system. Abu Bekr officials estimate that they will spend in excess of $45,000 next year on transportation and support of patients.

All funds donated this weekend will be used for the Shriners' Hospitals, Burns Centers and the transportation of crippled and burned children. The Shriners will admit any child under 18 years of age, regardless of race or religion, who has a correctable orthopedic or burn condition and if the cost of such treatment would be a hardship on the parents.

Donations to the Abu Bekr Temple's fund drive may also be made locally through Stanley Morris, Bob Marchant or David Lay.

monthly testing for sirens

The City of Wayne will conduct the monthly testing of Civil Defense sirens at 1 p.m. on Friday, Sept. 24.

As usual during the test, sirens will be allowed to run only one minute with a three minute pause between each siren test. Sirens will be tested in the following sequence: Alert - used for natural disaster warning, both high and low siren on for one minute; three minute pause; Attack - both high and low siren on for ten seconds, off for ten seconds, continuing for one minute.

If residents living near a siren should fail to hear the test, they are asked to contact the Wayne police department so that the siren may be checked for malfunction.

Normal time sequence for each of the sirens would be a full three minutes. Since this is for testing purposes only, they will be shut off after one minute each.

Winside extends fund drive

Gloria Lessmann, a member of the Winside Community Improvement committee, announced this week that the fund drive to raise money for improvements on the city auditorium has been extended.

Mrs. Lessmann said the drive will end Oct. 1 with a chili feed sponsored by the Aid Association for Lutherans.

The community is seeking to raise $10,000 for the auditorium improvements. Donations to date total $9,118.69.

Mrs. Lessmann said the most recent donation was $200 made by Ken Berglund of Wayne in behalf of Northwestern Bell Telephone Co.

Wayne State foundation elects Carhart president

Robert Carhart was elected president of the Wayne State Foundation's executive committee during the trustees annual meeting, Sept. 17-18 at WSC.

The election, which took place during the business meeting on Friday, also resulted in David Ley being elected vice-president and Tawila Claybaugh, secretary-treasurer. Other members of the executive board are: Dan Gardner, Kent Hall, Joy Hein, Julian Torgerson and Ken Olds.

There were 32 trustees who attended the two day session, from Washington D.C., New Mexico, Nevada, Minnesota, Iowa, Nebraska and the Wayne area.

David Ley chaired the meeting Friday afternoon in absence of president Hilda Petri. First on the agenda was the matter of amending articles and bylaws of the original constitution. It was voted that the number of trustees be limited to 60, the present level. In addition, it was decided that trustees whose three-year terms are about to end, be contacted regarding their desire to continue and their ability to attend meetings, or, in some other way, actively support the foundation.

Further action replaced the original article IX with one providing that the terms of members of the executive committee be limited to one year. The eight members of that committee will be three officers and five other trustees elected at the annual meetings.

Following the executive committee elections, Wayne State president Ed Elliott addressed the meeting, thanking the foundation for its support of college activities which depend on the foundation for financial assistance. These include the academic excellence, awards for programs of excellence, the growth of public relations through television, radio and newspapers, the student ambassador program, campus beautification, freshmen orientation and the high school arts conference.

Lyle Seymour, the new executive director of the Foundation, spoke of his fund-raising task force, initiated in July shortly after he assumed his new position. His plans for the coming year include the organizing of an alumni association, organizing "city" clubs where there are concentrations of Wayne State alumni, development of deferred-giving plans and working with the college administration in implementing the budget.

Robert Jordan reported for the investment committee, Leila Maynard for publicity and Robert Carhart presented the budget proposed for 1983. The budget which includes $35,000 for student scholarships was adopted.

The actions of the executive committee, which meets several times between the annual trustees meeting, were ratified. New president Robert Carhart asked that he be allowed to appoint committees at a later date after time for study. His request was agreed to and the meeting adjourned.

Problems with parked cars, people blocking driveways and firecracker complaints were also investigated on Saturday.

On Friday, officers responded to a call of vandalism. According to their report, a light globe had been broken. There were no suspects. They also provided transport for a girl to Providence Medical Center and received a complaint of fighting. When officers arrived, the people had left the scene.

On Sunday, officers investigated complaints of disturbances, vandalism and requests for aid.

A loud party complaint brought officers to the scene where the host agreed to quiet things down. Vandalism was reported to police by a business owner who found the window covering of a side widow had been knocked out.

A request for aid to a residential address was cleared up when the people who had been bothering the resident left before officers arrived.

Officers also investigated a complaint of a gun being fired, logged a report of a lost dog and impounded a cat on Friday.

On Monday and Tuesday, there were several criminal mischief complaints made to the department which are under investigation including problems at the municipal swimming pool and a report that someone had driven over a residents lawn.

A report was also made to the department of a problem involving alleged drunken high school students. Officers reported that by the time they arrived, the kids had left the scene. They also investigated a possible breaking and entering when a window was discovered broken out of a trailer.

Complaints were also made about a mail box being run over, squealing tires and help with a flat tire. Officers also checked out a pickup and found the pickups owner asleep inside.

SUPPORT: The proposed amendment, which was placed on the ballot with the affirmative votes of 30 of the 49 members of the Legislature, is needed because final reading consumes too much time, supporters say. One legislative official estimates that 25 percent to 30 percent of all legislative time is consumed by final reading. Because of the number of days the Legislature may meet is limited by the Constitution, the final reading requirement should be dropped to allow more productive use of the limited time, supporters argue.

In the press of time the clerk is forced to read the bills so quickly that senators normally hear only his mumbling.

OPPOSITION: Opponents, noting that Nebraskans have rejected similar proposals twice since 1970, say that the final reading is a safeguard against shoddy lawmaking. It offers one last chance for senators to read the bill and reflect on their votes, opponents of the amendment say. Final reading also provides an opportunity for senators to find substantive or technical errors in a bill before it is sent to the governor for an approval or veto.

Right wing publication leads to threats

CAPITOL NEWS

By Melvin Paul

The Nebraska Press Association. The unlikely issue of Zionism has arisen in the 40th District legislative race between Sen. John DeCamp of Neligh and Jim Wolf of Albion.

Columbus businessman W.A. Curry has been distributing an article which appeared in a national right-wing publication which identifies Wolf as one of a handful of Zionists who have achieved "political dominance" in Nebraska.

Zionism is defined by the publication as "Jewish nationalism," although in a broader sense it also means sympathy for Israeli foreign policy.

Also targeted in the article were Sens. Edward Zorinsky, J.J. Exon, Supreme Court Chief Justice Norman Krivosha and 2nd District Democratic congressional candidate Richard Fellman of Omaha.

All of those named as Zionists in the article are Jewish, except Exon, who is a Protestant.

Wolf denounced the article in strong terms, saying it questions his allegiance to the United States.

DeCamp says he refused an offer in August from Curry to provide him with reprints of the article. State and local issues, not Zionism, should be the subject of the campaign, DeCamp says he told Curry.

DeCamp refuses to denounce the article, saying that isn't his responsibility. The publication, called The Spotlight, and Curry have their right of free expression, DeCamp says.

DeCamp alleges he was threatened with physical violence while attending a University of Nebraska football game, and requested protection from state and federal law enforcement authorities.

The proposed constitutional amendment to limit further acquisition of farm land by non-family corporations is another emotional issue which has kept the political fires burning in the 40th District.

DeCamp is rabidly opposed to the amendment. Wolf has given the amendment his strong support.

The issue promises to heat up statewide in the coming weeks.

The No-on Initiative-300 Committee is expected to launch an advertising campaign to fight the amendment, which was placed on the ballot in a drive by the Nebraska Farmers Union.

Additional attention will be focused on the amendment by a legislative hearing tentatively scheduled by DeCamp's Banking Committee for Oct. 5 in Opallala. Additional legislative hearings by the Agriculture Committee are being considered.

The Farmers Union boycotted a Sept. 15 hearing by the Banking Committee in Lincoln. President Neil Oxton said the Legislature had ample opportunity to act on a corporate farming statute before his organization circulated the petitions for a constitutional amendment.

A side effect of the economic problems which have depleted the state general fund is diminished interest on state investments.

The state earned $37.2 million on short term investment of idle operating funds during the fiscal year that ended last June 30. That's $8.6 million less than the previous year.

The average return on short-term investments was higher for last year than for the previous year, but less idle cash was available for investment, according to a report issued by state investment officer Don Mathes.

In mid-1980, for example, the state ended the fiscal year with a general fund balance of $116 million. Last summer, the state ended the fiscal year with a general fund balance of less than $3 million, and money had to be transferred from other state agency funds to keep the balance in the black.

The picture was brighter for longer-term investments of 14 state trust funds. They earned $29 million during the last fiscal year. That's $7 million more than the interest earned by the funds during the previous year.

City aid

We congratulate and welcome to the Wayne Chamber of Commerce board of directors two new members, Dale Stoltenberg and Grant Ellingson, as well as congratulating Lois Hall on successfully seeking a full three year term on the board.

All three of the recently elected board members are very familiar with not only the problems of the Wayne community, but the strengths of the community as a whole. For the past year, Hall has been involved with the Chamber directors as an appointed member, serving out one year of a three year term following a resignation.

Both Ellingson and Stoltenberg, as business community members, are in a position to add experience, wisdom and optimism to the work of the Chamber and join a board composed of members who are becoming experts at promoting the interests of the city, not only locally but on the state and regional level.

As the terms of service draw to a close for board members Paul Peterson and Bob Ensz, we thank them for their service and help in bringing the community through some difficult times through their hard work and devotion to the community.

It is only through hard work, by the people who know a community best, that a city is able to move forward and avoid the pitfalls and jump the hurdles that slow other communities down. We believe the Wayne Chamber directors and members are performing an excellent service to our community and thank them for their work as well as encourage them to continue for the betterment of the community.

Programmed

"Come now! What harm can come from allowing a child to bow his head in silent prayer once or twice during the long school day?"

That's the way the question is framed. And it's as illusory as the spiel of a carnival Barker. It's triggered to entrap anyone who might wish to qualify his answer. So don't point out the difference between "allowing" and "suggesting" — between "suggesting" and "directing." Because to do so is to invite charges of "hacking away at the most inviolable right of children with a humanistic cleaver."

Illusory? And how! The question is designed to exploit that public sense of decency that is reserved for little children and the Deity. It is connived to preclude rational examination; to disparage those who might have second thoughts.

No thinking person — not Reagan, not Buckley, not even Falwell — can be sincere in advocating planned prayer periods in the public school. And even the non-thinker feels so only because he is smug in the assurance that he will be a part of the consensus that will do the mandating. Why then has this patently ridiculous proposition been elevated to so lofty a perch in the public consciousness?

The mission is not to purge the public school of its alleged 'Godlessness.' It is to reinforce that very negative image. And to make more attractive an alternative system of education.

To date, public school supporters have reacted as the theocrats were sure that they would. They have stood on principle. They have tried to approach an emotional issue with a measure of logic. And they have been cast as those who would deny a child the right to bow his head in silent prayer. They have been duped!

It is only the walls from those 'programmed' to appear wicked that nourish and sustain the prayer proposals. Silence those walls, and the theocrats will have no choice but to resort to honesty.

State is key to grants

Last month Governor Thone announced the awarding of $2 million in community development grants to 47 Nebraska cities and towns. The money will go for such purposes as economic development, neighborhood revitalization, business district improvements, housing rehabilitation, planning and construction of public facilities, and emergency business loans.

More than twice as many grants were made under the program this year than last year, even though the total amount of money involved rose by only 15 percent. Many of the communities that were selected this year have never before received a significant federal grant.

It used to be that notification of these community development grants came from congressional offices. Now, governors' offices will announce the grant awards which, to me, is an inconsequential change.

States Take Over Administration

The key difference between this year's program and last year's program is that last year community development funds were awarded by the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) in Washington and this year HUD made block grants to the states. The states, in turn, took and evaluated applications from interested communities and made the grants themselves.

There are many benefits under this new system. The states have the option to spread the available grant money over a large number of communities and they have more flexibility in setting funding priorities.

In the past, the community development grant program has too often reflected only the needs of big cities and thus has been less responsive to rural areas. Regulations and guidelines have been designed for urban areas.

This new approach, that of turning more responsibility over to the states, reflects the President's "new federalism" concept. And it seems to be serving Nebraska well. The state's long involvement with community development activities through its Department of Economic Development has made Nebraska especially well prepared to administer this block grant program.

Nebraska Visits

In recent work periods in the First District, I have had the opportunity to visit with the Ag Council in Lincoln, attend the centennial celebration at Otoe, visit constituents at the Nebraska State Fair, meet with a government class at Wilber High School, and speak to meetings of the Rotary Club at Beatrice and the Association of Credit Management in Lincoln.

In addition, it was possible for me to attend this past weekend a brunch at Strategic Air Command headquarters at Bellevue where the B-1 bomber was on display. Also this past weekend, I was in Columbus to speak at a luncheon of the Nebraska Association of Resources Districts.

Liberals accept Reagan's challenge

Richard L. Leshner
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

"Put up or shut up," is the choice President Reagan recently offered his critics who attacked administration economic policies but suggested no alternatives of their own.

Now a group of 34 "economists" has risen to the President's challenge and proposed a radical departure from Reaganomics. Too bad it is also a recipe for economic disaster on a grand scale.

The group, whose membership reads like a "Who's Who" of economic liberalism outlined their ideas recently in a lengthy statement billed as "The Failure of Reaganomics and the Full Employment Alternative." The paper is an unabashed celebration of the virtues of increased government intervention in the economy.

They begin with a very peculiar picture of our recent economic experience. In their view, the economy before Ronald Reagan got his hands on it was doing just fine. "In truth," they write, "the U.S. economy in 1980 was still very strong compared to the past... The evidence suggests that we did not start 1981 with the greatest economic mess since the 1930s... a federal government out of control, or a deteriorating quality of life."

No, it was Ronald Reagan and his "radically untested supply side program" that turned 1980's economic "paradise" of double-digit inflation, 20 percent interest rates, skyrocketing energy prices and declining productivity into today's "disaster" of six percent inflation, 12 percent interest rates, stabilized energy prices and rising productivity.

To combat these and other "failures" of Reaganomics, the economists' prescription is the expansion of federal control over the daily economic decisions of millions of Americans. "The idea that government produces little of value, while fashionable these days, is clearly wrong," they submit.

The group is quick to claim that they are not proposing a simple return of past administration policies. The problem with the Great Society, it is suggested, was not too much government but not enough. Therefore, they propose as the centerpiece of their "Full Employment Alternative" the creation of a National Economic Policy Board made up of labor, business, government and other "experts" to oversee the wage-price and industrial policies of our $3 trillion economy.

Now, no central economic committee could be complete without a lot of little committees under its jurisdiction. These will be called industry committees. And that's not all. "In addition to industry committees, regional committees should be established." These committees must have some resources to control, so therefore, "the work of the board and its industry committees should be augmented by an industrial development bank to channel investment into long-term development."

Where will we get the money for such a bank? For starters, we undo the Reagan tax cut program ("simply fiscal irresponsibility") and eliminate "the automatic tax cuts for years after 1984." In other words, dispose of indexing which is designed to protect taxpayers from government's windfall inflation profit.

There is more, I haven't even discussed the broad array of new spending programs that would be activated any time unemployment exceeds six percent.

Without question, the authors of this statement have proposed a distinct alternative to Reaganomics, which slowly but surely is moving us back to the free market supply side principles upon which this country was founded. The premise of this plan is that broad-based economic prosperity is simply not possible unless and until appointed panels of bureaucrats, academicians and policy "experts" are set up to direct economic activity from Washington, D.C. Never mind that several billion people around the globe are, to varying degrees, living miserable lives thanks to the edicts of hundreds of National Economic Policy Boards, industry committees and regional committees.

This is a "Full Employment Alternative" all right. It would set us on the road to becoming full-time employees of the state. Is this an acceptable alternative to Reaganomics?

To the editor:

What is wrong with the people of Wayne? Have they no sense of appreciation or common courtesy? I just returned from the homecoming parade. I am appalled at the total lack of audience participation and appreciation shown by the Wayne citizens. On one block of Main Street where the majority of people were gathered, there were exactly two people who applauded the floats, royalty, etc. I would have hated to be a "lone queen" riding through the street in utter silence; no applause, no waves, no nothing! Why bother?

Think about that! If you do enjoy the parade that features Wayne, then please show it. Applaud!

Illegal alien bill reviewed

By M.M. Van Kirk
Nebraska Farm Bureau

The ease with which the U.S. Senate last month by a vote of 81 to 18 passed S.2222, the immigration reform bill, would indicate that a tide is running and Congress and the voters are really serious about dealing with the problem of illegal entrants into this country.

A similar House version (H.R. 6514) is for committee action and it is possible that an acceptable version will be worked out before Congress adjourns in early October. Most knowledgeable people will admit that there are many problems involving immigration into the United States. At the same time there are many who oppose changes in the law to make it more effective.

Farm and other employer interests, along with Hispanic and civil rights groups, have opposed the Senate bill because it calls for stiff penalties for those who knowingly employ illegal immigrants. These opponents maintain that they want better control of the illegal alien and refugee situation but declare they don't want the burden placed on employers. They say there is a need for a workable temporary foreign worker program.

During 1981, President Reagan sent an omnibus bill to Congress providing for a broad range of reform. That bill included an amnesty program for qualified illegal aliens in this country prior to a certain date, increased the Justice Department more authority and greater leeway in dealing with refugee problems and placing criminal sanctions on employers who knowingly employ undocumented workers. Also it provided for an experimental 2-year Mexican guest worker program of limited scope.

Extensive public hearings on this issue were conducted by both the Senate and House Judiciary Committees. From these hearings, S.2222 and H.R. 6514 developed, and apparently in a form which can achieve passage. Principal opposition argument apparently centers on the responsibility of a potential employer to make sure that the persons he hires have a legal right to be in this country and seeking employment.

In states such as Nebraska which are far from customary points of entry by aliens, people have a hard time visualizing the problems encountered at border crossings, both legal and illegal. A Nebraska farmer employing spring beet labor or a packing plant operator probably would not have any great difficulty determining whether job applicants were in good standing with U.S. immigration authorities if that is what the law calls for. But in Florida which is a focal point for refugees from Cuba, Haiti, El Salvador, or along the Rio Grande Valley in Texas, or in Southern California where Mexicans cross seeking farm labor opportunities, the determination may not be so simple.

In fairness to the lawmakers, one should recognize that as long as there are employers willing to hire illegal aliens at reduced wage scales because they are in no position to complain, it will be difficult and probably impossible to clean up the immigration situation. And with 10 million unemployed people in this country, it is hard to work up much enthusiasm for an argument that there is a need to bring in foreign workers to do jobs that most of our people are no longer willing to do.

The present arrangement, which has deteriorated into almost no system at all, is simply a headache and a heartache for all concerned, including illegal entrants who live in fear of detection and deportation and accept living and working conditions below standard because of it.

The opinions expressed here are not necessarily those of The Wayne Herald or its staff.

Beginning Oct. 1, he will serve as minister at the First Baptist Church in Bellwood, Ill., a congregation of about 200 members.

Before moving to Wayne, they resided in New Hampshire until moving to Omaha in 1978 where they served as Ministers of Music and Pastor's Assistant at Trinity Church Interdenominational.

The students also made blue teddy bear cutouts which they used as place mats. Friday was Teddy Bear Day and the youngsters brought their own teddy bears from home to accompany them throughout the school day. Big plays hurt Wayne

Not enough points put on the board

The Doane Tigers disproved the theory that lightning never strikes the same place twice with a pair of long passes that sank the Wayne State College Wildcats 15-17 before a large homecoming crowd Saturday.

Wayne State hit the road for the first time next Saturday with a 7:30 p.m. contest in Fremont against Midland College. Midland is a former Downing Westmar 26-17, while Wayne is 0-2.

The staunch Wildcat defense held Doane to 14 yards rushing but gave up 162 through the air. Doane actually gained 163 passing yards on three plays and was 11 on its other four completions.

It was a frustrating day for the Wildcats, as they jumped to a 10-0 lead in the first period on a 44-yard field goal by freshman Carlos Lagunilla (F1, Lauderdale, Fla.) and a 12-yard pass from Tony Didier (freshman, Bellwood) to Scott Hallstrom (junior Wakefield).

Early in the second period, a pass intercepted by WSC's Rob Tidgen (sophomore, Battle Creek) set the Cats up at the Tiger 5. The host team drove to the Doane five-yard line but a fourth and one try came up short.

Four plays later, Doane substitute quarterback Rob Prudhomme completed his only pass of the day. It covered 84 yards to Jeff Doran, who slipped behind the Wildcat secondary and caught the bomb from a scrambling Prudhomme, then raced untouched into the endzone.

The Wayne State defense set up another scoring opportunity late in the half when sophomore linebacker Steve Besch (Belmond, Iowa) forced a Doane fumble and sophomore end Kevin McArdle (Omaha) recovered at the Tiger 20. Once again the Cats were stopped short on a fourth and one try.

Wayne State's defense rose to the occasion in the third period when the Wildcat offense fumbled at its own 16. Doane threw three incomplete passes and a 42-yard field goal try missed its mark.

In the fourth period, with sophomore quarterback Marty Brewer (Logan, Iowa) guiding the Cats, Wayne drove to a first down at the Tiger 16. But a first down pass was tipped and picked off by Doane's Maurice Kelllogg, who returned the ball 42 yards.

Midway through the final period, Doane's lightning bolt attack struck again. The Tigers took over on their own 21 following a Wildcat punt and two Ron Mondt to Ken Houston completions later, they were in the end zone. The first play covered 34 yards and the second went for 45 yards and the score.

Once again it was the Wayne State defense providing the last real opportunity to pull out the victory. Facing a fourth down at its own 14 Doane punted to Wildcat Kurt Brosamle (sophomore, Moline, Iowa) at the 42, and he returned the kick 36 yards to the Tiger six.

But the Cats lost a yard on a rush, threw an incomplete pass, completed a five-yard Mike Warren (senior, Papillion) to Tom Winger's (junior, Bronson, Iowa) pass at the two, then threw an incomplete pass on fourth and goal from the two.

Doane elected to take an intentional safety on its next possession for Wayne's final points. Wayne State got the ball one more time, but a pass interception by Doane's Ron Starzec ended WSC hopes.

The game was played before a homecoming crowd of more than 3,000. At halftime, two outstanding Wayne State alumni were entered into the Wildcat Hall of Fame: Bob Schnitzler, a WSC football and baseball player and now a successful Battle Creek coach, and Stanton native Burt Mathies, a four-year WSC grinder who scored more points than any other Wildcat, were enshrined.

Warriors remember last year's rout

The Wayne State College Wildcat football squad will attempt to sour the Midland Warrior's plans for revenge and pick up its first win of the season on the road this Saturday. Game time is set for 7:30 p.m. at Memorial Stadium on the Midland College campus in Fremont.

The Warriors, carrying the memory of the 51-21 loss to Wayne last year, will come into the game with a 1-1 record. They lost their season opener to Yankton College 31-7, but staged a come-from-behind win last week over Westmar 26-7.

Third string quarterback Kevin Finnegan led the rally for Midland, which trailed 17-7 going into the final period, throwing for two touchdown passes and rushing for a third. The team's leading rusher, Mike Wiesen, is ranked third in NAIA District 11 standings, averaging just over 80 yards per contest and 6.7 yards per carry.

The Warriors' rushing game topped the district this week, with an average of 220.5 yards per game, including 328 yards against Westmar. Their total offense per game stands at just under 300 yards.

"Midland is an explosive team, able to score from anywhere on the field," said Wildcat head coach Del Stollenberg. "They are also a mystery team, coming up with little rushing in the game against Yankton, and strong passing for the win against Westmar."

Wayne's defense remains a strong point, allowing only 16 yards on the ground per game. Defensive back Ken Kohhof, who intercepted two passes against Doane last week, returned an interception for a touchdown against Midland last year.

Freshman quarterback Tony Didier notched his first collegiate touchdown on a pass completion to split end Scott Hallstrom. Hallstrom has caught seven passes for 85 yards in two games.

Senior quarterback Mike Warren is expected to start for the Wildcats this Saturday, but junior defensive back Kirk Neufstrom will remain on the sideline, recovering from a leg injury.

Laurel streak stopped

Coach Dwight Iverson says Plainview is the best team his Laurel Bears have faced this season after the team suffered a 14-16, 10-15 loss to the Pirates last Thursday night.

The match was a serving contest with Plainview holding the upper hand. The Bears were on the edge of victory in the first set but couldn't hang on. Trailing 6-11, Patsy Thompson served for eight consecutive points and a 14-11 lead. Plainview then strung out five straight to win.

"Plainview is the best team we've played," said Iverson. "There was little volleying. It was a serving game." Of the 55 points scored in the match, Iverson estimated that more than half were the result of ace serves.

Thompson was leading player for Laurel and hit 17 of 19 serves for 15 points. Jean Lute was successful on all eight of her serves and scored four points.

Renee Gadeken made 10 good spikes in 13 attempts and Carol Osborne made 19 good sets in 20 tries. Laurel will take its 4-2 record into action tonight (Thursday) at Coleridge, a team Iverson said is out to avenge a loss in the Winside Invitational finals.

In junior varsity action, Laurel lost 10-15, 7-15. Lori Lindsay and Lynn Malchow each scored five points as the reserves fell to 1-1.

Laurel won the C team match 11-2, 11-4 for its second victory. The Bears were successful on 100 percent of their 28 serves. Lynn Malchow, Donna Sherry and Wendy Robson scored six points

Winside falls to Wausa

In a Lewis & Clark Conference matchup, Wausa downed Winside 15-11, 15-3 Tuesday night in Winside.

Missy Jensen led the Wildcats in the first game by scoring 10 of her team's 11 points. Chris Lanfel led Wausa with six points. Parri Langenberg was 7 for 8 and Shelli Topp 7 for 7 in setting. At the net, Susie Peterson connected on 8 of 10 spikes and Trisha Topp and Judy Bauermeister each added one ace spike.

"We looked a lot better," said Winside coach Marie Dougherty. "Our serving fell down at the most important points. Our passing was weak again—it wasn't where it should be to spike the ball."

The reserve match went three sets with Wausa winning 2-11, 11-3, 11-8. Julie Bruggeman scored eight points for Winside in the first set. Wausa also won the freshman match in two sets.

Trojans win two

Two consecutive victories last Thursday and Tuesday improved Wakefield's record to 4-1. The Trojans downed Wausa 15-5, 15-4 last Thursday and Hartington 15-9, 5-15, 15-8 Tuesday.

Against Hartington, Renee Wenstrand was leading server with a mark of 15-for-15 for five aces. The team hit 37 of 40 serves. Shelly Krusemark had 7 of 9 spikes for three aces and Lana Erb was leading server with 12-of-13 sets 4-for 4 aces.

The Trojans lead Wausa 15-9, 5-15, 15-8 in varsity action on Tuesday. Leading servers were Wenstrand (19-for-19), Erb (12-13), Crisley Hingst (10-13) and Michele Meyer (11-13). As a team, Wakefield hit 38 percent of its serves.

Top spikers were Wenstrand and Erb at 12-15 with 3 aces. Krusemark at 14-21 with 7 aces, Kelly Grove with 19-23 for 4 aces, and Brenda Jones with 11 of 15 for 5 aces. The Trojans had 75 spikes in that game. Hingst and Erb were 23-for-25 setting and combined for 17 ace spikes.

WSC 1-3-1 in tourney

An even level of competition tested the strength of the Wayne State College volleyball team as they participated in the Briar Cliff Tournament on Saturday, Sept. 18, in Sioux City.

Ernie Kovar's squad will now have a full week of practice before its next competition this Friday and Saturday, Sept. 24-25, when it opens Central States, intercollegiate conference action. Teams from Washburn, Pittsburg State and Ft. Hays State will compete in matches scheduled to begin at 7:30 p.m. on Friday and 10 a.m. on Saturday in Rice Auditorium.

The Lady Cats played a total of five two game matches in the round robin tournament at Briar Cliff. A match could either be won, lost or tied if the teams split the games. The best win-loss record determined the winner.

Northeast Tech fell to Wayne in the first match 15-7, 15-13, but the Lady Cats were unable to keep on the winning track as they were downed by Nebraska Wesleyan 15-9, 15-6 and Southwestern Minnesota 15-8, 15-2. They were also defeated by Augustana College 15-13, 15-3 before coming back to split with host team Briar Cliff 6-15, 16-14.

Wayne's match record was 1-3-1 for the day, and moved their season record to 5-8-1.

Sophomores Beth Erickson (Sioux City) and Bobbie Gierman (South Sioux City) were the leading spikers for the Lady Wildcats, downing 10 and nine spikes respectively. Annette Reiman (senior, Burle) and Becky Frahm (junior, Yutan) topped the assist category. Rejman also helped in the scoring department with 14 points, behind freshman Jill Zeiss (Wayne) who scored 16 points on the day.

Beemer tops Eagles

There was improvement in some areas as the Allen Eagles lost to Beemer in three sets Tuesday night. Allen lost the first set 3-15 then rallied for a 15-13 win in the second game but lost the third 1-15.

"We played fairly solid and we're showing improvement. The second game was the most solid game we've played," Allen coach Gary Troth said. "Serving plagued us again but our serve reception was better and our floor game improved. If we cut down a mistake a game, we'll be pretty good by the end of the year."

A serving-low mark of 77 percent led to the Eagles' downfall. And Troth said Beemer's floor game is as good as he has seen.

"Michelle Harder played what Troth described as a 'really super net game.' She was 18 of 21 in spiking with five aces and nine blocks. Jeane Warner and Shelly Williams also played well in the front line, Troth added.

Tami Jewell was 15-for-15 in setting and Machele Pettit was 15-of-17. Troth said the setting was good and pointed out that Jewell played well in the back line. He added that Pam Kavanaugh also played pretty well.

The Eagles are scheduled to play at Winnebago tonight (Thursday) and then will face Wynot at 6:30 Monday in the first round of the Newcastle Tournament. "Hopefully, we're through the toughest part of our schedule," said Troth.

Allen's B team won its match 15-11, 15-11. Julie Book set the ball well. Lisa McDonald had a good game and Mary Oswald served well, scoring 10 points.

The C match was won 2-15, 15-9, 15-11 by Beemer. For Allen, Diane Magnuson and Michelle Greenough played well.

Nip-and-tuck match

Norfolk edges Blue Devils

A near victory turned into a disappointing loss as Norfolk rallied to defeat Wayne's volleyball team 6-15, 15-13, 15-11 Tuesday night in Wayne's home opener before a large crowd.

After breaking away from a 3-3 tie in the first game, the Blue Devils dominated play and cruised to a 15-6 win. The hosts actually outscored Norfolk 39-36 in the match but lost.

Coach Mavis Dalton's squad used a player shift following each serve to take advantage of its strengths. Either Missy Stollenberg or Deb Prenger played in the front left position at all times.

Tamie Murray, Wayne's leading server, played the front center court where she could set the ball to leading spikers Stollenberg and Prenger.

Pam Nissen played the back center position. Lisa Jacobsen and Karen Longe saw considerable action in the back row and Jill Mosley and Fran Gross played the front right position, primarily as blockers. Paula Koppin and Shelly Emry also came off the bench to see action.

Wayne's slim lead of 7-5 increased to 11-5 with the setting of Murray and the spiking of Prenger and Stollenberg. Murray also scored most of Wayne's service points in the stretch. Prenger's ace spike gave Wayne a 12-5 lead before Norfolk regained the serve.

Wayne earned side-out and Longe served for the Blue Devils' next point as Prenger nailed an ace spike. The hosts lost control of the serve but a Murray set and Stollenberg spike gave them the ball back after one Norfolk point was scored. Nissen's ace serve made the score 14-6 and Jacobsen added the final service point to win the first set.

The Devils opened up a quick 5-0 lead in the second set behind the serving of Jacobsen. That lead held up at 9-4 as both teams exchanged points. Norfolk rallied to tie the score at 9-9.

Gross brought an end to the Norfolk string with a defensive ace spike for side-out. Murray then served to 11-9. The score was tied at 11, 12 and 13 before the Panthers scored two straight points to take the win 15-13.

DEB PRENGER scores an ace for the Wayne Blue Devils against Norfolk.

Wayne again started out in front in the third game but ended up a loser. The Blue Devils led 6-1 and 8-3 but seemed to fall apart as Norfolk made its move for a 13-9 advantage.

Led by Stollenberg, Prenger and Murray, Wayne pulled within two points at 11-12. But Norfolk pulled away with its needed two points for a 15-11 triumph. Statistically, Wayne was led in serving by Tamie Murray with 12 points for the match. The Blue Devils made only 85 percent of their serves, their lowest mark of the year. The locals had only three blocks Tuesday while averaging nearly 18 per game.

Top spikers were Prenger with 28 spikes and 12 aces and Stollenberg with 27 spikes and 10 aces. Murray made 45 sets and Nissen had a good floor game at the center back position.

The 5-4 Blue Devils will host Wisner-Pilger tonight (Thursday). Coach Dalton said her team will have to play a better all-around game to best the Galois.

In junior varsity action Tuesday, Wayne lost 11-15, 4-15. The Blue Devils were hurt by their serving and inconsistent bumping.

Wayne's freshmen showed marked improvement against more experienced teams despite losing 15-10, 5-15, 9-15 to Norfolk.

Followers of Wayne High football have something to look forward to future years. Wayne's junior varsity squad hammered Pierce 52-0 Monday to up its record to 2-0.

The Blue Devils have racked up 84 points in two home games while holding their foes scoreless. Kevin Maly was Wayne's leading player in Monday's romp. He scored four touchdowns and rushed for a whopping 204 yards on only six carries. That's an average of 34 yards per carry.

Pete Warne scored two touchdowns. Layne Lueders scored one TD and a two-point conversion. Brad Moore added another TD and Chris Wieseler ran for a two-point conversion.

The hosts lead 26-0 at the half and then doubled their score in the second half. Quarterback

Moore and running back Maly completed 6 of 13 passes as Wayne totaled 350 yards offense.

Leading tacklers were Rod Lutt with nine, Tim Book and Chris Wieseler with eight each, Carl Urwiler with seven and Rod Gilliland and Darin Barner with six each.

The Blue Devils are scheduled to play at Hartington CC Monday.

Plenty of game

Hunting seasons should be good ones

Nebraska hunters can look forward to the 1982 hunting seasons being good ones, though they may have to work harder for pheasant and quail. Rural mail carrier surveys and biologist's quail whistle count information indicates both pheasant and quail populations have declined from last year's relatively high numbers.

Deer, antelope, grouse, squirrel and cottontail hunters will enjoy good populations of game and waterfowl hunters can look forward to a season comparable to last if weather conditions are favorable, though decreased mallard populations are anticipated for the fall migration.

Pheasant Season
Oct. 30-Jan. 16, bag limit three roosters per day, nine in possession. Hunting hours - 30 minutes before sunrise to sunset. Beginning Jan. 1, hunting must terminate at 4 p.m.

Nebraska Game and Parks Commissioners voted to shorten the state's 1982 pheasant hunting season after hearing biologists say populations estimates are down this year. The commission also recommended that the Nebraska Council of Sportsmen shorten the season by two weeks.

The lower pheasant population means hunters will have to work harder for pheasants this year than last. In 1981 and 1982, pheasants were unusually plentiful. Biologists are predicting that winter conditions and a late fall decline in pheasant numbers will result in a decline.

Nebraska sportsman Jim Mitchell says spring rains came late this year when pheasant chicks were extremely vulnerable to chilling and he suspects many were lost to pneumonia because of adverse weather conditions.

"Our just-completed rural mail carrier survey indicates a decline of 36 percent in pheasant sightings this year, but that figure is probably somewhat too extreme due to several factors. We believe last year's pre-season population estimates were higher than was the actual increase in the population. This year's survey conditions are not as good, due to heavy vegetation (which makes spotting birds harder than normal) and consequently I think the 36 percent figure is not accurate. I believe pheasant numbers are down, but a statewide figure in the neighborhood of 20 percent would be more realistic," he said.

"Another factor that may have influenced the decrease in sightings by rural mail carriers is that the pheasant hatch occurred some three weeks later this year than normal, which substantially decreases the visibility of the birds. The late hatch may have been very successful and have the effect of raising the population to some extent," Mitchell explained. "Pheasants have a high reproductive potential.

"One thing the hunter should realize is that our surveys are made in large areas, rather than isolated smaller areas. Hunters may experience local fluctuations to a larger degree than our district estimates show. It is more likely that the removal of a shellerbell where a hunter like to hunt, severe localized hail damage or crop rotation may have a higher degree of impact on the individual hunter's success in the small area where he hunts, than will the trends we calculate in areas containing several counties."

While Mitchell is estimating a 20 percent decline in pheasant numbers across the state, there is quite a different story in the southwest. "The southwest shows a decrease of only 7 percent over the high populations of the past two years. That low percentage decrease should result in no detectable difference from last year's season."

Cottontail Rabbit Season
Sept. 1-Feb. 28; bag limit seven bunnies daily, 21 in possession. Hunting hours - 30 minutes before sunrise to sunset. Beginning Jan. 1 hunting must terminate at 4 p.m.

"Earlier this summer there were bunnies everywhere," Mitchell says, "but there is usually high mortality among rabbits during August before hunting season arrives. This year's numbers appear to be high enough that populations have remained high and rabbit hunters should enjoy another exciting rabbit season."

Squirrel Season
Aug. 1-Jan. 31; bag limit seven squirrels daily, 21 in possession. Hunting hours - 30 minutes before sunrise to sunset. Beginning Jan. 1 hunting must terminate at 4 p.m.

"We are looking for another good year of squirrel hunting for those who take the time to hunt them. Squirrel success usually depends on the availability of mast. We can count on high squirrel populations across the state," Mitchell said.

Snipe Season
Sept. 1-Dec. 15; bag limit eight birds per day, possession limit 16. Hunting hours - 30 minutes before sunrise to sunset.

Like the rail, Nebraska's common snipe is no longer looked upon as a favorite game species, but it does provide fast, exciting shooting action for the few who hunt it. A shore bird, its greatest numbers in Nebraska are found in the rainwater basin.

Woodcock Season
Sept. 15-Nov. 15; bag limit five birds per day, possession limit 10. Hunting hours - 30 minutes before sunrise to sunset.

A favorite of bird hunters in the portion of the country, woodcock are not found in Nebraska in great numbers. Their annual fall migration usually occurs just ahead of a storm front with winds from the north. Best areas for Nebraska woodcock hunting are willow groves along the Platte River in the Kearney area and along the Missouri River in the southeast portion of the state.

Dove Season
Sept. 1-Oct. 15; bag limit 12 birds per day, 24 in possession. Hunting hours - 30 minutes before sunrise to sunset.

1982 should be a good year for dove hunters if the weather stays warm throughout the season. Dove populations in the central states are up, but if the temperature dips below about 50 degrees three or four nights in a row, the birds will migrate to warmer southern areas.

Antelope Season
Rifle Season, Sept. 25-Oct. 31; bag limit, possession limit one antelope, special permit required. Archery season, Aug. 20-Sept. 24; closed for rifle antelope season, Oct. 4-Nov. 12; closed for rifle deer season, Nov. 22-Dec. 31; bag and possession limit one antelope, permit required. Hunting hours - 30 minutes before sunrise to sunset. Antelope populations continue to grow in Nebraska following a decrease in the herd during the severe winter of 1978-79. Biologists say hunters who received antelope permits should enjoy a high success rate during the 1982 season.

Rail Season
Sept. 1-Nov. 9; bag limit and possession limit 10 birds. Hunting hours - 30 minutes before sunrise to sunset.

Although not many people seriously hunt rail in Nebraska anymore, it was once a popular game species in many parts of the country. Most of the rail found in Nebraska are Sora Rail, but there are smaller numbers of Virginia Rail in the state. Rail are birds of the marshes and largest Nebraska populations are found in the rainwater basin.

Grouse Season
Sept. 18-Nov. 14; bag limit three birds per day, nine in possession. Hunting hours - 30 minutes before sunrise to sunset.

Grouse hunters should have a good season this year, with populations estimated to be comparable to previous years. Mitchell says spring rainfall has accounted for an increase in grouse habitat. "The vegetation will be more dense and birds should hold tighter for dogs. The Sandhills rangeland is in excellent condition to provide high quality hunting for the man with a trained hunting dog. Hunters without dogs will have to work a little harder since the birds will be harder to flush from the excellent cover."

Apply for Canada goose permit

Nebraska hunters may apply before Oct. 8 for a special permit to hunt a Canada goose in the sandhills management unit during the 1982 hunting season.

The free permit is required of all hunters wishing to take a Canada goose in the Sandhills Unit to enable biologists to keep track of the goose flock and hunter success during the season.

Each Canada goose taken during the Oct. 30-Nov. 30 season in the Sandhills Unit must be tagged immediately with the tag attached to the special permit. Removal of the tag from the permit cancels the permit.

Only one Canada goose if allowed per hunter per year in this management unit.

These geese are part of a restoration project being attempted by Nebraska, South Dakota, North Dakota, Saskatchewan and Alberta. The program has been termed a success and populations have grown rapidly enough that a controlled hunting season has been possible for the past two years.

Steel shot required upland

Upland game hunters who hunt on federal waterfowl production areas and some wildlife management areas must use steel shot, just as must waterfowl hunters this year.

The Nebraska Game and Parks Commission has prohibited use of lead shot for both waterfowl and upland game hunting on areas that are managed primarily for waterfowl, such as the federal waterfowl production areas (rainwater basins).

Rifle antelope season near Nebraska's 1982 rifle antelope season begins Sept. 25 and continues through Oct. 3 and Game and Parks Commission biologists say hunters should enjoy an exciting season.

Heavy antelope losses occurred during the severe winter of 1978-79. The herd has been slowly bouncing back and hunters have been allowed to harvest some animals each year. This year the Commission authorized a total of 840 rifle antelope permits, 10 permits fewer than last year's total of 850. This change was made by closure of the Dundy Unit for the 1982 season. That unit has only a small local antelope population. The numbers of animals there have decreased slightly and efforts are being made to increase that population.

Antelope may be hunted one-half hour before sunrise to sunset. The hunter must have a special permit and may hunt only the unit specified on his permit.

'Operation game thief' is designed to stop poachers

The Nebraska Wildlife Protectors and the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission are putting together a confidential information program to identify and prosecute poachers.

A reward program has been established to encourage hunters to report poachers. Confidential information regarding the arrest and conviction of those who violate game laws will be given. Emphasis will be placed on violations relating to the taking of game or protected game out of season, over-harvesting of game, taking of game by illegal methods, taking game without a permit or with an improper permit, or killing game and leaving it in the field.

The Nebraska Wildlife Protectors will pay a minimum of $100 for information relative to the illegal taking of small game and a minimum of $250 for information relative to the taking of big game.

Nebraska Wildlife Protectors has a board of 16 directors located throughout the state to administer the program. Funding for the program comes entirely from private donations. Contributors from interested individuals, sportsmen groups, private business or social organizations will be eagerly welcome, as donation money is required to make the program work. All donations are tax deductible. Those wishing to donate money to Operation Game Thief may send their check to Operation Game Thief, in care of Gary Washburn, program chairman, Box 336, Broken Bow, Nebr. 68822.

To report a game violation, call Operation Game Thief toll free hotline number, 800-742-7627. This line is open 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. At other hours or on weekends, contact the nearest conservation officer. Remember, time is an important factor. Report violations immediately!

Informants may remain anonymous and still be eligible for the reward money. When reporting an incident the caller may give his name and address and that information will be kept confidential. If the caller prefers to remain completely anonymous he need not identify himself. He will be given a code number for his identification. At the conclusion of the case, it will be announced that the award is then payable on case number and after verification the caller will receive his reward.

When information is received, officers will investigate the offense immediately. If the information has been reliable and has led to an arrest, the matter will be reviewed by the Nebraska Wildlife Protectors and a decision will be made on the amount of the reward to be paid.

Many game violators are apprehended following a tip from a concerned citizen. Such a tip last year enabled conservation officer Mark Webb of Beatrice to apprehend four out of state hunters, who in six days of hunting near Liberty Nebraska collected 128 quail, 56 birds over their legal limit. Following their arrest the men paid a total of nearly $1,600 in fines.

Game and Parks Commission biologists estimate around 8,000 deer are taken illegally each year in the state, plus uncountable numbers of pheasants, quail and waterfowl.

Game and Parks Commission hunter safety coordinator Dick Turpin says other states have had programs similar to Operation Game Thief for years and have reported positive results. "States like New Mexico (the program used as a model for Nebraska's program), Colorado and Arizona have found the value of this type of program. They have recorded some very big cases and have helped to curb poaching in their states."

With very few exceptions, the poacher has to brag about his deeds - he has to tell someone. Now he'll hesitate to go to the bar and brag. For the first time the opportunity exists for someone to report the poacher's illegal actions and remain anonymous in the process. I think that will be a big deterrent here, just as it has been in other states," Turpin said.

"Remember, too," he added, "that a lot of people turn in information and refuse the award money - they just want to report an illegal offense. I think this is an excellent program, one we have needed for some time. It's probably one of the best things that has ever happened for the benefit of responsible outdoor men."

Approximately 170 4-H and FFA members participated in the 33rd annual Meat Animal Exposition held at the Norfolk Livestock Market on Monday. The show was sponsored by the Ag Council of the Norfolk Chamber of Commerce and the Norfolk Livestock Market.

Those participating from Wayne County and their ribbon placings are as follows: blue Brian Bowers, Winside; Kent Roberts, Wakefield; Cory Thomsen, Wakefield; Barry Bowers, Winside; Jon Meierhenry, Hoskins; Kay Meierhenry, Hoskins; and Shelli Topp, Wayne; red Kenny and Jerry Kramer, Wisner; Keith Roberts, Wakefield; James Roberts and Jerry Williams, Carroll.

Swanson awarded scholarship

Lon Swanson, a junior at the University of Nebraska, was a recipient of the 7000.00 Timothy G. Hornung Scholarship. This scholarship is presented to a student enrolled in the College of Agriculture with a high scholastic record and given by Mrs. Marie Cunningham of North Platte in memory of her brother.

He was also awarded a 200.00 Charles Wright Scholarship at a steak fry on Sept. 2 by the Animal Science Department.

Lon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Swanson, Wayne, is majoring in ag. finance and animal science. He graduated from Laurel Concord High School in 1980.

Lending activity slows

Calvin Allyn, president of the Federal Land Bank Association (FLBA) of Norfolk, reported that Association loans outstanding reached $276 million on June 30.

He said that $68 million was loaned to farmers and ranchers in a 13-county area during the year.

Allyn made these remarks to members during the annual Association's stockholders' meetings held last week. Approximate attendance at the four sectional meetings was: Hartington, 350 people; O'Neill, 250 people; West Point, 300 people; and Norfolk, 450 people.

The level of lending activity by the FLBA has slowed in recent months, said Allyn. He attributed the lower level of lending to the economic situation in agriculture. Most commodity prices are at unsatisfactory levels while production costs remain inflated, Allyn explained.

Higher interest rates have caused many farmers and ranchers to postpone expenditures which require borrowed money and some farmers and ranchers are in poor financial condition and cannot justify additional debt, Allyn said.

He said the FLBA has adequate lending funds and remains prepared to serve all applicants who have a sound basis for credit. At the same time, those borrowers who are experiencing financial problems will receive careful attention and every effort will be made to explore alternatives and options open to them, Allyn said.

Processing center studied

The Nebraska Department of Economic Development and Abel Foundation Funds within the University of Nebraska Foundation are jointly sponsoring a 10-month feasibility study project to evaluate the concept of a Food Processing Research Center to serve Nebraska.

The $20,000 study is being coordinated by Professors Larry Branan and Lowell Satterlee and Associate Professor Charles Walker in the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources Department of Food Sciences and Technology, and Darrell Ullman of the Department of Economic Development. Satterlee will direct the project.

The project will study food research centers throughout the United States and Canada, followed by input from leaders of the state's food production and processing industries and related agribusiness. The project will focus on developing a center to increase utilization of agricultural commodities and products produced in Nebraska, Arnold said.

Favorable returns in eggs

Turkey and egg producers will likely see favorable returns in fourth-quarter 1982, but broiler producers probably face continued poor returns. Favorable crop prospects are expected to hold down feed costs for poultry and egg producers. Export markets are weak, and demand for poultry and eggs continues sluggish despite reduced supplies of pork.

Egg output during September-November is expected to trail last year, possibly by one percent. Layer numbers may remain below last year. Low returns and high interest rates have, in most months, discouraged producers from maintaining replacement pullets at year-earlier levels, although they have been keeping old hens longer.

Cartoned large eggs in New York averaged about 64 cents per dozen during June-August, sharply below last year's 71 cents, partly because of weak exports. During September-November, with exports likely to continue slow, prices are expected to average 70-74 cents because of seasonal strengthening. This compares with last year's 77 cents.

Sundell chosen countess

Sarilyn Ethel Sundell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Sundell of Wakefield, has been chosen to serve as a countess to the court of the 1982 Ak Sar Ben coronation and ball. Sarilyn recently graduated from Nebraska Wesleyan University. She will be one of 16 countesses representing Nebraska and Southwestern Iowa as attendants to the mythical throne of Quivira.

The identities of the 88th king and queen of Ak Sar Ben will be revealed during coronation ceremonies at 8:30 p.m. Friday, Oct. 29, in the Ak Sar Ben Coliseum. The new monarchs will be installed with the tradition and pageantry which has been repeated annually since 1895 to honor leading citizens.

There will be music in the air as this year's theme is "A Grand Night For Singing." Approximately 200 voices will join to sing songs spanning the years of all the Coronations. The pageant will be repeated Saturday night, followed by the annual ball, starring Peter Duchin.

If the popularity of video games is any indication of technological innovation, we can be expecting the American kitchen to be in for big changes. Three trends are here now—speech synthesis or talking appliances, microprocessor chips controlling more appliances, and, of course, a home computer as the heart of home management.

Although the percentage of speech synthesis appliances currently on the market is less than three percent, the outlook for the future is bright.

According to a survey by Appliance Manufacturer magazine cited in the June 1982 issue, 15 percent of design engineers indicated their companies plan to introduce products with speech synthesis included. Estimates suggest that talking appliances will represent 10 percent of total products. Probably the most common talking appliance is the microwave oven, currently available from several manufacturers.

The microwave oven again is one of the leaders in microprocessor chips on the control panel. These chips are coming down in price and are making their way to dishwashers, clothes dryers and even portable appliances. With these chips, appliances can be linked to the home computer for the ultra modern kitchen. A home computer may not seem to be a necessity now, but it is just around the corner. Every magazine, workshop or meeting you may be exposed to predicts the coming of computers in the home.

Our appliances may talk to us in the future, microprocessors will be used in more and more appliances and the home computer may be our lifeline to the outside world. To run these technological wonders, dependable electricity will be a must. Nebraska Public Power District pledges its continued efforts to provide reliable service at the lowest possible cost.

4-H program is cited

"The Nebraska 4-H program has continued to grow and expand over the last decade despite a drop in overall youth population in the state," according to Bill Caldwell, assistant director 4-H, Cooperative Extension Service, University of Nebraska.

"During National 4-H Week, Oct. 29-31, we want to recognize the many contributions to and areas of growth in the 4-H program," Caldwell said.

"One area that deserves such recognition is that of enrollment trends in the state during the past decade," he added.

"Despite the fact that school enrollment in Nebraska has declined some 12 percent since 1971, participation in 4-H has increased from 41,700 in 1971 to 40,716 in 1981," Caldwell said. The loss of approximately 1,000 farms each year in Nebraska is reflected in the number of farm and ranch youth enrolled in 4-H, he said. The 1981 enrollment showed 2,700 fewer farm and ranch youth in 4-H in 1981; however, they still account for about 35 percent of the total enrollment, he said.

The number of boys enrolled increased more than girls in the past decade, thus improving the boy-girl ratio to 44 percent boys and 56 percent girls compared with 35 and 65 percent in 1971, Caldwell stated.

"An increase also was noted in the number of minority youth participating in 4-H," Caldwell said. In 1971, 3 percent of the 4-H enrollment was minority, compared to 7.5 percent in 1981.

Enrollment in organized clubs has declined from a high of 41,383 in 1973 to 29,849 in 1981; however, a slight increase was noted in 1981, he said. Special interest groups increased in number from 164 to 1,074 in the same period, thus resulting in a slight gain in the total number of 4-H groups, Caldwell added.

"Participation in the 4-H program has expanded beyond the organized club, making it possible for more youth to take part in a much wider variety of project areas than a decade ago," he said.

Other areas of 4-H involvement include the Nebraska State Fair, which has increased 8.7 percent in total participation, and 15 percent in the number of exhibits.

Entries at the Ak-Sar-Ben Livestock Exposition peaked in 1975, then declined until 1980 when they started upward again, Caldwell stated. On the other hand, the State Horse Exposition, held at Fanner Park in Grand Island since 1975, has been declining in the number of entries. After reaching a high of 2,091 in 1977, the number of entries has dropped to 1,790 in 1982, he said.

Irrigated soybeans studied

Irrigated soybeans, a relative newcomer to Nebraska's agriculture, are the focus of four water and soil conservation studies during 1982-83 at the University of Nebraska Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources.

The Nebraska Soybean Marketing, Development and Utilization Board has provided $77,700 for the research.

In one of the projects, NU agronomists will irrigate soybeans during either the vegetative, flowering or pod-fill stage to pinpoint when this crop requires water to produce maximum yields. They also will irrigate at various rates to determine how much water soybeans need.

A.D. Flowerday, professor of agronomy, is coordinator of the project. Hobbit and Williams are the soybean varieties being used in the study, which is now underway at the Rogers Memorial Farm near Lincoln.

The second study also is pinpointing when soybeans need water to produce high yields. Project coordinator and assistant professor of agronomy Roger Elmore said that another purpose of the research is to test the merits of using less water by delaying the first irrigation until flowering or pod elongation.

Yields will be compared to a control field, which is being irrigated on the basis of soil moisture deficit rather than the stage of plant development throughout the growing season, Elmore said.

The three year project is underway at the NU South Central Station near Clay Center and at the NU Field Laboratory near Mead. The Mead, Hobbit and Williams 82 varieties are being used in the project.

R.A. Olson, professor of agronomy, is in charge of a third project to study the response of soybeans to nitrogen fertilizer. Prior research has shown that nitrogen fertilizer can significantly increase soybean yields, but only on occasion and apparently related to the availability of water. Olson and his colleagues are identifying the conditions that stimulate the yield increase when nitrogen is supplied to the crop.

In the fourth project, associate professor Elbert Dickey and assistant professor Dave Shelton of the NU department of agricultural engineering are comparing soil erosion from several conservation tillage systems used in corn and soybean residues.

The researchers began the study this past spring. They measured soil losses during the critical erosion period between planting and the establishment of the soybean canopy.

This two year project is being conducted on five to 10 percent slopes at the Northeast State near Concord and the Rogers Memorial Farm near Lincoln.

Enjoyed Husker Harvest

DESPITE A one-day postponement due to wet grounds, Husker Harvest Days was held last Wednesday through Friday west of Grand Island. Thousands of people attended the annual event which showcased the latest in farm equipment, corn dealers' tents and various equipment involved with farming. Heavy rains postponed the event and slowed down Friday's activities. Cool, windy, wet weather hit the area but didn't seem to have much effect on the success of the event. In-field machinery demonstrations were cancelled however. Many spectators attended the three-day festival to see the latest innovation in tractors or most improved hybrids. However, others came from all areas of the state to enjoy the entertainment provided by various entertainers, particularly country western bands. Even, a couple of local farmers from Winside were spotted at Husker Harvest Days, enjoying the demonstrations and seeing the sites. Randy Ritze (left) and Dave Mann walk down one of the many streets located on the grounds at Husker Harvest Days.

This is safety week

So far this year, 15 Nebraska farmers have died in farm accidents, according to Rollin Schnieder, University of Nebraska extension safety specialist. Farm Safety Week, Sept. 19 through 25, serves to remind farmers that caution promotes safety, Schnieder said.

"During the busy harvest time, careless use of equipment can prove fatal," Schnieder said in suggesting a few tips during his TV interview for Farm and Ranch Report to be aired Sept. 23 at 12:30 and 9:30 p.m. on Nebraska ETV.

The wet year brings prospects of a large ensilage harvest and ensilage cutters have many sharp parts that pose hazards — especially to hands and feet, Schnieder said.

"We've seen hands and feet cut off," he said, "and they're very sharp cuts. Of course they are the bleeding type of cut... a person could lose a whole lot of blood in a short period of time."

Tractor overturns are another common cause of accidents. The only type of tractor that should be used on top of a heap of ensilage is a dual wheel tractor with rollover protection, Schnieder advised.

Tractors with wheels too close together may flip over sideways when driven close to the edge. If the hill is too steep, the driver should back up, not force the tractor ahead, or it may topple backwards.

Mowing roadside ditches should only be done with tractors that have protective rollover structures, Schnieder said.

"We have yet to have a fatality in the state of Nebraska where a tractor with overturn protection has fallen over in a side or rear overturn," he said. All of the drivers survived because their tractors had rollover protection.

Silos, too, pose suffocation hazards. The "fruit jar" type of silo uses up oxygen during fermentation, Schnieder said, and should never be entered without carrying an oxygen supply.

Silos that work by bacterial action emit gases — methane that may explode, carbon dioxide that may mask the lack of oxygen, nitrogen dioxide that can cause lung disease.

"I've talked to a lot of people who've told me they've found starlings or sparrows lying down in the silo, and they wonder what the reason was for the dead birds," Schnieder said.

"There just wasn't enough oxygen to sustain life. And consequently, if it will not keep a bird alive, it's not going to keep a human alive."

Filling grain bins also calls for caution. Multiple deaths occurred when augers accidentally contacted overhead power lines, Schnieder said.

On the highway, farm equipment constitutes a wide load that travels slowly only one-fourth as fast as the other traffic. Car drivers often run directly into the rear of farm equipment or they attempt to pass and misjudge the speed of oncoming traffic, he said. Farmers must not only watch their own driving, but also the mistakes made by other drivers.

You can't buy better protection.

IS FALL TILLAGE PROFITABLE?

This is a frequent question so I'd like to quote from September 10 issue of "Soil Science News" written by George Rehm, extension soils specialist at the Northeast Station

In recent years, it seems that more and more farmers are performing some major tillage operations after corn or soybean harvest in the fall. Is this good or bad? Will fall tillage improve the yields of next year's crops?

As would be expected, there is no single easy answer to these questions. Several factors must be considered before these questions can be answered. Advantages and disadvantages of fall tillage must also be weighed.

Advantages which are often cited include 1) reduction in soil compaction, 2) destruction of a hard pan or tillage pan, 3) improvement in water penetration and thus an increase in the amount of stored moisture for next year's crop and 4) reduction in the amount of field work required in the following spring. Some of the disadvantages include 1) reduction of the amount of crop residue left on the soil surface, 2) loss of topsoil by wind erosion when residue is destroyed, and 3) loss of valuable plant nutrients in the topsoil.

The texture of the soil may strongly influence any decision about fall tillage. The effect of fall tillage on corn production was evaluated at the Northeast Experiment Station from 1977 through 1979. The results are presented in the following table:

This study was conducted on a soil which has a silt loam texture. This texture is quite common throughout Nebraska. The corn was not irrigated. Recommended production practices such as plant population and variety selection were used throughout the study.

Effect of tillage systems on production of dryland corn at the Northeast Experiment Station

Tillage System	1977	1978	1979	Average
Tillplant	123	115	129	122
Fall Chisel	124	108	133	122
Spring Plow	134	108	123	122

Although there was some variation among treatments in any given year, this variation was not due to the tillage used. When the 3 year average is used, it's obvious that the tillage system used had no effect on corn production on this soil with a silt loam texture.

In this study, the fall chisel and spring plow operations were followed by a single disking operation. Corn was then planted with a surface planter.

Based on the data listed above, it would appear that there is little, if any advantage when fall tillage is used on soils with a silt loam texture. For this soil, the disadvantages arising from soil erosion can sometimes be quite obvious.

For example, farmers performed a substantial amount of fall tillage following corn and soybean harvest in 1979. In March and April of 1980, road ditches along these fields were filled with good topsoil. The loss of topsoil is important in itself but it also represents a loss of plant nutrients which must be replaced in a fertilizer program. This does nothing but add to the cost of farming.

It's also important to point out that while fall tillage may have few benefits for soils with a silt loam texture this practice may be of some benefit where soils have a clay loam or a silty clay loam texture. So, it's important to know the texture of the soils in any field before making decisions about fall tillage.

HARVEST WITH SAFETY

We want to keep you as our most valued customer

Although you may have no power lines whatsoever in your crop fields, you certainly have them present in equipment storage areas and grain storage areas. Be sure the paths from equipment storage areas to the fields and from the fields to the grain storage areas are safe routes. There should be ample clearance for combines, pickers, bailers, front end loaders, stackers or any other equipment you're moving about your farm. If there is some question about whether equipment will clear a power conductor, assume that it won't and take measures to avoid possible contact.

If you're planning the construction of any new storage bins, be sure to take the placement of existing power lines into account. For the best use of your farm space, storage bins are often erected along property lines. Again, that's just where the power lines usually are.

If you simply can't find adequate space to construct those bins away from power lines, why not contact your electric power supplier for some advice. Someone will be sent to your farm to survey your potential building sites and work with you in order to come to the best possible results. Your complete safety and comfort are prime concerns to your electric power supplier. We'll be happy to assist you in developing a safer farm. Harvest with safety and you'll continue to enjoy a productive life and a productive farm.

Dean receives appointment

Dr. Bartholemew Brady-Clampa, Dean of Graduate Studies and Support Services at Wayne State College, has been appointed as the public higher education representative to the Western Hills Area Education Agency.

The agency, which meets once a month, primarily serves the western Iowa area.

Brady-Clampa, who was appointed for one year, will serve on the agency's 25-member Staff Development Advisory Committee.

Primary goal of the committee is to help provide for advanced educational opportunities for elementary and secondary school teachers and educational agency personnel.

The agency also assists in the professional growth of area educational staff members, particularly toward obtaining advanced degrees.

Brady-Clampa said the committee "lends assistance in providing for the needs of staffs in area education agencies; helps plan courses and programs to meet those needs; recommends staff for the courses and programs; evaluates courses and staffs in relation to their planned goals; and provides a communications link between professional staffs and the staff development coordinator."

He noted that one of the main vehicles to accomplish some of these goals will be Wayne State's Extended Campus operation in South Sioux City, which offers numerous graduate-level courses in education; in addition to undergraduate and enrichment courses.

Rural United-way begins

Laurel will be the site of the first general kickoff dinner of the newly formed Rural Northeast Nebraska United Way.

United Way president Fred Pape said the dinner, slated Oct. 2, will herald the beginning of the overall fund drive.

Volunteer workers from throughout the 12-county area that comprise the Rural Northeast Nebraska United Way area will share in the festivities, Pape said.

The rural program is one of the first in a "truly rural area" of the United States, according to Pape.

Pape said funds will be solicited for a number of local and area charities, including Arthritis Foundation, Salvation Army, Heart Association, Senior Citizens programs, Cerebral Palsy, Easter Seal, Head Start, Lung Association, Kidney Foundation, Diabetes, Girl and Boy Scouts, Legal Assistance, Cystic Fibrosis, Society to Prevent Blindness, WIC, Red Cross, Future Promise, Summer Recreation and local authorized organizations.

If you want a real bargain now is the time to buy. Everything in our store will have an extra special price.

Ouch!! This is great furniture for the extra bedroom. Large triple dresser with doors and 6 drawers — vertical mirror — door chest and headboard. That's right, all four pieces for only $249.95. WOW!! Look at these sofas and sleepers. Here is a beautiful sofa by Mastercraft that was regularly $1,270.00 at an unbelievable low-low price of only $599.95, or how about this traditional sofa in a gold and brown quilted velvet cover that was $669.95, now it can be yours for only $329.95. When we say we're going to move merchandise, that's exactly what we're going to do. Now if you have an Early American Sofa in mind, we have some that are starting as low as $199.95, that's right only $199.95. Take a look at this regular size sleeper with a heavy duty Herculon cover that will go for only $248.88. We have this queen size sleeper with a quilted nylon cover that you can save $300.00 on. Reading this far, you will know that we are serious... We have truckloads of fine furniture that we intend to sell (or should we say, give away) during our Furniture Sell Off and it has to go. Our building and warehouses are loaded with furniture so, of course, we can't possibly list all the items but we can assure you that our prices are right and the lowest in Northeast Nebraska.

In our bedroom department we really have some fantastic buys. Look at this super set by American of Martinsville. All solid wood with door chest and door dresser plus mirror and headboard. This was regularly priced at $1,899.95 but we're going to let it go for only $949.95. This means we have complete sets from $249.95 to $949.95 with over 40 sets to choose from...
