Courageous 4-year-old's life ends with the gift of everlasting love...

By LaVon Anderson

It was a glorious winter morning. The sun rose over the prairie hillsides in brilliant red flames, reaching higher and higher, until, at last, they touched heaven. And at 8:43 a.m., as the earth came to life, Paul Jonathan Ewald Jorde looked up, took his last two breaths — and died.

"THAT'S OK mommy, it's gonna be safe in heaven," young Paul told his mother, Carol, just days earlier. "But I'm going to miss waiting for you there too." At the age of four years and nine months, Paul's death on Tuesday, Dec. 21, 1982 at his home in Wayne came peacefully. The battle was fought, his suffering was ended.

FOR NEARLY three years, Paul's battle had been fought against neuroblastoma — a pediatric cancer of the central nervous system with bone involvement.

His disease was diagnosed on April 15, 1980, and doctors offered little hope for the youngster's survival.

Then in July of this year, two years and three months after Paul's cancer was diagnosed, hope were raised. Examinations showed that the cancer was in remission.

In September, however, Paul complained of back pain, and by the third week in October he was unable to walk.

'That's OK mommy, it's gonna be safe in heaven . . . But I'm going to miss waiting for you there too'

— Paul Jonathan Ewald Jorde

On Oct. 21, Paul's mother learned her son had six weeks to live. Omaha doctors had discovered tumors in Paul's bones.

Carol spent that day in the hospital bed with her son. "We cried and grieved together."

On Nov. 2, Paul returned to Wayne to spend his remaining days with his mother and six year-old brother Brian.

"HE DIED peacefully in his bed," says Carol, who kept the promise she made to her son in December.

Carol promised Paul no more hospitals and no more pokes, a term the family had come to use lovingly in reference to the chemotherapy injections Paul took.

Drugstore & gift shop both sold

Sav-Mor Drug and the Loft have been sold to pharmacist Will and Sue Davis of Stromsburg, it was announced Wednesday by Dick and Becky Keidel. The effective date of the change of ownership will be Jan. 3.

Will and Sue Davis and their two children will be moving to Wayne between Christmas and New Years Day from Stromsburg where they have been co-owners of Christensen Drug.

"The decision to sell Sav-Mor Drug has been difficult to make since we have enjoyed the loyal support of many, many fine customers who have become great friends," Keidel said. "Because of this support, Sav-Mor Drug and the Loft have been able to show continued growth and expansion during the 15 years we've been in Wayne."

KEIDEL SAID that his family's immediate plans are not definite but added that they will continue to live in Wayne. "I intend to do some relief and consulting pharmacy work in the area. We also plan to have more time to spend in management of retail businesses in Iowa and rental property in Wayne," said Keidel.

During a major remodeling period in 1976, the pharmacy was relocated at 1022 Main Street. A new prescription department was installed and a Hallmark Shop was created within the store.

The Loft opened in November of 1977. The gift shop is located on an upper level on the south side of the pharmacy.

Only two shopping days left for last-minute Wayne Santas

The streets of Wayne are alive with last-minute shoppers, carolers and Christmas cheer.

With only a day or two left before Christmas, the joys of the last-minute buying rush are bringing out the shopping spirit in the toughest Old Scrooge.

Thursday night's extended shopping hours promise to keep Wayne merchants marching to the merry ring of Christmas cash register bells.

Also, Thursday night's last-minute shopping will be punctuated by a Christmas car and gasoline giveaway, plus the season's final Bonus Bucks drawing.

On Friday, Christmas Eve, most Wayne stores will close at 4:30 p.m., and remain closed on Saturday — Christmas Day.

The Wayne Herald, which will not publish a Monday edition this week, will be closed all day Friday and Saturday for the Christmas holiday.

Business hours will resume Monday, Dec. 27, for the regular Thursday edition. Merry Christmas.

Rich's food, fun & fuel

Planners okay permit on self-service pumps

Food, fun and fuel. That's what's happening at Rich's Super Foods and Family Fun Center on Main Street north.

The food and fun part of the business venture is already in place.

And, after Tuesday night's special City Planning Commission meeting, there's a green light on the fuel.

CITY PLANNERS approved, on a 5-1 vote, a conditional use permit for owner Rich Anderson that could pave the way for self-service gasoline pumps in front of the store.

According to Marcia Pankaskie, city planner, only one possible roadblock remains in Anderson's way — compliance with the state fire marshal's codes.

Glen Ellingson, commission chairman, was the only planner present to oppose approval of the conditional use permit.

"My only reason is the 15 feet," Ellingson told The Wayne Herald.

The chairman was referring to a state fire marshal requirement that gasoline pumps be positioned "at least 15 feet back of the business property line."

ACCORDING TO Pankaskie, the 15-foot setback question was not within the purview of the planners.

"It's a may and can question," Pankaskie explained to the commission.

"We decide if he may (put in the pumps)," she said. "And, the fire marshal decides if he can (put in the pumps)."

Anderson, who was at the Dec. 6 public hearing on his conditional use permit application, was not at Tuesday's special meeting.

On Dec. 6, the commission tabled the application, seeking additional information about the setback.

TUESDAY NIGHT, Pankaskie told the commission that the decision to grant the permit must be based on six criteria, none of which addressed the state fire marshal's setback code.

"The building is grandfathered in (to the city zoning regulations) for setbacks," she said. "So, if (the question) does not apply (with regard to city zoning regulations)."

Ellingson then said if Anderson got conditional-use permit approval from the commission, the matter "still must get state fire marshal approval."

Pankaskie agreed.

Within minutes, the commission approved the conditional-use permit application on the strength of a motion by Kent Hall, a commissioner and owner of Wayne Greenhouse.

Another question that developed during the early December meeting involved the use of the building, which is zoned for neighborhood business.

Kardell, a commissioner and Wayne farmer, said that Anderson had discussed another alternative.

According to Kardell, Anderson suggested that they proposed self-service gasoline pumps could be installed at an angle across the southeastern corner of the property, opposite the storefront doors.

The Anderson option conveyed by Kardell gained little ground in discussion.

Kardell did confirm, however, that Anderson's absence from the special meeting was in no way to be construed as lack of interest in pursuing the self-service gas pump project.

"He said he still wants the pumps," Kardell told the commissioners, explaining that Anderson was at work.

ANDERSON'S PROPOSAL is to install self-service pumps between the Rich's Super Foods/Family Fun Center building, on the west side of Main Street north, and the state Highway 15 property line.

Unofficial measurements show the distance between the storefront and the sidewalk to be just under 15 feet.

Another question that developed during the early December meeting involved the use of the building, which is zoned for neighborhood business.

Norfolk native plans to return as family practitioner

By Randall Howell

Wayne will have another family physician come summer.

Dr. Todd French, a Norfolk native, has agreed to return to Wayne after completing his family-practice certification.

French, 29, who has been practicing medicine in Wayne for two months as part of the Lincoln Family Practice Program, plans to be back in Wayne by late summer.

THE YOUNG doctor, the first in Wayne under the program, will join the Wayne Family Practice Group headquartered at the Pearl Street clinic operated by Dr. Willis Wiseman and Dr. James Lindau.

French, who arrived in Wayne in early November, completes his two-month out-state residency requirement on Friday.

The 1971 graduate of Norfolk High School has been working with Wiseman and Lindau, also a graduate of the Lincoln Family Practice Program, at the Family Practice Group clinic, and Drs. Walter and Robert Bentback at the Bentback Clinic.

When French returns to Wayne to set up practice with Wiseman and Lindau, he also will be available, on a rotating schedule, at the group's satellite clinics in Laurel and Wisner.

A 1975 GRADUATE of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, French said he expects to complete requirements for his family practice certification in June.

"We plan to take a vacation and then move the family to Wayne," French told The Wayne Herald.

"By the time all that gets accomplished, it will be late July or early August," explained the 1980 University of Nebraska Medical School graduate, who is in his third year of residency training.

"We decided to stay in Nebraska," French said. "I've been in Nebraska all my life and my wife is a Nebraskan."

French's wife, Terri, is an Osceola native and an elementary special education teacher. They have two sons — Matthew, 2, and Christopher, 1.

"IT'S BEEN a good experience here," French said of his two months in Wayne.

"The town has been very accepting of me and my family."

French said working with both clinics has given him an opportunity to see a very complete picture of the medical services offered in Wayne.

"I have been working mornings with Wiseman and Lindau and afternoons with the Bentbacks," he explained.

"That, plus participating in an on-call rotation with the doctors here has given me an opportunity to treat patients at both clinics and at the hospital (Providence Medical Center)," he said.

"There's certainly a need here (for more doctors) on a population basis," he explained. "And, particularly so when you add the satellite clinics of the Wayne Family Practice Group."

UNDER THE program, the four practicing Wayne physicians underwrite the housing costs for the French family and pool financial resources for his two-month salary.

"The doctors here have been real accepting and even energetic in meeting my needs in every way," French said.

"They've really gone out of their way to make sure everything is going okay," he said, despite the ankle injury he received about four weeks ago on the racquetball court in the fitness center at PMC.

"I've been to several small communities and to several small community hospitals," he continued. "And, Wayne's medical facilities, including the hospital, are excellent."

FRENCH, WHO admits a fondness for hunting and fishing, said he found the hospital physical plant, plus accommodations (such as operating rooms and instruments) in fine shape.

"The quality of medicine here is current," he added. "I'd say 90 percent of the things

Politics pumped up state economy

By Melvin Paul
Nebraska Press Association

In an otherwise bleak economy, those who were fortunate enough to be selling goods and services to political candidates this year were in a good position to make a profit.

Reports filed with the Nebraska Accountability and Disclosure Commission recently indicate that the cost of running for office in the state just keeps rising.

The governor's race was the most costly, with the candidates spending a combined total of $1.9 million. Republican Gov. Charles Thone spent $1,028,532 in his losing effort. Democratic Gov.-elect Bob Kerrey spent $868, 833, including $729,330 which he borrowed.

THE TOTAL compares to the $907,110 spent by Thone and Democrat Gerald Whelan of Hastings in 1978.

In legislative races, it didn't take state lawmakers long to eclipse the 1980 race between state Sen. Steve Fowler of Lincoln and Jerry Sellentin as the most expensive in that category.

In the 40th legislative district this year, Sen. John DeCamp of Neligh spent $70,626 to retain his seat. Opponent Jim Wolf of Albion spent $53,494, ringing the combined total to $124,120. That's $645 more than the Fowler-Sellentin race.

On Initiative 300, the family farm amendment, opponents reported expenditures of $448,943 in their unsuccessful effort to beat it. Supporters reported expenditures of $33,463.

ALTHOUGH THE state Board of Equalization has met twice in recent weeks and each time agreed on 1983 state income tax rate of 18 percent of federal tax liability, the debate on the tax rate is expected to continue in the new year.

The five-member board, of which Gov. Thone is chairman, rejected a motion at its Dec. 13 meeting, which was offered by Secretary of State Allen Beermann, to set the rate at 20 percent of federal liability. Beermann and outgoing Tax Commissioner Don Leuenberger, voting for the higher rate. Thone, State Treasurer Kay Orr, and State Auditor Ray A.C. Johnson voted against the higher rate.

On Nov. 15, a motion by Leuenberger to set the rate at 20 percent failed for lack of second

SOME STATE senators and some local government officials say the lower tax rate clearly won't provide enough revenue to maintain state government and provide a prudent reserve.

For one thing, the 18 percent rate doesn't recognize the effect of the July 1 federal tax cut. By reducing the state income tax base, the federal cut has the inadvertent effect of depriving the state of an estimated $60 million.

Thone, Orr and others adamantly disagree that the higher rate is needed. As for the federal cut, there'll be time to address that matter next spring, they say.

Gov.-elect Bob Kerrey has indicated that he'll convene the board to examine the tax rate sometime after his inauguration. Kerrey said the 18 percent rate appears inadequate, but he hasn't said what the rate should be.

quote, but he hasn't said what the rate should be.

IF KERREY and the board balk at setting a higher rate early next year, Sens. Cal Carsten of Avoca and Jerome Warner of Waverly say they'll introduce a bill to set the tax rate legislatively.

Under Nebraska law, the board of equalization commonly sets the rate at a level sufficient to cover spending and to provide a reserve. Nothing prevents the Legislature, however, from intervening in the process and getting the tax rate in statute.

The Legislature returns for its annual regular session next month, and it looks as if its members will be looking at some significant changes in state tax law.

Among them is an expansion of the sales tax base. The Revenue Committee is currently discussing the possibility of extending the sales tax to services such as auto repair, legal services, car washes and the like. The tax is now levied only on the sale of goods.

Silent night...

Christmas Eve...the silent sacred night. The holy night...when hearts stand still to herald the birth of a baby — the prince of peace.

All has come to this...the serenity of a bright star searching the heavens for hope.

And, that hope found a home here...where the farmland gives before the plow.

Here, where birth still brings joy. Here, where the hearts of humankind feel the hope and hear the glorious silence.

Here, where the rural spirit is tested by the struggle to survive. Here, where the manger is real and where the neighbors take you in. Here, where there is room to grow with the help of a farmer's hands.

Yes, here, where the gift of life and the presence of peace is nurtured and protected.

Here, where the wonder of the Christmas mystery moves the wise men and women of the land to tearful happiness.

Here, where the harvest of hope is bred into the hearts of rural children. Here, where the seeds of love are planted and replanted in a ritual that renews the land, and the rural life it sustains.

Here, where shepherds of the soil keep a watch by night and day to share the rebirth of hope with humanity.

Yes, here, where the sounds of a silent night settle in the hearths and hearts of a rural people secure in the sacred moments that stir a peaceful prairie soul.

Here, where the tired tillers of the earth rest beneath bright stars...stars that serve as beacons for the homebound.

The RIF miff

There's room for plenty more RIFs at the Department of Labor, according to a recent account in the Washington "Times" by a former department employee.

Mindy Farber described a typical day in her Labor office: "Our office's staff spent most of its time figuring out how little work could be done in an eight-hour day... Everyone would straggle in at least 15 minutes late in the morning and immediately head to the cafeteria for coffee.

These coffee breaks would last as long as 45 minutes. The rest of the morning would be spent on the telephone — to friends, spouses, doctors, real estate agents and plumbers.

Lunch would never last less than two hours, at which time the entire office would leave together, abandoning the telephone switchboard and its incoming jam of telephone calls.

"An office administrative assistant...hosted an informal club of staffers from 3 to 5. Men and women from all walks of life would gather in her room, turn on a radio and disco enthusiastically.

"Quiet down!" the receptionist would sometimes yell. The noise apparently interfered with her favorite soap operas, which she watched on a table television assembled for her by a chief attorney in the office."

Pay-raise vote capped hike

Last week, the House of Representatives and the Senate debated whether to continue a freeze on congressional pay increases.

Without an extension of the pay cap, an increase estimated to be 27 per cent would automatically take effect. Legislation approved by the House limited the increase to 15 per cent, after a vote to continue the current pay cap failed on a 208-208 tie.

At the time I write this column, the Senate Appropriations Committee, in its version of the bill, has continued the pay cap for senators, but allowed the 15 per cent increase for House members to stand.

NO MATTER what happens with this proposal, I want to set the record straight regarding the votes in the House on the congressional pay raise. It has been inaccurately reported that I voted for the pay raise. I did not.

At issue was a 27 per cent salary increase for members of Congress. Current law provides for automatic salary increases. If no action had been taken, members would have had a 27 per cent pay increase.

House rules permitted two pay raise amendments to be offered and considered on the House floor. The first amendment by Rep. Vic Fazio of California reduced the increase from 27 per cent to 15 per cent. A vote against the Fazio amendment was a vote to leave the 27 per cent pay increase in place. I voted to reduce the increase from 27 per cent to 15 per cent.

The second amendment, introduced by Rep. Bob Traxler of Michigan, was an amendment to freeze congressional pay at the present level. If that amendment had passed, there would have been no increase in pay. I voted for the Taxier amendment to freeze pay at the current level. Unfortunately, that amendment did not pass.

congressman doug bereuter

IF THE FAZIO amendment had not passed earlier, we would today be facing a 27 per cent pay increase instead of a 15 per cent increase. In both instances, I voted for the lower salary, including no raise at all.

I don't believe Congress should increase its pay for the session in which it is sitting, especially during a period of high unemployment and depressed economic conditions.

Studded-tire issue spins state wheels

I extend my best wishes to all for a Merry Christmas and Happy New Year.

The first session of the 88th Legislature is scheduled to begin Wednesday, Jan. 5.

The Legislature should be in session until the end of May instead of the end of April as it was last year. This is due to the constitutional requirement that the Legislature meet for 90 days on odd-numbered years and 60 days on even-numbered years.

I HAVE NOT been idle since the Legislature adjourned last April. Committee hearings, district meetings, and the Special Session have kept me quite busy.

Most recently, I travelled throughout the district to meet with my constituents. I was very pleased with the turnout. As a result of those meetings I learned quite a bit about how the people of District 17 feel on a number of issues.

Questions about real estate taxes, water, multi-banking, road conditions, the Christian school issue, and sales and income tax rates came up frequently, indicating that the people at home have a good grasp of what the major issues in the upcoming Session are going to be.

ONE ISSUE which was raised probably more than any other was whether or not Nebraskans should still be allowed to drive with studded tires.

Senator Labedz of Omaha recently attacked the law prohibiting the use of studded tires and won a temporary stay of enforcement of the law until the Legislature considers her bill to allow studded tires.

However, the attorney general, Paul

Frankly, I resent being so frequently placed in this pay raise hassle with no win, in direct votes on this subject. It is unfair to me and to my constituents who deserve an accurate report of my voting record.

I sponsored contract sanctity legislation in the House earlier this year, and last week I urged my colleagues to accept similar provisions added to the Commodity Futures Trading Commission bill.

THE CONTRACT sanctity amendment provides that if the government imposes an export embargo on agricultural commodities, it can block only future sales and cannot be used to prevent delivery on contracts signed before the embargo was imposed.

If we are to make any progress in our efforts to regain our position as a reliable supplier of agricultural commodities, it is essential that the Congress speak clearly on the issue of contract sanctity and that the president sign this bill.

senator merle von minden

Douglas, stated that the stay of enforcement, which allows the temporary continued use of studded tires, applies only to Douglas County where the lawsuit was filed.

As a practical matter, the State Patrol has indicated that they will probably not enforce the law anywhere in the state for the time being, although local law enforcement officers might.

I WAS A LITTLE surprised to find that this was such an important issue here. Studded tires are still popular but I think this is due largely to a lack of understanding of the amount of damage they do to our highways and their questionable safety value.

The Nebraska Department of Roads estimated last year that the cost of repairing and replacing highways damaged by studded tires would be approximately $270,000 per mile or $35,300,000 just on the Interstate alone. Can we afford this cost at a time when state government is pinching every penny it has?

Wayne coach, state champs will be honored

In 1953, Wayne High School hired Harold Maciejewski as teacher and coach. At that time, no one knew that Mac would someday become a basketball coaching legend at the school.

Maciejewski coached on the list of top 10 Class B basketball coaches of all-time according to Jerry Mathers, author of "Nebraska High School Sports."

Mac's career record of 247 wins and 66 losses still ranks him among Nebraska basketball coaches. His teams won or shared the West Husker Conference championships five consecutive times and seven times in his 14 years as head coach. Nine Class B district titles are among his accomplishments.

ONE OF MAC'S best teams was the squad of 1956 which racked up a 16-1 record and won the Class B state title, beating his old high school, Loup City, in the semifinals.

Maciejewski and his state champion team will be honored Tuesday night between the Wayne girls and Wayne boys basketball games in the Wayne State College Holiday Tournament. The girls are scheduled to play at 6:30 with the boys game to follow at 8 p.m.

The honor ceremony will be held between games and many members of the 1956 team have indicated they will return for the affair.

Mac has served Wayne High School as athletic director for 35 years. In addition to his successful basketball coaching career, he accumulated a 45-24-4 football record at Wayne and a record of 31-20-2 at Loup City. Mac has coached cross country for 20 years and golf for 27—two sports in which he is still active. At Loup City, he coached track for six years.

MAC'S TEAMS at Wayne won seven consecutive basketball district titles, three football division championships and one football conference title.

Among the numerous awards won by Maciejewski are a 25-year award from the Nebraska Coaches Association, an Outstanding Service Award from the Athletic Directors Association and the 1956 Siouxland Coach of the Year Award.

Harold Maciejewski was born and raised on a small farm outside of Loup City and graduated from Loup City High School in 1938.

He earned many high school honors and was awarded a full-ride football scholarship to Henderson State College, Arkadelphia, Ark.

At Henderson State, Mac was named to the all-conference third team as a freshman, to the second team as a sophomore and to the first team during his junior and senior years.

PLAYING GUARD, Maciejewski also was elected co-captain and outstanding athlete of the school in 1941-42. His ability earned him a tryout contract with the Cleveland Rams.

His chance for a tryout fell through when he instead served his country from 1943-45 as an Army engineer in Australia and Manila, Philippines.

Mac taught for half a year in 1946 at Manila, Ark., and then joined the staff at his home town of Loup City where he became head football coach and assistant for basketball.

In 1947, Mac married Deloris Jasnock. The couple has three daughters. Carole is teaching in Las Vegas. Karen is a housewife in Lincoln and Stacy is in real estate sales in Tucson.

Maciejewski decided to take a break from teaching and coaching in 1982 when he began selling insurance. After 38 years, he has realized that he missed his boys and coaching.

THE FOLLOWING year, Mac was hired at Wayne High School. His basketball teams went to state in 1961, '64, '66, '69, '70 and '74.

Deloris died in 1965 following a lengthy illness and in 1971 Mac married LeAnn Peterson. LeAnn has two daughters, Rhonda of Davenport, Iowa and Marta of Chicago. The couple has nine grand children.

Randy's Recap

By Randy Hascall

Tie for national title

The past few weeks have been quite hectic for this reporter with the usual winter sports coverage and other general news assignments. It has been difficult to find time to write this column and space in the paper hasn't always permitted it to run. I'll try to do better in the future.

Should Penn State and Nebraska both win their bowl games, I would suggest a tie for the national championship between the two teams. Penn State fans will point out the fact that the Nittany Lions won the shootout between the squads earlier this fall. Nebraska fans will remind us that the Cornhuskers would have won that game with good officiating.

Both sides have valid points but I'm in the opinion that those teams are near y equal. If they would play each other 10 times, each could darn well win five games. I feel Penn State is better than Georgia and hopefully that will be proven in the Sugar Bowl. And Nebraska better prove itself in the Orange Bowl.

Cut off bowl contracts

I have never been in favor of contracts with bowl games. For as long as I can remember the Big 10 champion and Pac 10 (formerly 8) champ have played in the Rose Bowl. The Cotton Bowl has been tied to the Southwest Conference winner and the Orange Bowl has promised to accept the Big Eight champ. The Sugar Bowl takes the Southeastern titlist.

Although most of the bowls are less tied down than the Rose Bowl, it just doesn't make sense to have all of those contracts. Georgia doesn't even have to play conference for Alabama yet gets an opportunity to play for the national title. SMU, Georgia and Nebraska are three of the top ranked teams in the country but have bowl contracts that prevent them from going head to head.

Another problem is that bowl game invitations are issued too early. When invitations are issued before the final games of the season, some fine, deserving ball clubs stay home. And some other teams that have locked up bowl berths lose their final games.

The whole system needs to be revamped.

Nebraska boys doing well

The best crop of basketball talent in the history of the state of Nebraska was graduated last spring. Five of the best roundballers ever produced in Nebraska country stepped on to major college basketball.

I was able to watch the Marquette Iowa game several weeks ago and was somewhat surprised to see Vic Lazzarotti start. Kerry Trotter was sixth man and a valuable asset to the team. Both are former Omaha Creighton Prep stars and both are making names for himself at Marquette.

Duke also played on ESPN a couple weeks ago and Bill Jackman saw action in that game. Jackman is the most publicized and most highly regarded player to leave Nebraska and it appears he will be a fine college player. Playing for Duke, the Grant High School graduate is one of five freshmen who are among the top eight players on the team.

Jackman pulled a hip muscle while starting the first game of the year and had to sit out several games. He's back now and showed lots of promise in Duke's loss to Virginia. ESPN will carry a lot of Duke games this season.

Ron Kellogg is another familiar name and the former Omaha Northwest star is now at Kansas University. I haven't heard much about him but have learned that he has been getting lots of playing time.

One of the prize college recruits elected to stay at Nebraska and play for the Cornhuskers. Dave Hoppen is proving to be a valuable player for NU and should keep getting better. He'll be a fine one before he completes his college career.

Those of course, aren't the only fine players who went on to college but they are five of the best. It will be interesting to follow those young men for four years.

Final four picks

Looking at the top basketball teams around the country, Virginia and Kentucky appear to be at the top of the list. I think both of those teams have a good shot at reaching the NCAA Final Four.

Often, some of the best basketball teams in the nation are upset before getting to the semifinals of the playoffs. Georgetown could very well be a victim this year.

My predictions for the Final Four are Virginia, Kentucky, UCLA and Iowa. Kentucky will reign as national champion. It's anybody's guess.

The search continues

The search for a Wayne State football coach continues. I have no inside information on the search but have been told that many applications have been received. We'll keep you posted if we learn more.

Some good comes out of Laurel's 'worst game'

Two good things came out of the Laurel girls' 25-20 win over Osmond Tuesday night. One is a conference victory and the other is a new scoring leader.

The Bears won their fifth consecutive game and improved to 3-0 in the Clark Division of the Lewis & Clark Conference. In those five games, Laurel has now had five different leading scorers.

Wendy Robson paced the hosts with nine points, including some key free throws late in Tuesday's triumph.

LAUREL COACH Dwight Iverson was far from happy with his team's effort. This was the worst game we've played in three years. We stunk the gym up," Iverson said. "We were a little overconfident. We'll remedy that real fast."

The Bears hit only seven shots from the field in 44 attempts for 16 percent. "It was just a very off night. I knew it was going to be a big game. We have to be ready every game," said Iverson.

Although the score was usually close, the Bears seemed to have control until Osmond rallied in the fourth quarter.

An eight point lead after three quarters dwindled to two points with 1:14 left in the game. Three key plays in the final minute preserved Laurel's win. Two were rebounds and the other was a steal.

WITH 51 SECONDS remaining, Osmond missed a shot and Laurel's Kelli Johnson pulled down a big rebound. Johnson was fouled and missed the front of a one and one situation.

The Tigers rebounded but Kim Sherry stole a pass and was fouled with 10 seconds left. She also missed but Wendy Robson grabbed the rebound and was fouled on the play.

A technical foul was called on Osmond because one player saw action in too many quarters, counting the varsity and reserve games.

Robson stepped to the free throw line and hit the technical shot plus both ends of the one and one to give Laurel a 25-20 lead. In addition, the Bears were awarded possession of the ball on the technical.

DESPITE THE close score, the fans were not treated to an exciting game. Both teams shot poorly as Laurel moved to a 5-4 first quarter lead. The second quarter wasn't much more offensive as both teams were troubled by zone defenses and the Bears held on 9-8 at the half.

The hosts slowly pulled away in the second half leading by as many as eight points. But turnovers and missed shots enabled Osmond to stage a comeback.

For the game, Robson scored nine points. Renee Gadeken scored eight points and had seven rebounds. Sherry had four points and nine rebounds and Patsy Thompson scored four points.

WENDY ROBSON of Laurel, hits a technical free throw late in the Laurel-Osmond game. Teammate Kelli Johnson and two Osmond players watch.

Allen girls on the move

An explosive offensive attack was set up by a tight pressure defense as the Allen girls rolled to an easy 65-35 shelling of Homer Tuesday night in Homer.

"We were able to put some pressure on them and got some turnovers. We hustled as a team," Allen coach Gary Troth said.

Machelle Pettit and Michelle Harder paced the Eagles' attack with 14 and 12 points respectively. Harder and Jeanne Warner each pulled down 11 rebounds to lead that area.

steals. Homer was led by Ann Beardshear with 10 points.

Troth was especially pleased with the play of Jewell and Pettit. He said both girls showed lots of hustle.

The Eagles used their fastbreak to open up a 19-9 first quarter lead and a big 41-19 advantage at the half. With the big lead, Allen had what Troth termed "a lax third quarter."

Because the girls game was the first of a varsity doubleheader, no junior varsity game was played.

The Eagles are scheduled to play in the Ponca Tournament Jan. 6-8. Allen will meet Laurel at 6:30 on Thursday, Jan. 6. Ponca and Newcastle will clash in the other first round game with consolation scheduled at 8 p.m. Friday and the championship game at

Winside Wildcats thump Wynot boys

Everyone saw action as the Winside Wildcats clubbed Wynot 58-35 Tuesday night in the boys' end of a girls and boys double-header at Wynot.

Three members of Mark Freburg's ball club scored in double figures to give the Wildcats their most balanced scoring attack of the season. Scott Janke topped the charts with 19 points, followed by Jon Meierhenry with 15 points and John Hawkins with 13.

THE WILDCATS hit 36.4 percent of their 55 shots and made 56 percent of their free throws while improving their record to 2-2. Winside led by six points after one quarter and by 20 points after two. All of Freburg's varsity players saw action in the victory. Wynot was led by Dale Heine with 13 points and Tom Hochstein with 12.

The locals tallied 34 rebounds with Janke getting nine and Ronnie Prince pulling down seven. The Cats had some trouble controlling the ball and committed 31 turnovers. There was no junior varsity game.

Winside (2-2) is scheduled to play at Walthill on Jan. 4.

1982 ends with loss

Outside shooting proved to be the difference as Wynot trimmed Winside 36-23 Tuesday in girls basketball action at Wynot.

Winside coach Don Leighton said his team's defense held Wynot outside but the hosts hit from that range.

A low shooting percentage and turnovers plagued the Wildcats. Winside turned the ball over 27 times and shot only 19 percent from the field after averaging approximately 30 percent through the first three games.

PAM PETER scored nine points and Leah Jensen hit seven to lead Winside. Karlene Benschoot scored four. Karen Reeg made two and Trisha Topp added one point. For Wynot, Joselyn Wieseler and Diane Stratman each had 10 points.

Winside's rebounding was balanced with Trisha Topp and Benschoot grabbing two cars each apiece. Three other girls had three each.

"Our all-around team play was good—we never gave up," Leighton said. "The team is hustling and the players are trying to improve. We're still young but we're making progress. Our tremendous fan support went clear to Wynot. It seemed like a home crowd and that helps an awful lot."

The Wildcats improved their free throw shooting, hitting 11 of 19 for the night. Next action for Winside is scheduled Jan. 7 at Beemer.

JON MEIERHENRY of Winside goes up for a shot against Coleridge. Other Winside players pictured are Ronnie Prince (30), Scott Janke and John Hawkins.

Turnovers, rebounding stop Cats

By the time the Winside Wildcats began to make their move Friday night, it was too late to catch powerful Coleridge. The Bulldogs posted a 56-41 victory in Lewis & Clark Conference basketball action.

Coleridge led 17-8 after one quarter of play and 29-12 at the half. By the end of the third period, Winside trailed 22-44. A 19-12 scoring edge in the final period did nothing more than cut the final margin to 15 points.

John Meierhenry led the Wildcats with 15 points and eight rebounds. Scott Janke scored seven, John Hawkins scored six, Jeff Behmer hit five and Dan Mundill and Ronnie Prince each added four. Prince also grabbed seven rebounds.

THE AREA that probably hurt the Wildcats the most was rebounding. Winside had 24 total rebounds while Coleridge dominated the offensive boards with 15 rebounds and also outdid the Cats on the defensive end of the court.

Winside hit 18 of 52 shots from the floor for 34.6 percent. Coleridge was led by Mike Hofart with 16 points and Doug Hahne with 15. The hosts also were hampered by 18 turnovers.

"I think Coleridge might have surprised us. They have a good team and turnovers hurt us. Rebounding hurt us more than anything," Winside coach Mark Freburg said. Coleridge also defeated Winside in the junior varsity game. No statistics or scoring were available.

The Wildcats will play at Walthill on Jan. 4 and at Beemer Jan. 6.

Carol

 "This is the happiest day of my life," little Paul told his mother after hearing her promise.
 "It just felt right all along, Paul wanted to be home and I wanted to be there when he died," Carol murmured, emotion choking her voice.

ON FRIDAY night, Paul's last wish was granted when he watched the movie "Star Wars" from his bed at home.
 The request was granted following a telephone call Carol received on Wednesday from a representative of Teddi Project in Pittsford, N. Y.
 Teddi Project is an organization devoted to granting last requests to dying youngsters.
 "Paul's wish was to go into outer space," Carol says, her laughter mixed with tears. "His second wish was for a television and video tape recorder.
 Through the Teddi Project, a television was rented from T&C Electronics in Wayne, and 12 video tapes were obtained from Logan Electronics in Norfolk.
 "Paul watched 'Star Wars' on Friday night. That was the last time he really talked," says Carol.

"PAUL HAS been the most significant person in my life for bravery and trusting," Carol says, fighting back the tears.
 "He always took better care of me than I look of him. He just always took care of me," she echoes softly.
 "Even though it's been so painful watching my child die, it has changed me forever. I'll never be the same.
 "Paul's whole life was a ministry to other people. Everyone was unusually touched by Paul."

WHAT MESSAGE did Paul leave for all of us?
 "You need to do what you want to do with your life today," says Carol.
 "Paul knew that. He grabbed every minute and lived it to the fullest.
 "I guess he sensed the urgency," Carol says softly.

PAUL'S LIFE is depicted in a collage of pictures which hang near his small, wooden casket at Willse Funeral Home in Wayne.
 The casket was made by Willard Willse of Wayne, and near it sets a box of crayons.
 "We're letting the youngsters color anything they want on Paul's wooden box," says Carol.

 "It's a sense of hope — even though it's so terribly painful.
 "This is the scariest thing that has ever happened to me," whispers Carol.
 "People have been super and I want to say a big thank you to all the people who have supported me."

SERVICES FOR Paul are scheduled today (Thursday) at 2 p.m. at Redeemer Lutheran Church in Wayne.
 "We celebrate the life of Paul Jonathan Ewald Jorde," is written across the front of the memorials for today's service.

 A message inside the memorial from Paul's parents and brother Brian expresses their hope that persons attending Paul's memorial service not only reflect on the sadness of his illness, but also on the quality of his life and on the joy he has given to all those who know him.
 "We have been touched by his tenderness and bravery and we will never be the same," writes the family.

OFFICIATING AT the service will be the Rev. David Kehret of Omaha and the Rev. Daniel Monson of Wayne.

 Honorary pallbearers are Amy Baldwin of Omaha, Michelle and David Beamer of Lincoln, Steven Kok of Plaza, N. D., Shane and Tami Geiger of Wayne, Sarah Laughlin of Eden Prairie, Minn., Michael March of Wayne, and Kjerstin and Tony Moody of Eagan, Minn.

Paul is preceded in death by his maternal grandmother and paternal grandparents.

Wayne agent honored for grain insect program

William M. Cords, personnel officer for the Nebraska Cooperative Extension Service, has been named recipient of the Chester I. Walters Extra Mile Award. Kenneth Bolen, assistant director of the Nebraska Cooperative Extension Service and awards committee chairman, announced the recipients of a number of Extension awards.

John "Jack" Campbell, extension entomologist and professor at the NU North Platte Station, received the Distinguished Extension Specialist Service Award. The Distinguished Extension Agent Award went to Sandra Stockall, extension agent in home economics in Lincoln County. Her award was announced earlier.

Bolen said Campbell and Stockall each will receive a $1,000 honorarium provided by an anonymous donor through the NU Foundation.

SEVEN RECIPIENTS of the Excellence in Extension Programming Award also were named: Adams County, team award recognizing the overall extension program; Elbert Dickey, extension specialist in agricultural engineering—conservation; Charlotte Kern, extension agent in home economics in Douglas County in charge of Expanded Food and Nutrition; Don Spitze, extension agent in agriculture in Wayne County. Honorable mentions went to Jayne Decker, extension agent in home economics in Hall County for microwave cooking programs; the NU mastitis team for the statewide mastitis control program and Emery Nelson, extension specialist for pesticide training for achievements in the pesticide applicator training program.

Additional information on the award recipients and their program accomplishments follows: In presenting the Chester I. Walters Extra Mile Award to Cords, Ken Bolen said "Any person who has worked with Bill will know what is meant by 'doing the extra mile.' He is a person with a special dedication to people and the Cooperative Extension Service."

Cords received the award for his financial, managerial and organizational abilities and his ready, caring attitude. Letters supporting his nomination tell of a man willing to travel across the state to lend financial advice to extension personnel caught in personal tragedies. He's helped them or their families to deal with paperwork generated by death or disabling accident. He also helped extension personnel plan for retirement or investment.

The award was established in memory of the late Chester I. Walters, extension supervisor in the Nebraska Panhandle area. Campbell began work as an extension-research entomologist at the North Platte Station in 1979. Since then, Campbell's innovative work in insect management has had a major impact at local, state, regional and national levels.

CAMPBELL PIONEERED the concept of integrated pest management in the beef feedlot industry. His main program thrust in effective fly control was a combination of sanitation and insecticide treatment. Campbell was cited for being very responsive to clientele and agent requests for assistance.

He also has been nominated for the USDA Superior Service award. Kern received her award for implementing Douglas County's Expanded Food and Nutrition Education Program. The program, intended for low-income households, helps families improve their diets through nutritional education and helps them effectively use available resources.

Kern's duties include developing and overseeing the educational program and assessing its progress. She has worked on the Expanded Food and Nutrition Education Program for nine years, and has been with the Nebraska Cooperative Extension Service for 13 years.

The Adams County Extension Service staff received two Excellence in Programming awards. One was for its overall program—balancing the needs of 4-H, agriculture, and home economics—and the other was for outstanding 4-H programming. Seventy percent of Adams County youth of 4-H age are now involved in the programming. More than 3,800 youngsters have enrolled in special interest projects, while standard club enrollment has held steady with about 500 members.

Adams County's 4-H program also was cited for various thrusts with a special emphasis—such as an alcohol drug program in county schools. Adams County Extension 4-H staff are Paul Swanson, Sue Brown, Luwane Nelson and Jeanne Heselton.

Dickey was recognized for his work in encouraging farmers to adopt minimum or conservation tillage systems. Dickey's message was delivered through demonstrations, at field days, tours and special Natural Resource District events, news articles, radio programs, television shows and slide-tape sets.

He also played a hand in insurance, training of Extension agricultural agents and Soil Conservation Service personnel in Nebraska.

SPITZE, EXTENSION agricultural agent in Wayne County, received an Excellence in Extension Programming Award for spearheading extension efforts to solve problems caused by large amount of on-farm grain stored under government loan programs. Letters supporting Spitze's nomination for the award indicate he recognized early that serious problems could occur as more grain stayed on the farm.

Recognizing and documenting potential losses, Spitze set out to develop an educational program intended to combat the problems the grain posed to Wayne County farmers. The project, known as Integrated Pest Management Program for Stored Grain, has been a model for use by other county extension offices and is being monitored by NU's Integrated Pest Management Programs to determine the feasibility of initiating a state-wide effort along similar guidelines.

Soybean increase predicted

Nebraska soybean farmers attending recent marketing seminars in Lincoln, Grand Island and Norfolk have predicted a 9.7 percent increase in Nebraska planted soybean acres for 1983.

Three Soybean Marketing Seminars were sponsored by the Nebraska Soybean Association (NSA) in cooperation with Union Carbide Products Company and BASF Wyandotte Corporation. Farmers attending the seminars learned how to develop a basic marketing strategy, analyze charts and market cycles and gauge future trends.

"Now is a good time to sell commercially stored soybeans, considering the current basis, interest expense and commercial storage costs," said Alan Kluis, president of Ag Marketing Services, Inc., Mankato, Minnesota. "The key to the soybean price outlook in the next several months will be how the 1983 Brazilian soybean crop develops."

ANOTHER OF the three marketing experts conducting the seminars, James Heiligensstein, vice-president of commodity sales for Blunt, Ellis and Loewi, Inc., Milwaukee, Wisconsin, was less optimistic in his predictions. "I'm a realist," Heiligensstein stated. "The only thing that will change the price of soybeans drastically would be a crop shortfall in the Southern Hemisphere."

Dr. Kenneth R. Bolen, assistant director of the Nebraska Cooperative Extension Service in the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources, Lincoln, Nebraska, informed those in attendance of the various marketing information services provided by the University of Nebraska.

These services include the Ag Net information system and the "Farm and Ranch Report," which is partially funded by the Nebraska Soybean Development, Utilization and Marketing Board and is televised on several Nebraska media outlets. Dr. Bolen also highlighted the upcoming University of Nebraska Marketing, Managing and Finance Workshops scheduled for January and February 1983.

Double jeopardy law drafted

Legislation has been drafted in Nebraska to protect farmers and other buyers of agricultural products from the risk of paying twice for what they buy, according to Robert C. Anderson, executive secretary of the Nebraska Cooperative Council.

"As the Uniform Commercial Code stands right now, anyone who buys grain, livestock, or other agricultural products can be forced to pay for those products a second time," Anderson said. "If the lenders holding mortgages on those products are not paid by the seller."

Anderson said buyers are held in double jeopardy if they pay the seller and do not include all lien holders in the payment. This means buyers must be knowledgeable of all financial obligations of each person they buy from.

"The current law makes it almost impossible for a buyer to be 100 percent certain that they have identified every possible lien holder," Anderson said. "Lenders, on the other hand, have no obligation or responsibility to notify buyers of their liens against a farmer's commodities."

ANDERSEN POINTS out that agriculture is treated differently from all other businesses. Buyers and consumers in all other businesses do not face the risk of paying twice to secure a clear title to the products they buy, in the ordinary course of business.

"The Cooperative Council members simply don't understand why agricultural buyers should be treated differently," Martin Leibrandt, President of the Nebraska Cooperative Council, stated. "If lenders can work with other businesses without holding their customers in double jeopardy, they should be able to work with agriculture in the same way."

Anderson said, "We are especially concerned about farmers buying livestock and grain from other farmers, because many of these purchases are made many miles from home, and most farmers don't have the time or resources to research the financial obligations of all potential sellers. A couple of loads of cattle or feeder pigs can be very expensive if they have to be paid for a second time."

"How many of Nebraska's farmers and ranchers who purchase livestock, hay and straw from their neighbor or purchase cattle and hogs from the local livestock sale barns are aware of the fact that they must include the names of all who have a security interest filed against that agricultural product they are purchasing?" Anderson questioned. Because of the unique twist, many do not realize the potential liability.

"Secondly, the alarming factor is that the current statute to protect against the farmer, rancher, grain elevator, and others."

"Our goal is to work more closely with lenders, to have them share this responsibility, rather than shift the burden for keeping track of their liens entirely to the buyers," Anderson said. "We think this proposal is only fair and equitable for everyone in Nebraska."

CURRENTLY, ELEVEN agricultural farm commodity organizations have passed resolutions in support of legislation intent, including: Farmers Union of Nebraska, Nebraska Corn Growers Association, Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation, Nebraska Grain and Feed Dealers Association, Nebraska Grain Sorghum Producers Association, Nebraska Livestock Feeders Association, Nebraska Soybean Association, Nebraska State Grange, Nebraska Stock Growers Association, Nebraska Wheat Growers Association, Women Involved in Farm Economics (W.I.F.E.).

"Agriculture is basically an honest business," Leibrandt pointed out, "but economic times make situations unpredictable." "We buy, sell and move agricultural commodities farther and faster than ever before," he continued. "Secondly, the alarming factor is that the current statute to protect against the farmer, rancher, grain elevator, and others."

"Our goal is to work more closely with lenders, to have them share this responsibility, rather than shift the burden for keeping track of their liens entirely to the buyers," Anderson said. "We think this proposal is only fair and equitable for everyone in Nebraska."

Soybean promotion gets support

Soybean farmers will invest an additional $557,000 in checkoff funds during 1983 in eight emergency export promotion programs. Approved by farmer leaders on the American Soybean Association (ASA) Board of Directors, the action is part of an ASA move to generate increased demand for U.S. soybeans and return prices to profitable levels, says ASA President B.B. Sprattling, Jr.

The majority of the approved programs focus on expanding soybean oil utilization. "Because of the large surplus of oil stocks and the current low oil price, the financial crunch is really on the soybean oil side," explains Dennis Blankenship.

ASA Director of Market Development. "We need to significantly increase demand for soybean oil in order to reduce supplies and increase price," he continues.

INCLUDED IN the projects are a major expansion of efforts to promote non-food uses of soybean oil in the U.S. This includes using soybean oil as an agricultural crop oil, as a grain dust replacement and as an industrial replacement for petroleum oil.

Other newly approved projects are soybean oil promotion campaigns in West Germany, Belgium, Italy and Japan; a domestic soybean-oil education program for dietitians and home economists and a push to increase soybean oil PL400 and government credit allocations.

"ASA's biggest, most dramatic change in export promotion is the non-food emphasis in the U.S.," says Blankenship. "Up till now, ASA promotion activities in the U.S. have been focused on food uses of soybean oil. If the U.S. program is successful, ASA will increase worldwide promotion of the industrial uses of soybean oil."

President Sprattling stresses that "the expansion of industrial uses of soybean oil in the U.S. alone will help U.S. soybean farmers." Sprattling reports that statistics show that ASA's new program could increase soybean oil usage in the U.S. by almost 75,000 metric tons per year, over a three-year period.

BARGHOLZ RECEIVES a certificate for successful completion of a two-day hydraulic seminar held by Orthman Manufacturing.

Local man completes seminar

Duane Bargholz, Logan Valley Implement, successfully completed a two-day hydraulic seminar held by Orthman Manufacturing, Inc., at Lexington. He participated with 48 other farm equipment dealer service personnel from Nebraska, Kansas and Colorado.

The combination class room and hands on seminar provided knowledge on how to effectively install, service, and trouble shoot hydraulic systems. Tony Hehn, Hehn & Ass. of Chicago, Ill. conducted the seminar using Orthman equipment. Hehn is a nationally recognized expert and educator in fluid power.

Riley George, engineering manager of Orthman Manufacturing, helped conduct the seminar and was in charge of all arrangements. Participants were given a plant tour and viewed new products being designed. The seminar was held Thursday and Friday, Dec. 9th and 10th.

'Plant-Two Trees' awards

The Plant—Two Trees program is now accepting applications to recognize the outstanding 1982 tree planting projects in Nebraska, according to Joe Range, University of Nebraska extension forester and chairman of the Plant Two—Tree program.

The program, initiated last year, is a statewide project to involve individuals, local groups and communities in an intensive effort to plant trees and continue Nebraska's heritage as "the tree planters state," Range said.

Last year 45 groups and individuals from 25 counties were nominated for Plant Two—Trees program awards. "State winners from Sheridan, Custer, Platte, Washington, Otoe and Douglas counties received recognition and awards in six categories—youth, individual, private business, government, civic and school," Range said.

In addition to those six categories, a windbreak category for organizations, government and the private sector had been added for the 1982 contest, Range said.

County Plant Two—Trees committees or extension agents in counties where a committee in non-active select outstanding county projects, Range said. The state award committee should receive applications from the counties by Jan. 3, he added.

Christmas supper held

The Wayne Company Farm Bureau Board of Directors and their spouses were entertained in the Bud and Marion Froelick home, Monday Dec. 13, for their annual Christmas supper.

Games were played and Christmas carols were sung by the group, accompanied by Merle Ring at the piano. A short business meeting followed.

Plan for windbreaks

By Soil Conservation Service

Now is the time to make plans for planting woodlots and windbreaks in 1983. The plans should be drawn up and the trees ordered now for delivery next spring. If trees are not ordered soon, you will not get the species you want.

There are many reasons for planting trees. They are planted to protect farmsteads, homesites, livestock, wildlife and soil. Trees are planted for lumber, firewood, fruit production, beautification, and for young children to climb in. All of these types of tree plantings are a benefit to the environment.

Regardless of the primary need, a good tree planting plan can produce a multipurpose woodlot or windbreak. For example, a farmstead windbreak ideally consists of two or three rows of red cedar on the north and west side; one or two rows of deciduous trees such as green ash, honeylocust, or hackberry in the center; and one or two rows of pine on the inside.

THIS PLANTING will also furnish protection for wildlife in the winter. Adding a row or two of shrubs such as honeysuckle, cardinal autumn olive, or sumac to a wind break will provide food for wildlife as well. The berries of these shrubs will stay on the branches nearly all winter.

This same belt of trees can produce firewood if an extra row or two of green ash, honeylocust, or maple is added to the center or outside of the windbreak. The extra trees will produce harvestable wood in approximately 7 years. After the first harvest, new shoots will grow from the established roots producing a second harvest in less time than the first crop.

Almost every farm has an odd area that is not used for crop production. These areas can be planted to woodlots for firewood, lumber, or fruit production. Add a row of shrubs and two rows of red cedar and you have built a winter home for pheasants and quail.

Remember that not all trees grow on all soils. Some trees like a low, moderately wet area; others like rich, well drained soils; and some thrive on the rolling hills. The soil survey report for Wayne county will show which trees will do best in the soils on your site.

Other things to consider when planning a windbreak are the density of the trees, the height they will reach at maturity, the type of protection they provide, and their longevity. Technicians from the Wayne Co. SCS office can answer your questions and assist you in planning and caring for your windbreak or woodlot.

Reduced acreage is planned

The government would offer farmers an amount of commodity—expressed as a percentage of their base program yield per acre—for reducing acreage beyond what is called for in the 1983 programs for wheat, feed grains, rice and upland cotton.

The commodity offer could be less than 100 percent of the quantity taken out of production since production costs are avoided by the farmer, who could receive the same or greater net returns on fewer bushels.

PIK would be self-terminating, ending when excessive stocks have been eliminated, probably after the 1983 or '84 crop year.

OBJECTIVES: Reduce stocks while cutting production, lessening the overhang on the market in future years and enhancing prospects for a market-led recovery in farm prices.

Maintain supplies in the marketplace, showing that U.S. intends to be a reliable supplier abroad.

Less government outlays for farm programs (loan volume, storage and deficiency payments).

Sound conservation practices would be applied to a larger amount of acreage.

Lessen storage space problems.

COMMODITY STOCKS offered would most likely come from the farmer-owned reserve, existing Commodity Credit Corporation holdings, and regular loan stocks if necessary.

Participation in PIK would be conditional on participation in the regular reduced acreage program. Acreage withdrawn under PIK would be in addition to the regular program.

Acreage withdrawn would have to be devoted to conservation uses. Hay and grazing would be permitted on acreage already planted. Summer fallow rules require that the PIK acreage reduction would be comprised of acreage that would have been planted this year. Cross and off-setting would not be required.

Initial plans would be to offer reduced acreage participants a certain amount of commodity for withdrawing an additional 10 to 30 percent of their base (10-25 percent for upland cotton). The farmer will decide how much to withdraw within that range. The amount of commodity offered for withdrawing acreage has not been established to date.

The possibility would exist that if the 10-30 percent offer failed to reduce a sufficient amount of acreage, a supplemental mechanism would be activated to encourage withdrawal of the entire base acreage for a commodity on some farms. The following procedure would assure a smooth implementation of the supplemental mechanism:

As the time producers sign up for PIK, they can also bid on how much commodity they would need to receive per acre from the government to withdraw their entire base acreage. Then, if USDA decided to implement the supplemental mechanism of allowing entire base acreages to be withdrawn, the lowest bids from producers would be accepted first.

In summary, farmers would have the option of: (1) Participating only in the regular farm program; (2) Participating in the regular program, plus the 10-30 percent PIK; or (3) Withdrawing their entire base acreage if their bid is accepted; (4) Not participating at all.

CERTIFICATES FOR the commodity would be issued to participants and could be redeemed for ownership sometime after the first day of the marketing year for each commodity. The 1983 marketing years begin Oct. 1 for corn; June 1, wheat; and Aug. 1, rice and cotton.

After the participant takes ownership, he or she would be responsible for marketing decisions and accrued storage charges. He or she would have 4-6 months to take delivery of the commodity.

In cases where insufficient stocks are available locally for physical transfer of the commodity to the farmer, other options would be considered. Under one option, a farmer could assume ownership of the commodity at the location where it is stored. Or, CCC could agree to sell the commodity for the participants, who would receive the dollar value which prevails in the farmer's own area at the time of sale. Other options could also be considered.

PIK can be largely, if not totally, carried out under existing authority. Legislative assistance would be helpful in two areas, however:

— Exemption to 1981 Farm Act provision that CCC not resell any stocks for less than 110 percent of current, farmer-owned reserve trigger prices. Exemption would be only for stocks involved with PIK.

— Need legal clarification of payment limitation provision in the 1981 Farm Act which limits amount of money a farmer can receive under the farm program.

SECRETARY OF Agriculture John R. Block is asking Congress for authority to distribute surplus CCC grain stocks to the needy in other parts of the world. Authority should be granted under Section 416 of the Agricultural Act of 1949 to distribute stocks of wheat, feed grains, rice and others. Commodities would be targeted in a way that does not compete with commercial sales abroad.

With reduced rates of inflation, the mandated increases in target prices now provide incentives for production increases at a time when moderation is needed. Thus, Block would like to be able to determine an appropriate target, but not lower than 1983 levels. This authority would apply through the 1983 crop year.

“Let us never forget that the cultivation of the earth is the most important labor of man.”

—DANIEL WEBSTER
(Boston, 1840)

Agriculture is still the backbone of this country. Some people have forgotten that. But more and more of them are finding it out again.

They may never realize the toil, the frustrations, the grief and sometimes the disappointments that go into making sure our citizens stay well-fed. But then, few of them will ever know the pride in a row of corn breaking through the soil, the pleasure in watching a new calf nurse for the first time. Or the satisfaction in seeing a youngster take the wheel of a tractor by himself. Despite today's trials, let us not forget the heritage that is American agriculture.

Wakefield Community Hospital is the first hospital in the State of Nebraska to be approved for a new program called "Swing-Bed". The new program will represent care for patients that do not need quite as much acute care as in a hospital but will require more care than provided in a nursing home.

Administrator Russell Swigart stated that the new program was being implemented to meet the community's needs for those patients who are either hospitalized and have recovered to the extent the Medi-card will no longer continue to pay for hospital care, or for patients who are living in their homes of nursing homes and their health requires skilled nursing care.
