Continuing budget squeeze stalls expansion

School Board again delays entry projects

The Wayne-Carrott Schools board of education has once again tabled any action to enclose the west and north entrances to the high school.

During a meeting last month, board members delayed action after bids submitted by five area contractors came in well over the $33,500 board members anticipated spending for the project.

over the $33,500 obard memoers directly aspending for the project.

Submitting the lowest bid last month was Risor Construction of Wisner, $38,600. Ofte Construction of Wayne submitted the next lowest bid of $39,916.

THOSE BIDS included plans to enclose the north entrance to the school, adding two doors to make a vestibule on the inside of the existing double doers.

The bids also included plans to enclose the west entrance to the school by extending the entrance approximately 41 feet west of the existing doors, and enclosing the door that leads into the northwest locker room of the

an aluminum trame with laminated glass.

AT A MEETING Monday afternoon, board members were presented revised bids from the two lowest bidders — Risor Construction and Otte Construction. Revised bids called for eliminating wood benches in the west enclosure, with the possibility of high school vocational shop students constructing the benches as a class project; substituting hollow metal-framed doors in place of wood-framed doors in both enclosures; and substituting a pre-finished sheet metal root in place of a glass roof over the west enclosure.

Revised bids submitted at Monday's board meeting by Otte Construction amounted to a deduction of $10.516, lowering

AFTER HEARING the revised bids, board member Jim Hummel said he was concerned that construction of the vestibules would greatly reduce the district's sinking fund.

"I feel the vocational shop addition is a critical flem," said Hummel, adding." I hate-to use money that we could put to use toward construction of the shop."

Plans to proceed with the expansion of vocational education facilities at the high school came to a standstill in September, when the board deadlocked on a motion to accept the low base bid for the expansion.

The decision not to proceed with the expansion, at that time stemmed from, among other things, a clerical error made in the Wayne County Assessors office.

Board members in August learned that Wayne Public School system of about $296,254 for the 1981-82 year.

In November, the board voted to file a claim with the county in the amount of $296.000. The vote came upon the recommendation of school attorney Ken Olds.

"I HATE TO procrastinate, but I wish we had some way of putting a handle on this dollar situation." said Hummel.

"We've been put in a real dilemma with the loss of fax revenue and the delay of free high fulfon." Hummel added.

Hummel questioned whether the board could expect some savings if it incorporated the shop addition and vestibules into one project under the supervision of one con tractor.

nber of Wayne school children are being harassed on their way home

Reports indicate that the harassment ranges from assault to car-pedestrian hitand-run incidents.

On Monday, police investigated an incident that involved a youngster being run down by a motor vehicle in the 200 Block of Sixth Street west.
According to police reports, the child was walking home from school when he was knocked to the street by a passing vehicle.

The youngster told police that when the vehicle passed him on the street, passengers opened the door on the car. The door struck the child, knocking him down, as the car continued east along Sixth Street and disappeared over a hill.

In addition, several parents in the Middle School-Elementary School vicinity report intervening in assaults on kindergarteners and first-graders enroute home from school.

Several homes along the traditional walk routes have become shelters for youngsters being threatened and assaulted on their way home from school by older classmates.

landlord's will.

Wayne businessman Russell W. Tiedike, aiready named a beneficiary by the late August F. Thun, who died March 20, 1981, has appealed the Wayne County Ninth District Court decision denying him the $45.312 claim.

Ninth District Court Judge Merritt C.
Warren not only denied Tiedfike's claim beyond the bequest, but in December overroled the Wayne businessman's motion for a new trial.

TIEDTKE of Kugler Electric Co., Wayne, contends, through his afforney Charles Caskey of Stanton, that the District Court abused its discretion in denying the claim.

Judge Warren heard the District Court case, which was on appeal from Wayne County Court, where Tiedtke was awarded $36.188.27 — some $9.000 short of his claim. Tiedtke, who was named personal representative for the estate of his deceased landlord, filed his original claim for $45.312 for services rendered.

The Wayne businessman claims $5.000 in mileage. (40.000 miles at .15 cents per-mile)-due for travel from April 5, 1975 to March 20. 1981 — the date of Thun's death.

ANOTHER PORTION of the Tiedtke claim lists "personal attention" to his landlord from April of 1975 until Thun's death for a total of $30.800 ($400 per month). In addition, Tiedtke's claim states the "personal attention" involved "frips for medical care and other miscellaneous needs over 77 months."

Tiedtke, who received interest-free personal loans from Thun, also filed farm management fees against the estate.

The farm management fees include $1,245 for 1977, $1,948 for 1976, $1,880 for 1979, $2,583 for 1980, and $861 for 1981.

THE THUN estate, which was filed for probate in Wayne County Court on March 30, 1981, has an estimated total value of more than $500,000, including real estate — 2 quarters of farmland, plus another 80 acres — appraised at more than $500,000. The Wayne Hospital Foundation, the Nebraska Heart Association and the American Cancer Society were named residuary devisees (real estate beneficiaries) in Thun's witl.

Wakefield is proud of being headquarters for the Educational Service

However, that pride should not put ESU beyond the scope of public

And, those who think ESU is beyond the eyes and ears of public examination seriously misunderstand a number of things that are basic rights and freedoms in this society.

No matter what ESU stands for, it is tax supported and accountable to the taxpayers through a duly elected board of directors.

Public examination of ESU by its own board, the press or the taxpaying public does not violate the organization's mission.

There is no doubt that ESU has performed well in a variety of difficult.

For all its successes, the record also shows its failures.

What ever happened to the old idea of disagreeing agreeably?

Perhaps it is time to remind those who resort to threats that, in a free society, you can disagree with what others, but you have a responsibility to defend their right to say it.

If we ever lose sight of that, and certainly some have, then we have lost

I will again be serving on the Judiciary and Miscellaneous Subjects committees. The Judiciary Committee estimates that it will be assigned 70 to 100 bills, all of which have to be given a public hearing.

major perior or my time during the early weeks of the session.

I have two major bills which I am trying to pass this session. The first one concerns Ald to Dependent Children. LB 48 would provide ADC assistance payments to a woman and her child upon the birth of her child. Prior to the child's birth, the expectant mother would be eligible for medical assistance from the date her pregnancy is medically verified.

Nebraska is one of only two states in the entire nation that currently provides ADC to a woman and her unborn child.

A YEAR AGO, 34 states besides Nebraska provided this assistance, but within the year, all except Nebraska and Massachusetts have discontinued it after Congress eliminated federal matching funds.

Congress eliminated federal matching funds.
Without the matching funds, the program becomes much more costly because this state must fund it alone. LB 48 would continue to provide essential medical care to expectant mothers while providing ADC assistance to the mother and her child, beginning in the month of the child's birth. I have also introducted LB 206. This would allow people to use studded thred from October through April, however it would require the payment of a $25 fee before the fires could be purchased.

The fee would be renewable each year that the studded thres are used. The $25 would go to the Highway Trust Fund where it would be split up among the state, counties and cities for use in highway repairs.

THIS FEE won't begin to cover the costs of the demage done to our highways by stud-ded tires, but if will bring in some revenue which is going to be sorely needed in the future to repair our highways.

If you have any comments you would like, to make about these bills or others before the Legistature, please feel free to contact me by phone at 471-2715 or write c/o Box 17, State Capitol, Lincoln, Ne. 88509.

by Richard Lesher

Recently I suggested that high unemployment and welfare benefits have made joblessness an increasingly attractive afternative for many Americans.
This argument prompted many reactions, most of them favorable. But I was roundly criticized in some quarters for claiming, according to the critics, that we have high unemployment today because the unemployed simply prefer not to work.
First, let's be clear about what I did and did not say. I did not say that the wast majority of jobiless Americans have chosen this condition. There is no question that most desperately want to work.

I DID SAY, however, that double digit nemployment is caused by many factors, icluding the recession; excessive taxes and including the recession; excessive taxes and regulations that have strangled business activity; unreasonable wage demands by labor leaders which have helped price many of our products out of world markets; and finally, the fact that in recent years we have pushed unamployment and welfare benefit

But simple common sense about human motivation suggests that a society based on a system of incentives must reward those who work at a higher level than those who don't, regardless of whatever misforfune pushed the latter group into that condition. Unemployment is a personal tragedy for millions of Americans. But for others it is a matter of choice—an that choice is draining our economy of preclous resources that should be in the hands of businesses and consumers so that jobs can be created for all those who do want them. This is a national tragedy that no one talks about.

Allen gets first triumph

For the first time since basketball season opened, Allen coach David Uldrich has a clean shaven face. His seven-week growth of beard was shaved off Monday at a pep or bears was snaved on wonlay at a per-rally. Uldrich began his beard with the start of basketball season in the first week of December. He vowed to continue letting the beard grow until his feam won a game. An eight-game losing streak came to an end Saturday night as the Eagles defeated Bancroft-Rosalie 59-52 on the Allen home coult.

THE EAGLES' offense ran wild in the makeup game which was rescheduled from last Tuesday when a winter storm forced its postgonement.

Near the end of the first quarter, the Eagles had four players who were no taller than 5-10. They were 5-9 Chase, 5-6 Shawn Mahler, 5-9 Jody Mahler and 5-10 Kirk Hansen. At 6-0. Harder was the tallest player on the team.

Alten regalned its lead with just more than a minute gone in the second quarter as Harder hit a 20-foot shot for a 16-15-edge. The Eagles led from that point on.

CHASE AND HARDER put the home team up 22-15. Less than a minute later, Jody Mahler scored a basket and Mike Hingst's layup was goallended for a 28-17 lead. Bancroft, which shot well in the first quarter, had cooled off in the second and Jay Jones extended the lead to 30-17. Three quick points by Shawn Mahler and a fastbreak layup basket by Chase at the buzzer put the Eagles of too 37-70 at fife.

Things got tense when Roberts picked up his fourth foul and Jones fouled out just more than a minute into the fourth quarter. The Panthers got within six points with about six minutes to play.

JUST AS ALLEN tans started to werry.

JUST AS ALLEN fans started to worry. Harder scored the next four points for a 50-42 lead. The next time, the Eagles got the ball back they went into a spread offense and slowed the ball down.

"I THOUGHT we played just super in the first half. The game was pretty physical and we-played aggressively. Having Derwin, Troy and Jay on the boards made a lot of difference," Uldrich said.

The winners hit 40 percent of their shots in the first half but only 15.4 percent in the second. Bancroft-Rosalle made 29 percent in the game.

cond. Bancroft-Rosalie made 29 percent in the game.

Greene's best game

Tigers trim Wildcats

The 91 percent shooting of Lonell Greene inside and the 58 percent shooting of Russ Uhing and Brad Edwards outside weren't enough to lead Wayne State to victory as the explosive Doane Tigers edged the Wildcats 79-76 Tuesday night in Rice Auditorium. Greene finished with 22 points on 10-for-11 shooting from the floor. Uhing hit 70 fishots from outside for 14 total points. Edwards joined him in the outside attack and scored 18 points. Ron Taylor, who hit 44 percent of his shots, contributed 12 points. Doane, with floor starters scoring in double figures, was paced by Steve Bartek with 27 points. Guard Alan Sladek scored 16 points. Ronger Sunderman scored 15 and Russ Hansen scored 13. Every player on the Doane roster is a native Nebraskan.

THE LOSS dropped Wayne's record below 500. The 10-11 Wildcats hit the road Friday for games at Missouri Southern and Pittsburg State, Kan.
Doane brought its record to 10-11 with the win. That decelving record includes nine losses on a two-week road trip to the West coast and Hawaii in December.
That western trip included games against Air Force, San Diego, San Diego State, California-Santa Barbara, Hawaii-Haillo (2 games), Hawaii-Pacific, Brigham Young (2 games) and number one ranked Chaminade, which upset NCAA power Virginia.

Urighia.

The lead changed hands several times in the first half and the Wildcats held on to a slim 36-35 edge at the half. Earlier, WSC had led 20-16 but Doane scored 10 consecutive points for a 26-20 lead.

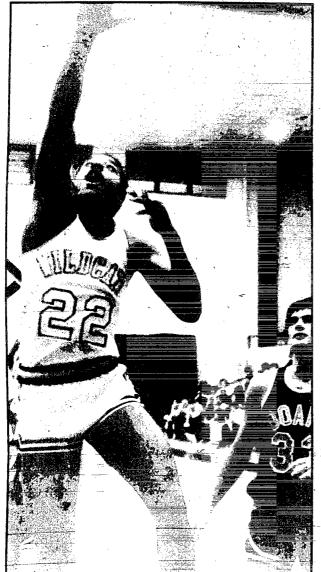

points for a 26-20 lead.

THE HOSTS fell behind early in the second half and didn't regain the fead until Greene scored for a 54-53 advantage with about 11 minutes to play
The outside shooting of Uhing and Edwards kept Wayne close but Barter scored an easy bucket with 43 seconds to go, giving Doane a 76-72 lead. The Cats tried to get back in the game but ran out of time.

Wayne hit 33 percent for the game. Doane hit 48 percent for the game. Doane hit 48 percent for the game. The throws again hurt WSC as the Wildcats shot eight fewer than the Tigers.

The Wildcats hit only 2 of 7 in the tirst half but then responded by hitting all eight free shots in the second half. Because each team made 33 field goals, the game was decided at the free throw line.

Cattle industry expert predicts a profitable decade

The cattle industry may be posed for a profitable decade on through the '80s. A new structure is emerging, and the total industry likely will be smaller in the future. Along with these changes, the scale of productions units, particularly feedols, may not increase as rapidly in the next few years as in the past two decades. And there is likely to be a shift in cattle feeding from the Southern plains states to the western Cornbelt, which includes western lowa, eastern Nebraska and southeastern South Dakota. These points were made in a presentation by Mark Drabenstott, agricultural economist with the Federal Reserve Bank of Kansas City. Mo., at a Nebraska Cattle Feeders Seminar which concluded here Jan. 7. The two-day event was sponsored by the Feedlot Council of the Nebraska Livestock Feeders Association and the University of Nebraska Cropperative Extension Service (1983), and beyond, Drabenstott said the outlook is more favorable for the livestock producer than the crop producer. An improvement in national economic conditions, if it materializes during the latter half of 1983, should result in a modest increase in consumer demand for meat, he said. A continuing reduction in pork supplies should be favorable to beet, he added. While relatively strong prices for beef are seen for most of 1983, the economist sounded a note of caution for the first six months because of large placements in feedlots in late 1982. Pressure will be put on prices, particularly if a large volume of cattle are fed to heavier weights, he analyzed. The beef cattle feeder started moving toward-profitability for the past two years-especially in 1982. Drabenstott recounted, with prices pald for feed cattle this past summer nearly 20 percent higher than in 1981.

feed grains. Lagging grains exports will benefit beef producers and feeders, and should result in less volatility in grain prices, he said.

THE ECONOMIC environment in the next few months should be more beneficial than the initiation period of the 1970s, Drabenstoft. said. Again, gains in demand are keyed to hoped for gains in consumers' real disposable income, which would be a feature of a revitalized U.S. economy. Finally, genetic changes in beef cattle which are beginning to impact the industry should help eatch up with increases in productivity posted by poultry and pork in the past few years, he said. "Improved management practices, with increased emphasis on long-run profitability for the different segments of the industry, are critically important to a brighter industry outlook," Drabenstott maintained. A combination of market forces which has significantly altered the pattern of the cattle cycle is likely to confinue during the remainder of the 805, he said. Here expansion is expected to be limited, at least over the next few years. Cattle numbers probably will remain below the peak of 131 million reached in 1975, he said. But he stressed that a smaller industry does not mean an end to the cattle cycle — overreaction by producers to market price signals — will remain, he predicted.

DRABENSTOTT HAD these predictions about the future structure of the cattle industry:

—Small scale cow calf producers will remain an important market segment in the future because of the ease of combining cow-calf operations with crop production in small and medium-sized farms.

—A stowdown in the trend to large commercial feediots, and a possible shift toward farm size feedlots (tarmer feeders). A con-

Drabenstoff suggested the possibility of a return to the "the old-fashioned notion of diversity" in farm operations, away from narrow specialization in erop and livestock enterprises. Diversitying farm enterprises makes it possible to reduce risks, he sid, terming diversity "one of the oldest farm management tools."

Geographically, regional shares of cow-calf production will remain relatively un-changed in the coming decade. Drabenstoth believes. While southeastern United States will continue to be the region where feeder cattle production has the greatest capacity to expand, sharp improvements in export grain prices should shift southeastern agriculture toward more crop production.

A SMALLER Industry with more farm sized production units may result in a reduced rate of growth in industry credit needs. Drabenstott said. With a larger proportion of feedlots farm-sized, a shift to more local and regional sources of lending and less money center and investment sources could occur, he added.

The cattle industry uses a significant portion of total farm sector nonreal estate debt. Drabenstott pointed out, estimating that the industry accounts for an estimated $5.1 billion, or 16 percent.

Labeling the U.S. cattle industry "as amajor force in U.S. agriculture."

Drabenstott said the industry generates the largest single portion of farm cash receipts, accounting for nearly a 25 percent share in an average year.

accounting for nearly a 25 percent share in an average year. Withing the Tenth Federal Reserve District, which includes Nebraska, one-fifth of the U.S. call crop is produced and one-third of the nation's feed cattle are produced and slaughtered, he pointed out.

Support prices for wool and mohair for 1983 marketings will be $1.53 per pound for shorn wool and $4.627 per pound for mohair according to Everett Rank, administrator of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Agriculture's 15tabilization and Conservation Service. Mohair is being supported at the same percent of Pulled wool will continue to be supported at a level comparable to the support price for shorn wool through payments on unshorn lambs, Rank said.

As in past year, shorn wool payments will be based on a percentage of each producer's returns from sales. Rank said. The percentage will be that required to raise the national average price received by all producers for shorn wool in 1983 up to support price of $1.53 a pound, he said. In 1982 shorn wool prices are expected to average around 75 cents per pound, he said.

Nebraska com yields ill

Nebraska corn yyelds iii

Nebraska corn producers harvested 770.3 million bushels of corn for grain in 1982, three percent below the previous crop year. Average yield of 111 bushels per acre was down four bushels from 1981 due to the lateness of planting and harvesting, the cool growing season, and high harvesting losses. Acreage harvested for grian at 6.94 million acres was up one percent from the previous year.

Irrigated corn production in 1982 totaled 578.1 million, nine percent below the 1981 record crop. Yield per acre averaged 123 bushels, off six bushels from the previous year's record irrigated acreage harvested for grain was 4.7 million, five percent below 1981's record acreage.

Dryland corn production totaled 192.2 million bushels. 26 per cent above the previous year. Yield, at 85.8 bushels per acre, was the second highest of record and 6.7 bushels above 1981. Dryland acreage harvested was 2.24 million acres, 16 percent more than the previous year. Above normal rainfall during the acreages.

growing season eliminated the need for irrigence.

Sorbean producers in Nebraska harvested a record 82.8

Million bushels, five percent above the previous record for 1981. Yield averaged 36 bushels per acre, down two bushels from last year's record yield. Harvested acres, at 2.3 million, reached as record level for the fifth consecutive year.

BEDDING MAY NOT PAY FOR ITSELF

Feedlol cattle at the Dickinson, N.D., Experiment Station has been sucessfully housed with only a slotted board fence for protection in a trial to determine what advantage bedding the animals and building up a manure pack would have on winter gains and feed efficiency. In the trial, replacement helfers were allotted to two lots. Both tots had a nine-foot high slotted board lence shelter on the north and west sides. One lot of helfers was bedded with straw at weekly intervals, and more often when the weather made it necessary. The other lot received no bedding during the entire trial. The helfers received a high roughage growing ration and were wintered for 197 days, starting in November.

November.

If has always been considered good practice to bed cattle when possible. But the results of this trial indicate that the slight additional gains may not be enough to offset the cost of bedding.

The use of straw bedding improved the average daily gain of the heiters by 0.5 pound. The heiters not bedded were not adversely affected by the lack of bedding except for the slightly lower gain. The animals in both lots remained in good health throughout the Irial

RAT CONTROL IN SWINE BUILDINGS

RAT CONTROL IN SWINE BUILDINGS

A five-step approach will give the best results in controlling rats in swine buildings.

Step 1: Clean up to reduce the amount of teed, water, and shelter available to rats. Determine where they are hidding and nesting. This puts them under stress and makes it more likely, they will eat posioned bait materials if these are used.

Step 2: If a large number of rats are present, a single dose poison may be needed. Zinc pioson may be needed. Zinc phosphide rat poison is available through the U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service Division of Animal Damage Control. For proper use, prebait rats on a bait material mere attractive than the flog feed they are accustomed To eating. Canned pet food is sometimes a good choice.

When the non-foxic bait is well accepted (usually 3.5 days), then add the zinc phosphide concentrate to make the poisoned bait. Extreme care must be taken to avoid hazards to pigs and pets. Remove any dead rats and all uneaten bait within 48 hours following applications. Step 3: Use a multiple dose (anticoagalant) bait. Rats must feed on the bait over several days time to get a lethal dose. These balts are available as loose grain mixtures, pellets, parraffin blocks, or concentrates for making liquid baits. Choose the best accepted balt for the particular situation. Keep bait readily available for 10 15 days or until feeding stops. Follow all label instructions and safety precautions.

Step 4: Use traps or gas cartridiges to kill any remainingly als. Woodbased snap traps work it set and baited properly. Incendiary gas cartridges available at retail supplier through the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service Division of Animal Damage Control, suffocate rats in their burrows by producing carbon monoxide gas.

Step 5: Rodent proof buildings, where possible, to exclude rats and thereby obtain permanent control. Close alt openings larger than 1/4 inch accepted to the day and mice. Use materials resistant to growing, such as galvanized sheet metal and concrete mortar.

Terminal crosses praised

The time is ripe to make sense out of the talk about swine breeding systems, a swine specialist says.

William Ahlschwede, Universi

William Ahlschwede, University of Nebraska-Lincoln extension swine specialist, said that although commercial pork producers have used crossbreeding in their herds for more than 40 years, the 1980s will bring a time of decision-making. "Terminal crosses will replace the rotational crosses will replace system on crosses will replace the rotational crossbreeding system on most hog farms," Ahlschwede predicted.

With the move to continuous farrowing schedules, Ahlschwede said, the three-breed rotational cross is difficult to operate. The rotation systems lead to deficiencies in production and profit potential by the variations that occur from generation to generation, he said.
"In general, rotational

ion, he said
"In general, rotational crossbreeding systems average the breeds used," he said, "while terminal crossbreeding can exploit the advantages and minimize the disadvantages of breeds."

THREE ADVANTAGES he listed for a terminal crossbreeding program were:

—Improved sow productivity

by controlling sow breeding composited and heterosis levels.
—The ability to specify the breed of pigs marketed.
—Consistency in the finished product, on a year to year basis.
The conclusions and recommendations Ahlschwede reported were based on a computerized analysis, of crossbreeding systems. An analysis of current research assigned economic value to various produciton traits.
Ahlschwede said that terminal crosses offer a significant economic advantage over the rotational crosses. These advantages are large enough to recommend terminal cross to most pork producers, he said.

"When we used a production budget which had average hog operations breaking even." he said, "the terminal crosses showed a 304 of per litter profit advantage over rotation crosses."
And that's when things are economically tight, he added.

THE PRIMARY advantage of the terminal crosses was in superior show productivity. Ahlschwede said This was due to the high levels of sow heterosis and having the right breeds in the sows, he said.

R.J. Fiedler, agronomy graduate student, at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, conducted research and presented a paper about "Relative Performance of Seed versus Broadcast Fertilizer on the Yield of Winter Wheat."

Fiedler's paper was presented Wednesday (Dec 1) at the socie-ty's 75th annual meeting. Co-workers on the research were son, also NU agronomist.

TEST RESULTS from 34 experiments conducted during 1978 through 1982 showed that the grain yield of fields with seedapplied phosphorus was higher at 50 percent of the sites.

The prepliant broadcast phosphorus results never showed a higher yield. Fiedder said.

The lest results also showed, he said, that the efficiency of the seed-applied phosphorus increased as the amount of available phosphorus decreased.

Fiedder said the preliminary data findings indicated that the effectiveness of the various application methods can be predicted through standard soil testing methods.

He said the best terminal crosses were based on Yorkshire. Landrace crossbred sows. "This cross has been head and shoulders above the others in the research trials in the field," Ahlschwede said.

He attributed the success of the Yorkshire and the mothering ability of the Landrace.

In describing several potential terminal crossbreeding systems, Ahlschwede said, they differ in ease of management and in their profit potential.

"To get the most profit," he profit potential.

"To get the most profit," he said, "you've got to work for it."

Ahlschwede predicts that the change to terminal crossbreeding programs will occur_tapidly, when producers realize the benefits of selecting such a system.
