City Council to consider municipal lottery

Would you take a chance on Wayne? Odds are a number of persons would...and a number of persons wouldn't. But, the city may put the numbers to a test soon in a special election to determine if a municipal lottery would offer Wayne a ticket to additional revenue.

CITY ADMINISTRATOR Phil Kloster has signaled what may be the start of citywide debate on a proposal to explore establishing a municipal lottery in Wayne.

Tuesday night, Kloster told the City Council that the lottery question would be the agenda for the next meeting, 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Feb. 22.

According to Kloster, he and Mayor Wayne March have explored "at length" the feasibility of establishing a citywide lottery. Kloster told Council members that the city's legal counsel has been doing research on the procedures for establishing a municipal lottery.

THE FIRST HURDLE, according to Kloster, would be to gain Council consent to schedule a citywide referendum on the lottery question.

Under state law, a municipal lottery can be established with simple majority approval by the voters in a special election.

According to Kloster, the Council must first approve the scheduling of a citywide lottery referendum.

"It's apparent that municipalities, such as ours, need to look at other ways of getting revenue...or we are left with just sticking it onto the property tax," Kloster told councilmen Tuesday night.

"WE NEED to look at more creative ways to raise revenue," Kloster continued.

"And, a lottery, if approved by the voters, would allow for that," he added.

Kloster noted that Dakota City has announced its intent to set a special citywide election on the lottery question and that Schuyler has announced as much last week.

"We're probably going to see a rash of it around the state," Kloster said, noting that nearby municipal lotteries could mean competition for dollars.

"I think there are some things that could be done to make ours more attractive," Kloster said.

KLOSTER TOLD the Council that he expected to return to the Feb. 22 meeting with more information and a suggestion on dates for the lottery referendum.

"Under law, we must go before the public on a vote before the lottery can be established," Kloster said.

The city administrator also indicated he was familiar with the operation of some municipal lotteries in Iowa towns.

He also noted that Dakota City had scheduled its special election on the lottery question for April.

Electrical project overrun under budget

The first stage of Wayne's electrical distribution improvement project has come in over bid, but under budget.

That's the word from Dave DeVries, city electrical engineering consultant.

DeVries, who presented the City Council with a report Tuesday night on the first stage of the project, acknowledged that the construction bill exceeded the contractor's bid by about $4,600.

"THAT'S FAIRLY reasonable for any underground project," DeVries explained, noting that the contractor, E.A. Pederson of Omaha, bid the project for $73,182.18.

Tuesday night, DeVries presented the Council with final documents on the first-stage job and a cost of $77,819.33.

"We got a bargain on that bid," DeVries reminded the Council, noting that the bid was well under city estimates and the budget.

Phil Kloster, city administrator, said that the $77,819.33 bill still came in under estimates and the budget, despite the additional $4,600.

DEVRIES ATTRIBUTED the cost overrun to a "change in material" and an "underestimate on boring footage."

The project, which was essentially completed last fall, involved upgrading the city's distribution system to handle projected load increases for the Industrial Park and the upper eastside developments.

"By and large, the contractor did a good job," explained DeVries, who said Pederson "ran into some things that were not expected, but were normal in this kind of project."

According to DeVries, the contractor was forced to use steel

Litterally sheepish

KIM AND MIKE Backstrom, daughter and son of Virginia and Verdel Backstrom of rural Wayne, hold a litter of lambs born on the family farm Saturday night. A somewhat sheepish 4-year-old Suffolk-cross ewe gave birth to the healthy quadruplets. Udderly frustrated, the lambs had to wait in line to nurse. Two of the frisky foursome face a future as bottle lambs.

Wayne-Carroll school board

4 administrators rehired; teacher bargaining opens

Superintendent Francis Haun and three Wayne schools principals all passed their tests with flying colors Monday afternoon as the Wayne-Carroll Board of Education voted to extend their contracts.

The board gave Haun a one-year extension on his three-year contract and followed Haun's recommendation that principals Don Zels, Richard Metteer and Dave Luff all be hired back.

The first mention of teacher negotiations for the 1983-84 school year also was made at Monday's regular monthly school board meeting.

DUANE BLOMENKAMP, chairman of the Wayne Education Association, presented a letter to the school board members as the first step in negotiations.

The letter stated that the association continues to represent a substantial majority of the teachers employed by the school district and requested that the district continue its recognition of the association as the negotiations representative of the teachers.

Blomenkamp said the association is requesting that teach salaries and insurances be reexamined and negotiated for the 83-84 contract year. "In all other respects, the terms and conditions of employment are acceptable to the Association," the letter stated.

The School Board gave WEA the go-ahead on negotiations. Members of the WEA negotiating board are Blomenkamp, Dale Hochstein, Pat Straight, Joanne Benschopf, Keith Kopperud and Sally McNeill. Jim Hummel, Neil Sandahl and Arnold Emry compose the school board's negotiating committee.

A REPORT on his Middle School computer literacy class and the newly formed encounter center was made by Principal Dick Metteer.

Metteer informed the board that collection of items for the Nebraska Natural History encounter center was successful. A couple more dealing with the topics of oceanography, and tobacco, alcohol and drug abuse are being planned later this school term.

For his computer report, Metteer, two students and two middle school teachers gave demonstrations and oral reports showing the value of the class. The school's Apple II computer was brought to the meeting for demonstrations.

Metteer said the primary aim of the computer class is literacy. Individuals who want programming skills are a second concern. The computer also is used by students to aid spelling and mathematics as well as other subjects.

THE REPORT on computers prompted members of the board to turn their attention toward the high school. "Are we going to have this at the high school level?" Keidel questioned.

Several board members expressed their desire to see a computer literacy course initiated in high school. "High school students will be going on to college and will benefit

'The Hard Times' special

'The Hard Times' special stories are starting to roll in, folks. So, stand up and be counted. Or, better yet, sit down and write your story. There's not much time left for you to be a part of The Wayne Herald's special section.

AND, IT'S an opportunity you won't want to miss. It makes no difference if you are young or old, your story about surviving some of life's hardships will appear in the special edition.

It will be a keepsake edition that you can show family and friends for years to come.

And, by the way, if you don't want us to use your name...just say so. Be sure to put your name, address and telephone number on the story so we can check with you should there be any questions.

BUT, MAYBE some of you would rather be ghost writers, preferring to remain anonymous. That's just fine...because, after all, it's the story that counts.

And, remember, you don't have to be a survivor of The Great Depression to share a hardship story with our readers. Life's hardships are experienced each and every day by someone somewhere. If you don't have a personal hardship story to share, perhaps you know someone who does. Encourage them to jot it down and send it to The Wayne Herald by Monday, Feb. 21.

PERHAPS YOU would rather share a story that grandpa or grandma told you about hard times in northeast Nebraska while they were growing up. That's fine, too. Just grab a pen and paper and put it down in your own words. Then, send it along.

Annual appropriations appeal

WSC president pitches priorities

Addressing the economy, inflation and changing priorities have contributed to anxiety, fear and uncertainty about Nebraska's commitment to education, Dr. Ed Elliott, Wayne State College president, pitched for campus budget priorities before the Legislature's Appropriations Committee Tuesday.

"Over the past several years...I have been impressed by the keen interest shown by legislators toward education, particularly higher education," Elliott told the committee.

"I know you are as proud as I am of the record that our graduates establish in research, business, industry, education and even politics," Elliott added.

"BUT OUR PAST services cannot, and will not, guarantee a quality future for higher education," continued the WSC college president.

"The general depressed state of the economy, inflation, and changing priorities in government and education have all con-

Board requests 8% salary hike

Contending continuation of current funding or cuts would cause long-term damage to the state colleges' program, J. Alan Cramer of Wayne, Nebraska State Colleges board of trustees chairman, took an 8 percent faculty and staff salary-increase request before the Legislature's Appropriations Committee Tuesday.

"If it appears the colleges are not hurting, it simply isn't true," said Cramer, who also is publisher of The Wayne Herald.

"We have not simply rubber-stamped the request," added Cramer, who said that officials from Wayne, Kearney, Chadron and Peru state colleges were twice asked to revise and trim their budget requests.

The state's four colleges are seeking $42 million for fiscal 1983-84, which involves $24.4 million in state general fund money.

The current fiscal year appropriation to state colleges is $39.8 million.

tributed to a generalized anxiety, fear and uncertainty about the state's commitment to quality and service," Elliott said.

Elliott limited his testimony before the committee to instructional programs, support systems and the WSC physical plant.

The WSC college president noted that salary and benefit discussions were presented on behalf of the statewide system by J. Alan Cramer of Wayne, chairman of the Nebraska State Colleges board of trustees.

ADDRESSING THE other funding concerns, Elliott reiterated the college's request for an additional faculty position, an increase in library support, a hike in the budget for computer software, hardware and personnel, plus more money for instructional equipment and operations.

"Sound enrollment management, plus an increased enrollment of 5.5 percent in FTE (full-time equivalency) students this past year have created overcrowding in many of our most important general education classes," Elliott told the committee.

"Library funding is at a crisis stage," the president said. "The $70,000 we have requested in our expanded budget, if appropriated, would be the first direct increase in library funding since 1978," Elliott continued.

"LIBRARY HOLDINGS have steadily declined in recent years, and an information explosion has occurred worldwide," he said.

Kerrey gored every senator's ox

viewpoint

By Melvin Paul
Nebraska Press Association

In making his state budget recommendations to the Legislature last week, Gov. Bob Kerrey managed to propose enough cuts to offend just about each of the 49 members of the Legislature with one proposal or another.

But overall, the reaction among state senators to Kerrey's proposed $747 million general fund spending package for fiscal year 1983-84 was well received.

Lawmakers seem to realize that the prolonged recession means that program cuts are going to have to be made, and they aren't going to come easily.

"HE MANAGED — more or less — to gore an ox that every one of us is concerned about," Sen. Don Wesley of Lincoln said following Kerrey's speech.

For his part, Wesley heard the Governor recommend no financing for an aid program he had sponsored for families of the handicapped.

Speaker William Nichol of Scottsbluff acknowledged that Kerrey's budget would nick the funding for some popular programs.

"We all have our (financing) pet in there," Nichol said, adding that he believed most senators favored "biting the bullet" during tough economic times.

"THERE ARE two ways to say no: nicely and offensively," said Appropriations Committee Chairman Jerome Warner of Waverly. "He said no nicely."

In all, Kerrey proposed cuts — including elimination of existing programs and cancellation of planned programs — totaling $64 million.

His budget would supplement available revenue by increasing the 1983 individual income tax rate to 20 percent of federal liability, a two percentage point increase.

The largest proposed cut is the cancellation of the proposed state takeover of the county share of the Medicaid program. The action would save $21.6 million.

KERREY'S BUDGET calls for the elimination of scores of relatively minor state programs, including the state farms management program, the foster care review board, the state employee suggestion system. The budget would eliminate the Revenue Department property tax field staff, close five economic development regional offices and postpone indefinitely the development of a new welfare department computer system.

Kerrey's proposed budget would save the state $1.9 million by delaying for yet another year the issuance of new license plates. The state last issued new plates in 1976. There are gainers in the budget. Most state employees would receive a 3.5 percent pay raise on July 1. Exceptions to the pay raise are newcomers, those whose performance is substandard and those who are at the top of their salary range.

Higher education would receive about $9 million more than last year.

IN WHAT Kerrey acknowledges is largely a token gesture, the state would increase its support for water and soil conservation projects by $400,000.

Despite the general receptivity among senators, the budget approval wasn't universal. Sen. Bill Barrett of Lexington objected to the proposed elimination of $1.7 million in earmarked cigarette tax revenue for cancer research.

Agricultural and Environment Committee Chairman Rex Haberman of Imperial said he was concerned about the treatment of the farm sector in the Kerrey budget.

"AGRICULTURE came up a little short," Haberman said. "Every day in the newspapers it's been agriculture, agriculture, agriculture," he said, referring to Kerrey's public statements. "But what did agriculture receive? Four hundred thousand for soil conservation and $50,000 for the vet college."

The Legislature's Appropriations Committee now goes to work on the proposals, and by the time lawmakers go home in May, Nebraskans will know just how much of the proposed Kerrey budget stays intact.

Fired up

Fire protection, like so many emergency services, is often taken for granted — if not forgotten — until life-and-death decisions are upon us.

It is then that we often demand maximum effort to save lives or property.

And, we demand it from an emergency service, such as a volunteer fire department, that has been given minimum support for training and equipment.

Fortunately, in the Wayne area, the dedication and professionalism of volunteer firefighters has pulled us through those emergencies without significant loss of life or property.

That same dedication and professionalism is apparent in the recent Nebraska Forest Service report on long-range fire protection for the Wayne Rural Fire Protection District.

The volunteer firefighters, not content to ignore long-range fire protection planning, sought and got a professional blueprint for upgrading services to district residents.

Not only has the report triggered some healthy re-examination of department needs, but also it has significantly raised the level of public information about district fire protection.

Fire Chief Dick Korn's leadership in seeking long-range fire protection planning for the district is to be commended.

Furthermore, the chief's willingness to share the information with residents of the district his department protects is the mark of a dedicated public servant.

The 128-page report, provided to city and fire district officials as a public service by the Nebraska Forest Service, is comprehensive and informative.

It should go a long way toward helping both the firefighters and the community put a priority on long-range fire protection for the district.

There is little question that the long-range plan is needed.

And, there is little question that the volunteer firefighters deserve a salute for starting us on the journey toward upgraded fire safety.

Social Security socks farmers

By Cheryl Westcott
Nebraska Farm Bureau

The bipartisan solution to the Social Security problem recommended to President Reagan has been widely lauded, with only lip service given to acknowledging that it has shortcomings.

The general picture is that the recommendations make the best of a bad situation and that all Americans will be asked to sacrifice a little: wage earners will be contributing a little more, recipients will be receiving a little less and on a slightly delayed timetable.

Not surprisingly, special interest groups including organizations representing retired persons, government workers and small businesses have come forward and said they could not support provisions of the plan which adversely affect their members.

IN RESPONDING, Alan Greenspan, an economist and chairman of the Social Security reform commission which prepared the recommendations, has said: "All of us swallowed very hard and accepted individual notions that we personally did not actually support."

Farmers, too, would be required to swallow very hard and to fork over a great deal under the proposed solution.

The effect on farmers is not readily apparent from reading the reform commission's recommendations, but here's what it comes down to: self-employed farmers will have to increase their social security payments by 43 percent to meet the combined rate levied on employers and employees.

It is true that half of the self-employment tax rate can be taken as a business expense. But this will not go far to mitigate the effects of that whopping 43 percent increase.

AMERICAN FARM Bureau President Robert Delano has noted that this increase will surely reduce net income for the nation's farmers.

This is ironic since the Social Security proposal comes at the same time that the administration is introducing its payment-in-kind program as a means to get rid of surpluses and promote farm exports in order to increase net farm income.

Unattractive and unacceptable as this aspect of the Social Security proposal is, it would be far more palatable if the rest of the recommendations actually addressed the problem of the continuing growth rate of benefits paid to those receiving payments.

Despite the six month delay in the increase, the proposal still is overly generous with benefits in relation to the dollars contributed to the Social Security fund.

ACCORDING to Delano, the plan concentrates almost exclusively on increasing revenues without getting control of the program's cost. And it does not deal with the shrinking pool of workers whose contributions support payments to an expanding group of recipients.

In 1950, 16 workers paid for each retiree; now it is three workers to one recipient and is expected to be down to two workers per recipient in 50 years.

The Social Security reform plan does not deal in long term solutions. Neither can't be applauded as a successful quick fix, certainly not for farmers who would be asked to contribute nearly half again as much as the now do.

Congressional hearings on the proposal begin in early February. Major changes will be necessary, if it is to be even marginally acceptable to the nation's farmers.

Litter bits

A recent study assessing Nebraska's litter problem indicates that the state is getting cleaner.

The study, required by the Litter Reduction and Recycling Act, was performed by the Institute for Applied Research in Sacramento, Calif.

This first followup survey was done in September, exactly two years after the initial count, says Dee Howard, litter reduction and recycling programs administrator at the department.

After correcting for traffic volume, rainfall, and neighborhood income in urban areas, the institute found a decline of 14.7 percent for fresh litter and a 9.5 percent decrease in accumulated litter. Beverage container litter decreased the most: fresh beverage container litter decreased 41.6 percent and accumulated beverage container litter went down 26.1 percent.

The surveyed Nebraska towns with Clean Community Systems experienced a 38 percent drop in fresh litter and a 22.9 percent drop in accumulated litter, leading the state in reductions. Forty percent of Nebraskans now live in CCS towns. Developed by Keep America Beautiful, CCS is a program for changing people's solid waste behavior. Funding for CCS is available from the Litter Reduction and Recycling Fund grants.

With these results Nebraska becomes the second cleanest state of the 13 the institute has surveyed, says Daniel Syrek, the institute's director. The leader is Washington State, which has had a litter reduction program for nine years.

Syrek says "It may be...that there are 'tolerable' levels for accumulated (litter) below which it is difficult to achieve additional reductions, and that Nebraska may be approaching such a level."

Governor hides budget hikes

20% tax rate burdensome

To the editor:

Do you realize that the new farm program has some definite pitfalls for the people engaged in agriculture in our community?

For the farmer who has planted a large acreage of corn in the years 1980 and 1981, it may work out well.

But for the farmer who has rotated his crop trying to hold down the over-production of corn, it isn't good.

He is penalized by having a small base in corn just because he did rotate his crops, whereas the farmer who overplanted in those years and caused the over-production is rewarded.

Wouldn't it be more fair to all if a percentage (about 70 percent) of cropland on each farm was used for a base?

Most of the farmers to whom I talked are going to plant beans on the extra acres that are not diverted.

Won't this cause an over-production of beans and drive the price of beans down also?

Perhaps our government should step out of the expensive role of crop control. When the farm prices get much lower, the farmers would automatically quit planting those crops.

After all, the farmer is just trying to make an honest living.

Marvin Reuter

actually be collecting more tax revenue for the first six months of the year than it is now under the 18 percent rate.

It will not simply be offsetting the federal income tax cut as proponents of the 20 percent rate claim.

The proper tax rate necessary to offset dollar for dollar what we will lose because of the federal income tax cut, is 19 percent.

By attempting to convince the public that a 20 percent income tax rate is needed, the governor is actually hiding the fact that he is increasing the state budget and raising our taxes to do it.

INSTEAD OF taking an across-the-board cut approach as his predecessor gov. Charles Thone did, Gov. Kerrey is cutting the budgets of some agencies and programs while increasing the budgets of others. One interesting item in the proposed budget is a 34 percent increase of the governor's staff. A public hearing on another contraversial bill, LB 283, was held last Tuesday. It would make all adoption records available to an adopted child once he reaches the age of majority.

Opponents of the bill argued that releasing such information would violate the privacy of the parent who gave the child up for adoption with the understanding that her identity never be revealed.

Those in favor of the bill spoke of the trauma which an adopted child goes through wanting to know who his "birth" parents are and how every person has a right to know his or her "birth" parents.

THIS IS A very difficult issue. The Judiciary Committee listened to arguments on both sides until 8 p.m. and has not yet taken any action on the bill.

A large crowd also turned out Thursday to discuss the merits of raising the drinking age to 21. I am against LB 56 at this time because I believe it will have more negative than positive effects on my district.

With Iowa allowing people to buy alcoholic beverages at age 19 and South Dakota at age 18, raising our drinking age to 21 will just put more young people on our highways driving across state lines to get the alcohol they want.

The effect will be the opposite of what the proponents of the bill desire: less people, especially college students, will be drinking in the relative safety of a bar and more young people will be drinking and driving on our highways.

Randy's Recap

By Randy Hascall

Busy time of year

Newly hired Wayne State football coach Pete Chapman has his work cut out for him. Building a winner in the tough Central States Intercollegiate Conference, with very limited scholarship money, will be a big challenge.

Although the cards are stacked against WSC, Chapman is eager to accept the challenge. His coaching credentials indicate that he has the qualifications to do a quality job at Wayne.

Chapman and the college agree that recruiting in northeast Nebraska and the state of Nebraska will be top priorities. We know there is plenty of hidden talent out there, it's just a matter of finding it.

The surrounding states of Iowa and South Dakota will also serve as recruiting sites. Of course, recruiting will not be limited to only Nebraska, Iowa and South Dakota. The new coach said he will seek out the best possible football recruits.

Derald Johnson, assistant in the Wayne State sports information office, is elated with Chapman's hiring. Johnson, a graduate of Osceola High School, played under Chapman in high school and has nothing but good words for the coach.

According to Johnson, if Chapman would have asked his high school players to run through a brick wall, their only question would have been, "How fast?"

Good luck coach.

Young Cats coming along

Trying not to overstress a point, let me once again point out that the rosters of the Wayne State Wildcats and Lady Wildcats are lined with talented underclassmen.

The Lady Cats' team has five freshmen joining seven juniors. Robbie Lehr and Janet Lee are the cream of the junior crop but several other individuals possess plenty of talent and potential.

The freshman squad is topped by talented Deb Nygren, already one of Wayne's best players. Sheri Campbell and Donetta Shultz have also done some good things this season. Others will continue to improve.

For the Wildcats, coach Rick Weaver has been going with some younger players in recent games. Freshman Calvin Sprew is coming along well as a scorer and all-around player. And sophomore John Thomsen has played well lately. The future of those two individuals is especially promising.

Although most of the players on Wayne's team are juniors and seniors, Lonell Greene is only a sophomore. Talented Russ Uhing has one more year remaining. Some of the seniors (especially Grady Hansen) will be missed but some scholarships will open up and if Weaver can net a few promising recruits, Wayne State can have a winner.

Smaller ball for girls

South Dakota girls basketball players will be using a smaller basketball next season.

It's not easy to spot the difference between a regulation size basketball and the new intermediate ball but the difference is supposed to show up on the court.

The move was taken to improve girls basketball in Dakota. It is believed the change will improve shooting, reduce turnovers and make the game more exciting.

Several collegiate basketball clinics plan to use the smaller ball this summer and it could be in college use in the future. Regulation basketballs currently measure from 29.5 to 30 inches in circumference and weigh about 600 grams. The new ball averages 28 inches around and weighs approximately 540 grams.

State wrestling ahead

It's a day or two early to know which area wrestlers will earn free passes to the state wrestling tournament but I plan to be on hand for all of the action.

The meet is scheduled next Thursday, Friday and Saturday at the Bob Devaney Sports Center in Lincoln.

With a little bit of luck I'll get to watch my little brother wrestle at state. He's currently ranked sixth in the Class C 105 pound class. The bad news is that four wrestlers ranked above him are undefeated.

I saw him wrestle on two occasions last year but because of a busy sports coverage schedule, I haven't had an opportunity to watch him this season. He's a junior at David City High School.

Underclassmen lead WSC win

Paced by underclassmen, the Wayne State College Wildcats hit their offensive high of the season to blast Bellevue College 95-66 Tuesday night in Rice Auditorium.

The win averaged an earlier season 74-69 loss, the Bruins' only victory in 21 games this season.

The Wildcats showed promise for next year as the leading three scorers will all return. Sophomore John Thomsen and junior Russ Uhing scored 17 points apiece to pace the attack. Thomsen hit 7 of 10 shots from the field.

Freshman Calvin Sprew hit 13 points. Senior Brad Edwards and junior Rene Taylor scored 10 points each and junior Doug Lollman hit a season high 8 points.

CONTROL OF the boards led Wayne to its large margin of victory. The Cats hauled in 63 total rebounds to only 39 for Bellevue. Lonell Greene was the leader with 12 rebounds, followed by Sprew with 11. Thomsen had 11. Both Thomsen and Greene were credited with two blocked shots.

Uhing dished out six assists and made five steals. Edwards had five assists. Bellevue was led by Rich Wheeler and Gary Blum with 15 points each.

The Cats led 41-31 at the half and then exploded behind a 23-4 scoring advantage in the first 6 1/2 minutes of the second half for a big 64-35 lead.

Wayne, 12-10 overall and 2-4 in Nebraska College Conference play, saw its slim hopes for a playoff spot get even slimmer as Chadron State upset Kearney State.

The Wildcats will play at Fort Hays and Kearney State this weekend.

Winside boys pick up fifth victory

Four players hit double figures as the Winside Wildcats clubbed Wynot 66-41 Tuesday night before a Parents Night crowd in Winside.

Senior Jon Meierhenry lopped the charts with 18 points, sophomore Kevin Falk scored 14, junior John Hawkins scored 12 and senior Ronnie Prince scored 10. Falk and Meierhenry each pulled down nine rebounds.

"We had a good team game with four guys in double figures," Winside coach Mark Freburg said. "Everyone played well."

THE WILDCATS turned the ball over 19

times but many were the results of a fastbreak that worked well throughout most of the game.

After holding a 27-15 halftime lead, Winside blew the game open by outscoring the Blue Devils 20-12 in the third period. Wynot was led by Kenny Wieseler with 15 points and Tom Hochstein with 12.

There was no junior varsity game because a girls game was played prior to the boys contest.

Winside (5-8) will play at Osmond tonight (Thursday) and at Decatur tomorrow.

Third quarter leads Eagles to win over Trojans

The setting was the Wakefield gym and the two teams had squared off in front of a small crowd. Allen's Eagles used a big third quarter to drop Wakefield's Trojans 52-34.

"We made a lot of mental mistakes. I expect that out of 8 team players but not out of regulars," Troth said. "If we're going to have half a chance in districts we must play much more intelligently."

Schroeder said her players did a poor job of rebounding. "Rebounding killed us. It hasn't come second nature for the girls to get position. We're not boxing," she said.

REBOUNDING PROBABLY was the most decisive factor in the game. The Eagles ruled the boards with an advantage of 48 rebounds to 28. The winners missed 51 shots in the game but got many second and third opportunities after missed shots.

Troth benched three regular starters to open the game. He said he asked all of his varsity players to watch the reserve game closely and learn from it. Some of the players didn't listen to him, he said, so he sat them on the bench for the first half. In addition, Jeanne Warner missed the game because of a knee injury she sustained against Emerson.

During the first quarter of action the teams exchanged baskets and the lead. Michelle Pettit put Allen on top 9-8 but Renee Wenstrand scored to give Wakefield a 10-9 edge at the break.

The second quarter started the same but the Eagles scored 8 of the last 9 points for a 21-16 lead at the half.

REGULAR STARTERS Michelle Harder, Tami Jewell and Shelly Williams returned to the starting lineup in the second half and Allen immediately pulled away.

Wakefield had a terrible time trying to score against Allen's zone and managed only two points for the entire quarter as the Eagles built a 35-18 advantage.

Brenda Jones put on a one man show in the fourth quarter as the Trojans held ground. She drove inside to score 12 of Wakefield's 16 points in the final period before she fouled out. Jones finished as the game's leading scorer with 20 points.

For Allen, Harder hit 7 of 10 shots from the field in the second half to finish with 14 points. Leading scorer for the Eagles was Michelle Pettit with 15 points. Sheri Peters, a 6-1 sophomore, who drew her first starting assignment, finished with 9 points.

ON THE BOARDS, Pam Kavanaugh, Peters and Harder each pulled down eight rebounds. For Wakefield, Kelly Greve had six rebounds while Michele Meyer and Jones made five apiece.

Troth was pleased with a few of his players. Sheri Peters and Pam Heckathorn, for their first start did a super job. And Michelle Pettit did a good job of penetrating, he said.

Schroeder was pleased with the offensive performance of Jones but disappointed that she didn't get much help from some of the other players.

In Tuesday's junior varsity game, Allen defeated Wakefield 22-10. Allen scoring: Pam Heckathorn 7, Sheri Peters 4, Karma Rahn 4, Shelly Boyle 3, Denise Magnuson 2, Diane Magnuson 2. Wakefield scoring: Roni Starz 6, Heidi Schopke 2, Darla Hartman 2.

ALLEN (9-5) IS scheduled to host Beemer tonight (Thursday) in a girls and boys doubleheader. Wakefield (5-10) will host Coleridge tonight (Thursday). Both teams will be involved in Class C-5 districts at Wakefield scheduled Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday.

The Class C-5 district action at Wakefield, Allen will face Walthall at 8 p.m. Monday and Wakefield will meet Emerson-Hubbard at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Bears falter in 3rd period

A rough third quarter provided the difference as the Laurel Bears lost to Emerson-Hubbard 55-42 Tuesday night in Laurel.

The hosts led by two points at the half and played the Pirates evenly for three of the four periods. However, Emerson outscored Laurel 18-5 in the third quarter to set the tone.

Mike Jonas led the Bears in scoring with 8 of 15 field goals and 21 points but Emerson's Bob Ufermark had game honors with 23. Kelly Robson, Laurel's season leader in nearly every statistical category, missed the game because of mononucleosis and it's not known when he'll return to the lineup.

"WE HAD a good first half and shot well but we couldn't get going in the third quarter," Laurel coach Mark Hrabik said.

We played a good first half but fell apart in the second half.

Coach Marty Hansen's Pirates scored the first eight points of the second half and held a 10-12 point lead most of the final two periods. Emerson held a 32-24 rebounding advantage and committed just 9 turnovers while Laurel had 14.

"We missed Robson. I feel he would have hurt them," said Hrabik. The coach said he felt Jonas played well offensively. He added that Kastrop did a pretty good job and complimented sophomore Mike Forsberg for his play.

For the Bears, Kastrop collected six rebounds and made two assists. Jonas had five rebounds and two assists and Mark Penierick grabbed five rebounds.

LAUREL (8-9) is scheduled to host Wausa

Friday and travel to Plainview Saturday.

"If we play our game, we'll be tough," Hrabik predicted.

In Tuesday's junior varsity game, Troy Heitman scored eight points to lead Laurel in a 24-33 loss to Emerson.

Wynot overpowering

Parents night not successful for Winside

Parents Night for the Winside girls wasn't a very happy one as Wynot clubbed the Wildcats 50-27 Tuesday night in a game which was scheduled after the season began.

Wynot just overpowered the hosts as Diane Stratman scored 12 points and Donna Becker scored 10 to pace the winners.

Pam Peter scored eight points and Kay Meierhenry scored seven for the Wildcats.

"THE ALL-OUT hustle was tremendous. The girls are still making a lot of mistakes but they're thinking a lot more," Winside coach Don Leighton said. "Our record doesn't show it but the girls are improving."

Winside committed 23 net turnovers and didn't do much rebounding. Leaders on the boards were Tammie Brudigan and Pam Peter with three rebounds each.

Starter Trisha Topp and reserve Becky Janssen were both ill and missed the game. In junior varsity action, Wynot topped Winside 29-12. Julie Brockman and Teresa Brudigan each scored three points to lead the hosts in their final game.

THE WINSIDE varsity (1-12) will complete its regular season Friday at Decatur. A boys game between Winside and Decatur will follow.

The Wildcats are scheduled to open Class

D-7 girls district action against Snyder at 9 p.m. Monday. The tournament will be played at Winside.

Wisner outlasts Blue Devils

By Ann Wickell
Sports correspondent

Another battle took place Tuesday night between the Wayne girls and Wisner Pilger on Wayne's home court. Wisner survived the battle 41-31.

The Blue Devils had the lead at the beginning of the first quarter but Wisner soon took control of the lead with its sharp shooting and rebounding. Wisner led 13-9 at the end of the quarter.

The Blue Devils were shooting with more confidence in the second quarter. They kept pace with Wisner in scoring, in spite of the foul trouble they ran into. Wayne made most of its points near the end of the quarter. But the Gators still had the edge as they led 25-19 at halftime.

THE THIRD QUARTER was full of defensive action as both teams made several shooting attempts but failed. The Wayne girls switched to a man-to-man defense late in the quarter which put Wisner under pressure. With 3:24 remaining in the quarter the Blue Devils got the ball and put in four quick points which brought them within two points. However, the Gators retaliated with two baskets and jumped out to a 29-23 lead at the end of the quarter.

Even though teammate Jill Mosley fouled out early in the fourth quarter, the Blue Devils were once again shooting well. Their pressing defense kept the Gators from scoring much from the floor, but free throws gave the visitors a 41-31 win at the buzzer.

Coach Dale Hochstein said his team didn't play a full four quarters. They were "on and off" in their performance, and he thought there was a big difference at the free throw line. Hochstein said that Missy Stoltenberg and Deb Prenger played well on the boards.

The Wayne girls hit 29 percent from the floor and 33 percent at the free throw line. High scorer for the Blue Devils was Jill Mosley with seven points. Tami Murray and Missy Stoltenberg were right behind with six points each.

MISSY STOLTENBERG grabbed 10 rebounds for her Wayne team. Mosley and Deb Prenger each had seven rebounds.

Leading scorer for the Wisner girls was Carmen Feller with 14 points. Lori Schutte put in 10 points and Amy Roth had seven points.

The Wayne junior varsity girls were badly outplayed as they lost to Wisner 44-14.

Roni Johnson led the Blue Devils in scoring with six points, Karen Longe and Lorie Jacobsen each made four points. Longe and Jacobsen also tied in rebounding with six.

The Wayne girls (2-10) will play against Emerson-Hubbard tonight (Thursday).

Cats downed by two points

Missouri Southern twice repulsed Wayne State rallies as the Lions scored an 84-82 CSIC win in Rice Auditorium Saturday night.

The Lions roared to a 33-18 lead 10 minutes into the game before Wildcat freshman Calvin Sprew keyed a rally that tied the game at 42-41 with 1:30 in the half. Southern took a 48-45 halftime lead despite 20 points by Sprew.

IN THE SECOND half, MSSC charged to a 62-49 lead at 13:30 before WSC rallied behind sophomore forward John Thomsen. A jumper by Thomsen with :16 to play cut the deficit to 81-80.

But MSSC star guard Carl Tyler scored on a three-point play with :08 remaining to seal the Lion victory. Tyler shared game scoring honors with WSC's Sprew as each tallied 26. Free throws were a big factor on the night, as MSSC hit on 20 of 37 compared to eight of 12 for WSC.

Sprew also topped the rebounding department with 13. Thomsen put in 14, all in the second half, grabbed seven rebounds and had four assists. Russ Uhing added 10.

Coach Rick Weaver's Wildcats, 11-18 on the year and 2-8 in the Central States intercollegiate conference (CSIC), takes to the road to challenge Ft. Hays State and Kearney State, respectively, on Friday and Saturday.

Another one-point loss suffered by women

The Lady Wildcats second one-point loss in as many days was decided at the free throw lines as the Wayne State squad fell in a 62-61 decision to the Lady Lions of Missouri Southern.

The contest was close throughout and foreshadowed the final moments. Neither team led by more than six points, with Wayne taking a 36-30 halftime lead.

THE LADY CATS success at the free throw line failed them throughout the game, including a pair of shots by freshman Sheri

Campbell as time ran out. Campbell was fouled by MSSC's Linda Allmendinger at the buzzer with the score 62-60 in favor of Missouri Southern. At the line, Campbell missed on the first attempt and netted the second, leaving the score at 62-61.

Wayne's scoring was evenly distributed among the starters, with Robbie Lehr scoring 16 points, Sheri Campbell 15, Janet Lee 14 points and Deb Nygren with 10 points. Lehr and Lee each pulled in 10 rebounds.

After three consecutive one point games (including a 65-64 win over Chadron early last week), the Lady Cats hit the road on Friday and Saturday to take on Ft. Hays State and Kearney State. Coach Jan Jirsak's 11-13 squad is 2-8 in the CSIC.

The pressure-packed losses last weekend came down to last second shots by WSC freshmen, and the shots barely missed their mark.

The CSIC's scoring leader, Linda Castillon, netted 22 points, followed by JaNelda Dvorak with 11 points.

conduit for electrical wiring "in some areas" because of a sand problem.

CONTRACT SPECS called for plastic conduit, acknowledged DeVries, who explained that the sand "would not hold a hole" and forced the contractor to punch through with steel.

He also noted that underground boring for the conduit involved more footage that originally planned because of a decision to avoid breaking up concrete.

The first-stage contract represents a portion of the electrical distribution improvement project's first phase, according to DeVries, who indicated the city had made some $70,000 in payments with about $7,500 remaining.

Council approved accepting the final documents for the project, subject to city administrative review.

IN OTHER action, the Council approved an ordinance to establish a Class J liquor license — primarily on-premises wine consumption — in Wayne.

"Basically, it enables us to issue the Class J license with pro per occupation," explained Kloster.

The ordinance allows for the granting of a Class J license, often in connection with an eating establishment serving customers wine and beer on the premises.

Council also was informed by Kloster that the Nebraska Public Power District had announced a 2.4 percent increase in monthly payments within its capacity purchase agreement with Wayne.

Bids sought on shop plan

The Wayne-Carroll Board of Education, meeting for three hours Monday afternoon, focused much of its attention on the proposed shop addition to Wayne-Carroll High School.

The discussion led to a motion asking that new bids and alternate bids be requested on construction of a shop addition with a west vestibule. A hoist originally included in the shop plans and a proposed north vestibule were deleted from the bidding.

Original bids which were reviewed by the board included several alternate plans. The base bid called only for an extension of the shop. Original alternates included such things as an added nine foot extension of the addition, a car exhaust outlet, a car hoist and combinations of the above.

THE BOARD agreed Monday to drop the proposed car hoist and north vestibule. Members of the board are in favor of building the shop addition but will decide the outcome of the extra nine feet for storage and the west vestibule after bids on those proposals are collected and reviewed.

Hummel, who made the motion for new bids, said he would like to consider an extra nine feet to be used for storage.

Joyce Reeg said she feels the added nine feet should be included in the construction of the shop or it shouldn't be built at all. President Becky Keidel disagreed saying, "If it comes down to a shop without the nine feet or no shop at all, I'm for the shop."

The board termed the shop a "trades and industries shop," stressing that it is used for wood and metal work as well as auto mechanics, electrical work and other trade areas.

THE BOARD agreed that the shop addition deserves top priority. "We've spent almost $10,000 on architect's fees and my priority is to get bids on the shop project. If we can't afford both (shop and vestibule) then I'm in favor of the shop," Arnold Emry said.

"There's not any way I know of that we can afford both of them," Superintendent Francis Haun said, responding to the board's discussion.

Because there will be no charge on further bids, the board decided to request the new bids and make a decision at next month's board meeting. Reeg also requested that Dr. Haun make a report on available sinking funds. Haun agreed to compose a report into this (the use of computers) and have no background," Keidel said.

Haun said that because of limited equipment and until more people are trained, the high school probably will continue to have just one computer course for individuals who are interested in them.

The possibility of electrical wiring improvement at the middle school was brought up at the meeting but because of a lack of funds to finance the rewiring, little discussion was held. "Wiring is not really a safety factor but would be a great convenience," Keidel said.

IN OTHER business, the board accepted the resignation of third grade teacher, Mrs. Tom (Winnie) Jones. She has taught at Wayne only one year but has been involved in teaching for some 30 years and decided to retire, Haun reported.

*gave approval of a contract with Region IV dealing with special help for a student. The board was required by law to give its approval.

*learned of a grant award in the sum of $500 to establish a resource library for students and faculty.

*listened to a report by Keidel on a task force for gifted students. She said SRA achievement scores are being used to determine the need of a special program for the gifted.

*skipped a copy of the school calendar for 1983-84. School is scheduled to begin on Aug. 29 and dismiss on May 25.

*changed its meeting dates to the second Tuesday of each month beginning in March. From April through October, meetings will be held at 8 p.m. From November through March they will be held at 3 p.m. The next school board meeting will be held at 3 p.m. Tuesday, March 8.

Firefighter retirement bill opposed by Council

Wayne's City Council has gone on record in opposition to a bill before the Nebraska Legislature that would, if passed, establish a state-mandated retirement system for volunteer firefighters.

In a unanimous vote, minus the balloting of absent councilmen Jim Craun and Gary Vopalensky, the Council passed a resolution that gave the city administrator direction in lobbying against the bill (LB 220) currently before the Unicameral.

"I don't want to give the impression that I'm against firefighters," Kloster told the Council Tuesday night.

KLOSTER WENT on to explain that the proposal, which mandates fully funded retirement for present and past members of volunteer firefighters, would cost the city "several thousand dollars" per month.

"And that's property tax money," Kloster added during a special legislative review before the Council adjourned.

Kloster, who is a member of the Legislative Council for the Nebraska League of Municipalities, said he felt he needed a consensus of the Council regarding the controversial bill.

"I don't think we, as a community, can afford this piece of legislation," the city administrator added.

ACCORDING TO Kloster, the bill has been spawned from the ranks of "Ratsdon volunteer firefighters and is being sponsored by "several senators" in Lincoln.

"Many communities have already found that they are having to fund a very expensive package" for police retirement, Kloster reminded the Council.

"Some towns are millions in the hole and Wayne is contributing a double digit percentage into police retirement," the city administrator explained in attempting to assess the financial impact of the bill.

Wayne Fire Chief Dick Korn, who attended the Council meeting, told councilmen he was opposed to the bill.

"I KNOW as far as the Nebraska Firefighters Association is concerned, that we are trying to formulate some form of retirement for firefighters," Korn said.

"I'm convinced that NFFA could come up with a much better bill," he added, noting that a retirement bill for volunteer firefighters is coming.

Farrowing barn fire

WAYNE VOLUNTEER firefighters work at the scene of a Monday morning hoghouse fire on the John Anderson farm southwest of Wayne. Damage to the farrowing house was estimated to be about $500. No livestock was lost in the blaze, which started about 10:50 a.m. Firefighters also responded to a chimney fire at the Rowan Wilse home, 510 Fourth Street west at 11:03 p.m. Monday. No damage was reported.

Wayne County to get conservation funds

Wayne County has been designated as a critical erosion area and is targeted to receive $35,750 in Agricultural Conservation Program funds during fiscal year 1983 to save soil.

Raymond Butts, county executive director, said the funds would be used to treat the most critical erosion problems in the county.

The target concept allows national, state and local governments, and farmers themselves to treat critical conservation problems while maintaining practices already established," he said.

Signup for cost sharing with the targeted funds will end Feb. 28.

THE ACP WILL target $19 million for financial assistance in 29 states. Of this total cost share assistance, $13.6 million is allocated for erosion control in 305 counties, $4.3 million is for water management in 130 counties and $1.1 million is being held in reserve at the national level.

The targeted funds are part of the regular appropriations by Congress for the program in fiscal 1983.

Butts said the erosion control measures used will provide cost effective solutions to resource problems in the area. "We emphasize long term agreements covering installation of conservation practices over a period of several years," he said.

Wayne County is one of 29 Nebraska counties scheduled for targeted ACP funds. The program is a joint effort by government and other groups to restore and protect basic land and water resources, and the environment.

Priorities

Elliott noted that the cost of periodicals has increased 82 percent since 1977 and the average price of a hardbound book has increased 33 percent since then.

"We are requesting your support, and that of the total Legislature, for increasing funds for computer software, hardware and personnel," Elliott said.

"Many first time enrolling students are coming as computer literate. Our responsibility is to have professors and programs that accommodate the students and to provide the intellectual challenge to move them forward," he continued.

"OUR STATE Colleges board recognized the immediacy of the problem by asking for a $1 earmarked tuition increase for computer needs to begin to correct this," he said.

In seeking an increase in instructional equipment and operational budgets, Elliott said that he felt a $50,000 increase "is not unreasonable" as an equipment request.

WSC is seeking an $17,491 hike in the operating budget.

Elliott noted that the equipment and operations budget hit a high in 1976 at $260,000. Last year, the budget was $181,000, or an $80,000 reduction over six years.

"WE HAVE stretched our dollar-pinching abilities to the limit," he told the committee.

"We have deferred purchases... We have taken extreme risks by foregoing repair and entering maintenance agreements... and have now reached the point this year where — at 55 percent of the year elapsed — nearly 30 percent of our departments' have budgets that are totally expended," Elliott said.

"We feel our expanded program requests are absolutely minimal," Elliott added, noting that the State Colleges board had cut the college's original $500,000 request to $228,000.

Elliott also sought funding for capital construction improvements at Val Peterson Fine Arts Center, upgrading on-campus parking facilities, and repair or relocation of the campus tennis courts.

ELLIOTT ALSO updated the committee on budget and program reallocation at WSC.

"Since 1978, nine academic programs have been dropped," he said.

"All programs have been significantly modified, especially teacher education programs," he continued. "And, during the same period, three new academic programs have been added and three new program options have been developed."

Elliott noted that the college has "moved from four vice presidential level positions to one."

"WE HAVE combined several administrative positions to increase the efficiency of the institution," he said, noting that four support staff positions have been eliminated.

4-H enrollment 4th highest

The fourth highest enrollment in Nebraska 4-H history was recorded in 1982 according to the newly released annual 4-H youth enrollment report. The report showed a total of 63,894 youth participating in the 4-H program through 4-H clubs, school, special interest, individual study and instructional TV programs, according to Ken Schmidt, University of Nebraska extension 4-H specialist. The area of highest participation (36,644) was through school enrichment programs such as embryology which are coordinated by extension personnel in cooperation with school officials as a part of the school curriculum. Organized 4-H clubs had an enrollment of 29,459, while special interest, school enrichment and instructional television made up the remainder of the total figure. The total number was made up of 43.3 percent males and 56.7 percent females. 51.6 percent were pre-teens ages 9-11, 34.0 percent were ages 12-14, and 14.4 percent were ages 15 and older, Schmidt said. Despite a recent drop in the highest percentage of participants with 31.9 percent rural non farm and towns under 10,000 had 24.9 percent, cities 10,000-50,000 had 15.3 percent and cities over 50,000 had 27.9 percent.

Area men win contest

They were among several corn growers who shared more than 1,400 bags of corn given away to winners of the contest. Crow's Hybrid Corn Company distributes hybrids in ten Midwestern states. The company's home office is in Milford Ill.

Grain grading schools planned

Four grain grading schools are scheduled during February to familiarize members of the grain trade with grading procedure and the use of the grain grading standards in buying and selling grain. Date and locations of the schools are as follows, with the grains to be covered at each location listed in parenthesis: Feb. 15 - Holiday Inn, Ogallala (wheat, corn and sorghum); 16 - Ramada Inn, Kearney (corn, soybeans, sorghum and wheat); 17 - Holiday Inn, Norfolk (corn and soybeans); 18 - Douglas County extension office, 8015 W Center Road, Omaha (corn, soybeans, sorghum and wheat). David Wysong, extension plant pathologist, Lincoln, will discuss: Field and Storage Molds at the Norfolk and Omaha schools. The schools are sponsored by the Nebraska Grain Improvement Association, the Nebraska Grain and Feed Dealers Association, and the Nebraska Cooperative Extension Service, in cooperation with the Fremont, Hastings, Lincoln and Omaha Grain Inspection Departments and the Federal Grain Inspection Service. Omaha Inspectors from FGIS and the grain inspection departments will serve as instructors.

Specialist predicts

Recovery will be slow, painful

As farmers and ranchers who want to stay in the production sector "tough it out" again in 1983, chances for recovery and improved profitability must come from the demand side — increased domestic use and exports — of agricultural products. That's the belief of University of Nebraska extension farm management specialist Leslie F. Sheffield, who noted that carryover stocks and the ability to produce are likely to keep supplies too plentiful for most farm commodities. "The world economy likely will not recover from the current recession until the U.S. economy rebounds. And current projected $200 billion budget deficits for the coming year and an economy with both agriculture and most industries at a low ebb suggest a slow and painful recovery at best," Sheffield analyzed.

THE "GOOD NEWS" for farmers is that for the first time in 10 or 12 years there will be few if any increases in the costs of most farm production inputs, he said, and the prices of several inputs will be down from 1982.

The "bad news" is that despite these decreases in production expenses, the prices farmers receive for several farm commodities — grains in particular — will be very near or below costs of production for most farmers, considering both fixed and variable costs.

The year will feature continued severe cash flow squeeze problems, Sheffield said, with operators with very little long-term or short-term debts in a much stronger position. "Their cash flow needs are much less than for farmers who are more highly leveraged, with perhaps less than 50 percent equity in their total operation," he continued.

Farmers with a substantial debt each year have found an increasing percentage of their annual production costs consisting of interest costs, Sheffield said.

"In many such cases, interest payments on long-term debt and annual operating loans were higher than the annual expense for fertilizers and farm chemicals, which previously had been the single largest expense category for cash grain farmers," he reported.

ACTIONS OF the Federal Reserve Board, the effects of the recession and a sharply reduced loan demand have resulted in much lower interest rates than farmers faced a year ago, Sheffield said.

The outlook for 1983 farm energy costs is a "mixed bag," with petroleum fuel available at prices considerably below a year ago, while natural gas prices have increased sharply and electricity costs continue to rise, but at a much slower rate, than in the past.

During the past 10 years, energy costs to power tractors, pickups, trucks, and self-propelled farm equipment, as well as irrigation power units and for farm electricity, have become an increasingly higher percentage of total farm production costs.

"Prices for LB gas took a big jump in the fall of 1982 — just in time to take advantage of the high demand for grain drying, Sheffield recalled. Prices had retreated from a high of more than 70 cents a gallon to the 60 cents per gallon range by mid-January, with some indication of further price-weakening on into this year, he said.

The 33 rural electric districts serving Nebraska have pared back rate increases for 1983 to a range of from zero to 8 percent in most cases, compared to as much as a 20 percent annual increase in some recent years, he said.

"Even though natural gas prices have increased more rapidly on a percentage basis during the past two years than other sources of energy, the relative cost of natural gas as compared to fuel oil for heating or LP gas or diesel fuel for irrigation is still the lowest cost source of energy where it is available," Sheffield stated.

THE BIGGEST unknown which will have a pronounced effect on fertilizer and farm chemical prices during 1983 is the extent of sign-up for federal farm programs, including the PIK Program, he said.

If participation in farm programs, including PIK, reaches the USDA-projected 23 million acre cut in harvested acreage for all five PIK crops (corn, wheat, grain sorghum, cotton and rice), in addition to the 7 million acre reduction expected from the regular set-aside program, a reduced demand for fertilizers and farm chemicals could force prices for these inputs to lower levels than expected by manufacturers and distributors.

Because of plentiful supplies and weak demand, prices for major fertilizer products — those high in nitrogen, phosphorus and potash — are expected to be lower than last year.

"Domestic production and inventories have exceeded the demand. And increased competition from imported fertilizers because of reduced world demand and the higher valued U.S. dollar have combined to put increased price pressure on these (fertilizer) products," Sheffield explained.

Prices for most herbicides and insecticides are expected to fluctuate around a minus 5 to plus 5 percent of 1982 prices, depending on the extent of farmer participation in farm programs.

SHEFFIELD HAD these comments on farm wages and taxes:

Farm wage rates paid in 1983 in Nebraska are likely to hold mostly steady with few increases. Any increases are likely to be in the area of 5 percent.

Property taxes have yet to show any downward trend and it is doubtful that farmers or ranchers can count on any relief in their property tax assessments in 1983.

SNOW ON ROOFS

Frequent snow storms can cause snow to build up on roofs. This can lead to overloading the roof, causing collapse. This build-up is especially a problem with "lean-to's" or lower roofed buildings next to taller buildings with large roof areas. Large and flat roofs are also susceptible to build-up. Most farm buildings are designed for 20 to 25 pounds or more weight of snow per square foot of roof area. That loading is resented by an ice layer or layer of very wet snow approximately four to six inches thick. This is the current recommendation for Nebraska farm buildings and is usually more than enough. The weight of snow will vary but a rough rule is a one foot depth weighs five pounds. This weight can easily double from wind drifting and settling of snow from warm temperatures.

WINTER FEEDING OF BIRDS

Winter is the most difficult of all seasons for wildlife. Most food sources are scarce, cover is scanty, the air temperatures are low, and nights are much longer than days. The decreased availability of wildlife foods during the winter presents an annual hazard to most wildlife.

Succulent green plants are gone and the insect eaters must turn to other foods. Also more time must be spent in the search for any acceptable food. As if these hazards were not enough, the situation is complicated by freezing rains, sleet, snow and high winds. Low temperature is detrimental to the well being of wildlife from the standpoint of heat generation. Fuel for heat production in wildlife is food — lost of palatable high energy food. Since each animal's consumptive capacity is limited, the quality is of great importance. Another hazard is the long cold night. It is reasonable to suspect that the longer the night the greater should have been the food consumption prior to the night. But long nights are offset by shortened days. This cuts down the feeding opportunities. Well meaning people frequently become insistent that wildlife must be artificially fed during the winter. No one can quarrel very long with the intent — only with the impracticality. The feeding of game birds in isolated places is possible and feasible. Ear corn is probably best for pheasants, quail and rabbits. Impaling the ears on sticks or nails driven into sticks is a successful method to keep ears off the ground. Song birds can be fed by placing seeds such as bird feed mixtures of wheat, milo, etc. in protected feeding platforms. English sparrows will become a pest as they will soon learn where the living is easy. Pieces of suet suspended in trees will attract still other song birds. But effective winter feeding of birds must of necessity be on a

Soils show staying power

A 10-year field investigation on the rate at which soil phosphorus and potassium build up or decline under intensive cropping of four major Nebraska soils reveals a remarkably strong "staying power" of these soils, an NU agronomist told those attending the 75th annual American Society of Agronomy meeting.

Robert A. Olson said Nov. 30 that none of these soils showed any yield response to applied fertilizer and only one showed any decline in soil test potassium where no potassium fertilizer was applied during the period.

"The rate at which available potassium is released from native mineral reserves is clearly very rapid, and with the limited removal of potassium that occurs with grain farming there is likely to be little need for supplemental potassium for many years to come on these loess-derived soils of high inherent potassium level," Olson stated.

Yield increases of corn and wheat to phosphorus fertilization were measured in this study where soil tested in the low to low-medium ranges. A most economic rate of around 9 pounds per acre (21 lbs phosphate P2O5) was also more than adequate for maintaining the initial soil test level, 18 lbs. Phosphorus approximately doubled, and 27 lbs. Phosphorus tripled the original test value during the 10 years.

"The findings confirm earlier observations that fertilization according to a 'sufficiency' concept will actually build up soil Phosphorus reserves at the same time," he said.

Other researchers involved in the study were George W. Rehm, an agronomist at NU's Northeast Station at Concord, Frank N. Anderson, an agronomist at the Panhandle Station, Scottsbluff, and Edward G. Galliff, an NU agronomy graduate student.

Their paper is entitled, "Rate of Soil Phosphorus and Potassium Buildup/Decline with Intensive Crop Production on Nebraska Mollisols".

Jeff Creamer
Concord man hired by farm magazine

Jeff Creamer, of rural Concord, has been hired as livestock fieldman for the Wyoming Stockman-Farmer, a monthly magazine, in its 19th year of publication.

Jeff, a Wayne State College graduate, has assisted in raising cattle, farming and managing 600 acres with his father near Concord. He was also active in 4-H and FFA.

As fieldman for the organization, Creamer will work closely with ranchers in Wyoming and surrounding states promoting livestock sales and development.

Chancellor says changes needed

"Agriculture can — in the future as it has in the past — make a difference between success and failure in our nation's economic recovery," according to Martin Massengale, University of Nebraska-Lincoln Chancellor.

Addressing a noon luncheon during the Nebraska Cattle Feeders Seminar held in Lincoln recently, Massengale spoke on investments in agriculture. The two-day event was sponsored by the Feedlot Council of the Nebraska Livestock Feeders Association and the NU Cooperative Extension Service and animal science department.

"That some changes need to be made is apparent. Part of the current administration's plan for economic recovery, for instance, involves a shift in responsibility from the public to the private sector," he said.

The pressures of a restricted economy "are cutting into investments necessary for continued gains through research in agricultural production and efficiency," Massengale said. "It's important to note here that returns on investment diminish proportionately with the amount of those investments in terms of manpower as well as dollars."

Massengale warned that "we can little afford to relax our concerns about increased production capabilities."

According to Massengale, the long-range increases in agricultural output "will depend largely on research that is either going on now or must be initiated in the near future." Agricultural research, he said, "cannot be turned on and off like a tap."

Good financial management and good farm management will be even more important in the next century than it is today.

Marginal differences between costs of production and crop prices will have to be increasingly recognized and dealt with by the farmer of tomorrow.

There will need to be a continuing trend toward industrialized farming with "systems" of livestock and crop production.

"Today—even considering that we are in the midst of a war against government spending—is the time to begin development research for tomorrow," Massengale said.

TO INCREASE plant and animal productivity, Massengale said, "new production methods and cultural practices will be needed."

Massengale also listed several other changes or improvements needed including: Techniques for more efficient and publicly acceptable methods of insect and disease control will be needed, and further progress will have to be made in mechanizing agricultural operations.

We will need to become even more efficient in the use of our resources, including our natural Deposit up to $2,000. Your total contribution is tax deductible. And with an employed spouse, up to $4,000. Married couples with one employed worker can deposit up to $2,250. Even the earned interest is tax-deferred until you start withdrawing at retirement when you'll probably be in a lower tax bracket.
