Chamber backs municipal revenue plan

Wayne launches citywide lottery campaign

Wayne launched its campaign for a municipal lottery Friday, just a dozen days away from a scheduled referendum on the question.

The campaign kickoff, which took place in City Council chambers on the third floor of City Hall, featured a mock lottery drawing with four cash prizes.

A Wayne Chamber of Commerce weekly coffee meeting provided the forum for the mock lottery, which drew nearly 75 city businessmen.

"WE'RE GOING to go through a mock lottery to show you what is going to be involved after the people approve the city lottery on Tuesday, April 19," explained Phil Kloster, city administrator.

During the chamber-sponsored coffee session, mock lottery tickets — numbered in sequence to 99 — were sold at 10 cents each, with the money going into a kitty.

In addition to doughnuts and coffee, the mock lottery campaign kickoff featured posters promoting the event.

After 30 minutes of the hour-long chamber coffee, ticket sales were stopped and Kloster explained procedures to participants and nonparticipants.

KLOSTER WAS introduced by Randy Pedersen, chamber president, who informed the crowd that the business organization was taking a "yes position" on the lottery question.

Kloster told the chamber members that several people had asked him why the city was proposing a municipal lottery.

"One basic reason is that it is an alternative way to hold down property taxes, which are of vital concern to residents, including the business community," Kloster said.

"The lottery is a way to hold the line on increases," he added.

"The lottery is a completely selective alternative," Kloster continued, noting that other forms of taxation were not optional.

"SOME OF you participated today and some of you did not," Kloster continued. "And, that's the way a municipal lottery will work...but, you take a sales tax...it knows no bounds," he continued.

"Everyone is going to get nailed by a sales tax and the city merchants would also lose a competitive edge to neighbors on the north, south, east and west," the city administrator explained.

"On the other hand, with a lottery, those who want to participate can, and those who don't want to don't have to buy tickets," he noted.

Kloster also told the group that Wayne is ready to begin selling tickets on May 1, if voters approve the lottery question in the April 19 election.

BOTH KLOSTER and Pedersen urged those attending the coffee session to register to vote during the upcoming city lottery election.

According to Kloster, if the lottery gets voter approval, the plans call for the first monthly drawing in early June after May's month-long ticket sales.

"Under state law, every dollar the city nets on the lottery must offset a dollar in property tax revenue," Kloster told the group.

"That means we cannot featherbed the budget for special pet projects," he added. "The lottery proceeds have to go through the budget plan."

According to Kloster, state law requires 65 percent of every dollar in ticket sales to be returned in prize money.

Wayne ministers oppose lottery plan

Nine members of the Wayne Ministerial Association have gone on record against the city's proposed municipal lottery. In a two-page statement issued this week, the nine ministers question the morality of a city lottery and insist other options exist to ease tax hikes.

Submitted to The Wayne Herald by the Rev. Doniver Peterson, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, the typewritten statement contends "a lottery is not very cost-effective."

MINISTERS WHOSE names appear on the opposition statement, in addition to Peterson, include the Rev. Larry Ostercamp of the Evangelical Free Church, the Rev. Harold Nichols of the Wesleyan Church and the Rev. Daniel Monson, Redeemer Lutheran Church.

Also appearing on the opposition statement are the names of the Rev. James Buschelman of St. Mary's Catholic Church, the Rev. Kenneth Edmonds of the First United Methodist Church, the Rev. Jonathan Vogel and the Rev. Thomas Mendenhall, both of Grace Lutheran Church, and the Rev. Kenneth Cleveland of First Church of Christ.

"First, having a lottery is a moral issue," the statement says.

"ALTHOUGH IT appears to be an innocent pastime, it has an adverse effect on some individuals and on the community as a whole," the ministers' statement continues.

"Those who promote a lottery contend that the profits from it go for a good cause: they help support city government," the statement contends.

"But the end doesn't justify the means. If a lottery is wrong, using the profits for a good purpose doesn't make it right," the ministers claim.

"Some will also contend that the amount spent by individuals on lottery tickets is small and doesn't hurt anyone," the statement says.

"But participating in a lottery is wrong, no matter how small an amount of money is involved," the ministers contend.

CONTENDING THAT participating in a lottery has an "adverse effect" on the individual, the ministers insist:

"Such gambling leads to greater coveting, of wanting what does not belong to the individual...Greed grows through this activity."

Man guilty in theft of property

A Wayne man was arraigned Wednesday morning in Ninth District Court, Wayne County, on charges of taking property from Nebraskaland Petroleum Co., owners of the M & H Apco Station in Wayne.

Jerry Langston, 45, appeared before Judge Merritt Warren and pleaded guilty to taking property in an amount exceeding $1,000 from M & H Apco on or about Aug. 23, 1982, at which time he terminated his employment with the company.

WAYNE COUNTY Attorney Robert Enz said a pre-sentence investigation will be conducted before Langston appears before Judge Warren on May 4 for sentencing at 10 a.m.

Enz said the charge constitutes a Class III felony, punishable by a $25,000 fine, 20-year imprisonment, or both, and a minimum of one year in the Nebraska State Penal Complex.

Langston remains free on a $10,000 personal recognizance bond and has been ordered not to leave the State of Nebraska.

LANGSTON, who is being represented by court-appointed attorney Duane Schroeder of Wayne, turned himself in to the Wayne County Sheriff's Department on Feb. 21.

He had been wanted by law enforcement officials since last September.

He waived his right last month to a preliminary hearing in Wayne County Court, at which time he was bound over to the Ninth District Court.

LANGSTON at first was accused of allegedly taking property in excess of $1,000 on two occasions from Nebraskaland Petroleum Co.

Count I, which charged him of allegedly taking property in an amount exceeding $1,000 from M & H Apco when he was employed there in January of 1980, was deleted in an amended complaint filed March 3 by County Attorney Enz.

Wayne State grad new coordinator for Haven House

The new coordinator of Haven House Family Services Center, the Wayne task force on domestic violence, is 24-year-old Michelle Meyer.

She replaces Hattie Sherry, who retired last month. Mrs. Sherry had served as coordinator of Haven House for approximately two years.

The new coordinator, who holds a community counseling degree from Wayne State College, has spent the past 18 months working for the Northern Nebraska Comprehensive Mental Health Center in Norfolk.

A NATIVE of Omaha, Meyer began her new duties last Wednesday.

She and her husband, 26-year-old Wayne native Mike Meyer, were married just last month and are making their home three miles south, two east and 1/4 south of Wayne. Mike, who is the son of Dan and Edna Meyer of Wayne, farms his father's land. He is a graduate of Wayne-Carroll High School and attended Wayne State College where he was a catcher for the college ball team.

MEYER SAID one of her major duties as Haven House coordinator will be to promote public awareness of the project and its services, including crisis intervention for women in abuse situations such as rape or incest.

Although Haven House also deals with the abuser, Meyer said the program is directed more toward women "because, in most cases, it is the woman who is the victim."

Haven House also has provisions for emergency shelter for women in abuse situations.

MEYER, WHO was appointed to her new position March 22 by the Haven House board of directors, said she also will be available for speaking engagements as part of the project's ongoing prevention program.

The Haven House "catchment area" where Meyer will be available to speak includes the communities of Laurel, Allen, Wisner, Pender, Wakefield, Winside and Wayne.

"Prevention is very important," said Meyer, "and that includes working with grade school and high school children, especially in the area of self-esteem."

Meyer added that most persons involved in domestic violence, both the abuser and the victim, lack positive self-esteem.

THE DAUGHTER of Walter and Marj Gillen of Omaha, Meyer was graduated in 1977 from Archbishop Ryan High School.

She began attending Wayne State College in January of 1978, where her course of study was community service counseling, a combination of sociology and psychology with emphasis on counseling skills.

She began her internship during the summer of 1981 with the Northern Nebraska Comprehensive Mental Health Center, Norfolk, in its life improvement program.

"The life improvement program," Meyer explained, "is a partial care day-treatment program where the chronically mentally ill, who formerly were institutionalized, learn daily living skills and readjustment to community living."

Meyer received her bachelor of science degree in community service counseling from Wayne State in August of 1981 and was hired to work for the Norfolk agency the following September.

A small amount of her work there also involved working with the agency's drug and alcohol program.

MEYER, WHO'S hours at Haven House are from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. each weekday, said the center, located at 416 Main St., is open until 3 p.m.

Working during the afternoon hours is project secretary Karen Wittler.

Meyer said persons in need of help can receive it 24 hours a day by calling Haven House during regular working hours or by calling the Wayne Police Department during evenings or on weekends.

Meyer added that the center is manned on weekends by responsible volunteers.

Persons in a crisis situation also may call the Northern Nebraska Comprehensive Mental Health Center's toll free number, 1-800-672-8323.

MEYER, WHO "dabbles in poetry writing," said as a mental health professional she will serve on the Mental Health Advisory Committee made up of area professionals.

She and Wittler plan to attend a conference on family issues this week in Lincoln.

American Cancer Society crusade gets underway in Wayne County

April is Cancer Control Month. The Wayne County unit of the American Cancer Society held its kickoff meeting March 21 and is now working toward the goal of visiting every home in Wayne County with life saving information.

County President Donna Hansen said this year's educational brochure is a "Self Test on Cancer Risks."

Mrs. Hansen said every resident of the county is urged to read the brochure and follow the safeguard recommendations.

DURING APRIL, 200 volunteers will call on their neighbors with the educational message and to ask for a contribution to the American Cancer Society. "You can't read the newspapers or hear the accounts of new treatment and detection methods without realizing how many breakthroughs are occurring in cancer research," said Mrs. Hansen.

COUNTY chairmen for this year's crusade are Mrs. Emil Uken and Mrs. Dan Baddorf, Wayne City; Mrs. George Voss, Winside; Mrs. Robert Krajicek, Hoskins; and Mrs. Neil Sandahl, rural Wayne.

Chairmen for the Carroll area and the Wayne business district are yet to be named. Other chairmen not directly involved in the crusade are Mrs.

George Macklin, treasurer; Mrs. Fred Gildersleeve, memorial chairman; and Mrs. Ed Grono, Wayne County coordinator of the Cancer Prevention Study II.

OTHER NEW areas and officers are Mrs. Ralph Etter and Mrs. Ron Lage, co-chairmen of cookbook sales.

The cookbooks, put out by the Nebraska Division of the American Cancer Society, feature recipes submitted by the state's volunteers.

Cookbooks may be purchased from any volunteer or at the State National and First National Banks in Wayne.

Also working with the Wayne County unit in education is Mrs. Clifford Peters, who is available to present programs to groups in the area.

MRS. HANSEN stressed that the crusade for the American Cancer Society is not affiliated with the annual United Way campaigns conducted throughout the country.

"There seemed to be some confusion in the rural areas this year with the addition of the Rural United Way drive," said Hansen, adding that the American Cancer Society is not involved in that drive.

"We are encouraged by our national organization to distribute the educational material and feel this is a priority in our crusade," she added.

You may have heard the saying that play is child's work. That statement is truer than you might imagine. Watch a child or group of children at play. It can be delightful watching a small child's imagination at work.

What is that child thinking and learning as he moves from one activity to another?

LANGUAGE skills develop as a child plays with others. Young children soon learn that using words is important in group play. The child must express her ideas to make play fun. Older children often play word games during other activities. Rhyming and nonsense words help them experience language.

Group play also develops skills in relating to others. Children begin to learn that sharing and taking turns are important. They may discover that play isn't always fun. When a conflict arises children learn different coping methods.

YOUNG CHILDREN are interested in everything their world contains.

Play gives them the chance to use all of their senses to satisfy their curiosity. Introducing children to new things and concepts helps them increase their understanding of the world.

Play gives children a chance to assert their independence. By choosing their activities, children can tell themselves what to do. Telling a child how to use all of his play time can stifle their natural curiosity and independence.

CHILDREN OFTEN play at being someone else. Trying out the role of a teacher, parent, mailman or cowboy helps develop problem-solving skills.

As children play make believe they are trying to deal with real life situations in their own way.

When children are able to exercise control over their play time, they can build self concept. The child is benefiting from being able to select activities she enjoys.

Children, like adults, feel better after doing something special that pleases them.

AS A CHILD plays, life's mysteries unfold.

Growing up is a process of asking questions and gaining understanding. For children, their task is to learn through play.

These nutritional tips brought to you by DIET CENTER

Did you know that you fight most of your battle to lose weight long before you sit down to eat? Although you may not realize it, your biggest challenge comes not at the dinner table but at the grocery store. Grocery products are designed to get your attention and spur impulsive buying. To combat this, remember: You can't eat what you don't buy! Make out a shopping list ahead of time and stick to it. Check your newspaper for sale items and compare prices. When you make your list, remember to include foods that require preparation; they are more nutri-

Shop the outside aisles of your grocery store—these aisles contain fresh fruits and produce. Avoid those aisles full of candy, snacks, and highly processed foods. By following these suggestions, Diet Center guarantees that you will come home with not only more nutritious, low-calorie foods, but also a smaller grocery bill!

card of thanks

THE LOSS OF Myron has very deeply touched the lives of many relatives and friends. As quoted by Charles Walcott "The quality of a man's life is measured by how deeply he has touched the lives of others." We as a family wish to thank our many relatives and friends for the love, concern and prayers they have offered for us while Myron was ill and since his death. We can never repay all the kindnesses that have been shown to all of us. The family thanks anyone who helped in anyway. Especially those who did the chores and also saw to it that our daughters were provided with transportation to and from the hospitals. Thanks to Pastor Von Seggern for all the many prayers and visits he made to our home and the hospitals. Also, to the Emerson Rescue Unit crew for their special care and tenderness they showed to Myron and to the many ladies who prepared and served the dinner at church. We will always remember Myron in the verse by Isabel Newton "Those we hold most dear never truly leave us... They live in the kindnesses they showed, the comfort they shared and the love they brought into our lives." May God bless all of you! Velma and the entire family of Myron Lempke a11
