Route change

Concord postmaster answers last mail call

By LaVon Anderson

Norman Anderson of Concord is changing routes. Anderson, postmaster at Concord the past 21 1/2 years, is retiring the end of this month. "They tell me there's an awful lot of fish waiting to get caught," chuckles the 64-year-old Concord native.

ANDERSON BEGAN his association with the Concord Post Office on Sept. 30, 1961 when he was named acting postmaster to replace the retiring Earl Hughes.

He received his permanent appointment as postmaster on April 25, 1963 from President John F. Kennedy.

Anderson points proudly to the certificate of his appointment which for over 20 years has hung on the wall above his desk, signed by President Kennedy.

"That's how they did it back then," he explains. "The President of the United States appointed postmasters. Today, the appointments are made by the postmaster general."

A 1937 graduate of Concord High School, Anderson was born and raised on a farm two and a half miles south of Concord, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Neils O. Anderson.

Following his high school graduation, Anderson farmed with his father until February 1941 when his father died and he took over the family farm operation.

While farming, Anderson also served as Dixon County Supervisor for eight years during which time the farm to market road was constructed two miles south of Concord, linking Highway 15 to Highway 9.

ANDERSON'S decision to quit farming at the age of 42 and begin a career with the post office wasn't easy.

"I didn't apply for the position," he says, adding that appointments then were more political.

Anderson was approached for the postmaster's position by then District Democratic Chairman Phyllis Verzani. His name was sent in the next day.

"It was a very, very big decision. We didn't sleep much that night."

ANDERSON SAID he didn't hear a thing about the position until some time later when he received a visit at 10 o'clock in the morning by the postal inspector.

"He wanted me in the post office at 10 a.m. the next morning to swear me in as acting postmaster.

"I was nervous. I had never been behind a desk before.

"Besides," he laughs, "I had a bunch of brood sows that were to start farrowing on Monday and I was to put in nine hours a day at the post office."

Anderson sold the sows on Sunday.

In 1962, while still serving as acting postmaster, he and his wife sold the family farm and moved into Concord.

"I HAD A lot of good help when I first started in the post office," says Anderson.

Helen Carlson was serving as clerk at the time of Anderson's appointment and remained with the post office until 1971 when she retired and her position was eliminated.

"Then," says Anderson, "we were open nine hours a day, six days a week, and put out mail on Sunday."

Today, the post office is open eight hours a day, five days a week, and two hours on Saturday.

"THE HOURS have changed, and of course you know the rates have changed — like everything else," says the retiring postmaster.

A first class postage stamp was four cents when Anderson

High School plan expands foreign language program

Wayne-Carroll High School students may have a choice of two foreign languages next year.

During a special meeting Thursday afternoon, members of the Wayne-Carroll Board of Education voted to attempt to offer both Spanish and German for the 1983-84 school year.

Superintendent Francis Haun emphasized that German will be offered in any event to students who have already taken German I. Haun said the district will advertise for both positions.

DISCUSSION OF the foreign language curriculum followed an announcement earlier this month of the resignation of Inga Atkins, German instructor at Wayne High the last 12 years.

Board president Becky Keidel stressed that discussion of changing the foreign language curriculum is in no way based on Mrs. Atkins' teaching abilities.

Atkins, appearing before the board Thursday, defended German as a foreign language offering.

"I'm for all foreign languages, of course," Atkins said, adding that German is a language of business, especially for students considering a career in the arts and sciences.

Atkins also pointed out that 28 percent of the people in the United States are of a German background.

"I THINK German simply is the preferred language," stated Atkins, "and many Wayne High graduates have said their foreign language background definitely was an asset."

Atkins pointed out that declining enrollment in German classes is due, in part, to scheduling conflicts of incoming freshmen. "There are so many required courses freshmen students must take that there simply isn't enough time in their schedules to enroll in foreign language," Atkins pointed out.

Keidel questioned whether it would be feasible to wait until the sophomore year before offering German.

"I really feel we should be offering foreign language in the fifth grade," answered Atkins. "Even offering it at the freshman level is very, very late because students at that age are much more inhibited."

Administrators' salaries set

The Wayne-Carroll Board of Education voted Thursday afternoon to increase by 4 percent the salaries of all school administrators and other employees not involved in negotiations.

In addition, the board agreed to offer the same insurance benefits to the monthly/yearly wage staff as it does certified staff members.

The monthly/yearly wage staff includes the superintendent, all three school principals, superintendent of buildings and grounds, head cook, and secretary to the board of education.

SUPERINTENDENT Frances Haun's salary for the 1983-84 school year will increase from $38,363 to $39,898, based on a 12-month contract.

High School Principal Donald Zeiss' salary for the 1983-84 school year, based on a 10 1/2 month contract, will be increased from $30,600 to $31,824.

Middle School Principal Richard Metfeer, who is on a 10-month contract, will see a pay increase from $27,056 to $28,138.

Elementary Principal David Lutt, who also is on a 10-month contract, will receive $25,984, up from $24,908.

In addition, Lutt will receive an extra $2,000 as director of the Title I program. Haun said the $2,000 is not paid by the school district but with federal money administered through the State Title I office.

RICHARD POWERS, who is full time superintendent of buildings and grounds, will earn $17,776, up from $16,996, for the 1983-84 school year.

Marjorie Summers will earn $9,653 during the upcoming school year as kitchen supervisor, and Doris Daniels, secretary to the board of education, will make $14,600.

Summers' contract is based on 10 months, while Daniels' contract is for 12 months.

ALSO SPEAKING before the board Thursday was Maria Grovas, Spanish instructor at Wayne State College.

"I'm here to ask you (the board) to consider offering Spanish as a foreign language at Wayne High," said Grovas.

"I would never ask you to change the curriculum if Inga were staying," Grovas said, adding "I think she is an outstanding teacher."

Grovas pointed out that while the ideal situation would be for the school to offer two foreign languages, Spanish is an easier language to learn than German.

"Structurally," said Grovas, "Spanish is one of the easiest languages to learn."

"TODAY, SPANISH is the second language of your country," Grovas told the board.

"In the year 2,000, the United States is going to become a bilingual country without any doubt," she added. Grovas said many states today require that teachers prove they can communicate in Spanish.

"I think there are many, many students at Wayne High who would like to take Spanish," Grovas said.

"It's your choice, but I think you should offer Spanish."

"If you can offer both German and Spanish — fantastic!"

IN OTHER action Thursday, board members voted to change Mary Ann DeNaeyer's position as seventh and eighth grade math instructor from 5/7 time to full time.

Haun said the change to full time is needed because of the number of sixth grade students (79) entering seventh grade next year.

Australian brings the boomerang into Carroll School's classroom

Carroll Elementary School students have their own boomerang.

And, thanks to Phillip Egge, they have a better understanding of a country half way around the world.

Egge, a 32-year-old Australian, visited with the elementary students Tuesday in Carroll and presented the school with a genuine Australian Outback boomerang.

AN ASSISTANT prison superintendent (equivalent to an assistant warden) in his homeland, Egge spent the better part of an hour bringing the young Nebraska students closer to a continent that exists in another hemisphere.

A native Australian, Egge lives in a small New South Wales town called Belberrah, which is near Australia's east coast. Egge, who was introduced to the students by Carroll teacher

Ruth Kerstine and her husband, Wayne, talked about kangaroos, koalas, boomerangs, aborigines, kukaburras and cockatoos as he told the children about himself and his country.

In addition, Egge presented the school with a cassette tape documenting information about Australia, a long-time United States' ally.

EGGE, WHO is on a three-month study tour of U.S. prison systems, is a winner of his country's prestigious Churchill Fellowship Award.

His study mission to the United States, at expense paid and will take him to such places as Washington DC, New York City

Businessman's bequest to offset debt

Panel bars claim on Thun estate

A Wayne businessman has agreed to an out-of-court settlement on a claim against the estate of the late August F. Thun.

Russell W. Tiedtke of Kugler Electric, Wayne, who had been named as a $15,000 beneficiary in Thun's will, has agreed to dismiss his appeal to the state Supreme Court as part of the settlement.

Tiedtke, who had been denied a $39,000 claim against the Thun estate by Wayne County's Ninth District Court Judge Merrill C. Warren, appealed to the state Supreme Court in January.

THUN, WHO was Tiedtke's landlord, died March 20, 1981. And, despite his $15,000 bequest in Thun's will, Tiedtke, who was also named personal representative for the estate, filed a claim for an additional $39,217.10 in Wayne County Court.

The lower court allowed the claim, but attorneys for residuary devisees (real estate beneficiaries) took the decision to Ninth District Court, where the ruling was disallowed.

Tiedtke renewed his claim by appealing to the state Supreme Court.

A special state Supreme Court settlement panel negotiated the out-of-court agreement, disallowing Tiedtke's claim in its entirety.

FURTHERMORE, the negotiated settlement stipulates that Tiedtke's $15,000 bequest and a $10,000 fee for acting as personal representative for the estate must be applied toward the tenant's indebtedness to the Thun estate.

Court records show that Tiedtke owed the estate some $36,188.27, plus interest, as the result of several loans from Thun over the years.

Under the settlement, an additional $3,000 is forgiven on Tiedtke's indebtedness to the Thun estate if the Wayne businessman agrees to meet all terms of the agreement satisfactorily.

That means Tiedtke agreed to a $28,000 offset on his indebtedness to the Thun estate, which left the businessman with about $8,000.

In addition, the state Supreme Court settlement panel assessed more than $1,000 in court fees against Tiedtke.

was named acting postmaster in 1961. Shortly afterward, the price of a first class stamp jumped to five cents.

"I've always said that postage isn't really that high," laughs Anderson, "because when a postage stamp was a nickel, a cup of coffee also cost a nickel."

"Now," he laughs, "where can you buy a cup of coffee for 29 cents."

"Actually," he chuckles, "postage hasn't gone up at all. I can still sell you a four cent stamp."

Anderson said many other changes have taken place in the post office over the years.

Several years ago, the Dixon and Concord consolidated mail route was divided between carriers at Laurel and Wakefield.

The University of Nebraska Northeast Station, located near Concord, also has had a major effect on the post office, according to Anderson.

"When the Northeast Station was first built they mailed about a dozen letters a day. Today, they mail about 100,000 letters a year."

"Another big change," says Anderson, "was the implementation of zip codes and the establishment of sectional centers in the early 1960's."

A member of the National Association of Postmasters of the United States, he has served as district director at several different times.

During his term as state membership chairman, he attained over 90 percent membership every year.

His suggestion to place ice melt pellets in plastic garbage bags for storage during the summer months earned him the Suggestion Award which was a $25 bond.

"If you don't place the pellets in bags they get like a block of rock," he smiles.

Anderson is most proud of is the Irene Barrell Award he received last June from the State Postmasters Association.

"That's more or less a Postmaster of the Year award," explains Anderson.

"It's my most prized award and one that I'll take home with me when I leave the post office."

Anderson also received an award signed by the postmaster general in 1976 for serving as chairman of Concord's bicentennial celebration.

The award, which included a medalion and bicentennial stamps, was given by the post office to employees involved in bicentennial activities.

Anderson said many other changes have taken place in the post office over the years.

RESIDUARY devisees in the case are the Wayne Hospital Foundation, the Nebraska affiliate of the American Heart Association, and the Nebraska division of the American Cancer Society.

The state Supreme Court panel found that the Wayne County Court ruling by Judge James Duggan was in error for allowing the initial claim by Tiedtke.

Furthermore, the panel found that evidence in the case did not establish an oral or written contract between Tiedtke and Thun.

New officers for 1983-84

Wayne County Jaycees and Jayceettes have elected new officers for 1983-84.

Serving as president of Jaycees during the upcoming year will be Verdel Luff.

Other Jaycees officers are Larry Magnuson, vice president of management development; Ken Kwapioski, vice president of community development; Rodger Allemann, vice president of individual development; Scott Johnson, secretary; and Mark Throener, treasurer.

JAYCEETTES president is Mindy Luff.

Other 1983-84 officers are Jan Magnuson, vice president; Norma Preston, vice president of awards; Diane Zach, vice president of individual development; Nancy Reinhardt, secretary; and Robb Johnson, treasurer.

Serving on the board of directors are Joanne Ekberg, Deb Bargholz and Ann Nolte.

that provided for payment to the businessman for services.

A special administrator, Delay First National Bank and Trust Co., was appointed special administrator to the Thun estate.

And, the panel did uphold and affirm the County Court's allowing of the special administrator's claim of $36,188.27 against Tiedtke.

BUT, THE panel reversed the County Court's decision to allow Tiedtke's claim against the estate.

Also, the panel reversed the County Court decision on assessment of costs and taxed Tiedtke for court expenses.

The settlement on the case, which began last November, stipulates that Tiedtke is to dismiss his appeal to the state Supreme Court.

Tiedtke also agreed to have his $15,000 bequest and $10,000 personal representative fee offset against his indebtedness to the estate.

The additional $3,000, which represents a $1,000 fee paid by each of the three residuary beneficiaries to have the matter settled out of court, is to be eliminated from Tiedtke's indebtedness to the estate if he meets the terms of the stipulation.

TERMS OF the stipulation direct Tiedtke to make semiannual payments to the estate on not less than $2,500 beginning July 15, 1983, to satisfy the debt.

All parties to the settlement agreed to take no further action against Tiedtke as long as he complies with the terms of the settlement.

Tiedtke has been represented in the case by attorney Charles Caskey of Stanton.

Wayne attorney Kenneth Olds of Olds, Swartz and Enz, represented the Wayne Hospital Foundation.

Omaha attorney Paul Rault represented the Heart Association and Omaha attorney George Pardee represented the Cancer Society.

Tiedtke's original claim against the estate lists "personal attention" to his landlord for six years for a total of $30,800, or $400 per month.

The Wayne businessman, who received interest-free loans from Thun, also filed farm management fees against the estate.

THOSE FEES included $1,245 for 1977, $1,943 for 1978, $1,880 for 1979, $2,583 for 1980 and $551 for 1981.

The Thun estate, which was filed for probate in County Court on March 30, 1981, had an estimated total value of more than $650,000, including real estate — two quarters of farmland, plus another 80 acres — appraised at more than $500,000.

Essentially, the Supreme Court panel upheld the District Court ruling by Judge Warren, which denied Tiedtke's claim and prompted the businessman to seek relief in a higher court.

Tiedtke had received over $15,000 in interest-free loans from Thun.

And, two months before Thun's death, Tiedtke and his wife, Helen, signed a promissory note to the landlord for more than $17,000.

country boy. . .

Howdy.
I went to school this past week. And, I learned a lot more than I care to admit.
However, some of it I must admit at my own expense. Perhaps I was not the only parent who learned from a child who took the time to see that her father understood.
Forgive me for addressing this to my daughter, Cassidy, who is a first-grader at Wayne Elementary School.

MY DEAREST daughter,
Where do I begin to tell you how proud I am of who you are? You know that Pops works with words every day, but, for some reason, they don't come as easily when I want to tell you how important a person you really are.
I know you were worried that work would keep me from being with you during the open house at your school.
Please forgive me for not reassuring you that I would not have missed it for the world.

YOU SEE, all too often I get lost in the long hours and exhausting demands of learning to be a good newspaperman. And, though there is little in my life that is more important than you, I get distracted by a bunch of silly things instead. Oh, they don't seem silly at the time, but they sure keep me from doing a lot of little things that are important to you.
What I need to tell you now is that they are important to me too.
And, you have every right to be disappointed that I don't show it more often.
If it helps, I'll let you in on a little secret: I am disappointed, too.

I AM DISAPPOINTED in myself for being so buried in my own selfishness that your efforts to tell me about your progress often fell on deaf ears.
Please understand that I did not intend to shut you out. And, when it gets right down to it, there is no excuse for what I have done.
Last Tuesday night, you confronted me with the evidence of who you are and I must say I sure opened my eyes.
Your eagerness to learn and your first-grade accomplishments are something to behold.
I learned more about you in one hour than I have in the last nine months.
Perhaps what pleases me the most is not that you have learned to read and write, but that you have become a well-rounded person recognized by your teachers and your classmates.

ALREADY YOU built a solid foundation for your own future in the classrooms to come.
I feel a bit sad when I think of the times you came to the kitchen table at supper to show me your papers, and I spoke sharply to you for interrupting my conversations with your mother.

I also apologize for the telephone calls that interrupted your enthusiastic tales of school experiences.
I know I rarely got back to you so that you could finish the very important words you had to share with me.
I remember, now, the dozens of times I watched you slip quietly from the kitchen without a word of complaint while I talked endlessly to some stranger about business.

BUT, MORE importantly, dear daughter, I ask that you forgive me for not seeking you out to give you the opportunity to say what was on your mind.
You have relentlessly sought my attention in an effort to share your knowledge.
And, I am ashamed that I had to see your posters on the wall at school to realize what an accomplished artist you have become.
I hope it isn't too late to tell you that the pink hippopotamus is a work of art.
And, the fact that you can spell it, too, leaves me slack jawed.
By the way, your classmates seem to be a fine group of friends who constantly offer you the support you need to continue learning.

THEY ARE a credit to themselves and to their families as well.
I'm sure their parents are as proud of them as I am of you. I'm impressed with you and overwhelmed by your ability to grasp some very complex things.
You are reading books that require a great deal of concentration, and your ability to understand them is particularly pleasing to me.
I have loved books all my life, but somewhere I failed to take the time to tell you how important they are.
Now, you are not only telling me, but showing me how you have come to discover a whole new world on the printed page.
I could kick myself for not telling you earlier how pleased I am that you have been going to the library regularly instead of asking to turn on the television set.

YOUR INTEREST in reading should have dawned on me months ago, particularly when I think about the times I've overheard you begging your mother to read Pops' newspaper column aloud to you.
In addition, the fact that you take your little sister to the library with you on Saturdays is exciting to me.
Why I've expressed my approval of that to your mother and never to you makes me exasperated with myself.
And, I know the reading you do is helping you. I don't have to see your charts on the wall at school to know that, though that's what it took to get me to thinking.
You may not know it, but I've listened to your vocabulary grow by astounding leaps and bounds in just a few short months.

AND, MORE than once I have been absolutely amazed at not only your grasp of detail but also your ability to express it clearly.
Your first grade homeroom teacher has got to be a special person to you.
I must admit that I've heard you talk about her day in and day out, but we've never really sat down together to discuss the wonderful things she is sharing with you.
But, I could tell you had a special relationship when we were at school that night. In fact, your other teachers, too, shared some very special thoughts with me while we visited.

IT IS VERY embarrassing for me to admit it, but I did not know you could play a xylophone.
Music is so exciting. It, too, opens up a whole new world for you, a world I don't have much experience in because I never took advantage of the opportunity.
And, though I know I've selfishly silenced your vocal chords at home from time to time, your music teacher tells me that you can sing like a lark.
It's been a long time since we've sung together, just you and me. And, your voice is so young and soft that I lose it in the crowd of voices at church on Sunday.

WE USED TO do a pretty good job on "Home on the Range." Let's try it again sometime real soon.
I'd like that very much. I know it's up to me to ask, because I'm starting to see how difficult I have made it for you to ask me.
Again, please forgive me for acting like I don't care about the music in your heart, because it's not true.
I care very much. I've just been a miserable failure at telling you, which makes all the difference in the world.
I promise to do better if you promise to keep singing. It's a delightful blessing in our home and I do want to hear it as you romp around the rooms with your sisters.

BEFORE I forget, I must tell you how impressed I am about the physical education skills you have developed.
Somewhere along the line, I lost track of your progress after you learned to ride your bike last year.
But, the equipment your coach has helped you train on is beyond my experience. You would have been the envy of everyone in my first grade class.
Pops worked with rock scarred baseballs, splintered bats and rag packed socks for mitts.
You have mastered, in one year, the fundamentals of everything from jump ropes to balance beams.
And, the exercises you are able to do have helped keep you a healthy, active, cheerful kid.

YOU SEEMED worried about your lack of skills on some of the more complicated gym equipment.
But, you need not be concerned. Your coach is guiding you in a world that will keep you healthy all your life.
And, I can see that what he says is gospel to you. That's as it should be.
I don't know why I haven't said anything about how the relationship you have with him has you doing so many healthy things, including lecturing Pops on smoking.
I cannot begin to tell you how often I have noticed your excellent posture, your alertness, your poise and physical stamina.
You see, those things are all part of being a well-rounded person who is hard at work developing a delightful personality.

YOU KNOW, young lady, you have also developed a healthy self image, which is so important to me.
I can tell by your grooming habits. And, it even shows in the pictures you are drawing of yourself.
You rarely overlook the things that are important about your own unique personhood.
You are quickly developing the ability to see yourself as others see you, something that many people struggle for a lifetime to grasp.
Certainly, it is time for me to begin again... to tell you that I do want to hear, see and experience the new and exciting things that have become an important part of your life.

I KNOW it sounds a little silly to be worried about it since you are only a first-grader, but it won't be long before you are on your way into the world I work in every day.
If I continue to shut myself out of your young world, there will be no reason for you to invite yourself into my old world.
I do not want that, even though my actions over these few months would belie my words.
So, my dear child, please don't give up on me.
Speak up for yourself and even yell at me if you have to, because my sin of indifference to your development is intolerable.
You need to know that it was unintentional. In fact, believe it or not, I had very good intentions.

BUT, THEY may have paved the road to a parental hell, had you not insisted I go to school with you last week.
Thank you for the invitation.
And, thank you for teaching me some things about myself I needed to know.
I'm not a dummy, just a slow-learner sometimes.
Maybe with a teacher like you, I'll begin learning as fast as you do.
I'd like that.
Catch you in the country, Cassidy.

letters

To the editor:
First I would like to commend the ministers who stood up against the lottery plan — and to The Wayne Herald for publishing this truth — and to the people who voted against it.
It is worthy to note that nine ministers came forward instead of one. Making the old biblical question ask: "Where was the one?" instead of "where are the nine?"
It would be wise for the city of Wayne to honor the truths that these ministers possess. They have studied the word of God and not like most of us who pick and choose God's word in a "hit-or-miss" fashion.
In a "hit-or-miss" fashion we are likely to miss more than we hit. We have a tendency to justify our actions to our own likings. Will we choose eternal values that these ministers advocate?
The Bible prophesies the weakness of man in II Timothy 4:3-4. For the time is coming when people will not endure sound teaching but have itching ears they will accumulate for themselves teachers to suit their own likings and will turn away from listening to the truth.
It is sorrowful that many will be tempted to spend their needed dollars so a few can win. Who do we give this credit to?
A quick vote on this issue has me wondering about the ingenuity behind it.

Old-time medicine real menace

By Richard L. Leshar
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

Imagine, if you will, that you are in the hospital bed recovering nicely from a Jorg illness.
Your doctor enters your room, seats himself beside you, opens up a jar of leeches and in his best bedside manner explains that you will be fit as a fiddle after a little bloodletting.
Your first reaction might be to bolt for the door.
YOU MIGHT, at least, request a second opinion.
Physicians, of course, no longer prescribe bloodletting for illnesses. The medical profession has — through trial and error — learned a great deal since the 13th century. It has learned, for instance, that the wrong medicine can sometimes kill a healthy patient.
I wish our politicians and the professional economists in Washington were as quick to learn.
For some time now, our economy has been under the weather suffering from the malignant cancer of big government. And as this cancer grows — with higher taxes, more federal spending, regulation and inflation — it crowds out and kills off the healthy sectors of the economy.

WE HAVE SEEN the damage caused to the auto and steel industries by overly restrictive environmental regulations.
Government borrowing has pushed up interest rates and crowded out private borrowing by small companies.
And punitive tax rates have killed off millions of jobs and weakened our competitiveness in international trade.
But now, just as our economy is beginning to recover from these assaults, what do the Washington witch doctors propose? Their answer, their miracle cure, is a return to the failed policies of the past — the patent medicines of higher taxes, more spending, make-work programs and a return to double-digit inflation.
LEECHES. They would apply more leeches.
Now the use of bloodletting by medieval doctors may seem funny to educated men and women of the 20th century. But it was no joke to those patients who bled to death.
And there is nothing humorous in the prospect of draining the American economy of the savings and investment needed to create jobs and opportunities both for those who are presently unemployed and for those young Americans who will be entering the labor force in the next few years.

A doctor can only bury so many patients before he comes to realization that he is doing something wrong. Politicians, on the other hand, do not bury their mistakes... they repeat them. Again and again and again.
THE TIME has come, however, for even Congress to understand that big government is the problem, not the solution — the disease, not the cure.
We have been through tough times, but the American economy is beginning its long delayed recovery. A real, sustainable recovery.
Unemployment is falling; inflation has dropped below four percent; interest rates and oil prices are dropping; and the stock market is reaching record highs. Our future looks bright.
My diagnosis: the patient is doing just fine. Our economy is on the mend and will surprise us with its strength and vitality. If — and this is a big if — Congress refrains from getting out the old-time "medicine" and putting us back in intensive care.

Roots

If you forgot to plant a tree Friday, there's still plenty of time to honor the Nebraska-born Arbor Day tradition.
Though Arbor Day was April 22, it's never too late to plant a tree.
And, don't let the prolonged winter-like weather become your excuse for not planting a tree.
Instead, organize a family tree planting session and honor the 100-year-old tradition.
It's one of the most constructive activities you and your family can do together.
Thousands of Nebraska families continue to honor the legacy left to us by J. Sterling Morton, a Nebraskan who spearheaded the effort to establish Arbor Day as a national, if not international, tree-planting holiday.
And, if you are worried that you missed the right opportunity on Friday, take note that Arbor Day is celebrated at different times throughout the country.
Actually, Morton himself first asked that April 10 be set aside for tree planting. That was back in 1872.
By 1875 the governor of Nebraska proclaimed that Arbor Day would fall on the third Wednesday of April.
And, 100 years ago, the American Forestry Association passed a resolution urging the governors of all states, or state school superintendents, to observe the tree-planting holiday.
In 1885, the Nebraska Legislature fixed Arbor Day's date on April 22, the birthday of the J. Sterling Morton.
There is no doubt that Morton, who served on the state's Board of Agriculture, was aware of the weather problems experienced by Nebraskans.
So, if you missed the exact date, Morton would be the first to understand. Morton so supported the planting of trees in Nebraska that nearly any date would do, as long as the seedling had a chance for survival.
To Morton, a tree meant the future.
In fact, one of Nebraska's best known folklorists, Roger Welsh of Lincoln, embraces that with lines he penned in a book "Of Trees and Dreams" published in 1982:
"Planting a tree is not just a practical thing to do; it is a vote of confidence in the future. It is a gift to someone you don't know. It is a sign of gratitude to all those who planted trees years ago for us."

news and notes

extension agent-home economics

Consumers supply the demand for products, services and information.

With these demands comes responsibility to take advantage of consumer education programs and materials.

During National Consumers Week, April 24-30, attention is focused on consumers at the hub of our economy. Consumers not only keep the wheels of industry turning, they also influence issues affecting product usage.

IT IS everyone's duty as a consumer to both compliment and complain about products and services.

How are manufacturer's or business people supposed to know what you expect of them? You must tell them!

When you find a product that pleases you write to the company or person responsible. We all need encouragement and businesses are no exception.

Consumers with a complaint tell more people about their negative experiences than do consumers who are completely satisfied with a product.

Next time you have a positive experience, let someone hear from you.

SOMETIMES we have a legitimate reason to complain about a product or service. And companies want to hear your complaints. Often consumers will switch brands before writing a complaint letter. The alternative worries the manufacturer.

A study was conducted for the Coca-Cola Company that had some interesting results. Most consumers do not complain at all because it's too much trouble or they don't know where to begin.

Many don't believe the company will do anything about their problem.

This same study found that one of the best marketing tools a company can have is a good method of handling complaints and questions. Most businesses are intelligent enough to realize that handling a complaint is much more profitable than losing customers.

MAKING YOUR feelings known is worth the time, but how do you do it? Two extension publications can help you write that complaint letter.

The first, "How to Complain," HEG 76-55 explains step by step how to write to a company. The second, "Where to Turn for Help," EC 82-2275 lists addresses of agencies and businesses that you can contact to complain or compliment.

Observe National Consumers Week by contacting the Wayne County Extension Office at 375-3310 for copies of these publications.

Or write that letter to compliment or complain about a product from April 24-30.

Cedar County plans Spring Salad Day

Spring Salad Day, hosted by the Cedar County Home Extension Council, will be held Thursday, April 28 in the basement of the Hartington city auditorium. All Nebraska homemakers are invited to attend the event which begins at 1 p.m.

SPEAKER WILL be Marylys Bueber, registered nurse and director of Sacred Heart Hospital's Home Health Agency in Yankton, S. D.

Also speaking will be Dr. Charles Vlach of the Family Medicine Center in Hartington.

Both will present information concerning the hospice program being organized in Cedar County.

ALSO ON the program are Cindy Heimes and Jan Knief of Hartington, who will present their aerobics dance group.

Quilted and photography items by extension club members also will be on display.

policy on weddings

The Wayne Herald welcomes news accounts and photographs of weddings involving families living in the Wayne area.

We feel there is widespread interest in local and area weddings and are happy to make space available for their publication.

Because our readers are interested in current news, we ask that all weddings and photographs offered for publication be in our office within 10 days after the date of the ceremony, information submitted with a picture after that deadline will not be carried as a story but will be used in a column underneath the picture. Wedding pictures submitted after the story appears in the paper must be in our office within three weeks after the ceremony.

Hartman-Johnson exchange vows in afternoon rites at Concord

Lori Jean Hartman became the bride of William Johnson in afternoon rites April 16 at the Evangelical Free Church in Concord.

Decorations for the double ring ceremony included two round candelabras with arrangements of pink gaidioli, white pompons and burgundy carnations, and pew bows in burgundy and white. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Hartman of Dixon and Mr. and Mrs. Leon Johnson of Laurel.

THE REV. Anderson Kwankin of Allen and the Rev. John Westerholm of Concord officiated at the wedding.

Ushers, who also lighted candles, were Tom Lukken of South Sioux City and Bob Dahlquist, Rob Bowman and John Knudsen, all of Laurel.

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Hartman of Dixon sang "Together" and "Savior Like a Shepherd Lead Us." The bride wrote and sang "Our Wedding Song."

Organist was Steve Linn of Laurel, pianist was Mrs. Marshall Frasier of Lincoln, and flutist was Mrs. Craig Rostad of Laurel. Flower girl was Alissa Krie of Laurel, and ring bearer was Jonathan Kovos of Laurel.

FOR HER wedding day, the bride selected a white organza gown designed with a jewel neckline and long candlestick sleeves.

Her gown was dramatized with silk Venice filigree and bridal pearls. Re-embroidered motifs defined the sleeves and waistline. The English tulle skirt emerged from an empire waistline touched with white tulle. The edge of the skirt was adorned with a crystal pleated flounce which draped to a full chapel train.

Her sheer illusion veil fell from a tiara of pearls, and she carried a cascade of white roses, white and pink miniature carnations and white stephanotis with baby's breath and pink forget-me-nots.

The bride's personal attendant was Sharol Carlson of Omaha.

MAID OF honor was Larena Siebert of Omaha, and bridesmaids were Sandra Hartman of Dixon, Kelli Johnson of Laurel, Clarisse Peters of Omaha and Gwen Brewer of Fremont.

Their burgundy lustrous polyester knit gowns were accented with sheer lace on the sleeves, and front and back yokes.

They wore wreaths of pink and white flowers with burgundy baby's breath in their hair and carried single pink roses with baby's breath.

RANDY BLOOM of Dixon served as best man.

Groomsmen were Clayton Hartman and Brian Bloom, both of Dixon, and Tony Wells and John Lukken, both of Omaha.

The bridegroom was attired in a white tuxedo, and his attendants wore gray tuxedos with gray striped slacks and white shirts.

The bride's mother wore a long, two-piece dress of pink lusterlargo designed with a crystal pleated skirt and open weave lace jacket.

The bridegroom's mother selected a mauve floor-length polyester gown with a sheer jacket. The jacket was fashioned with a lace bodice and ruffles over the shoulder to a V in back.

MR. AND Mrs. Dan Hanson of Laurel and Mr. and Mrs. Derwin Kardell of Dixon greeted 250 guests at a reception in the Concord auditorium following the ceremony.

Janet Frey of Omaha and Debbie Schultz of Oakland registered guests, and Kari Diederik of Sioux City and Jana Wacker of Lincoln arranged gifts.

THE WEDDING cake was cut and served by Kim Jones of Wayne and Marlyce Carlson of Omaha. Cutting and serving the bridegroom's cake were Bev Christensen of Laurel and Melani Gunnarson of Wayne.

Kris Gensler and Lori Koester of Allen poured, and Susan Erwin and Denise Dempster of Concord served punch.

Mr. and Mrs. William Johnson

Waitresses were Cara Dahlquist of Laurel, Monica Hanson of Concord, and Nancy Dempster and Penny Dempster, both of Dixon.

Assisting in the kitchen were Mrs. John Young, Mrs. Carol Hichert, Mrs. Louis Abts, Mrs. Sterling Borg, Mrs. Bob Dempster, Mrs. Gene Quist and Mrs. Dick Hanson.

Summer jobs

Winter is gone, spring is here, and summer is on its way. Along with summer come the swim suits, shorts, and tanktops. But with the fun, there's always work.

Many students are planning on working this summer. They all have their own reasons ranging from clothes to college.

When looking for a job some students look for a job they like, while others look for a good paying job. Others just want to get a job to "get to see a lot of my friends this way."

The jobs students plan on working range from walking beans to working at the Dairy Barn.

Summer jobs give the students something to do and also a source of money. From the responses we've received, students are more responsible with their money when they have to earn it themselves.

Spring music

"I feel it is a challenge to the students." This describes the spring music which is ringing in the air. This year's music contest will take place at Wayne State College April 22 and 23. Saturday activities include the contest pieces from several bands from this area with the vocal solos also being presented.

Those people and small groups that will be representing Laurel-Concord school are a clarinet duo, a trombone duo, a percussion ensemble, a wood quartet and a wood duo. People playing solos are Renee Gadeken on the B flat clarinet; Colleen Mackey on the oboe; Monica Hanson on the trumpet and piano; Denise Burman on the tenor sax; and Scott Kardell on the snare drum and piano.

The band will be performing two pieces on Saturday: "Passacaglia" and "Allegro" by Tommy Fry, and "Brighton Beach" by William P. Latham.

"It's easily in our reach... if we keep progressing at the same rate," said Mr. Rostad, Laurel-Concord band director. "I fell confident about it."

The Wayne Herald

On April 5, the Laurel-Concord Journalism class went to The Wayne Herald in Wayne. The building is a brick, one story, newer building divided into three sections. The front office is for the writers, the second for putting the paper together, and the third part for the printing of the paper.

The journalism class went to The Wayne Herald to get an idea of what the real thing is like. Randy Hascall led the tour. Mr. Hascall showed the class many different things, but the main thing that was interesting was how journalists write their stories on a computer and how they can store the articles on the computers. The way journalists put the paper together was interesting too.

Student Council Elections

An election of Student Council officers at Laurel-Concord High School will be held this spring. The Student Council will elect officers in the spring. The council feels that by doing this the officers will be familiar with the unfinished business of the previous year.

Requirements for the offices have been set and used in past years. An A or B average must be maintained, and officers and candidates may have no failing classes from the preceding semester.

A committee was set up and given the responsibility of deciding if the election is feasible. Included in this committee were Benjie Galvin, chairman; Tim Lineberry; Cara Dahlgquist; John Chace; and Wendy Robson. When asked how the officers have done this year Benjie Galvin said, "I think they have done better than the years before."

Cooperation: The ski key

The Girl Scout Troop #236 from Laurel recently went skiing at Copper Mountain in Colorado. One Girl Scout described it as a "great ordeal of happiness." Another said that it was "a real experience in cooperation."

There were mixed feelings about the number of people. Some said that it would be nice if there would have been fewer than 35 people, but most felt the trip was better with a large number. One Girl Scout said, "It was kind of like a huge family." Another commented that everyone got to know each other better. It was a real experience in cooperation living with 35 people for four days.

Everyone felt that the trip went well, and that they'd like to go again. Joan Hochstein, the Girl Scout leader, felt that a couple of things could have been changed in organization and transportation, but overall it was a good trip. She said that she would probably take the Girl Scouts on another ski trip next year. She feels that the girls deserve to do something different than what they are used to doing.

Each Girl Scout has their own memories of this ski trip that they'll never forget. "There isn't one certain thing that stands out because it was all so terrific!" said one Girl Scout.

There were so many unbelievable answers to the question "What was the funniest thing that happened?" One girl couldn't stop on her skis, "totally out of control!" Others had run-ins with trees and skied in places and in ways that no one had before!

When the girls looked down the slopes for the first time, there was a confusion of thoughts. They ranged from "It's beautiful!" to "Oh...!!!" But they made it down, either on their skis or in other various positions.

Cream or sugar
April 24 through April 30 is National Secretaries Week. Secretaries Week is a time for different businesses to honor their secretaries. Mrs. Mason, secretary of Superintendent Jim Lofquist, said, "It gives you a good feeling to have your position recognized." Coffee and flowers from the Office Procedures class and corsages from the administration are given to Laurel High School's two secretaries.

Mrs. Granquist, school secretary, has followed her occupation for eight years. Mrs. Mason's secretary career spans 32 years. When asked if they had ever dreamed of becoming a big corporation's executive secretary, Mrs. Granquist replied, "Yes, for the prestige," but "not for all the pressure."

Mrs. Mason said now because she had never lived where there was a big corporation. Secretaries Week is a time to honor those secretaries you know for all their hard work and devotion.

FHA State Leadership

The Future Homemakers of America (FHA) State Leadership Conference was held April 10-13 in Lincoln. The theme for the conference was "Operation...Reach Out!" The conference which was organized by the Nebraska State Vocational Home Economics Department and State FHA Officers was designed to help FHA members gain leadership skills, promote membership and motivation, and provide sessions of special interests for members.

Activities planned for the conference included general sessions, special interest sessions, sessions for candidates for state officers, an "outreach session," district meetings, and leadership sessions.

The general sessions included an introduction of state officer candidates, a keynote address, recognitions, awards, election and installation of the new state executive council. The "Outreach Session" included chapter resource booths, a performance by Sac Jazz Band, and other fun activities.

Leadership sessions were designed to train FHA officers to perform their duties better. Sessions also included promotion of FHA membership and motivation.

A special session was held to help FHA chapters promote male involvement. Miss Williams, Laurel's FHA sponsor, stated that many boys attended the conference but that they are definitely in the minority.

Attending the conference from Laurel was Penny Smith 1983-84 FHA Secretary-Treasurer, Suzi Hintz 198-84 FHA Historian, and Brenda Jussel 1983-84 FHA Public Relations.

Kearney visits today

Wayne State adds another two wins to its streak

After a rough start early in the season the Wayne State baseball team has come together to post a 10-game winning streak, including victories over Westmar College and Northwestern College in action this past week.

The Cats face a four-game series with district and conference rival Kearney State, with two of those games on schedule for Saturday in Kearney and the second double header set for today (Monday), in Wayne.

The wins over Westmar and Northwestern colleges gave WSC a perfect 6-0 record on their home field and improved their record to 12-8 on the year. The Wildcats overcame Northwestern on Thursday by the scores of 8-5 and 14-6.

A TWO-RUN homer by junior Doug Starzl in the bottom of the second inning gave Wayne State an early lead it had to work to maintain to win the opening game of the twinbill with Northwestern, 8-5 on Thursday.

Northwestern took the lead in the top of the second with a single run before Starzl belted out his first home run of the season with senior Craig Ladwig on base. Ladwig was two for three at the plate with a double and a pair of RBIs, and Cruickshank knocked in one RBI with a double in the fifth inning.

Junior pitcher Randy Frink was on the mound for the Cats and evened his record at 2-2 with the win.

Senior Chico Mason recorded the only extra-base hit of the game with a double in the bottom of the second inning. Jerry Goeden of Wayne knocked in two RBIs with a single in the fourth inning.

Sophomore Greg Dostal pitched his way to his third win of the season against one loss.

Diet facts & fallacies

These nutritional tips brought to you by DIET CENTER

Alice Froeschle

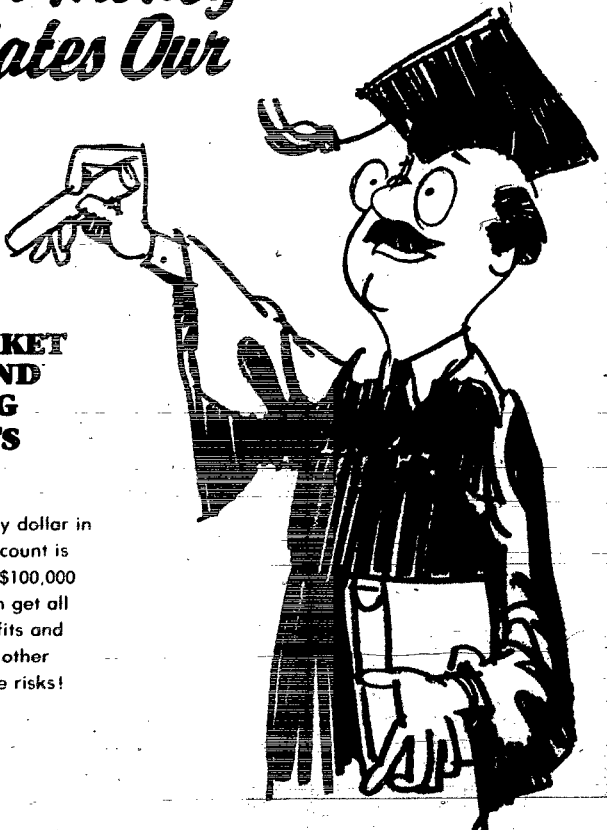

Are you planning a trip in the near future and are worried about your diet? Just treat your diet like a suitcase—plan and pack in advance.

Prepare yourself mentally by firing up your self-discipline. Set a goal for yourself to work on—even if it is to lose just one pound. Take along some snacking alternatives—fresh fruits and vegetables, hard-boiled eggs, whole grain crackers. Make sure you drink eight glasses of water (8 oz. each) every day and exercise as much as possible to keep your body running smoothly.

When you get to a hotel or restaurant, quickly scan the menu for fresh salads, fruits and fish. Avoid fatty meats, gravies, sauces, desserts and cocktails. Ask your waitress to prepare your foods with lemon, not butter. State your intentions courteously and clearly. Explain that you are on a restricted diet if necessary. If you are planning to fly, a request twenty-four hours prior to departure will usually ensure your getting a high-protein, low-calorie meal.

Diet Center believes that conscientious planning and preparation will help you lose weight, even during a vacation. See your local Diet Center Counselor for other suggestions.
