Council studies several issues

The Wayne City Council will spend two more weeks studying a possible Peoples Natural Gas rate increase before acting on the request.

At its regular meeting Tuesday night, the Council listened to Peoples representative Keith Mosley explain why a rate increase is needed. Mosley, a councilman, had to be excused from his council seat during discussion of the issue.

"I'm here not for fun; it's a necessary evil," Mosley told the Council. "We need a reasonable rate of return to stay in business."

COUNCILMAN CAROLYN Filler suggested that action on the ordinance could be pushed back until the next meeting. By law, ordinances must be read at three meetings unless the Council votes to pass up one or two readings.

The Council voted five to one to listen to the second reading at its next scheduled meeting. Jim Craun voted to pass up the final two readings while Filler, Gary Vopalensky, Larry Johnson, Le Hanson and Darrel Heier all voted in favor of three readings. Councilman Darrel Fueserth was absent and Mosley could not vote.

Mosley said this would be the first general rate increase in three years and would involve a three-fold rate structure change. "Operating costs have continued to rise and we've had no rate increase for three years," said Mosley, who pointed out that only one percent of each dollar is profit.

He added that the increase would average about 7.36 percent in Wayne. The minimum bill payment would rise from $3.71 to $7.71. According to Mosley, persons who conserve energy will feel the brunt of the increase. Customers with high usage will be penalized the least, he added. The more gas used, the lower the percentage of increase.

LARRY JOHNSON told Mosley that residents will ask when the next increases will be requested.

Stating that the Wayne business is a subsidiary of Peoples Natural Gas, Mosley replied that no general increases are expected in 1983-84. "They're making strides in buying gas at lower rates. The rate increases we've had have been pass along increases from the company."

Mosley said many things are being done to decrease operating costs and added that suppliers are making an endeavor to reduce. "If the increase wasn't necessary, I wouldn't ask for it," he said.

IN OTHER ACTION, the Council scheduled a trip on Tuesday, May 24 to review waste water plants in Emmetsburg and Sheldon, Iowa.

Don Franklin, representing Walker Process equipment, extended an invitation for the Council to tour a waste water plant in Austin, Minn. or one in Spencer, Iowa.

The Council is trying to determine what brand of equipment should be used in Wayne's proposed waste water plant.

Bids for an outdoor warning system were opened and the Council will thoroughly evaluate the bids prior to the next meeting.

SMEAL FIRE Equipment Company of Snyder submitted low base bid of $36,022 for the system. An optional bid of $3,755 for a status map board also was included. Andersen Fire Equipment of Omaha submitted a bid of $40,233.90 and an option of $3,750 for the map board. Whelan Engineering Company of Deep River, Ct. submitted the other bid of $45,632 and an option of $3,000.

All three bids were below the engineer's estimate of $49,536.

The City Council awarded a bid for a digger to Badger Body Company. The bid of $44,529 was opened at the last meeting and the Council has reviewed all the proposals extensively, visiting with equipment owners. A portable generator will be added for $573.

City Administrator Phil Kloster said that May 22-28 has been proclaimed as National Public Works Week. Mayor Wayne Marsh has signed a proclamation. Kloster also pointed out that this week is Municipal Clerks Week and acknowledged the good job Clerk Norm Melton has done.

School board accepts language trust fund

The Wayne-Carroll Board of Education voted unanimously Tuesday night to accept a Francis R. Haun Trust Fund for Language Disability Students, as established by the late Dorothy Ley of Wayne.

The board also voted to assume the responsibility for meeting the stipulations as set forth in the trust document.

Present at Tuesday night's meeting to outline the stipulations in the trust were Kenneth Olds, the board's attorney, and Tom McLain of the State National Bank and Trust Co.

OLDS TOLD board members that the $5,000 fund, which was established in June of 1970 with the State National Bank as trustee, is to be used by the school district in the training of teachers and instruction of students who have a learning disability.

The will also stipulates that trust funds must be administered by an advisory board, comprised of one member of the board of education, the school superintendent, and one lay person.

Olds said a second trust established by Mrs. Ley in the amount of approximately $50,000 is subject to the condition that the interest from the fund be used to enhance the existing learning-disability program in the Wayne School system.

OLDS SAID Mrs. Ley's will also requires that the fund be audited every three years by the Orton Society, an organization dedicated to the research of dyslexia and other learning disabilities.

Serving with Superintendent Francis Haun on the advisory board to administer trust funds are Joyce Reag, a member of the board of education; and Janice Dinmore, a parent member.

The trust department of State National Bank is designated as a depository of all money contributed to the fund.

BOARD MEMBERS met Tuesday night following a concert by the Wayne High varsity band, concert choir, stage band and swing choir.

Appearing before the board were Byron and Terry Janke, who asked the board of education if they would be willing to contract with them for the education of their elementary students.

Janke said they were requesting that their children be contracted into District 17 without transferring their land into the district.

"The board's feeling is that we have not done this in the past and it would not be a good idea to do this now," said board president Becky Keidel.

Keidel added that the board would welcome the youngsters into the district if the land also were brought in.

Janke said they would consider the idea of transferring their land into the district.

ALSO APPEARING before the board were Richard Mettner, middle school principal, and David Luff, elementary principal, who explained their procedures for teacher evaluation.

The board will meet in executive session next month to discuss the evaluations.

Luff also received permission from the board of education to cooperate with the Wayne Police Department in fingerprinting youngsters in the elementary school.

The fingerprinting would be done only with parent consent, and the records would become the property of each child's parent.

Luff said the fingerprinting is being done as part of a nationwide thrust to identify missing youngsters.

The board of education asked Luff to inquire with the police department as to the possibility of fingerprinting middle school and high school students also.

IN OTHER ACTION Tuesday night, the board: Accepted the resignation of Marjorie Summers as head school cook, effective the end of the current school year. Mrs. Summers has served as head school cook the

WAYNE STATE graduating seniors hang on to their caps as a strong gust of wind whips through the Willow Bowl. Except for wind, the weather held up well during commencement exercises Sunday afternoon. A total of 192 persons received degrees.

Diplomas awarded to WSC grads

Strong winds didn't stop 185 Wayne State College seniors from enjoying commencement in the Willow Bowl Sunday.

A large crowd watched as the class of graduates received diplomas from WSC President Ed Elliott. Seven masters degrees also were presented.

J. ALAN CRAMER, chairman of the Nebraska State College Board of Trustees, told the graduates that opportunity today is as great as it has ever been. "Why? Because there are so few folks out there who really want jobs, who are really willing to scramble for them, who really want to work, that the rare individual who will walk that extra mile will far outshine the competition," he said.

Along those same lines, I'd like to make brief mention of loyalty. I don't care whether it's a school, a large company, a college, a country store or a church, everyone working for the same outfit is in the same boat," said Cramer. "When the rulebook is working there is one indisputable fact and that's this: Everybody on one payroll—any organization at all—is on one boat."

"Now here is a scientific fact about a boat: you can't sink half of one of them. You can't sink the officers quarters and let the crew just ignore it and sail on. You can't sink the crew either and let the officers just laugh it off and go right ahead with the cruise as if nothing had happened. They all go down or else they all stay up—together."

CRAMER, WHO entertained the audience with several jokes, gave the graduating seniors some advice.

"I want to leave you with a few guidelines that I feel are important:

"1. Continue to educate yourselves. Read, discuss, take additional courses, think. Thinking and contemplation are becoming lost arts. We haven't time for them. Yet we should think before we speak.

"2. Fulfill your vocation in life. Do your own job well first and fulfill your role as husband, wife or parent. Then add these other tasks and duties.

"3. Act. I am becoming almost allergic to conversation. People in various specialties, from politicians and military figures to professors and businessmen have invented pat "in" phrases to describe their activities, but, more often than not, these merely disguise their inactivity. Don't be afraid, as Clarence Darrow said, to 'stand up when others are sitting down.'

"4. Extend yourselves. This is that extra bit you do that really hurts but gives the greatest pleasure. This takes will power and determination. The dictionary is the only place where 'success' comes before 'work'. Don't spend your life envying others' success. Do those sacrificial things which bring both success and happiness."

KEVIN KRAEMER of Allen, student board member of the Board of Trustees, greeted the crowd and also spoke for a few minutes. He graduated Summa cum Laude.

A total list of graduates is included on the Campus Page.

Changes in state's license plates are considered

By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

Nebraskans may be sporting a new look on their license plates next year. After nearly three hours of debate last week over the design of the plates, lawmakers voted 28-11 to advance LB 118 to the third and final round of consideration. The bill calls for some big changes.

IN AN EFFORT to make vehicle identification easier for law enforcement officials, the new plates would have a series of three letters followed by three numbers.

You would have something like ZYX-987. Other features of the new plate include an imprint of the word "Nebraska" across the top, and an adhesive strip bearing the county name across the bottom. The colors of the plate will be decided later by the state Department of Motor Vehicles. State officials have delayed replacement of the current 1976-vintage plates for several years because of budget considerations. LB 118, introduced by Sen. Jerome Warner of Waverly, would impose an additional registration fee of $1 a plate - meaning $2 for an automobile - to cover the costs. The bill also calls for new plates every three years. MANY SENATORS particularly those from rural areas, argued against the change saying that the current county numbering system is understood and appreciated by Nebraskans. Lawmakers considered and rejected amendments to the bill which would have included these slogans on the plates: "Tree Planter State," "Arbor Day," "Heartland of Agriculture," and "Agriculture's Heartland." Consumers are facing the likelihood of a half-cent increase in the state sales tax on July 1 to take care of cash flow troubles which state officials say would otherwise plague the state years into the future. The Legislature last week tentatively approved a modified version of Gov. Bob Kerrey's proposed sales tax increase, which would raise the tax in order to create a $35 million fund which would be used to get the state through the rough cash flow periods. The bill calls for a temporary 0.5 percent point increase in the state sales tax rate, which is currently 3.5 percent. THE SURTAX, when added to existing state and local sales taxes, would result in consumers paying 5.5 percent on purchases in Omaha, 5 percent in Lincoln, North Platte, Bellevue and other cities with a local option tax and 4 percent everywhere else in the state. The surtax would be levied for nine months, or less if the needed revenue is raised sooner. The revenue would be kept in a separate cash fund and be available for borrowing when the state general fund dips too low to meet spending obligations. In an effort to sidestep some of the political liability for the tax increase, lawmakers amended the bill to direct the five-member Board of Equalization, which is chaired by the governor, to order the increase rather than ordering it themselves. Kerrey said that arrangement is fine with him because it doesn't alter what he considers the two essential elements in his plan: that the tax is temporary and that the revenue is maintained separate from the state general fund. THE BOARD of Equalization is scheduled to meet after the adjournment of the current legislative session later this month. Ironically, passage of LB 169 earlier this session will take the Board of Equalization out of the tax rate-setting business altogether in 1984, returning the task permanently to the Legislature.

The garden grows

The youth of this country form the roots of our society and like all roots they need proper nourishment. The people of Wayne added a pinch of fertilizer to their garden Friday night when a post-prom party was held for the juniors and seniors at Wayne-Carroll High School. The Blue Devil Booster Club hosted the party from 1 to 5 a.m. and Wayne State College let the boosters use Rice Auditorium. The party was held following the annual banquet and dance. The boosters provided soft drinks and popcorn and cooked a sausage and egg breakfast later in the morning. A movie was shown, a dance was held and various games were played with gift certificates given as prizes. The 180 students also were allowed to use the WSC swimming pool. The idea for a post-prom party is not new but it is new to Wayne High. It's an idea that the students seem to enjoy and it provides good, cheap entertainment. It's something that hopefully will become even more successful in the future.

Debate over Nebraska's plates occupies Unicameral session

In a long and arduous debate last Tuesday, the Legislature completed redesigning Nebraska's license plates. As I reported earlier, the Legislature had considered this issue previously and settled upon a plate which contained only the word "Nebraska" and numerals indicating the county and individual plate number. In the course of Tuesday's debate, amendments were proposed which would have put the slogans "Heartland of Agriculture," "Arbor Day," and "Agriculture's Heartland" at the bottom of the plate. All were rejected. A proposal to renumber the counties according to current population figures also failed. It would have changed Dakota County from 70 to 16, Dixon County from 35 to 50 and Wayne County from 27 to 32. The amendment which was adopted, and which I opposed, will change the numbering system we currently have, to an alphanumeric system, which utilizes a combination of three letters and three numbers for each plate. For example, your plate could read ABC-123 instead of 35-A100. Your next door neighbor could have a license plate of QRS-678.

senator merle von minden

THE ONLY WAY to tell what county a vehicle was licensed in would be to look for a small decal with the county's name on it which will be affixed to the lower portion of the plate. With approval of this amendment, the redesigning was complete. A further attempt was made to use reflectorized paint on the letters and numerals instead of on the entire plate, but it was rejected. A motion to kill the bill was made, but later withdrawn before it could come to a vote. Finally, on a vote of 28-11, the bill, LB 118, was advanced to Final Reading. LB 604, of considerable importance to counties, advanced to Select File on Monday.

Last year the Legislature passed LB 522 allowing the State to completely take over the funding of welfare medical assistance by July, 1983. Currently, 14 percent of the costs, approximately $22-25,000 monthly from my district, are born by the counties. I opposed LB 604 because it calls for the State to back out of its responsibility and leave the counties, who have not budgeted for medical assistance because of LB 522, to come up with the funds. Under the bill, the State will pay approximately one-third of the cost in 1984, two thirds in 1985, and the total cost in 1986. Meanwhile the counties are left to fend for themselves in 1983. LB 253, dealing with car insurance, also advanced to Select File on Monday. Originally the bill called for minimum liability coverage of 50-100-50. An amendment lowering the coverage amount to 40-75-40 failed. Finally, it was agreed to set the rate at 25-50-25, which ties us with New Hampshire for the state with the highest required coverage in the nation. Current law requires coverage of 15-30-10. The first figure refers to the maximum amount of coverage in thousands of dollars for the injury or death of one person, the second figure for two or more persons and the third figure to the amount of coverage for property damage. The price of insurance coverage is almost certain to increase if this legislation passes. In debate on the budget, the Legislature continues to duck the issue of raising sales and income taxes. It continues to look for alternate means of raising taxes instead of cutting the budget. To give back to the University of Nebraska the $6 million reduction we had agreed on earlier, the credit for the sales tax on food was repealed. This allows the State to reap an $11 million windfall which is going to be used, under the provisions of LB 628, to give the University even more funds than they had before the reduction. The sales tax on food was also repealed, but not until October of this year. In the meantime, the sales tax you pay on food will go to the University and not into your pockets in the form of a credit, next April. I believe, if we want to continue to increase spending, the Legislature should be up front about raising the money to pay for it, instead of hiding its actions as it did in this case.

Proposed tax freeze would harm most taxpayers

By Cheryl Westcott
Nebraska Farm Bureau

Freezing taxes sounds like a good idea to most American taxpayers. But right now, Congress is looking at a tax freeze that will harm most taxpayers, because it proposes to freeze taxes at a higher level when they are scheduled to come down. To most of us, a tax freeze means placing a cap on federal spending. Taxpayers everywhere have been calling for this kind of freeze, which among other things would likely freeze increasing costs of entitlement programs such as social security and federal retirement benefits. But right now there is a movement afoot in Congress to "freeze" — read that "eliminate" — the 10 percent personal tax break scheduled for July 1. There also is talk of eliminating tax indexing, which prevents bracket creep from pushing taxpayers into a high tax bracket. AND FINALLY, there's talk of freezing estate and gift tax exemptions authorized in last year's tax act. Both of these are of special concern to farm families. Let's look at each of these proposals separately. First, the 10 percent tax cut scheduled for July 1 is the first that will benefit the average taxpayer. The highest tax rate already had been lowered from 70 percent to 50 percent under the 1981 Tax Act, thus giving high income taxpayers the greater part of their three-year tax cut sooner. But those with middle incomes are still waiting for the phase-in to be completed. If the July 1 cut is repealed, high income taxpayers will have received more of the originally planned three-year tax cuts than lower income taxpayers will have received. Second, there's the matter of tax indexing. Indexing is designed to offset the effects of bracket creep through which inflation pushes a taxpayer into a higher tax bracket. Without indexing, an increase in income is swallowed up by the increased tax liability of the higher tax bracket. With indexing, the average taxpayer has a chance to realize some gain from an increase in income. THE SECOND IMPACT of the move to repeal tax indexing is more insidious. With taxpayers pushed into higher tax brackets, federal revenues are automatically increased — without the passage of the legislation to increase taxes and without a careful look at spending priorities. Congress thus has an opportunity to increase spending without assessing whether the spending is needed, and without putting the matter to a vote. The House already has adopted a budget resolution calling for $33 billion in increased spending and $30 billion in increased taxes for FY 1984. The repeal of indexing would be one way of financing that increase. The third proposal, freezing estate and gift tax exemptions, hurts farm families especially hard. For many years, farmers and ranchers fought to raise the unrealistic $60,000 estate tax exemption to a figure that would reflect years of inflated property prices.

After many years, Congress accepted estate tax changes in the Tax Reform Act of 1976, which raised the estate tax exemption to $175,000. And in the tax act of 1981, the estate tax exemption was raised to a more realistic $600,000 estate tied to a six-year phase-in period. NOW THE CHAIRMAN of the House Ways and Means Committee has recommended freezing the estate exemption of the 1983 level, which is equivalent to an estate exemption of $275,000. Probably the greatest irony about this proposed freeze is that estate taxes generate only one to two percent of federal revenues annually. This proposal would increase that amount by less than one-half percent. Yet the effect on the farm family is devastating, with heirs often having to sell of land and property acquired through years of hard work in order to satisfy tax requirements. And once again, Congress would have the opportunity to increase spending without examining priorities. Despite expressed Congressional concern for a growing budget deficit, each of these tax increases and proposals have one thing in common: All are aimed at raising more money for more federal spending. Increased taxing will speed up government spending, not slow it down. More taxes and more spending at a time when our fragile economy is trying to recover can only delay or destroy that recovery.

Northeast Station testing pressure canner gauges

Anna Marie White, Dixon County extension agent-home economics, reminds homemakers to check their supplies and equipment for home food processing.

White said now is the time to inventory supplies to make sure of the quantity and sizes of jars and lids when garden products are ready for canning.

"Good canning equipment, properly cared for, is essential for successful food processing for maximum safety and minimum spoilage," White added.

GAUGES ON pressure canners should be checked at least once a year to ensure that food will be processed at proper temperature and pressure, according to White.

Homemakers wishing to have a gauge tested may do so at the Dixon County Extension Office, Northeast Station, near Concord on May 17.

White added that weighted gauges that simply "float" to record pressure cannot be tested.

For further information contact White at the Northeast Station.

Wayne United Methodist minister delivering final sermon in June

The Rev. Kenneth Edmonds, pastor of the First United Methodist Church in Wayne the past nine years, will deliver his final sermon on Sunday, June 5.

Edmonds, 53, has been appointed pastor of the Methodist Church in Ogallala and will deliver his first sermon there on Sunday, June 12.

His appointment was made by Bishop Monk Bryan of the Nebraska Annual Conference.

EDMONDS AND his family came to Wayne in June of 1974 from Shelby, Neb., where he served a Methodist church there and in Surprise for three years.

A native of Kansas City, Mo., he was graduated from Central College in Fayette, Mo. in 1957, and received his master's of divinity degree in 1962 from St. Paul Methodist Seminary in Kansas City.

He also served a church in Kansas City while attending seminary.

FOLLOWING graduation from seminary, Edmonds moved to Santa Rosa, Calif., where he ministered at a Methodist Church there for five years and was instrumental in organizing and building the first unit of a new church.

He then spent four years as an Army Chaplain, serving at Fort Ord, Calif., Korea, and Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., before moving to Shelby and later to Wayne.

Edmonds said one of his major accomplishments since moving to Wayne has been the development of the Methodist Church, including the remodeling two years ago of the sanctuary and fellowship hall, and adding on a small addition.

HE AND HIS wife Mary, a registered nurse at Providence Medical Center, were married in 1955 in Kansas City and are the parents of three children, including a daughter and twin sons.

Melanie, 25, is a surgical technician at Deaconess Hospital in Billings, Mont.

Jeremy, 22, is a counselor at Yellowstone Boys Ranch in Billings, Mont., and Jeffrey, 22, is an assistant counselor for the trainable mentally retarded in the Mesa, Ariz. School system.

A FAREWELL open house reception honoring the Edmonds family will be held Sunday, May 15, in the fellowship hall of the First United Methodist Church from 2 to 4:30 p.m.

Interim vice president honored at retirement dinner at WSC

It had been announced as a retirement dinner for Ruby Pedersen — the kind of event the Wayne State College Faculty Club plans every spring when somebody is retiring.

Last Wednesday evening, the faculty gathered in the Student Center to honor Mrs. Pedersen, who will retire June 30 as interim vice president.

However, Mildred Jones, emeritus professor of English, wasted no time in her eulogy debunking the idea that Ruby Pedersen was "actually" retiring.

"THIS IS A coming-out party for Ruby. She will never 'retire,' she'll just do something else," Mrs. Jones said.

Later, President Ed Elliott confirmed this idea and quipped that he had been spending about three days a week writing recommendation letters for his "retiring" vice president.

There was obvious tongue in cheek as the president continued some of the light hearted banter that Mrs. Jones had delivered in reminiscing of her association with Mrs. Pedersen in teaching English.

MRS. PEDERSEN, as a graduate student, volunteered to teach a class at Hahn School, the campus laboratory school where Mrs. Jones was supervising teacher in English.

After earning a master's degree, Mrs. Pedersen became an instructor of English at the college in 1961.

In the years since then, she has risen to the rank of associate professor, served a year as interim associate dean of students in 1973-74, organized the freshman honorary Alpha Lambda Delta 15 years ago and continued as its adviser, been active in the Nebraska State Education Association, taken an active role with the college's Affirmative Action Committee, and served as interim head of the humanities division in 1981-82.

WHEN ELLIOTT left the vice presidency to become president of the college last July, one of his first decisions was to appoint Mrs. Pedersen as interim vice president.

"I think that will long be regarded as an excellent decision," Dr. Elliott said as he continued his praise of her career at Wayne State College.

Mrs. Pedersen had mentioned her intention to retire at the end of this academic year, even before her selection as vice president.

She said she probably will move to Omaha, enjoy her granddaughter, born to daughter Ann on March 19, and maybe think of teaching a few more years.

Blue Devils bound into district championship

A two-run sixth inning brought Monday's first round district baseball game to an early close as Wayne advanced with an 11-1 win over Bancroft-Rosalie. The contest, at the Wayne city ball park, was scheduled to go seven innings but ended by virtue of the 10-run rule.

The Blue Devils are now scheduled to host Omaha Benson at 4 p.m. today (Thursday) in the district championship game. The winner will advance to the State Class A Baseball Tournament next week.

Wayne had three big innings against Bancroft. The hosts scored four runs in the first inning, five in the fifth and two in the sixth.

TO START the game, Randy Gamble and Jeff McCright drew walks. Todd Schwartz drove in the first run with a single and McCright scored from third on a passed ball. Steve Overin walked and Schwartz scored on an error. Don Larsen drove over in home with a single.

The 4-0 edge held up until the top of the fifth when Bancroft took advantage of two Wayne errors. In the bottom of the inning, the locals came back with five runs on two singles and five walks.

The first two batters made outs but Overin started the rally by drawing a walk. He stole second and scored on a hit by Dennis Lebsock. Larsen singled home Lebsock and Chris Wieseler. Tim Heier, Jeff Jorgensen, Randy Gamble and McCright drew consecutive walks to bring home three more runs.

Wayne put its final two runs on the board in the bottom of the sixth. Overin and Lebsock walked and Todd Dorcay added a run-scoring single. With Lebsock on third base and Heier on first, Wayne used a balk steal to bring in the final run. As Heier intentionally got himself tied up in a pickle between first and second, Lebsock rushed home.

SCHWARTZ, WHO threw a two-hitter through five innings and struck out eight batters, gave way to reliever Overin in the sixth. Bancroft finished the game with only three singles.

In addition to improving his pitching record to 5-1, Schwartz also went 2-for-4 at the plate. Larsen was 2-for-4, Lebsock was 1-for-3. Dorcay was 1-for-3 and Jorgensen was 1-for-2.

Entering today's game with Benson, Overin is the team's leading hitter with a .500 average. Larsen is batting .455, Schwartz is hitting .444, McCright is batting .379, Lebsock is hitting .375 and Gamble is batting .364 among the team's players with at least 20 at bats.

The Blue Devils are hitting .347 for the season.

Benson escapes late threat to oust Bears

Three men were stranded on base as Omaha Benson made the final out on a pop fly and advanced to the district finals with a 3-2 win over Laurel Monday afternoon in Wayne.

The Class A district baseball tournament is scheduled to conclude today (Thursday) when Benson meets Wayne in the championship game at the city ball park (Hank Overin Field).

The Bears saw their season end as Benson's shortstop caught a pop fly with bases loaded in the top of the seventh inning. A solid base hit probably would have given Laurel the lead.

THE BEARS outlit the Bunnies six to three but stranded nine runners in the seven inning game. Laurel left bases loaded in the first and seventh innings, stranded runners on second and third in the sixth and left a runner on second base in the third inning.

Benson scored the game's winning run in the bottom of the fifth inning on a walk, two stolen bases and a wild pitch.

Laurel scored once in the first inning and again in the third. Kelly Robson singled in the first and bases became loaded when John Chase and Mike Granquist drew walks. Brian Haisch then singled home Robson for the game's first run. A strikeout ended the threat.

In the third inning, Chase started things off when he again walked. He stole second base and came home on a hit by Ron Hirschman. Granquist and Haisch each singled in the sixth but were left on base.

IN THE SEVENTH inning, the Bears needed at least one run to stay alive. With two outs, Robson singled to keep Laurel in the game. Chase and Hirschman drew back-to-back walks to load the bases but Benson got out of the jam with an out.

For the ball game, Haisch was 2-for-3 and Robson was 2-for-4. Haisch pitched all seven innings for the Bears and held Benson to three hits. He struckout five batters and walked seven.

Wayne wins, Kearney goes home

The NAIA District 11 baseball tournament had some good action and a major surprise Tuesday as opening round play was held at Wayne State College.

The host Wildcats advanced through the first round with an 8-1 win over Peru State. The surprise came when second-seeded Kearney State lost two consecutive games and packed its bags for the trip home.

Kearney lost 5-2 to Dana College in the first round and then lost 8-7 to Peru in the loser's bracket of the double-elimination tournament.

THE WAYNE State victory moved the Cats into Wednesday's second round game against Dana. That game was planned at 1 p.m. and the loser was scheduled to meet Peru at 4 p.m. Wednesday's two winners will battle at 1 p.m. today (Thursday). If another game is necessary to decide the championship, it will follow.

Wayne's Neil Brown pitched a six-hitter and fanned 10 batters in the nine-inning win over Peru. The Cats scored two runs in the first inning, two in the second and four in the fifth.

Doug Starzl of Wakefield went 3-for-5 at the plate and Jeff Clark went 3-for-4. Wayne State turned three double plays.

In the first inning, Gregg Cruickshank scored on a Starzl single, Craig Ladwig's triple brought Starzl home. In the second, designated runner Jeff Zeiss scored on a sacrifice fly by Randy Heying. Rick Murcek added another run when Tom Todd hit into a fielder's choice.

FOUR WALKS helped WSC in the bottom of the fifth inning. Cruickshank scored when Chico Mason drew a walk, Ladwig drew a walk, Starzl singled, Clark singled and Heying singled to round out the scoring.

Ladwig, Murcek, Heying and Todd each had one hit. Clark and Heying had two RBIs each while Starzl, Ladwig, Mason and Todd had one apiece.

Four wins give Cats home field advantage

The Wayne State Wildcats won four key NAIA District 11 games on Friday and Saturday to earn themselves the right to host the district tournament this week.

Wayne State swept two from Bellevue on Friday, 9-2 and 16-0, then trimmed Concordia 11-1 before rallying for an 8-7 win over the Bulldogs on Saturday. All four games were played in Wayne.

The decisions gave WSC a 20-13 mark heading into the district tourney in Wayne this week, and the Cats now boast a modest six-game winning streak.

WILDCAT PITCHER Rick Guy of Wakefield scattered four hits and got ample support at the plate as Wayne State drubbed Concordia 11-1 in the first game of a twin-bill on the WSC diamond Saturday afternoon.

Guy lost his bid for a shutout in the fourth inning when the Bulldogs managed to punch across one run, but went the distance to record his second win against one setback.

Chico Mason was the big gun at the plate, going 2-for-3 with a pair of doubles and two RBIs. Catcher Jeff Clark was 2-for-3 with a triple, while Doug Starzl got things going with a three-run double in the first inning.

NEEDING ONE more win to secure the home site for the district playoffs, Wayne State had to rally from a 7-6 deficit in the bottom of the seventh and final inning for the 8-7 thriller Saturday afternoon against Concordia.

The Cats had to shuffle their pitching staff after starter Gregg Dostal and reliever Darin Christensen had trouble finding the plate.

Relief ace Jerry Goeden came in early in the second inning and went on to post his second victory against no losses.

Wayne State went through four Concordia pitchers as well. The Bulldogs held a 7-5 lead going into the bottom of the sixth when Gregg Cruickshank walked with bases loaded to score Mike Hutcheon and pull the Cats to within, 7-6.

Goeden set the Bulldog batters down in order in the top of the seventh to pave the way for the winning rally.

Craig Ladwig walked to start things off, then Doug Starzl blasted a long double that scored Ladwig to tie the game. Jeff Clark sacrificed Starzl to third, then Rick Murcek got on board on a fielder's choice. Mike Hutcheon then drove in the winning run with an RBI single Hutcheon was 2-for-3 at the plate, the only Wildcat with more than one hit in the game.

J. ALAN CRAMER, chairman of the Board of Trustees, addresses Wayne State's graduating class at Sunday's commencement.

Med student works with Wayne clinic

A University of Nebraska Medical Center student has arrived in Wayne to serve a two-month preceptorship with local physicians. Carol Polts of Wayne, a student in the College of Medicine, will be working under the supervision of Dr. Willis Wiseman and Dr. James Lindau in learning about medicine in a small town setting. Dr. Robert Binhammer, associate dean for academic affairs in the College of Medicine, said the program is designed to give medical students good experience in ambulatory care and at the same time encourage them to consider practicing in rural areas of the state when they complete their medical training. "These clerkships provide the student with a realistic view of the practice of medicine in a small community," Dr. Binhammer said. "We hope this will prompt some of the students to consider a small town practice."

ANOTHER MEDICAL Center student was in Wayne earlier this week to serve a dentistry preceptorship with a local dentist. Thomas Blankenau of Bloomfield, a student in the College of Dentistry at Lincoln, worked under the supervision of Dr. Richard DeNaeyer on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday in learning about dentistry in private practice. Dr. Robert Wood, chairman of community dentistry in the College of Dentistry, said the program is designed to give dentistry students exposure to an urban or small town dental practice. "Dentistry students entering their final year spend three days with dentists throughout the state to get a first-hand look at how a practice operates from day to day," Dr. Wood said. "We hope this will prompt some of the students to consider a small town practice."

4-H horse shows set

Locations and dates have been set for the 1983 Nebraska District 4-H horse shows and horse judging clinics, according to R. B. Warren, extension 4-H horse specialist at the University of Nebraska.

This year's district 4-H horse show dates and sites are: June 21, Gordon; June 22, North Platte; June 23, Kearney; June 24, Stuart; June 27, Aurora; June 28, Lincoln; June 29, Waterloo; and June 30, Walthill.

Entries for district and state horse shows are due in extension offices no later than June 3.

Meat consumption up

Per capita consumption of red meats, poultry and fish is greater in high income families than it is in low income families, right?

Fact is, just the reverse is true.

According to a recent USDA report, in 1965, per capita consumption of meats at home by low income families was 4.11 pounds per week, compared to 4.61 pounds per week by people in high income families. But by 1977-78, per capita consumption of meats in low-income families had increased to 4.71 pounds per week, while in high income families it had decreased to 4.37 pounds weekly.

This is just one of a number of facts in the new USDA publication, "Consumer Demand for Red Meats, Poultry and Fish."

The publication costs $13.50 and may be obtained by writing the National Technical Information Service, 5285 Front Royal Road, Springfield, Va. 22161.

Tree planting guide free

A free guide outlining the benefits of planting trees in rural areas is now available from the National Arbor Day Foundation.

"The National Arbor Day Foundation will be developing a comprehensive educational program to encourage the increased planting and improvement management of trees in farming areas," John Rosenow, the foundation's executive director said. "As part of this program, the Foundation has published a conservation planting guide which outlines the benefits of trees for improving soil conservation and farm income."

"Trees can serve a vital role in controlling soil erosion," Rosenow said. "Shelterbelts reduce wind erosion, and trees on steep slopes and along waterways reduce water erosion. The National Arbor Day Foundation recognizes that hard-pressed farmers need economic returns from their land, and our conservation planting guide shows how trees can be income producers while conserving the soil."

To obtain this free information, interested people should send their name and address to Conservation Planting Guide, National Arbor Day Foundation, Arbor Lodge 100, Nebraska City 68410.

Inspection applications due

Applications for inspection and certification of seed crops are due in the Nebraska Crop Improvement Association (NCIA) office by May 20, according to Roger Hammons, NCIA associate manager.

"Field inspection is a vital link in the seed certification chain," Hammons said. Producers of wheat, oats, barley, rye and cool-season grasses, whose fields were planted with Foundation or Registered seed, need to meet the deadline in order to qualify their fields and the seed from those fields for further certification, he said.

Application forms are available at extension offices around the state, according to Hammons.

The certification process begins with trained field inspectors checking each field of potential certified seed during the growing season, offering advice where needed, Hammons indicated. Then, after field inspections, certified seed must pass rigorous laboratory quality tests and producers must "be extra careful in cleaning, handling and storing before the seed earns the right to wear the blue tag," he added.

Nebraska produces several thousand acres of certified seed every year which includes nearly 20 different crops, Hammons said. "In fact, there has been a steady increase in acres every year. Different crop acreages change, but the total keeps getting higher," he said.

Getting started

AN AREA farmer works up the ground after the soil dried off enough to allow farmers to get into the field.

Farmers, anxious to get started, were busy trying to get caught up with field work.

Consider implement type, speed when tilling PIK acres

Farmers should try to keep as much residue as possible on field surfaces if tillage is needed on acres assigned to the Payment in Kind program, two University of Nebraska specialists said.

PIK requires at least 20 percent residue cover on idled acreage, noted Elbert Dickey, NU extension agricultural engineer, and Gail Wicks, extension weeds specialist at NU North Platte Station.

Tillage implements, depending on type, adjustment and speed of operation, will incorporate and bury varying amounts of surface residue, they said.

THE TWO specialists recommend not tilling soybeans, since soybean residues are fragile and are likely to fall below the minimum 20 percent residue requirement.

They provide estimates of corn and grain sorghum residue remaining after several tillage operations. The estimates assume a speed of about four miles per hour, except for large sweeps and blade type machinery.

The amount of residue covered usually increases as travel speed increases, except for blade or large sweep implements, they said. Speed reduces the effectiveness of tillage program designed to maintain good surface residue, they added.

Disk type implements can bury 30 percent to 70 percent of the residue on each trip across the field, depending on type, adjustment and operation of the implement, they said.

INCREASING THE SIZE, con cavity, disk spacing, disk gang angle and operation depth will increase the amount of residue covered. Disk type implements provide good weed control, but will reduce considerably the amount of surface residue if not set properly.

Chisel plows and field cultivators with sweeps can kill weeds effectively, and also can control erosion by leaving a good cover of surface residue, they said. Blade or large sweep implements operated 3 to 4 inches deep will control many weeds without destroying surface residues.

Tillage implements, such as heavy disks or moldboard plows that bury a large percentage of residue, should not be used on land selected for PIK. Use of these tillage implements would increase the risk of erosion and may not qualify individuals for PIK payments due to a lack of surface residue, the specialists warned.

If you are wondering how to control horn and face flies on range and pasture cattle, consider using ear tags impregnated with synthetic pyrethroids.

The University of Nebraska has conducted five years of research with various ear tags and have found tags now on the market can provide excellent control of face and horn flies. Trials in 1981 showed that tags were effective for 20 weeks and tags loss was minimal. That's considerably better than some of the early tags developed a few years ago.

The tags are made by two companies and while they are not exactly the same, they basically provide the same control. One type contains fenvalerate (Ectrin) and the other has permethrin (Airoban).

THE NUMBER OF tags used depends on the kind of flies attacking cattle. In face fly areas, use two tags per cow and one tag per calf. Yearling steers and heifers should each have two tags per cow and one tag per calf.

Yearling steers and heifers should each have two tags. Horn fly control can be provided with only one tag on yearlings and mature cows and no tags are needed on calves.

While ear tags provide excellent control on horn and face flies, they do not provide relief for feedlot cattle which stable and house flies. House flies are all over the cattle and stable flies concentrate on the lower legs. Sanitation practices, knock down or residual sprays are used for feedlots.

COW HERD PROFITS

A measure of reproductive efficiency in the cow herd is the number of cows conceiving early in the breeding season. Special attention involving the breeding herd is particularly important to improving net profit.

In preparing for the breeding season, several management concerns should be evaluated.

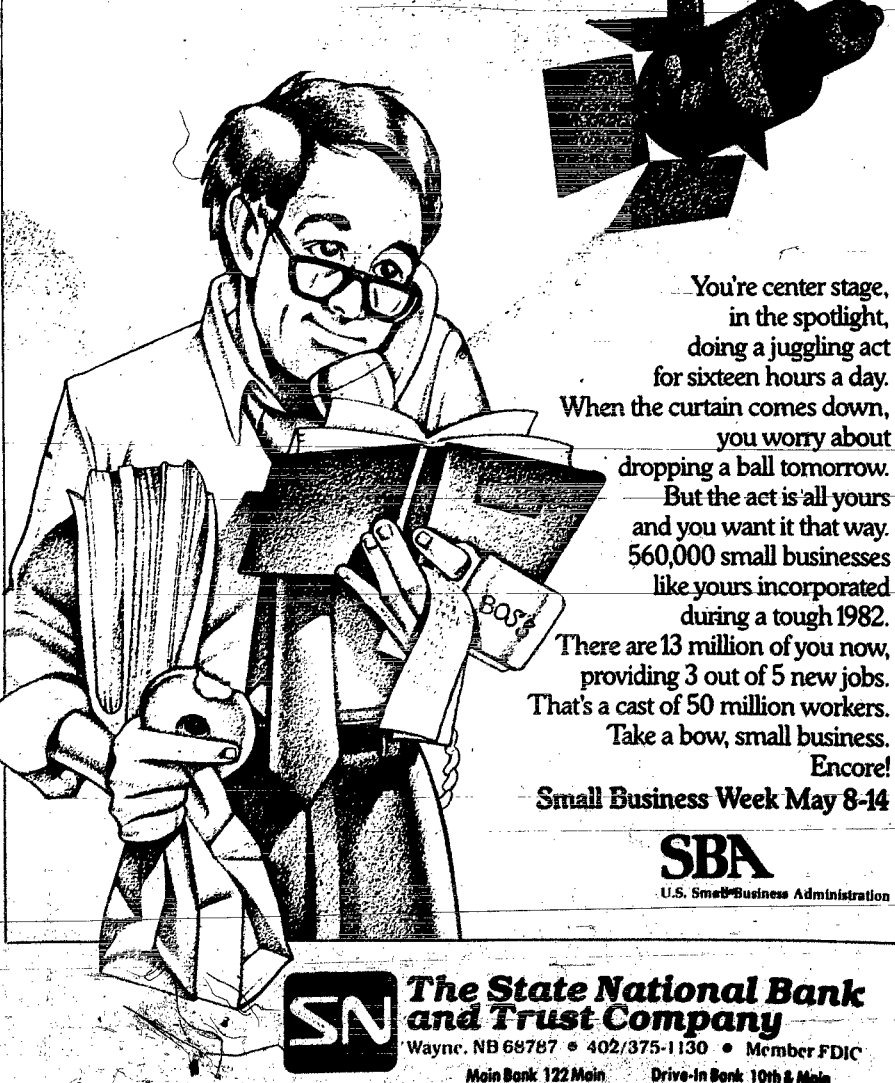

THE NUTRITION level must be high enough to support milk production as well as to provide for rebreeding. The number one factor involved in early breeding performance will be feed conditions.

Replacement bulls should be purchased and located on the farm prior to any breeding season. A thorough evaluation of his reproductive tract, semen quality and overall soundness needs to be made prior to the breeding season, so that any sterile or low fertility bulls can be replaced.

The number of bulls needed depends to a larger extent on age of the bulls being used and the size of pasture under which he will be used. A normal rule of thumb is that a young bull yearling can serve 15 to 20 cows whereas a mature bull may be expected to serve 30 to 50 cows.

It often pays to watch the herd closely during the breeding season. Animals with noticeable defects such as injury or shy breeders, should be replaced immediately. If it is noted that particular cows are returning to heat in the second cycle, bring in new bulls.

Pigs death rate is high

More than 24 percent of all pigs born alive fail to survive until weaning. This word comes from Bob Fritschen, University of Nebraska extension swine specialist.

According to Fritschen, studies indicate that 24 to 30 percent death loss pigs is experienced by Nebraska pork producers between farrowing and weaning, some three to six weeks later. Statistics show that usually a sow will farrow slightly more than 10 live pigs while approximately 7.5 pigs survive to go into the nursery.

Fritschen emphasized that the potential for profit by correcting this problem is well worth the effort since under present conditions it requires about 5.5 live pigs to pay for the cost to produce each litter.

FRICTSCHEN SAID that much of the farrowing house death loss could be avoided. "Since most of those pigs that die in the farrowing house do so during the first 24 to 48 hours of life, being present to assist during and immediately after farrowing will result in more pigs saved," he said.

Being chilled or being crushed by the sow are the two main causes of death, according to Fritschen. "Usually, those that die are the smaller or weaker ones. If they could survive, they would have a chance to be just as profitable as littermates," Fritschen said.

Fritschen listed the following as being important to increasing baby pig survival from birth to weaning:

- Be present at farrowing.
- Recognize the signs of distress and know what to do.

Lack of adequate zone heat, in combination with drafts, is the single greatest killer of newborn pigs. Keep pigs in an area that has a temperature of 90-95 degrees F, free of drafts and moisture.

The sow's first milk is rich in colostrum antibodies providing protection to the newborn pig. Be certain that each pig receives colostrum milk is basic to survival.

Equalizing litter size by transferring pigs from large litters to smaller litters shortly after farrowing, generally results in more pigs saved and more uniform pigs at weaning.

Corn suffocation a danger

While incidents of suffocation under corn, or grain drowning, have decreased in number over the past few years, the problem could be accelerated this year because of the stepped-up movement of grain under the Payment in Kind (PIK) program.

That warning comes from Rollin Schnieder, University of Nebraska extension safety specialist. He pointed out that much of the grain now in storage was put in wet and the surface may have compacted and tends to "bridge" when the grain below is removed.

"The bridging problem occurs when grain is augered out underneath," he said. "If the top layer is compacted, it may not flow. When this occurs, people are tempted to walk out onto the surface to see what is wrong. The crusted layer then gives way and an unsuspecting victim can fall through and be covered over by the grain. Corn gives us the most problem," he said.

THE SAFETY specialist noted that two or three fatalities from grain drowning have occurred in each of the last few years. One death has been reported in Nebraska already this year. The age of victims usually ranges from 10 to 20 years, he said.

If grain does bridge, Schnieder recommends breaking the bridging loose by using a prod such as a long two-by-four. But, he warned, under no circumstances should a person go onto the bridged grain even to use a prod.

"Some people think they are safe walking onto the grain if they have a lifeline. A lifeline only shows where the victim might be under the corn if the pile caves in," Schnieder said. "You definitely cannot pull a person from under the corn with a lifeline. The suction, or pressure, is too great."

The safety specialist noted that a few people have been saved when the blower was turned on during the rescue. In some instances, he said, the blower provided a new supply of air around the victim.

In suffocation accidents, the grain usually has to be removed from the bin to rescue the victim, Schnieder said. "This cannot be done with the auger, since you might catch the person in the auger."

SCHNIEDER SUGGESTS cutting a gash in the side of the bin in the shape of the letter M. "Push the top two points of the M in and pull the bottom out. This will allow the grain to flow freely," he said. This should be done on opposite sides of the bin to allow free movement of the grain. If you don't have a method of cutting, try to open the bin with a front end loader.

"It is important," he said, "to have a front end loader available so that grain can be pushed away from the opening. If this is not done, the grain will stop when it reaches equilibrium."

Many rescue squads have been trained for this type of rescue. Schnieder said, "but they are not magicians and cannot get the victim out with a wave of the hand. It is a very deliberate and sometimes frustrating rescue. Even with all their training, a rescue squad may not get the victim out alive."

Schnieder said the real answer to suffocation accidents comes back to those who are working with the grain. He advises the use of safe procedures. "Don't walk on bridged grain. Don't get caught in the auger. Don't get 'picked off' when moving PIK grain."

by pat meierhenry

I got picked up for speeding several years ago, and they printed my age in the paper. People razed me, of course, and several said, "Now I know how old your are." I replied, "Why didn't you ask, I would have told you." My age has never been a secret. I'm really not self-conscious about my age — what I am self-conscious about are the mental and physical infirmitates that accompany each added year.

I will be 45 this month. I've had grey hair for a long time. In fact, I rather like my grey hair. I believe it earns me a little respect from the younger gals at work. They figure I've had a lot of experience, and should know what I'm talking about!

My kids want me to "cover the grey." And for a while I did. But it's a lot of extra bother, and I gave it up. Once, my sis decided to disguise my grey and used a Toni frost-n-flip kit on it. This calls for putting on a plastic cap with lots of holes in it, pulling strands of hair through the holes with a crochet hook, and using bleach on that hair.

MARY GOT kind of carried away — she kept saying, "you have very thick hair," and pulled lots of it through. In no time at all, I was blonde! That really made people sit up and take notice in church the next morning. I think maybe blondes really do have more fun, but I'm not going to try that again.

Not only do my kids wish I looked younger, they wish I dressed younger. They think my shoes are matronly, and my clothes not a bit stylish. They were so proud of me for buying a tuxedo blouse complete with bow tie.

I have also figured out how to use a curling iron this year. It's very difficult for a naturally uncoordinated person to look in the mirror and figure out what to do with a long hot rod with plastic bristles all over it. But even with these small marks of progress, I have to say they are fooling when they say "Life begins at forty." I have found it to be all downhill. Even my foot is wider. The extra 10 pounds will not budge — the middle-age spread has spread. I agree with the title of a book that says, "Old Age Is Not For Sissies."

AND THE MEMORY — this is the worst of all. I have to write everything down — then can't remember what I did (with my list. I used to remember names and faces. Now people stop me on the street and I'm into a conversation with them while I'm frantically trying to recall a name. It's difficult to sound coherent when you don't have the foggiest notion who it is you are talking to.

You all know the saying, "Age is the art of mind over matter. If you don't mind, it doesn't matter." I'm going to try not to let it matter, maybe I won't deteriorate so rapidly in the second half.

Seed small grains now for fall grazing

New regulations just received from the national Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) now allow fall grazing of oats, spring wheat or spring rye planted on set-aside acres allowed to reseed naturally.

Bruce Anderson, University of Nebraska extension forage specialist, advised farmers to plant small grains now to have abundant grass for fall grazing.

Under the new ASCS regulations, Anderson said, spring-sown grains can be allowed to reseed naturally, while the old regulations required destroying the crop before seed development.

"NATURALLY, RESEEDED small grains will sprout and begin growth in late summer or fall when moisture and temperatures are favorable," Anderson said. "Good yields of high-quality grass will be available for pasture following the turn-out date in each area. To use this cropping option, a few minor requirements must be met, according to Anderson. First, this reseeding option must be formally requested on a farm-by-farm basis at local ASCS offices before June 15.

The local ASCS will require that the crop be clipped, shredded or lightly disked shortly after the normal harvest date.

"This will benefit weed control as well as distribute the seed so it will produce a good stand in the fall," Anderson indicated. A small inspection fee will be charged to allow ASCS officials to be certain that these conditions are met, he added.

But, Anderson cautioned, do not use winter wheat for this purpose. Winter wheat "will become infected with numerous diseases, such as leaf rust, Septoria leaf blotch, tan spot, wheat streak mosaic, and barley yellow dwarf," Anderson said. Wheat streak mosaic and barley yellow dwarf could then be transmitted to wheat seeded in fall for grain and lower yields, he added. A period of no green growth is needed to break this cycle.

ACCORDING TO Anderson, spring rye and oats are less likely to spread disease than spring or winter wheat. In addition, they may provide more fall grazing than wheat.

"Spring-sown small grains will be the best set-aside option for many producers who do not have airazine carryover," Anderson said. "Not only will soils be protected and weeds controlled, but grazing also will be available from the same seeding."

The Banvel® herbicide advantage: More grass for your cattle, without musk thistle.

Control more broadleaf weeds with Banvel herbicide.

If your grass pasture is overrun by broadleaf weeds, its carrying capacity is below where it should be. So, your cattle don't gain efficiently. Production drops because cattle don't get the nutrition they need from weeds. Weeds are low in TDN. Some are poisonous. And some cause illness. Even death. They're tough on your pasture too. Weeds take up space and sunlight. Rob valuable moisture and nutrients from forage grasses and can even crowd them out.

That's where a Banvel herbicide/2,4-D tank-mix comes in. You knock out a wide spectrum of weeds in pastures. Banvel herbicide penetrates weed leaves. Is absorbed by the roots. Moves throughout the entire plant for better weed kill... leaf-tip to root-tip.

This spring is the ideal time to stop weeds before they can become well established and spread throughout your pasture. Banvel herbicide tackles many of your toughest broadleaf problems, including stubborn biennial weeds like musk thistle and even tough perennials like Canada thistle and leafy spurge.

With weeds out of the way, forage grasses are allowed to flourish, and the carrying capacity of your pasture can increase. That could mean more beef from every acre.

Ask your ag chem dealer for weed control that increases the carrying capacity of your pasture. Ask for Banvel herbicide.

LIONS CLUB

The Wakefield Lions Club celebrated their 50th anniversary April 27. The banquet was held at the Wakefield Community School. There were 90 in attendance. George Witte of Uehling, district governor, Carl Adamson of Tekamah, chairman of the Lions Club blind project, and Lions from Laurel and Wayne were also present. Derwin Hartman was master of ceremonies. Roy Wiggins, a charter member of the organization, was honored and presented a framed certificate by Hartman for his service to the group. Other charter members living here but not active who were present included Carroll Van Valin and Robert E. Anderson. Fred Salmon, who joined the club the year following its organization, was also present.

The Gems (Gloria Oberg, Eleanor Johnson and Marcella Healm) accompanied by Martha Mortenson sang a selection written by them especially for the occasion and Mrs. Raymond Paulson and Gwen Hartman played a piano duet. During the program several awards were presented to local club members by Berneal Gustafson. Harry Mills, Lions Club trail twister, received a large bank (can) since it has been a great handicap for a tall twister to have such a small bank and one that is easily lost. It was recommended that Harry bring the bank to all Lions Club meetings.

Terry Baker was presented a bag of sand for his organization of bowling tournaments and his sometimes excellent control of a bowling tournament. For maintaining his claim for being the best dressed person at the Lions Club Christmas dinner Larry Clay received a roll of toilet tissue.

Harold Fischer was presented with a list of instructions to help him save time in locating a new door or needed repairs following his hurried exit out of his garage. In presenting an alarm clock to Bill Rischmueller, Berneal said the award goes to Bill with many thanks for his complete coverage of the Lions Club events and to carry the clock along with him at all times so as not to arrive any earlier than 10 minutes late.

DOCTORS FAIR

Several members of the Wakefield physician recruitment committee who attended a practice opportunities fair in Omaha on April 30 were Russell Swigart, Don Kuhl, Mardell Holm and Kathy Muller. Also attended was Mary Rastede, RN at the local hospital. Twenty-one communities from Nebraska and Iowa attending set up exhibits in the Kiewit Conference Center to provide information to senior medical students and house officers, or physicians in specialty training from Creighton University, the University of Nebraska Medical Center and the Lincoln Medical Education Foundation.

Swigart said that the Wakefield booth showed slides of various scenes and buildings in Wakefield and an aerial view of Wakefield and a profile of statistics and a medical fact booklet were handed out. Those stopping by the booth also received a six-pack carton of Eggs 'n' Go from the Milton G. Waldbaum Co. and a tablet and folder from the Wakefield National Bank. Thirteen senior medical students and 15 residents registered at the booth and there were several who did not register. Of these, four residents and two others indicated an interest in Wakefield, Swigart said. The fair was held in cooperation with the Nebraska Chapter of the American Academy of Family Physicians and the Nebraska State Medical Association.
