Drawing tonight

Wayne lottery changes format to six winners

Hoping that the size of its jackpot increases, the City of Wayne will hold the second monthly drawing of its Latta Luck lottery tonight (Thursday) in downtown Wayne. The lottery format has been changed since May's drawing. Instead of one grand prize winner and 12 second place winners there will be six winners in this drawing. The grand prize winner will still receive 40 percent of the prize money but the other 60 percent will be divided differently. Second place will be worth 25 percent of the pot, third will consist of 15 percent, fourth will be 10 percent and fifth and sixth place winners will each receive five percent of the prize money. In the city's first drawing, 12 second place winners were awarded five percent apiece. Last month's first place winner claimed $832.16. Tonight's drawing is planned at 7 p.m. on the 200 block of Main Street. Winning numbers will be drawn at that time and will later be posted in City Hall. Winning numbers also will be announced on a recorded message for persons who call 375-4160 and will be printed in The Wayne Herald.

No paper published on Monday

In observance of Independence Day, The Wayne Herald will not publish a Monday edition of the newspaper. The next publication date will be Thursday July 7. The Wayne Herald office will close all day Saturday and Monday but will reopen for regular business on Tuesday. The staff of The Wayne Herald wishes everyone a safe and happy Fourth of July weekend.

Council takes action Western Heights a step closer

Western Heights Subdivision won its battle with the Wayne City Council Tuesday night as the council voted unanimously to set park fees based on the land appraisal of $22,500. Licensed appraiser Felix Dorsey explained to the council how he arrived at the appraised figure for the 3.06 acres of bare land. At its last meeting, the City Council established a value of $27,250 on the land. That figure was arrived at as a compromise between Jim Coan's actual purchase price of $32,000 for the land with a house and the appraised value of $22,500. THE COUNCIL also approved a subdivision agreement concerning paving of a street and taxing in Western Heights. After the project is completed, the city will approve the paving and make assessments. After the council accepted the appraised value of $22,500 on the land, Coan's attorney Duane Schroeder asked that approval of a plat for Western Heights be placed on the next agenda. The council agreed to do so. Then speaking as a citizen, Schroeder suggested that perhaps in the future a flat park fee could be assessed on each building permit that is issued in a new subdivision. "Maybe there is a better way," said the mayor. DISCUSSION ON health and accident premiums for disabled employees also oc-cupped the council's time. Administrator Phil Kloster offered three possible resolutions concerning payments of premiums for disabled city employees. The options considered were full payment of family plan premiums by the city, payment of single plan premiums, or allowing a disabled employee to continue insurance coverage by paying the rates offered through the city's group plan. The council also could decide to let a disabled employee convert the city's policy to a personal policy. Councilman Carolyn Filter pointed out that the city added disability insurance in the past and said that the city's insurance plan is "above average." "How many employers will pay for your insurance if you become disabled," she asked. "We, as taxpayers, cannot take care of everyone's problems." The council's discussion was originated because a police department employee has recently become disabled. Police chief Vern Fairchild took the floor and spoke up against Filter's reasoning. He pointed out that disability pays 60 percent of an employee's income. Subtracting insurance premium payments from this person's income would leave her with about $3,000 he said. "Can you live on $3,000 a year," he asked Filter.

FILTER SAID she sympathizes with the employee but doesn't feel it's the taxpayers' responsibility to make the insurance payments. Very few employers will pay your insurance if you become disabled, she said. "I work for the hospital and they won't pay my insurance if I become disabled." Fairchild replied, "I disagree you're in sympathy with her." With seven councilmen voting yes and Filter abstaining, the council decided to pay the premium until the council is done with the budget process and can develop a new plan. IN OTHER ACTION the City Council: —Approved a request from the Wayne County Jaycees to pay $250 for the Jaycees annual fireworks display. —Listened to Darrel Heier give a summary of a natural gas increase meeting he attended in Bellevue. A request by Peoples Natural Gas for a rate increase in Wayne will be on the council's July 12 agenda. —Passed an ordinance placing temporary stop signs at the parking lot exit and on 13th Street to help control the flow of traffic near the swimming pool. —Gave its approval of the completed storm sewer project east of Main Street. —Gave its approval of a completed paving project in the Sunnyview Subdivision.

One liquor license request approved, another denied

The Wayne City Council Tuesday night approved one request for a liquor license and denied another. The council gave its approval for Lett's to open a Class C liquor license for Lett's Steak House, formerly the Stratton House which was operated by Jerry Brandstetter. Another request, by Robert Clarkon of Bob's Derby for a Class B liquor license, was denied by the council. LUTT'S LIQUOR license will not be issued until Brandstetter's license is either transferred or expires. The council will recommend that the Nebraska State Liquor Commission approve Lutt's request for a license. The council voted 7-1 with Larry Johnson abstaining to approve Lutt's request. Much discussion was held concerning the request by Bob's Derby. The council remembered other requests it had turned down only to have the decisions later overturned in district court. Those denials were based on Rule 13 which concerned sales of gas and liquor at an establishment. Rule 13 was ruled to not be a valid reason for denial of a license.

THE COUNCIL'S attorney, Kern Swarts, advised the City Council to show no need or necessity for any more liquor licenses, if it decided to deny the request. "We have no control whatsoever. I think we're just blowing into the wind," said Councilman Johnson, pointing out that past denials were ineffective. I find offense that we have to show no need for more licenses. I feel the people applying should have to show a need for them. Councilman Gary Vopalensky said, Administrator Phil Kloster agreed with Vopalensky that a prospective new license holder should prove a need for a license. Keith Mosley said he felt the council must establish some criteria and make an objection against more liquor licenses. "I thought it was better when the council had some control over the situation," Darrel Heier said. "Once the gates are open, everyone will want a license," Vopalensky said. "I don't think legally we can do anything," added Johnson. "We can lie down and play dead or fight," replied Councilman Carolyn Filter. SWARTS TOLD the council that if it wants to make a denial it should make a case against the need and necessity of more liquor licenses. He added that the city needs to be represented at future liquor hearings in Lincoln or applicants will simply be able to walk into district court and say there is no case against them. "I feel it's not necessary to have beer at every gas station," Heier said. "How do we go about determining that there is no need or necessity for a license," asked Mosley. Mayor Wayne Marsh assured Clarkon the council was not picking on him but merely following the pattern it had set when previous requests were made for liquor licenses. Craun pointed out to the council that when Casey's General Store and 7-Eleven applied for liquor licenses no discussion was held about whether there already were enough gas stations in town. "Maybe by denying this license we are stifling competition in town." A motion was made to deny the request for the liquor license with Vopalensky, Craun and Johnson voting against the motion. A resolution to deny the license request because the applicant has shown no need for a license was passed. Vopalensky and Craun voted against the resolution and Johnson abstained.

Tractor time New restaurant plants its future on originality, homemade food

The next time you're hungry, just belly up to the John Deere. No, you won't have to satisfy your hunger pangs by chewing nuts and bolts or drinking crank case oil. This particular tractor allows you to make your own salad. The 1937 B model John Deere tractor has been converted into a salad bar and is the first thing that visitors to the Tractor restaurant at 7th and Logan Streets in Wayne see as they come through the door. THE RESTAURANT (formerly Scottie's) reopened under new management towards the end of February. Mary McCullough, manager of the Tractor, said that the owners decided to have the first in which customers could see the food for the restaurant. "We wanted something unique, short and catchy," Miss McCullough said. "We decided to pick a name first and then rework it to suit the name." After the Tractor was chosen, the 1937 John Deere was procured from Marvin Fuoss of Winslow. Fuoss has an antique tractor collection. The tractor was disassembled, sand blasted and repainted. SHE SAID the tractor produces some amusing reactions from first time customers of the restaurant. "I wish I had pictures of some of their faces," she said. "It's just like Candid Camera." "Most people ask how we got the thing through the door," Miss McCullough said. "The tractor is 10 feet high. I had to have the tractor inside a restaurant. The first thing they run over to when they come in," she said. Miss McCullough said that the restaurant plans to expand the tractor motif by adding a coffee bar using tractor seats donated by Don Anderson of Concord and special, and beef dinners. She said that the restaurant prides itself on serving home made food. "We could buy prepared foods, but anybody can do that," she said. THE TRACTOR offers several dinner specials including chicken, ham and roast beef dinners. Specialties on the menu include homemade pies, Tater Jackets (Potato peels deep-fat fried and served with sour cream or cheese dip) and Tractor Wheels (Two big chocolate chip cookies with ice cream in between). The all-you-can-eat salad bar is $2.45, $1.45 with sandwiches and specials, and 99 cents with dinners. The Tractor is open daily from 7 a.m. to 11 p.m.

Genetic diversity not a problem

viewpoint

By Cheryl Westcott
Nebraska Farm Bureau

Since childhood, most of us have been told not to put all our eggs in one basket. Recently agricultural scientists have been criticized for putting too many genes into one basket, or rather into too few crop varieties. The critics fear that relying on just a few varieties of each of the major food crops is tantamount to asking for a visit from the Second Horseman of the Apocalypse, famine.

Happily, fear of famine from this cause can be added to that small list of things we really don't need to worry about.

The critics recall the potato famine of 1845-48 when a blight knocked out the Irish potato crop, but they tend to forget the quick, successful recovery when Southern Corn Leaf Blight hit the U.S. corn crop in 1970.

AT THAT TIME much of the U.S. crop was planted to varieties with Texas male sterile cytoplasm. A virulent pathogen which developed in Puerto Rico was transmitted to the Great Plains by hurricane winds and attacked the susceptible corn crop. But corn breeders quickly switched back to almost 100 percent normal cytoplasm for the 1973 planting season, and the threat to the nation's corn crop was averted. As a result, the Southern Corn Leaf Blight scare became a textbook example of the factors needed for a crop wipeout, not a memory comparable to the potato famine.

It is true that a small number of inbred lines account for a large number of varieties currently in use. Missouri 17 alone is the parent of hybrids used to plant one-eighth of the U.S. corn acreage. B 73, developed in Iowa, accounts for about one-sixth of our corn acreage.

But a 1979 survey showed that 40 different inbred lines were used as parents of hybrids to plant 80 percent of the nation's corn crop, providing plenty of genetic diversity for the corn crops farmers are now growing. That's according to Marcus Zuber of the University of Missouri-Columbia, who developed Missouri 17.

The fact is that for most of the economically important food crops, there are germ plasm collections available that could provide all the genetic diversity needed to prevent disasters similar to the Irish potato blight problem. For example, more than 20,000 strains are available in the world wheat collection

And there are many thousands of exotic strains of corn and maize that have never been sampled for their useful genes. The third most important world food crop, rice, has 30,000 strains maintained in collections with a potential for more than 100,000 all told if scientists could ever finish collecting from all over the world.

EVEN GIVEN the genetic diversity in the seed vaults, critics maintain that too few varieties are grown agronomically. One report shows that only six hybrids account for 71 percent of the U.S. corn acreage and nine varieties for 90 percent of the wheat crop.

Breeder Zuber points out that "the reason farmers plant so few varieties is that these are the ones that perform best in the field." But he adds that production is not locked in to just a few varieties. Seed companies have several hundred inbred corn lines in storage that could be evaluated as sources of resistance if a new insect or disease should be economically important.

The seed companies themselves have become important sources of new varieties, as mergers of smaller companies have allowed the new firm to pursue research more aggressively. The new firms are able to employ top research geneticists and purchase sophisticated and expensive equipment that permits them to do research as never before. Earlier critics had suggested that monopoly of the seed trade by a few large corporations would tend to narrow genetic diversity, but in fact the opposite has occurred.

In addition to all this diversity of germ plasm, new developments such as tissue culture, induced mutation and special engineering techniques can contribute to new varieties as well.

THE BIGGEST problem facing crop breeders is not a lack of germ plasm, but rather a lack of funds to maintain viable seed collections. Seed can be maintained in cold storage only so long before a replacement sample must be grown. But funds to maintain the collections have not always been a high priority in university or federal budgets.

As Zuber puts it, "Once a strain is lost, it's gone forever."

Potentially, that's a bigger concern than whether a few varieties from a few parents are being grown today.

Crime prevention

One of the best things about living in a small community like Wayne is the low crime rate. Families can feel safe at home or on the streets.

However, in recent weeks reports of vandalism, breaking and entering and thefts have been made to The Wayne Herald. Crime certainly has not gotten out of hand but more than normal has been brought to our attention.

One report said that two pots of flowers worth $50 were stolen from Greenwood Cemetery in Wayne. Another caller said her house was broken into while her family was out of town this past weekend.

Apparently no items were stolen but traces of a party remained behind. Entry probably had been gained through a window.

No one can prevent crime but we can all take actions which may hinder the chances of crime spreading. If you leave town ask a neighbor you can trust to keep an eye open and tell the police department you will be gone.

If you see something suspicious in your neighborhood don't be afraid to make a report to the police station. Crime prevention can be aided if we all work together.

Independence Day

On the Fourth of July we celebrate the birth of our nation and those brave and patriotic Americans who signed the Declaration of Independence and pledged their lives and fortunes to the cause of freedom 207 years ago.

Today the document that ignited the flames of liberty remains a symbol of our founding principles for people around the globe.

As Abraham Lincoln wrote, "The Declaration of Independence... gave liberty not alone to the people of this country, but hope to all the world, for all future time. It... gave promise that in due time the weights would be lifted from the shoulders of all men, and that all should have an equal chance."

The inspired men who signed the Declaration dreamed bold dreams about what the new nation would become, believing that a people could accomplish whatever they imagined if left to pursue their dreams without interference from an oppressive government.

Our forefathers seized the opportunity freedom provided and built this great land of hope and prosperity. Today we honor their heroic spirit and the ideas that changed the world.

As we enjoy this traditional holiday, let us reflect on our blessings and all the good things about life in these United States. Tom Paine once wrote that "Not a place upon earth might be so happy as America." For all our fellow-Americans, Nancy and I wish happiness always.

letters

To the editor:
This letter is in response to the no name (Name withheld by request) that was unable to find a job.

It sounds to me like you're in a real jam when it comes to finding a job. But I don't think you need to blame society for your problems. Don't you think it's time you took a good hard look at yourself and put the blame where it belongs.

I'm one of those farmers' wives you cut down. You'd better get your facts straight before you start cutting us down. First of all farmers' wives can't get a job any easier than anyone else.

Jobs aren't handed out on a silver platter like you must think. We had to go and look for them like everyone else. As far as me coming home and finding my husband hurt or finding him with a heart attack, that is possible.

But farmers are strong men and they made their choice to be farmers. I can't think of one farmer who needs to be babysat or checked on every five minutes. When I am home I may not see him for five to six hours at a time. But if he was hurt I would be hurt just because I love him. I also have three children and with the price of things they way they are, a little added income doesn't hurt.

Before you start pointing your finger at society for your problems you'd better take some responsibility yourself. It's time to stop, look, and listen.

1) Stop and think if you have the right qualifications for the job.

2) Look and see if you are presentable enough to work in public.

3) Listen to yourself. Nobody's going to hire anyone without a personality and who blames society for their problems. So take responsibility for yourself.

If all else fails you might be able to find a job at the egg plant. They are usually needing help. They are pretty good work for.

Nebraskans paying higher sales tax

By Melvin Paul
Nebraska Press Association

On Friday (July 1), Nebraskans will begin paying a higher state sales tax rate.

Deputy Tax Commissioner Greg Richter said recently that 63,000 businesses which are licensed to collect the sales tax have been notified of the temporary 0.5 percent increase.

At the direction of the legislature, the state Board of Equalization on June 9 adopted the increase on a 5-0 vote. The additional sales tax, which is expected to be in force for up to nine months, would increase the state rate to 4 percent.

ELEVEN NEBRASKA cities impose an additional 1 percent local sales tax, for a total state-local tax of 5 percent. Omaha levies a 1.5 percent local tax for a total state-local tax of 5.5 percent.

The temporary increase, which was recommended to the Legislature by Gov. Bob Kerrey, is needed to buy the state out of the cash flow problems which beset it in 1982.

Friday also marks the day when the state income tax withholding rate will be increased.

About 44,000 Nebraska employers have been notified of the increased withholding rate, Richter said, which will be 20 percent of federal income tax withholding rather than the current 19 percent.

The action follows the decision of the Board of Equalization to set the 1983 state income tax rate of 20 percent of federal tax liability.

Because the higher state withholding rate will be applied to a reduced federal withholding schedule, the typical Nebraska wage-earner is not likely to see take home pay diminished.

IN ANOTHER tax matter, the state Revenue Department has proposed a reduction in the automobile values which will serve as the basis for 1984 property taxes.

Bud Sandin, central assessment manager for the department estimated that the new values, on the average, are about 15 percent to 20 percent below what they would have been had the department not used a new method to assign values to various makes and models.

Sandin said the basis for the 1984 values will be the average trade-in price received by a customer for a particular automobile as listed in the midwest edition of the National Automobile Dealers Association "Blue Book."

For the last two years, the department has used the average retail price from the manual, or the average amount a dealer has received when re-selling the car.

WHETHER THE reduced valuations result in lower personal property taxes on automobiles will depend on the levies set by local government governing boards in early September.

Sandin said Nebraskans stand a good chance of seeing the property tax on their automobiles decrease. The potential savings could be eliminated, however, by the spending decisions made by the local government governing boards.

The values set by the department in 1982 and 1983 drew protests from citizens and county assessors for being too high. Tax Commissioner Donna Karnes must certify the proposed automobile values by August 1. The proposed values will be on file for public inspection at the department until July 5, during which time citizens may file a protest.

ON JUNE 15, the Nebraska Educational Television network began a new information service for Nebraska farmers and ranchers.

Known as Agri Vis, the new service will provide written market and weather information on the television screen to those Nebraskans who own decoders, which sell for $245 and more.

Among the items available on Agri Vis are commodity futures quotations from the Chicago Board of Trade and the Chicago Mercantile Exchange, market reports for the U.S. Department of Agriculture, weather reports and information from the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources of the University of Nebraska.

First year cost of the service to NETV is expected to be about $20,000, which has been provided through a grant from Nebraskans for Public Television.

Berlin Wall architect understood capitalism superiority

Richard L. Leshner
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

The world has known some great economists: Adam Smith, David Ricardo and our own Milton Friedman. However, one man has demonstrated an even keener understanding of the contrast between capitalism and socialism.

Oddly, he wasn't even an economist by profession. He was an architect.

Because this man, unlike many before him, understood what truly motivated men and women because he understood the tremendous power and attraction of the free market, he built a monument to capitalism. He built the monument in 1961 and it stands today as mute testimony to the human spirit and its desire to be free.

THIS "MONUMENT" is in Europe. It is a thousand miles long and a hundred yards wide. It has moving parts and a single purpose: It kills people.

I speak, of course, of the Berlin Wall. It is actually two walls. One, a hundred-mile barrier of concrete, barbed wire and mines that surrounds West Berlin. The second, with 45,000 automatically triggered machine guns, runs the entire length of the 85-mile border between East and West Germany.

The architect of this wall understood the superiority of capitalism and freedom over socialism. He knew that given a choice, men and women would bring their families out of a socialist country, and move toward capitalism. Without an economy, degree from an Ivy League school, without charts or mathematical equations, or economic models, those who built the wall knew that socialism was a failure and that people would not freely choose to live under it.

There was a great deal of evidence to support this view. Before the communists began to construct the wall on August 13, 1961, more than 2.5 million East Germans had already fled communism and its grim realities for freedom in the West. Only one-fifth of the present population of East Germany remains.

As each family crossed the border, the message came louder and louder: Socialism is a failure. It offers no hope for the future.

AND SO, the human instinct that runs to the top in a controlled society decided to stop the exodus. They built the Wall. Rather than admit the failure of socialism, they would kill those who attempted to flee. The fear of death, they hoped, would keep the people docile.

Here they underestimated the desire of their people to be free. Since the construction of the wall, more than 185,000 East Germans have risked their lives by fleeing socialism. At least 178 have died in the attempt.

Some of the escapes have been spectacular. Two families built a hot air balloon and flew over the wall. This April, two men in their early 20s shot an arrow across the wall, and using fishing tackle, pulled across a wire cable and then slid down the cable to freedom.

Two weeks after this latest escape I visited Berlin and saw the wall. As I scanned the guard towers, the remote-controlled machine guns and mine fields, I wondered if anyone in East Germany shared the view of some American intellectuals that socialism is just another economic system. If no one else, at least the border guards, themselves, must be committed to socialism.

NO, NOT EVEN the guards I watched as the guards on the wall were actually locked into their guard posts. I learned that the guards, who work in groups of two and three, are rotated regularly so that personal friendships cannot develop, or escape plans hatched. Finally, I learned that of those who have jumped the wall since 1961, 2,746 have been soldiers and border guards. Prison guards escaping from their own prison.

The next time someone tries to tell you that socialism works, ask him why the Berlin Wall was built. The next time you hear someone spouting off about how capitalism ruined economic development with individual liberty, ask him why Poland's Karkowski, a 16-year-old girl, was sentenced down fleeing this utopia.

And ask him how committed he is to the virtues of a state-run economy. Would he poll the trigger?

THE REV. KEITH W. JOHNSON arrived in Wayne earlier this month to serve as minister of the Wayne and Carroll United Methodist Churches. His family includes his wife Melinda and three-year-old daughter Bethany.

Minister serving Wayne, Carroll Methodist churches

After living in Wayne for nearly a month, the Rev. Keith W. Johnson and his wife Melinda say they have been made to feel "very welcome." "We've found Wayne to be a very friendly community," said Pastor Johnson, who delivered his first sermon June 12 at the First United Methodist Church.

In addition to serving the 650 member Wayne congregation, Pastor Johnson also is the new minister of the Carroll United Methodist Church, which has approximately 120 members.

THE NEW METHODIST minister replaces the Rev. Kenneth Edmonds, who left earlier this month to serve as pastor of the First United Methodist Church of Ogallala. Edmonds had served the Wayne congregation the past nine years. He delivered his farewell sermon on June 5.

JOHNSONS, WHO are the parents of a three-year-old daughter Bethany, come to Wayne from Merna, located about 10 miles north of Broken Bow. Johnson, along with two other ministers, served six churches in the Custer Parish centered around Broken Bow.

He and his family resided in Merna for four years, where Melinda taught high school.

PASTOR JOHNSON, son of Daryl and Theresa Johnson of South Sioux City, graduated from high school there in 1968.

He attended Morningside College in Sioux City, where he received his BA degree in 1972. During that time, he also served as a student associate pastor at churches in Allen, Ponca, Wynot and Maskell.

He was graduated from St. Paul's School of Theology in Kansas City, Mo., in 1976. While attending St. Paul's, he also served churches in Burchard and Lewiston, Neb.

FOLLOWING HIS graduation in 1976, Pastor Johnson, 33, served a Norfolk parish for three years before moving to Merna. As a minister, Pastor Johnson said his emphasis has always been on youth ministries and church school. "Those are very important aspects of the church to me," he stated.

PASTOR JOHNSON, who recently was elected president of the Salvation Army Service Unit for Wayne, lists music as one of his hobbies and plays a variety of instruments including piano.

He also is the owner of a Mickey Mouse collection which, he says smiling, he started nearly 10 years ago and dates back to 1932.

He and his wife, who were married Aug. 2, 1974, share a love of antiques and collect depression glass.

MELINDA, WHO also is a native of South Sioux City, was graduated from high school there and from Wayne State College.

A librarian and foreign language instructor, she taught in the Norfolk Public School system and at Merna.

Wayne uses McCright homer, Kubik RBI

Juniors win via ten-run rule, rain

A fifth-inning offensive explosion, led by Jeff McCright's two-run homer, ignited the Wayne Junior Legion baseball team as it went on to defeat Ponca 12-1 last Friday night at Ponca.

The score was 3-1 in favor of Wayne going into the fifth before Wayne rolled up nine runs to bring the ten-run rule into play to end the contest.

Wayne batted first and managed to get two men on as Randy Gamble walked and Dennis Lebsock singled. Both men were left on base as the side retired.

Ponca went down in order in the first as Todd Schwartz recorded two of his seven strike outs for the game.

With one out in the bottom of the second, Wayne once again got men on as Jon Meierhenry singled and then stole second. He was followed aboard by Tim Heier, who took a base on balls, though, and was thrown out.

Ponca started with its first two men striking out in the third stanza. The third man up singled and went to second on a passed ball, but was left on base as the next man grounded out to the mound.

The visitors scored a solo run to begin the fourth inning. Pfeiffer and Gamble both singled and advanced on two passed balls as Pfeiffer scored.

Ponca got on the board in the bottom of the fourth as Young and Schram singled and Cosgrove and Ellis got on via fielder's choices.

LEBSOCK GOT on with a single before Jeff McCright powered his two RBI homer out of the park.

Todd Dorcay got a base on balls and Jon Meierhenry came aboard on an error.

Randy Gamble flied out to left, and Schwartz got a taste of his own medicine as he struck out. The order came around again and McCright and Dorcay both drove in runs as Wayne continued to pull away.

Ponca got one man on with two outs in the second half of the inning, but the next batter ended the game as he grounded out down the third base line.

A soaking rain ended the first game in the sixth inning with Wayne holding a 6-4 lead over the hosts. The second contest of the scheduled double-header was cancelled.

Wayne was up first and the first two batters, Todd Pfeiffer and Randy Gamble flied and grounded out before Todd Schwartz took a base on balls and stole second base.

Dennis Lebsock cracked a nice RBI double to score Schwartz, and Jeff McCright added another two-bagger for another RBI as Wayne took a 2-0 lead into the bottom of the inning.

ELKHORN COUNTERED with two runs as the second baseman, Chadwell, and the pitcher, Wolter, both doubled and the third baseman took a base on balls. The first baseman added a sacrifice with two outs to tie the score.

the second as Heier went down swinging, Kubik popped out to short and Jeff Jorgensen grounded out to the shortstop.

Elkhorn's first man up in the second singled but was forced out at second as the next man got on via a fielder's choice. The side retired as the next batter grounded out to second and Jorgensen fanned Fuller for the third out.

The frustration continued for Wayne in the third inning as it once again came up empty after putting a man on. Todd Pfeiffer singled and advanced to second on a sacrifice, but Schwartz struck out and Lebsock flied out.

THE HOSTS went ahead in the bottom of the third after Jorgensen walked, advanced on a balk and went home on a sacrifice fly by the center fielder, Godfrey.

Wayne wrestled the lead from Elkhorn in the fourth after Jeff McCright took a base on balls, advanced on a balk, and scored on an RBI single by Kubik. Jeff Jorgensen followed with an RBI double as Wayne went ahead 4-3.

The first man up for Elkhorn walked and then advanced on a Wayne error and a passed ball. Chadwell followed with an RBI single as the hosts knotted the score going into the fifth.

THINGS LOOKED shaky for the Wayne Juniors as Randy Gamble went down swinging to begin the fifth.

Todd Schwartz added a glimmer of hope with a walk, and went to second as Wolter balked. Dennis Lebsock followed with a single and also went to second on a balk as Schwartz advanced to third.

McCright flied out to left for out number two before Jon Meierhenry added a game-winning two-RBI single.

Elkhorn left a man stranded on third in the bottom of the fifth as one man flied out to left, the second grounded out to short, and Jorgensen fanned Rehers to retire the side.

Mark Kubik added a nice single, to begin the sixth stanza and advanced to second on an error charged to Elkhorn's left fielder.

Pfeiffer drove Kubik home for another run but the rain, which had been threatening all afternoon, finally came and ended the game, robbing Kubik of a base hit and Pfeiffer of an RBI.

The USFL it ain't

RECENT HEAVY rains causes a bog, of sorts, to appear on one of Bill Corbit's cornfields east of Wayne. Some Wayne High School students decided to take advantage of the muck and stage a mud football game. Yard markers were non-existent and no score was kept, but everyone got muddy. Mud bowl participants

Harry to Pittsburgh?
I know it's much too early to count any team out of the pennant races. Nobody should be making World Series reservations yet. The fat lady ain't even at the music hall yet. BUT I sure was fun watching my Pittsburgh Pirates torture the Chicago Cubs during their five-game series last week. I was getting so sick of all the fair weather Cubs fans hanging around my favorite watering holes, I almost gave up drinking. I swear, if I hear one more god-damn "Hey! How about those Cubbies!" I'm going to kidnap WGN TV's Harry Caray and brainwash him into becoming a Pirates fan.

I know, but...
One of the "givens" in major league baseball is that pitchers are usually not very good batters. Most pitchers will tell you that their batting coach that they are more concerned with their ERA than their batting average. As a whole, I would guess that the average batting average for major league pitchers is somewhere around .100. Even with all this in mind, I can't help but laugh at Atlanta Braves pitcher Rick Camp. Always the clutch hitter, slugger Camp's lifetime batting average is .038. Hey, I didn't have a number out. Rick collects an average of less than four hits every 100 times he's at bat. Timber!

Ready or not
As premature as it may seem, the 1983 football season is fast approaching. I can tell because several of the perennial onslaught of college and pro football annuals are starting to show up on newsstands. Most of the publications that are out now aren't really that good for the simple fact that they are published much too early. In another few weeks though, the "Big Boys" will hit the stands. By big boys, I mean The Big Eight Magazine, Athlon's, and Street and Smith's. There are, of course, many other football magazines, but those three are generally considered the best.

Sleepless nights
There is evidently enough interest out there to merit June publication of football preview magazines. Like I've said before, I probably love football more than most people, but I don't like to be inundated with it so soon. That's also why I'm not a big fan of the USFL. Every year I promise myself that I will concentrate on baseball for the better part of the summer and not worry about football at LEAST until the NFL's exhibition season starts.

My problem is that I'm rotten at keeping promises to myself. Each year (and it seems to get earlier each year), the first football magazines begin to appear on the magazine racks of grocery stores. Each year, I defiantly walk past the racks pretending not to hear the voice of Vince Lombardi hauntingly calling me a traitor. Each year, after breaking into cold sweats at night and having nightmares about reading headlines such as: "Football season cancelled. Lack of interest cited", I turn into a twit and invariably purchase every football magazine I can get my hands on.

It's guys like me who publishers have in mind when they justify printing a football preview magazine when baseball hasn't even made it to the All Star break.

What do they know, anyway?
Every magazine will profess to be THE definitive and most accurate football rag. The truth is that they really don't know any more than they get from college sports information offices. After they sift through all the propaganda (excuse me, Kent Proff of WSC) given them by hundreds of SID's, the writers at each magazine can only guess at what might happen during the upcoming season. That, of course, is what makes it fun.

Wayne scores 21 en route to win

Wayne's 15-and-under girls softball team came out on the winning side of a scoring marathon at Winside last Friday which saw 31 runners cross the plate. Wayne won the contest 21-10.

Led by strong hitting from Darg Nelson, Robin Lutt and Susie Lutt, Wayne scored two or more runs in each inning.

Nelson got Wayne started in the first inning with a single and a stolen base and was followed by Robin Lutt who also singled. Sacrifice flies by Susie Lutt and Carman Koenig allowed the visitors to take a 2-0 lead into the bottom half of the inning.

Winside scored one run in the inning off of a sacrifice fly after the first batter singled to start things off for the hosts.

Traci Gamble got on with the help of a Winside error in the top of the second inning and proceeded to steal second and third.

Two outs later, Ann Perry took a base on balls before Nelson and Robin Lutt added hits to make the score 4-1 in favor of Wayne. The hosts countered with four runs in the second to pull within one. Winside scored one run in the third on a sacrifice fly. Wayne continued to rack up

14 players see action

Midgets maul Ponca nine

Wayne coach Hank Overin used 14 players in a game that saw his Midget Legion baseball team rout their Ponca counterparts 17-4 last Friday night. A stubborn Wayne team held the hosts scoreless until the last inning.

Neither team scored in the first inning. Steve Overin had a double for Wayne but was left on base.

Ponca got a man on due to a Wayne error, but pitcher Don Larsen threw to Brent Pick at first base for the out. The other two batters were out on a strikeout and a pop-up to Larsen on the mound.

the second inning and advanced to second as an error by the catcher, White, put Rick Nelson on first.

One out later, Jeff Sherer got via a fielder's choice. Kevin Maly singled and Wayne took a 2-0 lead into the bottom half of the inning.

Anderson and White both walked for Ponca in the second inning, but were left on base as Larsen fanned two batters.

The third inning proved to be a big one for Wayne as it faltered eight runs.

Chris Weiseler took a base on balls and Overin had a double to start things off.

Dorsey, added a sacrifice fly and Don Larsen drove in another run with a single.

Third baseman Rick Nelson walked and went to second on a passed ball. Dan Gross then got a charity trip to first and Ponca changed pitchers.

The change didn't do much good as Jeff Sherer singled and Brent Pick walked to send another run home.

Things started to fall apart for Ponca as two more runs were walked in and Wayne had a commanding 17-0 lead.

The hosts staged a four run rally in the bottom of the inning, but it proved to be too little, too late, and the game ended by virtue of the ten run rule.

Wayne girls defeat Winside in squeaker

In what would normally be considered a high-scoring game, Wayne's 18-and-under girls' softball team took a game from Winside last Friday by a score of 8-6. The 14 runs scored in the contest didn't seem like much, though. After all, their 15-and-under counterparts had just won their game by the score of 21-10. Cheri Milligan managed a base hit with two outs in the top of the first inning for Wayne, but was left stranded on base as Lori Jacobson grounded out to second. Winside jumped on top as it scored two runs in the bottom of the first off of a Wayne error and a single.

Winside added three runs in the inning and took a one run lead into the fourth stanza. Wayne went down in order and Winside added a run to its lead in the inning.

Kathy Mohlfeld got to first on a Winside miscue and advanced to third on a passes ball. Cheri Milligan scored her on a sacrifice. To the second baseman as Wayne pulled within one run.

Neither team scored in the sixth inning and Wayne came to bat for the final time trailing 6-5. Sharon Janke singled, stole second and advanced to third on a passed ball as the tying run was suddenly on third. Kathy Mohlfeld singled but was forced out at second as Cheri Milligan got to first on an error on the center fielder. Janke crossed the plate to tie the game.

Lori Jacobson singled, advanced on a couple of pop flies and stole home on an error on the catcher as Wayne took the lead and went on to win the contest 8-6.

All's well in Allen

PIPE IS stacked on a yard near Allen High School where it is being stored for use in a water improvement project which has been started. Slowey Construction of Yankon has begun installing the transmission line into Allen. Layne Western of Omaha will dig and install a new well north and west of Allen. Property for the well site was purchased from Merle and Deenette Von Minden and land for the line was acquired by easement from Ben and Inez Jackson, Neil and Donna Wood and the Von Mindens. Funding for the project is possible because of a DED grant, FHA loan and local funds. Cost is $391,810.

Faculty profile

Few Wayne State College faculty members are students as well as instructors, however Dr. LaVera Roemhildt is.

Currently studying to complete the German language here, Roemhildt's special interest in the German culture has led to a unique opportunity for her.

This summer, she will take a group of home economists to Germany through the Wayne State international studies program. The home economics portion of the Germany institute is in its first year, and Roemhildt says she is excited to be a part of it.

ORIGINALLY from the Mankato, Minn., area, Roemhildt teaches classes in clothing and textiles and supervises student Teachers of home economics.

She earned her undergraduate degree from Mankato State University in 1963 and her master's degree in vocational home economics education in 1968.

In 1974, she completed her doctoral degree at Texas Women's University (TWU) in Denton, Texas.

LaVera Roemhildt

BEFORE coming to Wayne State, Roemhildt taught at Mankato State for two years during a graduate assistantship. She also held a graduate assistantship in research at TWU for the National Cotton Council, and taught high school home economics in and around the Mankato area.

Roemhildt says she likes Wayne State "for the same reasons most students like it. It's small enough to be acquainted with others on campus. It's not so big that you get that isolated feeling you might get at a larger school."

She said she especially enjoys getting to know many individual students and faculty members, and understanding their backgrounds and interests.

SHE IS A member of the American and the Nebraska Vocational Associations, and is a member of the Nebraska Home Economics Education Council.

Roemhildt and her husband, Elmer, have five grown children and five grandchildren. She says her family is one of her most special interests.

She also enjoys sewing and designing some of her own clothing.

farm briefs

NU energy farm integrated

The third phase of the University of Nebraska's Integrated Energy Farm, which will provide demonstrations on integrated energy systems for Nebraska farmers, will officially get underway July 27 with an address by Governor Robert Kerrey. NU agricultural engineer and project coordinator Dennis Schulte said the third phase will be initiated at 2 p.m. on Wednesday, July 27, at the NU Field Lab near Mead.

According to agricultural engineering department head William Splinter, the 160-acre Integrated Energy Farm has been in the planning and construction phases for two years and is now complete. The final links, Splinter said, were the installation of the methane generator and the completion of the swine unit and greenhouse.

Also on hand for the initiation ceremony will be representatives of the U.S. Department of Energy, the State Department of Agriculture, the State Department of Energy and the building contractors.

The Energy Farm also will be open for inspection by the public as part of the annual NU Tractor Power and Safety Day on Thursday, July 28.

Butterflies migrate to Nebraska

Don't disturb the painted lady butterfly unless she becomes a pest, said David Keith, University of Nebraska extension entomologist.

A large number of the orange-black and white beauties migrated to Nebraska in May, Keith said. "The last time we had a really significant population was in 1969."

Keith said they deposit their eggs on thistles, which after one week become the haven for the young—1/4 inch black and yellow or purple marked spiny caterpillars. These caterpillars web the edges of the thistle leaves together, creating a protective shelter—much like a home that they can fly in and out of later, he said.

The caterpillars feed mostly on thistle leaves, but also feed on sunflowers, hollyhocks and soybeans, Keith said. The effect on thistles usually is slight, but damage can be extensive on soybean plants, especially in late summer.

Growing to maturity, approximately five weeks after hatching, the butterflies, which have a wing span of 2 inches, can produce another generation in July, Keith said.

Tree sales down this year

Although tree sales to Nebraska through the Clarke-McNary program were down somewhat from a year ago, a total of 3.16 million trees and shrub seedlings were sold in 1982-83.

Bill Lovett, program director and tree improvement forester for the University of Nebraska Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources, said the lagging economy was probably responsible for the 260,000 tree drop in sales from 1981-82.

He said that again in 1982-83, Natural Resources Districts purchased more than half of the trees sold. However, he added, the resource districts resell the trees to individuals for windbreaks, woodlots, wildlife shelters and other conservation purposes—with the vast majority going into windbreaks.

The best-selling tree again this year, 1.65 million, was the Eastern Red Cedar. Individual orders from 2,759 people averaged 234 trees per person, Lovett said. The average figure is misleading, since trees are sold only in lots of 100.

Farm managers to meet

The Nebraska Chapter of the American Society of Farm Managers and Rural Appraisers will hold its 1983 summer meeting July 21-22 in Norfolk, said Larry L. Binney, University of Nebraska extension farm management specialist and chapter secretary.

Bryce Neidig, president of the Nebraska Farm Bureau, will speak July 21, Binney said. Other events include a tour of the Agrex Grain Terminal and Madison Pork Plant, a review of the Northrup King PIK Test Plot and Willow Creek Dam & Recreation Project Condemnation Appraisal July 22, Binney said.

Registration for the meeting is $10 until July 1 and $15 after wards, Binney said. Registration forms are available through the National Bank of Commerce, Farm Management, in Norfolk.

Approaching storm

THE DARK skies warn residents of a rain and thunder storm that is approaching. Things were quiet on this farmstead but the black rain clouds crept closer and unleashed heavy rains last week, adding to recent above-average precipitation.

Sheep carcass contest planned at fairgrounds

The Northeast Nebraska Sheep Producers Association will hold its fourth annual carcass contest on July 10 at the Wayne County fairgrounds. This contest is designed to help producers identify the strengths and weaknesses in the carcass merit of their breeding programs.

Any market weight lamb may be entered ewe, wether, or ram. Entry fee is $3 for members and $5 for non-members. Entries are limited to one per person with no limit per family. Unshorn or No. 1 pelts are recommended.

Weight in of the lambs will be from 1-1:30 p.m. with the evaluation contest to begin at 2 p.m. The evaluation contest is open to anyone, and area livestock judging teams are encouraged to attend.

Judging of the live lambs will begin at 3 p.m.

A lamb lunch will follow the activities for a nominal charge of $2. (The Wayne County fairgrounds is located 1 mile west and 1/2 miles south of the junction of highways 15 and 35.)

On July 12 the regular NENSPA meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. at the Womens Club Room at the Wayne City Auditorium. Members will then proceed to Johnsons Locker Plant to view the carcasses and obtain the data collected by Dr. Ted Doane, UNL extension sheep specialist.

Everyone will then return to the auditorium for the presentation of awards and an open topic discussion with Dr. Doane.

Open manure storage provides advantages

Economical feasibility and environmental efficiency are key reasons for farmers to consider open manure storages, said a University of Nebraska extension agricultural engineer.

According to Gerald Bodman, "This is a relatively new concept which is unique to this part of the country."

Using open storage provides an economical means of storing manure while reducing the potential of environmental degradation caused by runoff, soil compaction and loss of nutrients," Bodman said.

BUT, THE SPECIALIST said, deciding on an open storage unfortunately means all manure will be handled as a liquid or slurry. If not, he added, two separate sets of equipment are required to load, haul and apply the liquids and solids.

For this reason, slotted dams constructed of pressure-treated lumber with vertical openings have been developed to permit precipitation to drain into a separate storage, Bodman said.

"While this does not eliminate the problem of having to handle precipitation water, it does make it possible to handle the majority of the manure with a conventional front-end loader and box spreader," Bodman said.

And it spreads out the work load. "The semi-solid portion with its nutrients can be hauled prior to spring tillage operations while the liquid portion can be surface applied during the growing season," Bodman said.

WHILE THE LIQUID does contain some nutrients, it is generally diluted enough to permit applying it to growing crops without burning, Bodman said.

"By delaying the spreading of liquid, it can be applied during the growing season while crops will benefit from the liquid as well as the nutrients and can perhaps be done with rented or borrowed equipment, thereby reducing investment costs," he said.

Another advantage of draining off liquids is that semi-solid manure is always available and ready for hauling without having to first spend several hours agitating the storage to put solid portions of the manure into suspension to permit pumping, Bodman said.

According to Bodman, the slotted dam can be used with storages having pressure-treated plank, concrete or earthen banks.

Pig study made

Elevated crates increase survival

Many pork producers who are remodeling or expanding farrowing capacity are elevating the farrowing crates above floor level—usually 12 to 18 inches—and with good reason, a University of Nebraska extension swine specialist reported.

Bob Fritschen cited several NLU studies which indicated that pigs farrowed in elevated crates had a 90.5 percent survival rate while their contemporaries farrowed at a 4 percent survival rate.

"The specialist noted a second study was even more in favor of elevated crates compared to a 67 percent survival rate for those farrowed at floor level, he added.

eliminate this risk, Fritschen added.

A second advantage, according to Fritschen, is that elevated crates are warmer and less drafty.

"SINCE THE TEMPERATURE increases about 2 to 3 degrees Fahrenheit for each foot of elevation off the floor, the raised crate places the pig in a warmer environment," he said.

In another study, Fritschen said, since drafts tend to follow surfaces, the raised crates remove the pig above this source of chilling.

A concern often expressed by those who are contemplating raised crates is the difficulty of getting the sow and pigs in and out of the raised crate, Fritschen pointed out. But, he said, this is not a problem with the case of sows. However, when baby pigs are removed from the crate at weaning time, an extra person helping would be beneficial, he said.

"Elevated crates usually have expanded metal or wire floors covering the entire floor area which allows for more rapid removal of pig excretion from the pig area," Fritschen said.

Pig manure lying on a warm floor in a farrowing crate provides an ideal media for bacterial growth, he said. If baby pigs have access to this manure, it is a risk to their health, the specialist warned.

Therefore, the elevated wire-floored farrowing crates nearly Judging was held during the afternoon.

Next meeting will be July 16 at 1:30 p.m. with Lori Schrant as hostess and Kathy Leighton as co-hostess.

Each member is asked to bring one finished project to the next meeting. Roll call will be "Our Favorite Fireworks."

HELPING HANDS The Helping Hands 4-H Club went on a field trip to Norfolk June 24.

Attending were 11 members, leaders Mrs. Dennis Greenke and Mrs. Marvin Cherry, and mothers Mrs. Lon DuBois and Laurel, and Mrs. Dennis Evans and Mrs. DuBois, Mrs. Evans and Mrs. DuBois.

THE GROUP'S first stop was with Bob Carlisle, who showed them rockets, cannons, old fireworks and fireworks labels.

At Northwestern Bank, members were given a tour and saw the coin and bill counting machines. Each received a pencil and cookies.

Next stop was the Norfolk Dairy News, where they saw the presses running. There they were presented a book and an issue of the newspaper.

Rose Rust

The battle against rose diseases appears to be a never-ending problem. If it isn't black spot and yellow leaves, it's a virus disease. Now another disease of roses is currently gaining attention in Nebraska. The name of the disease is "Rose Rust."

Small orange-colored spots on both leaf surfaces in early spring are characteristic signs of rust. The organism responsible for the disease is also capable of attacking the canes causing injury to the infected shoots. If black canker-like areas are present on the stem, these cankers should be pruned well below the margin of the infected portion.

Diseased leaves and infected canes provide the initial infection each spring. Sanitation in the form of pruning and removing dead leaves is the initial step in preventing rust. A fungicidal spray program should also be initiated if rust is a recurring problem.

The recommended fungicides are a mixture of fenchone sulfur or zinab. These pesticides should be applied at two-week intervals throughout the growing season. Be sure to follow manufacturer's directions and thoroughly cover the foliage with the chemical.

Rose Disease Control

Disease must be dealt with if roses are to be grown successfully. Black spot is the most common and destructive disease of cultivated roses in Nebraska. This must be controlled if we are to fully enjoy the rose.

Black spot is caused by a fungus that survives the winter in infected canes and in leaf debris beneath the plant. This fungus produces spores on this debris and on lesions on living leaves throughout the growing season. On susceptible varieties, 80 percent defoliation usually occurs by the end of August as a result of black spot.

To prevent this, rose growers should remove as much leaf debris beneath the plant as possible and then in June initiate a vigorous fungicide spray program.

Fungicides that give good control of black spot are Daconil 2787, Phaltan, Fero or Fungiflex. Susceptible roses need to be sprayed thoroughly and frequently during the summer.

Powdery mildew is another serious rose disease that develops during hot, humid weather. The mildew fungus appears as a white fuzzy mold growth on leaves and flowers. Infected plant parts are usually deformed. Roses susceptible to mildew should be sprayed with benomyl, Phaltan or Funginex beginning in early July.

the farmer's wife

by pat meierhenry

When the Big Farmer and I were married and moved onto the farm, several of his cousins "shivareed" us. It was the first time I ever met Bev Dangberg, who has to be one of the funniest ladies I know.

Once in awhile, though, Bev gets me involved in things I have no business getting involved in. I was sitting by her after church one Sunday several years ago when she volunteered us to work on a float for a Bicentennial parade. Darned thing fell apart before we got it to town and had to be rebuilt!

This time, we said yes when Norma Stoltenberg asked us to be the musical "entertainment" for the Farm Wife Luncheon. I had never been to the luncheon. I had no idea it was so well attended. The theme was "The art of being a woman" and we racked our brains for something to sing with that theme. Helen Reddy's "I Am Woman" just did not seem to be our style.

BEV SPENT four days on the tractor early in June, and rewrote the famous "I Can't Say No" from Oklahoma. It included lines like "Whatcha gonna do when the combine breaks down and you need parts from town and club's in a half an hour?" And I especially liked "Supposing that he's stuck with the truck in the muck and you're supposed to find a chain in the rain." Sound familiar?

She also rewrote "My Favorite Things" for me to sing. The first time I sang a solo in public, I was in the third grade and I was so nervous that when I stood up to announce my number, I couldn't remember the name of it! I've sung many times since, and though I always get nervous, I usually remember what I'm singing. I usually can memorize the words, and I really appreciate eye contact with the audience.

Well, I started to sing my song, and was using that old eye contact for all it was worth, when sheer fright took over and I completely forgot a line. I've never sung for 400 people before, besides which I had a mental block because the line was, "A garden that's weeded" and that's just not one of my priorities.

But the audience was great, and we enjoyed ourselves. The food was delicious, and I think it's very nice of the Wayne Chamber to make this an annual event.

And when I saw the picture in the paper, my resolve to stay on a diet was strengthened!

HASN'T THE humidity been something? Guess it's just what the crops need, but the cattle have been standing around huffing. Cultivators have been moving fast this past week.

We are also into the time of year for family reunions. The older I get, the more I appreciate these. My aunts and uncles and cousins from York County got together today, and I met the new spouses and hugged the new babies.

Next weekend, over the Fourth, some of the Meierhenry cousins will be around. Hope Bev Dangberg joins us. Watch for her at the Chicken Show. Meanwhile, it's time to get ready for Old Settler's.

Tractor PTO shift lever could hinder farm safety

A new shift lever that will allow increased revolutions per minute (RPMs) for tractor power take-offs (PTOs) also may bring about new safety problems, according to Rollin Schneider, University of Nebraska extension safety specialist.

The PTO, which first showed up on farm tractors around 1930, revolutionized the use of farm machinery. But, Schneider said, it also brought about the problem of PTO accidents where shafts were not properly guarded and people were caught up in the turning drives.

Today, tractor manufacturers in Europe and Japan are providing a shift lever to allow 540 RPM drives to be increased to 750 or even 1000 RPMs. Schneider said the philosophy is that tractors have so much excess horsepower. Rather than run the engine at full speed, why not shift to a higher PTO speed and throttle back the engine? There would be a savings of fuel. Whether the savings in fuel can overshadow the cost of the shift and possible additional safety hazards is yet to be seen, the specialist said.

THE PROS and cons of the PTO shift lever will be discussed by Schneider and Lou Leviticus of the NU Tractor Testing Lab at the Tractor Power Safety Day which will be held July 28 at the NU Mead Field Lab.

Both men see some real problems if the shift lever is adopted. Leviticus said he worries that equipment with cylinders for cutting or cylinders for grinding might literally "fly to pieces." Anyone in the near vicinity could be hit by flying debris and possibly be killed.

Schneider explained that centrifugal forces (which make rotating bodies move away from the center of rotation) on rotating members increase as the square of velocity. In other words, he said, the centrifugal forces would be four times greater at 1000 RPM than at 500 RPM.

"People in Europe say they have seen no problem as yet," Schneider said, "but the shift levers have been in use for only a few years."

The real advantages and disadvantages of the shift lever to increase power take-off RPMs have yet to be determined, he reiterated.

Certification date for crops is near

Farmers have only a couple of weeks left to report their 1983 planted acres to the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service. The final certification date is July 15.

To be sure of planted acres, farmers can request measurement service. For a fee a farmer can request that his planted crops be measured prior to reporting acreages.

Program participants are required to report crops and acreages planted, the uses to be made of these crops and cropland acres to be devoted to conservation uses. "Nonparticipants need to certify their crops for future programs," said Erwin Morris county committee chairman. In addition to history purposes, the acreage reports are also necessary for proven yields.

Crop certification is necessary before the farmer can receive price support and other program benefits.

The ASCS official said spring seeded crops may be certified Monday through Friday between 8 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. "We hope that farmers will report their acreages well in advance of the July 15 deadline."

ASCS will randomly check farms to verify that acreage reports are accurate and have aerial photographs available for farmers to identify their fields.

Bikers stop in Winside

Two bicycling brothers, making a trip from Berkeley, Cal. to Neenah, Wisc., stopped over in Winside Friday night to rest up before completing their trek. They own a bicycle shop in Berkeley and will visit their parents in their home town of Neenah.

Jamie, 21, and Jon, 27, Hopcia, started their journey on June 2. After 22 days on the road, the two pulled up at Lee & Rosie's Bar in Winside Friday night. They left Winside early Saturday morning and expected to spend five or six more days on the road. The Hopcias said they rode their bicycles in 120 degree temperatures through Death Valley. They wore head gear like Arabian shieks and wet themselves down constantly. Five of the most enjoyable days of their journey were spent riding through the Sierra and Rocky Mountain ranges. They said they ran into considerable heat and humidity after leaving the Rockies. The brothers estimate their trip will cover 2,500 miles. They said they are making the journey for a vacation. They plan to fly back to California. During the journey the brothers encountered some weather problems. They brought numerous spare parts, equipment and tools with them. They had about 15 flat tires they said. At Winside, the pair showered at the home of Kathy Smith and stayed in the city park. They had traveled 130 miles Friday and expected to leave Winside between 6 and 6:30 a.m. Saturday.

When someone else runs into your car, have you run into bad luck with your insurance rates?

Not if you're insured with Auto-Owners. Unlike some other insurance companies, Auto-Owners won't automatically raise your rates just because you run into bad luck. Even if the bad luck is your fault. Our rates are based on long-term performance.

Auto-Owners' auto policies have other unique extras, too. Like up to $200 coverage on most personal possessions stolen from your car. Up to $300 in substitute transportation expenses. Discounts for 2 or more cars on the same policy. Discounts to most retirees. And more.

If you aren't getting all this from your present policy, you ought to talk to your independent Auto-Owners agent.
