Co. fair gets grant

The Wayne County Fair has received $1,000 from Ak-Sar-Ben, according to fair President Richard Sorensen and Secretary Marilyn Koch. The money is part of a four-year grant to build restrooms at the fairgrounds.

The Ak-Sar-Ben County Fair Improvement Program is made possible by funds from the annual race meeting, according to Ak-Sar-Ben Committee Chairman, William A. Fitzgerald.

For the 30th consecutive year, Ak-Sar-Ben is offering up to $1,000 annually to Nebraska county fairs for permanent improvements to fairgrounds.

If it is a matching grant, wherein the county fairs agree to match the Ak-Sar-Ben contribution dollar for dollar.

Ak-Sar-Ben sets aside $85,000 each year for this improvement program, which over the years has totalled close to $2,000,000 to fairs throughout Nebraska.

The grants are made available to all Nebraska county fairs which do not conduct pari-mutuel race meetings. In addition to the grants, all state admission taxes at the races each year are earmarked to go to the county fairs.

Local firemen saved $$$

The Wayne Volunteer Fire Department saved approximately $360,000 worth of property from May 1, 1982 to May 1 this year according to its annual report issued this week.

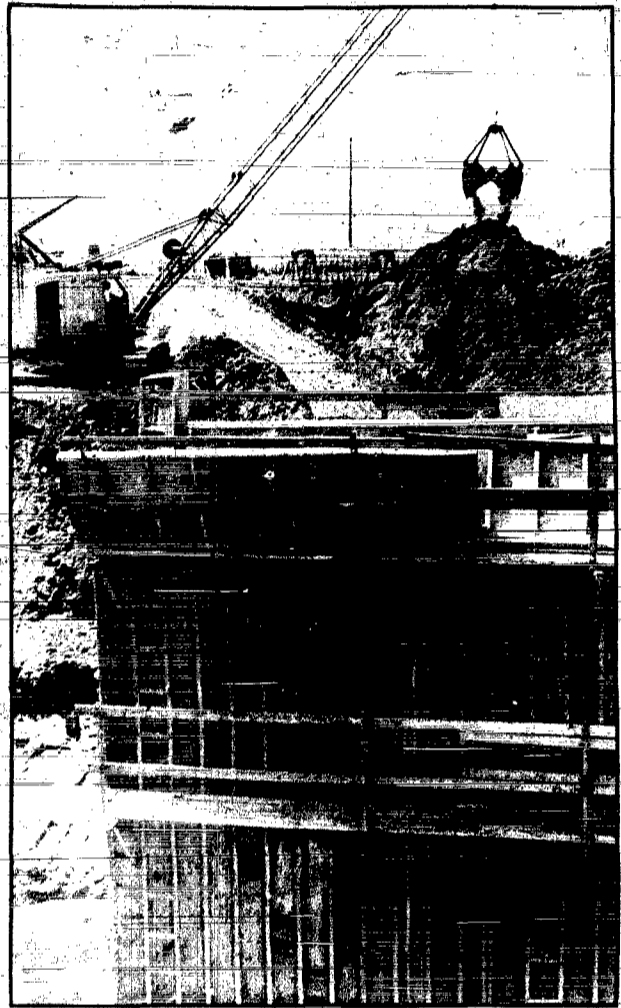

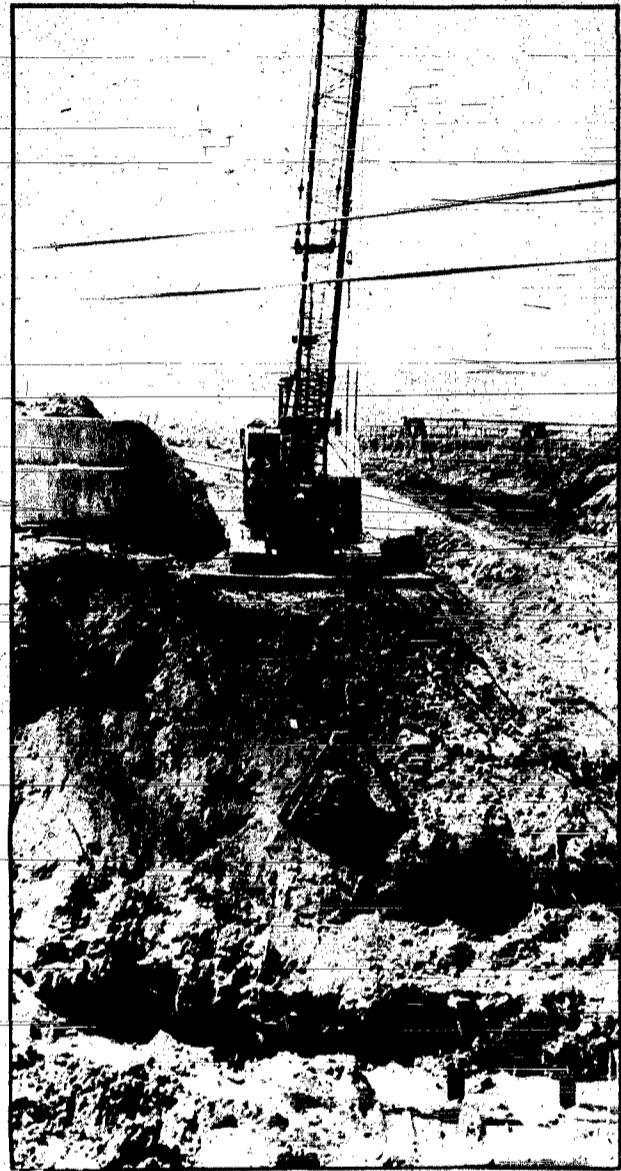

The 36 member department responded to 42 alarms amounting to $136,800 worth of damage through the year.

The department responded to 18 alarms within the city limits. Estimate of the damage on those calls was $103,800. Ten rural fire alarms were turned in and some $33,000 worth of damage was done.

Nine false alarms, four rescue calls and one call for mutual aid brought the total number of calls to 42. The fire department spent 53 hours and a total of 960 man hours on calls.

The department traveled 73 miles on fire calls and two miles on rescue calls. The average number of persons answering fire calls was 22 and the average number answering rescue calls was 8.

A total of 120 hours and 758 man hours were spent on training.

One-third million dollar bridge is being built

Some extensive bridge work on the Wayne County line is going to cost taxpayers a bundle of money.

Work began in April on a bridge which will cross Logan Creek approximately three miles east and two miles north of Wayne. The structure will be located on the "old Wakefield highway" which forms the Wayne and Dixon County line.

Total cost of the project will be in the neighborhood of $300,000 but most of that money will come from federal aid. Wayne and Dixon counties will each be required to pay for five percent of the project or approximately $16,000 each.

CAPITAL BRIDGE Company of Lincoln is doing the bridge construction which is expected to be completed this fall.

Federal requirements force the bridge to be all concrete. Once completed it should be about 28 feet wide and nearly 180 feet long.

Wayne County Commissioner Merlin Beiermann said the old bridge was beyond repair. He said he feels a steel structure would have about the same life expectancy at half the cost but government regulations require construction of concrete.

Because they don't feel concrete is necessary on rural roads where traffic count is low, Beiermann said the commissioners are pushing for legislation to change the regulations.

Future bridge construction will include a bridge east of Wakefield on a road which runs by the golf course. The Highway 35 bridge located just north of Wakefield also will be replaced in 1984, Beiermann said.

CONSTRUCTION ON a bridge north and east of Wayne continues. Two cranes are working on the project which is being handled by Capital Bridge Construction of Lincoln. The project is in its third month and should be completed in August. Estimated cost is more than $300,000.

Farm field day is designed to help combat erosion

In hopes of combatting severe soil erosion, the Wayne County Extension Service and Soil Conservation Service are combining their efforts by sponsoring field demonstrations Thursday near Sholes.

Five conservation tillage plots of corn using either ridge planters or a slot planter have been planted. Conservation tillage plantings have been made on the Don Leidman, Larry Wittler and Steve Hokamp farms in the northwest part of Wayne County.

The Conservation Tillage Field Day will show the advantages of minimal cultivation of the soil.

IN ORDER to demonstrate the soil saving potential from reduced tillage, a rainfall simulator machine will be installed on the Gerald Stevens farm southwest of Sholes.

The rotating boom rainfall simulator is designed to apply various amounts of water on small plots of five and ten feet with different amounts of crop residue cover.

Metal borders with a collection device at one end are placed around the plots for accurate measurements of runoff and erosion. The machine reportedly demonstrates how a residue of at least 30 to 35 percent can greatly reduce soil losses.

"SOIL EROSION is a major concern of many farmers in northeast Nebraska, because of the loss of valuable topsoil, nutrients, pesticides and water," according to Wayne County Agent Don Spitzke. "Almost 75 percent of this erosion is on cultivated slopes. In northeast Nebraska this soil loss may exceed 100 tons per acre each year."

Experiments show that by using the same conservation tillage methods that are used on leased farm plots, soil loss can be reduced as much as 80 percent compared to a conventional moldboard plow system on a 10 percent slope, Spitzke said.

"An effective erosion control conservation tillage system should leave a minimum of 20 to 30 percent of crop residue cover after planting," said Spitzke. "Moldboard plowing and conventional planting or disking may leave five percent or less residue cover. Not only can soil be reduced, but at the same time there is a reduction in machine, fuel and labor costs with no reduction in yields by using good conservation tillage methods."

THE TOUR is scheduled to begin at 3:30 p.m. at the Leidman conservation tillage and switchgrass plots located 1 mile south and 1 1/2 miles west of Carroll.

The tour also will include stops at conservation tillage plots, the rainfall simulator demonstration, a tillage equipment demonstration by implement dealers and presentations on herbicide use and insect control by extension specialists.

Voting records studied

Von Minden rates high with conservatives

State Senator Merle Von Minden of Allentown tied for first place in ratings of the state's senators made by the Nebraska Conservatives For Freedom.

Von Minden and Senators Chris Abboud (12th District) and Howard Lamb (43rd District) each received a 75.3 percent conservative voting score. Plaques will be presented to the three state senators.

As an educational service provided Nebraska voters, the organization, since 1978, has monitored voting records of state legislators.

NCR rates state senators in the following areas: fiscal responsibility, government intervention in private life, law and order.

Rating categories established by the group are: 75-100 percent conservative; 60-70 percent moderate; 40-60 percent centrist; 20-40 percent liberal; 0-20 percent socialist.

This year, NCF tracked votes on 57 bills and resolutions. Starting at a base of zero, senators received 175 percent credit for each conservative vote.

Rating lowest on the scale were Omaha state senators Peter Hoaglund and Vard Johnson, both of whom received 28 percent.

Voting record data is available to state senators and members of the public who send a stamped self-addressed envelope to P.O. Box 31845, Omaha 68131.

eddie's brother

by randy hascall

There's a saying I encountered a few years ago that goes something like this: "Just when I thought I knew all of life's answers they changed the questions." I never did think I knew all of life's answers but every time I learn another answer I come up with two more questions.

Here's one of life's questions I have never been able to answer: What is the purpose of mosquitos?

Those worthless, blood thirsty bugs show no mercy during their attack. Spending an hour outside in the summer can leave a person's face looking like the subject of a Clearasil or Stridex commercial.

Last week, some friends were afraid to bring their children into our house because they thought our son had chicken pox. Nope, just a normal case of skeeter bites.

Thanks to the wet weather, this summer is extremely kind to mosquitos. The Twilight Zone in me says they are trying to take over the world. Trying to avoid the insects is like trying to tap dance with blisters and no shoes. It doesn't work too well!

I see no good reason for skeeters to exist. All they do is cause trouble. Just think: If we could capture all of the mosquitos in the world and drain the human blood from them, we wouldn't need to rely on volunteers for blood transfusions. That's the only way they would ever be useful.

I had an uncle once who had a bad case of skeetophobia. Every day he would cover his body with Off, Cutter and vanilla and then put on long underwear, blue jeans, a sweater, two pairs of socks, a stocking cap and then place a net over his face.

I prefer to take the offensive. I always carry in my back pocket a can of Raid and a sawed-off fly swatter. I show no mercy for the bugs. As soon as they land on my skin, I slap or spray them senseless.

I say the United States should declare war on mosquitos. Instead of spending all of our tax money on military defense why not use it to defend against skeeters.

Maybe we could even use them to our advantage in war like situations. If the Soviets threaten us, we can bomb them with a few million mosquitos. That'll fix 'em.

Here are some of life's other difficult questions that have perplexed this columnist for years:

Why do you forget there is no spare tire in the trunk until you have a flat tire?

Why is it whenever you decide to walk barefooted in your yard, you always find out the hard way that a neighbor's dog had broken its leash and left its mark right where you just stepped?

Why does your boss always give you the blame when something is done wrong but take the credit when something is done right?

How can crab grass and weeds grow so well while blue grass and green beans grow so slow?

Why do you always make a mistake in balancing your check book when the balance is actually below zero?

Why does it rain when you need to plant or harvest your crops and dry up when the moisture is needed?

Why does your shoe lace break when you're trying to get dressed and get to a destination you should have been at 10 minutes ago?

Why do typewriter keys stick when you're in the middle of an important letter?

Why does the electricity go off near the conclusion of your favorite television show?

Why does the telephone ring when you're in the shower or about two minutes after you've fallen asleep for the night?

Why is the first aid kit always in the way when you don't need it and impossible to find when you do?

Why is the right sized socket the only one missing from your wrench set?

Why does your nose always itch when you're working on the car and your hands are covered with oil?

Why do the neighborhood birds always prefer to perch on the tree branch that hangs above your car?

Why is the other party's line always busy when you need to place a phone call?

Why do you always find out after you've sawed the wood for the cabinets you're building that your measurements were incorrect?

Why does a supreme pizza taste so good when you're eating it and make you feel so miserable while you're digesting it?

Why does sales tax make the item you buy cost one penny more than what you have in your billfold?

Why is it, when you're in a telephone booth looking up a number in a telephone book, the one page that is torn out contained the number you needed?

So it goes.

To the editor:
Is the Jaycee Softball Complex ready for the district tournament? In its present condition, it leaves a lot to be desired! A few of the necessary improvements are:

1. Drinking water — Do you really expect out-of-town teams to bring their own water?

2. Restrooms — Out-of-town teams will laugh all the way home after they see our filthy white outhouse down by Logan Creek!

3. Dugout benches — Will out-of-town players be expected to furnish their own? I refer to "out-of-town teams" because they will be bringing much business to the community. Businesses such as motels, restaurants, bars, gas stations and grocery stores could benefit enormously. First impressions are important and with the present condition of the complex many teams may not come back.

4. Entrance road — I was told gravel is too expensive; has anyone checked for lower estimates? If gravel is unaffordable, why not use sand as an alternative? It costs much less and could make the difference of whether or not people can get their cars out in case of a downpour. Many vehicles have been stuck. Sand on the infield would also help the field dry out quicker after a rain. Sand would also help keep the dust down.

All of the above are big problems facing the future success of the complex. I realize these improvements are expensive. Fund raising events such as raffles or possibly advertising contributions from the businesses are needed. Is the complex eligible to receive any grant money? Would other civic organizations be interested in becoming involved? I think with the necessary improvements the complex can be a valuable asset for the community of Wayne.

Q: How long are you legally required to keep important papers such as real estate papers, income tax records, bank books and cancelled checks, stocks and bonds, a will and a mortgage?

A: There is no legal requirement that any of the documents mentioned be retained for any period of time. Common sense dictates that documents be retained for so long as there is any possibility that they might have a bearing upon your legal rights and obligations.

Every document mentioned in your question either gives rise to legal rights and obligations or is evidence of a legally binding transaction.

Stocks, bonds and other securities should be retained in a safe place for as long as you own them because they presumably have a monetary value and, if they are lost, stolen or destroyed, that value may be lost to you.

Your will should likewise be kept in a safe place until, after your death, all of your property has been disposed of in accordance with your wishes, either in a formal probate proceeding or otherwise. You should make certain that the principal beneficiaries know where the will can be located upon your death.

Cancelled checks and check stubs may be valuable evidence in the event a person to whom you made a payment either denies that the payment was made or disputes the amount.

They may also have value as evidence affecting your state and federal tax obligations. We would therefore recommend that such documents be retained for a minimum of five years.

Your income tax records for a given year may have some bearing upon your tax liabilities in later years. For that reason, we would suggest that such records likewise be retained for a minimum of five years.

You may want to keep these records throughout your life because of their potential value in settling your estate.

Real estate papers and property investment records can provide evidence of your legal relationships with other parties to a given transaction. They should be retained as long as there is any possibility that you may have need of them.

Most investments, even the purchase of your family home, may have taxable consequences which do not arise until many years after you make the investment. For example, we would recommend that you retain all records involving the purchase of your home and any improvements made to your home until at least three years after you have sold your home.

This is because the sale of your home may result in a taxable capital gain and, without adequate evidence of the amounts you paid to purchase and improve the home, your tax liability may be in excess of what it should be.

Because of possible tax consequences to your estate upon your death, it is important that records concerning substantial assets owned at death be made available to your personal representative.

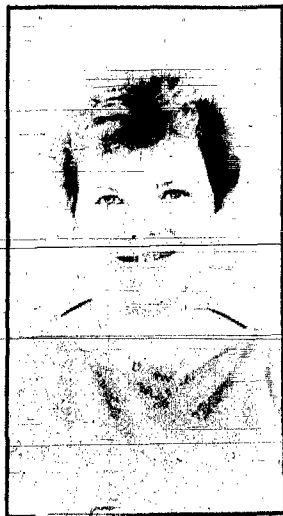

It is impossible in the space of this column to cover every document which may have some legal consequence. As a rule of thumb, we would recommend that you retain a document until the time when you feel that the absence of the document could not possibly have a financial impact upon you or your estate or could not result in the forfeiture of any of your legal rights.

This week The Wayne Herald asked five persons, "How do you feel about the swimming pool rates in Wayne?"

"The family ticket has gone down from last year, so I was pleased we could get it in advance at a cheaper rate. I would like to see a change in the time for family swimming, though." — Carol Brunner, Winona

"I think its rates are higher than a lot of surrounding towns." — Kim Weander, Wayne

"I think it's fair and the concessions are a good deal, too." — Terry Schulz, Wayne

"I think it's expensive for the time spent there in one afternoon, but the season ticket is a good deal." — Lori Jacobsen, Wayne

"It's fair for a town this size, but I don't feel the concessions are needed for additional profit and it creates litter." — Helen Gunderson, Wayne

news and notes

mary temme
extension agent-home economics

For many homeowners it's time to brighten the house this summer with a fresh coat of paint.

If the project is on your list, the following tips may help. It is possible to paint your house too often. Cross grain cracking can be caused by too frequent repainting with oil base paint.

In some cases, you may need to paint only the South and West, possibly the East sides where the paint has weathered considerably.

AFTER THE decision to paint comes the time to prepare the surface. Some tasks in life have no shortcuts and one of them is removing old paint. The surface should be firm, smooth, clean and dry.

Old paint can be removed by scraping, sanding, burning, or with chemical removers.

Sanding is effective for smooth surfaces. Burning can be very hazardous, and chemical removers may be quite expensive for large areas. That leaves scraping. Not a very popular job to do. There are a few gadgets that may make the task a little easier. But scraping is still time-consuming and work. Your reward is that careful scraping produces a better finished product.

AFTER-SCRAPING and a final cleanup, you correct the problem that caused the paint to blister, crack or peel.

You may have a moisture problem caused by leaks in roofs or sidewalls or an inadequate vapor barrier. Moisture from inside your home can condense on the inside of exterior walls during winter months.

The moisture travels through the wood and forces the paint to pull loose. Correcting a moisture problem can be a serious problem. Once the paint is removed and the surface is prepared you can prime the surface. Applying the final coat of paint may be your easiest task.

THE WEATHER plays an important part in a good paint job. Mild and dry weather is preferred and not very common during a Nebraska summer.

Begin painting outside after the dew has evaporated. Paint surfaces after they've been exposed to the sun and are in the shade. The old saying about "follow the sun around the house" is true!

The best part of painting your home is admiring the finished product. When you're done, congratulate yourself on a job well done.

Chairman adds final staffer

Wayne State College head football coach Pete Chapman has completed his coaching staff with the hiring of defensive line coach Dennis Danielson.

Danielson, a native of Laurel, brings a variety of experience to the Wayne State program, including a year as defensive coach of Boulder City High School in Boulder City, Nev. during the 1982 season.

A graduate of Barstow Junior College (Calif.) and Willamette University (Ore.), he served as a graduate assistant at Willamette University in 1972. He returned to the school again in 1977-78 to assist with the coaching of the offensive line and linebackers.

In 1979, Danielson coached the linebackers and coordinated the defense for the Silverton High School football team in Silverton, Ore. During that season, the team posted its first winning season in over six years and fell one game short of the state playoffs.

In addition to his coaching experience, Danielson played semi-pro football for the Manitowoc Chiefs in Manitowoc, Wis. in 1974 and was selected as an all-league linebacker. He signed as a free agent with the Houston Oilers in 1975.

In 1978-79 he participated in the National Sports Festival in Colorado Springs (Colo.) as a member of the men's handball team, which won the bronze medal in 1978 and captured the gold in 1979.

Danielson, currently residing in Boulder City, is married and has one child. A graduate of John F. Kennedy High School in Barstow, Calif., he will join the Wildcat coaching staff as a graduate assistant while working towards his master's degree in physical education.

"Dennis will fill an immediate need in our coaching staff with his previous experience," said coach Chapman. "That experience at the defensive line position will be a valuable addition to our program."

Bullfrog season open Friday

Nebraska's 1983 bullfrog season begins July 15 and will continue through Oct. 31.

People wanting to enjoy a tasty meal of frog legs must take their bullfrogs by hand, hand net or hook and line. Only frogs measuring 4 1/2 inches from snout to vent or larger may be taken. Smaller frogs must be released. Artificial light may be used when taking frogs.

Froglers must have a current Nebraska fishing license and they may take and have in possession eight bullfrogs per person. When transporting frogs, only the nostrils may be removed.

Bullfrogs are most usually found along the shorelines in or near areas of emergent vegetation. Most froglers prefer to hunt them at night from a canoe and take them by hand.

Frog legs provide excellent eating when rolled in an egg batter and cracker crumbs, then deep fat fried.

National Guard returns from training session

Members of the Nebraska Army National Guard's 1st Battalion, 134th Infantry from northeast Nebraska went through a squad reaction course as part of a two-week annual training period at Ft. Carson, Colo.

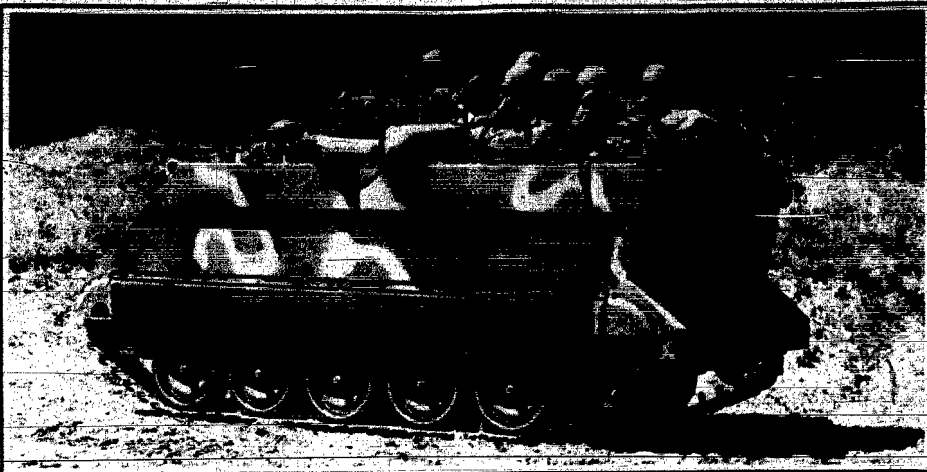

The battalion spent most of its time at active army post "in the field," on courses.

A squad reaction course pits a squad of soldiers against unknown enemy positions. As the track vehicle follows the course, Soldiers must spot these enemy positions, destroy them and continue on to the next. Completion of the course takes about two hours.

Warm and sunny weather in the Colorado mountains provided ideal training conditions. This type of training cannot be conducted in Nebraska because of a lack of available training sites, officials said.

The infantry battalion completed training and returned home July 3.

You get more for your money when you buy at home . . .

It is simple logic. Home area businesses give you the same or equivalent goods at the same or better prices with far less traveling time, cost and highway hazards.

And part of their profit on every deal with you is used to help you pay local taxes and to support all other good and useful community activities.
