

Many tools used to restrict trade

By Cheryl Stubbendieck
Nebraska Farm Bureau

It's generally accepted that world agricultural trade is not free, and that foreign governments do a good job of protecting their own farmers and their own interests.

What many Americans may not know, however, is the variety of means by which foreign governments protect their own farmers and also promote their exports. Gene Bryant, director of exports for the A.E. Staley Manufacturing Company, cites several examples.

For example, Brazil and Argentina use differential export taxes. Exports of raw soybeans are taxed at a higher rate than are soybean products. This tax advantage gives their soybean-crushers an advantage in relation to U.S. producers.

THE EUROPEAN Economic Community, Japan, Taiwan, Korea and other countries make use of duties as a means to protect their own agriculture and industries.

Duties must be paid on imports of foreign products to such an extent that the domestic products have a sizeable if not impossible advantage over U.S. products. This enables countries such as those in the EEC to keep more people on farms than should be — though production is much less efficient, products have a price advantage.

Foreign governments also use import quotas to force unnatural market flows, Bryant says. And restricting raw product exports such as soybeans can provide the domestic crusher with cheaper raw materials than would be available on the world market under normal conditions. Licensing of imports also can create false values for domestic products.

Portugal uses price controls for raw material and finished product values. The Portuguese soybean crusher is assured of a margin on his crushing, and Bryant says, can force expansion of crushing capacity. Capacity can outpace domestic demand, forcing products into export markets at lower than normal values than would occur in free markets.

MEXICO GUARANTEES its oilseed crushers a profit, which allows their industry to purchase sunseed at exorbitant prices. U.S. industry can't compete with these high purchase prices when it has no similar profit guarantees.

Tax exemptions in Brazil allows corporations to insulate their earnings from the sale of soybean oil for export from income tax.

And, Brazilian corporations can deduct losses from authorized futures hedging, but any gains are exempt from taxes — what Bryant calls a "heads I win, tails you lose" situation. Brazil is carrying a record $90 billion debt, but it still provides such other advantages as export subsidies.

Bryant also cites another situation where the U.S. has helped to shoot itself in the foot. The International Monetary Fund, which the U.S. supports to a large degree, has subsidized construction and working capital for such things as the production of palm oil in Malaysia, through 3 percent loans. U.S. producers cannot compete with the local producers whose fixed costs have been artificially reduced.

THE U.S. GOVERNMENT has repeatedly cited its objections to these practices which restrain free trade, but foreign governments tend to discount those objections as being merely a government position.

They do not believe that the U.S. government's objections are also the objections of U.S. farmers. Foreign trade missions which include farmers among their membership — and which have an opportunity to visit with farmers in the host country — have a better chance of presenting these objections.

But Bryant cautions that the U.S. government must do several things as well. It must allow no more erosion in our competitive status through new schemes — such as those of the EEC to impose quotas or duties on by-products.

It must defend our existing rights through all available legal recourse and let other governments know that the U.S. will not turn its back on trade issues.

Finally, it can work with associations and industry to make improved trade tools available to U.S. traders, to fight to regain lost markets.

viewpoint

A free press

Americans enjoy more freedoms than citizens of any other country in the world. One is freedom of the press.

During National Newspaper Week, a few column inches should be devoted to the importance of freedom of the press.

Perhaps Thomas Jefferson termed it best when he said, "Our liberty depends on freedom of the press and that cannot be limited without being lost."

Here are some newspaper facts that point out the importance of newspapers:

★ Every day, more than 108 million Americans — 7 out of 10 adults — read a daily newspaper. Every week 9 out of 10 adults read at least one newspaper.

★ On the average workday, 67 percent of working women read a daily newspaper.

★ U.S. newspapers receive about 57 percent of their newsprint from Canada, about 43 percent from the U.S. and less than one percent from overseas.

★ There are about one million newspaper carriers in the United States.

★ Newspapers remain the number one advertising medium in the United States with 27.3 percent of total advertising revenues.

Sometimes newspapers forget the important role they play in the country's future. And sometimes the citizens of this country take for granted the importance of a free press.

Still, the importance and the free press are there. And as long as they exist, the freedoms of our people will continue to exist.

A free press is democracy's first defense.

High or burned out

Marijuana is a powerful mind-changing drug. It comes from a plant called Cannabis sativa which grows in many parts of the world. A marijuana cigarette or joint is made from dried parts of the plant (except for the main stem and roots).

The word "high" is often used to describe the feelings caused by marijuana. After smoking marijuana, some people become giddy and laugh about things that they would not usually find funny. Others talk a lot or become very quiet. Thinking takes longer and time seems to slow down.

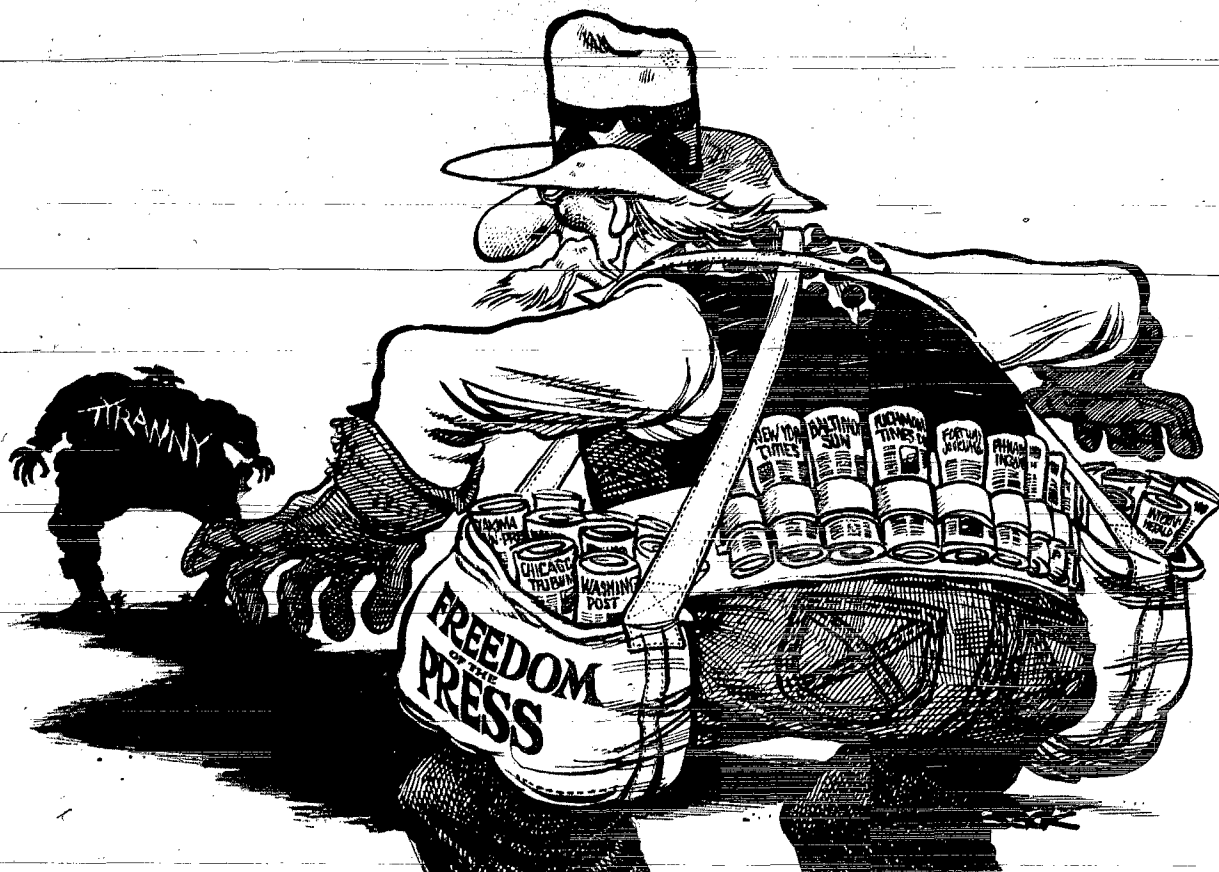

Most users who smoke marijuana experience an increase in heart rate, reddening of the eyes, and dryness in the mouth or throat. The most commonly reported immediate adverse reaction to marijuana use is the "acute panic anxiety reaction."

It is usually described as an exaggeration of normal marijuana effects in which intense fears of losing control and going crazy accompany severe anxiety. The symptoms often disappear in a few hours when the acute drug effects have worn off.

Marijuana makes learning more difficult. The drug temporarily impairs short-term memory and reduces the ability to perform tasks requiring concentration, swift reactions and coordination. Reading, speaking and doing arithmetic are especially more difficult.

People who have smoked marijuana over a long period of time may experience what is known as burnout. They become dull and slow moving. Sometimes they don't know where they are and are unable to even have a conversation with a friend. Physicians don't know yet whether a burnout can return to normal and, if so, how long it takes.

Political dialogue

Property tax lid draws mixed reactions

By Melvin Paul

Nebraska Press Association

Property tax relief recently has been one of the major themes of the Nebraska political dialogue.

The Legislature's Revenue Committee has traveled the state for a series of six public hearings on the issue. Various business and professional organizations have indicated that they'll circulate initiative petitions next year if the 1984 Legislature fails to act.

Held out by some politicians as the ultimate weapon in the battle to contain property taxes is a constitutional lid which sets the maximum annual tax bill at 1.5 percent of the actual value of the real estate.

THE CURRENT statewide average for annual property taxes is about 2.1 percent of actual value.

A recent report by the Nebraska Tax Research Council compiled on behalf of the Nebraska Realtors Association casts some doubt on the effectiveness of such a property tax lid.

It wouldn't necessarily reduce the sum which Nebraskans are required to pay, according to the report. The realtors group is among several associations which have indicated a strong interest in lessening the tax burden on homeowners.

If a 1.5 percent lid were implemented by the voters, county officials might undertake a round of property valuation increases to maximize the amount of revenue available, according to the report.

The lid "could set off a scramble among the various counties to get values up to actual value in order to increase the amount of revenue that could be raised under such a limit."

THE REPORT states: "If the percent of actual value is lowered while the actual value is raised, the tax paid may not be affected to any large amount."

Although the state constitution currently requires that property be assessed at full value, there are indications that it is not. When compared to actual property sales, residential values statewide average 83 percent. Agricultural land values average about 59 percent.

That leaves the counties plenty of leeway in increasing property values to assure that local government revenue isn't capped by artificially low property values.

The lid was one of several property tax relief options examined in the report.

EACH OPTION falls under one of two broad categories: reductions in services by local governments and increases in the amount of revenue available to them. None of the options are without some drawbacks, the report said.

Another proposal for delivering property tax relief which has received much consideration is a massive increase in state aid to local government. In effect, the proposal would "buy" a reduction in property taxes with an increase in state sales and income tax rates.

The research council report also offers some warnings about that approach.

The infusion of additional state aid to local governments doesn't guarantee property tax relief, according to the report. Despite the addition of $40 million to the state aid to schools programs in 1979 Nebraskans still saw their property taxes increase by $25 million in 1980.

As expensive and generally unpopular as the property tax appears to be in Nebraska, they haven't risen as fast as other levies, according to the report.

In a 12 year period ending in 1982, property taxes increased 133 percent. That compares to an increase of 261 percent for state and city sales taxes, 263 percent for the state income tax, 264 percent for the federal income tax and 149 percent for the consumer price index.

Newlyweds home in Ohio following Norfolk wedding

Making their home in Cincinnati, Ohio are Mr. and Mrs. John Russell, who were married in a double ring ceremony Oct. 8 at the First United Methodist Church in Norfolk.

The bride is the former Mona Langenberg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Langenberg of Hoskins. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Rebecca Russell of Georgetown, Ohio.

Two bouquets of mums and carnations decorated the altar of the church for the 4:30 p.m. ceremony, performed by the Rev. Loyd Bliss of Norfolk.

MUSIC FOR the ceremony included "How Great Thou Art" and "All My Love, All My Life," sung by Dave Anderson of Hoskins and accompanied by Mrs. Jayne Schwanke of Norfolk.

Candlelighters Mark Smith of Norfolk and Duane Smith of Wayne also ushered guests into the church, along with LaRue Langenberg of Lincoln.

Honor attendants were Renee Langenberg of Denver and Rick Rosati of Cincinnati.

THE BRIDE was given in marriage by her father and appeared in a floor-length gown of ivory satin, designed with a beaded sculptured neckline and long train.

She wore an ivory veil and carried pink mums with pink rosebuds.

Her attendant wore a daphne taffeta gown in floor length with a double ring overlay. She carried a cascade of pink mums and ribbons.

The men were attired in charcoal gray tuxedos trimmed in black velvet.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Langenberg selected a wine-colored taffeta dress with a sheer overlay.

Seedlings available from commission

The Nebraska Game and Parks Commission is offering free seedlings for planting in the spring of 1984 through the Nebraska Wildlife Habitat Program.

Seedling bundles are available for farmers and ranchers and are intended for use on rural sites only and must be planted at least 200 yards from inhabited dwellings. To receive an application or further information, write to: Habitat, P.O. Box 30370, Lincoln, Neb. 68593.

Longe on All-Tourney team

The Wayne Blue Devils' Karen Longe has been named to the All-Tournament volleyball team by virtue of her play in the South Sioux City Invitational Volleyball Tournament played Oct. 3-4.

"That's quite an honor, especially when you consider she's only a junior," said Wayne coach Mavis Dalton.

The All-Tournament team consisted of eight girls, selected from the tourney's eight teams: Sioux City North, Hartington Cedar Catholic, Sioux City East, Norfolk, Wayne, South Sioux City, Sioux City West and Sioux City Heelan.

Longe scored 16 serving points in the tourney and logged 44 spikes, and 16 aces.

Wayne climbs in ratings

The Wayne Blue Devils' undefeated football team climbed a notch to fourth place in this week's Associated Press Class B football poll. Wayne, now 6-0, remained in the sixth position in the Omaha World-Herald's poll on the heels of its 15-13 victory over West Point Central Catholic in overtime last Saturday night.

The Lincoln Journal lists the Blue Devils in seventh place.

Zeiss, Asay lead Cats

Freshman Diana Asay and sophomore Jill Zeiss continue to lead the Wayne State Wildcats in the weekly CSIC volleyball statistics.

Asay is presently 10th in the conference in blocked points with a 0.70 blocks per game average. Zeiss is eighth in assists with a 3.8 average.

Allen junior high girls rolling

Allen's junior high school girls volleyball teams continued on their winning streaks last week as the 7th graders beat Ponca in two sets, 15-3 15-0 and the eighth grade dumped the Indians 15-4 15-10.

Leading server for the seventh graders was Candace Jones, while Dana Kluber led the eighth grade.

Wayne, Winside eye playoffs

The Wayne Blue Devils and the Winside Wildcats are both eyeing possible berths in the state high school football playoffs.

Wayne is in first place in the Class B point totals with 47 points. Points are awarded and subtracted based on quality of opposition. Sixteen teams will qualify for the playoffs, some as conference champions others via the point totals. Wayne has no conference affiliation.

Winside is presently 12th in the Class D 1 point totals, with 42 1/2 points, but is sitting in first place in the West Division of the Lewis and Clark Conference. The Cats will automatically qualify for the playoffs if they win their conference.

Wayne's foe tomorrow (Friday) night, Fremont Bergan, is 12th in the Class C 1 point totals, with 39 points on the season.

Faculty accomplishments

CONNIE WEBBER, associate professor of music at Wayne State College, sang a repeat performance of her faculty recital, with Grand Island baritone Gary Wilhelm at the Grand Island Senior High School on Sept. 27. Their duet recital was videotaped by Lincoln TV station KOLN-KGIN, and selections from their recital will be aired at various times on the Morning Show, Channel 10 and 11, from 6 to 7 a.m. The performers were interviewed after the recital, and each duet aired on TV will be introduced with excerpts from the interview. The first appearance was Monday, Oct. 3.

DR. ALAN LUPACK, adjunct instructor at Wayne State College, has published a review of "Evenings on Lake Ontario," a volume of poems by Canadian poet Wacław Iwaniuk, in the latest issue of "The Polish Review."

DR. GENE BIGELOW, associate professor of education at Wayne State College, has been invited to participate in the 1983 Nebraska State Education Association Convention, to be held in Omaha on Oct. 27-28. Dr. Bigelow will present a two-part seminar, entitled "Sharpening Your Listening and Speaking Skills." The presentation is aimed at enhancing leadership and public relation skills among professional educators and community leaders.

Law books donated

DISTRICT JUDGE MERRIT C. Warren, right, of the ninth judicial district, and Dr. Don Whisenhunt, Wayne State College vice president, look over a collection of law books donated to the college by Mr. and Mrs. Warren of Creighton. A total of 577 volumes of law books from the personal library of Judge Warren will be transferred to the U.S. Conn Library on the Wayne State campus. The volumes consist of the Northwestern Report, volumes 25 through 300, and the Northwestern 2nd reports, volumes 1 through 301.

CLEP association formed to assist placement of students

Placement directors from 11 Nebraska public and private colleges met recently in Lincoln to form a new organization called CPAN (College Placement Association of Nebraska). Primary purpose of the association is to foster cooperation among college placement offices responsible for non-teacher education graduates, and to develop career planning and job search activities for students pursuing non-teacher education degrees.

A spokesman for the group said that in recognizing that hiring practices are changing and that fewer on-campus recruiters are available, a concerted, cooperative effort is needed to assist the placement of students in business and industry.

ONE OF THE first activities of the newly formed group involves the planning of two cooperative career fairs.

The first will be held at Kearney State College on Nov. 14. Another is planned April 5 in Omaha.

The fairs will provide the opportunity for employers to visit with a large number of students from a variety of colleges at one site, and, hopefully, allow students to make contact with a broad spectrum of business and industry representatives.

DURING THE first official meeting, the following officers were elected for the 1983-84 school year: Bob Lohrberg, Wayne State, president; Jackie Rosenlof, Kearney State, vice president; and Dwight German, Peru State, secretary-treasurer.

Nebraska colleges participating in CPAN include Chadron State, College of St. Mary, Concordia, Dana, Hastings, Kearney State, Midland, Nebraska Wesleyan, Northeast Technical Community College, Peru State and Wayne State.

A spokesman for CPAN said other institutions have stated an interest and are considering participation.

Writing workshop set at WSC

A one-day humanities grant-writing workshop is being planned at Wayne State College and two other colleges in the state. The workshop at Wayne State is scheduled on Nov. 15. Other workshops are planned Nov. 9 at Mid Plains Community College and Nov. 11 at Chadron State College.

Financial assistance program

A brown bag lunch and program for non-traditional students is slated today (Thursday) on the Wayne State College campus. The session, entitled "Financial Assistance," begins at noon in the senate room in the lower level of the Student Center.

Showing 'The Blue Angel'

The humanities division at Wayne State College will be showing a 1930 German black and white film, entitled "The Blue Angel," on Monday, Oct. 17.

The film will be shown in the Humanities Building on the college campus, room 319, at 2 p.m. The public is invited.

The film is directed by Joseph Von Sternberg and stars Emil Jannings and Marlene Dietrich. Sternberg and Dietrich worked together for the first time in this classic story of a stuffy professor who is awakened and destroyed by his love for a cabaret entertainer.

Audubon Wildlife film series at Wayne State

The Wayne State College Biology Club and the Northeast Nebraska Audubon Society are again offering the Audubon Wildlife Film Series on Wayne State's campus.

This year's series will feature four films, including Tom Diez's "Adventures in Penn's Woods" and "Northwest Adventures" on Nov. 8; Arthur C. Twomey's "Saguaro Country" on March 20, and John Panos' "Okavango" on Feb. 15.

Each of the three programs featured this year will feature the professional cinematographer/naturalist who produced the film.

EACH OF the Audubon Wildlife Film Series offerings will begin at 8 p.m. in Wayne State's Ramsey Theatre, located in the Val Peterson Fine Arts Center.

Single tickets are on sale for $3.50, or season tickets may be purchased for $10. Student rates are $2 for single tickets or $5 for season tickets.

Tickets may be obtained at the door or purchased in advance by contacting Jewell Schock, Wayne State College, Wayne, Neb., 68787.

TOM DIEZ'S two 40-minute films explore entirely different regions.

"Northwest Adventures" is a trek through the remote areas of British Columbia, Alberta, and the Yukon, and includes bear fish in clear, salmon packed streams, caribou on the vast tundra, and otters floating on the Bering Sea.

"Adventures in Penn's Woods" penetrates the more civilized hills of Pennsylvania, revealing the secrets of the honeybee, hawk, eagle, deer, and trout fisherman.

BELYING the popular myth that the desert is dusty and deserted, Arthur Twomey presents a look at the varied flora and fauna of the Sonoran Desert.

During the course of a year, more than 300 species of plants send out new shoots — from the tiny desert wildflowers that spend most of their lives as seeds, to the giant saguaro cactus.

Wildlife activity includes the macabre dance of the desert iguana, and hummingbirds pollinating flowers against a background of brilliant desert blossoms.

THE OKAVANGO Delta is a mixture of wetlands, grasslands and plains situated in the northern reaches of the Kalahari Desert in Botswana, Africa.

Teeming with such wildlife as lion, lechwe, hippo, zebra, buffalo, giraffe, elephant and crocodile, in addition to some 500 species of birds, this 5,600 square mile expanse has been described as "Africa's Last Eden."

Faculty profile

Dr. Robert Johnson, professor of communication arts, known to all as Dr. Bob, has taught at Wayne State College for 24 years, which is his way of proving that he likes Wayne State.

"If I didn't like this institution, I wouldn't have stayed around this long," he said.

Dr. Bob is originally from Mount Harris, Colo. He received his bachelor of arts degree in drama from Brigham Young University in 1942.

After serving in World War II, Dr. Bob became associated with the American Theatre Wing and received a diploma for acting.

He then attended Columbia University and completed his master's program in general speech in 1950. In 1963, he received his Ph.D. in communication methodology from Denver University.

DR. BOB is impressed with Wayne State College. "There's a definite place for this size of institution. I think WSC has some very special things to offer its undergraduate students. I'm im-

Walking for CROP

A CROP WALK SPONSORED by the Wayne Ministerial Association Sunday afternoon drew 145 human participants and one family dog. Chairmen Grace and Norman Melton said that while the dog lasted only four miles, 105 of the walkers completed the entire 10-mile course. Ages of those completing the course ranged from eight years to senior citizens, and included three joggers. Pat Gross, Pat Finn and John Witkowski, who completed the course in one hour and 21 minutes. Meltons said a total of 1,173 miles were walked and $3,157.34 was contributed by 1,101 pledgers. Funds raised from Sunday's walk will go towards helping the world's hungry.

Army installs computer systems in many local recruiting stations

The market of 17.21 year old male prospects for the Army will shrink significantly in many areas across the United States through 1990 according to SFC Larry Cox, station commander.

In addition, the competition from colleges and industry will require that Army recruiters make the most efficient presentations to the high quality segment of the available market to meet the needs of an all-volunteer force.

Toward this end the United State Army Recruiting Command has installed a small computer system that combines state of the art capabilities of desk top microprocessors with laser video disk technology. The system is the Joint Optical Information Network, better known as JOIN.

THE JOIN SYSTEM is a video computer system that features a microprocessor desk top computer with dual drive floppy disks (512 kilo-bytes of data), a laser video disk player with each disk containing approximately 60 minutes (30 minutes to a side) of video segments, a dot matrix printer to prepare forms, letters and summary sheet, plus a communications modem to allow data exchange between systems. A of these components are mounted in a hardwood locking cabinet.

JOIN will assist the Army Recruiter in giving prospective enlistees a more accurate picture of what the Army is really like. Sergeant Cox can select from more than 70 video segments on such topics as education programs, travel opportunities, benefits of Army life and various enlistment options as well as video responses to such common question as "What's the Army really like?", "What's going to happen to me in basic training?", "Do I have to leave right away?", and "Do I have to go overseas?"

The prospect will be able to take a computer adaptive screen test right in the recruiting station that will quickly and accurately predict area aptitude scores that will help him select an appropriate job.

A typical interview, start to finish with no interruptions, should take 45 minutes to an hour. During the interview Sergeant Cox will be able to focus the prospect on one of 14 skill clusters such as "electronics", "administration", "aviation", or "law enforcement".

THE ARMY guidance counselor at the Military Entrance Processing Station will use the system to help the prospect select a specific Military Occupational Specialty (MOS) by displaying any of 300 video segments depicting some 335 Army jobs.

The JOIN System was developed during a period of continuing pressure to attract and enlist highly qualified young people into the Army and to do so with absolute integrity in building expectations as to Army life and Army opportunities.

The youth of the 80's are video oriented and keenly aware of the advances being made in automation. JOIN is the automated answer for the Army, the only service to institute a computer system in its recruiting program at this time.

JOIN was tested last summer in the Baltimore/Washington and Philadelphia District Recruiting Areas. The manufacturer, C. J. Incorporated, provided 65 systems that were installed in research and development facilities as well as in 55 recruiting stations and two Military Entrance Processing Stations within the test area.

In October 1982, the Army began installing the systems in Army recruiting stations across the nation at a rate of 140 systems a month. Total installation should be completed by 1984.

The JOIN System in the Norfolk Recruiting Station was installed last month.

Kingsfield

In addition to co-writing "War of the Worlds" with Orson Welles, he wrote "Citizen Kane" with Herman Mankiewicz, created the Voice of America news and feature programs, produced some 25 Hollywood movies including "Julius Caesar" and "Executive Suite"; served as artistic director of the American Shakespeare Festival at Stratford, Conn.; won three Emmy awards for the experimental TV dramas "The Seven Lively Arts" and "Playhouse 90"; and was appointed head of the drama division of Julliard, a position he held for 10 years, simultaneously with the artistic directorship of The Acting Company.

RECENT PROJECTS include filming of an NBC miniseries entitled "A.D." (about the birth of the Christian church) that will air in the spring.

Houseman's announcement of the filming of 12 new episodes for "The Paper Chase" television series, which now appears on the cable network Showtime, drew a rapturous applause from the nearly 1,000 persons gathered to hear him Tuesday night.

When asked if he had ever considered having Orson Welles appear as a guest on "The Paper Chase," Houseman replied, "It's an extraordinarily interesting idea, but not one that I think will have any consequences."

School board

Haun announced to the board that an external visitation team, comprised of 31 persons outside the school district, will visit the school on Nov. 9 and 10.

The team's visit will culminate self evaluation of the school which is conducted every seven years. The team will spend time in the classrooms and review school curriculum, facilities, board policies, etc.

BEFORE ADJOURNING, President Keidel appointed Cap Peterson to serve on the Nebraska Association of School Boards legislative network.

Board members met again Tuesday morning with the architect for the high school's new vocational shop addition.

After inspecting the site, the board was given approval by the architect to begin moving students and equipment into the addition.

Haun said some items are yet to be completed on the new addition before final payment is approved.

Next meeting of the board of education will be Nov. 8 at 3 p.m.

Little learners

LITTLE LEAGUE football players learn lots about the sport at a young age. Players have been seeing plenty of action on Tuesday and Thursday nights through the Wayne Recreation Department's program at the city ball park. Parents and friends have turned out to watch the two local teams compete in the baseball park outfield. These photos depict the little leaguers going head-to-head for a night's game. The program has been progressing well throughout the past month.

card of thanks

THE FAMILY OF Meta Nieman wishes to thank our relatives and friends for the many memorials, cards and flowers sent to us and for all the food that was brought in when our mother passed away. We wish to extend a special thank you to Pastor Hafemann for his many visits to our mother's bedside and for his comforting words to all of us. A special thank you is given to St. Paul's Ladies Aid for caring for our needs on the day of mother's funeral. We, the family, appreciated all the courtesies extended to us very much. God's blessings to all of you. Mr. and Mrs. Otto Carstens and family, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Miller and family. o13

A SINCERE THANK YOU to all my relatives and friends in remembering me with prayers, visits, lovely flowers, gifts, cards, letters and telephone calls while I was in the St. Luke's Hospital and while staying with my family in Vermillion, S.D. and at home. A special thank you to my family, to my sister Mildred and Lorree for caring for my things while I was gone. A special thank you to Pastor Hafemann and Dan Hansen for their prayers and visits while I was in the hospital. With love and appreciation. May God bless you all. Edna Dangberg. o13

WE WISH TO thank everyone for their cards, flowers and thoughts in our time of grief. We also want to thank the staff at the Wayne Care Center and Providence Medical Center, for their care of Glenn these past months. A special thank you to Sister Gertrude and Rev. Carpenter for their kind words and prayers. Mae Wade, Glenna Armitage, Greg Armitage and boys, Virginia and Barl Armitage and Ree, Leo and Cathy Vondrak and Aaron. o13

WE WISH TO thank all our friends and relatives for making our 50th anniversary so special. Many thanks for cards, gifts and flowers. Thanks to Pastor Vogel for his message and prayer. Also to the Ladies Aid for their help, and to the Niemans for catering the dinner. God bless all of you. Roy and Rose Langemeier. o13

GAYLEN AND I wish to express our sincere thanks to our friends and relatives for the visits, cards and many other acts of kindness during my recent stay in the hospital and since returning home. Bless each of you. Carol Jackson. o13

WORDS CANNOT express our heartfelt thanks to all of you for your prayers, cards, memorial gifts, visits and food brought to our homes. Your expressions of love for Ron and all your acts of thoughtfulness and consolation to each of us at this time of bereavement for our loved one, Ron. May God richly bless each and everyone of you. Earl and Hazel Peterson, Loren and Dorothy Park, Dean and Norma Rickett, Tom and Mary Park, Joe and Ardi Schmidt and families, Diann Lake and boys. o13

Your Auto-Owners agent wants you to get the policy that's right for you.

Even if it isn't from Auto-Owners

When you go to an insurance agent who represents only one company, he only has one company's policies to offer you. But an independent agent represents several companies.

So if one company's insurance isn't right in price or coverage he'll tell you. He knows another one of his companies is.

But the one-company agent? Do you think he'd tell you? So talk to your independent Auto-Owners agent. There's no telling how much he can help you.
