Fire safety of courthouse is causing a stir

By Randy Hascall

Fire safety at the Wayne County Courthouse is a burning issue for the county commissioners and the state fire marshal's office.

The issue won't be resolved at least until an appeals hearing is held. No date has yet been set for the hearing.

In a fire marshal's order stemming from an October inspection, numerous deficiencies in fire safety were listed. The commissioners appealed that order. An appeals court will now review the matter.

ADDRESSING THE commissioners at their regular meeting Tuesday morning, Deputy Fire Marshal Curly McDonald read a letter from Fire Marshal Architect Charles Zimmerman.

Zimmerman inspected the courthouse Monday under a requirement by state statute that a licensed architect make an inspection when an appeal is made.

"The basic inherent fire safety problem within a building of this construction type is the lack of firestopping and fire or smoke containment within the building," Zimmerman stated in his letter.

"One single fire or emergency within the building can spread throughout the premises in a short period of time thus rendering evacuation of the occupants difficult if not impossible."

Zimmerman stated in his letter that he found the fire marshal's orders consistent with state fire marshal regulations and policy.

"THE HIGHEST priority of fire safety compliance should be placed on providing proper exiting from the building. An outside fire stair serving the courtroom is a justifiable requirement to fulfill this requirement," Zimmerman wrote, concerning the second floor.

"Although aesthetic appearance may be a concern, an outside stair should be able to be accomplished without too much visual distraction. Exiting from the lower level and first floor can be accomplished by using existing unused routes."

The order issued by the fire marshal's office listed a fire escape from the second floor as a major necessity.

It also called for replacement of all hollow-core doors opening from offices into lobbies and corridors, and removal of glass transoms above doorways.

MORE THAN 20 doors would need to be replaced under the fire marshal's order. However, according to Zimmerman's letter, those doors would not have to be replaced if a full fire detection system is installed in the courthouse.

The detection system would have to include an early warning system composed of an approved fire alarm and detection system.

Ionization devices located in hallways and common areas, heat detection devices in hazard areas, and manual pull stations all interconnected to a fire alarm system would give an early warning of an emergency, Zimmerman's letter stated.

ZIMMERMAN SAID another high priority is that of containment of hazard areas.

"The boiler room must be separated from the remaining portions of the building as this is the most hazardous location," he wrote. "Containment or separation of offices from corridors is also an important requirement that should be addressed."

If the commissioners' appeal is overturned, Wayne County will be required to make some corrections on the courthouse, McDonald said.

The State Board of Appeals will notify the commissioners of a hearing date.

MCDONALD TOLD the commissioners that the fire marshal's office recommends a stairway fire escape made completely of metal.

Commissioner Gerald Pospishil pointed out that District Judge Merrill Warren favors a spiral slide type of fire escape. "We're trying to do away with that style,"

McDonald said, pointing out possible hazards. He said ice could form at the bottom of the slide; the metal doors could be blocked shut at the bottom; or there could be glass in the chute.

"Why haven't you gotten on the city yet?" Commissioner Merlin Beiermann asked, pointing out that Wayne's city hall has no fire escape from its upper floors.

"We haven't received any complaint yet," McDonald replied.

"You've got one from me," Beiermann said in response.

"Write a letter to the fire marshal's office," McDonald said. "That's all it takes."

BEIERMANN SAID he also favored a "slippery slide" style of fire escape, pointing out that he feels it is best because some people are scared of heights and would be afraid to go down a stairway.

Pospishil asked McDonald what type of fire escapes Wayne State College has and McDonald replied that the college has various kinds, including some types that he did not recommend.

"I'm going to drive through the college and see what they have," Pospishil said.

"If one life was lost in here, what is the value of that one life?" asked McDonald.

"In less than five minutes the courthouse will be cleared out if there's a fire," Pospishil said.

"If there is a fire in the staircase, where do you go?" questioned McDonald.

DISCUSSING THE fire detection system in the courthouse, Beiermann asked McDonald if the fire marshal's office approves of the present detection system.

McDonald replied that the office does not approve of the system.

Beiermann then asked why the fire marshal's office lets that type of system be sold.

"We will never recommend or approve them," McDonald said, indicating that the fire marshal's office didn't have the authority to prevent the sale of that type of system.

Beiermann and Pospishil questioned the recommendations presented by the architect (Zimmerman) in his letter.

BEIERMANN SAID he wasn't too pleased with the architect's past recommendations for the Region IV building in Wayne. He said the architect had the doors opening to the inside instead of the outside.

Pospishil indicated that if the architect is licensed for fire control, he better know the fire code.

"Rules and regulations are not consistent; that's the problem," Pospishil said.

The commissioners pointed to two-story homes, adding that no fire escapes are required there.

"Public buildings are where I'm concerned. That's my jurisdiction," McDonald said.

"The worst part of my job is picking up a charred body. I can't say I've saved a life but I hope I have. Statistics won't prove it."

THE RECENT fire marshal's order called for periodic testing of fire extinguishers, replacement of loose and missing plaster throughout the building, installation of additional electrical outlets in offices, and installation of illuminated exit signs and directional exit signs.

The county is moving ahead with some of the improvements but will await the outcome of the appeals hearing before making a decision on the major proposals.

In the commissioners' appeal, they contend that parts of the order are not necessary for the safety and welfare of persons using the courthouse premises.

They pointed out that full compliance would destroy the historic quality of the courthouse which has been listed on the National Register of Historic Places.

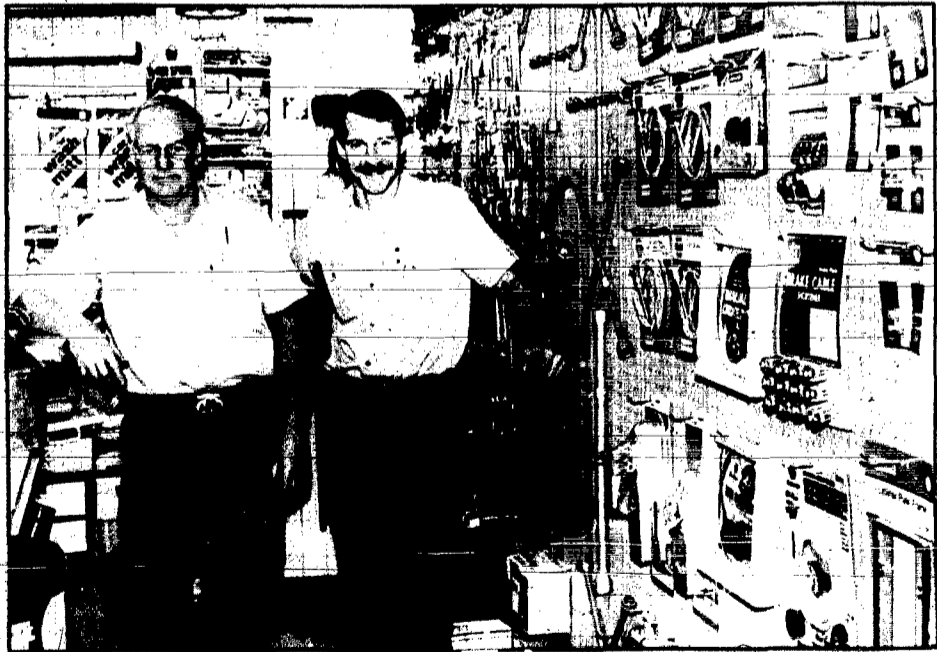

McDonald said the fire marshal's order was issued because the county didn't comply with a 1980 order which pointed out deficiencies.

He said that order was not as extensive and added that some political pressure was put on the fire marshal's office.

"The deputies were told to back off then. Now, we won't back down," he added.

THE WAYNE County Courthouse is under question for fire safety.

RED AND LARRY Carr are ready for business at their new NAPA store.

Wayne gets a new parts store

A large inventory of parts and speedy delivery of out-of-stock parts are two things being stressed by Wayne's third automotive parts store.

The store, a new National Automotive Parts Association (NAPA) store, has been set up at Red Carr Implement, located north of Wayne on Highway 15.

A crew of 25 workers began selling up shelves on Monday and had the store open for business by Wednesday.

RED CARR is owner of the business. His son Larry and wife Norma will run the business.

Included in the inventory will be parts for all makes of tractors, cars, trucks, irrigation systems, lawn mowers, snowmobiles and other equipment.

Joe Egler of Genuine Parts, an Omaha-based distribution center which stocked the store, said he believes the NAPA store will have the largest inventory of parts in Wayne.

"A farmer will be able to get almost anything. There is very little a person can walk in and not get," he said.

"If there is something they don't have, it can be ordered before 5 p.m. and they'll have it before 11 p.m. that same night. A truck will come to the store every day Monday through Friday."

EGLER SAID Wayne is one of the few towns in Nebraska with only two parts stores. He said a survey conducted in Wayne showed that the community is quite open to another parts store.

"We're looking forward to coming to town. We think the store will add something to this community," he added. "It'll be top notch service at good prices."

The new business has between 4,000 and 5,000 square feet of storage space for parts, according to Egler.

Helping smokers kick the habit

Don't be surprised if you find your friend hiding in the coal closet, sneaking a puff or two of a cigarette sometime today (Thursday).

Today is the seventh annual Great American Smokeout, sponsored by the American Cancer Society. Smokers are urged to give up cigarettes, at least for the day.

Roger Nelson, Wayne's smokeout chairman, said materials to help people quit smoking are available at First National Bank, State National Bank and Trust Company, and Professional Food Management at Wayne State College.

NELSON SAID new findings released by the American Cancer Society show that the cold turkey approach to quitting is the most successful.

Each year, some local smokers are monitored throughout the day to see if they can give up the habit. This year's volunteers are Pat Wolf of Pat's Beauty Salon and Bev Sturm of Triangle Finance.

Diane Wachholtz, a Wayne State College student and member of the WSC volleyball team, will conduct a telephone survey campaign in connection with the smokeout, on Thursday morning.

The theme of this year's smokeout is "Adopt a friend who smokes." Helping a friend to get through the day might help him to quit forever, said Larry Hagman, national chairman of the smokeout.

SMOKERS WHO have quit cigarettes on the Great American Smokeout Day reached about 4 1/2 million, with a sizeable percentage still off them as much as 10 days later, the American Cancer Society reported.

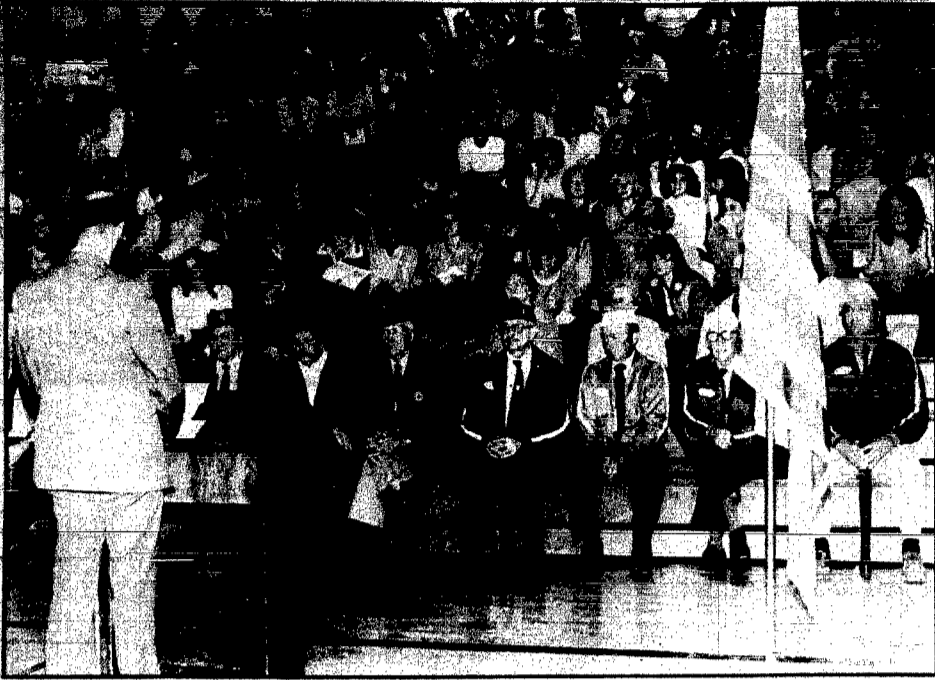

The following statistics were released by the society: —Workers who smoke lose 10 to 15 percent higher job absentee rate.

—In America, smokers spend $1.5 billion more days in bed and $1 billion more days off the job than non-smokers.

—Smokers have nearly twice as many accidents on the job as non-smokers have.

BEV STURM breaks a cigarette and hopes to break the habit.

Attitude changing on corporate tax law

By Melvin Paul
Nebraska Press Association
 When the U.S. Supreme Court last January struck down a Tennessee law which taxes bank earnings, Nebraska state officials thought the decision would nullify a portion of the corporate tax law here.
 Almost every state legislator, executive branch official and tax expert who studied the case concluded that the Nebraska corporate franchise tax law is a mirror image of the deficient Tennessee law.
 Accountants counseled their clients to seek refunds from the state Department of Revenue for back taxes paid under the apparently deficient law.

REFUND CLAIMS quickly mounted to $14 million, and some say they could still grow to $30 million.

Despite a clear consensus that the Nebraska law was mortally flawed, state officials—including Tax Commissioner Donna Karnes, Revenue Committee Chairman Carl Carsten of Avoca and Attorney General Paul Douglas—decided to set up a state Supreme Court test on the issue before paying the refunds.

Douglas sued Karnes, alleging on the basis of the Tennessee decision that the Nebraska corporate franchise tax law taxes certain corporate earnings contrary to federal law.

State officials clearly went to court with a defeatist attitude. The state Board of Equalization last June even set state tax rates assuming that the refunds would have to be paid out this year.

THE PREVAILING attitude seems to have turned around lately, and many who are familiar with the situation are saying the chances for the state not having to refund the money are good.

The reason for the change is a brief filed on behalf of Karnes by Lincoln attorney David Ludtke. The brief makes several heretofore-ignored distinctions between the Nebraska and Tennessee tax laws. Tax technicians rate it highly.

Officials are saying now that state Supreme Court could rule either way on the state's liability for corporate franchise tax refunds; the case will be argued next month.

MEMBERS OF the coalition seeking a pay raise for state senators are mounting a petition campaign during November which they hope will produce most of the 54,790 signatures needed to place the issue on the 1984 general election ballot.

The biggest single effort during the month, said Coalition for Fair Compensation Chairman Francis Moul of Syracuse, was last week when thousands of teachers, school administrators, school board members and parents gathered signatures door-to-door across the state.

Other groups planning efforts to gather signatures during the month include the state Democratic and Republican parties, Nebraska New Car and Truck Dealers Association, the League of Women Voters, the Nebraska Association of Public Employees, the Nebraska State AFL-CIO, Nebraska Farmers Union and the Nebraska Association of County Officials.

The coalition, which includes about 30 groups, has until next summer to complete petitions, but Moul said he wants to get the tax out of the way early to concentrate on selling the proposal on voters.

The proposed constitutional amendment being promoted by the coalition would set legislative pay at $900 monthly, up from the current $400 monthly. The amendment would also provide reimbursement for one round-trip weekly between Lincoln and a senator's district. Currently, senators are paid for only one round-trip session.

Where were the flags?

Where have all the flags gone? That was the question many people were asking Friday when they drove through Wayne or shopped downtown.

It was Veterans' Day, one of the most important national holidays. Yet, there were no flags displayed on Main Street, breaking the usual tradition of celebrating holidays in Wayne.

The Wayne Herald received phone calls and letters regarding the absence of flags. We could only agree with the complaints.

It was a disappointment. Over the centuries, many lives were lost to defend our country and stand up for freedoms in our country and the rest of the world.

Too often we forget that our ancestors gave their lives to insure that our lives are safe and free.

Too often we just forget the veteran. Displaying flags in memory of those who served our country and those who died while serving our country is a very small gesture. But a very important one.

Let's hope our veterans are never forgotten again.

Strengthening the chains

By Richard Leshar
U.S. Chamber of Commerce
 Amending the Constitution of the United States of America is a long and difficult process. Those who framed our Constitution ensured that by requiring two thirds of both the House of Representatives and the Senate and three fourths of the state legislatures to approve any new amendment.
 The Constitution, then, is not to be changed without serious consideration and serious need. Indeed, in the almost 200 years since the Constitution was written in 1787, it has been amended only 26 times—the first 10 amendments composing our Bill of Rights.
 The Constitution ensures our liberties and restrains the power of the federal government. It guarantees our freedom of religion, freedom of speech and the right to free elections. Alexis de Tocqueville, writing in "Democracy in America" in 1835, observed that the Constitution "forms one of the most powerful barriers that have ever been devised against the tyranny of political assemblies."
 IF OUR CONSTITUTION serves to chain down the aspirations of the central government and keep its powers limited and the people free, I fear that the chain has loosened in recent years.

Before the 1930s, deficit spending and the national debt were perceived as evils to be avoided at all costs, and what debt did occur generally came during periods of war and was reduced in times of peace. With the advent of Keynesian economic thought, however, deficit spending was presented to the American people as a sound and beneficial policy.
 Such deficit spending, we were told, would create economic growth. And as there was no constitutional prohibition, the deficits came hard and fast—in war and in peace—and the national debt swelled to more than $1.3 trillion.
 The deficit spending came about as a result of the government's insatiable appetite for more and more tax dollars. The philosophy of "tax, tax, tax, spend, spend, elect, elect, elect" became ingrained in too many of our nation's leaders. Government spending was prized, not to fulfill some national need, such as defense, but as means of attracting the political loyalties of voters.

JAMES MADISON, our nation's fourth president and one of the principle authors of the "Federalist Papers," had hoped that competing constituencies, or factions, as he called them, would compete against each other in the body politic, much as our three branches of government watch each other to ensure that no one institution gains too much power.

 What Madison did not foresee was that these special interest groups might combine forces to exact tribute from the taxpayer. Thus we see spending bills passed by Congress that include "goodies" for a variety of interest groups.
 Congress does not vote on the merits of building a particular dam or bridge, but rather votes on a package that includes enough dams and bridges in enough states and congressional districts to ensure passage. The president must either veto the entire bill, which might include projects of true value, or allow the entire bill to be enacted.
 I submit that the resulting runaway spending and mounting national debt are serious enough matters to warrant constitutional change. It is clear that Congress is unable to restrain its spending without such safeguards.
TWO AMENDMENTS are presently before Congress that deserve the support of the American taxpayer. The first, a balanced budget spending limit amendment, would require both a balanced budget each year with a provision for emergencies, and also limit the growth of government spending to the growth of the economy.

 Already 32 states have called on Congress to enact a balanced budget amendment or convene a constitutional convention limited to drafting such an amendment.
 Virtually every state requires a balanced budget for itself and state legislative support is joined by popular support, which national polls place as high as 80 percent for the amendment.
 The second amendment I recommend is the line item veto, which would allow the president to veto part of a bill and eliminate the all-or-nothing dilemma now posed. Already 42 state governments have such a line item veto for their governors.
 And presidents dating back to Ulysses S. Grant have called for such an amendment. (It is interesting to note that the Confederate Constitution recognized the problem and included a line item veto.)
 If we as a nation are to come to grips with federal spending growth and mounting deficits, we must now strengthen our Constitution with the addition of both these constitutional amendments.

Hospital auxiliary thankful

To the editor:
 We wish to take this opportunity to express our most sincere appreciation to the people of Wayne and the surrounding communities for their full support and dedication to the Wayne Community Hospital Auxiliary Bazaar.

We wish to extend our most heartfelt THANKS to Mayor Wayne Marsh for proclaiming the month of November as Wayne Community Hospital Auxiliary month; to Sav-Mor Drugs—State, National Bank, HomeTown, IGA, Bill's GW and Gillette Dairy for donating various dry goods and grocery items; to The Wayne Herald, Morning Shopper, Chamber Gram and KTCH for their excellent publicity; to LeRoy Simpson, Boy Scout troop leader and the Boy Scouts for donating their time and services; and to all those who donated towards the special memberships, honorary ($25), sustaining ($50), and life ($100).

We are very grateful to our faithful dedicated members for donating their countless hours of their time, talents and monies throughout the year and welcome all new members who recently joined the auxiliary. The bazaar was a huge success because of the outstanding cooperation of everyone.

The approximate total amount of the proceeds was $3,900. The proceeds will go towards helping to pay for the remaining balance of $5,276.93 for two new heart monitors, a central station, and two portable telemetry units at Providence Medical Center. The total cost was $22,241.93. May God reward each and everyone with His blessings and love.

 We would like to congratulate the Wayne Blue Devils on their great success in football! Lonnie Erhardt and assistants did a super job with some talented young men.
 As out of town fans, we really appreciated the excellent play by play coverage of Wayne's FM station.
 Eagerly anticipating next fall.
 Your West Point fans.

No excuses for no flags

To the editor:
 I am sure that those in charge will have an excuse for not putting out the flags on Veterans' Day, but as far as I'm concerned there is no excuse.

The men who lost their lives, or have lived in pain for years gave no excuse when they were asked to serve.

Hopefully those young men whose turn it is to serve now understand and will forgive. We may need their help and protection some day.

What an example to set for our young people.
 I hope that parents can explain to their children why their city forgot. I can not.
 Sandra Weander
 P.S. To Mrs. Weander's letter:
 We drove from Ainsworth to Wayne on Veterans' Day and really enjoyed all the flags in every town along the way. Then what a shock, no flags in Wayne, a much bigger town than all the others.
 Harold and Daisy Edwards

Just another paid holiday?

To the editor:
 We have a question to ask the city of Wayne. Are chicken day, band day and homecomings more important than Veterans' Day?

The days mentioned are the days that the city had the welcome flags and the American flags waving. Veterans' Day came with the American flag waving on Main Street. Even the V.F.W. forgot to put the American flag out.

What do the young people who are serving our country now think when they see how we honor our veterans?

Why should they want to serve when the people could care less as long as somebody else does their dirty work and they are the city of Wayne can be proud of such a good example.
 Rob and Mary Tays

P.S. All it means is another paid holiday.

cheap seats by kevin o'hlanon

Football in the ionosphere
When I ordered tickets for last Sunday's football game between the Kansas City Chiefs and the Cincinnati Bengals back in August, the lady on the phone told me the seats were on the 45-yard line. She didn't lie. But she failed to tell me that they were 10 rows from the top of the stadium. If you have ever been to K.C.'s Arrowhead Stadium, you know how high that is. If you haven't, study the cartoon on the "Cheap Seats" column here — that's similar to the view of the field from that height.

Sitting that high up in the stadium sort of brings the high-altitude fans together. "Nose bleed" and "thin air" jokes abound.

Gotta have peanuts
I attended the game with an entourage of former college buddies, Rick Poore, Dave Egr and Big Giant Dumb Stupid Larry (of former "Cheap Seats" fame.) Rick, the consummate Chicago Cubs baseball fan, came as more of a courtesy to me than anything. He lives and dies with the Cubs. He has died many deaths over the years. Rick's main concern Sunday was finding a peanut vendor to satisfy his goober pea addiction which he acquired at Wrigley Field.

Unfortunately for Rick, and much to our teasing delight, one could not be found. There were beer vendors, pretzel vendors, nacho and hot dog vendors, but no peanut men to be seen. "At least at Wrigley Field they have plenty of peanut vendors," Rick lamented.

Weird guys
With nothing better to do, Rick decided to become a vocal Chiefs' fan, if for no other reason than to annoy the large contingent of "Northern Kentucky Bengal Boosters" sitting a few rows away. These guys are to the Bengals what Rick is to the Cubs.

Most of their faces were painted with orange and black Bengal stripes. One guy was even wearing a Cincinnati helmet.

Rick, who stands all of 5-8, immediately started picking on the leader of the group — a huge man wearing a hat with a toy koala bear on top of it (don't ask me.)

After every pro Cincinnati cheer, Rick would yell something like, "That's pretty big talk for a fat man with a bear on his head!"

I think a lot of Rick's unabated valor was based upon the presence of Big Giant (etc.) Larry, who stands 6-5 and tips the old Toledo at about 285 pounds. ("I weigh three spins on the scale!" is Larry's usual reply to queries about his bulk.)

Blimps' eye view
With Rick kept busy annoying the Bengal fans, Ernie, Larry and I settled in to watch the game. If nothing else, the high seats afford a great vantage point for watching pass plays develop — even if we couldn't see the ball.

We hadn't the foresight to bring along binoculars, so we had to wait for the rest of the crowd's reaction and the referee's signal before we could tell if a pass was complete or not.

As a matter of fact, we were so high up that it was impossible to tell just how gorgeous the Chiefletes cheerleaders were, let alone if they were girls or not.

What I didn't like was being at eye level with the giant television screen atop the east stadium. The device is great for watching instant replays, but in the interim, the fans are inundated with a constant barrage of television commercials. Geez! You just can't escape Madison Avenue.

Too nice
Arrowhead is a nice stadium — almost too nice. Everything is so "plastic" that you feel afraid you might break something. I was even reluctant to spit on the floor for fear of being handed a paper towel by the Neatness Police.

Give me good old Memorial Stadium in Lincoln anytime. That place has its share of crumbles and cracks, but oozes with gridiron history and character.

Legume fix
Much to Rick's delight, one brave peanut vendor eventually climbed high enough and Rick bought two bags at $1.25 apiece.

Upon inspection of the contents, we discovered that each bag contained approximately 75 peanuts. Somebody is making a nice profit there.

By the way, the Chiefs won the game, 20-15.

A TIRED Don Pearson of Pender crosses the finish line of the five-mile course with a time of 30:37 and a seventh-place finish.

Trotters weather weather

Don't tell Tom Arnold that last Saturday's weather was for the birds — the Schuyler native led the pack, er flock, in the seventh annual Turkey Trot road race with a heavy, wet snow-falling and trimmed nearly two minutes off the race record.

Arnold turned in a time of 26:30 over the five-mile course. The previous record of 28:22 was posted by Roy Burreson of Yankton, S.D. in last year's race.

In all, 101 runners, representing 24 cities and towns registered for the Turkey Trots' two courses. The five-mile course started at Second and Main streets and headed south before meandering through the Westwood and Marywood subdivisions, through the campus of Wayne State College and back downtown.

The two-mile course headed north from the same starting point to east Tenth Street and back downtown along the same route.

The winning time on the two-mile course (12:07 by Wayne's Blaine Johs) was almost two minutes over the old mark of 10:49 set last year by Mike Ives of Onawa, Iowa.

In all, 50 runners competed in the five-mile run and 38 in the two-mile category.

Turkey Trot director Pat Gross said the inclement weather was to blame for the no-shows.

"Oh, definitely," Gross said. "It kept a lot of the locals out, and I'm sure we would have had more runners from places like Sioux City, Vermillion and Blair." Gross said 45 of the 88 runners won medals and another 12 were awarded gift certificates from local merchants.

"So 57 of the 88 left as winners," he said.

The race results are listed below, showing the overall order of finish, home towns of the runners, their division, place in division and time: (NOTE: Divisions are abbreviated, i.e. M25-32 stands for Men's 25-32 years old, etc.)

Lopers lash Cats

By Steve Jones
Wayne State College SID
The Wayne State College football team lost its ninth game of a 10 game schedule last Saturday, dropping a 27-7 decision to Kearney State on the road.

The Kearney State Antelopes scored 24 second-quarter points and added a third quarter field goal en route to the win.

The Antelopes limited the Cats to 113 yards in total offense — 123 yards through the air and a minus 10 yards rushing.

Of the Cats' net yardage total, senior wide receiver Tom Wingerl accounted for 79 yards on just five catches. His season total rose to 48, a new Wildcat record. The old mark (44) for a single season was held by Jeff Ingram, who set the record in the 1978 season.

QUARTERBACK ED Jochum came off the bench after starter Tom Leitschuck suffered severely bruised ligaments in his throwing hand while being tackled on a keeper play from Kearney's four yard line during the Cats' first drive. Leitschuck fumbled on the play to stop the drive.

Jochum hit Wingerl with a 23 yard scoring pass on Wayne State's next possession to give the Cats an early lead. Dan Mitchell's extra point kick made it 7-0.

The TD was set up by Lamont Lewis' 43 yard interception return to the Kearney 37 yard line. It was the freshman's third pass, fifth of the season.

Jochum, a sophomore, finished the day completing 12 of 26 passes for 105 yards.

FRESHMAN TIGHT END Darin Blackburn continued to excel, catching five aerials for 33 yards. Wayne State's other tight end in the two tight end offense, Scott Wilson, snared three passes for 13 yards.

Running back Mike Schmidt led all WSC rushers, but only managed a total of 10 yards. Substitute Norm Barth added eight yards on three late game toles.

Kearney State, which finished the year at 6-4 (4-3 in the CSIC), controlled the ball most of the contest and gave Wildcat defenders quite a workout.

SAFETY KEN Kohlfot paced the stop troops with 17 tackles in his last performance as a Wildcat.

Linebacker Kevin McArdle added 15 stops, including a nine-yard quarterback sack.

Linebacker Steve Besch and freshman defensive end Todd Richardson (playing with an injured shoulder) each tallied 12 tackles. Richardson also recovered a fumble and had a quarterback sack for a six yard loss.

Jerry Holbrook finished his career with a bang, logging 10 stops and recovering a fumble.

A look back on the 1983 season with Coach Chapman, along with the opinions, thoughts and reminiscences of several Wildcat seniors on ending their careers at Wayne State will appear in Monday's edition of The Wayne Herald.

Troy Thiem (eight stops), Keith Turner (seven stops) and Lamont Lewis (six tackles) were next on the tackle chart.

WAYNE STATE head coach Pete Chapman said the Cats' failure to score early was a key to the game.

"We had some really good opportunities," Chapman said.

He added that the defensive letdown that saw the Lopers score 24 second quarter points "really killed us."

"We played well except for that period," Chapman said. "They were very physical — they started wearing us down."

"They are a well coached team, but they didn't surprise us with anything."

Jones edged by Holland

Freshman Sonny Jones was barely edged out by Missouri Western's Jeff Holland for the CSIC crown and national NAIA honors in kickoff returns, according to final statistics released Monday.

Jones finished second in the CSIC and third in the nation (Division I schools) with a 30.4 average on 13 returns while Holland averaged 30.8 yards on 17 tries — good enough for first in the conference and second in the nation.

Southern Oregon's David Anthony led the nation with a 31.1 per-return average.

Wayne State quarterback Tom Leitschuck finished the year as the CSIC's fifth best player in total offensive output per week, accounting for an average of 120 yards each contest. Robert Young of Fort Hays was first (245.4 yards).

Leitschuck was also the league's sixth-most productive passer with a 118.7 yards per game average.

Wayne State senior receiver Tom Wingerl finished the season in sixth place in receiving yards per game, with a 66.8 yard average.

Wingerl was also second in the conference in punt returns, averaging just over eight yards per try.

Punter Ted Ragone of Wayne State averaged 36.9 yards on 68 kicks and finished sixth in the CSIC.

Business enrollments up

Business is booming at Wayne State College. Vaughn Benson, Wayne State College business division head, reports that the 1983 fall business enrollment is at a record high.

Business enrollment at Wayne State has increased 60 percent over the last 10 years and over 25 percent in the past five years.

Enrollment data indicates that the college's business division should have nearly 700 majors and minors by the end of the 1983-84 school year and should produce over 11,000 credit hours.

Benson describes the enrollment as having changed its complexion over the past 10 years.

Enrollments are now 70 percent non-teaching. The areas of accounting, finance, data processing, management, and marketing are now the mainstays of Wayne State's business program.

Female and male enrollment is approximately equal. Part-time student enrollment also accounts for seven percent of activity.

WHEN ASKED to address reasons for this rapid growth, Benson said, "The division of business has concentrated on quality education by following the national standards.

"Our programs are of high quality and address the needs of our region. We expect great things from our students and are very proud of their accomplishments.

'Star of Christmas' slated in WSC Dale Planetarium

What was that bright light that led the Magi to the place where Jesus was born over 2,000 years ago?

Wayne State College's "Star of Christmas" program will explore both the skies of that night long ago and the Christmas skies of today, beginning Sunday, Dec. 4 at 3:30 p.m. in the Fred G. Dale Planetarium, according to Carl Rump, planetarium director.

THE PROGRAM begins with a view of the evening skies of December, containing some of the brightest stars of any season.

After a tour of the modern sky, the planetarium is used as a time machine to travel back 2,000 years and explore the astronomical and historical events relating to the "Star of Christmas."

Was the "star" a comet, a nova, a conjunction of planets, or simply a miracle?

THE SHOW will run every Sunday from Dec. 4-18, beginning at 3:30 p.m.

The planetarium is located in Carhart Science Hall on the Wayne State campus.

The program is free and open to the public, and those who wish to schedule shows for special groups should contact Rump at Wayne State College, Wayne, Neb., 68787, or telephone (402) 375-2200.

Poet reading today

Plains' Writer Series begins

Gary Gildner will be the first writer to present his works in the Wayne State College Plains Writers' Series this year.

He will read his poetry today (Thursday) at 7 p.m. in the commons areas of the Humanities building on the college campus.

Gildner has received many awards for his poetry and short stories. They include the Robert Frost Fellowship from Bread Loaf, the Theodore Roethke and Helen Bullis prizes, the William Carlos Williams Poetry Prize, and two fellowships from the National Endowment for the Arts.

He has had four books published and two others are expected to be released very soon.

"The Crush" should be released some time this month from the Ecco Press, and "Blue Like the Heavens: New & Selected Poems," will be released this year from the University of Pittsburgh Press.

The visiting lecturer from Reed College in Portland, Ore. is visiting the Wayne State campus, Nov. 14-18.

The public is invited to attend free of charge.

THE 1983-84 Plains Writers' Series is sponsored by Wayne State's English department.

This year, four poets, including Gildner, and short story writers will present their material to the public at no charge.

On Feb. 16, Poet Jim Barnes will do a reading in the KWSC-TV studio located in the lower level of the Val Peterson Fine Arts Center.

Barnes is the editor of "The Chautauq Review," an international journal of poetry, fiction and translation published at Northeast Missouri State University.

ALSO PERFORMING in the KWSC-TV studio will be Albert Goldfarb on March 22 at 7 p.m. Goldfarb teaches creative writing at the University of Texas in Austin.

The last in the series is Madeline DeFrees, currently a professor of English in the MFA program in creative writing at the University of Massachusetts-Amherst.

She will be reading April 5 at 7 p.m. in the commons area of the Humanities building.

ACCORDING TO Jim Brummels, associate professor of English, poet-in-residence and coordinator of the events, "the readings are, in part, entertaining and provide a cultural activity that students and faculty would not otherwise avail themselves of."

The writers will spend a week on the Wayne State campus to speak to students in writing and literature classes. Writing students will receive constructive criticism on their work.

Anyone who would like to visit with the writers informally should contact Brummels in the Humanities building, office 313.

The Plains Writers' Series is funded through grants from the National Endowment for the Arts and the Wayne State Foundation.

The public is invited.

Faculty profile

Author of what he calls a "radical book," Dr. George Ayittey, assistant professor of economics and business at Wayne State College, says that he likes the atmosphere of the small college because of the close contact between students and faculty.

Ayittey, a native of the Republic of Ghana, has been teaching at Wayne State since the fall of 1981.

He said that at the time he was offered positions in California and New York, but he wanted "to try things out" in a small college like Wayne State first.

AYITTEY received his undergraduate degree from the University of Ghana and then went on to the University of Western Ontario, Canada, where he received his master's degree.

He then attended the University of Manitoba, Canada, where he earned his Ph.D. in 1981.

Dr. George Ayittey

In his free time, Ayittey relaxes by reading and jogging. He also has been working on a book entitled "Makolomatics."

Ayittey has finished the first draft on this book and he said that two publishers are interested in it.

AYITTEY said that Wayne

State "has a lot going for it," including its "excellent library and gym facilities."

Because of Wayne State's smaller size and student population that Ayittey termed as being "just right," he said that he "has very much enjoyed teaching in Wayne."

Cattlemen's exposition planned

Topics of interest for cow-calf producers and cattle feeders will be on the agenda Feb. 1 and 2, respectively, during the 1984 Nebraska Cattlemen's Expo at Platte Ag Park here.

Dakota farm show set

The dates are drawing closer for the "Dakota Farm Show", to be held inside the Dakotadome at U.S.D. Vermillion, on Jan. 3, 4, and 5.

Ag student is initiated

Lon Swanson of Wayne, a student in agriculture at University of Nebraska, will be honored on Nov. 20 by initiation into the University Chapter of Gamma Sigma Delta, a national honor society in agriculture.

Livestock feeders will meet

The Northeast Nebraska Livestock Feeders Association will hold its fall membership meeting at the Paddock Steak House in South Sioux City, Monday (Nov. 21).

Horn fly resistance causes some concern

Cattle producers in some parts of the United States are facing a problem with horn fly resistance to insecticide-impregnated ear tags, according to livestock entomologists and representatives of insecticide manufacturers.

These recommendations include: Producers should tag cattle according to label directions with one or two tags per animal depending on the tag.

Why resistance is occurring in some regions and not others, Campbell said. Even at a local level, horn flies on cattle in one pasture will be resistant, while control will be excellent on cattle a mile away.

NORTHEAST NEBRASKA Pork Producers awards went out to Kelli Thomas (left) as 1984 queen and Mr. and Mrs. Glen Lueders as pork boosters.

NEN Pork Producers select queen, give out other awards at banquet

The Northeast Nebraska Pork Producers held its 19th annual Pork awards banquet Sunday (Nov. 6), at the Sacred Heart Gym in Emerson. A crowd of around 300 attended this year's banquet.

The Thomas family also took top honors in the 4-H awards. Ty Thomas won the trophy for best carcass; Kelli Thomas took the senior showman award.

Controlling birds that make trouble

What can be done to control birds that create problems for jet aircraft, and in general, are pests to people? "One main consideration is that controlling bird problems is when the planes are taking off or landing," Johnson said.

the farmer's wife by pat meierhenry

In November, unless your football team goes to play-offs, there is a breathing space before basketball begins. The schools present plays in which the students display talents not evidenced in athletic events.

Before he leaves the hospital, he will be walking a mile a day. This will be increased at home, and he will be expected to stay on a daily exercise schedule.

Wayne County's 4-H leaders receive recognition at annual 4-H banquet

Cherry, Mrs. Jerry Dyer, Mike Flunt, Mrs. Ken Frevert, Mrs. Darrell Gilliland, Mrs. Kenneth Gustafson, Mrs. Alan Hammer, Richard Keltel, Mrs. Roy Korth, Sandra Nelson.

Wildlife packet offers various trees and shrubs

Awards are presented on achievement night

Shaun Niemann, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herb Niemann of Carroll, was presented the Ak-Sar-Ben Service award at the annual Wayne County 4-H Achievement Night held Monday, (Nov. 14) at the Wayne City Auditorium.

Allen woman chooses birthday to give, rather than to receive

Thanks to the generosity of one woman, 34 pairs of kindergarten hands will be much warmer this winter. Allen resident Jackie Williams did a turnabout for her birthday Monday when, instead of receiving gifts, she presented them to kindergarten students at the Allen school.

Mrs. Williams presented each of the 17 students, along with teacher Marilyn Wallin, a pair of hand knitted mittens with their names knitted into the pattern. The mittens, which are made of 100 percent wool, were placed in special packages with each youngsters' name printed on the outside.

Mrs. Williams presented the packages to the youngsters late Monday morning, along with notes to their mothers regarding washing instructions.

AN AVID knitter, Jackie said she knits approximately 75 pairs of mittens each year using her "extra" yarn.

The mittens are donated to institutions where children reside, including Epworth Village, a home for children funded by the Nebraska United Methodist Church Con ference of which Jackie and her husband Craig are members.

Jackie has instructed several classes in knitting through programs sponsored by Northeast Technical Community College in Norfolk.

JACKIE SAID it takes her about six hours to knit each pair of mittens using four needles.

The mittens are made of double strands of yarn without seams which, Jackie says, makes them more comfortable and warmer.

EPA steps up its inspection efforts for asbestos use

Morris Kay, U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), Region 7 administrator, announced today that EPA is stepping up inspection activities to identify school districts in Iowa, Missouri, Kansas and Nebraska that have failed to comply with federal regulations requiring them to inspect their facilities for "friable asbestos" and institute a public notification process if it is discovered.

According to Kay, 12 out of the first 14 school systems inspected by the region failed to comply with one or more aspects of the rule.

The EPA rule on friable (materials that can be crushed and pulverized by hand pressure) asbestos-containing materials was published in May 1982. It gave school administrators 13 months to inspect buildings for the presence of asbestos. Friable asbestos, when dry, may crumble or be reduced to powder by hand pressure.

When this happens, asbestos fibers can be released into the air. They are harmful when inhaled, capable of causing asbestosis, a fibrotic deterioration of the lung, or cancer of the lung and gastrointestinal tract, and also a rare cancer of the lining of the lung and abdominal cavity known as mesothelioma.

The FEDERAL rule applies to all schools both private and public that provide elementary or secondary education for grades 12 and under.

The rule also requires that warning notices be posted in schools that contain friable asbestos, that a written notice be sent to school employees and Parent Teacher Associations (PTA) or individual parents, and that inspection records be maintained for the public in each school and in the administrative office of each school system. PTAs or parents who are concerned that their school districts may not have complied with all rule requirements may contact the Region 7 Asbestos Control Program at (816) 374-3036.

Four years ago, EPA established a national voluntary program offering technical assistance and guidance to help school officials detect and correct potentially hazardous asbestos conditions. When the voluntary system did not appear to be working, EPA wrote and published the rule which required compliance by June 26, 1983.

Kay pointed out, "While the EPA rule does not require the removal of asbestos containing materials, school administrators are encouraged to discuss the problem with parents, custodians, teachers and qualified professionals to determine if corrective action is warranted."

He added, "We think this is an important public health issue that should be dealt with in a fair and open manner. Those who attend or work in schools where there is a potential problem should be made aware of the situation."

"I'M SURE many of the school systems in our four-state area have tried to comply with the rule and even though the June deadline has passed, I encourage those school administrators who have not complied to continue to make inspection and notification effort a high priority in order to avoid problems in the future," Kay said.

"We feel it is essential that the notification process be carried out. Those schools found not to be in compliance with the rules will receive a Notice of Non-Compliance," which gives them 30 days to comply," he concluded.

Failure to comply within the 30 days would trigger an Administrative Order with compliance schedules. Region 7 also has the option to assess civil penalties from $3,000 to $25,000 in the Administrative Order.

ONE-DAY SERVICE Monday thru Thursday
Exp. Date: Nov. 27, 1983

There are two sides to every outlet.

	COAL	56%
	WATER	18%
	URANIUM	25%
	GAS/OIL DIESEL	1%

This is ours.

When it comes to electricity, you should only have to be concerned about using it efficiently. It is our concern to be sure that the power comes out of an electrical outlet when you need it. However, all of us share the concern of keeping energy costs as low as practical.

So we're trying to take good care of the power on our side, generating it with the fuel mix that's currently most economical, reliable and available. And as conditions change, so does the "mix."

We are continuing to reduce our dependence on such costly and unreliable sources as gas and oil, setting them aside primarily to meet reserve requirements and summer peak demands. We are utilizing more of the plentiful supplies of coal, and are continuing to rely on nuclear (uranium) and hydro (water) power.

It's our job to make sure you get the power you must have on your side of the outlet. It's your job to use it efficiently.

When someone else runs into your car, have you run into bad luck with your insurance rates?

Not if you're insured with Auto-Owners. Unlike some other insurance companies, Auto-Owners won't automatically raise your rates just because you run into bad luck. Even if the bad luck is your fault. Our rates are based on long-term performance.

Auto-Owners' auto policies have other unique extras, too. Like up to $200 coverage on most personal possessions stolen from your car. Up to $300 in substitute transportation expenses. Discounts for 2 or more cars on the same policy. Discounts to most retirees. And more.

If you aren't getting all this from your present policy, you ought to talk to your independent Auto-Owners agent.

Ikes Pick Three Directors; Discuss Lack of Pheasants

Wayne Ikes Thursday night elected Albert Walton, Bill Moore and Fred Johnson as directors. They will meet on Dec. 4.

Three members of District III office of state game, parks and forests commission met on Thursday at the meeting.

Local Ikes chief conservation officer said the present shortage of pheasants was due to lack of pheasants by present day methods of farming. He explained that the use of every available acre of land for farming is causing a shortage of pheasants.

The days of five and seven-day pheasants are gone forever, he said. He said that the pheasants are being raised in large areas in the county.

Local Ikes last management committee from District III office met on Thursday at the meeting. They discussed the pheasant shortage and said that any program of rehabilitation must be in the hands of the county. The landowners hold the key to the whole pheasant situation.

James Carlson, Ikes club biologist, accompanied Benson and discussed the pheasant shortage. He also questioned Benson about setting up a pheasant club in 1955.
