From pillows to pads

Restful Knights expands business

By Kevin O'Hanlon

What do you do if you have half a semi truckfull of pillows?

Well, if you're Virgil Kardell, of Wayne, and you are paying for use of a whole truck, you find something to fill that other half up.

Owner and operator of Restful Knights Inc., Kardell decided to fill the remaining space on his trucks with waterbed mattress pads. His firm has been manufacturing and marketing pillows for almost a year now in a small shop located in downtown Wayne above his waterbed store.

Kardell started selling waterbeds, saw the advantage of manufacturing pillows in conjunction with that operation, and saw another plus in making mattress pads for waterbeds.

"The pillows were going pretty good, except that we do a lot of our own delivering," Kardell said. "We would have 600 or 700 pillows sold and then couldn't find another buyer to fill up the rest of the truck."

Kardell then hit on the idea of manufacturing the mattress pads.

"We just called up a couple of our big pillow accounts and they said 'You start making them and we'll start buying them,'" Kardell said.

Restful Knights began making the pads about a week and a half ago.

Kardell said he is able to sell his mattress pads, which retail for $29.95, to several outlets in the Midwest because he can undercut the costs of shipping from the East and West coasts — where the majority of such manufacturers are located.

"We sell basically all over the U.S.," Kardell said. "But most of our accounts are in the Midwest."

Restful Knight presently supplies pillows and mattress pads to Waterbed World — a Nebraska based retailer with 17 stores

Another big customer is Midwest Distributing — a wholesale outlet that buys "about 1000" mattress pads per month from Restful Knights.

Kardell estimates his three full-time and five part-time employees will be able to turn out approximately 350 to 400 mattress pads per day.

Is there a market for that many waterbed mattress pads?

"I don't think waterbed sales have peaked yet," he explained. "Regular bedding sales have been declining every year while waterbed sales have been growing."

In the meantime, Kardell's firm will keep turning out 350 to 400 mattress pads each day — and Kardell will keep padding his bank account.

Next issue will be one day early

The next edition of The Wayne Herald will be one day early due to Thanksgiving. Because the U.S. Postal Service will not be delivering mail on Thursday, The Herald will be published on Tuesday. That way, rural subscribers in the area should receive their copies of the paper on Wednesday — one day earlier than usual.

All news items and advertising must be in The Wayne Herald office by 5 p.m. today (Monday).

NPPD approves increase in electric rates

The Nebraska Public Power District board of directors has approved new electric rates for both retail and wholesale customers during 1984.

The district's 108,000 retail customers will receive an average increase of approximately 3.3 percent in electric rates in 1984 over 1983 rates, according to representatives of NPPD.

Wholesale customers will receive an increase of approximately one percent from 1983 to 1984 rates and an estimated 1.5 percent increase in the 1985 rates over 1984.

NPPD serves 71 municipalities and 26 other public power districts and rural cooperatives at wholesale.

IN TOTAL, nearly 760,000 Nebraskans rely on the NPPD system for their electricity, according to officials of Nebraska's largest electric utility.

Approximately 72 percent of NPPD's electric energy sales is to wholesale customers and 28 percent to retail customers.

Wholesale customers of NPPD determine their own retail rates for their direct customers.

The new retail rates will raise the average retail residential customer's bill approximately $2 a month. The average customer consumes about 1,000 kilowatt hours each month, according to NPPD figures.

A customer consuming 500 kilowatt hours a month would experience an increase of about $1.25 each month and a total electric customer will see an increase of approximately $3 per month.

RETAIL RATES were set to satisfy additional revenue requirements of $4.1 million in NPPD's retail division in 1984 over 1983, representatives of the company said.

The Production Cost Adjustment factor on 1984 bills will continue to be a credit on the bills in order to return to customers excess PCA collections during 1983.

"The excess occurred because fuel costs used in generation and other production costs were not as high as had been anticipated. However, the PCA factor credit will not be as large as it had been during 1983, according to NPPD spokesmen.

The 1984 wholesale rates are set to raise about $225 million in wholesale revenue while the 1985 wholesale rates are expected to raise about $243 million.

THE RATES are predicated on projected increases in kilowatt-hour sales of 4.8 percent from 1983-84 and 3.4 percent from 1984 to 1985.

The board of directors also approved a rate increase for the district's surface irrigation customers in the Platte River valley. Irrigation customers will experience an overall increase averaging 4.4 percent from 1983 to 1984.

Water from NPPD's canals is used as supplemental irrigation for approximately 75,000 acres in the valley, NPPD officials said.

Workshop on solar water heaters

People can learn about making fuel cost savings in heating water by attending a solar water heating information session from 7:30-9:30 p.m. Monday, Nov. 28 at Northeast Technical Community College, Room MC-100, in Norfolk. The information session is sponsored by the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Division of Continuing Studies. Topics include conservation techniques, how solar water heaters work, solar systems parts, how to determine solar access, collector performance, shopping for solar, economics of solar water heaters, tax credits and homeowner-built systems. There is a $5 per family fee for attending the session, and that fee also purchases the "Nebraska Consumer Guide to Solar Hot Water Heaters," which provides information to allow potential buyers to make knowledgeable choices in choosing solar equipment. It is possible to register at the door the evening of the program, but registration then is on a space available basis. For information, call the Nebraska Solar Office, 472-3414.

Christmas Seal carries tradition

Each year, the image of Santa Claus is used to represent the traditional spirit of gift giving that is so much a part of the holiday season. This Christmas, Santa Claus will also give the gift of lung health to thousands of Nebraskans through Christmas Seals from the American Lung Association. The official 1983 Christmas Seals and matching gift tags feature Santa, with rosy cheeks, white beard and a jolly smile. More than 100,000 people in Nebraska suffer from emphysema, asthma, chronic bronchitis or lung cancer. The Christmas Seal provides the resources necessary to help those with lung disease and prevent others from becoming ill.

JIM Davidson, 56, narrowly escaped suffocation last Monday at his farm southeast of Stanton, after he became buried inside a grain bin. Davidson and his son, Scott, were removing an aeration tube inside the bin when the elder Davidson stepped into an air pocket and disappeared into the sheltered corn. Scott drove a tractor and loader into the bin, tearing open the side of the metal structure. After digging into the corn, he freed his father's head and sought assistance. Davidson, covered with corn and unconscious, regained consciousness a few minutes later and was transported to a Norfolk hospital where he was kept over night for observation.

MADISON HIGH School should have a track and football field by the fall of next year if all goes as planned by members of the Madison Board of Education. The board approved a motion last Monday evening to let bids for site lighting, electrical needs, irrigation requirements and seeding. The primary grading, which has taken the area to within three inches of grade, has been all but completed.

THE SOUTH Sioux City School Board voted unanimously last Monday night to spend approximately $22,000 for equipment and materials to implement a computer program in the elementary grades next semester. THE FORMER West Point city hall was sold at an auction last Monday evening to Steve and Hugh Paus, after one hour of intermittent bidding in which the price rose by $10,000 from the $48,000 minimum set by the city council. The two West Point car dealers said they were not ready to release their plans for the building. City offices were moved into the new municipal building in 1981.

Four counties affected

Declaration of disaster arrives

The notification this past week of a disaster declaration for four additional counties in the First Congressional District was exceedingly good news. The declaration by the United States Department of Agriculture added Lancaster, Gage, Jefferson, and Saline Counties to six others (Cass, Johnson, Nemaha, Gode, Pawnee, and Richardson) in the First District in which individuals are now eligible for low-interest Farmers Home Administration loans.

Qualified persons may borrow up to $100,000 at five percent interest and up to an additional $400,000 at eight percent interest under provisions of the disaster declaration. Anyone who has borrowed money in recent years realizes that this represents a considerable savings from double-digit interest rates.

THESE 10 COUNTIES were especially deserving of the disaster declaration. Drought was extremely tough for southeast Nebraska farmers and hopefully, through the disaster declaration, these people will be able to borrow money to continue them into the future.

Meanwhile, I still am troubled by the administrative requirement that 30 percent of a county must be affected before a disaster declaration is issued. The 30 percent figure has no basis in law, but is merely a figure arrived at administratively to administer the disaster program.

On the surface, 30 percent of a county's crops doesn't seem like too much. But in Nebraska, where many of the smaller counties are 24 miles square (576 square miles), it takes a massive natural disaster to qualify farmers for the disaster declaration.

A hail storm three miles wide that cuts through a county won't cut enough to qualify the county for a disaster declaration even though it may do enough damage to ruin the financial outlook for a substantial number of the county's farmers.

THE ECONOMIC recovery continues to advance with the gross national product growing at a 7.9 percent annual pace in the third quarter of 1983. This is the strongest recovery in 20 years and, unlike the recoveries of 1975 and 1980, it is not an inflationary one. Inflation was only at 3.4 percent in the third quarter of 1983.

Civilian unemployment in October was 8.8 percent, down two full percentage points since December, 1982. The number of persons employed, 101.9 million, 2.4 million more than the level of employment in November, 1980.

Housing starts have nearly doubled since a recession low of 840,000 in November, 1981. September's housing starts totaled 1,652,000. September, 1983, new home sales were also up 89 percent over the same month two years previous.

eddie's brother

by randy hascall

If the Great American Smokeout would come about 364 times a year, life would be a lot easier—and a lot longer.

For the first time all year at the office, I breathed fresh air Thursday. Cheers to the annual smokeout!

I threatened to pour Dr. Pepper over anyone I caught with a lighted cigarette and that seemed to curb most of the smoking.

The smokers in the front office at The Wayne Herald outnumber the non-smokers six to four.

That doesn't sound too bad but when you figure out that each one of them smokes about two packs of cigarettes a day that makes the odds 12 packs to none.

Naturally, I'm in the minority.

The Wayne Herald office is better known as Mount St. Helens the Second. Even when the women smokers go to dinner, they leave their cigarettes burning in their ash trays.

The smoke in the office is so bad that when a local fireman came in to place an ad last week, he called the fire hall for a pumper.

I'm not kidding. When a customer comes to the front counter, I have to use a fog light to find my way there. Just last week we installed a fog horn and constructed a miniature light house—in the office.

If the United States government ever does a study on the effects of chemical warfare, all they need to do is study me or sports editor O'Hanlon.

We grope around with bulging eye balls and raw nostrils, just from working in clouds of smoke all day.

I swear the smokers have a contest to see who can smoke the most cigarettes. It's usually a toss-up between "Light-up LaVon" and "Let 'um burn Linda."

The loser is—you guessed it—me (and all the other non-smokers)!

For some reason, the thickest cigarette smoke always winds around the office and makes its way to the non-smokers' desks.

O'Hanlon, an ex-smoker, worked in a bar for five years and said the smoke there never got as bad as it gets in our office. And he had as many as 250 customers at one time.

He says the back of his neck is getting nicotine stains from working next to a chain-smoker.

Being a non-smoker among a bunch of smokers is like being a pedestrian on the track at the Indianapolis 500. Or a calf in a pool of piranha. You don't have a chance.

In my five years at the Herald I've tried almost everything to slow down the smoking.

I tried hiding or destroying cigarettes. The smokers just bought some more.

I tried using explosive cigarette loads. After having several cigarettes blow up in their faces, they just inspected them more closely and continued to smoke.

I tried burning incense in the office for every cigarette that was smoked. That just made the haze worse and irritated my eyes.

I tried spraying apple-scented, aerosol room freshener throughout the office. The smokers just puffed more to offset the spray.

I've even thought about hiring a bunch of cigar smokers to come in and smoke up the office, hoping that cigar smoke will even bother the cigarette smokers. But, it will bother me worse. There's no way to win.

After trying every thing I can think of to get even, I've given up for awhile. I'm now waving the white flag until I get the urge to fight again.

Meanwhile, I've come up with a temporary solution to help us non-smokers.

We'll now be wearing disposable nuisance dust masks. Not only do the masks keep dust out of your lungs, they help keep the smoke out too.

The masks are not going to clear the smoke or fill the room with fresh air, but at least they will keep a little bit of that smoke from reaching the non-smokers' lungs.

So, if you walk in the office and can see a few of us wearing these masks in the smoky room, remember: we aren't practicing to become surgeons, we're just trying to protect ourselves.

A tribute to those who serve

To the editor:

The last few weeks have been very painful for our country. The task of keeping peace and defending freedom in a dangerous world has once again taken its tragic toll from the American people. The season of Thanksgiving only makes this latest sacrifice more poignant.

But in this season, it is especially appropriate to thank the more than two million men and women who serve in America's armed forces, protecting our country and its interests every day.

This is a time to salute their courage, skill and their willingness to give the last full measure of devotion — their lives — in the service of their country.

This is a time to pay tribute to those in uniform who have suffered so much while trying to ease the suffering of the world.

And this is a time, most of all, to honor those who have died so that others might live in peace and freedom.

ask a lawyer

a public service of the nebraska state bar association

Q: I was injured in a car accident and need legal help. I do not know what to bring to a visit with a lawyer or what to say.

What questions do I ask to find out if he will handle my case, and what it will cost? If we sue and I lose, how much could he charge me? The insurance company has already made me an offer and I don't know what to do about it.

A: An automobile accident, particularly one involving personal injury, is one of the more clear-cut instances in which a lawyer should be consulted to protect your personal interests.

A lawyer should be able to tell you after a brief consultation whether he or she will be able to handle your case. When you call for an appointment, ask what information you should bring with you.

At your first visit you will need to tell the lawyer as much as possible about the accident which occurred. Bring copies of the police accident report (if one was made), medical bills, photographs (if any), repair bills, and any correspondence you may have received from your insurance company or from the other parties.

Be completely honest about all facts concerning your case, whether or not they are favorable to you.

This initial interview will help the lawyer in advising you whether you should accept the insurance company's offer and, if you decide not to accept it, how your case would be handled, whether through a lawsuit, further negotiations with the insurance company or other remedies.

You should also discuss fee arrangements with the lawyer at this initial visit, if you wish to have the lawyer represent you.

(If for any reason you do not want this lawyer to represent you, you are not obligated to continue. You may be charged for this visit, however, depending upon the individual office policy. Be sure that you understand completely the basis on which you will be charged for legal representation.)

Legal fees can be handled in a number of ways. Some lawyers may charge on an hourly basis, with the hourly rate determined by their experience, reputation and expertise, and by the nature and difficulty of your case.

In some cases, a flat fee may be charged, though this is more common for a routine service such as a preparation of a simple will.

Most personal injury cases, however, are handled on a "contingent fee" basis. In a contingent fee arrangement, the lawyer receives an agreed-upon percentage of any judgment or settlement you receive, plus out of pocket expenses. If your case is not successful, you pay only expenses.

If you and the lawyer agree that the case will be handled on an hourly rate or flat fee basis, you will be obligated to pay the lawyer's fee whether or not you win your case.

The amount charged would, of course, depend on the number of hours spent on your case and the expenses connected with it.

Until you can consult with a lawyer, be cautious in dealing with people offering to adjust or settle your claim, or anyone seeking to hurry you into a settlement.

Do not sign anything without the advice of your lawyer. You should also be cautious of any attempt by a representative of the other party to influence you against the advice of your own lawyer.

For free pamphlets on "Legal Fees" and on "What to do in Case of an Auto Accident," write to "Ask a Lawyer," P.O. Box 2529, Lincoln 68502.

Return to romance

'It's not the rose, it's what the rose stands for'

By LaVon Anderson

"This is the first time ever that I have had the opportunity to travel through Nebraska," Michael Morgenstern began his lecture Thursday night at Wayne State College.

Morgenstern, author of the current best-selling book, "How to Make Love to a Woman," spoke in front of nearly 200 persons in Wayne State's Ramsey Theatre. His topic was "A Return to Romance."

An author, lecturer, attorney, professor of law and "excellent tennis player," Morgenstern's appearance at Wayne State was part of a 40-college lecture tour.

MAKING IT clear that there would be no visual aids or live demonstrations during his program, Morgenstern began by explaining that "How to Make Love to a Woman" is not about his sex life or technique.

"It's about all aspects of love-making as women have answered questions that I have asked," he said.

Morgenstern told the audience that his idea for writing the book came several years ago when an event happened to him that made him wonder if he knew anything about women.

"I WAS TAKING a woman to lunch," he explained, "and, being a gentleman, I proceeded to pull out the chair for her."

As a result of that action, Morgenstern said his date informed him she could hold her own chair and that he was a chauvinist and a sexist.

Morgenstern said he went back to office, thought about his date's remarks, and developed the "she's got two arms" theory.

"It's a beautiful theory that can be applied in every single situation," smiled Morgenstern.

"She's got two arms, she can open her own door. She's got two arms, she can pull out her own chair."

MORGENSTERN said that what he found out while researching his book is that women, on one hand, want men who are traditional.

"But, on the other hand, they want men who are nontraditional."

Morgenstern said he discovered he wasn't alone and that a lot of men are the recipients of these mixed messages.

He added that three separate studies released at the same time his book was published all had the same result.

"All three studies," said Morgenstern, "showed that more women are more dissatisfied with their sex lives, and more women in general are dissatisfied with their relationships."

MORGENSTERN cited two reasons for the misunderstandings between men and women.

"For 10 or 15 years, the only type of books written dealt just with sex technique, and 90 percent of those were purchased by women."

"There was a huge literature gap. There were no books or magazines for men who wanted to learn what women were saying to them."

Morgenstern said that's the situation he found himself in a couple of years ago when he decided he would go to women and ask them the questions he wanted to know.

"I wanted to know what attracted women in the 1970's and what turned them on, not just sexually. I also wanted to hear their thoughts on romance and initiative."

Morgenstern said he discovered that women wanted to know about sex what men were supposed to know all along.

"Women," he said, "are not looking for a return to romance. They are looking for a completely new romance."

"TWENTY YEARS ago," said Morgenstern, "women were put on pedestals."

Morgenstern added that while many women desire that traditional romance, including the correct graces and social gestures, they also want men who are open to women who are more active in the romantic scenario.

"Women are developing a whole new style of wooing and courtship. That's the flip side of the traditional, and that's what women are interested in."

Morgenstern added that many men are receiving those mixed messages and, in the process, have become passive.

"Ironically," he said, "the man that turns women off the most is the type of man women have produced — the wimp."

RETURNING to the theme of romance, Morgenstern said romance is more of an attitude than anything specific.

"It's not the rose," he said, "it's what the rose stands for."

The author emphasized that through the years, relationships have lost a lot of pleasure from the game.

"It seems that seduction has become a dirty word. It's not. Seduction is what we're missing most."

"Talk has been the big thing the past 10 or 15 years. If anything went wrong we had to sit down and dissect it."

Morgenstern stressed that much more is said by action than by discussion.

"Holding on to someone's hand just a second longer when helping them from a car will say more than all the talk in the world," he pointed out.

MORGENSTERN criticized many relationships for not being given the time and energy they deserve and need.

"All of us are working so hard to climb the corporate ladder that we fail to sit back, put our feet up, and look at ways to improve our relationships."

"What men today don't realize is how important it is for them to openly convey their message of love."

"Women today are telling us that the 1970's are past," said Morgenstern, addressing the men in the audience. "Be more romantic and put yourself on the line."

"The vast majority of women are starved for men who openly convey a message of how important she is."

MORGENSTERN is an honors graduate of the Ohio State University and the Law School of America University.

He clerked with the United States Department of Justice and the Chief Judge of the United States District for the Northern District of Illinois.

After practicing law in Hamilton, Ohio and New York City, Morgenstern opened his own private real estate business.

He has taught law at the Chicago Kent School of Law and Booklyn Law School, and has frequently contributed articles to leading journals of law and medicine on legislative topics ranging from communicable diseases to child abuse.

Most recently, his articles have appeared in Gentlemen's Quarterly, Penthouse, Reader's Digest and US magazine.

He is presently working on his second book, "Beyond the Bedroom."

Put heat where it's needed

Do you ever ask yourself why you are heating your entire house at once when your family usually only uses one or two rooms at a time? Do you wonder why heating costs keep increasing after you've done everything to conserve heat in your home?

Home owners who pump hundreds of dollars every year into their central heating systems realize only too well that keeping the thermostat in the low 60's may help them control their fuel bills, but it is no guarantee of personal comfort.

As a result, more and more people are beginning to learn how they can keep the thermostat dial low and still stay warm by tailoring their heating systems to the space they are using.

PEOPLE ARE using the concept of task heating. Some people are familiar with task lighting, a similar concept.

In task lighting, high intensity lamps illuminate a given work area rather than an entire room. Task heating involves applying low doses of close range heat.

THERE ARE TWO basic types of radiant heaters on the market: panels and reflectors. Both have their advantages for specific situations.

Panel heaters operate at relatively low temperatures (less than 200 degrees Fahrenheit) and give off pleasant, even heat.

They can be mounted anywhere in the house where you need rapid warmth.

The second type of radiant heater is the reflector. Its main component is an element that glows red hot when turned on.

A reflective surface behind the element radiates or directs the heat outward. Some have a fan to help circulate the heat from the element.

RADIANT HEATERS come in a variety of styles including light weight portable units ranging in size from 600 to 1,500 watts.

These models are relatively easy to install and use, and are inexpensive to purchase and operate. Many come with preset 24 hour timers, thermostats and temperature controls.

Neither radiation heaters or any of the other types of heaters can replace your home's basic heating system.

Blue Devils dominate All-Area grid squad

Vicious tacklers on defense and a punishing ground attack on offense characterize the 1983 Wayne Herald All Area Football Team.

Comprised of players from Wayne, Wakefield, Winside, Laurel and Allen high schools, the All-Area team is selected based on the opinions of Wayne Herald staff members and recommendations from area coaches.

Wayne High School and Laurel are the only schools to play 11-man football in the area — Wayne in Class B and Laurel in Class C 1. The other three compete in eight-man.

Wayne's 9-2 squad, which made it to the Class B quarterfinals, leads the pack with eight players picked for twelve positions — juniors Kevin Koenig and Chris Wieseler were tabbed to play both offense and defense, including kicking duties.

Winside landed four players on the first team from its 8-1 Class D-1 playoff squad, while Laurel, Wakefield and Allen each have three.

Laurel finished the year with a 1-7 mark, while Wakefield went 4-5 and Allen was 2-7.

The All-Area team is listed below, along with individual statistics and a comment by each player's coach.

ALL-AREA OFFENSE

—HB John Hawkins (6-0, 180) Winside Sr.

Coach's comment: "Speed burner of the team and workhorse on offense. We asked John to do a lot and he did. Many teams keyed on him with two, three or four players."

—HB Brian Haisch (5-11, 175) Laurel Sr.
Rushed the ball 148 times for 712 yards and five TD's (4.8 yards per carry average). Scored five TD's. Also caught 14 passes for 286 yards and one score and returned 18 punts for 196 yards.

Coach's comment: "A tremendous running back and a fine young man deserving of All-Conference."

—FB Kevin Koenig (5-10, 205) Wayne Jr.
Racked up 958 yards on 224 trips for a 4.3 yard per carry average. Scored 13 touchdowns.

Coach's comment: "Kevin was a three-year starter for us on offense and defense. One of the best athletes I've had the privilege of working with. Has excellent leadership on the field and in the classroom — will do what it takes to be a winner."

—QB Dan Mundil (5-10, 165) Winside Sr.
Second-leading rusher for the Wildcats (behind Hawkins). Had 356 yards on 100 carries (3.5 average) and four scores. Completed 63.8 percent of his passes (44 of 69) for 617 yards and eight TD's.

1983 All-Area volleyballers announced

Allen and Wakefield dominate the Wayne Herald's 1983 All-Area Volleyball Team in much the same manner that they dominated the volleyball courts this past season. Both schools placed a pair of players on the first team, reflecting the abundant talent on both squads — talent that put Allen just one game away from a district championship and took the Trojans of Wakefield all the way to the State Volleyball Tournament.

The remaining two spots were filled by players from Wayne and Laurel.

While Winside failed to land any players on the first team, the Wildcats led all teams by placing three players on the Honorable Mention list.

The All-Area team follows, along with each player's stats and a comment by their respective coaches.

1983 ALL-AREA VOLLEYBALL TEAM

Michelle Harder (5-9, senior) Allen
An all-around player, but when her spiking is on, she's virtually unstoppable. Trojans won 48 out of 14 games with her in the line up. Served 80 percent on the year (54 aces), made good on 87 percent of her sets and 134 of 177 of her spikes on the season.

Coach's comment: "As Michelle went, so did our team. Very consistent and an excellent leader. Great physical talent and an exceptionally hard worker. I don't know how we'll replace her."

Shelley Krusemark (5-9, senior) Wakefield
Made good on 89 percent of her serves (171 of 192) and tallied 118 points. Spiked an team-high 85 percent and logged 156 aces.

Coach's comment: "An all-around player. One of the hardest workers I've ever coached."

Lana Erb (5-2, senior) Wakefield
Served an amazing 98 percent (238 of 242) on the season and had 51 aces. Did all of the Trojans' setting on the season — making good on 95 percent (959 of 1005) and had 282 for aces.

Coach's comment: "Best setter in Northeast Nebraska. Was able to put the ball to any hitter at any time."

Wendy Robsen (5-8, junior) Laurel
Served 89 percent on the year (105-of-117) and had 72 points for the Bears. Also racked up 111 spikes and made 69 dinks. Voted as the player with the most hustle by her teammates.

Coach's comments: "This was her first year as a spiker, she was a setter before. Has a strong, deep spike. Always hustling and giving her all — a real level-headed player."

Tami Jewell (5-7, senior) Allen
Steady player. Served 80 percent for 1983, set 87 percent and made good on 87 percent of her spikes (114 of 135). Tallied 117 points for the Eagles.

Coach's comment: "Real consistent — she made up for everyone else's mistakes. No hesitation. Tami has a court sense that you just can't teach. Quietly impressive."

Fran Gross (5-11, senior) Wayne
Two-year starter. Co-captain, team leader with a lot of court savvy. Leading spiker for the Blue Devils at an 80 percent clip — also the team leader in number spikes with 53. Was instrumental (11 spikes and five aces) in the Blue Devils' victory over Class A Norfolk.

Coach's comment: "She is a great player. Her greatest contribution was her leadership on the floor during games and at practice."

ALL-AREA HONORABLE MENTION
Carol Osborne (5-7, senior) Laurel; Diana Hansen (5-6, senior) Allen; Tammy Brudigan (5-8, junior) Allen; Leah Jensen (5-7, junior) Shell; Topp (5-6, senior) Winside; Karen Longe (5-11, junior) Lisa Jacobsen (5-4, junior) Wayne; Michele Meyer (5-6, senior) Brenda Jones (5-7, senior).

WSC seniors: Cats' future is bright

Fourteen seniors on Wayne State's football team took off their pads for the last time on Nov. 12 after the loss to Kearney State. They had toiled for four years and posted a 10-29-1 record — that year's 1-5 mark came under the guidance of new head coach Pete Chapman. The Wayne Herald visited with several Wildcat seniors last week and asked them about their careers at Wayne State and the program under Chapman.

The seniors were first asked: "What was the biggest difference in playing football this year under Chapman?"

Joe Falcone, defensive back, Omaha: "I think Chapman emphasized team unity a lot more — it wasn't if we won or lost — it was whether we tried and improved each week."

Paul Zelinsky, offensive lineman, Wheaton, Ill.: "A lot more team unity and togetherness."

Jeff Sausser, offensive lineman, Randolph: "I think Coach Chapman is an excellent motivator — he was really able to get the team going and fired up."

Russ Gade, defensive lineman, Laurel: "It was a lot more work mentally. You had to think a little bit more."

Tom Wingert, wide receiver, Bronson, Iowa: "He (Chapman) made it a little more demanding and that in turn brought about more team unity."

Troy Thiem, defensive lineman, South Sioux City: "He made you want to work harder because they (the coaches) work so much harder. They seem to put a lot more into the program than the previous coaching staff."

Scott Wilson, tight end, Papillion: "I think our attitude had a 100 percent turnaround. The coaches worked so dog-gone hard — Chapman was up here seven days a week for countless hours. I'd drive by (Rice Auditorium) at night and see the light on in here and know he was in here working."

Ken Kohlhof, defensive back, Merville, Iowa: "Chapman gave us a sense of pride and well-being. He made us proud of what we were doing — to be a member of the Wayne State football team, and that's a step in the right direction if you're going to build a program."

Mark Walker, defensive lineman, Merville, Iowa: "Coach Chapman has brought a staff that is much more personal. It brings back the old thing like in high school where you want to play good for your coach. Chapman has brought the best best offensive team since I've been here."

The Wayne Herald then asked: "What do you think the future holds in store for Wayne State's football program?"

Falcone: "It's turned the corner. I look for them to have a 500 season next year. It sounds like he's (Chapman) got some good players coming in this spring."

Zelinsky: "A lot of positive things lie ahead. With the attitude of the community and the school, they're really on their way now."

Sausser: "I think there is going to be a lot of good things happen. Just working with Chapman and his staff, you can see he's really trying to turn the program around."

Chapman: Kids most important

What does a football coach think about after his first season with a new team, especially if the team registered just one victory in 10 games?

The Wayne Herald visited with Wayne State head football coach Pete Chapman to find out.

Chapman said, although it would have been nice to win more games, that was not his overriding concern this season.

"I really try, when I go into a program for the first year, not to worry too much about the win loss record," Chapman said. "You'd like to do real well, but there are more important things to develop that aren't as obvious to the majority of people. Among those things Chapman was referring to was a team personality."

You have to get the kids to understand and play the way you want them to — to instill a good attitude about practice, games and being a football player at Wayne State College," Chapman said.

With one year under their belts, Chapman said the players will know what is expected of them when Spring camp opens next year.

Chapman said, that although he doesn't consider the first year win loss ratio overly important, he was still somewhat disappointed.

It's too bad we didn't have more positive reinforcement for our seniors," he said. "Losing to Emporia — after we had been playing so well against the better teams."

Chapman said he was most pleased with the attitude of the players as the year progressed.

The way we continually competed with people in our conference week in and week out against people we supposedly had no business being in the game with was a thrill," Chapman said.

Seven of the Wildcats' ten fops were rated at one time or another in the NAIA Division I and Division II Top Twenties throughout the year. Another received votes but was not rated.

Chapman said the Cats continued to improve — and that's all he asks.

"I'm constantly preaching to the kids that I've been through this before — that I know what's around the corner," he added.

What did Chapman learn in his first year as mentor of the Cats? "I learned about the conference (CSIC) and the school itself," he said. "I learned who the people were who were really pulling for us and doing things for the program. I don't mean that in a negative sense at all."

Chapman said he has found many people in the area that are sincerely interested in how well the program is doing and where it's headed.

"We always tell our kids that when we're winning there will be people that will say 'WE'RE WINNING,' but when we don't do well, it's 'YOU GUYS ARE LOSING,'" Chapman said.

Chapman said he has already achieved one of his most important goals — respect.

"As far as having people respect our kids and the way they play — we've accomplished that," he said. "And anybody who doesn't see that doesn't want to see it."

"Because in the end, that's what it's all about — the kids."

Gade: "Things look like they're really going to go up. Chapman is really a good recruiter. Once he gets people here, he's going to build them in every way he can and it's all going to fall into place."

Wingert: "I think that coach Chapman has a lot of good recruiting techniques and a good coaching staff. In a couple of years, I think they'll be one of the top contenders in the conference."

Thiem: "As far as the skill positions go for next year, everything is going to be there — it's going to be a little more automatic."

Wilson: "I feel its going to go a lot further than a lot of people think. I think all of northeast Nebraska will be excited about Wayne State football. I can't wait to come back in about two or three years from now."

Kohlhof: "This program is definitely on its way — I can't wait to come back in a couple of years because I know they're going to be winning some ball games."

Walker: "As long as Coach Chapman is around, they have no place to go but up. I predict that next year, they'll have their first winning season since 1978."

Before letting the seniors go, we asked them, "What are you going to miss the most about playing football at Wayne State and what are you going to miss the least?"

Falcone: Most — "All the guys I played football with and got to know." Least — "Two a days (Practices)."

Zelinsky: Most — "My friends and teammates. I've come to know these guys pretty well — we've been through a lot of hard times and a lot of good times. I'll also miss the competitiveness of the sport." Least — "Waking up sore on Sunday mornings after games."

Sausser: Most — "I'll miss each and every one of these guys — working with each other hitting heads all the time. Just being part of the team." Least — "Two a days."

Gade: Most — "Friends and the people I met." Least — "Being able to legally hit somebody."

Wingert: Most — "The competitiveness of football and being around my friends." Least — "Waking up early for two-a-days."

Thiem: Most — "The friendships and having a solid tackle — that feeling is almost unmatched." Least — "Being late for practice and having to run progression drills."

Wilson: Most — "Friends and the people you meet are what I'll miss the most." Least — "The running and the conditioning."

Kohlhof: Most — "The kids and the friendships that you build — The thrill of a victory when you know everybody on the team gave a total effort." Least — "Two-a-days and injuries."

Walker: Most — "The friends playing football and all the people. Just sheer joy of being able to play college football." Least — "Two hundred and seventy pound linemen."

Cats upset Broncs, fouls a concern

The Wayne State men's basketball team got off to a slow start last Friday at the NAIA District 11 Basketball Classic, but gathered its wits and got back in to the race on Saturday.

The Cats, playing in Fremont, dropped a 74-64 decision to Concordia on Friday night but came back to upset highly touted Hastings College 82-73 on Saturday.

The Cats were slated to play Doane College at Kearney on Saturday, but results were not available at press time.

In the Concordia game, the Cats suffered 21 turnovers — 10 in the first 10 minutes of the game. The Cats had an early 5-4 lead, but the turnovers led to a nine-point scoring blitz by Concordia which saw them jump in front of the Cats 13-5. Buildups never trailed again.

The score stood at 39-21 at the half, and Concordia pulled away to 60-39 before Wayne State freshman Dan Radig got a steal and went in for the layup to start a four minute Wildcat spur! that saw Wayne State pull to 63-54 with just 3:56 left in the contest. The rally proved to be too little, too late, though, as Concordia coasted to the victory.

"We were kind of in a daze," said Wayne State head coach Rick Weaver. "We were a little nervous and didn't shoot well."

Against Hastings, the Wildcats jumped out to an 8-4 lead, but the Broncs managed to stay within four or five points until the Cats pulled away to take a 44-33 advantage at the half.

In the second half, Wayne State built two 15 point leads.

At the 13:18 mark, junior center Lonell Greene drove the lane for a hoop to make it 60-41 before teammate Jimmy Gooch added a pair of free throws.

The Broncs then got the hot hand and added eight straight unanswered points and pulled within 77-69 with just 1:36 left.

The Cats withstood a furious last effort by the Broncs as Hastings tried the press and foul technique to no avail and dropped the 82-73 decision.

Weaver said the Cats are going to have to become less foul-prone if they expect to enjoy any success this season.

"If we can just limit our fouls, we'll be alright," Weaver said. "Three players fouled out for Wayne State in the two contests: center Doug Viselmeyer against Concordia and John Thomsen and Craig Willis in the Hastings game."

The Cats had 24 team fouls against Concordia and 23 against Hastings.

"We're a bunch of hackers out there," Weaver said. "We should issue union cards for illegitimate meat cutters."

A number of players contributed to the Cats' point totals. In the Concordia game, guard Russ Uing and forward Calvin Sprew tied for scoring honors with 16 each. John Thomsen added 12 from his forward position.

Against Hastings, Sprew exploded for 20 points while Uing and Lonell Greene each tallied 16. While happy with the upset over Hastings, Weaver was cautious in his assessment.

'Straw' surgery is option

"Arthroscopic surgery" is becoming a familiar term on sports pages as more and more well-known athletes undergo this sophisticated procedure on their damaged joints. It is an operation that is also making life easier for thousands of Americans with arthritis.

But exactly what is this surgical procedure? And how is it helping people whose joints are damaged by athletics or by arthritis?

According to the Arthritis Foundation, an arthroscopic operation can be thought of as "surgery through a straw". A thin telescope, called an arthroscope, is inserted into the joint through a small incision in the skin. A tiny television camera is attached to the arthroscope. The surgeon can examine the condition of the joint either by looking directly into the arthroscope or by looking at an image of the joint on a nearby TV screen. A common athletic injury treatable by arthroscopic surgery is torn meniscus in the knee joint. The meniscus is a cartilage that often tears when the joint is twisted suddenly or injured repeatedly. Torn meniscus fragments in a joint can cause severe pain and swelling.

In the joints of people with arthritis, cartilage and bone are destroyed by disease. The joint then contains loose pieces of debris which cause pain, inflammation and crippling.

Arthroscopic surgery can remove fragments and can smooth any rough edges of cartilage. It is even possible to remove inflamed joint lining by arthroscopic surgery through a procedure called synovectomy. After the operation, most people report significant improvement and can return to normal activity.

Until recently, such damage from athletics or from arthritis could be repaired only by surgery that opened the joint. With arthroscopy, the patient has less pain, less chance of infection and a shorter recuperation period. The procedure is almost bloodless and can sometimes be done on an outpatient basis. That also means a lower medical bill.

Arthroscopic surgery is primarily performed on knees, but recently, has been used on other joints such as ankles, hips and shoulders. Currently, arthritis surgeons are looking for new and better ways to apply the procedure, such as by using special laser beams.

For more information about arthroscopy or other types of joint surgery, contact the Arthritis Foundation's Nebraska Chapter by writing to 120 N 69th St. Omaha, Neb. 68132 or call (402) 558-2400.

Roundball refs needed

Wayne city recreation director Hank Overin said that referees are needed to officiate games in the City Rec Men's Basketball League, which begins play on Monday, Dec. 5.

Three games per night are played Monday through Wednesday from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. at the Wayne City Auditorium. Refs are paid $15 per night and receive their checks on the first Friday of each month.

Those interested in applying should contact Overin at 375-2584 or come to the auditorium tonight (Monday), Tuesday or Wednesday nights at 7 p.m.

Parks Division to be topic

Nebraska Game and Parks Commission's Park Division will be featured on the "Outdoor Nebraska" TV Show at 7:30 Thursday evening, Nov. 24, on ETV.

Game and Parks Commission Assistant Director Dale Bree will be the show's special guest. Filmed segments will include glimpses of several state park areas and a report on the development going on at Rock Creek Station State Historical Park near Fairbury and the work being performed there by the Nebraska Game and Parks Foundation.

Overin gives slate

Wayne city recreation director Hank Overin has announced the schedule for this year's Men's City Rec Basketball League, which will begin practice today (Monday) Nov. 21.

The program will be divided into three divisions: A League — players 19 to 26 years old, B League — players 27 to 34 years old, C League — players 35 and over.

All new players in the program and all those players not notified by Overin through the mail should sign up at the City Auditorium at the first practice sessions listed below:

A League — Monday, Nov. 21 at 7 p.m.
B League — Tuesday, Nov. 22 at 7 p.m.
C League — Wednesday, Nov. 23 at 7 p.m.

Overin said the first two weeks of the program will be strictly for practice, with league play starting on Monday, Dec. 5.

Overin said faculty members at Wayne State College are eligible to join the league. Wayne State students are not eligible to participate because they have access to the college's intramural program. Overin added that Wayne High School grads and former league players are eligible to play in the rec program, however.

Ichabods top CSIC team

To the average football fan, the latest NAIA Division I football poll looks pretty much the same as last week's, but to a CSIC follower, the ratings went through quite a shake up.

The biggest change came after Washburn (13th in the last poll) dumped Missouri Southern (6th in the last poll) 24-10 to capture the conference crown. Washburn is one notch ahead of the Tigers this week.

Fort Hays State, another CSIC member, is ranked 17th — up one notch.

Lady Cats lose scoring marathon to Hastings

Wayne State women's basketball coach Jan Jirsak said that the Cats' opener against Hastings College Friday night in the NAIA District 11 Classic might turn into a run-and-gun contest.

The Wildcats came out on the short end of a "track meet" that saw Hastings notch a 109-107 win over Wayne State.

The Cats were hurt by poor rebounding, especially in the first half, and trailed 63-44 at the intermission.

According to Wayne State assistant sports information director Jackie Osten, the Cats played much better on the boards and offensively in the second half.

Both coaches cited the improved defensive play in the second half.

Scoring for the Cats was led by sophomore center Deb Nygren, who took up just where she left off last year by tallying 30 points. Teammate Barb Wragge scored 26 from her forward spot while guards Vina Kelly and Donetta Schultz added 16 and 14 points, respectively.

Wayne State was slated to take on Concordia College Saturday night in an 8 p.m. contest.

Deer permits are limited

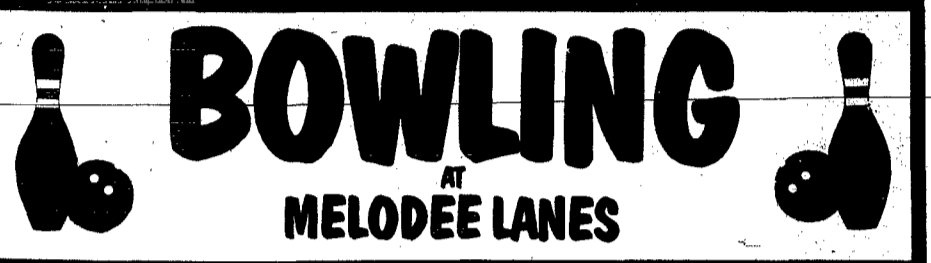

Some deer hunters have apparently misunderstood a new, liberalized deer permit policy and have applied for more permits than the law allows, according to Ken Johnson, chief of the Game and Parks Commission's Wildlife Division.

"A hunter is still limited to two deer permits per year, just like past years," Johnson said.

"That's the key to the whole situation. This year, the Commission allowed the option of a hunter having either two archery permits, two firearm permits, or one of each."

He said some hunters have apparently misunderstood the new regulations, and have applied for a pair of archery permits after they had received a firearm license.

"If they already have a firearm permit, then they're entitled to just one archery permit," Johnson concluded.

When someone else runs into your car, have you run into bad luck with your insurance rates?
Not if you're insured with Auto-Owners. Unlike some other insurance companies, Auto-Owners won't automatically raise your rates just because you run into bad luck. Even if the bad luck is your fault. Our rates are based on long term performance. Auto-Owners' auto policies have other unique extras, too. Like up to $200 coverage on most personal possessions stolen from your car. Up to $300 in substitute transportation expenses. Discounts for 2 or more cars on the same policy. Discounts to most retirees. And more.

If you aren't getting all this from your present policy, you ought to talk to your independent Auto-Owners agent.

Windbreak trees for 1984

The Clarke-McNary program is again offering free seedlings for spring planting at a cost of $28.00 per hundred trees delivered to you. The seedlings may be used in windbreaks, wildlife, Christmas tree or other type plantings. However, the inventory of available trees is down about half a million trees from last year, and shortages are occurring rapidly.

Although the State Forester began accepting orders on November 1, you may already be unable to order Eastern Redcedar or chokecherry. Several other species may be exhausted in the near future.

Check with your local SCS or Extension Office to get up to date information on tree inventories and to submit orders. SCS personnel can also assist you in designing a planting and arrange for NRD planting and weed control if you desire.

State land judging contest held

On Saturday, October 29, the Lower Elkhorn NRD sponsored the State Land Judging Contest in cooperation with Madison County SCS, ASCS, Extension Service, and Northeast Technical Community College. Participants consisted of 131 FFA and 4-H members on 3 or 4 person teams from around the state. Teams qualified for the state contest by placing in one of eight area contests.

Contestants judge four sites for soil characteristics, land capabilities, erosion, and necessary conservation practices. The top five FFA teams qualify to compete in the National Land Judging contest at Oklahoma City in May 1984.

Team Ranking

FFA — 1. Norris FFA, 2. Genoa FFA, 3. Marquette FFA, 4. North Loup-Scotia FFA, 5. Syracuse FFA, 6. Schuyler FFA, 7. Newman Grove FFA.
4-H — 1. Valley Co. 4-H, 2. Greeley Co. 4-H, 3. Nance Co. 4-H.

State Land Judging contestants consider soil characteristics, capability, and necessary soil conservation practices.

Individual Placings of Northeast Nebraskans — 4. Eddie Bell, Nowman Grove FFA; 8. Lee Matson, Schuyler FFA; 13. Dan Healy, Schuyler FFA; 17. Tim Gregorson, Tokamah-Herman FFA; 22. Todd Anderson, Stanton FFA; 24. Antia Rieken, Tokamah-Herman FFA.

Time for fall tillage?

Now that the crops are out, your thoughts may have turned to doing the fall tillage that you haven't had time for the last couple of years. The early harvest certainly has allowed plenty of time. However, your time may be better spent on other activities.

The information that is accumulating from studies of conservation tillage indicate several definite benefits: 1. Reduce water runoff and soil erosion; 2. More water is absorbed by the soil, to be used by the crops; 3. Fuel and labor saved from reducing the number of trips over the field; 4. Comparable yields with reduced costs.

Conservation tillage can be the most useful tool of modern agriculture in reducing soil erosion, and save you money at the same time. Terraces, waterways, dams, and other conservation practices are necessary in much of Northeast Nebraska because of the steep or long slopes. In the case of moderate slopes, conservation tillage may be all you need to keep soil erosion under acceptable levels.

Your local SCS and Cooperative Extension Service offices are excellent sources of information on conservation tillage and local people who practice it.

A fifth for the nuts

In 1979 the Nebraska Nut Growers Association in cooperation with the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission, Nebraska State and Extension Forestry, UNL Horticulture Department and Nebraska Statewide Arboretum System first started the "nut tree seed packet" program to encourage the planting of nut producing trees in Nebraska. The 1983-1984 season marks the fifth anniversary and this year's nut packet will contain a greater variety of nut tree seeds than ever before.

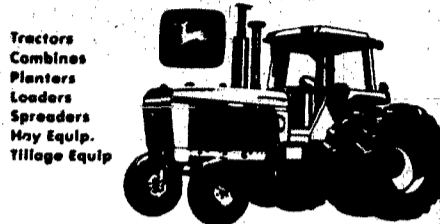

The price per packet will remain the same — $8.00 for Nebraskans, and $10.00 for all other states. The possible list of species and seed source is as follows: species (variety): Japanese Heartnut (Bates), Butternut (Native), Carpathian Walnut, Pecan (Native), Korean Nut Pine, Hazelnut (Winkler), Shagbark Hickory, American Chestnut, Pawpaw (Native), Persimmon.

Each nut packet will contain approximately 30 seeds. Packets will be shipped in the spring of 1984. Orders will be accepted on a first come, first served basis. Order forms are available from local Extension, SCS, ASCS, NRD or District Forestry offices.
