Video machines are netting Wayne some spending money

By Randy Hascall

The addition of video lottery machines to Wayne's Lotta Luck lottery is bringing the city of Wayne some nice profits. The city is netting approximately $75 a week from each of its video machines, according to City Administrator Phil Kloster. Kloster said the city has averaged about $500 net income a week since the city got into the video business in early October. The city started out with four machines at that time and now has eight.

KLOSTER SAID he hopes that number jumps to 25 by Dec. 1. By Jan. 1, he would like to have between 50 and 75 machines in use.

"We aren't getting the machines fast enough to get them out," Kloster said. The eight machines currently in use for Wayne's lottery system are located at The Windmill and Prengers' Lounge, both in Wayne; Ron's Bar and Lounge in Carroll; Hungry's in Stanton; the Lazy Dude in Beemer; Wheeler's Steak House and Ronnie's Bar, both in Tekamah; and Bernie's Bar in Decatur.

According to Kloster, businesses in at least 12 communities throughout northeast Nebraska have contacted the city and expressed interest in setting up machines at their locations.

MANUFACTURER OF the machines is Video Consultants of Nebraska, an Omaha-based firm. Kloster said the company can't produce the machines fast enough to keep up with Wayne's demand.

Distribution of the video lottery money is broken down like this:

—Players get at least 65 percent back in prizes.

—Video Consultants gets 10 percent of the money for operation of the machines. The company handles all arrangements with the establishments and pays them from this 10 percent to operate the machines in their establishments.

—The City of Wayne receives a check from Video Consultants for the remaining money (about 25 percent).

THE NICE THING about the video machines is that the city has to do practically no work for its money.

Kloster said he would like to see at least 100 machines operating as part of Wayne's lottery. He said the income from those machines could net the city between $5,000 and $10,000 a week.

Some plans are being made to put the

Court will decide legality

The legality of the operation of video lottery machines in Wayne, Ft. Calhoun and Bellevue will be decided in court. Those are the only three communities which operate video lotteries in the state of Nebraska. The machines in Wayne and Ft. Calhoun are manufactured and serviced by Video Consultants of Nebraska. Bellevue has machines from that company and also from International Game Technology of Nebraska Inc.

WAYNE'S MACHINES are identical to those in Ft. Calhoun. Players insert quarters and select numbers on a video screen in hopes that their numbers will be selected at random by the machine.

Bellevue's machines are poker style machines. Players try to draw the best possible poker hand to beat the machine.

Wayne City Administrator Phil Kloster said Attorney General Paul Douglas had indicated verbally to him that he felt the type of machine used in Wayne and Ft. Calhoun meets guidelines set up by a Nebraska law concerning video lotteries.

According to Douglas, that type of machine was the only one considered legal because it is based entirely on chance and requires no skill. Since then, the attorney general took action against Bellevue's style of machine.

DOUGLAS CLAIMED the video slot machines do not give players a printed ticket with Bellevue's name on it each time they play as required by law.

The attorney general's office ordered Bellevue to shut down operation of its machines. Bellevue refused to comply, stating that use of the machines would not stop unless a court or the Legislature gave the order.

Video Consultants, in order to get a determination on its machines, filed suit against the attorney general. The company has asked that its machines in Ft. Calhoun, Wayne and Bellevue be deemed legal.

In a preliminary hearing held Friday, the City of Bellevue and International Game Technology joined in that suit.

KLOSTER SAID Wayne stayed away from the poker style machines because they require knowledge of poker, not just luck.

Wayne's marketing committee studied the video lottery machines before getting into them. "It's important that our machines are deemed proper and legal," Kloster said.

The machines in Wayne and Ft. Calhoun are now under investigation. Video Consultants are optimistic and think their chances are real good. Kloster said.

If Wayne's machines are found legal and the poker machines are determined illegal, it could mean more profits for Wayne.

ANOTHER POSSIBLE threat to the future of video lotteries is the chance that Nebraska's Unicameral will take legislative action against the machines in its regular session.

However, until the fate of video lottery machines is determined either in court or in legislative session, the quarters will continue roll in and the communities involved will continue to prosper.

video machine revenue to work. "There are some real possibilities that we can get some neat things done without tax dollars," said Kloster.

The businesses which are currently vendors for Wayne's lottery tickets are given first chance at the video machines, Kloster said. There presently are about 100 ticket vendors.

WHILE MANY motorists slid around the streets and cursed Wednesday's icy conditions, Mike Eckhoff, 8, and Troy Jeffrey, 6, enjoyed the ice on their favorite sidewalk. The icy sidewalk wasn't an ideal hill for their sleds but the boys made out all right and had lots of fun in the process.

Snow removal rules in effect

With winter's weather right around the corner, Vern Schulz, superintendent of Public Works, reminds Wayne residents that two city ordinances regard the proper procedures for snow removal and placement of snow within the city limits.

One ordinance states that all sidewalks must be cleared of snow or ice to the full width of sidewalks within 24 hours after the storm.

If a resident does not meet the requirements of the ordinance, the city has the authority to hire personnel to remove it and bill the property owner. A summons to appear in court also can be issued by the Wayne Police Department.

IN WAYNE'S business district, snow must be thrown into the street at least one foot from the curb as soon as possible to permit removal by street crews.

Only snow from the sidewalk out to the street is permitted to be dumped into the street for city hauling. All snow behind sidewalks, stations and off street parking will have to be removed by private operators.

Another city ordinance has been abused more each year, Schulz said. The ordinance regards the improper placing of material on city streets.

It is not permitted for snow from driveways, parking lots or sidewalks to be blown by snow blowers or pushed by machine back onto the city streets.

Department to clear the snow from curb to curb as soon as possible after a snowfall," Schulz said. "It is common knowledge that during this removal process, the Street Department has no choice but to fill in driveways as there is no known way to prevent it."

"It has become more evident each year that some residents with snow blowers or loaders are blowing or dumping the snow from their driveways back into the street. The snow cannot be left there as it will leave a rut or turn to ice when melting," Schulz said.

Therefore, the Street Department must return with a snow plow and once again move the snow back into your driveway...at the expense of all the taxpayers in the city."

Study, assessment set

Ag task force formed

Problems in the area of agricultural finance and rural development in Nebraska will be assessed by a statewide task force being formed by Governor Bob Kerrey.

"The mission of the Agricultural Finance Task Force is critical to many of our farmers throughout Nebraska," Governor Kerrey said. "It's no secret that we have a severely depressed agricultural economy and that farmers are facing some very real financial problems. We not only need to take a hard look at these challenges, but we need to develop solutions."

The task force will be led by banker Thomas Olson, president of the Lisco State Bank. He has been active in many state and national forums dealing with agriculture and banking.

Last August, Kerrey was successful in amending the National Governors' Association Agricultural Finance and Rural Development Policy with a resolution that he sponsored at the annual meeting in Portland, Maine.

The resolution calls for a subcommittee of states to study and report findings on such issues as the family farm, tax policy, Farmers Home Administration policies, value added products and beginning farmers.

The task force's findings and recommendations will be made available as soon as they are finalized.

State senator sets times for meetings in the area

State Senator Merle Von Minden is scheduled to be in Wayne tomorrow (Tuesday) as part of a series of meetings throughout his legislative district during this week.

Wayne, Hoskins and Wakefield are among the communities in which the senator has scheduled meetings.

Von Minden plans to be at Daylight Donuts in Wayne from 8:30 to 10 a.m. tomorrow. He will be at the fire hall in Hoskins from 1 to 2 p.m. that day.

to 9:30 that morning, the senator will be at Diane's Cafe in Emerson.

On Monday, Nov. 28, the senator will be at the Village Cafe in Newcastle from 9:30 to 10:30 a.m. and at the Dixon County Courthouse in Ponca from 11 a.m. to 12 noon.

Von Minden will be at Knight's Stop in Homer from 9 to 10 a.m. on Wednesday, Nov. 30 and at the South Sioux City council chambers from 1 to 2 p.m. that day.

Von Minden said he encourages everyone to stop in and visit with him about concerns and upcoming activities in the Legislature. The senator will be accompanied by his legislative aide, Leland Miner.

28 shopping days left; Santa coming to town

The Wayne Chamber of Commerce recently received word that Santa Claus is coming to town. He will make his first appearance in downtown Wayne Thursday, arriving by fire truck.

Santa will be stationed at Peoples Natural Gas Company again this Christmas season, from 6 to 8 p.m. on weekday evenings and from 12 noon to 2 p.m. on Saturdays and from 2 to 4 p.m. on Sundays.

Nights that Santa will be at the gas company are Dec. 1, 8, 15, 16, 19, 20, 21, 22 and 23. He will be at the company from 12 noon to 2 p.m. on Dec. 10, 17 and 24. On Dec. 11 and 18, he will appear from 2 to 4 p.m.

Santa Claus will have candy for all children and will listen acceptably to their wishes at that time.

Herald will collect letters to Santa Claus

The Wayne Herald received a telephone call this week from that jolly, old gentleman himself—Santa Claus.

Santa asked if the newspaper would, once again, collect his letters from children in the Wayne area. The Herald gladly obliged.

Santa Claus said he will read each youngster's letter carefully and try his best to see that everyone has a merry Christmas. He said he and his elves are already busy collecting and making gifts of all types. Some substitutions may have to be made, Santa said.

The Wayne Herald will collect all letters to Santa and print them in the newspaper. The letters will then be forwarded to Santa at the North Pole, giving him time to get the gifts ready before Christmas.

Area youngsters should address the letters to: Santa Claus, c/o The Wayne Herald, 114 Main Street, Wayne, Neb. 68787. All letters should include names, ages and hometowns.

Wayne stays alive in mock trial project

Wayne High will find itself back in court again this week.

A team composed of high school government students will face a team from Wisner-Pittler in the third round of the State Mock Trial Project tomorrow (Tuesday).

The trial is scheduled to begin at 7:30 p.m. in the Wayne County Courtroom. The meeting is the final round of the West Section of competition.

The winner of Tuesday's trial is scheduled to compete against a team from the 13th Judicial District at 2 p.m. on Dec. 6 at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Law College in Lincoln.

The finals will be held Dec. 7 at the Supreme Courtroom of the State Capitol Building in Lincoln.

Laurel company purchases Allen state bank

Craig and Jackie Williams, controlling shareholders of Security State Bank of Allen, have announced the sale of the bank to First Laurel Security Company of Laurel.

The sale is subject to approval by regulatory authorities.

First Laurel Security Company is the owner of the Security National Bank of Laurel. No change is expected for the bank.

Small towns are great places to live. You don't have to worry much about crime or traffic or politics if you don't want to.

I've spent so many years of my life around small towns like Bruno, Abie, Linwood, Octavia, Garrison, Malmo, Colon and Dwight that Wayne seems like a booming metropolis.

When I was in high school, our football team was so small in numbers that it rode to games in the back of a '54 Chevy pickup.

The team was so small that the same players were listed on the first team, second team and third team.

One season when our team was rated high in state, our fans followed the "Orange Bowl" tradition of throwing oranges onto the field.

The crowds were so small that the players would spot the instigators and throw the oranges back. When the referees would spot the oranges first, they would stuff them in their pockets and save them for breakfast.

You know you're in a small town when you've forgotten what a turn signal on a car looks like.

When someone asks for directions in a small town all you have to do is point across the street.

Or you just say, "go four ruts up the street and turn left. It's the only building on the right side."

In some of those small towns that I mentioned previously, the only swiming pool is a large puddle of water left behind by Farmer Brown's center pivot irrigation system.

Did all of you have a happy Thanksgiving? I sure did.

One of the things I asked Barb before I proposed to her was whether she likes the white meat or dark meat of turkey and chicken.

When she said "dark meat," I decided to give marriage a try.

I'm a white meat lover from way back so with a wife who likes dark meat, I can't lose.

We even included that in our marriage vows. "Do you promise to love, honor and eat only the dark meat..."

Barb thought our 18-pound wild turkey in the freezer was too big for the three of us so I bought a seven-pounder for Thanksgiving. We finished that pup off in two meals.

I should have been a Pilgrim.

December isn't even here yet and we've already got most of our Christmas shopping done.

I hate bumping into large crowds of people who are ravaging through piles of clothing or toys, trying to find a bargain. So this year we started early.

We only have a few girls left to purchase but you can bet we'll wait until the week before Christmas to buy those. That's just the way it always goes. What the heck.

ask a lawyer

a public service of the nebraska state bar association

Q: If you sign a contract to buy something and then change your mind, how can you get out of the contract?

A: A contract is a legally binding agreement. We assume that when you signed it, you were of legal age, the contract was legally drawn, and it was entered into without fraud or coercion.

If this is the case, and you have simply changed your mind about what you have agreed to, you cannot just "get out" of the contract unless the other party is also willing to cancel it. Depending upon what the contract says, the other party may have specific remedies spelled out in the document itself, or may be able to sue you and be awarded damages for your failure to carry out the terms of the contract.

In the case of a contract to purchase something, for example, there are often specific remedies spelled out for the seller should the buyer default on the payments. Without knowing exactly what you agreed to, we cannot give you a specific answer as to what penalties you might expect in cancelling your contract.

The important thing to know in entering into any contract is that when you sign it, you are making a promise which is probably legally enforceable, and if you are unsure about any of the terms of the contract, or what obligations it entails, you should not sign it.

Q: Is it possible that a 15-year-old charged with a crime would be put in jail, or would they have to be sent to some other kind of facility? Is a child this young entitled to have an attorney represent him in court?

A: Juveniles between the ages of 14 and 16 may be detained in jail, but they must be separated from adult prisoners. Children under 14 may not be detained in jail.

A juvenile charged in juvenile court has the same right to legal counsel as an adult charged with a crime. If the individual's family is unable to afford legal representation, the court will appoint someone to represent the child in court.

Those charged in juvenile court do not, however, have the same right to a jury trial as an adult would have.

If you have a legal question, write "Ask a Lawyer," P.O. Box 2529, Lincoln 68502. This column is intended to provide general legal information, not specific legal advice. "Ask a Lawyer" is a public service of the Nebraska State Bar Association.

Congratulations Wayne

To the editor:
Congratulations coaches and players of the Wayne High football team. What a year for the blue devils. We live out of town and are in our 60's but we try to see all the games.

Such excitement and what good games the boys played. I'm sure Wayne must be proud to see their football team play in the state playoff. We get the Wayne Herald and hats off to them for the fine coverage and to radio station KTCH for their many hours spent at the games and with the "Coaches Corner" which we enjoyed so much.

Last but not least we say congratulations to the fans who attended the games; a team cannot go without their support. We have gone to lots of high school football games but the Wayne High Blue Devils showed us the kind of football that we like to see.

Keep up the good work coaches and players and we wish you the very best next year.

We certainly can't leave out the Wayne High Marching Band. Where else could you go to see such a fine performance?
An out of town football fan

Senator is commended

To the editor:
U.S. Senator James Exon should be commended for his efforts which helped lead to the Nov. 15 rejection in a test vote of President Reagan's natural gas decontrol proposal.

The President's plan calls for removal of controls from old gas which would then be blended with new gas resulting in higher prices to consumers.

Profits from this increase would go directly to producers and those receiving royalties.

Thanks to Senator Exon for giving Nebraskans and Peoples Natural Gas

To err is human

To Mark A. Petersen, president, Circle K:
Real nice of you to take the responsibility for not having the flags on Veterans' Day. I commend you as anyone can make a mistake. I have made many. Many thanks to you.

letters welcome

Letters from readers are welcome. They should be timely, brief and must contain no libelous statements. We reserve the right to edit or reject any letter.

Letters may be published with a pseudonym or with the author's name omitted if so desired. However, the writer's signature must be a part of the original letter. Unsigned letters will not be printed.

U.S. - China trade relations are endangered

By Doug Bereuter
Nebraska Congressman
I have joined with some 39 other Members of Congress to send a letter to Secretary of Commerce Malcolm Baldrige expressing concern about a potential danger to United States China trade relations.

The textile industry has filed a counter valting duty petition before the International Trade Administration. That petition reopens a trade dispute settled earlier this year that cost the American farmer $600 million in lost sales of agricultural commodities.

In our letter to urge the Department of Commerce to keep in mind that the People's Republic of China is the purchaser of some $1.8 billion worth of agricultural products. China is our sixth largest trading partner for those goods—our wheat, feed grain, and soybean industries have invested heavily in developing the Chinese market development plans.

For the Commerce Department to do anything but reject the counter valting duty petition would have severe consequences on American agriculture and the future course of U.S. Chinese relations.

POSTMASTER GENERAL William Bolger has notified me that the Postal Service has withdrawn its proposal to eliminate the requirement that a community be given 60 days notice of any preliminary decision to close or consolidate its post office.

In October, I wrote the Postmaster General objecting to the proposal. At present, postal regulations provide that the people served by a post office be given 60 days notice of proposed closings, to give postal patrons an opportunity to express their opinions to postal officials and to the Congressional delegation. The Postal Service had published a proposal to revise that procedure in the Federal Register.

Bolger assured me that postal managers will continue to follow current procedure in considering the closing or consolidating of post offices.

Lincolnton Ira Holt of the Nebraska Hospital Association has been named by the Society of Health and Human Services Margaret Heckler to serve on a panel studying the impact of prospective payments on the nation's hospitals.

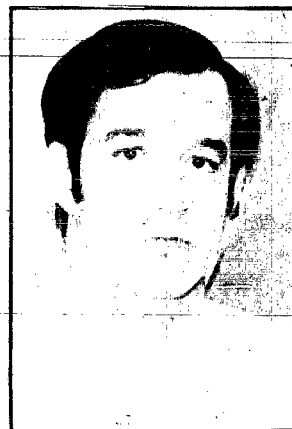

The inclusion of a Nebraskan on the panel is important. At issue is the basis for determining a labor wage index to be used in calculating Medicare reimbursements. The Health Care Financing Administration currently is planning to use an index based on full time employees, not full time equivalents. The effect on Nebraska's small hospitals would be devastating.

street talk

ABC aired the made-for-television movie "The Day After" last week, which depicted a nuclear war between the United States and the Soviet Union and the aftermath of such a holocaust. The program drew an estimated 100 million viewers, making it third most-watched program of all time. The Wayne Herald asked several area teachers and educators what they thought of the program and what effect they think it will have.

"I thought it was a good show — maybe not scary enough. I didn't let my own kids watch it, but after viewing it I think anybody could have with proper preparation. I wish they would show it to the United Nations." — Don Leighton, Winside High School.

"I thought it wasn't quite as graphic as we anticipated. We had our 13 year old son watch it with us and he didn't show any traumatic effects from it. We also didn't notice any overreaction to it at school." — Don Zeiss, Wayne High School.

"I'd been looking forward to watching it. We hadn't had a realistic show like that dealing with a nuclear holocaust. I've just come back from visiting Russia and talking with a lot of their people who were really concerned about nuclear armaments. Hopefully, it will cause everybody to wake up a little bit." — Gary Troth, Allen High School.

"They did a very good job graphically — they went through the stages of radiation illness very well. As an emergency medical technician, I thought they were very realistic in showing that, medically, we would come to a standstill. What medical centers that would be operating would be inundated." — Miron Jenness, Wayne High School.

"I think it gave a new generation an insight of what nuclear war could be like. We (the class) talked about it and they were really concerned about what could happen." — Dan Johnson, Wayne Middle School.

Recipes sought for centennial cookbook

Jeremy Dean Walker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Val Walker of Norfolk, was baptized during worship services Nov. 20 at Zion Lutheran Church, Hoskins. The Rev. Michael Klatt officiated, and sponsors were Pat Walker and Vicki Kinning. Dinner guests afterward in the Don Walker home, Hoskins, included Mr. and Mrs. Arlis (Bud) Kinning and family of Pender, Pastor Michael Klatt, and Mr. and Mrs. Val Walker and Jeremy, Vicki Kinning, Larry Walker and Donna O'Neil, all of Norfolk.

Wellness workshop slated on Wayne State Campus

"Building Wellness Futures" is the title of a workshop to be held Dec. 2, 3 and 4 on the campus of Wayne State College. Resource persons for the event are the Rev. Dr. David Randall of Snowmass Village, Colo., and Jan Berry of Evanston, Ill. Randall serves as West Regional Director of Healthy America. He holds a master's degree in divinity from Illit School of Theology, and a Ph.D. in wellness education from the University of North Carolina. In addition to working as Director of the Hospital Family Assistance Program in Evanston, Ill., Berry serves as secretary of the National Organization of Wellness. She has received a master's degree in counseling from the University of Virginia.

TOPICS TO be covered in the five-session workshop include "Cultural Norms and Healthy Living," "Prevention and Cure of Illness," "Self-Realization and Personal Development," "Environment," "Nutrition and Weight Control," "Exercise," and "Spiritual Values and Ethics."

Participants in the session devoted to exercise scheduled for Saturday are asked to dress in clothing which allows them to move freely such as running suits, sweats, or other loose clothing.

A 10 a.m. Sunday worship service entitled "Life to the Full," led by Pastor Randall, will be open to those attending the workshop.

REGISTRATION is $3 per session ($2 for Wayne State College students, faculty and staff), or $12 for the entire workshop ($8 for Wayne State College students, faculty and staff).

The program begins Friday, Dec. 2 at 7 p.m. in the Student Center north dining room at Wayne State.

Co-sponsoring the event are Wayne State College Cooperative Campus Ministry, Wayne State

Rev. Dr. David Randall

College Counseling Department, and Wayne State Housing Department. For further information, contact Sister Rosann Ocken, Campus Ministry House, Wayne State College, Wayne, Neb., or phone (402) 375-1234.

Jan Berry

Five generations

Auxiliary makes donations

The VFW Auxiliary of Wayne met Nov. 14 and made several donations.

Included in the list of donations are the General Hospital Fund, the Hospital Christmas Fund, the Norfolk Regional Center, the Health and Happiness Fund, the Department President's Special Project, and National Home Seal. Fourteen members attended the November meeting conducted by Senior Vice President Darlene Elaine Draghu. Membership chairman Lillian Granquist announced there are 71 paid up members.

VERNA MAE Baier, youth activity and voice of democracy chairman, announced that Win side and Wayne schools are laping their speeches. She also reported on the Veteran's Day program held in Wayne. Speaker was Pat Gross. Cancer aid research chairman Eveline Thompson reported that auxiliaries are encouraged to exceed their quota in cancer aid.

Mrs. Thompson also presented a report on Volunteer Appreciation Day sponsored by the Norfolk Veterans Home.

Receiving certificates from the Wayne unit were Emma Spikes, Neva Lorenzen, Helen Siefken, Eveline Thompson, Mybel Sommerfeld and Lillian Granquist. The auxiliary also received an award for sponsoring bingo parties and the veterans supper.

POPPY chairman Darlene Elaine Draghu reported that $462.94 was collected during Poppy Day in Wayne. She also thanked women who assisted during the day including Lillian Granquist, Fauned Hoff man, Amy Lindsay, Eveline Thompson, Leona Kluge, Dorothy Dangberg, Glenmadine Barker, Emma Soules, and Poppy Girl Carrie Junk.

The Norfolk Veterans Home Christmas party will be held Dec. 10 at 1 p.m.

The annual veterans Christmas supper in Wayne is scheduled

Dec. 4 in the Vet's Club room, beginning with social hour from 5:30 to 6:30 p.m.

A program will follow the supper, and those attending are asked to bring one meat dish and one other dish.

SERVING LUNCH following the meeting were Frances Darling, Rosina Chance and Neva Lorenzen.

Next meeting of the auxiliary will be Dec. 12 with a $2 Christmas gift exchange.

news and notes

Leather care
The cold and snow reminds us that it's time to get out that nice pair of leather boots. For the good of your boots and your own comfort as well, treat them with a water-repellant now. Using a good water-repellant will help keep the leather soft and makes them more comfortable to wear. TREAT SMOOTH leathers with mink oil or use a silicon treatment. Both products are easy to find in shoe stores or discount stores. On smooth leathers, the wax silicon treatments work better than liquids or sprays because you get more even results. Be careful in applying any type of treatment. Some leathers will darken when a water repellent substance is applied. For many boots the heels may be damaged if they are treated. CAREFUL attention to leather garments will also keep them in good condition. Older leather garments may not have as much information about their care as a new garment. Use whatever information you have from labels and hang tags to choose the best care method. Be sure to save labels for future reference. If your leather garment becomes damp, allow it to air dry away from direct heat. Store your garments in a cool ventilated closet. Do not store leather garments in a plastic bag. Humidity can build up in the bag and cause mildew problems. You can cover your garments with a cloth garment bag, or cut an old sheet so it will fit over the hanger and use it to protect your leather. YOU MAY HAVE discovered that your leather jacket is a little snug after it has been cleaned. If you haven't gained any weight since you last wore the garment, the jacket may have shrunk slightly. Some shrinkage is normal because the leather is stretched in the manufacturing of a garment. The leather will relax and it may seem that the garment has shrunk. Some of the snugness should disappear as you wear the garment. A fine leather garment or accessory can be a real bonus in your wardrobe. Care for it properly and you should get many years of use from the garment.

Freedom and War
Laurel-Concord youths harbor feelings about reinstatement of the draft and about the chance of war.

Although all said that they would be willing to fight for their country, only half said that they wouldn't be scared. Brad White said, "The United States is worth fighting for." Tim Granquist said, "As long as I can shoot back, I'm willing to go," and Brian Haisch commented, "Our freedom is worth fighting for."

When asked what their first reaction would be to their draft notice, Larry Dybdal said, "I would do as much as I could before I left, maybe for the last time." Tim Granquist said, "I would be awfully nervous." Alvin Kessinger said, "I'd be nervous but I would be willing to go."

When asked why they thought that there was a chance to war, Tim Granquist, Brad White, and Brian Haisch all said "It will be caused by the crisis in Lebanon and Grenada." Larry Dybdal said, "It war breaks out it will be caused by the Russians."

Alvin Kessinger said, "It will be started by the President's tough stand," and Kevin Joslin commented "A war may be caused by the President's stance against communist expansionism."

Students tour Nucor Steel
On Nov. 29, the AIASA club and electricity class will tour Nucor Steel at Norfolk. According to Mr. Lyle VanCleave, the trip will expose students to industry and will give them a broader knowledge of the work force. Mr. VanCleave, one of the sponsors of the trip, said that the visit should give students a different aspect about the job market and about the skills necessary to obtain industry jobs.

The full time electricians at Nucor will be busy answering questions about the largest consumer of electrical energy in the state of Nebraska and about the electrical training needed to compete for electrical jobs such as theirs.

Nucor makes channel, angle, and flat iron, which it ships all over the world. The plant uses scrap iron from Chicago, melts it in an electrofurnace, and pours it continuously, 24 hours a day into the shapes which they sell to construction companies.

According to Mr. VanCleave, the trip will be a learning experience and will show the vast job market that can be opened through education.

Music opinion
At the Lewis and Clark Conference Clinic, Laurel-Concord music students performed, and heard Dr. Moon critique their music. On Nov. 15, Laurel and six other northeast Nebraska schools attended the one day conference at the Coleridge High School gym.

All seven schools joined voices that morning to let Dr. Moon critique the conference selections. Swing choirs and Laurel's Triple Trio performed at 4 p.m. to let Dr. Moon critique actions. Improvements were made.

The men at Conference Clinic clinched a chord at the end for Dr. Moon. Men singing from Laurel included Mike Jusel, Mark Deltze, Ben Galvin, Jim Casey, and Scott Carr.

After a long day of singing and being critiqued till no end, evening performance delighted the community with a concert that evening at 7:30 p.m. All voices sang out beautifully. Swing Choirs put on their matching outfits and performed exceptionally with songs like Blue Moon; Open Arms; and Young Hands, Young Hearts.

Dr. Moon thrilled his students and the audience by wearing a black tux with tails. Many OOOH's and AH's sounded through the gym. Wausa received the most attendance award for the school.

An exciting day, it proved to be, for the seven Conference schools and the young talent that participated.

By Paula Seibert

Parent-teacher conferences
Parent-teacher conferences were held at the Laurel Public School on Thursday afternoon and all day Friday, Nov. 4 and 5.

Administration and staff of Laurel-Concord High School said the conferences gave the teachers a chance to meet and get to know the parents. Communication between parents and teachers lets the parent better understand what the school is doing.

The conferences between parents and teachers let the parents know their child's strengths, weaknesses, and also what each student should accomplish in their classes. "The purpose of conferences builds a foundation on which teachers and parents can work together to help the student learn more efficiently," commented Mr. Glock, principal of Laurel High School.

The conferences benefit teachers, parents and students. Teachers feel they learn a lot about the student by meeting the parent. The attendance lets the school know that the parents do care about their child's education. If teachers have questions about a child, they now have the chance to ask. Mr. Glock said, "No one knows a child like Mom and Dad."

During conferences parents have the chance to better understand what each course is about. Communication between parents and students may or may not be good at home, so through this parents can find out school happenings. Miss Johnson commented, "The conferences give the parents a chance to know if what they hear is true."

The conferences show other beneficial traits. When both teachers and parents understand the learning environment, the student will also be helped. Mr. Helgren commented, "What we hear may be misinterpreted and communication between parents and teachers help so wires don't get crossed." Students may also receive information that the teacher has told the parent and they may better themselves with it.

A five minute time limit is given for each individual conference. Each teacher has his or her own way of handling the conferences. An introduction to the parent usually starts things off, and from there parents and teachers are both given a chance for questions.

Grades, along with the students good points and points needing improvement receive most of the attention. Mr. Rostad's procedure includes letting the parent ask the questions first. He takes notes while the parent lets him know what they feel should be discussed. After conferences he tries to follow up on the students' needs and attention.

The conferences help clear up special concerns parents or teachers have. The administration feels that conferences are among two or three of the most important things the school does.

Pick sophomore leader soon

Each spring, one sophomore from Laurel Public School attends the Hugh O'Brian Youth Foundation Leadership Seminar, along with other sophomores across the state.

The leadership seminar started in 1958 in Los Angeles, for the California area students. By 1968, the seminar's program had grown to include national and international participants. Hugh O'Brian, establisher of this Youth Foundation, founded the program as a contribution to society. Students learn to seek out and recognize leadership potential in themselves.

Eligibility goes out to any high school sophomore. The Laurel-Concord Student Council organizes the publicity for the program in Laurel. Sophomores may write a one hundred word or less paper answering the three questions given to them on the application form. A group of two teachers and two upperclassmen judge the papers and choose who will attend the three day conference.

At the end of this year's State Leadership Seminar, one boy and one girl will be chosen to attend the week long International Leadership Seminar. Representatives from the 50 states, the District of Columbia and about 20 other countries help provide an international focus on the issues of the day.

"America's Incentive System," the theme of each state seminar, provides a topic for the workshops. A speaker talks to each workshop for half an hour, and students ask questions of the speaker for the next half hour.

Then, each student meets with an assigned group in what's called the "break out" room, to discuss the topics. Each speaker chosen shows a distinguishing leadership in business, science, education or government. These workshops give the students and leaders a chance to interact.

The Foundation motivates students by showing them that how to think can be just as important as what they think. Giving the students a straight forward view of the world and making them realize their thoughts and actions can make a difference, according to the Youth Foundation.

When filling out the application form, leadership ability, sensitivity to others and desire to learn and share knowledge becomes the main concern for judges and are topics for the questions asked.

Troy Heitman filled out his form and attended the 1982 seminar. Troy said he enjoyed his roommates at the seminar. One of them received the honor of attending the National Seminar held at the EPCOT Center in Florida.

Pressures felt by teens

Pressures felt by teenagers of Laurel-Concord High School may be caused by a variety of problems or situations. Many of the students who feel these pressures, feel they have no way to really let out their feelings and rid themselves of the tension.

Students feel pressured to do well in the sports they participate in. Friends, fellow team members, coaches, and family all put on the pressure to do well. This makes them do worse, because they can't cope with the pressures. And in the end, many feel as if they have failed.

Students feel pressured by parents for many reasons. They feel their parents sometimes expect too much of them, without realizing it. They are pressured to get good grades, to keep up with family responsibilities at home.

As students get older, they feel more pressured about the future. One student said, "I have such a busy schedule already, and trying to decide what I want to do after graduation, and what college I want to go to, takes up a lot of time. I feel like there isn't enough time in a day! I have so much to do, and so little time to do it in."

One bright spot though, is that students don't feel pressured by their peers. One student stated, "Everyone gets along with everyone, and nobody cares if you don't do the things they do." Another student said, "It's like everyone goes by the rule 'Live and let live.'"

North Central evaluation

"The purpose of the North Central Evaluation shall be the development and maintenance of high standards of excellence of universities, colleges, and schools."

The North Central Evaluation has recently been a major topic of discussion at Laurel-Concord High School. Committees of teachers, administration, parents, and students have been set up to evaluate the school. The main issue at hand is to determine the school's strong points and also those things that need improvement.

A committee consisting of student council members and the high school principal has also been set up. These members discussed their feelings on why students are at school.

Some responses given were, "To prepare us for the future," "To build character," and "to promote creativity and individual skills." Objectives and goals of the students were also discussed.

Bereuter Institute
By Jill Tompkins

On Monday, Nov. 14, four Wayne High students accompanied by their sponsor, Becky Kelley, attended the Bereuter Youth Institute at Nebraska Wesleyan University in Lincoln.

The students, Fran Gross, Dave Melton, Sharon McLain, and Amy Jordan, along with approximately 200 other students from the First Congressional District, were chosen on the basis of their interest in politics.

The Bereuter Youth Institute, sponsored by Representative Doug Bereuter, introduces students to national issues and allows them to voice their opinions.

Congressman Bereuter addressed the students at the opening session, but had to leave immediately for Washington, D.C. The program consisted of six pro debates on specific topics.

The topics this year were: education, national media concerns, election reform, space age weaponry, selected service registration vs. student loans, and using agriculture as a weapon. Representatives from each side debated on the issues.

After the debates, the students asked questions.

This is the third year the Bereuter Youth Institute has been held and also the third year Wayne has attended. Sponsor Kelley wishes the school could send more students each year because it is a valuable learning experience, but the institute limits number participation from each school.

Driver Education
By Michelle Brodsky

The decision to take driver education could save a person's life. Driver education is a vital course in which students learn proper vehicle maintenance and conduct.

Twenty five students, mostly ninth graders, are taking Driver Education at Wayne High School this year. The class is taught by Mike Mallette, and anyone who wishes to take it may do so.

The course involves reading a text book, participating in class room discussions, viewing films, and driving. The class room discussions usually center around the text book, which deals with driving impairments, speed regulations, vehicle maintenance and safety precautions.

Students are given the opportunity to tell about personal experiences and discuss current news bulletins concerning driving. The films, produced by organizations such as Insurance companies and the National Safety Council, deal with drunk driving, hazardous road conditions, and other threats to drivers.

Some of the movies contain rather gruesome shots of accidents, pictures not easily forgotten.

The students meet in the classroom until thirty hours are completed and then have the opportunity to apply what they have learned to actual driving. Each student drives once a week until he or she has driven for six hours.

Students take Driver Education for a number of reasons. The course prepares them for both the written test and the road test that one must take in order to obtain a driver's license.

Lower insurance rates are available for those who have completed Driver Education. But most importantly, students learn the basic safety rules necessary to driving and surviving.

Shorthand class
By Mary Beth Glinsmann

This year, the shorthand class has twelve students, mainly juniors and seniors. All students this year are girls. Mrs. Sharyn Paige teaches the class. She has a student teacher, Mrs. Julie Studnicka, helping her this quarter. Mrs. Studnicka is majoring in business education at Wayne State College and will graduate in May.

Activities in shorthand class include reading, and writing lessons in both longhand and shorthand. Dictation is taken by the students in shorthand as it is read by the teacher. Transcription is taken on three-minute timings.

Some of the things learned are brief forms for words such as "I" standing for the word "for". The shorthand alphabet is also learned along with phrases, theories, and quotations. Because shorthand is actually learning another language, it is not an easy subject and requires much time and devotion.

Many secretaries working in today's offices do take shorthand and need to use it on the job. There are several methods available. Wayne Carroll High School uses the Gregg method. At the same time, however, many secretaries do not take shorthand and will seldom, if ever, be faced with a situation in which they really need the skill.

Yet, potential employers continue to use the shorthand skill as a screening tool to fill job openings. A professional secretary to day still is likely to face occasions when shorthand is not only useful, but essential in doing a job correctly. Thus, shorthand continues to be offered as part of a secretarial curricula — at least on an elective basis.

One-act play chosen
By Jassi Johar

The Wayne High Drama Club recently began rehearsals of "Bottom's Dream" as a one-act play. "Bottom's Dream" is a comical excerpt from "A Midsummer Night's Dream" by William Shakespeare.

The cast of 17, selected last week is David Melton-Bottom; Peter March Oberon; Kim Weaver Titania; Michelle Brodsky Puck; Vini Johar-King; Laura Victor-Queen; David Remer-Quince; Rodney Porter Flute; Chris Hillier Snout; Donald Whisenant-Snug; Jassi Johar Starveling; Christy Neisius Mustardseed; Jill Tompkins-Moth; Kari Garwood-Cobweb; Shellie Schroeder-Peeblesom; David Zahniser-Lord of the Court; Sandy Blenderman Lady of the Court.

The play is directed by Ted Blenderman and will be presented Jan. 18 at Wayne State College for the district one-act play contest.

Julie Studnicka
By Tammib Denton

The student teacher this semester for business classes is Julie Studnicka, who is teaching Typing I, Typing II, General Business, and Shorthand. She assists Mrs. Paige and Mr. Darrel Heier.

Mrs. Studnicka is now a resident of Wayne, but originally came from Burwell, Nebraska. She is married and has two daughters. Her degree in college is a field endorsement in business. She chose business because she has had experience as a secretary.

Mrs. Studnicka is interested in teaching the high school level because she likes to work with teenagers and finds it challenging. Once she graduates, Mrs. Studnicka would like to teach clerical and accounting classes, as well as coach girls' basketball and track.

Mrs. Studnicka finds Wayne High a pleasant place to work, and she says, "The teachers have been very helpful, as well as the students." She will be student teaching for 10 weeks, until December 16, and will graduate in May.

winside public schools

Helicopter visit

The students at Winside school were treated to a visit from an army helicopter on Friday, Nov. 4. The army recruiter from Norfolk was showing off some of the army equipment. The helicopter was a "Huey" complete with 30 caliber machine guns. Three crew members brought the ship from Ft Riley Kansas to visit area schools.

Flag presentation

A special part of our recent Veteran's Day program was the presentation of an American Flag to the school. The 4 foot by 6 foot flag was presented to the school by Mrs. Vera Mann and Mr. Ollan Koch from the Legion Auxiliary and the American Legion. Mr. Don Leighton, superintendent accepted the flag. It will be displayed in the school multi-purpose room.

Conference vocal clinic

Twenty students from Winside High School travelled to Coleridge on Tuesday, Nov. 15 for a vocal clinic. The clinic is sponsored by the Lewis and Clark Conference. Eight area schools took part in the all-day event that was capped off by an evening concert. The students from the schools were directed by Dr. Harry Moon from Morningside College. The traveling trophy for audience numbers went to Wausa who had more people in the audience than any of the other participating schools.

The Wakefield school news is compiled by Jane Gustafson, reporter for Future Business Leaders of America (FBLA), as a special service project. Many people contribute ideas and information.

District FHA
The Wakefield Chapter of the Future Homemakers of America (FHA) hosted the District 5 FHA Fall Convention at Wakefield on Nov. 16 from 9:15 to 2:30. This year's theme was "Take My Hand."

The 11 schools attending were: South Sioux City Junior High, South Sioux City Senior High, Emerson-Hubbard, Pender, Allen, Laurel, Randolph, Stanton, West Point, Wisner-Pilger and Wakefield. There were a total of 280 faculty and students present.

The program opened with a flag raising ceremony held by the Girl Scout troop. The Wakefield High Trojan Band, under the direction of Mrs. Diane Trullinger, played "The Star Spangled Banner," and Superintendent Harman and Mayor Olson greeted the group.

Dianna Mesch of Stanton. The main speaker for the morning was Suzanne Murphy, director of the Nancy Burns School of Modeling in Norfolk.

In the afternoon sessions were held to educate both the students and their leaders about problems in the home, and possible career ideas. The sessions and their instructors were as follows: 1. Hair by Stewart's of Sioux City, 2. Domestic Violence by Saryn Nori and Kathy Sage, both of Norfolk, 3. Self-Defense by Robert Lankford of Norfolk, 4. FHA and You by Kamie Van Seggern of Stanton, 5. Families and Futures by Missy Kauth of Bloomfield, and 6. Healthy Student Bodies by Trudi Bullock of Stanton and Kim Latgree of West Point.

At the end of the day, votes were taken for state officer candidates. The representatives from District 5 are: Cheri Stevens of Randolph and Beckie Rafjke of Wisner-Pilger. One of these girls will be elected state officer from District 5 in April at State Leadership Conference.

Mrs. Kathy Mitchell, home economics teacher at Wakefield and District 5 FHA advisor, aided the District FHA members plan and carry out a very worthwhile day for many area FHA members.

County government day
The Junior class at Wakefield High attended County Government Day on Tuesday, Nov. 22, at the Courthouse in Ponca. The program is sponsored by the American Legion posts and auxiliaries.

This year is the first year that all students in the Junior class attended as all students were invited to take part. The class elected 16 officers.

The officers were: county superintendent, Brian Soderberg; county clerk, Melodie Witt; county assessor, Craig Dolph; clerk of the district court, Mark Kubik; county judge, Mike Murphy; county surveyor, Joey Borg, county sheriff, Wayne Newton, attorney, Jane Gustafson, county extension agent, Kenneth Meyer; veterans service officer, Kelly Barker; welfare assistance director, Roni Starzl; county supervisor, Daria Hartman; FHA director, Marcia Nelson; reporter, Rachel Prochaska; county treasurer; Cindy Jeppson. Jody Wilkerson went as a juror.

SAD season starts
The Wakefield Speech and Drama (SAD) group held an organizational meeting on Tuesday, Nov. 22. The main purpose of the meeting was to encourage new members to join. The SAD season officially starts on Dec. 1, when the members will start working on their events. Each member is working toward a letter in Speech and Drama.

The sponsors have chosen both the play for one-act contest, and the plays for the Jan. 14 SAD public performance. The play for one-act contest is a melodrama titled "The Banker's Dilemma." This play, along with a comedy, "The Ugly Duckling," will be performed on Jan. 14.

Music notes

Fourteen vocal students from Wakefield attended the Conference Vocal Clinic held in Coleridge on Tuesday, Nov. 15. The 14 attending were seniors Kelly Grove, Susan Rouse, Karla Stelling, Marie Turner, Kiela Lund, and Julie Wageman; juniors Jane Gustafson, Cindy Jeppson, Kelly Barker, Craig Dolph, Mike Murphy, and Kenneth Meyer; freshman: Tim Schwarten. The Girls Swing Choir sang "Side By Side." This was a choreographed number, and was done for the clinician, Harry Moon. The students were accompanied by their director, Mrs. Diane Trullinger.

Three vocal students from Wakefield also attended the State Music Clinic in Kearney held from Nov. 17 through Nov. 19. The students attending were: Kiela Lund, alto; Karla Stelling, alto; and Rachel Prochaska, soprano. Mrs. Diane Trullinger, their director, accompanied the students on this trip.

Freshmen compose at typewriters

Freshman students in Typing I were given three or four worked sentence starters and asked to compose three of four paragraphs at the typewriter. Their teacher is Mrs. Becky Swanson. Some examples are given here:

"I like to use computers because they are fun and they also help me learn. You can play games that are for fun or for learning. You can also make up programs of your own to have fun or learn. They help you learn how to use the computer."

"There is a lot to know about the computer and sometimes it can be very frustrating to learn everything. Once I learn everything I need to, I'm sure it will be a lot easier to use the computer and also have fun while I'm doing it."

"I think it would be fun to have a computer of my own so I could learn more about it and be able to use it whenever I want to. I could use it to help me with school work or with everyday things. It would also be a good learning device for my whole family."

By Stacy Kuhl

"If I had a choice to use a computer or not I would surely use it. The main reason is that computers are becoming the 'in' thing these days. If you don't have many computer skills it is going to be pretty tough to find a job that fits your qualifications. It would be very helpful to have these skills."

When a person gets to a computer that person will find it a lot easier to find a job in the job market. Also a lot of schools are now looking for people to teach computer classes.

"Buying a computer will be a good investment if you think about it for a while. First of all, because you would have an important resource at your fingertips. Plus it will help you do your everyday chores such as bookkeeping, taxes and your family budget more quickly."

By Tim Schwarten

"If I could be the person I want to be, I would try to think more of others and consider their feelings. I would try to be in a good mood all the time and help people with their problems."

"Working harder would be one of my goals. I would make sure to do a more thorough job and to give it my all. I'd spend the time necessary to really be proud of my work."

"I'd also become more willing to try new things that could make my life more enjoyable. I'd do things I've never done but always dreamed of doing. But most of all I would try to do something to help people and the world we live in."

By Susan McQuistan

"If I had a lot of money, I would have a great mansion in some great place and I would have servants doing all of my work for me. I would help the countries of the world with the troubles that they are having and try to keep peace with all the nations so that there will not have any nuclear wars or anything."

"I would have people working for me to try and figure out ways to cure such diseases as cancer or other bad diseases that would influence the world and how we live. I would also donate some of my money to charity so that starving and hungry children and adults would not be starving anymore and they would appreciate me for what I have done and I hope that many other people like me will not be greedy and take all of their money and help others like I am doing."

"I would make the world to be a brighter place to live in and make all the little children of the world happier and paint their little faces and make them bring shining faces. And I would not just keep it for myself."

By Bobby Greve

"If I were president, I would try to get all the men that have been missing since Vietnam and bring them all home. I would at least try to find out if they were safe and if we could bring them home because we miss them a lot. If we could at least let the families that they were safe or had died that would be better than not knowing at all."

"I would try to lower taxes and prices to help the poor. If I could do that then maybe everyone might be happy. I would try to find jobs for everyone in the country and make sure that they will stay at their job until they want to quit, retire or are fired."

"If they did retire I would make sure that they would get support from the government. If everyone did have a job maybe that could cut down on crimes and burglaries. I would really like to make this country a very nice place to live in."

By Jennifer Salmon

Elementary news

Many exciting things are happening in the elementary school in Wakefield. On Nov. 22, Mrs. Eaton's third grade class went to the Senior Citizen's Center. Here they read "Thankful" stories that they had written.

A panel of four judges listened to the students and rated the stories. Out of the 25 students, first place was given to Angela Peterson, second place to Becky Stout, third place to T. J. Preston, and as there was a tie for fourth place a name was drawn and the winner was Wendy Lubertedi.

Prizes were given to all the winners, and all of the class members were treated by the Center. The stories are currently posted at the Senior Citizen's Center.

On Friday, Nov. 18, brass instrument assembly was given to all students in grades kindergarten through eighth by Tim Johnson of Kansas City.

The name of the assembly was "World of Brass," and Tim explained the brass instruments to the students. He also played the instruments, along with a taped accompaniment. Many favorable comments were heard and the overall opinion was that the assembly was very well done.

Peru dumps Wildcats

Wayne State's roundballers dropped a 75-69 decision to Peru State last Tuesday night on the road. It was a game Wildcat head coach Rick Weaver said he would rather have watched than coached.

"It was a pretty good ballgame," Weaver said. "It was a good, fun game."

At least it was good for the Wildcats after the first few minutes of the game. The Cats quickly found themselves down by a score of 20-9.

"Peru State came out hot," Weaver said. "Wayne State finally got untracked and managed to pull within one point at halftime, 37-36."

The second half saw the Cats tie the score at 63 before the Bobcats pulled out the win. "It was tied and they hit three straight and we missed three straight -- that was the ballgame," Weaver said. "We didn't get in the one-on-one and took some floor shots we shouldn't have."

"We didn't take our time," Weaver said the Cats "definitely had a chance to win."

"We had several chances to go up by four or five points but we just couldn't get over the hump," Weaver said.

He added that fouls, which plagued the Cats in their first three games of the District 11 Classic were not a concern against Peru. Calvin Sprew had four fouls -- the highest total of any Wildcat. Wayne State had only 16 team fouls against the Bobcats versus a total of 47 in their first two outings.

"As far as out team effort was concerned, I was pleased -- of course you're always disappointed with a loss," Weaver said. "We executed well, but we have a few things to iron out."

Senior guard Russ Uhing led all Wildcat scorers with 15 points while Sprew added 13 from his forward position.

The Cats turned the ball over 14 times against the Bobcats.

After four games, Sprew is leading the Cats in scoring, with a nine-point per game average. Teammate Lonell Green is second with a six-point average.

The Wildcats were scheduled to play NCAA Division I University of Northern Iowa at the Uni-Dome in Cedar Falls, Iowa on Saturday night.

The Cats will travel to Blair to take on the Vikings of Dana College tomorrow (Tuesday) in a 7:30 p.m. contest.

Wildlife habitat to be featured

A series of slides depicting the value of Nebraska's wetlands as critical habitat for a variety of wildlife species will be the main feature of the Dec. 1 Outdoor Nebraska TV show at 7:30 p.m., Thursday evening on ETV.

Also scheduled is a filmed glimpse at Dead Timber State Recreation Area near Scribner and the final segment of a two part outdoor workshop on outdoor pests.

If you happen to miss the initial showing Thursday evening, be sure to tune in Sunday after noon at 1 p.m. when the show will be rebroadcast on ETV.

Devil Boosters to meet tonight

The Wayne Carroll Booster Club will hold a general membership meeting tonight in the Wayne High School commons area.

The meeting is scheduled to begin at 7:30 and everyone is welcome to attend.

'Game Thief' arrests pile up

Information gained through Nebraska's Operation Game Thief Program has helped conservation officers and courts crack down on game law violators. In recent weeks many hunting violations have been prosecuted in courts across the state.

Several game violation cases have been processed in county courts across the state in recent weeks, including:

A 22-year-old Morse Bluff man recently paid a total of $1,850 in fines, liquidation damages and court costs in Saunders County Court after pleading guilty to one count of possessing a deer in closed season and two counts of possessing furbearers in closed season. He was found guilty by the court on a second charge of possessing deer in closed season after he entered a plea of "no contest" to that charge. The court fined him a total of $1,200 on the violations and demanded he pay $650 in liquidation damages and $21 court costs.

A 42-year-old Lt. Colonel from Gurler Air Force Base in Montgomery, Ala. and his 18-year-old son were fined a total of $2,512 after pleading guilty to a number of game violation charges. The pair was arrested in Beatrice while attempting to leave the state with 39 pheasants, 45 quail and a duck in their possession. In addition to being charged with being over the possession limit on the pheasants and quail, the man was charged with hunting with a resident license and his son was charged with hunting with no license. The trip was also marred for the two when the younger was accidentally wounded in a hunting accident early in the season. A member of another group hunting in the same area accidentally shot the boy in the hand, arm, leg and chest while firing at a covey of quail. Though the boy was not seriously injured, he was taken to the hospital for medical treatment.

Three Tennessee hunters were stopped while boarding their jet at the Beaufort airport and found to have 71 quail in their possession, 13 over the legal limit. The three were fined a total of $347 in Gage County Court.

While opening day was a good one for hunters in the Ellis area, it was also an expensive one for two hunters from Georgia and one from Oklahoma. The three were part of a group of 15 hunters who had a total of 86 pheasants in their possession when stopped by officers. The two hunters from Georgia each paid $221 in fines and liquidation damages and the hunter from Oklahoma paid $196 in fines and liquidation damages for having more than their legal limit of pheasants.

Persons who see or have knowledge of game violations can contact their nearest conservation officer to report the offense, or can call Operation Game Thief's toll-free hotline, (800) 742-7627. Poachers steal from everyone.

Schools

...covered seven pages of the 1983 Children's Book Week. The Book Week was Nov. 22-28, and the students and teacher at Wakefield Elementary had fun getting into books in a variety of ways.

The entire elementary was quiet for fifteen minutes each morning when SQUIRT time was observed. SQUIRT stands for Super Quiet, Uninterrupted, Individual Reading Time. The students also covered the walls outside their rooms with paper footprints which told the title and author of the book they read during the week.

Mrs. Jackie Ditman, the student art teacher, helped the students illustrate their completed books in a variety of ways. The students made placemats, posters, origami mobiles, and the biggest project, a quilt.

The fourth grade, taught by Mrs. Ruth Leonard, has been working on creative writing. This week they wrote down their "Thoughts On Friends." The classes' thoughts are listed here.

A friend is who lets you borrow his bike.
A friend is like the Peanuts gang and always likes to talk.
A friend is someone to help you fix your bike.
A friend is someone to cheer you up when you're down.
A friend is a person who can lead you around in a new place.
A friend is a person who cares for you.
A friend is somebody that invites you over.
A friend is a person that plays with you.
A friend is like a grandpa that gives you candy.
A friend is like a brother that plays with you.
A friend is a person that cheers

you up when you are down.
A friend is like a rainbow that tells you the rain is done.
A friend is like having your teddy bear hooked on you.
A friend is like having your shadow follow you.
A friend is someone to do things with, someone to depend on.
A friend is like a favorite toy, or a game that you won.
A friend is a person who doesn't want to do what you want, but does.
A friend is like a pillow to lay your troubles on.
A friend is someone you tell secrets to, play games with, and do other things with.
A friend is a person that never forgets what you told them when you do.
A friend is like a happy bubbly brook that never overflows.
A friend is the person who you can depend on to keep a secret anyone else would tell.

A friend is like the piece that finishes a puzzle.
A friend is like having your teddy bear hooked on you.
