Telephone customers will see changes

Nebraska telephone customers will experience some changes in 1984 as the AT&T divestiture takes place and deregulation of the telephone industry continues.
But according to R.J. Hargitt, Northwestern Bell vice president and chief executive officer for Nebraska, basic telephone service will remain much the same for customers served by his company.
"Northwestern Bell will still be the same company in all the important ways," Hargitt said. "To start, stop, move or change their local telephone service, customers will do as they do now—call Northwestern Bell's business office." The number is listed in the customer guide section of phone books and on telephone bills.

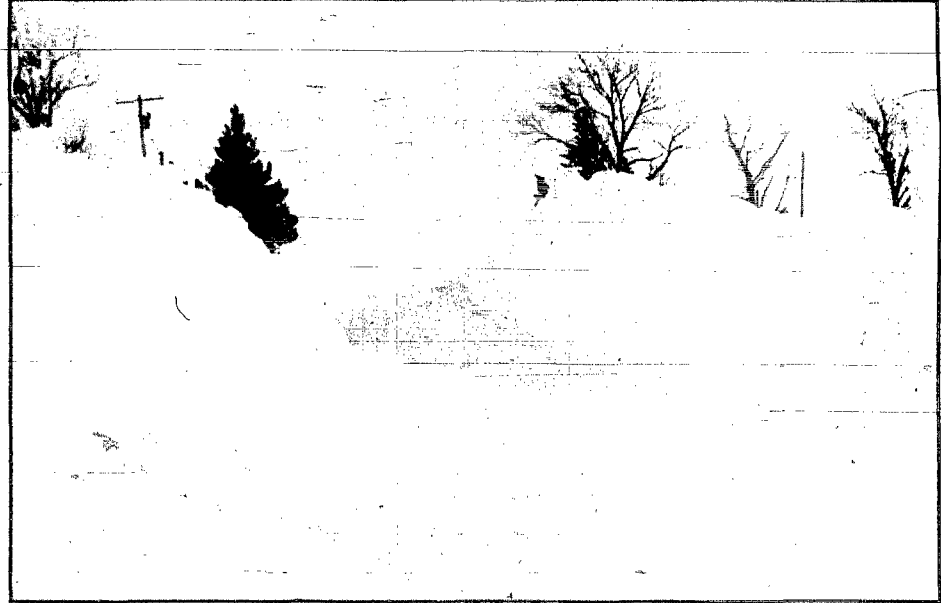

with several options.
Customers may continue to lease their present phones from AT&T; buy their present leased equipment from AT&T; or buy telephone equipment from a number of suppliers.
"Northwestern Bell will maintain telephone lines right up to the point where they enter a customer's home or business," Hargitt said. "Most of our customers are paying 50 cents a month for our wiring maintenance plan, which means we will fix any wiring inside their home or business at no extra charge."
According to Hargitt, customers who do not pay the 50 cent monthly charge can still call Northwestern Bell for service and pay the normal service rate. They also can repair the wiring themselves.

bill for long distance service from AT&T. Customers should still send their payments to Northwestern Bell for the total amount due on the front page of the telephone bill, which will include amounts for local and long distance service.
"We know the combination of divestiture and deregulation has caused confusion for many Northwestern Bell customers, and we'll try to make things as clear as we can," Hargitt said. "We hope our customers will read and save the materials that come with their bills, because that's how we'll keep them informed."
LOCAL MEASURED service is an alternative to traditional unlimited local service at one price. Some Northwestern Bell customers in Nebraska can now obtain local measured service and use it to help manage their telephone costs, Hargitt said.
Grand Island became the first Nebraska city to have local measured service in April of 1982. Since then, Allen, Waterbury, Laurel and Wakefield were among the communities following their move.

vic costs $7.02 per month, plus a charge for each local call. The charges for each call are as follows:
• 0-10 miles: 5 cents for the first minute, 1 cent for each additional minute.
• 11-15 miles: 7 cents for the first minute, 1.3 cents for each additional minute.
• 16-20 miles: 9 cents for the first minute, 1.5 cents for each additional minute.
• 21-25 miles: 11 cents for the first minute, 1.7 cents for each additional minute.
• 26-35 miles: 13 cents for the first minute, 1.9 cents for each additional minute.
THE $7.02 MONTHLY rate for local measured service includes $1 worth of calls. In addition, calls are eligible for the same time of day, weekend and holiday discounts applied to long distance calls.
About 40 percent of Northwestern Bell's Nebraska customers now have the option of choosing local measured service.
Equipment in other communities will be added or converted during 1984 and 1985, and Northwestern Bell estimates that by 1986 all the customers it serves in Nebraska will be able to use local measured service as an option.

Videos win 1st challenge

Video lottery machines in Nebraska apparently have passed their first test under legality.
An agreement was reached last Wednesday which will keep the machines in operation at least until courts decide the legality of video machines under state lottery laws, U.S. Attorney Ron Labners said Wednesday that gaming companies legally may bring unprogrammed computer chips into Nebraska where they may be programmed and installed in machines.
TWO GAMING companies, Video Consultants of Nebraska and International Game Technology of Nebraska, will be able to operate within the law as a result of the agreement.
Wayne is one of the four Nebraska communities operating video lotteries. The others are Bellevue, Fort Calhoun and Pawnee City. Wayne is serviced by Video Consultants of Nebraska.
The two companies agreed to replace computer chips in their machines in order to abide by federal interstate transportation laws. Some of the chips had been programmed outside of Nebraska.
The next test facing video lotteries is their legality under state lottery laws. Attorney General Paul Douglas, the city of Bellevue and the two lottery companies have asked the courts to determine their legality.

Centennial pork feed to kick off celebration

Wayne County Pork Producers will kick off Wayne's centennial celebration this year with a Ground Hog Day pork feed on Thursday, Feb. 2.
A spokesman for the organization said the public is invited to join in the celebration at the Wayne city auditorium.
Pork sandwiches will be served from 4 to 8 p.m. The meal also will include relishes, applesauce, beans, sauerkraut, potato chips, and coffee, milk or an orange drink.
Advance tickets will go on sale shortly at both Wayne banks and at the Chamber of Commerce office.
Cost of the meal, which also will include a serving of birthday cake, will be $1.75 for one sandwich and $2.25 for two sandwiches.
THE GROUND Hog Day pork feed also will be the kick off date for the centennial beard contest sponsored by the Wayne Lions Club.
Persons planning to take part in the beard contest will be invited to register that evening.
Area residents attending the pork feed also are invited to dress in centennial garb. Centennial commemoratives will be on sale during the evening in the Woman's Club room.
OTHER EVENTS tentatively scheduled during the next few months in observance of the city's 100th birthday include a juried photography show at the city auditorium March 9-11, and storyteller D. Hutchinson at the city library on March 25. Centennial cookbooks also will go on sale at that time.
Other events include a Fresh Aire concert, Wayne State College Rice Auditorium, April 5; tree planting, Sunnyview Park, April 22; Religious Heritage Day, April 29; Nebraska art collection, Wayne State College Fine Arts Center, beginning May 20; Nebraska art reception, Fine Arts Center, June 3; softball tournament, June 30 to July 1; Chicken Show, July 13-15; and blue rock shoot, Wayne County Fairgrounds, July 22. The grand celebration is scheduled to take place Aug. 29 through Sept. 7.

Winter's cold streak rockets gas bills

Residents of Wayne are beginning to see the effects of the recent record-breaking temperatures on their heating bills, according to Keith Mosley, district manager for Peoples Natural Gas Company.
"We don't want our customers to be surprised by their heating bills," Mosley said. "We know they will be higher than last year and possibly twice as much as last month because of the extremely cold weather we've had," he said, comparing December's bill to November's.
Mosley said this year's weather, from Nov. 27 through Dec. 20, has been 57.3 percent colder than the same period last year and approximately 55 percent colder than normal.
THE LOWER temperatures and extreme wind chill index on some days have caused furnaces to work longer and harder than they did last year, resulting in higher heating bills, Mosley said.
Customers comparing this year's bill to last year also are reminded to take into account the number of days covered by the bill, Mosley said.
"Normally, a monthly bill includes 30 days," he explained, "but due to holidays or other reasons, the length of the billing period may vary and could be as long as 35 days. A 35-day period is nearly 17 percent more than a 30-day period and can make a bill look unusually high."
Mosley said the good news is that natural gas prices are stabilizing and customers will receive a decrease in natural gas rates. "Unfortunately, the decrease will not be noticeable due to the cold weather," he said.
"WE REALIZE this winter's higher heating bills can cause problems for many customers and we do have programs to help," Mosley said.
Mosley said the first and most important step is for a customer to contact our office as soon as they see they may have a problem paying a bill. Special installment plans can be set up to assist them in payments.
"Many of our customers avoid high winter bills with the Even Pay Plan," Mosley said. That plan spreads the annual bill into even payments throughout the year.

One-room school systems: They have some advantages

This story is the first in a three-part series, taking a look at Wayne County rural schools, specifically one-room school houses. Nebraska is one of the few states in the country to still have a diverse rural school system.
Part 1 of this series looks at the advantages of rural schools. Part 2 will look at the disadvantages and part 3 will look at the students and their opinions.
Wayne County has 4 one-room schools: District 5, District 15, District 11, District 45, District 47 and District 77. Enrollments in the schools range from 5 students to 14.
In this series, teachers and students at those 4 schools express their opinions about rural schools. Stories and inside photo spreads of the schools will be included in this issue of The Wayne Herald and the 2 following issues.
By Randy Hascall
Rural schools, one-room schools in particular, have their advantages and disadvantages.
Most of the 4 teachers in Wayne County's one-room schools said they believe the advantages outweigh the disadvantages.
"It will be a shame if they ever close them (rural schools)," said Sharon Shelton, teacher at District 77 school, located 17 miles west and 3 miles south from Wayne.
THE TEACHERS agree that one of the main advantages is individual study and a one-on-one student to teacher relationship.
"One of the biggest advantages is individualized learning," said Nancy Ahlvers who has no more than 3 students in any class at District 15 school 4 miles north and 1 mile west of Wayne.
"If a student has an area where more help is needed, a teacher can give it," Mrs. Ahlvers said.
Arlene Ostendorf, who teaches 14 students at District 5, 9 miles south and 3 miles east of Wayne, has the largest number of students in any one room school.
"THE BIGGEST challenge is to get things done. I have some real good students and there is quite a bit of competition with so many students," Mrs. Ostendorf said.
The big ones work with the little ones and they learn from each other. The younger students can pattern after the older students who are good leaders," Mrs. Ostendorf added.
She said country school students have to become independent with their work. She added that she believes they are better at reading directions.

Mary Brady of District 33, 5 miles south and 5 miles east of Wayne, also said the biggest advantage of one-room schools is the availability of extra help for the students. She has only 3 students enrolled this year and expects to have only 1 next year.
"The kids get more individual help. The thing I like best is that with a small group you get to know the students better," Mrs. Brady said. "You get to know what their personalities are like and what their abilities are."
"I think the younger students work harder because there are older students in the same room. There is a higher level of competition there and more of a challenge," Mrs. Brady said.
FLEXIBILITY is another key advantage of one-room schools according to Virginia Gordon, who teaches 5 students at District 47 school, 5 miles west and 1 mile south from Wayne.
"Teachers are very flexible and can change their plans to make the daily schedule different and interesting," Mrs. Gordon said.
"Teachers can work one-to-one with students and know if they are ready to advance," she added. "I like teaching at country school and getting to know the families."
Mrs. Shelton of District 77 said she can see several advantages in country schools. "I think the kids are a lot more responsible and aren't under the pressure that students are in big schools. They're more free to go to the other students for help.
"The pressure isn't there scholastically. Parental support is fantastic and the school board is fantastic," Mrs. Shelton said. "And the kids really enjoy school. In little schools, everyone is involved."
"I CAN SEE where a student needs help and work on that area," said Mrs. Ahlvers of District 15. "We're involved in what we're doing and we don't have the pressure of someone over us. We do what we need to do."
"We're not an isolated bunch out here. The state has better facilities and many of our text books are the same as town schools," she said.
Mrs. Ahlvers said the older students always include the younger students in their activities. "And a second grader can ask an eighth grader for help if the first is busy," she added.
"We have no discipline problem in our school and very seldom is there a disagreement. We have a very nice school board and parent support is great."

PROBLEM AREAS are easier to pick out in smaller schools according to Lori Huddleston, who teaches 7 students at District 45 school, 2 miles west and 1 mile north of Wayne.
"You can pick out the problem areas and be flexible on how much time is spent on specific areas," she said. "Nobody gets shorried; individual needs can be met."
Mrs. Huddleston said students learn to help one another better than in larger schools.
Small schools can stick with the academics, she said. "We stress the three R's and probably tend to push more," Mrs. Huddleston said. "Students will use them no matter what they do."
She added that every school has a strength, depending on the teacher, but emphasized that country schools help students grasp academics.
"STUDENTS GET along in different grades better. They learn social skills that are good and learn they can ask others for help. The teacher is not the only resource."
Mrs. Gordon of District 47 agrees that the success of a country school depends on the teacher and the students. "If the teacher isn't good, the students won't learn," she added. "The teachers all agreed that the younger students learn from working with the older students."
And Mrs. Ostendorf of District 5 said she also believes the older students' knowledge is reinforced by working with the younger students.
CAROL CLARK, an itinerate special education teacher, is responsible for providing aid to 4 schools in Wayne County and 1 in Dakota County. She said special ed works well in the rural schools.
"We can do it in 1 room with another teacher there too and make it work well. Classroom teachers and I work together closely because there has to be a classroom," Mrs. Clark said.
She said she has found that rural school students get the same education and that students in town get.
"The boards are making everything visible to them 5 days a week. They have willing to go all out," she said. "They're interested in kids having proper education and they're willing to sacrifice themselves to that cause."
"I work with many handicapped students. Each student's needs are looked at individually and if they can't be served in the school, I feel the board would find help," she added.

Road conditions partly to blame as accidents mount

THE WAYNE Sheriff's Office was busy investigating 9 accidents over the holiday season. One of the accidents occurred 4.5 miles east of Wayne on Highway 35 and in-involved a car and van. The car was driven by Earlene Hradec of Walthill and the van was driven by John Tomrdle of Wayne.

The holiday season was full of accidents which were covered by the Wayne County Sheriff's Office. Some injuries were sustained but none appeared to be serious.

The most recent accident occurred Tuesday at an intersection 1 mile east of Winside. According to the report, Reba Mann of Winside was westbound up a hill and saw the lights of an eastbound vehicle driven by Gerald Pospisil of Wayne.

The report stated that Mann pulled over and tried to stop, but slid sideways and struck Pospisil's vehicle. There were no injuries.

THE SHERIFF'S office responded to 2 accidents within a matter of 15 minutes Thursday.

At about 12 noon, a car-van accident was reported 4.5 miles east of Wayne on Highway 35, involving Earlene Hradec of Walthill and John Tomrdle of Wayne.

The sheriff's report stated that a snowblower was working on the roadway and both vehicles were motioned through. Tomrdle said he couldn't see the roadway so he slowed down.

Hradec's car struck the rear end of Tomrdle's van. Hradec sustained scrapes on the lower leg and was transported to Providence Medical Center.

BEFORE THE sheriff's office was done investigating that accident, another occurred at an intersection 6 miles south of Wayne.

A vehicle driven by Timothy Book of Wayne was southbound on Highway 15 and was being followed by a vehicle driven by Lori Boyd of Lenexa, Kan.

According to the report, Book swung out wide, into the northbound lane to make a right turn at the intersection. Boyd said she thought he was going to turn left and did not slow down.

Book turned right and was struck by Boyd. Boyd said Book did not have his turn signal on but Book said he did. Boyd suffered scrapes on her hand and a bruise on her face and was taken to Providence Medical Center.

ON WEDNESDAY afternoon an accident was reported 5.5 miles east of Wayne.

David Staples of Norfolk said he was westbound on Highway 35 and met a second vehicle which was eastbound in the westbound lane.

Staples' vehicle struck a snow drift to avoid colliding with the other vehicle and rolled onto its left side after striking the drift. The driver had neck and back pains.

A similar accident occurred on Dec. 26, about 5.5 miles east of Wayne. David Nassiff of Norfolk said he was westbound on Highway 35 when he met another vehicle at the hillcrest.

He said the roadway was drifted partway shut, closing the westbound lane. In order to avoid the oncoming vehicle, Nassiff said he struck the drift. The vehicle rolled onto the driver's side. No injuries were reported.

A HIT-AND-RUN was reported Dec. 25 2.3 miles east of Wayne on Highway 35. Jeff Swanson of Walthill said his van had stalled Dec. 24. He parked the car off the highway and left it. When he returned the next day, the left side had been struck.

Two cars collided Dec. 23 in Carroll. A vehicle driven by Patricia Jenkins of Carroll was eastbound and a vehicle driven by Jodi Olson of Carroll was going northwest on a curved street.

According to the report, the Jenkins car had trouble on the curve and the two vehicles collided.

Winside's main street was the site of a two-car accident Dec. 22. William Anderson of Winside was attempting to turn his vehicle north on Vroman Street, slid on the icy street and struck a vehicle driven by Nancy Landanger of Winside, which was stopped at a stop sign.

FOUR VEHICLES were involved in an accident Dec. 21 3.9 miles east of Hoskins on Highway 35.

A semi-truck owned by Speedway Transportation of Holdrege was stuck in the ditch. Two tow trucks, one from Heckman Body Shop of Wisner and the other from Pender Body and Glass, were attempting to pull the semi out when a vehicle driven by Joseph Enderton of Webb, Iowa struck the cables.

Enderton said he saw the trucks with their flashers over the hill but didn't see the cables across the road and couldn't stop in time.

He sustained a lump on the right side of his head and a sore neck. A passenger, David Powley of Pender, suffered a bruised leg and arm.

Coin and stamp show planned

The Grand Island Coin Club will host its 21st annual coin and stamp show in Jan. 7th and 8th, 1984. The show will be held at the Midtown Holiday Inn in Grand Island. Hours are 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. on Saturday and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Sunday.

Nebraska's largest coin and stamp show will feature 46 dealer tables with coins from ancient Greece and Rome to the present time. Also available will be gold and silver bullion, stamps and supplies for the collector.

Dealers will be present from a 10 state area to assist the collector with their needs. The show is open to the public. There is no admission charge.

Civil Air Patrol meeting

The Wayne Squadron of Civil Air Patrol will meet Saturday to learn about CAP's cadet activities. The session is scheduled for 10 a.m. to about 4 p.m. in room 110 of Connell Hall on the WSC campus.

Squadron Commander Mitch Nissen has arranged for Lt. Col. Anna Maria Coverdel of Omaha to explain what the teenage cadet program is and does in the Civil Air Patrol. She is director of Nebraska Wing cadet operations. Cindy Schmitt of Omaha also will talk about the cadet program.

Jeff Bower of Lincoln's CAP squadron will talk about communications.

Two more meetings of the Wayne Squadron are scheduled this month: at 6:30 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 12, in Connell Hall (the room to be announced) and at 1 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 21 at the Municipal Airport.

Nissen said the squadron is open to additional members currently only senior members aged 18 and up. Anyone interested in any phase of aviation is welcome, and it is not necessary to be a pilot.

Eventually the local squadron expects to accept cadet members — ages 13 to 18.

Property tax reduction not likely viewpoint

By Melvin Paul
Nebraska Press Association

Some state lawmakers are saying it's unrealistic to expect enactment of any major activity property tax relief proposals during the 1984 session.

Those kinds of statements follow a summer and autumn during which most lawmakers were suggesting that property taxes would be at the top of the 1984 agenda.

SCHMITT CITED the Revenue Committee's recent inability to reach a consensus on more than half-dozen proposed plans for property tax relief. One of those plans, a revenue sharing proposal that would increase the state sales tax to 5 percent and set up a property tax relief refund fund, belongs to Schmitt.

The Bellwood senator said he's not giving up hope entirely, either on his idea or on the chances of forging a consensus plan on property tax relief.

Revenue Committee Chairman Cal Carsten of Avoca, whose committee conducted public hearings on property tax relief during the interim, says that he agrees with Schmitt that the prospects are "less encouraging," even though he still holds hope for action.

If the Legislature does decide to forge a major property tax relief proposal, some senators say, they would have plenty of state revenue to fund it. Current tax rates, according to official projection, would generate 12.5 percent more state revenue next fiscal year than this fiscal year.

Some senators say part of the anticipated increase state revenue should be diverted to local government aid programs to allow a reduction in property taxes.

THE NEBRASKA Department of Social Services has ordered administrative changes in the state Medicaid program that are expected to save about $4.4 million next fiscal year.

The federal-state program provides medical services to the needy. The changes include a family support program, in which family members would volunteer to pay part of the cost of nursing home care for their relatives. A test program is to begin in Lancaster County next year.

Eligibility changes, revised reimbursement formulas for nursing homes and a program to review use of drugs for Medicaid patients also are being implemented.

The changes are detailed in a recently issued report prepared by members of a department task force. No legislative recommendations are listed for the program. State Social Service Director Gina Dunning acknowledged that $4.4 million in savings is not enough, given the $159.6 million that the department will request for the Medicaid program next year.

Co-payments by Medicaid patients, in which they pay a nominal fee for drugs and medical services, are not recommended now. But Dunning said the department may need to use that approach if a better way to discourage overutilization of Medicaid services is not found.

IN ONE OF the less cosmic issues of the 1984 session, lawmakers are expected to clarify their right to have state government buy their coffee during the session.

Last July, state Department of Administrative Services Director Jack Sexton refused to pay a $230 bill for coffee consumed from two large pots which are maintained outside the legislative chamber during the session for senators, staff and guests, including reporters.

In refusing, Sexton cited a 1982 opinion by the attorney general which outlined restrictions on the types of expense payments which the state may make on behalf of its employees.

The Legislative Council Executive Board has agreed to introduce a bill to amend the statute dealing with allowable expenses with this sentence:

"Nothing in this section shall be construed to prohibit the furnishing of coffee, tea or any similar beverage by the Legislature or the Legislature Council to its employees or guests."

Safe sledding

It's nice of the city of Wayne to provide youngsters with a sledding hill within the city limits.

Hopefully, this is an area where motorists can take precautions to ensure the safety of all sledders. One motorist failed to do so Saturday.

The hill, located on Sherman Street from 3rd Street to 1st Street, is almost ideal for sledders. It has enough slope and packed snow to provide hours of enjoyment. And its location is convenient to much of the community.

The city has blocked off the street using "road block type" stop signs. The signs are designed to draw attention of motorists and make the street a safe place to sled.

Most of the motorists in that area have been real good about taking added precautions. Drivers look out for sledders, take extra care when driving and sometimes even go out of their way to avoid the street used for sledding.

However, not every driver is as cautious as most. Four elementary school girls had a close call Saturday as a Wayne woman drove her car up the street while the four were sledding.

The girls, lying down on runner sleds, had already begun their race down the hill when the woman began her climb, head-on toward the oncoming sledders.

The four girls were forced to run into the street curbs to get out of the woman's path. After reaching the top of the hill, the woman motioned at the road block and complained that it was young.

She obviously had no consideration for the youngsters. They were lucky and so was she. It wouldn't be easy to live with the knowledge that your wrecklessness had taken the life of some elementary school students.

She knows who she is and hopefully next time she'll be a little more considerate and careful.

No bargain

Cars are no longer just stolen by joyriders. Professional car thieves are pros at altering vehicle identification and supplying counterfeit documents for stolen cars that are often sold at rock bottom prices.

While being offered a luxury car for an unbelievably low price may be tempting to some, buying a "hot" car is not a bargain.

If the police discover that a person has purchased a stolen vehicle, the auto is automatically impounded and the buyer isn't able to recover either the car or the money spent on it.

Avoid being stuck with a stolen vehicle. AIC recommends these tips when buying a used car:

1. Deal only with a reputable dealer or an individual you know and trust. Be on your guard if a seller has no fixed address or phone number.
2. Be very suspicious if the price of a car offered is substantially lower than normal, such as $2,000 for a late model luxury car.
3. A fresh paint job on an almost new auto may indicate a coverup by thieves.
4. Don't buy a car that doesn't have all the proper paperwork. Check the car's Vehicle Identification Number (VIN) with the VIN listed on the title.
5. Avoid a deal if the seller absolutely demands cash.
6. Always obtain a receipt for the sale, which both parties have signed.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation's Uniform Crime Report indicates the peak theft year in the U.S. was 1980 when 1,114,651 vehicles were stolen.

In 1982, 1,048,310 vehicles were stolen, representing a 2.4 percent decrease over 1981 when 1,073,988 vehicles were stolen. These statistics underscore the size of the auto theft problem in the U.S.

Congratulations due

To the editor:
I want to say congratulations to the Wayne High boys basketball team for winning the Wayne State Holiday Tournament last Friday.

It's just too bad there weren't any cheerleaders around to lead the crowd in cheers but then we did have 5 little boys from Wayne stand up 3 times and lead the crowd and they did very well.

I wonder if any of the regular cheerleaders were there and took notes. They could have learned a lot.

Too little praise

To the editor:
We don't think enough praise is being given to the nurses and the nurses aids at the Wayne Care Centre. They are expected to give baths, keep people clean and dry, feed them, listen to their problems, keep their morale up, follow state regulations, and take them down to the activities daily.

We really hope that the community appreciates having the gifted people here to help care for their loved ones. Because you know it takes someone really special to work at a care centre.

We sometimes feel that they are not acknowledged for all the great work that they do, not even thank yous in the papers when a family member has been cared for, for many years.

Voter registration report shocking

By Richard L. Leshar
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

Political Power Flows From The Ballot Box
Call the Justice Department. Bring out the National Guard and pass out the bayonets. Hundreds of thousands of men and women have been left behind by two decades of civil rights legislation, ignored by the Voting Rights Act, passed over by federal marshals and federally funded voter registration drives.

The United States Census Bureau recently reported that more than 25 percent of the men and women in this group are not registered to vote. In fact, in the last election, 40 percent of them did not vote. Who are they? They are American businessmen and women.

THE CENSUS REPORT is shocking and frightening, because the upcoming 1984 elections are critical to our nation, its economic growth and the opportunities and future that will face our children. Political observers have predicted that the November 1984 elections—from the presidency to the Congress to the state houses—will be largely determined by voter registration and get out the vote drives now under way.

The Rev. Jesse Jackson, now an announced presidential candidate, has begun a drive to register over five million black voters. Big Labor has been working hard to organize and register voters who will support their hand-picked candidates. Voter registration drives are also being mounted in the Hispanic community and by activists both supporting and opposing unilateral disarmament.

Where does this leave the business community and its political goals of lower taxes, low inflation and economic growth? Well, if nothing is done—as has happened in past elections—it leaves them out in the cold.

The men and women in the business community who build factories, homes and roads may get credit in heaven for creating 3.6 million new jobs this year alone, but it's clear they do not get any credit in Washington.

The business community is, of course, terribly concerned about the overspending, excessive regulation and threatened higher taxes which close down businesses and destroy jobs. But if businessmen and women do not get out and register and vote in larger numbers, congressmen will, quite understandably, listen instead to the voices clamoring for more and more government goodies, voices coming from those who understand the tremendous power that comes with voting.

IT MAY SEEM harsh, but it is true nonetheless, that if you do not register and vote, as far as the politicians are concerned, you just don't count.

The problem is clear enough: too much federal spending, too much government and too many bureaucrats. This, because the "gimme" crowd has decided that it is easier to vote for a living than it is to work for one.

What, then, is to be done?
The U.S. Chamber of Commerce has just announced a drive to register hundreds of thousands of men and women committed to the ideals of limited government and economic growth.

The goal is to energize the entire chamber federation—the national chamber, state and local chambers of commerce, trade associations, and individual businessmen and women—to register pro-growth voters and then to make sure they get to the polls on election day.

The chamber will work with the entire business community to educate prospective voters on their state's registration laws, to encourage businesses to set up voter registration tables, to make sure that employees who are transferred from one state to another get registered, and to get absentee ballots to employees who must travel on election day or who are working overseas.

It won't be easy. It will, in fact, be a great deal of work. But continued economic growth and the creation of new jobs are more than worth the effort.

So I would say to the businessmen and women of America, while you continue to invest in new products and services, start new businesses and create the jobs that put Americans to work, take the time to register to vote. And because the free enterprise system which made America the greatest nation on earth is worth preserving for tomorrow and our children's tomorrows, plan now to vote on November 6, 1984.

Head 'em up an move 'em to Mexico

By Cheryl Stubbendieck
Nebraska Farm Bureau

The Texas Department of Agriculture has come up with a novel solution to the problem of surplus dairy cows: head 'em up an move 'em out—to Mexico.

The dairy bill signed by President Reagan encourages dairymen to cut back on milk production by as much as 30 percent. Cattlemen fear that more than a million dairy cows could be sold for slaughter, thereby depressing beef prices.

Seems Mexico has a milk shortage and it's been wanting to build up its dairy industry for some time by buying U.S. cows. But it hasn't been able to pay the going price of $1,200 or so for bred heifers.

cows could emigrate to Mexico at more attractive prices. Surplus cows sold under the new dairy bill will probably bring less than $500, according to the Texas officials, so why doesn't Mexico buy 'em for maybe a couple hundred more than that?

As Texas ag head Jim Hightower sees it, "That way, you've got 3 happy faces—U.S. dairy producers get a better price; our cattle raisers don't have all the surplus dumped on the domestic market and Mexico gets good quality milk cows at an affordable price. It makes sense to us."

According to Hightower, the proposal also makes sense to Mexico's top dairy officials, who lured Texas dairies and cooperatives.

They were very impressed by the quality of the cows that would be available to them to buy, and we are extremely optimistic that Texas dairy producers will soon have an opportunity to move some of their herds directly into the transnational marketing channel.

Perhaps as a result of that trip to Texas, Mexican ag officials have specifically allocated $30 million of a total of $1-billion in U.S. credit guarantees toward the purchases of dairy stock.

TEXAS AG officials say they have "a leg up" on other states in making these sales. In addition to their proximity to Mexico, they say they thought of it first, they were the first to invite the Mexicans to visit, and they've got top-quality dairy stock already adapted to the Mexican climate.

They say Mexico has promised to turn to them first, but the ball is back in the Texans' court. It remains to be seen how many Texas cows meeting Mexico's quality specifications will be put on the market as dairy farmers sign up for the new federal program.

Most dairy farmers sign up for the new federal program.

Most dairy farmers are waiting for the final program regulations from USDA before deciding whether or not to participate in the program, so the Texans don't expect to know until early February how many Texas cows might be available for a modern day cattle drive. In the meantime, they're asking Texas dairy farmers who are interested in selling dairy cattle to Mexico to contact them.

At most, the Mexican government is interested in purchasing 30,000 dairy cows in the next year. That's somewhat less than our total expected surplus of one million, but still it's a big part of the surplus.

Whether the Texas scheme will head off lower prices for beef can't be seen at this point, but one thing is apparent: you can't fault the Texans for creative thinking.

ALLEN POSTMASTER Clarence (Bud) Jeffrey retired this week, ending his 25-year career with the postal service. Pictured with Jeffrey is Rachel Belt of Emerson, who will serve as officer in charge at the Allen Post Office until a new postmaster is named.

Postmaster retires Allen man ends 25-year career

Allen's postmaster for the past 25 years is putting away the stamps and dusting off his hunting rifle. Clarence (Bud) Jeffrey, who was appointed postmaster at Allen on July 16, 1958 by President Dwight D. Eisenhower, retired this week.

On Tuesday, the day Bud's retirement became effective, several friends in the community dropped by the post office for coffee and to wish the retiring postmaster best wishes.

"I've enjoyed my career in here and I'm going to miss it. I know that," smiles 61 year old Bud as he familiarly glances around the mail room.

A NATIVE of Dixon, Bud moved with his family to a farm southeast of Allen at the age of 4.

A veteran of both World War II and the Korean War, he farmed with his father following graduation from Allen High School and until entering the service.

Following service, Bud continued the farming partnership with his father. He purchased his first farm near his parents' home place in 1954.

Bud continued to farm until 1958 when he was appointed postmaster. Bud said his decision to quit farming and accept the postmaster's position was not difficult. "I had back problems and had no choice," he smiles.

BUD MOVED off the farm in 1962 when he and his wife, the former Doris Barnes of Wayne, built a new home in Allen. "That was the same year Allen built a new post office," recalls Bud, adding "that was a hectic year."

In addition to serving the community as postmaster, Bud was a volunteer member of the Allen-Waterbury Fire Department and Rescue Squad until last year. He presently is a member of the Allen American Legion and the National Association of Postmasters.

He and his wife are the parents of four daughters, including Carol (Mrs. Thomas) Reed, who farms with her husband near Dakota City; Glenda (Mrs. Daniel) Keenan of Omaha; Janet (Mrs. John) Broderson of Omaha; and Sandra, who is single and resides in Ralston. Glenda, Janet and Sandra are all employed by Western Casualty Insurance Co. in Omaha. Seven grandchildren range in ages from 4 to 10 and include Jeff and Jamie Reed, Annette, Christopher and Rebecca Keenan, and twins Michael and Chad Broderson.

BUD, ALONG with retired Hartington postmaster Frederic Stevens, will be honored during a supper tentatively scheduled next month at Ron's Steakhouse in Carroll.

"Now I'll be able to enjoy myself before I get to the point I can't," smiles Bud, adding that he and his wife will continue to reside in Allen. Bud looks forward to traveling with his wife in addition to pursuing his hobbies of reading, fishing and hunting.

RACHEL BELT of Emerson will serve as officer in charge at the Allen Post Office until a new postmaster is named. Belt has served as clerk 12 1/2 years and substitute mail carrier 4 years at the Emerson Post Office. Bud said a new Allen postmaster is expected to be named by the postmaster general within the next 4 to 6 months.

Granddaughter December bride in Columbus church

The marriage of Pamela Jo Thomsen to Alan Keith Penfield was solemnized in 7 p.m. rites Dec. 30 at the Federated Church in Columbus.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Thomsen of Columbus, and the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Pryor and Mrs. Lydia Thomsen, all of Wayne.

Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Keith Penfield of Columbus.

The Rev. Lee Hicks of Columbus officiated at the couple's double ring rites. Soloist was David Locke of Columbus.

GUESTS WERE registered by Kim Hoehne of Stanton and ushered into the church by Bob Halar of Columbus and Cal Dixon of Newman Grove. Candlelighter was Johnnie Heute of Columbus.

Flower girls were Susan Pryor of Norfolk and Tracy Tobliason of Columbus, and ring bearer, was Tommy Pryor of Norfolk.

Honor attendants for the couple were Denise Dixon of Newman Grove and Sherman Conkle of Columbus.

Bridesmaids were Carol Eller of Bellwood and Marla Graf of Columbus, and groomsmen were Conley Perry of Shelby and Brian Carlson of Columbus.

THE BRIDE, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a long, white gown of chiffon over taffeta.

Her dress was styled with a Queen Anne neckline, bishop sleeves, and an A-line skirt with a cathedral train.

Her veil was bordered in lace and fell from a crown headpiece, and she carried roses and carnations.

The bride's attendants wore dusty rose frocks in floor length, styled with spaghetti straps and coordinating floral quilted jackets. They wore headbands of flowers and carried fans with roses and carnations.

The men in the wedding party were attired in burgundy luxododes.

The bride's mother wore an aqua polyester chiffon dress, and the bridegroom's mother chose a cream colored polyester crepe dress.

FOLLOWING THE ceremony, a reception for 200 guests was held at the American Legion Hall in Columbus.

Gifts were arranged by Rita Eller of Bellwood, and hosts were Mr. and Mrs. Jim Pryor of Norfolk and Mr. and Mrs. Tim Tobliason of Columbus.

The wedding cake was cut and served by Ardy Thomsen of Stanton, Joan Heute of Columbus and Phyllis Porkorny of Lincoln.

Pouring coffee were Kathy Macholm and Kathy Locke, both of Columbus.

Mrs. Alan Penfield

The bridegroom, a 1983 graduate of Columbus High School, is serving in the Army at Ft. Hood, Texas, where the newlyweds are making their home.

Wayne wedding rites

Susan Sextro and Randy Ross exchanged marriage vows Nov. 26 at St. Mary's Catholic Church in Wayne. Both are seniors at Wayne State College.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Sextro of Dow City, Iowa, is a 1981 graduate of Dow City-Arlon High School.

The bridegroom graduated from West Point High School in 1978. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Ross of West Point.

The newlyweds traveled to California and will be at home at 1210 1/2 Douglas St., Wayne, after Jan. 7.

baptisms

Ashley Shari Anderson

Ashley Shari Anderson, infant daughter of Shonnie and Dennis Anderson of Lincoln, was baptized during worship services Dec. 18 at Concordia Lutheran Church, Concord.

The Rev. David Newman officiated, and sponsors were Debra Matcha, and Mindy and Verdel Lutt.

Dinner guests afterward in the Wallace Anderson home included the Dennis Andersons and Ashley of Lincoln, the Verdel Lutt family of Wayne, and Pastor Newman.

ANNA SEZ:

Hello everyone!
 My heart warm sun feels good after such a bitter cold spell. Still some huge drifts around the home.

Welcome to Grace Mills and Cliff Marie. Hope you enjoy your stay here at the home.

Deepest sympathy is extended to the families of Myron Larson, Harold Fredrickson and Jared Grov on their loss of a loved one.

Ellen Hansen has returned to the home after a stay at Providence. Miss Hansen entered Providence on Saturday, Dec. 21.

Among the activities are Rhythm Band on Tuesday and on Wednesdays in the afternoon they play cards and dominoes. There is Baptist prayer service at 7 p.m. on Wednesday evening.

On Wednesday, Jan. 18 we will have the birthday party. On Thursdays the Senior Citizens come to entertain us on the first and third Thursdays of the month. On Thursdays we have some music given by Mrs. Junk with different instruments.

We have bingo on Friday afternoon and sing-along on Saturday. Some of the residents are kept busy with their sewing and patch work.

The St. Mary's ladies come on the second Monday afternoon, Jan. 9 with treats. The Redesigner ladies come on the second Thursday of the month. The Grace ladies come on the third Thursday of the month with treats as do the Presbyterian ladies on the last Wednesday with treats.

There will be 4 residents seated around the birthday table on Jan. 19. Winnie Kellogg, Jan. 22; Mary Miller, Jan. 17; Hannah Gansie, Jan. 18; Malvin Wrede, Jan. 14.

The birthday song will be sung and we will all enjoy treats.

Long, cold winter:

And now, the long, dreary winter sets in with nothing to keep Nebraska fans warm. I imagine that a mass-depression set in across the state after — this is hard to write — Nebraska's loss to Miami in the Orange Bowl. To tell you the truth, I had a bad taste in my mouth about the game all day long on Jan. 2 — no good vibes.

Nebraska fans can be proud of the way the Huskers came back after spotting the Hurricane's 17 points and the fact that Coach Osborne elected to go for the win instead of the tie.

One thing that rattled my cage, though, was the playing of the "Hurricane Warning" song over the Orange Bowl's public address system after Nebraska failed on the two-point try.

This isn't sour grapes, but do you think they would have played the Nebraska fight song if the Huskers had made their two-point conversion? Sure.

Just a game

I watched the game with a non-Nebraskan who couldn't understand my stunned silence at the sound of the final gun. I tried to explain that while it's silly to put so much stock in a football game — I do.

I guess that's what makes it so much fun when you win. Just remember, it wasn't too many years ago that Nebraska was finishing second in the Big Eight Conference race — stepping up to second in the nation is fine with me.

Galen the Great

The Wayne State Holiday Tournament is over and done with. Hats off to Galen Wiser, Pat Gross, Ron Jones and company for a fine job running the show.

For those of you who failed to make it up to Rice Auditorium, shame on you. You missed some darned good basketball. You also missed Wiser in the free throw competition (held during each game's halftime intermission). I don't know who coached young Wiser on his free throw shooting, but he looked like one of the Flying Karamashoff Brothers when he let go with his shot. What Form!

Gambling on a cheer

Where were Wayne High's cheerleaders during the Class B championship game? The closest thing Blue Devil fans got to cheerleaders were the energetic priddings from a couple of Gamble boys and friends. I know it was a holiday, but every other school managed at least a couple of cheerleaders.

More money for Weaver?

Just before tipoff in the Wayne State vs. Doane Championship game, one of the referees made one of the Wildcat players remove a gold necklace which was adorning his neck.

Doane coach Bob Erickson then shouted in jest at Wayne State mentor Rick Weaver: "Hey Rick! You have to take your's off too!" Weaver shot back: "I can't afford that stuff!"

Hold the paint

The hometown boys of Wayne High School also dazzled by dumping second ranked (Class B) Hartington Cedar Catholic 58-44 — a feat impressive enough to garner the Devils a number 5 ranking in the latest Omaha World Herald poll.

The Devils then promptly turned around and dropped a 44-36 to 3-5 Schuyler on Tuesday night.

Which Wayne team is for real, the one which fumbled and bumbled its way past South Sioux City 37-29 and bowed to Schuyler, or the one which throttled HCC (which was obviously suffering from the long holiday layoff)?

Before I get swastikas painted on my house, I want to point out that the Blue Devils can't be lulled into thinking that ratings win ball games. Just ask the Nebraska Cornhuskers. Hartington Cedar Catholic will make itself heard before the end of the season. Bet on it!

Wayne girls blasted

The Wayne Blue Devils girls basketball team lost the battle of the free throws against Stanton Tuesday night and lost the war 41-29.

The Fillies hit 17-of-31 free throws on the night while Wayne made good on just 7-of-24 attempts from the charity stripe.

An 11-point performance by Karen Longe and 4 points by Fran Gross, who fouled out of the game, were not enough to overcome the Fillies' free-throw shooting and a 22-10 halftime lead.

Stanton's MaLaine Tejkl led all scorers with 19 points and went 11-of-17 from the free-throw line. On the boards, Longe had 17 rebounds for the Devils, but Wayne only pulled down 29 as a team.

In junior varsity action, Wayne blasted to a 14-4 halftime lead and downed the fillies 30-13 as Kecta Corbit tallied 10 points. Teammates Jennifer Moore and Kaitie Frevert added 9 and 8 points respectively.

Stanton was paced by Tammie Raetz's 9 points.

Ranking tenure short

Wayne's tenure in the number-five slot of the Class B ratings (Omaha World Herald) was short-lived. After downing number-two Hartington Cedar Catholic in the Wayne State College Holiday Tournament last week and cracking the top ten, the Devils turned around and lost 44-36 to Schuyler on the road Tuesday night.

Wayne fought back from an early 10-7 deficit to tie things at 18 at the halftime intermission, but went cold in the third period, when the Devils were outscored 11-3.

The fourth quarter saw both teams tally 15 points and the Warriors had the upset to their credit. Wayne shot just 31 percent (13-of-42) from the field to Schuyler's 47 percent (20-of-43).

The Devils won the battle from the free-throw line 56 percent to 33 percent, but were out-rebounded 31 to 26.

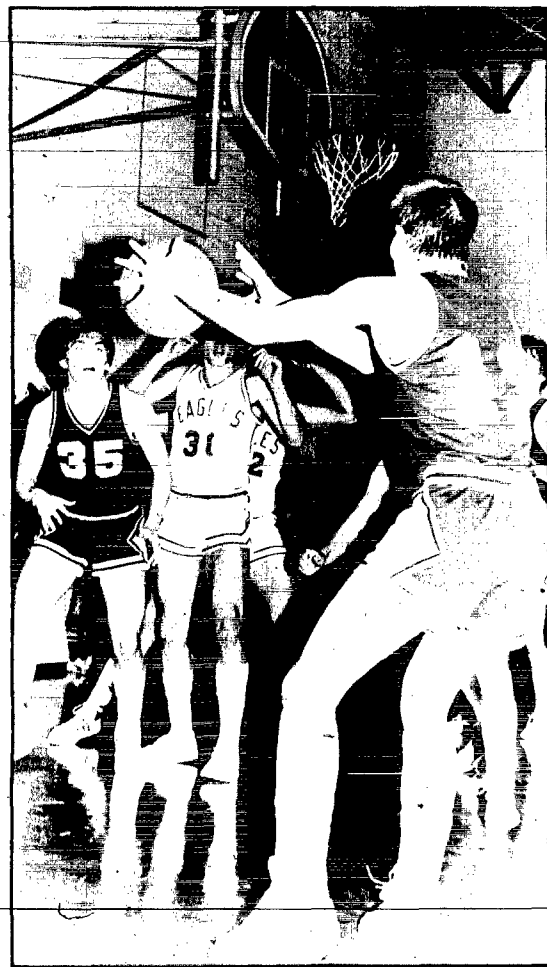

Wayne was paced by Don Larsen's 16 points and 10 rebounds. Head coach Bill Sharpe could find little good in the loss.

"It was a nice bus ride — that's about all," Sharpe said.

WAKEFIELD'S Troy Greve (13) takes a pass from Brian Soderberg (35).

Trojans win cake-walk

They gave away cakes at a rate of Allen High School during the halftime intermission of the Wakefield vs. Allen boys basketball game and the Trojans came away the biggest winners — turning a close ballgame into a 48-37 cake walk victory.

The Trojans took an early 8-3 lead at before Allen settled down and battled to within one at 18-17 at the 2:28 mark in the second quarter. The score stood at 26-24 in favor of Wakefield at the half.

rebounding and was struggling with its inbounds passes as Wakefield went ahead 32-26, causing Allen head coach Uldrich to call a time out.

When action resumed, the Eagle's went from their 1-2 defense to a man to man — a play that proved to be fatal as the Trojans went on to lead by as many as 11 points en route to the win.

ULDRICH CONSIDERED the defensive switch as the key to the game.

"There was a point where I felt I had to go to the man to man and I decided to do it early," Uldrich said.

Wakefield coach Ernie Kovar said the Trojans were expecting the change.

immediately went into a delay game. Kovar cited his players' poor defense, but they didn't wait until the key to victory.

"I thought our kids kept their poise real well," he said. Uldrich said the Eagles panicked once they fell behind.

"We aren't as patient as they are — we were playing fair defense, but they didn't wait until there was a hole and we missed a lot of inside stuff," Uldrich said. "Our guys panicked and just stood around."

THE TROJANS had 3 players in double figures. Jeff Coble had 12 while Troy Greve and Brian Soderberg added 10 and 11 points respectively.

"It's a nice deal when we can spread the scoring around," Kovar said. "As a matter of fact, when he (Uldrich) called that time out we knew it — that's why we im-played it was a good team effort. Allen was paced by Kevin Chase's 13 points.

"The loss was the Eagles' fourth in a row after winning their first 3 games while Wakefield evened its record to 3-3 and will try to go over the 500 mark today when the Trojans begin play in the Post Holiday Tournament at Emerson.

Allen is in action at the Ponca Invitational.

In junior varsity action, Mitch Pait and Max Oswald teamed up for nine points each to lead the Eagles to a 37-21 victory over the Trojans. Jeff Rose paced the Trojans with 5 points.

Cats crash in Iowa

Wayne State's mens basketball team look off like a rocket then fell like a cannon ball Tuesday night while dropping an 81-61 decision to Northwestern College in Orange City, Iowa.

The Cats jumped out to a 10-2 lead as John Thomsen and Vince Tillo tallied 6 and 4 points respectively. Wayne State held a 12-6 advantage at the 12:28 mark before Red Raider Dave Dunkelberger hit a pair of free throws a few minutes later to knot the score at 16.

The Red Raiders took a 28-21 lead as Todd Meerdink ignited for four straight field goals.

Northwestern never looked back — the tally stood at 46-35 at the half, and the Wildcats never recovered.

Wayne State had just 26 rebounds against the Red Raiders — five offensive, while Northwestern tallied 46 boards.

Free throws also loomed large in the loss as the Cats hit on just 3 of 10 attempts to Northwestern's 17 of 21.

From the floor, Wayne State hit an icy 39.7 percent (29 of 73) while the Raiders bagged 52.5 percent (32 of 61) of their shots.

Leading scorer in the game was Northwestern's Dunkelberger, who tallied 24 points while teammate Meerdink added 23. Wayne State was paced by Thomsen and Tillo, who each scored 10.

The Wildcats are slated to take on Bellevue College Saturday on the road.

Freburg: 'Cats hustle'

The Winside Wildcats boys basketball team continued its roller coaster ride through the 1983-84 basketball season Tuesday night with a 55-44 thumping of Walthill at home.

The Wildcats fell behind 16-14 after the first quarter of play, but ahead by one point to take a 30-29 lead at the half.

After regrouping during intermission, the Cats played tenacious defense in the third quarter while outscoring the Bluejays 10-4.

"That was the key," said Winside coach Mark Freburg. "We played good defense and hustled real well for a change."

Freburg said rebounding was another key to the victory. The Cats pulled down 41 caroms and were paced by Scott Janke's 11.

John Hawkins added 10 and Kevin Falk had 6.

Leading scorer for the Cats was Janke, who racked up 27 points while Chris Jorgensen added 16.

The Bluejays' Paul Wingert and Tim Ruge each tallied 13 points.

Winside, now 3-5, will take on Beemer tonight (Thursday) on the road.

'Intense' Winside falls

If any good can be found in a loss, Winside's girls basketball team found some after falling 35-23 to Walthill Tuesday night at home.

The Wildcats ended their scoring drought of the last few games while facing a much taller team.

"They were just as tall as advertised," said Winside coach Don Leighton. "Their starting line-up went 5-4, 5-11, 5-11, 6-0 and 6-0."

Leighton said his squad displayed intensity — something it lacked while dropping a pair of games at the Wayne State College Holiday Tournament.

"I was really darned proud of the girls," Leighton said. "They played an intense and aggressive game."

Winside's leading scorer was Pam Peter, who tallied 7 points. The Wildcats enjoyed a good night on the boards in light of Walthill's decided height advantage, pulling down 27 caroms.

Tammy Brudigan had 7 boards while Trisha Topp, Missy Jensen and Peter each tallied 5.

"We did a little pressing and managed to shake them (Walthill) up a little bit," Leighton said.

The Wildcats will begin the toughest portion of their schedule tonight (Thursday), when they play host to Beemer.

Animals struggle

Deer bunched together boldly feeding in open fields during daylight hours, pheasants crowd along roadsides looking for waste grain — an afternoon drive along snowy packed country roads will bring the point home — severe winter weather conditions are extremely hard on wildlife species.

December of 1983 will end being either the most frigid or the second coldest December on record, according to records dating back over the past century and the decade. During the winter of 1983, average temperatures were 35 degrees below normal.

The severity of the recent sub-zero temperatures, ice storms and above average snowfall have made survival difficult for Nebraska's wildlife. According to Bill Baxter, assistant chief of the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission's Wildlife Division, quail and pheasant were most effected by the severe weather.

The bird's main problems during extremely cold winters are finding an adequate, high energy food source to maintain their normal body conditions, and sufficient protective cover to give them some relief from extremely cold wind chill factors. November's late ice storms and December's heavy snows have increased the inaccessibility of food and cover. Critically needed habitat is limited now and additional snowfall will make the problem worse.

The Commission encourages individuals to initiate their own feeding program to give the birds a boost during the winter, but advises:

— Don't start feeding unless you plan to continue through the duration of the winter.

— Feed either milo or corn for pheasant and quail. To provide each pheasant's daily requirement of 4 ounces of corn, you will have to put out one pound of feed for each bird because other wildlife species will also use the feed and diminish the amount available for the pheasant.

— Place the feed in good cover known to be used by pheasants, but never along roadsides.

— Place the feed in more than one location.

Roadside feeding makes the birds vulnerable to traffic and accessible the unethical hunters who illegally hunt from the road. Birds should be fed near cover they are using so they don't expend more energy traveling to and from the feeding area than their consumption of grain can produce.

During extreme conditions, it's possible for a bird to die of exposure with a full crop.

This time of concern for the well being of Nebraska's birds offers an appropriate time to focus in on the real problem, the need for more and better habitat. An effort as small as building a brush pile or as large as planting a shelter belt of planting a food plot can make a real difference to wildlife survival during periods of extreme weather conditions.

Baseball camp in Omaha

Baseball season is just around the corner and registration for the 3rd Annual Nebraska Professional Baseball Camp is now in full swing.

The camp, which will be conducted at Omaha's St. Joseph High School, will run for 4 consecutive Saturdays (Jan. 14 through Feb. 5) and is open to players 13 years old and up.

The camp staff is comprised of current and former professional baseball players, managers, scouts and college and high school coaches.

For more information and a free brochure, contact Marti Wolever (713) 366-1007 or Ken Rieschl (St. Joseph High School) (402) 733-4941.

Koenig first in ratings

The first ratings of the prep wrestling season were released this week by the Nebraska Scholastic Wrestling Coaches Association, and to nobody's surprise, Wayne High School's Kevin Koenig was ranked first in the 185-pound weight class.

Koenig placed third at the same weight in the state tournament last year and was the only returning place finisher this season.

Dave Pieters of Auburn is ranked second while Mike Bacon of Grand Island Northwest is third. Holding down the last three spots are Ashland's Jim Fiala, Falls City's Mike Joy and Brett Allgood of Nebraska City.

State parks ETV features

A new film displaying the beauty, popularity and excitement of Nebraska's state parks will be featured tonight (Thursday) on the "Outdoor Nebraska" TV Show at 7:30 p.m. on ETV.

Also scheduled is an area feature on Bowman Lake and an interesting outdoor education workshop on "How to Catch Walleyes."

If you happen to miss the initial Thursday evening showing, you can watch Sunday afternoon, Jan. 8, when the show is broadcast at 3:00 p.m.

Turkey hunters enjoy success

Nebraska's archery turkey hunters enjoyed an exciting fall season this year, with 461 permit holders bagging a total of 91 birds for a success total of 19.7 percent.

The 1983 hunter success total exceeded last year's success figure of 16 percent, when 488 permit holders bagged 80 turkeys.

Ice-fishing hazards many

Ice fishing can be one of the most exciting and enjoyable of all winter sports, but it can also be one of the most dangerous for the person who does not heed a few common sense rules.

First, be aware there is a real danger in being out-of-doors in frigid temperatures for extended periods of time, and that ice thickness varies in various parts of a lake or other body of water. There may be 12 inches of ice where you augered your first hole, but only two or three inches 25 yards away where you want to put the fifth hole.

Hypothermia — the lowering of body temperature — is a genuine threat during winter months. It can kill if its symptoms are not recognized and treated early on. For instance, when an ice fisherman falls through the ice his skin and peripheral tissues cool very rapidly, it takes only 10 to 15 minutes before the temperature of his heart and brain begin to cool. His body begins intense shivering in an attempt to counter the large heat loss. Unconsciousness can occur when the deep body temperature falls to approximately 90 degrees and he will suffer heart failure and die when his body core cools to 86.001 BS degrees.

That information applies only if the victim does not drown before he suffers the effects of hypothermia. If someone does go through the ice, it is important to get him out of the water to safety and warmth as soon as possible. Once in the water, the victim must first locate the hole he made when he fell through and then return to the surface. It is very difficult for someone who has fallen through the ice to get out of the water. The ice around the hole may also continue to crack and break away while the victim struggles to get out.

As impossible as it sounds, the victim should fight panic. He should try to get his upper body up onto the ice and use whatever hand holds he can to roll out of the water. He may have to float on his back and kick with his feet to work actually swim up onto the ice and out of danger. Once on the ice, he should spread out over as much surface area as possible and squirm his way to safety. Then get dry, warm and out of the wind immediately.

The best insurance is to avoid unsafe ice. Thickness of the ice is not always the final measure of its strength. Clear ice is stronger than ice clouded by air bubbles, though the clouded ice may be thicker. Ice that appears to be dark or black in color is generally not very thick and should be avoided or tested before venturing out onto it.

Here are a few ice fishing tips that will assure a safe, enjoyable outing:

1. Never fish black ice alone.
2. Wear plenty of clothing. Several layers will be more useful than a single heavy garment.
3. Never walk on less than three inches of ice.
4. Avoid lakes or areas that are known to have underground springs.
5. Avoid lakes subject to drastic unpredictable drawdown.
6. Stay well away from open water or ice adjacent to running streams.
7. Don't start on ice and don't stand in large concentrated groups.
8. Law prohibits holes of more than 18 inches in diameter as they may cause another person to fall.
9. Be sure you have dry clothing and blankets, with you or in your vehicle.
10. Be sure there is fuel in your car and that it will start easily in the cold. It may save your life in an emergency situation.

Wayne High senior David Melton selected alternate to academies

Wayne High School senior David Melton has been selected as an alternate to the Military Academy and also to the Air Force Academy, according to Nebraska First District Congressman Doug Bereuter. In an announcement made through Bereuter's district office in Lincoln, the names of 5 principal and 33 alternate nominees were given.
Principal appointments to the Military Academy at West Point, N.Y., the Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md., and the Air Force Academy at Colorado Springs, Colo., went to students from Millard, Norfolk, Fremont and interviewed applicants in early December and a third committee reviewed the interview results before recommendations for appointments went to Bereuter.

THE CONGRESSMAN also noted that individuals named as alternates have an excellent chance of receiving appointments. Last year, he said, more than 10 of the alternates listed on his nominations were also offered and accepted academy appointments.
"Each year the number of alternates accepted testifies to the excellence of applicants in the First District," Bereuter said.

Images of '83: The year in review

1983 is now just another year in the history books. It was a good year and a bad year and will produce good memories and bad. It was an agricultural year that saw many farmers participate in the national Payment In Kind program. Crops were hurt by various weather conditions and insects. Corn borers and Woolly Bear caterpillars were the major insect threats. The area also sustained too much rain, droughts, hail, freezes and snowstorms. Wayne County was declared a crop disaster area.

IT WAS A YEAR that saw many changes in public offices and positions.

In January, LeRoy Janssen was sworn in as Wayne County sheriff after winning a November election.

Wayne State College welcomed a new president, vice president and head football coach. Ed Elliott was inaugurated as president and Don Whisenhunt was appointed vice president. Pete Chapman became the first new football coach at WSC in 15 years.

Wayne businessman Gary Van Meter replaced Gary Vopalensky on the Wayne City Council, following Vopalensky's resignation.

Bob Sheckler took over as county superintendent, replacing Loren Park who resigned from the position.

Marlyn Koch submitted his resignation as Wayne County fair manager.

Robert Nissen was sworn in as new county commissioner, following the resignation of Kenneth Eddle.

IT WAS A YEAR of progress in many ways. The Winside community began an auditorium restoration project.

Work began on Wayne's wastewater treatment plant. The shop addition at Wayne

High School was completed.

Wayne learned it was awarded a grant for an airport grant project.

The estate of Virginia Chapin McCain left $20,000 to Providence Medical Center.

Aid Association for Lutherans awarded several community grants in northeast Nebraska.

Wakefield, Dixon and Winside were finalists in the state's Community Improvement Program.

New warning signals were installed in the city of Wayne.

New businesses were started in Wayne and other surrounding communities.

The Milton G. Waldbaum hit national distribution with its new product, Eggs T' Go. The eggs were even used at the White House in their annual Easter egg hunt.

Wayne State College enrollment figures hit a new high.

IT ALSO WAS a year when well known people visited Wayne.

John Hausmann of Paper Chase fame, spoke at Wayne State College.

Former U.S. Senator Gale McGee also spoke at WSC, his alma mater.

Politicians who visited the area included Senator James Exon, Congressman Doug Bereuter and State Senator Merle Von Minden. Governor Bob Kerrey cancelled his scheduled visit because of the weather.

WAYNE GAINED national publicity with its annual Chicken Show.

Plans were initiated for Wayne's centennial celebration in 1984.

Centennial also was a topic around Con cord where the small community quietly recognized its 100th birthday.

In an effort to increase revenue, Wayne started a ticket lottery. The lottery later expanded to include video machines.

Wayne made the state and area news through a cheese giveaway controversy and the courthouse fire safety issue.

SCHOOL ACTIVITIES were successful in 1983.

Several area schools fared well at the state one-act plays contest with Winside winning a Class D championship.

The area also was well-represented at the state music contest. Wayne High sent numerous representatives to the event.

In athletics, Winside had individual state champions in wrestling and track in John Thies and John Hawkins.

Other area athletes also did well in those state meets. Wayne's baseball team qualified for the state high school tournament. In golf, Cole Froeschle won the state meet.

In football, Wayne and Winside both competed in the state playoffs.

Wayne State qualified for the nationals in softball and regionals in baseball.

ALTHOUGH TRAFFIC fatalities in the state were down, this part of the state had its share. Two deaths within a matter of weeks prompted the State Patrol to increase its patrol on certain highways.

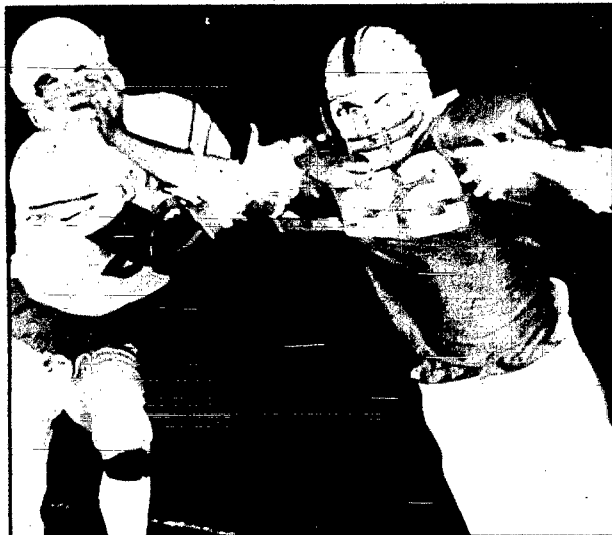

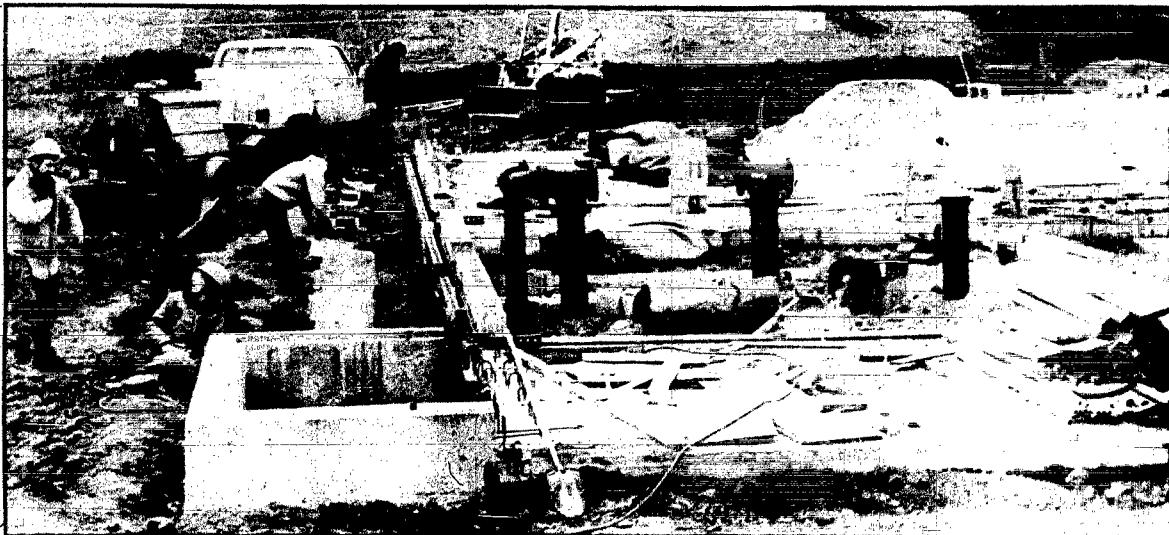

Early winter storms and a sub zero cold streak had residents talking about a long winter ahead.

An 18-inch snow fall rocked northeast Nebraska in late November. Since that storm, several snowstorms have hit the area, forcing cancellation of school.

A Christmas weekend storm stranded many motorists, some for hours in their vehicles.

Economic Emergency Loans

The Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) will resume making Economic Emergency Loans by the beginning of next year, according to FmHA County Supervisor LaVern Ostendorf.

"Economic Emergency Loans are designed for farmers who are in a cost-price squeeze or face other financial difficulty beyond their control," Ostendorf said. "In other words, the loans are for a financial emergency rather than a natural disaster such as a drought or flood."

The Economic Emergency or "EE" Program was in operation from 1978 to 1981. The program expired in 1981 but was later reauthorized by Congress. It is being reopened under an order by the U.S. District Court in Washington, D.C.

"Under the program loans will be available to farmers who are suffering an economic emergency through no fault of their own. They must show that they have tried unsuccessfully to get a loan from another source before coming to FmHA and that they can repay the loan over a period of time, depending on the use of the funds. The funds can be used to finance 1984 crop production, to refinance delinquent farm and family operating debts and related uses," Ostendorf said.

The interest rate for direct loans fluctuates with the cost to the government of borrowing money. The interest rates for guaranteed loans which are made by commercial lenders and backed by the government, are negotiated between the borrower and the lender.

Extension board ballots due

Ballots were sent out last week to residents of Hunter, Logan and Leslie precincts and residents of Wards 1 and 2 in Wayne for the election of Wayne County Extension Board members. Ballots are due in the Wayne County Extension Office by Friday, Jan. 6.

Candidates on the ballot are Mrs. Neil Sandahl and Connie Roberts of Wakefield and Jim Luff and Larry Thompson of Wayne. The candidates who are elected will serve a two term on the Extension Board.

Other members of the board are Mrs. Melvin Dowling, Mrs. Paul Dangberg, Don Liedman and Dwaine Rethwisch. Mrs. Gerald Pospisil serves as the Home Extension Council representative and George Barmann serves as the 4 H Council representative.

The Wayne County Extension Board is the supervising body of the Wayne County Extension Service.

Sheep producers to meet

The Northeast Nebraska Sheep Producers will have their annual supper at the northeast experiment station at Concord at 7 p.m., Tuesday (Jan. 10).

All members and associate members, along with those who are interested in sheep production, are invited to attend. They should bring a lamb dish and another dish. Rolls and drinks will be furnished along with dishes and silverware.

For more information call Berle Heim at 287-2295 or Mildred Gramlich at 375-3678.

Soybean marketing seminars set

The Nebraska Soybean Association, in cooperation with Union Carbide Products Company and BASF Wyandotte Corporation, is sponsoring one-day Soybean Marketing Seminars at the following locations: Jan. 10, Viba Inn, Norfolk; Jan. 11, Holiday Inn, Grand Island; and Jan. 12, Elks Lodge, Nebraska City. Registration opens at 8:30 a.m. and meetings begin at 9 a.m.

These meetings are free to Nebraska Soybean Association members. A membership fee of $30 will be the only cost to non-members.

The sponsors will provide each person attending with a free complete kit of marketing information for home use. Lunch will be provided.

For more information, call David Bohling at 402-471-2341.

Feeder pig show planned

Plans are being finalized for the 10th annual Nebraska Feeder Pig Show, to be held at Platte Ag Park in Columbus Feb. 16, according to a University of Nebraska extension swine specialist. Bill Ahlswede said the show will be held in conjunction with the Nebraska Pork Industry Exposition. The junior division of the show begins at 1 p.m., followed by the adult division.

Feeder pig producers can obtain forms by writing Tom Kesch, Rt. 1, Box 14A, Humphrey 68647.

A record number of commercial exhibits will open the Expo proper at Columbus at 9:30 a.m. Feb. 15, the day prior to the show, Ahlswede said. The exhibits also will be open at 9:30 a.m. on Feb. 16.

Educational seminars are scheduled for 10 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. on the first day and at 10 a.m. on the second day. The three seminars are "Recent Developments in Sow Nutrition," "Survival Prospects for Pork Producers," and "Raising Pigs in Family Business."

The Expo is open to all swine producers, Ahlswede emphasized.

Farm and home show planned

The Pender Thurston F.F.A. alumni are hosting their first farm and home show Saturday Jan. 14 at the Pender Legion Hall.

Many area businesses are registered to have tables with their products. There will be free admission to the public, door prizes and special discounts during the 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. show.

The F.F.A. and F.H.A. from Pender High School will have a food stand. Consignments from seed corn to Watkins, Princess House Crystal to Satellite TV antennas are some of the businesses.

For additional information contact Dave Westerhold at 385-2628.

Livestock Housing Workshops set

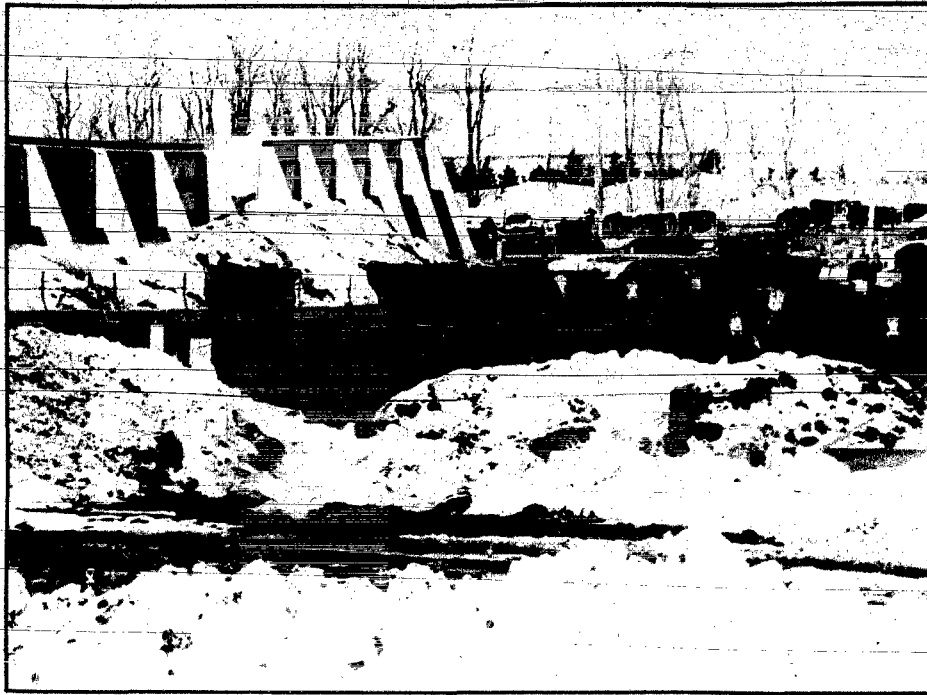

Swine, dairy, beef, sheep and horse producers will be able to help determine the content of a series of five livestock housing workshops to be offered in 1984 around Nebraska. The workshops focus on housing construction, related to optimum considerations of energy and ventilation.

Gerald Bodman, University of Nebraska extension agricultural engineer, said interested persons can express their choice of species and 5 topics of primary interest through pre-registration at Cooperative Extension offices around the state. "Workshop content will be tailored to meet the needs of interests and participants," he said.

Three of the workshops will include a tour to nearby swine facilities equipped with solar heating systems. Bodman said All registrants will receive a livestock housing notebook.

The workshops are being sponsored by the Nebraska State Energy Office and UNL, in cooperation with the Nebraska Pork Producers and Nebraska Livestock Feeders Associations. All sessions start at 9 a.m.

The schedule: Feb. 7 — 4H Building, County Fairgrounds, Kimball; 2 — St. Peter's Lutheran Parish Hall, Mirage Falls; 3 — 4H Building, Fairgrounds, Clay Center; 23 — Knights of Columbus Hall, Albion; 26 — Fairview, Cafe, Wahoo.

THESE CATTLE seem to be enjoying sunning themselves in the 'balmy' 40 degree weather last Tuesday. The picture was taken approximately 4 miles west of Wayne on Highway 35.

Carroll girl seeks queen title

Susie Petersen of rural Carroll will represent the Wayne County Pork Producers in the 1984 Nebraska Pork Queen Pageant scheduled Friday and Saturday (Jan. 6 and 7) at the Ramada Inn, Grand Island.

The contest is being held in conjunction with the annual meetings and banquet of the Nebraska Pork Producers and Porkettes. Pork queens from 27 area groups will be vying for the pork queen title. The reigning queen is Patty Boning of Creston.

Each contestant will present a 5 minute consumer oriented oral presentation before a public audience and will have personal interviews with a panel of judges.

Contestants will be judged on general knowledge of the pork industry, ease of expression and personal poise.

The new queen will be crowned at the banquet on Saturday. She will represent the Nebraska Pork Producers at promotional events and selected functions across the state.

Susie, 18, is the daughter of Kathryn Petersen and the late Robert Petersen. She and her mother live on a farm near Carroll where they raise and sell approximately 750 to 800 feeder pigs a year.

She has two older sisters and two older brothers. Susie is a senior at Winside High School.

Thawing frozen pipes takes care

Recent cold temperatures have caused water pipes to freeze in a number of Nebraska homes. Often, a homeowner can treat the problem himself, but care should be taken not to make it worse.

Without proper precautions, pipes can rupture or a fire can be started, such as when a propane torch is used to thaw a frozen line, said Robin Schneider, University of Nebraska extension safety specialist.

When a pipe freezes, Schneider said the first step is to find the frozen section. This may take some backtracking from a stop ped faucet, but often the problem will lie where pipes pass through cold locations," he said.

THOSE PIPES most susceptible to freezing are located in unheated basements, open crawl spaces or along cold walls on the north or northwest sides of a home.

The frozen section also could be in a main line buried underground leading to the house, he said. In this case, it's best to call for outside help.

If the frozen section is inside where it can be reached, Schneider said to check for cracks in the pipe. If there are any, turn off the water and call the plumber, he suggested.

If no cracks are evident, it's best to open a water valve slightly, such as in the sink, to prevent the pipe from bursting if the water begins moving, he said.

There are several effective methods for thawing pipes, according to the specialist. One of the best is to pour boiling water over rags wrapped around the frozen section. Heating with a propane torch also works quickly, but care should be taken so the steam pressure doesn't burst the pipe. A simple rule of thumb to follow is don't heat a pipe to a higher temperature than your hand can stand.

"ALSO, BE SURE there aren't any combustible materials around," Schneider said. "Sometimes a fire can be started if the torch gets too close to a wooden wall." In this case, he said a piece of metal can be placed next to the wall to protect it from direct heat.

Another heat source that works well is a hair dryer, which might be especially useful for thawing plastic pipes, sometimes found in rural areas and small towns.

A heat lamp, household iron or space heater are still other alternatives.

Although it takes longer, wire heating coils also can be wrapped around a frozen pipe for safe thawing, the specialist said. These are equipped with a thermostat and can be plugged into an electrical outlet. They are readily available at hardware stores.

Cattle affected

Snow, cold put pressure on feed supplies

Record snow and cold weather in December have launched a two pronged attack on Nebraska's winter feed supply for beef cow calf and growing operations. A University of Nebraska extension beef specialist said recently.

The early heavy snow in most areas of the state has made it necessary to start feeding harvested feeds earlier, according to Paul Guyer. And he said the accompanying cold temperatures stimulate increased feed intake by cattle if high roughage rations are fed free choice.

"As a result, many cattlemen have a short supply of harvested feed available if the harsh winter continues and snow cover extends to late February or early March," the specialist said.

WHILE COLD weather tends to increase animal maintenance requirements and slightly reduces digestibility of forage, in most situations a drastic change in rations, fed is still not necessary, Guyer said.

The main thing is to get the cattle fed each day. And they do need more feed than in a usual winter, he said.

Cows fed 6 percent to 7 percent crude protein, grass or small grain may need 10 percent to 20 percent more of these materials than when temperatures are normal for a particular winter month. This translates to 24 lbs per head instead of 20 to 22 pounds per head daily, Guyer said.

Producers who have corn stalks, milo stubble or winter range that can still be grazed might feed 1.5 to 2 pounds of 30 percent to 40 percent all natural protein instead of three fourths to one pound daily, he said.

If alfalfa hay is the supplement, 7 to 10 pounds of hay should be fed, instead of the normal 3 to 5 pounds.

"IF YOU ARE short of roughage, consider feeding several pounds of grain as a substitute," Guyer advised cattlemen. One pound of corn will replace about 1.6 pounds of a medium to low quality hay.

"Because feeding grain will cause decreased forage digestibility, feed at least 4 or 5 pounds of grain if you choose this alternative," Guyer added.

For wintering calves or finishing cattle in drylot, there is little advantage in changing the ration except for finishing cattle that develop acidosis as a result of a variable feed intake, he said. In that case, feeding up to 15 percent roughage will help to eliminate acidosis.

"Wintering calves will gain faster if more grain fed, but compensatory gains after the cold weather ends will tend to minimize the advantage from feeding more grain," he said.

PIK hay, silage help meet needs

Wheat hay or silage from PIK acres, available in considerable quantity in many areas of Nebraska, should be quite valuable in helping meet the extra needs for forage for beef cattle as a result of early-season snow cover.

That's the word from Paul Guyer, University of Nebraska extension beef specialist, who said analyses of wheat forage samples show a wide variation in feed value.

"Some early cut wheat hays (boot to heading stage) have up to 13.4 percent protein and only slightly less value than mid-bloom alfalfa. Other apparently late dough stage wheat hay has been as low as 5.8 percent crude protein and only slightly higher in feed value than wheat straw," Guyer said.

THE BREAKDOWN of samples analyzed: Of 27 samples, eight had 10 percent to 13 percent protein and should be good feed for beef cows nursing calves.

Seventeen contained 7 percent to 10 percent protein and should be as good or better than forage needed by bred cows.

Only two samples were below 7 percent in crude protein. These should be fed with 3 to 5 pounds of alfalfa hay daily, or other supplemental protein.

Guyer noted some reports of magnesium deficiency when wheat hay and ammonium-treated wheat straw were fed without other hay.

"Thus, it might be wise to feed a mineral containing 6 percent to 8 percent magnesium if wheat hay is the only forage to be fed for a long period of time this winter," the specialist said.

Cattlemen's expo plans are made

Three major thrusts — a profile of the ideal type of feeder calf and how to handle it, building relationships between beef producers and veterinarians and current events and politics in agriculture — will feature the Nebraska Cattlemen's Exposition to be held in Columbus.

"The Expo is for all cattlemen, according to Bill Zollinger, University of Nebraska extension livestock specialist, with the first day pitched toward cow-calf enterprises and the second day toward feedlot operators.

The double barreled event will be held at Platte Ag Park, with the program starting at 9:30 a.m. both days. Cattlemen will have the opportunity to view a number of commercial displays, Zollinger said.

R.A. LONG, professor of animal science at Texas Tech University, Lubbock, Texas will speak both days.

In his presentation to cow-calf operators, entitled "Cows, Cash and Cadillacs," Long will depict the type of feeder calf that needs to be supplied in constant numbers to do well in the feedlot.

Zollinger said some feeder calves are out of smaller framed cattle which do not do well economically. "There could be some feeder calves out of cattle that are too big," he added. Zollinger said the boxed beef trend is having an impact on the type of feeder calves, and hence fed cattle, being turned out.

Long's talk boils down to exploring how to match genetics and management to produce the right kind of cattle to go into the feedlot," the specialist said.

On the second day, Long will maintain in his talk that "Steers Are Not Created Equal." "Once we (the industry), have decided on the ideal kind of cattle to be put into the feedlot, we need to know how to handle them," Zollinger said. This may result, for some feeders, in changes in their Current agricultural issues in Nebraska will be covered by Charles "Chuck" Schroeder, himself a beef producer and currently special assistant in the Nebraska Department of Agriculture. His topic on the first day is "Nebraska's Future Beef Industry."

Carrying out a similar role on the second day will be Robert Raun, director of the State Department of Agriculture.

NU Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources animal scientists will cover a number of topics in the beef management and nutrition area to round out the two programs.

The Nebraska Shorthorn Association will conduct a livestock judging contest beginning at 9:30 a.m. on Feb. 1.

The two day event is sponsored by the Nebraska Cooperative Extension Service, Nebraska Cattlemen's Expo Committee and the Nebraska Livestock Feeders Association.

Pesticide applicators can be recertified

Applicators who do not want to attend the training provided at the clinics may instead take an EPA approved examination for their category, Nelson said. The exams will not be available at the clinic sites. Applicators selecting this alternative must attend an initial training session in February and March and earn a score of 70 on the exam to renew their certification, Nelson emphasized.

Each of the area clinics will highlight control of plant diseases, insects and weeds prevalent in that area, Nelson said. However, several topics will be common to all of the meetings, including symptoms of pesticide poisoning, implications of the control of drift loss, safe use of pesticides, calibration and new pests and pesticides.

Nelson emphasized that the recertification training is only for current holders of pesticide certification. Initial training for individuals wanting to acquire certification for the first time will be held in February and March, he said.

The all day sessions will begin Feb. 22 and run through March 3. Sites are Scottsbluff, North Platte, Kearney, Grand Island, Lincoln, Omaha, Norfolk and Ainsworth. Interested persons should contact their local extension office for further details.

KAFFE KALAS
The Salem Lutheran Church choir presented its 9th Jule-sang Kaffe Kalas at the church on Dec. 18 during the afternoon and evening. 550 persons attended. Mrs. Marvin Mortenson directed the event. The theme was "Angels."

Special selections were sung by the men's quartette Alden Johnson, Kermit Johnson, Burnell Grosch and Charles Soderberg. The double mixed quartette, Lori and Sam Utecht, Ray and Julie Lund, Marcia Kratke, Janice Newton and Lowell and Alden Johnson also presented a special number. Alden Johnson sang a solo, "Sweet Little Jesus Boy."

NUMBER TWENTYFIVE

Forty Years Ago... California

We are going back forty years... It was the year after the world's fair in Chicago. Grover Cleveland was president. Times were hard and growing harder. The population in the mid-west was gaining strength. Hot winds, blamed on Kansas, swept and withered Nebraska's crops. But that could not be held elsewhere were charged to the national administration.
