Von Minden to seek re-election

State Senator Merte Von Minden of Allen announced Monday at Daylight Donuts in Wayne that he is seeking re-election to his 17th District legislative seat.

Von Minden, 57, filed for the seat Friday at the Dixon County Courthouse in Ponca. The 17th District includes all of Dakota and Dixon counties and most of Wayne County.

"When I was first elected to represent northeast Nebraska, my pledge was to work for controlled state spending, respect for law and order, to help the people of this district and to be a voice for responsible government," Von Minden said Monday. "I am comfortable today in seeking re-election by saying I can stand on that record."

VON MINDEN has served as a member of the Nebraska Legislature since 1981. He is a member of the Judiciary Committee, the Miscellaneous Subjects Committee and the Law Enforcement and Advisory Committee.

In 1983 Von Minden was named "Legislator of the Year" by the Nebraska Conservatives for Freedom organization. They based their selection on 57 issues involving fiscal responsibility, government intervention in private lives, and law and order, the senator said.

The Nebraska Federation of Independent Business and the Nebraska Association of Commerce and Industry commended him for his voting record.

"My record favoring small business protection, family farming, controlled spending and strong law enforcement speaks for itself," the senator said. "I take experience to become an effective legislator. I feel confident that I have learned a good deal about being effective."

VON MINDEN CITED "experience at the state and local levels of government, listening and polling people's ideas and working for specific district needs" as his strengths for re-election.

"I am not afraid to say what I think," Von Minden said, "and people here seem to like that. To control escalating government, you have to learn to say no. This is usually not popular with the specific group concerned, but it is essential."

"I am not sure that government can be reduced, but we can try to see that it does not increase. I think state government intrudes enough in our lives, our communities and our occupations. I will continue my support of local decision-making and less government interference," he said.

Sen. Von Minden noted his Wayne municipality bill (LB 125) and Atok bill (LB 631) as successful examples of working to serve our local needs. I see this as my primary responsibility," he added.

"Voters need to send a strong message toward Lincoln saying we don't want more and more laws," Von Minden said. "We don't need 600 new laws every time the legislature meets. It is not easy to battle with big cities and those who want more government, but we must do it."

Von Minden is a veteran of the Korean War, a permanent member of the American Legion and Disabled American Veterans and a member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

He is a member of the American Legion National Legislative Council, a member of the American Legion Oratorical Committee and serves on the Dixon County Veterans Service Board.

Von Minden

The senator is a member of the Dixon County Farm Bureau and served as a Dixon County supervisor from 1974-80. He served on the Region IV Mental Health Board from 1974-80, the F.H.A. Board from 1972-74, the Co-op Elevator Board from 1958-66 and the Board of Education from 1959-65.

Von Minden is a retired farmer-cattle feeder. He and his wife Deenette have 3 adult children.

Van Meter resigns

Cruiser bid accepted

Wayne City Councilman Gary Van Meter submitted his resignation at Tuesday night's regular council meeting.

Van Meter recently moved to another ward and regulations required him to give up his post on the council.

The council accepted a bid on a new police cruiser at Tuesday's meeting. Two bids were submitted and the lowest one was accepted.

The bid was awarded to Arnie's Ford Mercury of Wayne. Arnie's submitted a bid of $10,584 for a 1984 Ford LTD Crown Victoria. A trade in of $1,000 was allowed on Wayne's 1981 cruiser but the council voted to try to sell the used car at a higher price.

The other bid was submitted by Mike Perry Chevrolet Olds. Perry placed a bid of $11,158 on a 1984 Chevrolet Impala four door. With trade in, the bid was $10,158.54.

IN OTHER ACTION: The council passed an ordinance enabling the council to legally work with parties who have set parking guidelines on parking lots, shopping centers or malls.

The ordinance paves the way for parties to set parking guidelines so that they can be enforced. The ordinance stems from problems at the "IGA parking lot" in Wayne.

The council also appointed Alexander & Alexander of Lincoln as risk management consultant for the city. The firm will study all of the City of Wayne's insurance policies and programs including those on vehicles, employees and buildings.

The city is mis insured and under insured in some areas, Kloster said.

IN OTHER ACTION: The council

- Granted authorization for land acquisition and formation of districts in the Western Heights Second Addition
- Approved specifications on a four wheel drive cab and chassis for a line department vehicle. The vehicle will be open for bids on Feb. 28
- Gave the go ahead for preparation of plans for a storm sewer in the south edge of Wayne
- Went into executive session for 25 minutes regarding the issue of land acquisition. No action was taken.
- Approved the liquor license application of Mert Ellis.

Snowmobiles stolen from Logan Valley

Four John Deere snowmobiles were stolen from Logan Valley Implement early Tuesday morning, according to Wayne County Sheriff LeRoy Janssen.

Janssen said 2 1981 models and 2 1980 models were stolen from the Wayne business between 2 and 7 a.m. Tuesday.

Air had extremely low mileage and Janssen estimated the value of the 4 snowmobiles to be approximately $10,000. They would sell for $4,399 each if they were new, he said.

The sheriff said the machines were parked in front of the business. It appeared they were driven half a mile north where they were loaded onto pickups. Foot prints and pickup tracks were discovered in that area.

The snowmobiles were still there at approximately 2 a.m. when Deputy Rick Reed stopped at Logan Valley Implement on routine rounds. But, they were noticed missing at approximately 7 a.m.

Janssen said the thieves either had keys for the machines or hotwired them. He said many snowmobiles have general keys and pointed out that duplicates of keys for other snowmobiles might have worked to start the engines on the stolen ones.

The theft is under investigation by the sheriff's office.

Parking regulations set on some Wayne streets

Vehicles will not be allowed to be parked or left standing from midnight to 5 a.m. in 10 designated areas of Wayne, according to a resolution passed Tuesday night by the Wayne City Council.

The streets affected by the council's action had no previous parking regulations or at least 1 side.

The resolution prohibits parking between midnight and 5 a.m. on the following street areas:

- The north side of 3rd Avenue from Oak Drive west to the city limits
- The west side of Sherman Street from 13th Street north to the city limits
- The north side of Aspen Street from Claycomb Road east to the city limits
- The west side of Linden Street from Aspen Street to 14th Street
- The north side of 14th Street from Providence Road east to the city limits
- The north side of Fairgrounds Avenue from Main Street to South Windom
- The west side of South Nebraska Street from Fairgrounds Avenue south to the city limits

- The west side of South Windom from Fairgrounds Avenue south to the city limits
- The north side of Folk Street from South Nebraska Street to South Windom
- The east side of Circle Drive from 9th Street north to the end of Circle Drive

ANOTHER 15 street areas were taken off of the resolution and will be given further study before the council takes action. Several alternatives will be examined, including 24 and 48 hour snow emergencies, and alternate days parking.

Most of the areas in question are located in the southwest portion of Wayne.

A group of Wayne residents, opposed to restricted parking in their neighborhoods, attended the meeting and many expressed their opposition to the council.

"We're not here to just shove this parking down anyone's throat," Mayor Wayne Marsh told the audience. He added that the city's plan is not only for snow removal purposes but also for safety.

RALPH ETTER, who owns an apartment house on the 300 block of Pearl Street, was the first visitor to speak.

He told the council he would like to see on street parking either kept as it is or changed to alternate parking. Under an alternate parking program, vehicles could be parked on 1 side of the street on odd days of the month and on the other side on even days.

Etter said that there are only between 5 and 10 snow days a year and added that odd even parking should take care of the snow removal problem. He said he can understand the city's problems with snow removal and said that cooperation from the residents is needed.

REV. DONIVER Peterson told the council he would hate to give up 350 days of parking for a dozen days when snow removal is necessary. "I believe that if a few cars are towed away, people will quickly figure out that they better have them off there when it snows or it's going to be quite expensive for them."

Ron Brown said he opposes restricted parking and pointed out that his yard has a 4 to 6 foot drop, making it "physically impossible to make attractive-looking parking."

He said he believes a snow emergency parking regulation would work and suggested prohibiting parking on the streets for 24 hours during or after a storm.

Joe Lowe asked the council why Oak Drive is the last street to be cleaned if it is a major thoroughfare.

COUNCILMAN LARRY Johnson said many of the residents in his ward told him they oppose the proposed parking regulations. He said snow removal definitely is a problem but added that he also believes towing of vehicles could help curb the problem.

Bill Paysen said it will take cooperation to solve the problem. "If people get their cars off the street, there isn't any need for this."

He said a major concern is that if someone has guests there are no parking from midnight to 5 a.m. cars will be ticketed after midnight.

COUNCILMAN DARREL Heier objected to Kloster's comment, stating that he doesn't believe people in a free country should have to check with the police when they have guests parking on the street after midnight.

Kloster pointed out that the main purpose of streets is movement of traffic not parking.

Police Chief Vern Fairchild said that parking tickets rarely are issued before 1 a.m. and usually not before 2 or 2:30 a.m.

Rick Elotson said that other cities have solved their problems with the use of emergency snow routes or snow emergencies. "This here is a big joke," he said in reference to the city's proposal for no parking or midnight-to-5 a.m. restrictions.

Council Attorney Kem Swarts pointed out some problems with emergency parking. He said the main problem is defining when a snowstorm actually ends. That issue would be hard to prove in court, he added.

He also pointed out that ground blizzards probably are not defined as snowstorms, yet can cause more trouble with snow removal.

GARY VAN METER, who submitted his resignation as councilman Tuesday because he had moved into a different ward, expressed his opinions as a citizen.

He said he likes the idea of mandatory towing of vehicles which are parked on streets during and after snowstorms but added that problems could occur when towing because cars are rear-wheel drive, front-wheel drive and four-wheel drive.

Donna Eckhoff presented a petition suggesting an emergency snow route instead of prohibiting midnight-to-five parking. She added that odd-even parking also would be acceptable.

It was suggested by Councilman Johnson that the city use its civil defense system to inform the public of snow emergency declarations.

The council decided to hold off on 15 street areas for 2 or 3 council meetings in order to discuss alternatives.

With Councilman Carolyn Piller absent and with Heier abstaining, the council voted to pass a resolution affecting 10 street areas. The others will be addressed at a later date.

Toastmasters group will form

Toastmasters International is planning to establish a club in Wayne this spring and is seeking individuals to become charter members of the new group.

Programs in Toastmasters are designed to help people become more confident when speaking in public.

According to Glen Porath, district governor for the organization, Toastmasters introduces to its members, techniques on constructing speeches, "how to's" in delivering presentations and tips on how to become better conversational communicators.

"We work at the pace that suits you and you would be surprised at how much more at ease you will become when speaking to an audience," Porath said. "The best way to learn is by doing, and that is how Toastmasters works. You will start speaking and just get better and better."

Anyone who is interested in becoming a charter member of the group should attend an informational meeting at 7 p.m. Tuesday at Daylight Donuts in downtown Wayne. Anyone unable to attend should contact Anne Svoboda at 375-2246.

All members of community, agricultural or civic organizations are encouraged to attend. Cost is $6 for the day session and $7 for the evening session. Fees include the cost of a meal. For registration information contact the chamber office or the extension service.

Temporary license tabs in use

Motorists who want to keep their special license plate numbers will have a better opportunity now that Governor Bob Kerrey has signed Legislative Bill 719.

The bill will allow county treasurers to issue temporary license plate renewal tabs to motorists whose license numbers have not yet arrived.

The measure was sponsored by 37 legislators in response to citizen reaction to the license plate law passed last session.

Because of the timing of the bill's passage, production of new plates was delayed. County treasurers were not given their total allotment of plates. Thus, treasurers could not guarantee partial license numbers to everyone.

The tabs will allow motorists to drive their vehicles until their license plate arrive at the county courthouse.

Correction

The starting date for a microwave cooking class through Wayne's Adult Education program was incorrectly given as March 13 in an advertisement. It actually will start Monday, March 12.

Governor's proposal Driver ed funds in jeopardy

Governor Bob Kerrey's proposal to cut funds for driver education has Wayne Carroll High School's driver ed teachers concerned.

Ron Carnes and Mike Mallette said that drivers education courses are valuable to students as well as the community.

The teachers said that under the governor's recommendation, any current driver education program would not be supported with state funds, even dating back to September.

CARNES AND Mallette said they would like to have concerned parents write their state senators or the governor in support of driver education funds.

Parents can play an important part by writing their state senators, the teachers

They said that approximately 98 percent of the people in the community would be affected if the driver ed funds are cut.

Mallette also pointed out that drivers license fees were increased a few years ago to help fund the state's driver education program. He questioned what would now be done with the funds raised from the fees.

MALLETTE AND Carnes said statistics show that people who have taken driver education courses have 1/2 to 1/3 as many accidents as people who have not taken such courses.

If the governor's budget is passed, they said they aren't sure what effect it would have on Wayne High's driver ed program. Both felt the program could be justified as well as any program in the school's curriculum.

Without driver education programs, many more individuals would be killed in motor vehicle accidents, they said. Driver education must be valuable or insurance companies wouldn't offer discounts, Mallette said.

The 2 Wayne High teachers said they are worried that if state funds are cut, students might be forced to pay the full amount in order to take a drivers ed course. That would mean that only the rich would be involved, they said.

Driver ed driving is a big issue and driver ed can expose the problem more than anything, Carnes said, pointing out another advantage of such a program.

MERLE'S MESSAGE
from the Unicameral

It was a busy week in the Unicameral as the Legislature began its fourth week and settled into the routine of floor debate in the mornings and public hearings in the afternoons.

senator merle von minden

With little debate, LB 719 advanced to final reading on a voice vote Monday morning. LB 719 allows county treasurers to issue temporary license plate renewal tabs. The bill applies only to those people who licenses are up for renewal in Jan. and Feb.

If these persons have a license plate number which hasn't been received by the county treasurer at the time they renew their licenses and if they want to keep their old license plate numbers, the county treasurer will be able to issue a temporary renewal sticker which will be valid until the new plate is received. It is hoped that this procedure will help the majority of those who want to keep their old license plate numbers. Some people will not benefit from the bill because certain plate numbers are just not going to be manufactured.

SEVERAL IMPORTANT measures were acted upon later in the week. In what will be a major change in the law pertaining to qualifications for public office. LB 623 requires that those who hold public office be registered voters. The effect of this change is to allow only those persons 18 or older to serve as elected officials.

A bill which has received a lot of attention lately is LB 568. This is the vocational education measure which provides funding to encourage vocational training in our high schools. The cost of the bill as it stands now is $2 million for the 84-85 fiscal year and an additional $2 million for 85-86.

I supported advancement of the bill to select file but with a few reservations. As happens much of the time in the case of state aid, most of the money ends up in Douglas, Lancaster and the more populous counties. This is true in the case of LB 568.

An additional provision mandates that for an office which requires a bond on the signing of contracts, the office holder will have to be at least 19, the age of majority in Nebraska. Evidently the election last year of a 14-year-old to the Lancaster County Weed Control Board concerned a few people. After considerable debate, the measure advanced to final reading on Tuesday.

Since the amount of dollars each school receives depends on the cost of the particular class times of number of students taking these courses, naturally more money will go to the larger schools which have more students and offer more diversified, hence, more expensive, vocational training.

DESPITE THIS aspect of the bill, I plan to support LB 568 because it will allow the schools in my district to continue providing vocational education programs which are sorely needed. A significant number of our high school graduates do not go on to college.

I feel it is only fitting that we do what we can to prepare them for the job market. These young people are just as important and just as deserving as those who go on to postsecondary education; an area into which we pour millions of dollars in state aid annually.

A measure which significantly affects the insanity plea in Nebraska advanced to Final Reading on a vote of 29-7. I support LB 183 which will shift the burden of proof in insanity cases from the state to the defendant.

Under present law, once a defendant raises the insanity defense, the prosecution, in order to convict, must prove that the defendant was sane at the time he committed the crime. Under LB 183, the burden is shifted to the defendant to prove his insanity during the commission of the crime by a preponderance of the evidence.

Many states have enacted changes in their insanity defense laws in the last few years because of the increasingly controversial use of the defense. I think it is time Nebraska did likewise.

The issue of parking has occupied the Wayne City Council during its past 2 regular meetings. And for good reason.

The council has taken upon itself to address a problem that needs to be corrected. That problem is the situation in the parking lot known by most people as the IGA lot.

The lot is Wayne's number 1 meeting place of area young people. One of the main results is excess noise. Anyone who lives in the neighborhood knows how bad the noise can get.

Some of the people who are gathering at the parking lot are breaking laws. Many are disturbing the peace of others.

It's time something is done and all parties are ready to take action. In the past, very little could be done to stop the activity in the parking lot late at night.

Now, the owners of the parking lot have stepped forward and asked the council to help them out. The council also wants to remedy the problem and is trying to do its best to help.

The first steps have been taken. The parking lot owners are drafting a sign restricting parking in the lot, according to state statutes. The council will be addressing the situation with resolutions and ordinances in the near future.

Hopefully, these actions will be the initial steps which will curb the excessive activity and noise in the area.

The residents of that area and the customers and owners of the businesses have their rights.

A solution to the problem will not be easy to establish. If the IGA lot can be patrolled, then what about the other 4 or 5 lots to which the people will move?

These lots probably will have to be addressed 1 at a time.

It's too bad there is no place in this community for the young people to peacefully gather with their friends.

Remember the vets

The week of Valentine's Day, Feb. 14, has been set aside as a special time for Americans to salute hospitalized veterans. It is a time when we can personally express appreciation to those men and women who sacrificed so much.

The traditional sentiment of Valentine's Day—caring, loving, sharing—is in keeping with the salute's theme of remembering those Americans who made possible the freedom we enjoy today.

Today, their "world" has narrowed to their Veterans Administration hospitals. And, despite the excellent care they receive, it's sometimes hard for them to escape the feeling that the hospital staffs are the only ones who care.

You know that's not true. Americans do care about them. So, show them that you care by participating in the National Salute to Hospitalized Veterans.

The American nation is an unfinished creation. It has grown through the years because its ideals have been served by its people. These veterans served. Now you can serve them.

They gave a lot for you; now remember them.

Remember: America is number one, thanks to our veterans.

Nothing hurts like being forgotten... Nothing helps like being remembered.

Language problem

To the editor:

In recent years I've become disturbed over the foul language being used by the citizens of our great country.

Everywhere you go, you hear people using foul language that should have no place in our society. Many times, every other word many people use is dirty. It's not safe to take your children to a movie or out to eat anymore without them being subjected to swearing and filthy talk.

And it's not just the men. Many women have tongues just as foul as the men. It seems the trend in our society is that to fit in you must use bad language in your everyday vocabulary.

I, for one, wish this trend would come to a stop. I guess it's time to get out the bars of soap and wash out a bunch of mouths.

Am I the only one who has noticed the change in language or the only one bothered by it?

Equitable taxes for clergy

In an attempt to afford equitable tax treatment to members of the clergy, I have cosponsored H.R. 1905 a bill that would repeal an Internal Revenue Service ruling of last July that members of the clergy may not take deductions of their income tax returns for home mortgage interest and property taxes to the extent that they receive tax free housing allowances from their congregations.

Internal IRS memos have set forth the policy that housing allowances received by clergy and military personnel should receive the same tax treatment. The only way to prevent this from happening may be to enact legislation.

Another bill that I am cosponsoring (H.R. 4134) authorizes a study of the Pony Express Trail for inclusion in the National Trails system as a historical trail. The Pony Express Trail extends nearly 2,000 miles from St. Joseph, through Kan., Neb., Col., Wyo. Utah and Nev. to Sacramento, Calif.

The Pony Express is an important chapter in the text of the pioneer movement. Prior to the completion of the transcontinental telegraph, the Pony Express provided the fastest and most reliable communication to and from America's isolated populations. It demonstrated the superiority of a central overland transportation route and hastened western development.

This legislation is not an outright designation. It would only require the completion of a formal study to be conducted by the appropriate federal agency. The analysis will determine if the Pony Express Trail truly merits special national recognition, and will document the historic background and identify the location of the various trail components.

Although the designation of a National Historic Trail is continuous, only those trail components which are on federally owned lands are initially protected and managed

Since the Pony Express route is located in both urban and rural settings, it is likely that a Pony Express National Historic Trail would provide needed recreational opportunities and historic interpretation to persons of all ages and physical abilities.

Animal welfarists make another pitch

By Cheryl Stubbendick

Nebraska Farm Bureau

It's hard to figure out the animal welfare folks. Sometimes it's more prudent not to try — and simply accord them the regard one reserves for other religious viewpoints, for example.

In the past, production agriculture has suggested that while animal rights and animal welfare ideas should not be taken seriously, the people expounding those ideas should be — in part because they are thoughtful, concerned people — not members of some lunatic fringe — and in part because, if ignored, they can do great harm.

Recently, however, the animal welfare folks have been pushing this toleration to the limit, and perhaps beyond. Dr. Michael Fox, scientific director of the Humane Society of the United States and director of its Institute for the Study of Animal Problems, is chief spokesman for the movement.

SPEAKING in October, Fox described something he called "the New Age Movement," which he said seeks to destroy the world view of God being the head of man and man being the head of woman, with man having dominion over animals.

He compared a male and female dog playing to a newly engaged couple, saying that both pairs of "animals" were behaving in exactly the same way and concluded that no species is superior and all must live in harmony.

Production agriculture has no problem with the harmony part. Indeed, animal husbandry implies the careful use and guarding of valuable resources and no one has greater concern for the care of farm animals than the farmer who raises them. But the suggestion that man and animals are equal is too much.

This past month (January), the animal welfare people have launched another effort. A slick as money can buy press packet, rivaling the best efforts of machinery manufacturers, heralds a new conference at which Fox will introduce his "important" new book on farm animals, which a news release says takes the first "scientific approach to the controversial topic of farm animal welfare."

ference will be served a continental breakfast, the news release notes. Of what, soybean curd and sprouts? Another promotional puff piece calls the Fox book "a major new award winning reference and text" — we learn elsewhere that the award is specifically for research in animal welfare — and that it "establishes farm animal welfare as a scientific discipline in its own right."

Beyond that, little is said about the Fox book, except that we may purchase the paperback for $24.95, and that author Fox's alphabet soup of degrees includes something called a M.R.C.V.S.

The majority of the packet rehashes old arguments from the animal welfare folks, and much of it is an insult to intelligence. Clear, crisp photos show such "acceptable" animal raising practices as exceptionally roomy, open farm finishing houses in which pigs' tails have not been docked. In contrast, grainy, sleazy-looking pictures show modern confinement methods.

MAYOR WAYNE MARSH, at right, proclaimed Catholic Schools Week last Friday at St. Mary's School in Wayne. Pictured with the mayor, from left, are Father Jim Buschelman, pastor of St. Mary's Church; Mrs. Ellen Imdieke, kindergarten and first grade teacher at St. Mary's School; Principal Patricia Ruther, who also teaches, grades 4-6; and Mrs. Pam Boehle, second and third grade teacher. National Catholic Schools Week, which has been celebrated annually for the past 10 years, is Jan. 29 through Feb. 4.

Catholic Schools Week

St. Mary's observes 30th year during national celebration

A series of special events marking National Catholic Schools Week will culminate this Friday at St. Mary's School in Wayne.

In observance of the week-long event, which also marks the 30th anniversary of St. Mary's School, the Wayne Chamber of Commerce will hold its weekly coffee at the school on Friday at 10 a.m.

Other events scheduled Friday include a school mass at 11:30 a.m., a noon luncheon for parents, students and former teachers of the school, and a swimming party at 1:30 p.m. in Wayne State's Rice Auditorium.

The week of special activities began last Sunday with a parish mass at 10 a.m., followed with coffee and doughnuts. On Tuesday, students and their families gathered in the school basement for Family Fun Night, with games and contests.

THEME FOR Catholic Schools Week, which is in its 10th year of celebration, is "Beacon of Hope." The national celebration focuses on the role Catholic elementary and secondary schools play in providing a well-rounded education.

The celebration is designed to build community awareness and involvement in Catholic schools throughout the country.

THE HISTORY OF St. Mary's Catholic School begins with ground breaking ceremonies which took place on Sept. 8, 1952 by Father Robert Hupp.

The school was opened by Father William Kieffman on Sept. 8, 1953, with an enrollment of 43 students. The school was staffed by three full-time sisters from the Order of St. Benedict, Norfolk.

A school board was formed in 1958 and included Larry DeForge, Angie Denesia, Ron Dendinger, Jean Nuss, Vona Sharer and Vic Hoase.

TODAY, St. Mary's is staffed by three full-time teachers including Principal Patricia Ruther, who also teaches grades

4-6. Mrs. Pam Boehle, second and third grade teacher, and Mrs. Ellen Imdieke, kindergarten first grade teacher.

In addition, the school is served by Educational Service Unit One. Part-time physical education instructor is Hank Overin, and music teacher is Mrs. Connie Webber.

Present enrollment is 43 students in grades kindergarten through six.

IN OBSERVANCE OF Catholic Schools Week, students of St. Mary's were asked to write why they like to attend the school. "I am glad I attend St. Mary's because Mrs. Imdieke is my teacher. I am learning to read and I like math," wrote first grader Eileen Von Seggern, adding "I learn my prayers and that Jesus loves me. PE is fun with Hank and music is fun too."

First grader Jesse Werner wrote he is glad to attend St. Mary's because he learns so many things. "I learn how to read every day. I learn Jesus is our special brother and God is our special Father."

"I like St. Mary's because it is fun to meet people. It is nice to see my new friends," wrote first grader Troy Jeffrey. Molly Melena, another first grader, wrote, "I am glad I attend St. Mary's because I learn about God and math, and English every day. I like my teacher and I have lots of fun with Hank."

THE PHILOSOPHY OF St. Mary's School, as outlined in part in the school handbook, is to create a Catholic educational community where knowledge is nurtured and enriched by faith, is shared by teachers, students, parents and the parish community.

The learning experiences given the child will affect his ideas, attitudes and habits of living — not only in school but at home, in the parish, in the local community and the church.

FATHER JIM Buschelman, pastor of St. Mary's Church, said residents of the community are invited to visit the school during Friday's Chamber of Commerce coffee at 10 a.m.

Lesson to focus on wall accessories

The displaying of paintings, prints, drawings and other accessories on walls will be the focus on an upcoming leader training session at the Northeast Station, near Concord.

"Wall accessories help to break up or balance otherwise empty space, and perhaps most important, provide a means for the individual to personalize the space," said Anna Marie White, Dixon County extension agent-home economics.

"Placement of these objects need not be a haphazard process," added White.

TO HELP persons plan their wall accessories, a free leader training session, entitled "Be a Wall Wizard - Arranging Wall Groupings," will be held Monday, Feb. 13 at 1:30 p.m. at the Northeast Station.

White said although the training is planned for home extension club leaders, representatives of other community groups also are welcome.

Persons planning to attend are asked to contact the Dixon County Extension Office by Feb. 6 so lesson materials can be prepared.

Who benefits?

'Organ transplantation is very much an issue of brain death'

By LaVon Anderson

"I am not opposed to organ transplantation if it's done out of charity. If we have two and can give one out of love, that's fine.

"I am opposed to removing a vital organ from someone. Every time doctors do a heart or liver transplant, they kill someone to get them."

"I am clearly opposed to this."

THOSE WERE the words of Dr. Paul A. Byrne, who spoke to a capacity crowd Saturday morning in the Wayne Woman's Club room.

Byrne, clinical professor of pediatrics at Creighton University School of Medicine in Omaha, was invited to speak in Wayne during the fourth annual pro-life breakfast sponsored by the Wayne County chapter of Right to Life.

Speaking on the topic "Understanding Brain Death," Byrne said organ transplantation is very much a part of the issue of brain death.

BYRNE STRESSED that he is not opposed to organ transplantation for charity, or if someone is dead.

"When an individual is dying, he or she is still not dead. Dead is separate and distinct."

"The big question," he asked, "is what does it mean to be dead?"

Byrne said although theologians, lawyers, philosophers and physicians all have a different answer to the question, "there is no one on earth who can give a point of view from experience."

"When an individual is dying, he or she is still not dead," said Byrne, adding "dead is separate and distinct."

BYRNE TOLD the crowd attending Saturday morning's breakfast that he became interested in the issue of "brain death" while practicing medicine in Minnesota.

He told the story of Joseph, a 1 lb., 11 oz. infant who, six weeks after his birth, was still attached to a respirator and wouldn't breathe on his own.

"We took an EEG (electroencephalogram) and it came back grossly abnormal," said Byrne, explaining that an EEG traces electrical impulses in the brain and is one of the criteria used by doctors to determine brain death.

Byrne said when the same EEG results showed up 48 hours later, he was advised to take Joseph off the respirator.

"Physicians determine someone to be 'dead,' and then they continue to treat them as if they were alive by keeping them on a respirator while they remove their liver or heart."

"My conscience would not allow me to do that," said Byrne while showing a picture of a healthy seven year old Joseph riding a bicycle.

"That was the stimulus to make me study this entire issue of brain death," said Byrne.

"PHYSICIANS DETERMINE someone to be 'dead,' and then they continue to treat them as if they were alive by keeping them on a respirator while they remove their liver or heart," said Byrne.

"I ask you, how can a cadaver get bed sores or pneumonia?"

Byrne said there are more than 30 sets of criteria used by doctors today to determine brain death.

"They are all different," pointed out Byrne, "and doctors can use any one of them to determine when a patient is brain dead."

Byrne said when death occurs there is complete destruction of the brain with irreversible cessation of function.

"Non-function is not the same as destruction," he emphasized, adding that a human being is not dead until or unless there is destruction of the major systems, including respiratory, circulatory and central nervous systems.

"TODAY'S CRITERIA of brain death is just not good enough," stressed Byrne, adding that when a heart or liver transplant is involved, it often results in the needless risk of one patient's life to benefit another.

"Who does it benefit?" asked Byrne. "It benefits the relatives in terms of expense, it benefits the other patient, it benefits the physician himself, and it benefits all mankind."

"That," added Byrne, "is practicing secular humanism. It's being practical and leaving God out."

"This is just not acceptable," emphasized Byrne, "and yet we march ahead with more heart and liver transplants."

BYRNE INFORMED persons attending Saturday's program that there presently is a movement in the country to pass a uniform determination of death act.

The act states that an individual is dead when there is irreversible cessation of circulatory and respiratory functions, along with irreversible cessation of all function of the entire brain.

"That's not even a good law, much less good medicine," stressed Byrne, adding that many doctors are in deep disagreement whether brain death is symbolic of death.

BYRNE SAID he also is opposed to a bill presently in the Nebraska legislature which makes it easier to donate organs.

"This should not be passed," stressed Byrne, adding that by doing so a doctor can determine a patient to be "brain-dead" and proceed to remove his or her vital organs.

"No one should be declared dead unless the respiratory and circulatory systems, and the entire brain, have been destroyed."

"Such destruction," said Byrne, "must be determined in accordance with solidly based, universally accepted medical standards."

In expressing his disgust with the term "vegetable," Byrne said no human being is ever a vegetable.

"We are always a human being. If for all intents and purposes we are not useful anymore, we are still a human being," said Byrne, adding that it is much easier to turn off a respirator to a vegetable than a human being.

Dr. Paul Byrne

BYRNE SAID everyone is a possible organ donor through the Uniform Anatomical Gift Act presently in existence.

As a result of the act, Byrne said the decision to donate organs is made by the next-of-kin or, if there is no next-of-kin, any other person authorized to dispose of the body, including the hospital administrator or coroner.

"We are always a human being. If for all intents and purposes we are not useful anymore, we are still a human being. It is much easier to turn off a respirator to a vegetable than a human being."

IN CLOSING, Byrne said until there comes a time when doctors can remove a heart or liver from a body after death has occurred, he is clearly opposed to all heart and liver transplants.

"If the brain related criteria used to determine death is not based on valid scientific data, euthanasia is already here," said Byrne.

When asked if he is opposed to kidney or eye transplants, Byrne answered "not at all."

"Eyes can be removed within four hours after death, and kidneys can be removed within one half hour after death."

"Other vital organs," said Byrne, "are being taken while the heart is still beating."

Wakefield romps past Wildcats

For Wakefield it was a good time. For Winside it was near nightmare. That pretty much sums up the Trojans' 59-27 spanking of the Wildcats in opening round action of the Lewis and Clark Conference Tournament Monday night at Wakefield.

The Trojans used their great team quickness to compensate for lack of height in vaulting to a 14-3 advantage at the end of the first period, and never looked back en route to the win.

Troy Greve had 9 caroms for the Trojans while Hawkins led the Cats with 11. Winside is idle until Feb. 7 when the Cats will take on Wynot on the road. Wakefield advances to the second round of the L&C tourney and will meet Osmond tonight (Thursday) at Wausa.

"Their quickness just ate us up," said Winside head coach Mark Freburg. "They're so quick on defense that we couldn't get the ball in low — they proved that you don't need tall players to win."

Wakefield coach Ernie Kovar said that the absence of Winside's 6-3 Scot Janke also helped the Trojan cause. "It's true we don't have any height, but Janke wasn't in there — he burned us for 19 points last time (a 43-26 Wakefield victory on Jan. 13)," Kovar said.

Freburg said he tried using a man-to-man and a zone defense to stop the Trojans, but with little success.

"It didn't seem to make much difference to them," he said. "Wakefield finished the night shooting 44 percent (25-of-56), while the Wildcats hit a meager 25 percent (10-of-40)."

Scoring honors for the game went to Winside's John Hawkins, who hit 7-of-14 shots from the field and 1 free throw to tally 15 points. Wakefield's Jeff Coble, Brian Soderberg and Wade Nicholson each tallied 8 points to fuel the Trojan attack.

Wakefield also dominated the boards, pulling down 21 rebounds to Winside's 24.

Tenth-ranked Cats trounced by Bears

Don't tell the Laurel Bears that Hartington is Class C-2's tenth-ranked team — they probably don't even care. All the Bears care about is that they dumped the Wildcats 45-35 in the opening round of the Lewis and Clark Conference Tournament Monday at Wausa. The win might help the Bears forget 56-37 loss to Wakefield last Friday night at home.

Laurel coach John Held isn't sure which team will show up tonight (Thursday) when Laurel takes on Wausa in the second round of the tourney at Wausa.

"Who showed up? I don't know," said Held. "I do know that the kids were definitely upset after the loss to Wakefield."

HELD SAID the Bears made a few adjustments in their lineup — which included benching regular starters Scott Rath and Mike Forsberg for a few minutes at the beginning of the game.

"We started Haisch (junior Brent) and Herrmann (senior Mark) just to let Rath and Forsberg sit and relax a little while," Held said.

Held added that Rath and Forsberg responded by "playing as well as they ever have."

Laurel held a slim 8-7 advantage after the first period and led just 16-13 at intermission.

THE THIRD period saw the Bears outscore Hartington 14-8. They never looked back.

"We came out (in the second half) and responded and played hard and did the things we're capable of," Held said. "We controlled the boards (48-32) — that's been one of our problems all year."

Laurel's attack was led by three players who scored in double figures. Mark Penierick tallied 12 points while teammates Troy Heltman and Rath added 13 and 10 points respectively.

The Bears shot 61 percent (19-of-31) to Hartington's 43 percent (14-of-32).

Heltman led the Bears with 14 rebounds while Rath added 13.

Cats' skid ends at Chadron

Breaking a 10-game losing streak and fighting numbers, the Wayne State women's basketball team upended Nebraska Athletic Conference foe Chadron State on the road Tuesday night 62-59.

The Wildcats' ranks have been dwindling for a number of reasons. And there were only 12 players on the Wayne State bench at Chadron. To make matters worse, Barb Wragge and Shari Krohn fouled out in the second half, leaving the Cats with just 3 players to finish the game.

The Wildcats had taken a 40-27 advantage at halftime, though, and managed to fend off the Eagles' comeback efforts with the sparse lineup.

Wayne State held a big 55-35 rebound advantage as Carol Durkee tore down 18 caroms to pace the Cats.

In the scoring department, Wragge tallied 24 shots from the field en route to a team-leading 30-point performance. Vina Kelly added 18 points and 4 rebounds.

The win put the Lady Cats at 5-13 on the season.

Kearney State wasted little time establishing who was boss Saturday night en route to a 75-68 CSIC women's basketball win over Wayne State in Kearney.

The Lopers jumped out in front 10-1 in the early going and led 41-33 at the halftime intermission.

The Wildcats battled to within 8 points on several occasions, but Kearney State built its biggest lead (66-52) at the 4:14 mark in the second half.

Wayne State had its last hurrah as Patty Carney hit a bucket and Vina Kelly beamed three baskets as the Cats outscored Kearney 8-1 and pulled to 67-60 with 2:35 left.

That was enough to wake the Antelopes up, though, and Kearney held off the Wildcat rally to register the win.

Wayne State shot a meager 37 percent (29 of 78) from the field compared to KSU's 43 percent (32 of 73). Barb Wragge paced the Cats with 21 points while teammate Shari Krohn pulled down 22 of the Cats' 56 rebounds.

Blue Devils do number on Winside

Wynot did a number on Winside Saturday night in opening round girls action of the Lewis and Clark Conference Tournament at Hartington, dumping the Wildcats 59-36.

Winside fell behind 16-4 after the first period of play and the Wildcats never recovered. In fact, they might not have been fully recovered from a flu bug that struck the team last week.

I don't want to keep using that as an excuse, said Winside head coach Don Leighton, "but you can see from the stats that we weren't playing aggressively."

Winside was only whistled for 10 fouls against the Blue Devils.

"We just weren't moving on offense," Leighton said. "Defensively we weren't playing that bad, but there was just no aggressiveness."

Winside put up just 11 shots in the first half, but managed to pull the ball up 47 times on the night. Only 14 percent (7 of 47) of those shots made it through the hoop.

The Wildcats trailed on the boards, probably their strong suit this season, and pulled down 49 rebounds. Pam Peter, Missy Jensen and Julie Brockman all tore down 8 rebounds.

Scoring for the Cats was led by Brockman, who tallied 8 points. Teammates Leah Jensen and Peter each added 6.

Winside is idle until next Tuesday, when the Wildcats are slated to play the Blue Devils again — this time at Wynot.

"You gotta stay on the paved roads." That sage advice was given to me last Saturday night by Allen head girls basketball coach Gary Troth after I told him of my ordeal in trying to find Homer — where the Eagles met Emerson-Hubbard in the opening round of the Lewis and Clark Conference Tournament.

It looked simple enough on the map — if you stayed on the main highways. But not this guy. Far be it from me to go a few extra miles out of my way — I'd take a short cut across the county roads, I thought.

It was almost the last mistake I ever made.

Mr. Roundabout

As a little background to this story, you should know that I've had trouble maneuvering around this part of the country ever since moving to Wayne from Lincoln last May.

This is the same guy who went to Allen via Wakefield to attend the Eagle Trojan football game only to find out the contest was played — in Wakefield.

This is also the same guy who visited the University of Nebraska Northeast Station for a story last week and turned in a mileage compensation for 44 miles only to be politely informed by my boss that the trip was supposed to be around 20 miles. I won't even tell you what route I took on that little journey.

Get an early start

Saturday's trip started out innocently enough. The game was scheduled for 8 p.m., so I left Wayne an hour ahead of time in my trusty 1971 Volkswagen Super Beetle (in retrospect, I can safely say that any less of a Beetle wouldn't have made it).

The trip went rather smoothly until I veered south. According to my road map, which I was trying to read with a flashlight (my dome light burned out long before I bought the car), all I had to do to save driving all the way to Dakota City was to turn south off of Highway 35 at the village of Hubbard. Then it was supposed to be a simple matter of driving south a few miles until I got to THE INTERSECTION, before heading east right into Homer.

Eenie meenie

Maps lie. BOY do maps lie. I even had the official "State of Nebraska Highway Map and Travel Guide" complete with a picture of ex-governor Chuckie Thone on it. Big deal.

Well, I'll be honest, maps don't actually lie to you (heck, they're inanimate objects), what they don't do is show you ALL the roads.

THE intersection I planned on turning east at was the only one shown on the map, but was just one of several beckoning paths along the way.

After I drove for about five minutes, I started to have my doubts about just what road was the one shown on the map.

I had better turn east here pretty quick, I thought, or I'd end up hopelessly lost on the Winnebago Indian Reservation just like I did once during volleyball season (another story, if I please).

I finally picked a road and headed towards Homer — or so I thought. To this day I still couldn't tell you where I went.

All I know is that it was extremely dark and as I meandered through the coal black night it was then that I realized that I hadn't seen another car for over ten minutes.

I hadn't even seen a farm, or a farm dog, or even a cow. This was getting spooky.

Death in the hills

The first few guitar chords from "Dueling Banjos" kept running through my head. All I could think of was the movie "Deliverance" and how the "hill people" had followed Bob Reynolds and company through the wilderness on their canoe trip. I couldn't get my mind off Dueling Banjos by listening to music because my car radio no longer works. My car doesn't have an antenna anyway.

By that time, I had no idea which direction I was going, but I had no intention of dying out there.

I could see it now, running out of gas as the hill people came out of the underbrush, grinning.

"We don't much cotton to strangers around here — stranger."

I decided to backtrack, and turned the Thunderbug around. I worked my way back to the "main" road and drove south a few more miles. A sane person would have gone back to Wayne, but I had promised Troth that I would make it to the Eagles' game.

Another few miles — another road bidding me to "turn here" — stranger.

This time I facked out, the road took me right into Homer. I've never been so glad to see a town in all my life.

What this state needs is a subway system.

ALLEN'S KEVIN Chase is having problems getting past Homer's Wes Boals (52).

Lewis boys Eagles soar, then fall

The Allen Eagles blew a ten-point halftime lead against Homer in their opening round game of the Lewis and Clark Conference Tournament on Monday night and dropped a 36-33 loss to the Knights at Emerson.

Both teams came in with similar records — Homer sitting at 6-7 while The Eagles sported 6-8 mark. Allen head coach Dave Ulrich said he thought the Eagles played perhaps their best game in two years.

"I don't think we played bad at all," Ulrich said. "We played the best defense in two years — we were so intense — to lose is just demoralizing."

THE TEAMS battled to an 8-8 deadlock after one period of play before the Eagles erupted to outscore the Knights 15-5 in the second stanza and take a 23-13 advantage into the locker room at halftime.

In the third period, Allen seemed to be playing catchup — the Eagles hurried their offense and turned the ball over at crucial points to allow the Knights to pull within 27-24 at the 1:40 mark.

An Eagle turnover was converted into a quick Homer bucket and the Knights were within one point at 27-26 at the end of the third quarter.

THE KNIGHTS finally tied things at 31 and took the lead at 33-31 as Wes Boals hit a turn-around jumper with just 1:39 left in the game.

That proved to be enough for the victory as Allen mustered just one more basket to put the tally at 34-33, but Homer was sent to the line three times in the closing seconds to ice the win.

The Eagles committed just 12 turnovers on the night (a two-year low) but did so at crucial times.

ALLEN WAS paced by Jay Jones' 8 points while Kevin Chase added 7. In the rebound department, the Eagles tore down 35 boards as Jones again led the way with 8 caroms.

The Knights were led by Boals' 10 points. Allen is idle until Feb. 9, when the Eagles are slated to play on the road against power full Beemer.

Penn tallies 25 as Cats win

Wayne State rebounded from Saturday's loss at Kearney State by traveling west again on Tuesday and coming back with a 72-65 Nebraska Athletic Conference win over Chadron State.

The Wildcats were fueled by junior Tracy Penn, who scored 21 of his 25 points in the second half to help Wayne State overcome a 41-33 halftime deficit.

The Cats trailed the entire game until taking the lead with just under 5 minutes remaining in the contest.

Penn's 25 points paced the Wildcats while teammates Russ Uhing and Vince Tillo each tallied 9. Wayne State shot 55 percent (29-of-52) from the field against the Eagles. The Cats are now 10-14 overall, 2-2 in the NAC and 2-6 in the CSIC. Their next game is slated for tomorrow (Friday) night at Emporia State.

KSU triumphs

Wayne State mens basketball coach Rick Weaver called the Wildcats' January and February road schedule "awesome." He probably hasn't changed his mind after Kearney State handed the Cats' their second loss in a row after 3 straight wins, 95-81 at Kearney last Saturday night.

Kearney blasted to a 12-4 advantage early in the game and led 44-39 at the half before Lonell Greene hit from the right corner to pull the Cats within 3 at 43-41 just seconds in to the second half.

The Antelopes then went back to work and went up by as many as 10 points in the next few minutes and took a 75-56 lead at the 10:04 mark. The Lopers never looked back and coasted to the win, shooting 56 percent (37-of-66) from the field for the night.

Wayne State managed to shoot 42 percent (37-of-88).

The Wildcats were paced by Russ Uhing and Tracy Penn, who tallied 20 and 18 points respectively. Kearney State's Chris Wolfe hit 10 of 14 shots from the floor to lead all scorers with 21 points.

Both squads were active on the boards as they pulled down a combined 95 rebounds. Wayne State tallied 41 as Greene led the way with 11.

Kearney upped its season mark to 16-5 overall and 5-2 in the CSIC with the win.

Penn picked

Wayne State's Tracy Penn was named as a NAIA District 11 "Player of the Week" after he tallied 40 points in the Wildcats' three victories over Washburn, Emporia and Briar Cliff.

The Wildcats failed to land any players among the weekly statistical leaders in the district.

In the team stats, Wayne State is sixth in scoring offense (75 points per game) and in scoring defense (78.3 points per game).

In rebounding percentage, the Cats are also seventh with a .490 average while they are next to last in field goal percentage.

(.453) and free throw percentage (.640).

The NAIA District 11 is comprised of Midland Lutheran, Hastings College, Peru State, Concordia College, Kearney State, Nebraska Wesleyan, Chadron State, Dana College, Doane College and Wayne State.

Lonell Greene and Calvin Sprew are neck-and-neck in the rebounding statistics, averaging 6.2 (12th) and 6.1 (13th) respectively.

Wildcat Jimmy Gooch is ninth in the CSIC in assists with a 3.5 per game average.

Cats near bottom

The Wayne State mens basketball team is sixth in team offense and seventh in team defense according to the latest statistical report from the Central States Intercollegiate Conference released earlier this week.

The Wildcats are averaging 75 points per contest while allowing opponents 78.3 points per outing.

The Cats are hitting 45.3 percent of their field goals — placing them last in the CSIC, and are seventh in free throw percentage, making 64 percent of their shots from the charity stripe.

The Wildcats are averaging 11 rebound margin (minus 7) and a scoring margin (minus 6.2).

Trojans thrown to Lions

The Wakefield Trojans got thrown to the Lions last Saturday in the opening round of the Lewis and Clark Conference Tournament at Hartington, dropping a 48-39 decision to Osmond.

Wakefield head coach Mary Schroeder said the Trojans had one of their worst nights of the season.

"We just didn't play very well at all," Schroeder said. "We lacked defensive intensity."

Osmond left the gate quickly and held a 14-6 lead after the first quarter and was out in front 24-13 at halftime.

The Tigers continued to add to their lead in the third period, taking advantage of some of Wakefield's 18 turnovers, and took a 36-23 lead into the fourth stanza.

Schroeder found one positive note in the loss: Tiger Julie Buchholz was limited to just 2 points. She tallied 22 in the teams' last meeting — a 44-34 Trojan victory on Dec. 19. Wakefield's leading scorer was Brenda Jones, who tallied 24 big points. The 5-8 senior also led Wakefield with 11 rebounds.

The Trojans are idle until Tuesday, when they travel to Allen to take on the Eagles.

Allen girls eliminated

Ponca eliminated the Allen girls from the Lewis and Clark Conference Tournament by virtue of a 47-41 victory over the Eagles Tuesday night at Homer. The Eagles won an earlier tourney game 35-32 over Emerson-Hubbard on Saturday at Homer.

Ponca opened up a 13-2 lead in the first period of play and never looked back en route to the win.

Allen finally got untracked, scoring 16 points in the second quarter, but Eagle coach Gary Troth said his squad looked flat-footed.

"I thought we'd be anxious to play," Troth said. "But we were walking around — this was the time we were supposed to get excited."

Troth expressed concern with the Eagles lack of enthusiasm with district competition for a berth in the state tournament just around the corner.

"I just hope we're not tired, because we can't be flat for districts," he said.

Seniors Jeanne Warner and Michelle Harder took scoring honors in the Eagles' tournament games. Warner tallied 12 against Emerson-Hubbard while Harder led the way against the Indians with 18 points.

In the rebound department, Emerson-Hubbard outboarded the Eagles, 22-20 as Harder tore down 8 caroms. Rebounding statistics from the Ponca game were unavailable at press time.

Allen is idle until Feb. 7, when the Eagles play host to Wakefield.

For the Blue Devils at Albion, Koenig took first place by virtue of a pin of Todd Luchfinger of the 2:59 mark.

Bears to semifinals

The Laurel Bears girls basketball team is ripping right through the Lewis and Clark Conference Tournament and is just 2 victories away from the championship.

The Bears blasted Cokeridge 32-16 last Saturday at Laurel and sneaked past Wausa 34-33 Tuesday night at Hartington.

Against the Vikings, the Bears used a 13-point second period while shutting out Wausa and took a 17-9 lead into the locker-room at the half.

The Vikings outscored the Bears 10-4 in the third period, but Laurel hung on to squeak out the 34-33 win and advance to the semifinal game tomorrow (Friday) night against Wynot at Wausa.

"We're a little beat up, but we're looking forward to avenging the five-point loss to Wynot earlier (Jan. 12)," said Laurel boss Gale Hamilton.

Against Cokeridge, Laurel was paced by Wendy Robson's 12 points while freshman

Gail Twiford pulled down 17 of the Bears' 42 rebounds.

Robson failed 11 points to fuel the Bears past Wynot while teammate Jean Lufe added 10.

In the rebound department, Robson tore down 9 of the Bears' 23 caroms.

Hamilton said the Bears will not take any time off for practice, but that they would "go a little lighter" on Wednesday.

Poor shooting fatal to Devils

A poor night shooting proved to be fatal for the Wayne Blue Devils girls basketball team on Tuesday night as they absorbed a 54-30 loss on the road to Wisner.

Pilger while making just 16-of-60 shots (26 percent) from the field.

"They (Wisner-Pilger) pressed all night and we had no problems with that," said Wayne coach Dale Hochstein. "The only thing is we just couldn't get the shots."

Wayne found itself trailing 16-5 after one period of play, but continued to scrap despite the Gators' press.

The Devils started out in a 1-3-1 defense but switched to a man-to-man to slow up Gator star Lori Schutte, who finished the night with 8 points.

"She got 2 quick buckets then we went to the man-to-man and she only got 4 points the rest of the night."

Hochstein said he was pleased that Wayne turned the ball over just 16 times on the night.

"We took it right through their traps," he said. "We ran our offense really well — we just don't shoot the ball well."

Wisner-Pilger took a 27-11 advantage at the half and coasted to the win in the second half, outscoring the Blue Devils 23-17.

Wayne's attack was led by Karen Longe's 17 points and 15 rebounds. Fran Gross added 4 points and 8 rebounds to the Devils' total of 29 caroms.

The Wayne junior varsity fell 35-17 after falling behind 9-0 at the end of the first period and trailing 20-4 at the half.

Karen Longe pulled down 5 rebounds to pace the Cats while Lori Jacobsen led the way with 6 points.

The Blue Devil freshmen kaled their season mark to 6-0 with an 18-10 spanking of the young Gators. Shelly Pick and Kacia Corbit each tallied 6 points while Jodi Dillman added 4 rebounds.

The varsity and junior varsity are scheduled to take on South Sioux City next Tuesday on the road. The freshmen will meet Homer today (Thursday) at Homer in a double game with the freshman boys.

Great Plains Experience is set to begin Monday

Wayne State College will present a series of six programs dealing with the Great Plains. Entitled "The Great Plains Experience," all six programs will be free of charge and open to the public.

The programs will be presented through the public libraries in Columbus, Hartington, Norfolk and Wayne, beginning Monday (Feb. 6) and ending April 25.

Information about specific program dates and locations will be announced by the public libraries.

DR. JACK Middendorf, director of U. S. Conn Library at Wayne State College, is responsible for putting together "The Great Plains Experience," which is being funded by a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities.

The six programs are entitled "The Land," "The Lakota: One Nation on the Plains," "Clash of Cultures," "The Settling of the Plains," "The Heir to No Man's Land," and "Four Portraits."

"The Land" will be presented by Robert Foote, associate professor of geography at Wayne State. The program focuses on the varied and changing perceptions of the Great Plains over time.

Novelist, historian and Pulitzer Prize winner Wallace Stegner is the host and narrator for "The Land."

DR. ALI Eminov, associate professor of anthropology at Wayne State, will present "The Lakota: One Nation on the Plains." This program depicts Plains Indian life and cultural adaptations prior to extensive white contact in the 19th century.

N. Scott Momaday, poet, novelist and professor of literature at Stanford University, will narrate this program.

ASSOCIATE professor of history at Wayne State, Dr. Don Hickey, will present "Clash of Cultures," which traces the history of the conflict between Plains Indians and settlers in the 18th century that results in numerous military battles.

"Four elders from the Lakota tribe recall the oral tradition of Indian life in the late 19th century in this program.

"THE SETTLING of the Plains" will be presented by Dr. Kent Blaser, associate professor of history at Wayne State.

In this program, the letters of Flora Hunter, with particular reference to Custer County, Neb., and thousands of photographs in the Solomon D. Butcher collection document the experience of pioneers who settled in the Great Plains as a result of the Homestead Act of 1862.

RUBY PETERSEN, former Wayne State

associate professor of English, will present "The Heir to No Man's Land."

The program opens in the midst of the affluent, technological present and, through interviews with local residents, goes back in time to the 1920's and 1930's.

Authentic newsreel footage, photographs and old records convey both the feel and sound of the period.

SAYRE ANDERSEN, associate professor of English at Wayne State, will present "Four Portraits."

This program examines the diversity and complexity of modern plains life by looking at the lifestyles of a Montana cattle rancher, a Kansas farm family, a Lakota Indian artist, and a Texas mayor.

For more information about "The Great Plains Experience," contact Dr. Jack Middendorf at Wayne State, (402) 375-2200.

Wayne library ready for series

Wayne Public Library will present 6 adult educational programs to promote the study and appreciation of local and regional history, beginning Monday (Feb. 6), according to Kathleen Tooker.

All residents of the area are invited to participate in the free 90-minute sessions at Ley Theatre on the Wayne State campus.

The programs will revolve around "The Great Plains Experience" film series which focuses on the people who were responsible for the events that shaped the history of the Great Plains. They reveal the change and adaptation that took place as Plains Indians, homesteaders, European immigrants, cattlemen and farmers settled the region.

The library programs are designed to provide insight into the Great Plains region—the beginning of the American West. Wayne Public Library is 1 of 4 in northeast Nebraska to present the study programs, which are made possible by a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities through Wayne State College.

The Wayne library will work with WSC to present the programs and prepare resource materials such as reading lists, exhibits and displays for use with the programs.

For more information or to reserve space in the programs, call Kathleen Tooker at the Wayne Public Library.

Wayne County has major role in five-year conservation tillage program

By Randy Hascall

A conservation tillage project that is targeted at eastern Nebraska is part of a five-year conservation project planned in the state.

The three-part extension Targeted conservation project will receive $1,400,000 in funding. Governor Bob Kerrey proposed that the state would contribute $500,000 from a national energy overcharge if the University of Nebraska Foundation would match that amount.

The foundation matched that figure and the remaining $400,000 was raised by the University of Nebraska Institute of Agriculture and private organizations and companies.

WAYNE COUNTY Extension Agent Don

Spitze said the project is divided into 3 distinct areas. The western part of the state will be included in an Eco-fallow project. The central portion of the state will be included in an irrigation management project.

Wayne is 1 of 7 counties in the eastern part of the state to be involved in a conservation tillage program. Approximately one third of the total funds will be used in this area of the state.

Spitze said a major goal of the project is to increase the use of conservation tillage in this area by 20 percent by the end of the five year period. It is also hoped that the amount of land using no-till conservation will increase by 10 percent. A secondary goal is to conserve energy, he said.

The local county agent said an unusual thing about the project is the fact that the funding already has been received for the entire project.

THE CONSERVATION tillage project will be divided into 3 subdivisions. The first area will include parts of Gage, Johnson and Saline counties; the second will include parts of Thurston, Washington and Burt counties; and the third will cover only Wayne County.

Two technicians have been hired to work in the area of conservation. Paul Jasa, who will be headquartered at Northeast Station near Concord, will spend 75 of his time in Wayne County and 25 in Washington, Burt and Thurston counties.

Tom Peterson, who will be headquartered in Lincoln, will be assigned to Saline, Johnson and Gage counties 75 of the time and Washington and Burt counties 25 of the time.

Spitze said the project is strictly an educational one, which hopefully will increase the use of conservation tillage. Conservation tillage means leaving 20 percent crop residue on the land after planting, he explained.

ACCORDING to Spitze, an inspection and survey will be taken of at least 100 fields to determine the amount of residue left on the land. At the end of the 5 years, another survey will be taken.

Wayne County's portion of the project will be a joint effort between the Wayne County Extension Service and the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension Service.

Spitze said a Wayne County Advisory Committee will be formed and will consist of 8 to 12 local farmers and agribusiness people. That committee will serve as an advisory board to the type of programs that will be initiated.

Other than the required survey, no specific plans have yet been made. Spitze said that numerous types of educational programs will be planned.

THE PROJECT is not bound by any real guidelines, Spitze said. "General guidelines are really nonexistent. They want new ideas. Basically, they're saying, 'We don't care how you do it but here's what we want accomplished.'"

Overall supervisor of the eastern Nebraska conservation tillage project will be Dr. Elbert Dickey, extension engineer of conservation at UNL. Dave Shelton, engineer at Northeast Station, will be the next immediate supervisor, followed by Spitze and then by the technician, Jasa.

Wayne County was thrown into a separate division of its own deliberately, Spitze said

That way it can be determined how effective a project can work when resources are pumped into a small area.

He said certain areas were picked because of conservation need and because of the interest of the county agents.

"They're giving us flexibility but the money is on our back. They want us to control our part of the project right here in Wayne County," Spitze said.

Jasa, who will be concentrating his work in Wayne County, originally is from Thurston County. He is the son of Tim Jasa who lives north of Pender. The technician earned his B.S. and M.S. degrees in ag engineering at UNL. Last summer he worked with the rainfall simulator in a demonstration near Sholes.

Wayne County will be host for an area conservation tillage meeting on Feb. 21.

For Heart Fund

Bake-and-Bounce planned

Wayne businessmen and teachers are beginning to practice their baking skills and warm up their shooting touches in preparation for the second Bake and Bounce fundraiser. The event is scheduled for Thursday, Feb. 16 with proceeds going to the American Heart Association.

A cake bake-off between businessmen and educators will tip things off. Participants will mix and bake cakes at Peoples Natural Gas Company from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. that day.

People are invited to stop by and cheer their favorite cake bakers. A free blood pressure screening also will be held at the gas company throughout the day.

THE BAKING committee of Bill Dickey, Phil Kloster and Paul Peterson is looking for volunteer bakers.

Participants are required to bring cake mixes or ingredients, decorating materials and necessary utensils (pans, mixer, spoons, decorating applicators, spatula, bowls, etc.) to Peoples during assigned times.

Each baker will have 1 hour to bake a cake and additional time to decorate it. Cakes will be displayed the rest of the day at the gas company office and later will be judged and auctioned off at the city auditorium during half time of the basketball game between the businessmen and educators. Auctioneer Stan Baier encourages the public to bid on the cakes in order to raise money for the heart fund.

The basketball game is scheduled at 7:30 p.m. Cakes will be on display and winners will be announced in various categories. Joyce Niemann and Donna Shufelt will judge the cakes.

Elementary students will serve as cheerleaders for the game. Grant Ellingson and an associate will serve as referees. The basketball committee consists of Don Koerber, Duane Blomenkamp and Ron Jones.

Primary Election May 15

In Winslow District 5 R, the school board term of Dean Janke, Dale Topp and Martin Brugger will be up.

In Wakefield District 66 R, the terms of Herman Utech, Ronnie Weststrand and Merlin Green will expire.

Bereuter: Dairy Bill will affect beef, pork market

By Kevin O'Hanlon

The nation's cattle and pork producers will have to help pay the price for getting the nation's dairy industry back in shape.

That is the opinion of U.S. Congressman Doug Bereuter on the newly enacted Dairy Bill, which will attempt to reduce milk production in the United States by paying farmers to voluntarily reduce output.

Many dairymen will accomplish this by sending some of their herd to market for slaughter—most likely driving down the price of beef and pork.

"IT'S UNFORTUNATE that they (beef and pork producers) will have to bear some of the cost for moving ourselves out of a program that should have been overhauled a long time ago," Bereuter told The Wayne Herald during an interview Saturday.

Bereuter, who was in Wayne to meet with Wayne State College President Ed Elliott, answered questions concerning the controversial Dairy Bill, which is designed to accomplish 3 objectives:

1. Reduce the federal price support for manufacturing grade milk from $13.10 per hundred-weight to $12.60 per hundred-weight.

2. Provide dairymen with an incentive to voluntarily reduce their milk production from between 5 percent to 30 percent.

3. Establish a farmer-financed promotion program to increase milk sales.

"We have a dairy program in this country that has become very expensive in terms of storage costs for all the dairy products that are accumulating," Bereuter said. "The cost to the taxpayer has been about $2 billion per year."

THE EXCESS of dairy products was made more noticeable by the government cheese giveaways, Bereuter said.

"Congress and the executive branch started working on this program several years ago," Bereuter said. "But there had been an unwillingness to look at it realistically and to reform it despite the growing cost."

The cheese giveaways certainly accentuated the public's outcry," Bereuter said. The Dairy Bill provides that the dairyman who signs a contract to reduce his milk production from between 5 percent to 30 percent will receive $10 for each 100 pounds of milk below his base level.

For every 100 pounds of milk marketed 50 cents will be paid to the dairyman into a special fund managed by the secretary of agriculture to help finance the paid diversion program.

The main point of controversy of the Dairy Bill has been that the predicted influx of the dairy cattle for slaughter will adversely affect beef and pork prices.

"THE SLAUGHTER of the dairy cattle will be over a long period of time, hopefully, not all at once," Bereuter said.

The congressman added that because so many of the agricultural districts are a mixture of dairy, beef and pork interests, everybody is going to be affected to some extent.

The dairy people are going to have a smaller profit than they have enjoyed in the past that is for certain," Bereuter said.

"Milk production will be lowered some people contend not as much as Congress anticipated—and they may well be right, but the dairy excesses are going to be cut."

"It was a choice whether or not many of the small dairy farmers went out of business, altogether, and you have cattle feeders and pork producers right on the edge of bankruptcy," he added.

BEREUTER said another difficulty in passing the bill was the great regional differences in the profitability of dairy operations.

"In New England it's been contended that dairymen were not even making a profit under the old program," Bereuter said. "Yet in California, where the cost per hundredweight (paid for milk) was very low, they were adding to their dairy herds as rapidly as possible because each cow meant that much more added profit."

Bereuter was asked if there was any way to address the regional imbalances in profitability.

"Yes, I suppose there is if we want to get into heavy handed government involvement," Bereuter said. "Most of the people want to move away from this kind of direct subsidy to agriculture, but if you take a look at the old program, it was costing us more and more each year."

Is the new Dairy Bill a lot like the PIK program of last year, in which farmers were paid subsidies not to grow certain crops?

"IT'S VERY different in many ways," Bereuter said. "But the one aspect of the Dairy Bill which bears a relationship to the PIK program is that it's paying people to reduce production."

Bereuter was a supporter of the Harkin Amendment to the Dairy Bill, which directs

Secretary of Agriculture John Block "to take all feasible steps to minimize the impact of dairy cow marketing on beef, pork and poultry producers."

The Harkin Amendment will allow Block to vary (within specified limits) the depth of producers' milk cutbacks, on a quarterly basis if necessary, to avoid a deluge of dairy cows being sent to market for slaughter.

"It remains to be seen how successful it (the Harkin Amendment) will be," Bereuter said. "Secretary Block was given some flexibility to slow down the phase in periods."

BEREUTER SAID that the dairy industry has, as a rule, been enjoying more profit than the beef and pork industry, but that the 2 sides failed to reach a compromise concerning the dairy cutbacks.

"I think it's fair to say that, year in and year out, of all the agricultural sectors, by and large the dairy sector was the most likely to be making a profit," Bereuter said.

The livestock breeders, cattlemen and pork producers do not have the kind of subsidy program that the dairy industry has been benefiting from.

"We tried our best to get a compromise, but the dairy people were more successful in convincing the House Agriculture Committee to bring this to the floor," he said.

Soy proteins play a part in pig's passion

By Florrie Kohn
Soybean Feature Service

Some eat to live and others live to eat. Pigs seem to fit into the second category. Pigs eat feed that tastes good, but like people, pigs should eat what is good for them. Pigs need properly processed feed with a precise balance of protein, fats, and other nutrients.

Dr. T. D. Tanksley and Dr. Darrell Knabe, animal scientists at Texas A & M University, work to fine-tune pig protein needs because proteins provide essential amino acids to hogs. Hogs use amino acids to build lean tissue.

The researchers wanted to know how much protein pigs use from feed for amino acids and what kind of feed is most efficient. Since feed manufacturers use about 239 million bushels of soybeans each year to add protein to hog rations, the American Soybean Association pitched in to fund the research. The Soybean Association buld's farmers profits by expanding soybean use.

FOR INDUSTRY processors, adding soybeans to feed isn't as simple as crushing and mixing them with other feed ingredients. Soybeans must be heat-processed to destroy natural compounds which block livestock's ability to break protein into amino acids.

If soybeans are under- or overprocessed, feed protein value is hurt. Processors need soybean meal processing limits which meet the hog's ability to use protein efficiently.

When Tanksley and Knabe began their research in 1978, only limited data was available about pig digestion of soybean meal for protein at the end of the small intestine. More data would aid the feed industry in developing hog ration and help producers raise leaner hogs more efficiently.

Through swine feeding trials, the scientists studied the relationship between soybean meal and hog protein use. They surgically placed a cannula at the spot where the small intestine passes to the large intestine of each hog in the trials.

A cannula is a T-shaped tube one-half inch in diameter and four inches long. Each has an external stoppered end to allow removal of digesting feed from the pig's system.

THE SCIENTISTS fed hogs measured amounts of commercial corn-soybean meal rations. The feeds contained soybean meal processed at different times and temperatures.

Tanksley and Knabe analyzed digesting feed as it passed from the small intestine to the large intestine of each hog. Tanksley explained, "When a pig is fed normal commercial rations, it absorbs most nutrients in the small intestine. When digested feed reaches the large intestine, the microorganisms break down and change remaining proteins for their own use. They make them into nitrogen which becomes ammonia the pig can't use. If feed is analyzed after passing through the large intestine, the protein use picture is distorted."

From trials, the scientists concluded that pigs have a distinct ability to digest soybean protein even if soybeans are processed over a wide range of heat treatments. However, severely overprocessed soybean meal appeared to lower nutritive value.

Tanksley says this is good news for the feed industry. "The problem of heat-treating soybean meal for hog feed to exact standards is not as serious as the industry thought. Under a normal range of heat treatment, there was very little difference in nutritive quality."

thought to be underprocessed. Hog diets can be formulated more precisely by using the digestive data obtained from the small intestine with the cannula technique. Producers can establish better guidelines for meal use."

However hogs may have the final say on the menu. Tanksley says work remains to be done on pig taste preferences. He notes that young hogs seem to be more picky eaters. Early test results indicate they like the foxy taste of well-processed or overdone soybean meal best.

So don't expect a hog to always eat what is good for it, given a choice. Although pigs live to eat, like people they have favorites too.

PIK compensation discussed

The value of commodities received by a farmer as payment in kind compensation in 1984 will be added to other program benefits indetermining whether the farmer has reached the statutory $50,000 payment limitation applicable to commodity programs, a U.S. Department of Agriculture official said this week.

C. Hoke Leggett, associate administrator of USDA's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, said the PIK compensation would be figured in with cash diversion and deficiency payments in arriving at the $50,000 payment limit.

USDA on Jan. 4 asked for comments by Jan. 13 on proposed PIK program regulations for 1984. USDA evaluated comments submitted by the public and decided the proposed rule would be issued as a final rule with no changes.

Wheat is the only crop for which a payment in kind program has been announced for 1984.

Milk diversion program reductions may be adjusted

Secretary of Agriculture John R. Block said this week that during the January-March quarter, dairy producers who participate in the U.S. Department of Agriculture's new milk diversion program need only reduce their milkings by half the amount specified under their contracts and still receive a $10 per hundredweight incentive payment.

However, Block said, producers still must cut milkings by at least 5 percent of their established base production for the quarter to receive any payment.

For example, Block said, a producer who signs a contract with USDA to reduce milk milkings 20 percent during each of the first quarterly periods of the program could agree to reduce milkings by only 10 percent during the first quarter and receive a payment for that 10 percent. Producers who have already signed contracts can modify them by contacting the county office.

USDA's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

Block said the difference in the amount of the reduction will be evenly distributed over the following four quarters of the program.

Block said farmers needed this extra flexibility at the beginning of the new program to better plan their milk milkings and to help forestall cashflow problems that could make it difficult for some producers to meet existing financial commitments.

Block also said USDA will not change the total percentage reductions specified in the diversion contracts, based on hardship to livestock producers. There may be some adjustment between quarters. However, he said USDA will not require any quarterly modification that would compel producers to lower their milk milkings in any subsequent quarter by more than 150 percent of the reduction specified in their contracts for that quarter.

If USDA determines a hardship still exists, Block said the department will use other existing authorities to lessen the hardship.

Producers may continue to sign up for the milk diversion program at county offices to USDA's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service through Jan. 27.

Talking about politicians, I did last week's reminded me of the time I almost met one of the current candidates.

It was five years ago, in Omaha. There was an international convention of the women's mission group of my church.

I don't even belong to this organization. A nurse friend was on the executive committee, and she needed help in the first and station. You know who she drafted. As usual, I didn't know what I was getting into.

ON THE AFTERNOON of the day they were to begin arriving, we met for one last session. The gal in charge of housing was upset because (1) Holiday Inn had cancelled 50 rooms at the last minute, and (2) Howard Johnson's was expecting Vice president Mondale for a speech on Wednesday morning, right when our ladies would be getting on buses to come down town to the convention.

I soon forgot her problems because I had a few of my own — strained ankles, headaches, backaches, grocers who had forgotten prescription drugs, and little old ladies too frail to be there.

I was on duty 16 hours a day, and busy most of the time. Several parties had to be transported to the hospital.

On the third morning, my cousin was visiting me and the pace had slowed down. A friend and I took a "breather." We got guys and took some film to the shop and then found that I had locked the keys in the car. Jan was handy with a flat hanger, so eventually she got the door open.

But we were gone longer than we had anticipated, and I was beginning to feel guilty about leaving Lynn to cope alone with all the arbes and pairs walking in.

AS WE HEADED back to the convention center, we saw a whole bunch of golf bags and a rescue unit parked in front of it.

My heart went to my throat — something awful had happened and I had deserted my post. The only thing I could think of was a bomb threat.

I roared the car down the street, drove through a police barricade, and yelled, "I'm in charge of first aid here — what's going on?" The guy in blue smiled and replied, "Well, you have a visitor."

We jumped out and saw a big black car with a submachine gun sticking out of the trunk. I'll never understand why we weren't shot.

JUST THEN, he walked out of the building, completely surrounded by secret service men, smiling and shaking hands.

At the request of the Minnesota delegation, Omaha's important visitor had made a detour and surprised everyone at our gathering. Those in charge had a 10-inch police.

My cousin, a confirmed Democrat, was delighted. Of course, she was delighted. Of course, she had had no business — they were all listening to the vice president's speech. I was dismissed. The only time in three days I was allowed to see the Story of my life.

Specialized swine production units need programs

By William Ahschwede
Extension Swine Specialist
University of Nebraska

The trend toward more specialization in pork production seems to continue relentlessly.

Each new year finds fewer but larger hog farms. Production which once was markedly seasonal now appears more continuous. While pork production units of all sizes and styles still exist, year-round farrowing facilities, early weaning and confinement feeding are becoming more dominant.

Management and decision-making practices reflect fulltime specialized attention. Feeding, breeding and marketing practices all reflect the trend toward specialization.

THE ADOPTION of specialized crossbreeding systems has lagged behind the other advances, but is expected to catch up soon. The industry is just now beginning to give serious attention to this aspect. Although producers have been talking about white sows for eight or 10 years, it is taking some time and experience to sort out the pros and cons of terminal cross systems.

With more frequent farrowing and more intense levels of management already in place, operation of a terminal crossbreeding system is usually easier than the old standby rotation cross.

The terminal crosses provide substantially higher production levels, primarily due to increased sow productivity.

It is not unusual today to find producers weaning 9.5 or more pigs per litter. Ten years ago, that was unheard of. Some people still don't believe it, but I've been in the farrowing houses, and I've counted the pigs.

The basis for successful terminal crossbreeding systems is finding a breed group of highly productive sows, and then using only that kind of sow for the production of market hogs. Usually these sows have been Yorkshire Landrace crosses.

THESE SOWS are bred to fast growing, meaty boars to produce market hogs. Since the market hogs usually are sired by boars of breeds which do not excel in litter size, replacement gilts are not saved from the market cross.

A secondary system is needed for production of the replacement gilts. Since the sow is the key to the productivity of the system, this secondary system is of extreme importance. It is in this area that rapid advances are currently being made.

For some producers, the system of choice will be to purchase replacement gilts. Gilts for the specialized systems are becoming readily available from an increasing number of sources. Some of these offer a net economic advantage of $25 per litter or more when compared to the standard three breed rotations — that's after the purchase price of the gilt has been paid.

Although I generally favor home-raised replacement gilts, operators with fewer than 80 sows will find it difficult to produce specialized gilts for their own use.

Units with more than 300 sows are in a position to partition their breeding herd into the subherds needed to produce F1 crossbred gilts. This offers an economic advantage of about $40 per litter compared to the rotation. This considerable advantage leads me to believe that adoption of the specialized crosses will proceed rapidly.

THE PLACE for ingenuity and creative thinking is in the units of intermediate size.

"How can a producer with 150 sows produce his own sows for terminal crosses, maintaining high levels of performance with an ease of management to make the enterprise feasible?"

Many systems are being tried by producers with various levels of success. The most practical seem to be the rotational systems.

They utilize a rotation to produce replacement gilts for the terminal crosses. These systems can retain about 75 percent of the economic advantage offered by the F1-based programs, but can be operated in smaller herds.

These systems trade operational ease for reduced heterosis or for a less desirable breed combination.

ONE OF THE biggest changes on the horizon is the move by suppliers of breeding stock to support the terminal crossbreeding systems. More and more seedstock suppliers are producing the kind of boars needed to make the terminals work. And they're beginning to help commercial producers install the programs. It's a welcome change!

Most production units today are equipped to handle the highly productive specialized sows. However, producers will need to make changes when switching over. Most producers have been accustomed to groups of sows weaning 7.5 to 8.0 pigs per litter. When that jumps to more than 9 pigs per litter, they must be ready.

The sows behave differently. They will require more feed. Usually they will appreciate more care during gestation. But the changes are worth it. Profitability in the specialized production units will demand it.

Cameron announces candidacy for Senate

Ken Cameron of Blair announced his candidacy today for the United States Senate. In expressing his desire to represent the people of Nebraska in the nation's capital, Cameron declared that it is absolutely a necessity that the Republicans remain the majority party in the Senate so that President Reagan will continue to have the support he needs to assure the continued economic recovery and continued peace for America.

Cameron said that a Democratic majority in the Senate would be a disaster for America because it would put Ted Kennedy of Massachusetts into the Senate leadership and that would spell the destruction of Ronald Reagan's recovery promise for Americans.

Nebraska is Reagan Country," Cameron said at a morning news conference announcing his candidacy, "and it's a political mistake that sent two Democrats to the Senate from this state."

"I'M AM SURE," Cameron predicted, "that the people of Nebraska and the Republican majority that lives in this state would like to undo that error and give President Reagan the affirmative support that he must have in order to surge ahead with his programs for prosperity."

"We need a man who can walk in the front door of the White House and be welcome and work directly with the President, and I can do that," Cameron said.

Cameron said that he wants to support and promote the Grace Commission report mentioned by President Reagan which could cut the national debt by 15 in the next 3 years.

He proposes a system to audit persons on welfare to verify that they remain eligible for entitlement support. He also said he backs a proposal to stop Social Security payments to Non-American Citizens at overseas mail boxes.
