Patching potholes

SOME POTHOLES on Main Street in Wayne get patched up by a State Department of Roads crew, Tuesday. The erratic winter weather has caused numerous potholes to pop up.

Professional and amateur photographers have until Monday, March 5 to submit entries in a photography show being sponsored by the Wayne Regional Arts Council. The show will be open to the public on Saturday, March 10 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and on Sunday, March 11 from 1 to 4 p.m. in the Wayne city auditorium. Karen Wiseman, a member of the committee planning the event, said the juried show will feature six categories, including still life, people, animals, action and nature. In observance of Wayne's centennial, Wiseman said a sixth category, which will not be judged, will be a display of old photos. There is no size restriction on the old photographs and everyone is invited to submit pictures. PHOTOS SUBMITTED for the juried divisions of the show must be framed or

Concert set

A number of Wayne area churches will take part in a gospel concert Sunday, March 4 as part of the community's year long centennial celebration. The public is invited to attend the program at 3 p.m. at First Church of Christ, located at 1110 East Seventh St. Special music will include a song in German and spirituals. Persons attending the concert also will join in several selections. Residents who would like a ride to attend the concert are invited to call 375-3401.

Election filings pick up as incumbent deadline nears

Wayne County filings for the May 15 primary election picked up this week as 7 individuals officially became candidates, according to County Clerk Orgetta Morris. Six were incumbents, bringing the total number of incumbents filing to 13 at this date. To day (Thursday) is the deadline for incumbent filings. Other candidates have through March 16 to file. In the city of Wayne, incumbent Jim Craun has filed to seek re-election to the 1st Ward city council seat. Stanley A. Morris has filed to run for a seat on the Wayne Airport Authority Board. Three individuals filed for the Sholes Village Board of Trustees this week. They are incumbents Anton Vlasak and Glenn H. Nelsen, and Tom Bauer, the only nonincumbent to file for office this week. Another incumbent, Nancy Warnemunde, filed for the Winside Board of Trustees. Merlin Greve has filed to seek re-election to the District 60 R (Wakefield) Board of Education. Positions in Wayne County for which elections will be held include: 1 Wayne County Commissioner seat, 3 seats on the Wayne County Nuisance Weed Board, 4 Wayne City Council seats, 2 Wayne Airport Authority Board seats, 3 District 17 (Wayne-Carroll) Board of Education seats, 2 Winside Village Board seats, 3 Carroll Village Board seats, 2 Hoskins Village Board seats, 3 Sholes Village Board seats, 3 District 95 R (Winside) Board of Education seats, 2 District 60 R (Wakefield) Board of Education seats. Other incumbent filings in the clerk's office have included Robert Nissen for a Wayne County Commissioner seat, C. O. Witt for a seat on the Winside Town Board, Clifford Rohde and Lester Manke for the Wayne County Nuisance Weed Board, Becky Keidel and Neil Sandahl for District 17 (Wayne) Board of Education, and Dale Topp for District 95 R (Winside) Board of Education. Two nonincumbents who have filed are Richard Jenkins and Robert Wacker. Both are seeking positions on the District 95 R board. Mrs. Morris said the county is now able to accept applications for absentee ballots.

Council accepts truck, land bids

The Wayne City Council accepted bids on an electrical department truck and some agricultural property at its regular meeting Tuesday night. With Councilman Leo Hansen on vacation and with 1 seat still empty following the resignation of Gary Van Meter earlier this year, the council voted 6-0 to accept the bids.

ELLINGSON MOTORS was awarded the bid on the electrical department truck. The net bid for a 1984 GMC was $9,370. Ellingson submitted a gross bid of $11,400 with a trade-in allowance of $2,030. The only other bid was one submitted by Mike Perry Chevrolet Olds. The net bid for a 1984 Chevrolet was $10,188. Perry submitted a gross bid of $13,566.78 with a trade-in allowance of $3,378.78. Ellingson is required to deliver the truck on or before June 15. Jim Corbit's bid to rent agricultural property owned by the City of Wayne was accepted by the council. His bid was the only one submitted.

CORBIT BID $76.10 an acre for rental of 19.61 acres of land near the sewage lagoon and 7.5 acres located at the industrial site. City Administrator Phil Kloster said rental of the land was in the $80 range last year and the $70 range in the previous year. He said he was pleased with Corbit's bid. The council also passed a resolution paving the way for establishment of a storm sewer district in the south edge of Wayne near the abandoned railroad line between Douglas and Lincoln streets. Plans call for the use of 15 inch and 24 inch sewer lines to help solve a drainage problem in that area of town.

THE ENGINEER'S estimate for the project presented to the council Tuesday by engineer Dennis Hirschbrunner, is $20,400. Hirschbrunner said that estimate is based on a recent bid opening in O'Neill. He said the actual cost of the project might be a bit less but not a lot less than that. Further action on the storm sewer district will be taken in the future.

An increase in the sewer user charge was approved unanimously by the council. The increase is directed by the Environmental Protection Agency to help finance Wayne's wastewater treatment plant, which is being constructed. IN ORDER to show what effect the increase will have on local charges, Kloster used an example.

Wayne resident Randy Hascall paid a $5.95 sewer user charge for a three-month period in 1983. That same usage reading applied at the new rates would bring the charge to $10.35. As water consumption increases, rates on each 1,000 gallons used also will increase, giving incentive to customers who conserve. The increase, which will take effect June 1, will raise revenue prior to the operation of the treatment plant and in turn reduce the amount of the loan required for the project. The charge will cover debt service as well as operation and maintenance of the plant.

THE CITY COUNCIL also passed ordinances establishing the charges for plumbers licenses and electricians licenses. The charges for plumber licenses will increase from $20 to $25 for the initial fee and from $1 to $5 for the annual renewal fee. Electrician license charges of $25 for initial application and $3 a year for license renewal will stay the same.

No decision on video lottery bill

A legislative bill that would ban video slot machines in Nebraska has been set aside, until at least next week after state senators ran out of debate time Tuesday. First round debate lasted nearly an hour longer than the 1 1/2 hours allotted for it by Legislative Speaker William Nichol of Scottsbluff. The bill is expected to come up for debate again next week at the earliest, according to Nichol.

OMAHA SEN. Peter Hoagland, a sponsor of Legislative Bill 744, said the measure showed strength but was not advanced. Sen. John DeCamp of Neligh twice tried unsuccessfully to amend the bill. One proposed amendment called for creation of a state lottery and would have placed a set of regulations on machines and local lotteries to police, tax and control them.

The second amendment asked that all pari-mutuel betting in the state also would be outlawed along with video slot machines. District 17 Sen. Marie Von Minden of Allen voted in favor of the first amendment and against the second one. Some senators, including Sen. Elroy Helmer of Coleridge, said the legality of the machines is a moral question.

HOAGLAND EXPRESSED concern that Nebraska might have problems similar to those in Tennessee as a result of the existence of 12,000 video slot machines in that state.

DeCamp replied that Tennessee has problems because its machines are illegal and unregulated and said that by passing the legislative bill, the Legislature would be encouraging illegal activity in the state. He said tight regulation of the video machines is needed.

Opponents of the bill to outlaw video machines argued that it is hypocritical of individuals to support horse racing but oppose the slot machines.

They also said they respect the people's right to vote and determine what they want, as has been done in various Nebraska communities.

Some supporters of the bill said video slot machines are an addictive form of gambling and would do no good for the state.

The bill, if passed, would have a major impact in Wayne and other communities where video lottery machines have been operating.

Whisenhunt edits book

When he's not working, he's writing

By Randy Hascall

When Wayne State College Vice President Donald Whisenhunt isn't working at the college, he's writing. Dr. Whisenhunt's most recent work involved rewriting Dr. John W. Goodsell's accounts of the Peary Expedition to the North Pole. Goodsell was a physician during the expedition. The book, titled "On Polar Trails: The Peary Expedition To the North Pole, 1908-09," was published in December. With the publishing of that book, each of the 6 survivors of the expedition has an account of the trip published.

ALTHOUGH WHISENHUNT is credited with revising and editing the book, his duties probably were more extensive than they sound. He said Goodsell's manuscript was poorly written. The original manuscript was 660 pages long but probably amounted to 700 "true pages" because of numerous single spaced pages, Whisenhunt said. Goodsell's manuscript remained unpublished long after his death in 1949. His widow was not in a good financial position, Whisenhunt said.

A local foundation purchased all of Goodsell's expedition memorabilia, including his notes, photos and manuscript, and donated the items to a county historical society in Pennsylvania.

WHISENHUNT WAS teaching at a small Pennsylvania college in the early 1970s when the historical society asked him to examine the manuscript and determine whether he thought it could be published.

He told members of the historical society that it could not be published in its original form. "It was terribly written, repetitious and too long," Whisenhunt said. At that time, the historical society didn't have enough money to have the manuscript revised and published.

About 2 years ago, Whisenhunt received a call from the society. They had come into some money through a gift and wanted him to revise and edit the Goodsell manuscript for publication.

Whisenhunt spent the last 3 years rewriting the accounts. "It was a long, involved process," he said.

ACCORDING TO Whisenhunt, a feud between Goodsell and Peary prevented Goodsell's manuscript from being published decades ago.

Peary had a contract with each member of the expedition preventing any of them from speaking or writing about the expedition without his permission. Peary's permission was never granted to Goodsell.

Whisenhunt said Goodsell's manuscript required rewriting of many sections and considerable editing. He rewrote the manuscript, reducing its size from 660 pages to 275 pages. The published book is 202 pages in length.

Wayne State's vice president finished up his work on the book last February and sent it to the historical society in Pennsylvania. "It's his book, but in a lot of ways it's mine. I made the decision what to leave in or take out," Whisenhunt said.

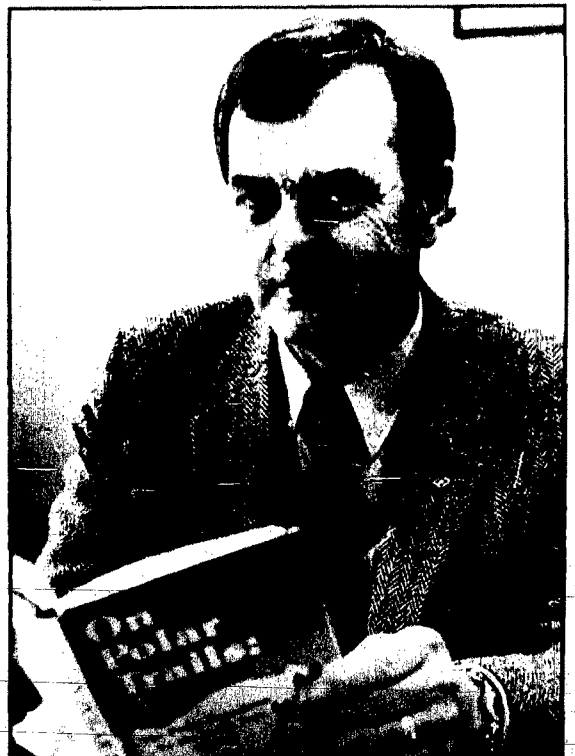

Included in the book is a seven-page introduction written by Whisenhunt.

FROM HIS work on the book and study of history, Whisenhunt has formed his own opinions on the Peary Expedition. "My personal feeling is that neither (Peary or Goodsell) got to the North Pole."

The WSC administrator said he would like to do a history on all the attempted expeditions to the North Pole, dating back into the 1700s.

Another thing Whisenhunt dreams of doing is journeying to the North Pole. "I can feel the excitement and adventure of it," he explained. "I have a longing to do it but I won't. There is no easy way or cheap way to do it."

Whisenhunt, who has a Ph.D. in history from Texas Tech University, has had plenty of experience in publishing. He has approximately 40 historical articles in print in jour-

NPPD cash to area towns

More than 200 Nebraska cities and towns will receive $4,670,826 as a result of agreements leasing their electrical distribution systems to the Nebraska Public Power District, according to Wayne Boyd of South Sioux City, a member of the NPPD board of directors.

Four area communities are included among the 217 in the state. Allen will receive $7,454.05; Belden will receive $3,559.00; Concord will receive $2,875.59; Dixon will receive $2,590.96 and Hoskins will receive $5,730.47.

The money represents one-half of the annual payments made by NPPD under terms of the lease agreements. The payments were for the second half of 1983, Boyd said. The money may be used by the community any way it determines.

NPPD operates the electrical system and makes all additions and improvements to the property to maintain efficient service. Each community is paid 10 percent of the adjusted gross revenues realized within the corporate limits.

The money turned over to the cities and towns by NPPD at this time does not include the annual 5 percent in-lieu-of-tax payments required by Nebraska statutes.

In addition to the money realized, the agreements between NPPD and the state's cities and towns also provide for a one-third discount on the electricity consumed by governmental agencies within the corporate limits.

Benefit soup supper planned

A benefit soup supper for Roger Buckenahl of Pierce, Neb., will be held Friday from 5 to 8 p.m. at Zion Lutheran Auditorium in Pierce. Buckenahl has encephalitis and has doctor's orders to not do any heavy work for at least 1 more year.

There are still doctor bills and other outstanding bills to pay. The supper is being sponsored by AAL branches 739, 1264, 2905 and 5617 of Pierce and rural Hoskins.

Roger and his wife Joan have two children, ages 4 and 6 months.

Funds raised from this benefit will be supplemented by the home office of AAL in Appleton, Wisconsin.

Women's legislative forum set

What do issues of pay equity, child support collection, certified nurse midwifery, child care, incest and sexual assault have in common?

They are topics to be addressed at the Northeast Nebraska Women's Legislative Forum, sponsored by the Nebraska Commission on the Status of Women, the Nebraska Coalition for Women, AAUW, and the Norfolk Women's Chamber of Commerce.

The workshop is designed to acquaint local citizen with the 1984 Nebraska legislative bills that will affect women and their families. Open to the public, the forum will be held at the Cattle Shed Restaurant, Omaha Avenue & 1st Street, Norfolk, according to Diane Luellen, local contact person.

Pre-registration is request by calling Diane Luellen, at 371-4913, Cheryl Lindau of Wayne at 375-3333, or Elaine Morgan of Columbus at 564-8772.

Scouts reschedule paper drive

Boy Scout Troop 174 has rescheduled its regular paper drive for this Saturday in Wayne. The drive originally had been planned for last Saturday but was moved because of a blizzard.

The drive will begin at 8:30 a.m. so residents should have newspapers tied in bundles and placed at curb-side by that time.

Pork producers plan supper in Winside

The Wayne County Pork Producers will host a pancake and sausage supper from 6 to 8 p.m. on Friday at the Winside City Auditorium.

All Wayne County Pork Producers, associate members and prospective members are invited to attend.

The supper is designed to show the appreciation of the producers for the support that was offered them throughout the year.

Marketing club is organized

Officers have been elected to the newly-formed Wayne Marketing Club and plans are being made by the organization. Norman Barth was elected president, Lisa Fish was elected vice president, Tony Didier was elected secretary and Cynthia Strawn was elected treasurer.

The club is planning a banquet, a trip to Chicago and a possible trip to Europe and Asia next fall. Anyone who is interested in marketing is invited to join the club, which is affiliated with the American Marketing Association.

For more information call 375-3196.

Wayne woman's art exhibit

The artwork of Beth Czupryn of Wayne will be on display during the month of March at the Norfolk Arts Center, 803 Norfolk Avenue, Norfolk.

Her watercolor work and pottery will be displayed along with work of artists from Geneva and Omaha. A reception is planned from 2 to 4 p.m. Sunday (March 4).

The gallery is open from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. everyday and from 9 to 9 p.m. on Thursdays. The displays are open to the public free of charge.

Chicken show meeting tonight

Persons interested in assisting with this year's Chicken Show in Wayne are encouraged to attend a planning meeting tonight (Thursday).

The meeting is scheduled to begin at 8 p.m. at the Black Knight.

Energy meeting is today

Energy experts from all over the country will converge on Lincoln and The Cornhusker for the Ninth Annual Nebraska Municipal Power Pool meeting today (Thursday).

The meeting will feature Gene Huey of the University of Nebraska football coaching staff as luncheon speaker. The luncheon will be held between 12:15-1:30 p.m. at The Cornhusker. The afternoon business meeting will feature a special presentation by Donald Schaufelberger, general manager of the Nebraska Public Power District.

Special demonstrations of computer load management and computer billing will be held at the cornhusker from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Cancer Society plans program

Brent Pedersen has been named local chairman of the American Cancer Society's "Daffodil Day 1984" program in Wayne.

On Friday, March 30, participating businesses throughout Wayne will present their customers and employees fresh daffodils obtained through the Cancer Society's Nebraska Division Funds raised through the Donations for Flowers will be used for cancer research and for education and patient service programs in Wayne County.

The daffodil, traditionally the first flower of spring, has been selected because it also is regarded as the flower of hope. In this case hope for a world free of cancer. The Daffodil Day campaign will open the society's annual Cancer Crusade in Nebraska.

Local bands on the radio

Public radio station KWIT, FM 90, will feature in March musicians primarily from Morningstar College, from Nebraska and from South Dakota on its 3 programs on regional performers.

"Siouxland Concert," on Tuesday, March 20 will feature the 1983 Wayne State College High School Choral Festival. "Siouxland Jazz Spectrum," on Saturdays at 9:30 p.m. features 1983 performances by high school jazz bands, primarily from Nebraska and South Dakota. Schuyler and Wayne will perform on March Wayne County programs are underwritten by State National Bank & Trust Company of Wayne.

Radio-thon for cancer society

Ray Weston and Joey, KNEN disc jockeys, will be hosting a radio-thon, on Saturday March 3 from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. with all proceeds going to the American Cancer Society.

Cancer volunteers will be on-duty all day to accept pledges. Call KNEN at 379-3300 or stop at the station with donations on Saturday.

Judicial discipline questioned

MERIE'S MESSAGE
from the Unicameral

The legislative session has passed the half-way mark and is proceeding swiftly toward its tentative final adjournment date of April 6. It has been an extraordinarily busy session so far but much important work remains to be done.

One measure which I hope to get passed this year is my priority designation, Legislative Resolution 235. Legislative bill 235 is in the form of resolution instead of a bill because it calls for an amendment to the Nebraska Constitution.

All proposals for constitutional amendments are printed as resolutions and require 30 votes for legislative approval instead of the usual 25.

LR 235 is a proposal for changing the method Nebraska uses to discipline the judiciary. Judicial discipline is presently handled by the commission on judicial qualifications, which receives and investigates complaints filed against members of the judiciary.

All proceedings of the commission prior to ordering a formal hearing on the complaint are required by the Nebraska Constitution to be confidential. The problem is that the commission is allowed to discipline a judge without ordering a formal hearing thus keeping any news of the complaint and its investigation from the public.

senator merie von minden

The result is that many who file complaints or know that a complaint has been filed are left with the impression that nothing is being done. Because only one formal hearing has been held in the 16 year history of the Commission, and that one only this month, the Commission has suffered a severe loss of credibility in the eyes of the public.

Numerous complaints have been filed and only in this one instance has anyone received any information about what was done in response to these complaints.

LR 235, WHICH advanced from committee to General File on Wednesday, will eliminate the constitutional provisions requiring confidentiality of the Commission's proceedings. If a complaint is frivolous, it may be dismissed without disclosure of the judge involved.

However, under the provisions of LR 235 any disciplinary action against a member of the judiciary which is taken in response to a complaint must be disclosed to the public. I think the public has a right to this information and should be kept informed of judicial misconduct.

Such disclosure will also be a useful tool in helping the public decide whether or not to retain a particular judge when he or she comes up for retention every six years. Because LR 235 calls for an amendment to the Constitution, the proposal would be put on the ballot next November for adoption by the voters.

In other action this week, LB 318, which authorizes the use of unmarked patrol cars, failed to advance to Select File Tuesday morning. It was argued that unmarked cars are needed to detect speeders on the state highways.

These cars could not be allowed to make arrests. Their sole function would be to detect speeders and radio a marked patrol car which would then stop and ticket the traffic violators.

I think it is a good proposal because of the State Patrol's need for help in detecting speeders. What with all the CB's and other radar detection devices which motorists use to avoid detection, I believe it is only fair to provide our law enforcement people with some additional means to aid them in the enforcement of our traffic laws.

MUCH TIME was spent on discussion of LB 426 on Wednesday. This measure is an attempt to control nitrate levels in our underground water supply. Most of us realize that nitrate contamination is a serious potential, and in some areas, actual, problem across the state. However, there is disagreement over how to handle the problem.

LB 426 would require any agency or political subdivision which monitors underground water quality to inform the State Department of Environmental Control whenever nitrate levels exceed a specific level. The department would then be empowered to investigate and halt the source of pollution if a specific source is discovered.

If a specific source can't be found, the matter would be turned over to the local natural resources district for their investigation. They would then determine the appropriate means to prevent further pollution. Opponents of the bill feel that our natural resource districts are already equipped to deal with nitrate pollution and argue further that nitrate levels are not at crisis levels.

They see no need for such regulation at this time. Naturally this is a controversial topic in an agricultural state. I can't predict at this time what will be done with the bill. It remains on General File awaiting further consideration by the Legislature.

Who is this man?

Who is this guy named Hart? Gary Hart? Is that the guy who has a television show, and co-stars with Stephanie Powers?

Oh no, wrong guy. Out of nowhere (well, almost nowhere) comes Gary Hart to challenge in the Democratic presidential race.

First, Hart finished as runner-up in the Iowa caucus, surprising John Glenn.

Next, Hart defeated favored Walter Mondale in the New Hampshire primary election. In fact, he won 39 percent of the votes compared to 29 percent for Mondale.

The Colorado senator is off and running. He's taken the lead from Mondale and might be hard to beat. He's adding some new blood to a race that has some old faces—like George McGovern.

Hart is becoming the cinderella of the Democratic Party race. He's stirring some interest and adding some spark to what many thought would be a dull race with some dull candidates involved.

The best part of the race is yet to come—the home stretch and an exciting finish.

Doctors to support freeze

I feel that Nebraska physicians generally will support the recent AMA Board of Trustees' suggestion that they freeze their professional fees at their present level for 1 year as a step toward better health care cost containment.

We have had no opportunity to act on suggestion in our Nebraska Medical Association meetings, but I feel sure that there will be strong support for the idea.

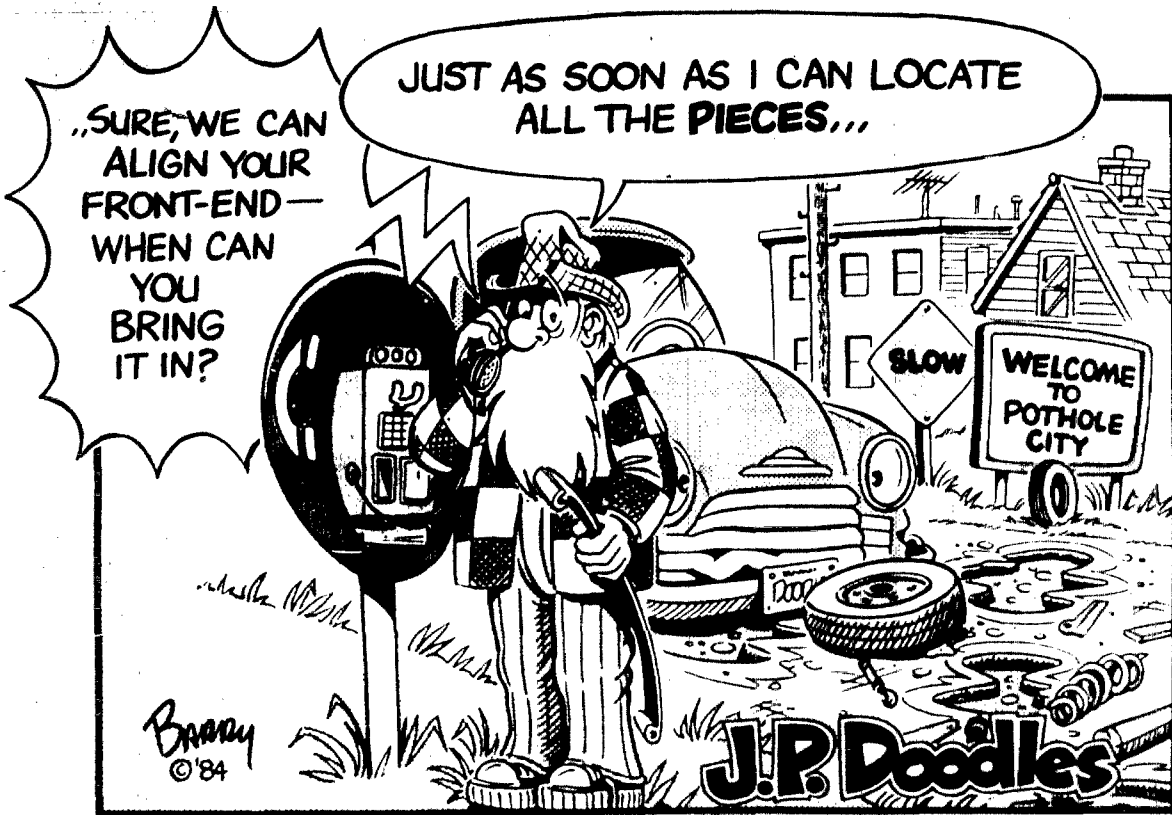

Nebraska physicians, like physicians in other states, are somewhat limited in the amount they can influence health care costs. First of all, physicians fees make up only 20 percent of total health care costs. Secondly, the professional expenses for operation of an office by a physician have increased at an annual average rate of anywhere from 7.5 percent to 15.8 percent in the past 10 years.

A combination of factors are responsible for the increasing costs of practicing medicine. General inflation has contributed to rising unit costs of labor and other resources employed by physicians in their practices. Advances in technology have changed the nature of resources physicians use and the settings in which they provide different types of diagnosis and treatment.

The Nebraska Medical Association will take no official action on the suggestion unless the matter is considered by our House of Delegates in April. However, I know that our members are giving the idea serious consideration and will undoubtedly support it in the interest of doing their fair share in a cost containment effort.

As I have pointed out several times in public statements, I personally feel that the people themselves hold in their own hands the means for a great deal of cost containment in medical care. People who decide to do their part in living a healthy lifestyle help their physician by having fewer illnesses, and by being able to withstand illness better once it does strike.

Controls criticized

By Richard Leshar
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

Remember how much fun wage and price controls were back in the early 1970s? Remember how successful they were in beating back inflation and providing for an inflation free decade? And especially, remember how fair it was having our wages fixed, not by the cold, cruel free market, but by government edict from our friends, the bureaucrats in Washington?

You don't remember all that? Well, frankly, neither do I. What we do remember is the mess that the Nixon administration made of our economy when it saddled us with the straitjacket of wage and price controls. In truth, neither President Nixon nor the Democrat controlled Congress, which egg ed him on, can take credit for coming up with this idea.

It is actually a very old, very stupid idea in "Forty Centuries of Wage and Price Controls," authors Robert Schuelling and Eamonn Butler chronicle government attempts to control the free market dating back to ancient Egypt, more than 2,000 years before the birth of Christ. History has added a third truism to the dust of taxes and death: Attempts by governments to fix wages or prices will always fail.

Indeed, they will make things worse. The failure of wage and price controls was so complete in the early '70s that no one since has seriously suggested that the government should replace the free market in setting wages and prices. Until now.

YES, THE I live in Washington and I can run your life better than you can crowd is at it again. The idea has a new name this time, just as taxes are now called "revenue enhancement" or "tax base erosion control," and Francois Mitterand's nationalization practices might be called "industrial policy."

The new name for bureaucratic control of the economy is called "comparable worth." More than just the name has been changed. Government control of the economy is in such disrepute that "comparable worth" is being peddled as a women's issue. It is not. Civil rights laws in the 1960s made it a federal crime to pay men and women different salaries for the same job. Legislation also made it a federal crime to discriminate based on sex in hiring employees.

Thus, it is illegal to tell a woman that she cannot become a plumber or electrician although women often have to contend with restrictive union regulations, and it is illegal for a firm to pay a female plumber more or less than a male plumber. Wage and employment discrimination against women as with minorities, is illegal. Case closed. Problem solved. On with progress.

NOT SO, SAY many liberal organizations, several of the Democratic candidates for the presidency, and a federal judge in Washington state. They wish the federal government to insist not simply on equal pay for equal work, but on equal pay for "comparable work."

The position that some jobs held predominantly by women are "comparable" to other jobs held mostly by men. Any difference between the pay of a truck driver and, say, a guidance counselor, they argue, is due not to differences between the two occupations, but to hidden sex discrimination.

Anticipating the potential for added powers, bureaucrats have already argued that nurses and electricians and secretaries and carpenters are of comparable worth and ought to be paid the same.

The issue is heading to the Supreme Court. While it is not headline news today, it is a critical issue if freedom of contract is to be continued in the United States. Your freedom and mine.

If the Reagan administration is serious in its support for individual liberty and a free and growing economy, it will instruct the Justice Department to expose "comparable worth" for what it is -- wage controls for the entire economy -- and oppose the issue before the Supreme Court.

Clean home is not perfection

To the editor:

The last paragraph in "Farmer's Wife" of Feb. 23 has given me the opportunity to submit these fine articles to your paper.

The following letter was written by a Missouri housewife to Capers Weekly.

The letter "Real Homes Aren't Spolished" got under my skin. Just because a house is "clean" isn't any sign it isn't lived in. Quite the contrary. A "home" is a place you can invite guests in any time and not be ashamed on the way it looks. It is a place where you can sit down and enjoy a little home life.

I am not a spolished housekeeper, but I enjoy and respect my home enough to keep it presentable anytime for my children and husband to invite unexpected guests and not wonder what kind of mess they are likely to find.

I have friends, too, who say, "We live in our house, and you can tell it too." Just because things are topsy turvy, these are not signs that a home is lived in. It looks to me more like the occupants don't stay home long enough to appreciate a home. It is just a place to "eat" when they are not going out a place to sleep, and a place to throw their hats.

We live in our home too. That's why I try to keep it clean -- so we can live in it and enjoy it, and most of all in these days, respect it. A little more home life taught to the youth today might be more help to them than so much recreation.

The beauty of a home is orderliness. The blessing of a home is contentment. The glory of a home is hospitality. The crown of a home is Godliness. "Have you ever visited a house that was so spolished you were afraid to sit down? A clean house with a bit of clutter is much more comfortable. It's proof that some people really live there. Usually, these lucky people have God's greatest gift -- children. Added this phrase: Today, my house has a bit of clutter again -- grandchildren. You know children have grown up when you find yourself straightening up the house before they come home instead of after.

This comes from Heloise: "An organized person is not a perfect person. Adding this comment: Nor is a Christian perfect because he is a Christian." There's always ROOM for improvement. It's the biggest ROOM in the house.

The maximum: A perfect kept house is a sign of a mis spent time. This is a horrible impression when it contains a personal indication. The shoe doesn't fit when it pinches. An Erma Bombeck good humor does not compare with a Joan Rivers' ridiculing humor.

We expect places of business to be kept clean, why not our homes? The old timers used to say: A dirty house looks like a pigsty. If lives are messy in clean kept homes then hurry for the "pigsty."

Monopoly in education

To the editor:

The Catholic schools across the state recently applauded themselves for the success of their educational programs in their own state-accredited schools.

Their supporting families have been so dedicated to these principles that in some communities several generations of parents have not only paid taxes for public education, but have gone the second mile in supporting a private school that they consider more compatible with their religious principles.

Would they be comfortable enrolling their children in a public school if there were not enough patrons to sustain an approved private school in their community? I hope that these people will take a second look at what is happening to those families who have not been so fortunate to have this educational choice for their children. They may not choose to make this choice a religious issue, but there are many parents who feel that they have a deeper and more abiding concern that their children obtain the best possible education, that the state has. This is vividly exhibited by the experiences of the parents who thought that they had no choice but to enroll their children in the Nebraska School for the Deaf.

They had entrusted the state to provide for their children's education, only to find that they have been trapped in a most destructive situation. Accreditation, certification, and even direct supervision by the state department of education gave these parents a false security about the quality of education that their children were receiving. This exhibits some of the hazards we can encounter when we permit a monopoly in education to exist.

Farmers fight to survive

To the editor:

Help the farmers! Look around the state of Nebraska. See what's happening.

Farmers are selling their land, selling their machinery.

Where are they going? Where will they find work?

Who's going to farm the land? Big Farmers! Is that what we want? We need the small farmers -- we need the young people.

The bankers, the loan companies—they can help the farmers. The farmers need interest rates to drop, farmers cannot survive high interest rates of 14 to 16 percent. If the economy is to be helped, you must help the farmers first. They need prices for their products.

They say people help people. Well, farmers are people, they are fighting to survive.

Dixon County Home Extension Club leaders will receive training for the lesson, "Salads With an International Flavor," on Monday, March 12 at 1:30 p.m. at the Northeast Station near Concord.

Nancy Lang, Thurston County Extension Agent Home Economics, will present the lesson information. Recipes will be shared and there will be salads to taste. Salad ingredients, nutrition and salad accompaniments also will be discussed.

FOUR H FOODS Leaders and representatives of other local organizations also are welcome to attend the training meeting. They are asked to notify the Dixon County Extension Office if they plan to attend by March 5 so lesson materials can be prepared.

The training meeting is sponsored by the Dixon County Extension Service, which provides information and educational programs to all persons without regard to race, color, national origin, handicap or sex.

Store hours expanded

WAYNE'S CENTENNIAL headquarters will expand its hours beginning Saturday, March 3. Centennial commemoratives may be purchased at the store on Thursdays from 7 to 9 p.m., or on Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Pictured modeling centennial dresses and bonnets which now may be ordered at the centennial store are Jan Liska and nine-year-old daughter Kim. A spokesman for the store said the dresses are available in a variety of styles, colors and sizes. Other centennial items which may be purchased include men's hats, vests and ties, mugs, T-shirts, pewter steins, bell buckles, crystal bells, plates, key fobs, engraved pocket knives, crocks, spoons, medallions and specially dated coins. Most of the commemoratives are marked with the official centennial logo, and others have Wayne centennial markings. Ginny Seymour, a member of the commemorative committee, said a variety of other items also are available at the store, which is located at 110 North Main St. For further information, call 375-2240. All funds raised from commemorative sales are being used for centennial expenses.

Huskers are first foe

Cats' baseball starts today

Weather permitting, the Wayne State College baseball team will open the 1984 season today (Thursday) on the road against John Sanders' Nebraska Cornhuskers, with a double header scheduled at Buck Belter Field.

The Wildcats will take on the Huskers in a nine-inning contest at 12:30 p.m. and will play a seven-inning affair immediately following.

Wayne State's 1984 schedule includes 22 regular season games, with the District 11 playoffs slated for May 10-12 at a yet-to-be-named site.

The NAC Area playoffs will run May 16-18. Wayne finished with a 22-13 record last season, was the District 11 champion and advanced to the NAIA Area III playoffs in Tulsa, Okla.

According to first-year head coach Lenny Klaver, optimism is running high in the Cats' camp.

Klaver's position-by-position breakdown of the 1984 Wildcats follows:

Pitching: Veteran seniors Dan Higenkamp (5.4, 3.72 ERA last season), Neil Brown (4.4) and Randy Fink (3.21) will most likely carry the bulk of the mound duties for the Cats.

Klaver said seniors Rick Guy (3-1) and Max McDonald also showed good poise in fall camp and could also see considerable action.

Junior Greg Dostal and juco transfers David Cunningham (Ellsworth, Iowa Community College) and Trent Herman (Worthington, Minn. Community College) round out the experienced hurling corps.

Freshmen Ted Ragone, Gene Smith and Craig Kinzie could see limited action.

Catching: Behind the plate could definitely be one of Wayne State's strong suits this season.

Senior Jeff Clark provides "leadership and excellent defensive skills" while junior backup Jeff Scharr is a long-ball threat. Clark had a .960 fielding average and a .318 batting average last season.

Freshmen Mike Brazda and Dennis Lebsack provide added depth.

Infield: Three starters return to give the Wildcats valuable experience: Gregg Cruickshank (first base), Mike Hutcheon (shortstop) and Rich Murek (third base). Cruickshank hit .315 last season and had 34 RBI's to his credit.

Two transfers, Pete Saccone (Yankton College) and Craig Robb (Ellsworth Community College) are expected to vie for the vacant spot at second base.

Klaver said senior Rich Neely looked solid in fall practice and will see action at first and as a designated hitter while junior Kevin Whitehill will be the utility man.

The infield ranks are rounded out by freshmen Rich Drotzman, Craig Koehler and Aaron Raabe.

Outfield: Senior Jeff Zeiss, a "quick and speedy senior with a small strike zone," according to Klaver, will provide leadership for the Cats. Zeiss played in 35 games last season and stole 9 bases in 10 attempts.

Southwestern Iowa Community College transfers Pete Miller and Jeff Strain combine a long-ball capability and speed to help bolster the outfield.

Additional depth is looked for from Glenn Morrisette, Kurt Brosamle, Randy Raabe and Paul Calvert, who could all challenge for starting spots.

NAC tabs Penn

Wayne State's Tracy Penn was named Tuesday to the All-Nebraska Athletic Conference men's basketball team.

Penn, a 5-11 junior, transferred to Wayne State from Oklahoma State University and only became eligible to play for the Cats at the start of the second semester.

Penn averaged 13.1 points per game since becoming eligible.

Wildcat center Vince Tillo, a transfer from Morningside, joined teammate Calvin Sprew on the NAC Honorable Mention list.

The All-NAC Basketball team follows:

- FIRST TEAM
- Gary Blum, 6-4 Sr., Bellevue (Co-captain)
 - Chris Wolfe, 6-2 Sr., Kearney (Co-captain)
 - Mike Paulson, 6-5 Jr., Bellevue
 - Tracy Penn, 5-11 Jr., Wayne State
 - Randy Lonon, 6-4 Sr., Chadron State
 - Mike Miller, 6-0 Sr., Peru State
 - Brian Anderson, 6-4 Jr., Kearney

- NAC HONORABLE MENTION
- Gregg Stephens, Rich King, Chadron State
 - Morris Leisemeyer, Brian Strother, Peru State
 - Vince Tillo, Calvin Sprew, Wayne State
 - Rick Wheeler, Bellevue
 - Kirk Shuck, Jeff Hoppes, Jon Bergmeier, Kearney State

NIAC playoffs Lopers help Cats

For once, the Lopers helped the Wildcats out.

Kearney State gave the Wayne State men's basketball team a ticket into the Nebraska Intercollegiate Athletic Conference playoffs with a 59-51 victory over Bellevue College on Saturday night.

Had Bellevue won, Wayne State would have had to face the Bruins in a mini playoff.

The Kearney victory gave Wayne State sole possession of second place in the NAIC and set up a date this Saturday with Hastings College at Hastings. Hastings won the right to host the Wildcats by dumping Midland 82-80 on Monday and taking sole possession of first place among the state's private NAIA schools.

The Broncos Wildcats game is slated for Kewit Gymnasium at 7:30 p.m.

Kearney State will host the second place NAIA private school, Doane College, that same night.

The winners of the 2 games will meet on Wednesday, March 7 to determine which team will advance to the national NAIA tournament in Kansas City in late March.

The Broncos, 18-8 on the season, are led by Jeff Hayes (6-7 senior) and Dave Fletcher (6-6 junior). Hayes is averaging 19.8 points and 7.4 rebounds per game while Fletcher is at a 16.3 point per game, 7.3 rebounds clip.

Wayne State took a 82-73 decision from the Broncos during the NAIA District 11 Classic in Fremont on Nov. 19, but Wayne State head coach Rick Weaver said things should be a little tougher this time around.

"I think we played one of our best ball games of the year against Hastings," Weaver said. "We caught them maybe on a bad night."

Weaver said the Broncos play "exceptionally well."

He added that the Cats will not change any strategies for the Hastings game, but that they will have to cut down on the Broncos' fast break and not give up any easy baskets.

"At this stage of the season there's not a whole lot you can change," Weaver said. "You just have to go out and play hard."

3 Wildcats among leaders

Wayne State senior roundballer Barb Wragge is one of three Wildcats listed among the latest NAIA District 11 basketball leaders, according to statistics released Monday.

Wragge is seventh in individual scoring with 15 points per game average and fifth in rebounding, averaging 7.5 per outing.

Wayne State's Shari Krohn is second in the district in rebounding with a 12.3 per game average.

In free throw percentage, Wildcat Vira Kelly is seventh with a .707 average.

Wayne State's Tillo lone Wildcat in stats

Wayne State center Vince Tillo is the only Wayne State Wildcat listed among the latest NAIA District 11 men's basketball statistics.

Tillo is twelfth in field goal percentage, having hit 538 percent (93 of 172) of his shots from the field.

In the team stats, Wayne State is last in field goal percentage (.458) and free throw percentage (.622).

The Cats are sixth in scoring offense (71.5 points per game) and scoring defense (75.8 points per game).

Barb Wragge

Wragge nets pair of honors

Lady Wildcat Barb Wragge raked in the honors this week.

She was named as the women's Central States Intercollegiate Conference "Player of the Week" and earned a similar distinction from the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics District 11 office.

Wragge, a 5-8 junior, earned the honors on the heels of her three game performance against Kearney State, Chadron State and Doane College.

Overall in those three games, Wragge scored a total of 53 points and pulled down 32 rebounds.

Against Chadron, she set a Wayne State record for free throws made in a single game as she canned 12 of 21 attempts from the paint.

Wragge led the Cats in scoring against Chadron (26 points) and Doane (21 points)

Sherer scoring king

Wayne High School junior Jeff Sherer finished as the leading scorer for the 10-4 Blue Devil junior varsity basketball team, according to statistics released last week.

Sherer tallied 144 points on the season while canning 46 percent (70 of 151) of his shots from the field.

Teammate Brent Pick was second with 115 points. The sophomore also hit 46 percent (47 of 103) of his attempts.

As a team, the Devils made 43 percent (326 of 754) of their shots while Wayne's opponents canned 45 percent (251 of 552).

Sherer also led the Devils in free throw scoring, tallying 24 points from the charity stripe while attempting 40 (60 percent).

Kevin Maly led the team in free-throw percentage with a 63 percent (4-of-12) clip.

The Devils were also out-shot from the paint, hitting 48 percent (149-of-310) of their attempts to their opponents' 54 percent (178-of-331).

On the whole, Wayne outscored its enemies by an average of 57-49 each game. On the boards, Wayne averaged to outrebound its foes 458-266 on the season. The per-game breakdown gives the Blue Devils a 33-23 carom average.

Junior Carl Urwiler led Wayne in rebounding with a season total of 103.

Sherer paced Wayne in assists (36) and steals (35).

Town Team roster given

After a couple of months of conjecture as to whether Wayne would field a town baseball team this season, enough players expressed interest to merit continuation of the program, the Wayne Baseball Association has announced.

It was also announced that Mike Meyer will manage the squad.

A schedule will be released as soon as the Northeast Nebraska Baseball League decides if teams will compete in one or two divisions (east and west).

Finally — the end. Laurel head boys basketball coach Gale Hamilton had the distinction of being the last roundball mentor to report in to The Wayne Herald this season.

Hamilton's charges were ousted from the C-11 district competition last Friday night by Randolph. I told Hamilton I was sorry his team lost, but that I was sure glad the long basketball season was over. Hamilton agreed.

According to my calculations, I wrote 251 basketball stories this season while reporting results for Wayne, Winside, Waverfield, Allen and Laurel high schools' boys and girls teams and both Wayne State College squads.

That's a lot of basketball. Bring on baseball and track!

Shorter season?
The high school basketball season in Nebraska presently starts around Dec. 1 and continues until the conclusion of the state tournament in March. There is a proposal before the Nebraska High School Activities Association that would prohibit prep competition until after the Christmas break.

When I sent out the All-Area basketball belts to area coaches last week, I included a short questionnaire asking for opinions on the proposal as well as a variety of other subjects dealing with high school basketball.

As soon as I have them all tabulated, I'll pass the info along in this space.

Some good signs
On the bright side, the Wildcats only gave up 4 unearned runs against the Huskers.

At the plate, 12 Wayne Staters took bases on balls. "We had a good eye at the plate," Klaver said. "We hit pretty well too — a lot of shots were caught."

The Huskers only got 4 walks on the day. Klaver reported that all but one of the Wildcat pitchers were throwing in the 80's (m.p.h.), which is encouraging.

Gill fanned
The biggest leather in any Wildcat's cap for the day was earned pitcher by Trent Herman, who fanned Husker shortstop and gridiron great, Turner Gill.

As a matter of fact, Herman might be the last pitcher who can make that claim. Gill announced Monday that he will not be on the roster then the Huskers take the field today. The Husker senior, who signed with the Montreal Concordes of the Canadian Football League, will have to report to the Concordes' training camp before baseball is over at Nebraska.

Herman, a juco transfer from Worthington (Minn.) Community College, had a 3-3 record on the mound for the Bluejays last season and carried a 2.4 ERA.

Klaver said Herman is "somewhere around fifth or sixth" in the Cats' rotation at present.

Southern swing
The Wildcats will leave this weekend for their annual "Southern Swing." This year's trek includes six foes in the Sooner state: Phillips University, Central State U., Oklahoma Baptist, East Central Oklahoma State and Southeast Oklahoma State.

The Cats are slated for a double header against Phillips U. in Enid, Okla. on Sunday and will return to Wayne for their home opener versus Northwestern (Iowa) College on March 13 at 1:30 p.m. See the park.

Baseball officers elected

The Wayne Baseball Association elected officers for the 1984 season at a meeting Feb. 23.

Paul Offe was tabbed for duties as president while Don Goeden was picked as vice president.

Serving as secretary will be Galen Wisner. Stan Morris was elected treasurer.

Road Run at North Bend

The Platte Valley Striders Running Club of North Bend is sponsoring a seven-mile road race and a one-mile "Fun Run" on Sunday, March 4 in North Bend.

Both races are slated to begin at 1 p.m. with registration starting at noon.

The entry fee is $1. For further information, contact Ron Anderson at: (402) 652-8114.

Schroeder tabbed for Shrine game

Larry Schroeder, head football coach at Frankfort (Kan.) High School, has been named to the East coaching staff for the 11th Annual Kansas Bowl All-Star East West football game to be played on August 4, 1984 at Kansas State University Stadium. All proceeds from the game will go to the Shrine Hospitals for Crippled and severely burned children.

Roundball skills to be tested

Area youngsters will have the chance to test their basketball prowess during the Wayne Lions Club Basketball Skills Competition on Sunday, March 4 at the Wayne High School gym.

Youngsters up to 11 years of age are eligible and will be divided in to four age groups. The competition will test shooting and dribbling skills, with trophies awarded to first and second place finishers.

Wayne State College students attending National Model United Nations program

Terming herself one of the few "native Nebraskans" in her department, Dr. Jean Karlen, assistant professor of sociology, said she considers Wayne State College "a great place to work."

Karlen has been at Wayne State since the fall of 1976 when she was hired to fill a position that was vacated about mid-term.

Jean Karlen

She came to Wayne State to teach while continuing her graduate studies and managing a home.

KARLEN, who is originally from Dodge, Neb., has received all of her post-secondary education at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, where she earned her bachelor's degree in 1970, her master's in 1975, and her Ph.D. in 1981.

She and her husband of 14 years, Jerry, and their three daughters, Julia, age 10, Jaime, 8, and Jaclyn, 3, live in Pender.

Karlen's hobbies include playing the piano and guitar, playing racquetball and golf as well as belonging to a bridge group. She also is an avid Nebraska football fan.

Karlen teaches a variety of sociology classes, a field which has been her main interest since KARLEN belongs to several professional organizations, including Phi Beta Kappa, the Midwest Sociological Society and the American Sociological Association, the American Association of University Women, and the Nebraska Coalition of Women.

She also is the sponsor of Pi Gamma Mu, the social science honorary on the Wayne State campus, which has been on the International Roll of Merit for the past four years.

Karlen also participates in other organizations, including membership in Gamma Iota, a local group in Pender; organizational leader of 4-H, and she also is co-founder of the Pender Community Pre School.

She is the director of the 15th annual Nebraska Undergraduate Sociological Symposium which will be held April 5 and 6.

She also has been selected for the Models to Mentor Project, which is sponsored by the Nebraska Coalition for Women she was a sophomore in high school.

In addition to her classroom duties, Karlen said she does a great deal of academic and career counseling.

OF WAYNE State, Karlen commented, "Professional satisfaction is very high here for me. I thrive on the environment here. I enjoy getting to know my students."

Once again Wayne State College students will infiltrate the United Nations.

Plans are complete for Wayne State students to take part in the 1984 National Model United Nations program (NMUN) in New York City.

This will be the 11th year Wayne State College has participated in the program, according to Allen O'Donnell, associate professor of social science, at Wayne State and director of programs for the Public Affairs Institute.

THE NATIONAL Model United Nations program enables students to play the role of a professional diplomat at the United Nations.

Wayne State students will represent the African nation of Ghana at the UN and will serve on eight committees.

With Wayne representing Ghana, we can now say that the college has touched every continent of the world through this program," O'Donnell said.

Nations that Wayne State has represented in the past include the Soviet Union, West Germany, Morocco, Denmark, Mexico, Cuba, Fiji and Qatar.

STUDENTS participating in the program are required to do research on Ghana and its involvement in the United Nations before making the trip.

They must also write a paper as a follow-up to the trip, according to O'Donnell. Students earn three credits for making the trip. The students will leave on Sunday, April 15 and return the following Sunday, April 22.

While in New York, they will stay at the Grand Hyatt Hotel and will work in the United Nations building.

More than 1,400 students from over 100 colleges and universities located in North America will participate in the program.

Total cost for the program is $410, which includes tuition, transportation, hotel and fees. The only expenses not included are food and entertainment.

TWO DAYS and nights have been reserved for "seeing the Big Apple," according to O'Donnell. Students will be urged to take in a Broadway show, visit the Lincoln Center, and tour other points of interest.

This type of learning goes far beyond the classroom," said O'Donnell. "Students learn by doing."

Presently, 12 students have committed themselves to making the trip, and O'Donnell says there is room for four more students.

All Wayne State students are eligible to participate, regardless of major or year in school.

Interested students should contact O'Donnell at 375-2200, ext. 296.

The trip is being sponsored by the Wayne State College Public Affairs Institute. O'Donnell will accompany the students.

Honorary initiates students

Five students were initiated into the Alpha Rho chapter of Pi Omega Pi business education honorary at Wayne State College on Feb. 16.

Initiated were Leland Doerr of Wausa, Susan Nielsen of Pender, Patricia Beckman of Elgin, Kathleen Heimann of Dodge, and Duane (Russ) Uhing of Hartington.

Pi Omega Pi is the national business education honorary which recognizes the academic excellence of students desiring to be business leaders.

Locally, the Alpha Rho chapter is responsible for planning and hosting the annual Business Competition Day events, in which over 450 students from 30 Nebraska and Iowa high schools compete in over 14 business contests.

Sponsors of the honorary are Patricia Arneson and Kathryn Leathers, WSC division of business faculty members.

JGW Lewis scholarship established

A JGW Lewis Memorial Scholarship was recently established at Wayne State College.

The scholarship is in memory of the late J.G.W. Lewis and has been established by his children, Jeanette Lewis Copes of Ainsworth, Virginia Lewis Burman of Omaha, and John Ke nyan Lewis of Kirkswood, Mo.

The scholarship will be awarded annually to a social science major at Wayne State who is deserving, worthy, and of good moral character.

The scholarship recipient must also show promise of leadership and academic ability in the field of social science and be recommended by the social science division.

Dollar value for the scholarship will be $200.

DR. J.G.W. Lewis was a Nebraska educator for more than 70 years. He was a faculty member at Wayne State from 1910 through 1935.

Lewis served as head of the history and political science department at Wayne State and is considered one of the college's all time finest teachers.

Later, he was associated for about 25 years with the University of Nebraska Extension Division until his retirement at the age of 90.

He received the Wayne State College Distinguished Service Award in 1967.

Lewis died in February of 1973 at age 97.

Taiwan is like a tea cup

By Jana Lamplot
Thurston, Neb.

Taiwan is compared to a tobacco leaf because of its shape. I would refer to Taiwan as a tea cup.

There are many reasons for choosing to say that Taiwan has rich, green tea fields that sculpture the mountains. The Oolong and Pau Chung tea lasted sweet and smooth in the small tea cups.

Someone would be surprised that the tiny cup could have a taste so rich and plentiful. The province of Taiwan is much the same.

ALTHOUGH IT is small, it is rich in hospitality and plentiful in beauty. I am fortunate that I spent 6 months in Taiwan. The International 4 H Youth Exchange program provided me with the opportunity to learn about the Chinese culture.

There are many things about the culture which fascinated me. I took particular interest in the family life. I am a professional home economist, so I look for the factors and situations that concern the family.

By living with them, I learned how the people live. With agriculture as the business, I learned about the province from the soil, to the market, to the industries it serves. The people were my guide, leading me with smiles, handshakes and words of friendship.

As I reflect now, there are prominent things that I observed and did that will be useful to my career. Those things I saw as part of a family are things I can tell Americans so they will understand Taiwan.

day and tell about customs, manners and lifestyle that are somewhat different than our own.

My fantasy is now over and so is my IFEY experience. But the memories are alive in my mind and pictures. One glance, and I am there again. I hope the Taiwan National 4 H Club continues to accept IFEY's from the United States.

My experience was positive and enriching. My interest in Taiwan will continue. And I will go back. There are still many things for me to learn. The door is not closed. Thanks Taiwan.

The Rev. Larry Ostercamp conducted Bible study at the Wayne center Monday, with 20 attending.

Support group for widows is established

Have you lost a spouse and it seems really difficult to find anyone who really understands how you feel and will allow you to talk about those feelings and why you have them?

A support group for widows and widowers has been formed in Northeast Nebraska and meets on the first Thursday of each month at Sacred Heart Church basement. The group is nondenominational and is open to all faiths.

The March and April meetings will feature Rev. Dave Sellars from Northern Heights Baptist Church, Norfolk. Rev. Sellars has been widowed and has insight and understanding of the problems as well as the ministerial training to help others.

Some of the material that will be covered is that grieving is a natural process and one must go through that process in order to begin to hear properly. Those who are grieving must be allowed to talk about their spouse and acknowledge that that person was, in fact, an important part of their life. Rev. Sellars said.

When a grieving person most wants people to talk about and acknowledge that spouse, people will quickly change the subject, many widowed persons have complained.

This desire to talk about one's spouse is perfectly normal in the first stages of grief, but Rev. Sellars points out that grieving persons need to be aware of these stages of grieving and cautions that if a person finds himself caught in one stage or another for too long a time, then there is a need to recognize that and go for help from a clergyman, counselor, or good friend.

"There are many things that need to be done to complete the grieving process and also some goals that need to be set and met in order to heal properly," he said.

The March 1 meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. For more information, call Del Heithoff, Elgin, 843-5452, or Mary Abboud, Norfolk, 371-8289.

Judging the show will be Michael of Michael's Photo Studio in Norfolk, Randy Foster of Creighton, and Adri Nab of Wayne.

There is no entry fee for entering the contest, and juried photographs must meet a minimum size of 5 x 7 inches. Both color and black and white photos are welcome.

Prizes will be awarded to winners in each of the various divisions.

Scholarships awarded

Scholarships have been awarded to students at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln (UNL) during the 1983-84 academic year.

Among the scholarship recipients are:

OLIVE G. Warner Scholarship to Collette Greener, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fredrick Kramer of Ayr.

Ida Williams Berger Scholarship to Judy C. Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Marshall of Ayr. Lori F. Swanson, daughter of Mr.

and Mrs. Ernest Swanson of Wayne.

Harle S. and Evelyn Milligan Scholarship to Adrie George, sophomore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold W. George, of Dixon.

Marjorie K. Leonard Scholarship to Kelle J. Harter, sophomore, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold W. George, of Dixon.

Tracy L. Wilkerson Scholarship to Mr. and Mrs. David H. Wilkerson of Rankin.

City holidays are set

Holidays for city employees have been set for 1984, according to Wayne City Administrator Phil Kloster.

City employees will receive holidays on the following dates: Feb. 20 - Washington's birthday; April 23 - Arbor Day; May 28 - Memorial Day; July 4 - Independence Day; Sept. 3 - Labor Day; Nov. 12 - Veterans Day; Nov. 22 - Thanksgiving Day; Dec. 25 - Christmas Day; Jan. 1, 1985 - New Year's Day.

All departments will be given a choice of Nov. 23, Dec. 24, Dec. 26 or Dec. 31 as a floating holiday. The choice will be given by seniority.

Book

THE TEXAS NATIVE wrote a book in the 1960s about a forti in Texas and another about the depression in Texas.

Another book, titled "TEXAS: A Sesquicentennial Celebration," is expected to be released Friday. The book contains 70 chapters written by 70 Texas historians. Whisenhunt wrote 1 chapter and developed and edited the patriotic book.

His plans for the future include writing a book that won't be quite so patriotic. He said he will propose that Texas be divided into 5 states. When Texas was annexed, provision was drawn up to allow for the division of the state into 5 separate states, Whisenhunt said.

"Texas' size warrants division into 5 states," Whisenhunt said. He explained that El Paso and Texas arkana are 800 miles apart and require 2 full days of driving from 1 city to the other.

El Paso is closer to Chicago than it is to Texarkana and, likewise, Texarkana is closer to Los Angeles than it is to El Paso, Whisenhunt said.

"THERE'S NOT much similarity between the parts of the state. East Texas and west Texas have no relationship," he said.

"My contention is that if we divide it into 5 states, we'll have 5

Need cited to increase sow productivity

The number of pigs weaned per sow annually is about half the potential on a national basis, those attending the Nebraska Pork Industry Exposition in Columbus were told Feb. 13.

Jim Neissen, a Kansas State University livestock specialist, said the average in the United States is 13.5 pigs per sow per year, while the potential is about 26. The 13.5 figure is based on two litters per year, Neissen said, while shortening the period from weaning to conception of a new litter would allow increasing a sow's productivity from 2 to 2.5 litters per year.

"Some Nebraska producers are getting 20 pigs per sow per year," the KSU animal scientist said, but in most cases the figure is much lower.

THE LONGER period of time from weaning to conception is costly to producers because of sow maintenance costs, said Neissen, a recent Ph.D. graduate from the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Neissen discussed research he had conducted in cooperation with NU animal scientist Austin Lewis, along with summarizing other related studies.

A delay in return to estrus following weaning is a common management problem, Neissen said, especially in first litter sows. He cited NU research which has established that energy intake during a sow's lactation can have a direct influence on the interval from weaning to estrus, or heat, a prerequisite to successful conception of a subsequent litter.

A goal is to reduce the interval after weaning from as high as 40 days in some cases to five days, Neissen said.

He reviewed calculations which showed that savings of $2,100 could be achieved on 30 sows by better nutrition which would result in increased reproductive efficiency.

INCREASING THE amount of fat in sows' rations in late gestation helps pig survival and increases the quality of sows' milk, Neissen said. Fat in the amount of 2.5 pounds per sow must be fed at least five days before farrowing to be effective, he said.

Animal scientists have identified the "thin sow syndrome." Neissen told producers among a large turnout for the first day of the expo at Platte Ag Park here. The two-day event is sponsored by the Feeder Pig Committee of the Nebraska Pork Producers Association and the University of Nebraska Cooperative Extension Service.

The thin sow syndrome includes first litter sows, significant weight loss of the sow during lactation, a high milk-producing sow, bred and selected for that trait, and a failure to return to estrus after weaning because of a loss in condition.

"We're asking them (sows) to produce more and more (milk and numbers of pigs in a litter), and (are actually) moving them to a non-productive state," Neissen explained.

The amount of backfat may be an indicator of response to estrus in first litter sows, he said. Sows with high energy intake lose less backfat, which can be measured, he said. Restricting energy intake during lactation results in weaning lighter weight litters, he added.

A side effect noted by swine nutritionists is that sows on a restricted energy diet convert through metabolism expensive protein to energy to meet their needs. He recommended that producers assure that first litter sows get above the 7 pounds of feed per day, into the 8.5 to 9 pounds plus level.

HE OFFERED 4 management tips:

1. Provide full feed to sows during lactation; 2. Don't include high fiber ingredients in the diet; 3. Keep farrowing house temperature below 80 degrees; 4. Take necessary steps to change the internal housing environment if temperatures get above 85 degrees.

The latter two steps relate to the fact that feed intake for sows drops when temperatures rise, he said.

Neissen noted that "farrowing house dilemma," in which piglets need to be warm—in the vicinity of 85 degrees—while the sow, in order to eat well, needs a temperature of 60 to 75 degrees. Supplemental zone heat takes care of pigs' needs under most climatic conditions. However, when outside temperatures are high, sows need to be kept cool because of increased respiratory rate and decreased appetite, he said. "Hogs—must—depend—on evaporative heat loss because they cannot perspire," he noted.

Neissen said Kansas State University researchers are looking at a drip irrigation system used in California for specialty crops which costs only $25 to serve 14 farrowing crates in a confinement farrowing house. It drips water on a sow's shoulder, achieving a cooling effect with low volume water consumption. Dealing with overheating of sows is crucial to assure they stay on schedule and conceive a short time after pigs are weaned, he said.

SID BURKERY, a pork producer from Millford, described his experience with feeding fat to sows. He expressed satisfaction with results of feeding cooked soybeans to sows during lactation.

"They (sows) give milk off the (soy)bean, not the back," producing milk from metabolizing correct rations rather than burning up fat from their own bodies, he said, reinforcing Neissen's earlier comments.

"They like it," (cooked soybeans), Burkery said. And in his operation, cooked soybeans as a key part of the ration have resulted in less variation in sows' condition, more pigs weaned and heavier litters.

Burkery said his experience has shown cooked soybeans to be more desirable and efficient than soybean oil meal or soybean oil, which can get rancid if not handled correctly. He has his own soybean cooker. He attributes the inclusion of cooked soybeans in the ration to a return to estrus by 95 percent of his sows five days after weaning. "We're pretty excited about feeding cooked beans," he summarized.

In an opening presentation, NU swine researcher Murray Danielson from North Platte reviewed studies which confirm that raw soybeans contain anti-growth factors. Use of raw soybeans in diets results in decreased pig performance, but when soybeans are cooked at the proper temperature they are an excellent source of supplemental protein.

Permit required

Tractor driving classes planned

A federal law requires that all individuals age 14 and 15 who operate a tractor for someone other than their parents, must have a hazardous occupation permit.

A class to provide the training for this permit will be conducted at the Northeast Station near Concord from 5 p.m. March 16 to 3 p.m. March 17.

In addition to the training, an opportunity will be provided for boys and girls 13 to 15 to obtain a Nebraska tractor operator's permit. This permit is required to drive implements of farm husbandry on the roadways of Nebraska.

Those seeking a Nebraska tractor operators permit can take the necessary tests on March 17 at the Northeast Station near Concord from 9 a.m. to 12 noon.

The training and permits are available to any youngster in the above age brackets living in Dakota, Dixon, Cedar, Thurston or Wayne counties.

Any 4-H'er living in 1 of those 5 counties may also attend the tractor camp regardless of age if they are not eligible for the permit, they still will receive training on care and operation of tractors.

Anyone interested in attending the tractor camp must register in the extension office by March 9. A $5 fee will be charged for the camp.

Hard winter

THE WINTER has taken its toll on many head of livestock, including this calf. The calf's ears and tail apparently froze off and the calf has 1 lame leg.

the farmer's wife

by pat meierhenry

There is a book with the title, "When I Say No, I Feel Guilty." I think it was written for me. I am also the world's greatest procrastinator. The 2 are not compatible.

In school, I said, "I do my best work under pressure," and wrote my care studies the night before they were due. Now I can't tolerate missing a whole night's sleep, so I do things the day before they are due.

Problem is, this weekly bit of The Wayne Herald's Ag Section is due at the Herald on Monday morning. And, of course, no one picks up our mail on Sunday. Plus, the Hoskins and Winside post officers have no pick up after Saturday morning.

SO, I NEED to have this done in time to go in our box for our rural mail carrier by Saturday noon. It's now 11 a.m. on Saturday morning, and it's been a very uneventful week here. I'm determined not to complain about the mud. And, yes, the canvas bag comes in very handy to have things in and out of the bag!

Times like this I wonder why I ever said I would do this. Sometimes, I don't write until Sunday. Then I have to figure some way to get it to Wayne.

Deb Harmer used to work on Mondays, so I would take it to her house and she would deliver it for me. Then she quit working on Sunday. One day, I caught Del Winch just as she was backing out of her drive.

Three weeks ago, I convinced my brother in law and sis to go back to Omaha by way of Wayne to be sure of good roads and drop the column in the mail box on their way.

Sometimes, I convince the Big Farmer I needed groceries anyway and hand deliver it on Monday myself. Or on Tuesday, in the case of a snowstorm. They have all been on weekends this year, in case you hadn't noticed.

PROCRASTINATION is a real character defect. I'm trying to do something about it, but I know I'll always have to put up with it. Once, as I finished making a dress just minutes before I was going to wear it, my Mom said, "It's a good thing you decide to make something for a specific occasion, or you'd have nothing to wear!"

She wears a long black shirt and black blouse for concert band. She decided some time ago that she would get a new long black dress before spring band trip. They leave March 3. I told her I would make it for her. So, last month, we got the pattern and material. I brought it home and laid it on the sewing machine, probably secretly hoping some magic genie would sew it for me. I got it cut out during the snowstorm.

She called Wednesday night to report that Wesleyan had defeated Hastings with a jump shot from 20 feet out with 7 seconds remaining. We're going to Fremont tonight to see Wesleyan's last regular season game at Midland.

So she actually asked, since she expects to pick up the dress tonight, "How's the dress coming?" "Oh, fine," I replied, not admitting that I hadn't yet sewed a seam. She has enough to worry about.

I DID GET it done, yesterday. I didn't even stay up late last night to finish it. If I can't remember to take it along tonight, I won't have to mail it next week.

Besides, I now have a column written. You have to admit it takes a great mind to get two type written pages out of absolutely nothing in one hour's time.

Since I have a little space left, I'm going to add that the people who complain about being bored with Nebraska's deliberate style of basketball should go to a few games in our state's smaller colleges.

They play fast, "run and gun" ball, and it is exciting. There are some high caliber ball players playing really good basketball. I have to catch the mailman!

Fall rules change

Program sign up period extended

Secretary of Agriculture John R. Block has extended the sign up period for 1984 cotton, feed grain, rice and wheat programs by three weeks, through March 16.

Block also said he has changed summer fallow rules so that the requirements would be the same as they were in 1983 and previous programs. Prior to this action, acreage designated for the 1984 programs could not have been land intended for summer fallow in the current year. Other provisions of the 1984 programs will remain unchanged, he said.

Block said he took these actions to clear away some of the obstacles which made it difficult for farmers to make sound decisions about the programs. Also many farmers have not been able to finalize crop operating plans including financing and lease arrangements. Since producers must sign a binding contract in the 1984 acreage reduction programs, with liquidated damages for failure to comply, they are reluctant to sign up until their operating plans are more complete, he said.

Both USDA and private sector analysts say that when most farmers compare these programs with their own operating plans, they will find participation is to their advantage. Block said "This extension will give producers the time needed to weigh the benefits of participation against the risks of no price protection which they would otherwise face."

Block encouraged farmers to avoid a last minute rush to USDA's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Services county officers so that they can better serve each farmer.

An investment in energy research at NU pays off

The economic impact of energy savings in agriculture from research conducted at the University of Nebraska's Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources has been great, and more savings are still possible.

That's the assessment of William J. Miller, head of NU's agricultural engineering department.

A 1 1/2 planter developed by NU agricultural engineers allows a 50 percent reduction in fuel to till and plant corn from 4.75 to 2.25 gallons of diesel fuel per acre, he said. A slot planter, also developed at NU, allows for a 75 percent reduction in fuel costs.

ENERGY REQUIREMENTS for pumping irrigation water are the greatest single use of energy in Nebraska agriculture, Splinter said. Irrigation scheduling offers a very effective way to save energy by reducing the amount of water pumped.

"We have demonstrated that, depending on the year, up to 30 percent of the energy (in irrigation) can be saved through improved timing and application efficiency," he said.

It has been estimated that it cost farmers $31 million to pump water for irrigation in 1973 and the total acreage of pumped irrigation has doubled since that time. Energy costs in that same period have increased about five times, so irrigation scheduling can have a major economic impact on farm costs, he said. Scheduling is being used on more than 1 million acres currently, with 7 million acres still to adopt the practice.

Several NU studies have shown that on the average, irrigation pumping plants are operating at less than 80 percent of efficiency.

"We have developed a major educational program to get farmers to have their pumping plants checked," Splinter said. "This could save farmers an additional 20 percent of their cost of pumping water."

Another area of energy savings is in natural air drying for corn, sorghum and soybeans. Splinter said the AGENT, computer system now contains a management model to assist farmers in scheduling the filling and drying operation, eliminating the need for propane.

THE POTENTIAL for energy savings for Nebraska farmers remains great. Splinter cited ongoing research projects such as solar energy and methane production from swine waste as examples of further savings.

Solar energy can be used effectively, he said, to reduce or even eliminate the need for propane to heat swine facilities. Four designs are being compared at the Energy Farm at NU's Field Lab near Mead and one design is being used on more than a dozen new facilities in Nebraska.

Methane from swine waste is being used to power an engine generator at the Energy Farm, he said. "Through proper management there may be enough energy to grind feed, operate elevators, power fans or blowers and pump water for livestock from methane."

These facilities of the Energy Farm will be part of the display at the IANR Ag Expo at the Field Lab on July 26.

NEBRASKA HAS been a national leader in the application of photovoltaic energy (electricity directly from solar cells) to agricultural production systems. Splinter said a 25 kilowatt system has been used at the Energy Farm to irrigate 80 acres of corn and soybeans and to dry grain for the past seven years. "This technology is beginning to appear on farms in the form of electric fence chargers and battery chargers," he said.

Research is also continuing with the use of subsurface injection of herbicides, which will eliminate the need to disc incorporate herbicides, further reducing energy requirements to one half of that required for discing.

Other experiments at the NU Energy Farm are concerned with the use of wind electrical energy to generate nitrogen using the electric arc process. "Continued investments in agricultural research will have a great deal of impact on our state's economy," Splinter said.

Wakefield men on union board

Con Munson and Merlin Fell of Wakefield were re-elected to the board of directors of Farmers Union Cooperative Exchange at the annual meeting held Thursday, Feb. 16. Martin Bose also was elected to the board. Other board members are Howard Greve, Ron Wensstrand, Melvin Mortenson and Alvin Sundell.

Beef weigh-in is postponed

Because of the extremely muddy conditions of the feed yards, Wayne County's 4-H beef weigh-in has been postponed until Saturday, March 10. The cattle will be weighed from 9 a.m. until 3:30 p.m. at the Farmers Livestock Market (former Wayne Sales Barn).

Soybean meeting is March 13

Soybean farmers who want to improve their economic situation are "Takin' Action in '84" at the Nebraska Soybean Association (NSA) Annual Delegate Meeting March 13, at the Columbus Holiday Inn. Registration begins at 9 a.m.

During the morning session Carl Gangwish of Shelton, chairman of the American Soybean Development Foundation, will report on market expansion activities being funded by farmer checkoff investments. Eugene Glock of Rising City, chairman of the Nebraska Soybean Development, Utilization and Marketing Board, will review activities funded by the Nebraska soybean checkoff. Nebraska Soybean Association accomplishments will be discussed by Eldon Robinson of Randolph. David Gehring of Lincoln will report on corporate relations and the results of the poultry poll.

Luncheon speaker will be Ed Scheffler of the Iowa Soybean Association. Leo Mayer of the Foreign Agricultural Service will speak on export promotion activities at the evening awards banquet.

Members and delegates will discuss, develop and vote on resolutions to go to the national meeting of the American Soybean Association in Tulsa. The meeting will conclude with the election of new board members and officers.

Belden Grain & Feed honored

Belden Grain & Feed, Belden, Nebraska, was recognized recently of an award banquet in Norfolk, sponsored by Kent Feeds Inc., of Muscatine, Iowa. The firm was cited for 15 years of service as a Kent Feed dealer.

Twenty-three banquets were held throughout Kent's marketing area with a total attendance of nearly 3,500. Kent has been sponsoring these banquets for 33 years.

Kent Feeds serves feed dealers and livestock and poultry producers in a 12-state area. Manufacturing and distribution facilities are located in Sioux City, Estherville, Waterloo, Altona and Muscatine, Iowa; Rockford and Beardstown, Ill.; Marshall, Mo.; Logansport, Ind.; and Columbus.

Arbie Feeds recognizes dealer

Arbie Feeds, Marshalltown, Iowa, recently honored Vernon Bauermeister of Wayne by presenting him with a Deaton Fischer casting of a boy feeding a calf.

The casting is mounted on a block of finished wood containing a personalized plate with Vernon Bauermeister's name and an inscription.

Arbie Feeds has purchased a major portion of this limited edition casting and when these are gone no more will be sold. Herman Deaton is a well known midwestern sculptor and each recipient of a casting receives a certificate of authenticity signed by the Deaton Fischer Casting Studio.

Editor's opinion

LB 953 could be year's 'LB 72'

Farm Owners
By Cheryl Hubbenack
Nebraska Farm Bureau

The Nebraska Unicameral's Agriculture and Environment Committee is currently considering a bill that could be this year's "LB 72" for farmers.

Last year, LB 72, a truck licensing law, passed by nearly everyone and was passed into law before anyone realized its implications for licensing and exchange of services with neighbors.

This year's sleeper could be LB 953, a bill sponsored by Lincoln Sens. Dave Landis and Chris Beutler. It proposes to establish the Petroleum Products and Flammable Liquids Storage and Handling Act.

THE NEBRASKA Department of Environmental Control and the State Fire Marshall's office recommended that the bill be drafted in response to various studies which reported the contamination of groundwater from leakage of fuel from storage tanks.

According to the Environmental Protection Agency, the average age of fuel tanks throughout the U.S. is 30 years and many of these are corroded, causing leakage into water supplies. A recent "60 Minutes" broadcast reported that 2 or 3 of every 10 gas stations in the country are leaking gasoline from their tanks.

Studies by the University of Nebraska in dicate most petroleum tank structures are very similar to those used by gas stations LB 953, as drafted, would cover all petroleum tank structures, including those on rural sites.

PROVISIONS OF THE BILL would: — establish a permit system for storing petroleum products or other flammable liquids in a tank or other containers with a capacity of 1,000 gallons or more.

— require owners of such existing tanks to obtain a permit from the State Fire Marshall by July 1, 1985, and after that date require a permit before such tanks could be installed.

— require all tanks to meet State Fire Marshall standards, including inspections, monitoring and installation requirements. Monitoring would include reporting any loss of stored products and a procedure for the proper method of monitoring.

— make the State Fire Marshall and the Department of Environmental Control jointly responsible for dealing with leaks from such tanks.

— make all violators of this law guilty of a Class V misdemeanor, punishable by a fine up to $100.

— establish a procedure for notifying the State Fire Marshall of temporary or permanent abandonment of such tanks and containers.

— require an annual permit fee not to exceed $5 per tank.

MOST FUEL tanks owned by farmers and ranchers hold 500 gallons. But before they rest easy, they need to consider this report from the State Department of Health.

"It is our observation that most of the fuels stored by farmers and ranchers are in elevated 500-gallon tanks. These can also leak and if isolated are subject to damage from: firearms, either accidentally or deliberately. Since they do present a hazard to the ground water if the fuel is lost, it would seem appropriate to require a permit, inspection and measurement for any grouping of tanks calculated to store 1,000 gallons of fuel which are located within a specific radius, perhaps 1,000 feet."

At LB 953's public hearing in early February, the Department of Environmental Control, the State Fire Marshall's office and University of Nebraska representatives strongly supported the bill and faced little opposition.

However, Committee Chairman Rex Haberman, himself a farmer, has expressed his own reservations about the bill and its implications for rural residents who need to keep a supply of fuel for their farming and ranching operations. Haberman has asked that farmers and ranchers with opinions about LB 953 contact him to express their concerns.

WAYNE WRANGLERS
The Wayne Wranglers 4-H Club met at the United Methodist Church in Wayne on Feb. 7.

The meeting opened with the flag salute and roll call. Attending were 4 members, 3 parents and leader Mrs. Kathy Luff.

Following the business meeting, Tom Etter gave a demonstration on how to determine the age of a horse by its teeth. Lunch was served by Tom Etter.

Next meeting will be March 4 at 7:30 p.m. at the United Methodist Church.

Tami Jenkins, news reporter.

PLEASURE AND PROFIT

President Tamie Noe called to order the recent meeting of the Pleasure and Profit 4-H Club. Members recited the flag salute and 4-H pledge.

Mrs. Roberts read the roll call in the absence of Vice President Annela Noe. Troy Hingsel read the treasurer's report.

Bobby Kumm furnished lunch. Next meeting was scheduled March 5 at 3:30 p.m. at the schoolhouse. A demonstration will be given on plants, flowers and gardening, and lunch will be served by the Burnhams and Troy Hingsel.

Sandy Noe, news reporter.

CARROLLINERS

The Carrolliners 4-H Club met Feb. 13 at the Carroll school. Thirteen members answered roll call with a future occupation.

Pam Junck conducted the business meeting. The group practiced songs for the song contest and reviewed theme booth ideas.

Pam and Dwaine Junck demonstrated how to make refrigerator decorations, and Mrs. Cyril Hansen, sewing leader, told about the differences in fabrics.

Mrs. Byron Janke had a lesson on knitting.

Plans were made for a roller skating party Sunday, March 11 at 7 p.m. at the Wakefield roller rink. All 4-H clubs in Wayne County will be invited to attend.

Lunch was served by Beth Leann and Brenda Janke.

Next meeting is scheduled March 12 at the Carroll school. Heidi Hansen, news reporter.

DADS HELPERS

Dads Helpers 4-H Club met Feb. 13 at the Northeast Station, Concord. Beef was the main topic of the evening.

Clayton Hartman spoke on feeding and training a calf, and assisted members in the calf project with making halters.

Demonstrations were given by Doug Olson on keeping good record books, Allen George on chicken showmanship, and Marc Bathke on caring for beef animals.

Lunch was served by the Bebees and the Clarksons.

Next meeting will be held March 12 at the Northeast Station. Diane Olson, news reporter.

WRANGLERS
The Wranglers 4-H Club met recently with 10 members and 12 guests. Roll call was answered with a favorite month.

President Ryan Creamer called the meeting to order.

Demonstrations were given by Sheila Koch on decorating a cookie, and Malinda Pettit on measuring correctly.

For the lesson, members learned the different parts of a beef calf.

A pencil game was conducted by Renee and Sonny Plueger, followed with lunch served by Rusty Dickens and Michelle Harder.

Next meeting is scheduled March 19 at 7:30 p.m. at the Northeast Station, near Concord. Demonstrations will be given by David Isom, Ryan Creamer, Shawn Isom, Michelle Harder and Tammy Kavanagh. The lesson will be by Jeanne Warner.

Games in March will be conducted by Malinda Pettit and Renee Plueger, and lunch will be served by Jenny Lee and Leslie and David Isom.

The Feb. 23 meeting of the Blue Ribbon Winners 4-H Club was held in the Richard Janssen home with all members attending.

President Jim Roberts called the meeting to order with the recitation of the 4-H pledge. Two filmstrips were shown, entitled "Feeding Your 4-H Calf" and "Feeding Your 4-H Hogs."

Brian Bowers was appointed a junior leader for the club, and lunch was served by the Richard Janssen and Randy Holdorf families.

Next meeting will be March 15 at the Carroll Public School with the John Williams and Darrel French families as hosts. Trevor Topp, news reporter.

Warning on soybean seed

There is a problem with germination in much of the 1983 soybean seed growth in northern portions of Iowa, Nebraska, and all of South Dakota. Verified reports of germination as low as 20 percent.

I would recommend that all 1983 soybean seed be tested for germination before planting. Home testing of germination can produce erratic results, so I would suggest sending in to the State Seed Testing Laboratory any 1983 grown soybeans to be used for seed.

This may be done through the Wayne County Extension Office. The cost is small compared to the possible loss in crop yield of your soybeans. Do it now because the seed testing lab is already getting swamped.

More on soybean seed

Some farmers have asked if they should send their soybeans in for a cold stress test. This special soybean test more nearly simulates actual planting conditions for soybeans than does the conventional germination test.

This special test is useful only for two years or older seed and should be done as close to the planting season as possible. The reason for this is that the seeds reaction changes as the months progress.

Still more on soybean seed

Notice the number of green seed in your 1983 grown soybeans? Normally they are not considered a major problem, but this year many of the green seeds have very low germination. Another reason for checking your soybean germination now.

Remodeling your farrowing facilities

Many old barns and chicken houses have been converted into satisfactory farrowing buildings. Steps to obtain a useable farrowing barn are:

- Plan the location of farrowing stalls and work alleys
- Plan the heating and ventilation. (Use positive pressure ventilation with distribution of air from a duct)
- Make the building structurally sound with a good roof if repairs are needed.
- Insulate
- Install a good vapor barrier
- Install required side wall and ceiling protection
- Install required water and electrical outlets.

Farrowing buildings require 20 cubic feet of air per minute for each sow in the winter and 240 in the summer. Care in ventilation design pays. An adjustable six inch slope pipe elbow is sometimes used to direct air to each crate.

This is a good time to remind you that the Wayne County Pork Producers and the Wayne County Extension are sponsoring an all day Swine Facility Workshop, Thursday, March 22.

Area men are elected to poultry industry

Nebraska Poultry Industries Inc. (NPI), an umbrella organization encompassing production, processing and allied interests of the state's overall poultry complex, elected new officers at its annual meeting in Columbus Feb. 15.

Joe Claybaugh of Carroll was named NPI president, succeeding Bud Comte of David City. Other officers elected were: Dick Earl, Lincoln, first vice president; Lloyd Bevans, Waverly, second vice president; and Warren Wiborg, Norfolk, secretary-treasurer. Doyle Free of Lincoln continues as NPI general manager.

Officers of other organizations elected at the same annual meeting:

Nebraska Egg Council — Dave Gardner, Wakefield, president; Joe Claybaugh, Carroll, vice president; Tim Graff, Beatrice, secretary; Don Gabel, Osceola, treasurer; Doyle Free, Lincoln, executive secretary.

Nebraska Poultry Improvement Association — Don Claybaugh, Columbus, president; Orville Kreifelts, Springfield, first vice president; Warren Wiborg, Norfolk, second vice president; Phil Rudebach, Norfolk, secretary-treasurer; Doyle Free, Lincoln, executive secretary.

Germany trip

SUPER CROST Superfest was the 14th trip offered by Super Crost seeds to their salesmen, customers and associates. The trip was based in Munich, Germany with accommodations at the Munich Sheraton. Day excursions included visits to the medieval city of Rothenburg; the salt mines of Berchtesgaden; Neuschwanstein, Germany's fairytale castle; and the romantic city of Salzburg, Austria, the location used in filming, "The Sound of Music." Super Crost seeds are produced by Edw. J. Funk & Son's, Inc., Kentland, Ind. Standing in the Salzburg, Austria square of St. Peters surrounded by a monastery that has been in continuous use since 582 are Mr. and Mrs. Larry Nichols of Wayne, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Wilson of Pender and Mr. and Mrs. Walt Urwiler of Laurel.

Economist says farmers have 4 main options

Farmers can do several things to help make 1984 a profitable year, said a University of Nebraska extension agricultural economist. According to Roy Frederick, farmers should think in terms of 4 options.

First, they need to think carefully about participation in the 1984 farm program.

"Participation in the '84 program will be higher than a lot of people think it will be," Frederick said. He added that although the '84 program won't be as good as the '83 program "it won't be a panacea" — it will help to strengthen prices.

THOSE FARMERS who don't participate "will be taking a big chance," Frederick noted. "I think the odds favor being in the program."

Other things farmers can do during '84, Frederick said, include the following:

- Think carefully about buying crop insurance, especially federal crop insurance.
- Look ahead at price opportunities such as hedging and forward contracting.
- And, although it may be controversial, look at diversifying your operation. "Maybe we've tried to specialize too much. Specialization is good for efficiency, but diversity takes away some of the risks involved."

THIS YEAR will be "time when farmers want to try not to get over-extended," Frederick said. Farmers will need to think in terms of tight management to control costs. "This year you want to do what you can to get the cash flow going in a reasonable way."

Then you probably shouldn't buy a Valley Center Pivot

Because Valmont has spent literally millions of dollars making sure that steel doesn't rust by insulating total galvanized protection. Because they've spent a million more making sure that the Valley power train, particularly gear boxes, is the toughest, so tough that thousands are now installed on other systems. Because any size pipe will not do. Failure to have a mainline that's energy efficient can cost you more than the cost of the system in operating costs. We use unique ValCom computers to make sure.

Because, after ten years, resale value varies tremendously from the price of junk to plenty. A tough protected Valley comes under the heading of plenty. Because solid, structural strength means that you can count on a Valley system during the whole life of the equipment. Because the past three years underscore the need for first-class service and parts. These are a few of the reasons we'd like to tell you more and we'd like to see you soon.

BOYS ARE SOLD WEBOLOS

120 Webelos, Cub Scouts from Troop 176, their leaders and parents, attended the Bear and Gold Award at the Laurel City Auditorium on Sunday. A covered dish supper was held.

The Webelos presented the flags. Cub Master Craig Monson welcomed the group, presented awards and informed parents of the sustaining membership certificates given to those making cash donations to Mid-America Council. Mr. Monson related that it cost about $30 a year for a boy to belong to the Cub Scout program.

A skit "Hats Worn by Famous Americans" was presented by Den 1. Benji Donner was the reader with Mrs. Connie Otteman and Mrs. Annette Smith assisting. An audience particition still on physical exercise was presented by Den 2.

Bobcat badges and certificates were presented to Den 1. The boys are Phillip Bloom, Kelly Arns, Mark Dickey, Bert Donnell, Kristine Krie, Jason Jones, Mark Lyle, Doug Otteman, Travis Schroeder and Andy Smith. Mothers of the boys in Den 1 are the Den Mothers.

In Den 2 beads leading toward the Bear Award were presented to Michael Hoepfner, Wade Winkelbauer, Nicky Strawn, Brian Young and Cory Macklin. Receiving the Bear Award were Jason Kvols, Jeremy Klussen, Scott Taylor, Darin Lubberstedt, Travis Monson and Khris Miller. Mrs. Judy Kvols and Mrs. Arlys Monson are the Den Mothers for Den 2. The Webelos leader, Gerry Reynoldson, presented achievement awards. The Webelos Badge and skill awards were presented to Greg Ward, Joel Lipp, Aaron Dietrich, Shane Lineberry, Jeremy Quist, Jon Ebmeser and Dean Heydon. The Webelos also gave a candle lighting ceremony depicting the 12 scouting points for becoming a Webelos.

A Columbus Federal IRA gives you many happy returns.

Smaller returns to the IRS.

Working couples can invest up to $4000 a year in a Columbus Federal Individual Retirement Account. Individuals can invest up to $2000 a year. And every cent you invest is fully deductible from your gross income subject to federal income tax. For example, if you are in the 35% tax bracket and invest $2000 in an IRA, you'll reduce your tax payment by $700.

Larger returns for retirement.

Your Columbus Federal IRA is a growing retirement fund. You may save in a lump sum each year or in smaller amounts throughout the year. Contributions made in 1984 (prior to filing your '83 income tax return) are eligible as 1983 deductions.

When you open a Columbus Federal IRA you can choose to invest in a variety of accounts with terms up to five years. Depending on the plan you select, your IRA investment can earn up to 11%.

This interest is also tax-deferred.

Compounding the interest over years generates more dollars, earning you significantly more than would be possible with taxed dollars. Your Columbus Federal investment counselor can show you how you can substantially increase your retirement fund. And whatever type of IRA you choose there are never any service charges or fees.
