Local physicians assistant finds duties challenging and exciting

By Ann Wickett
Special correspondent

Physician assistants have had a positive influence in the health care delivery system in Nebraska. The most significant impact has been in the rural areas.

Gary West, 30 has resided as a physicians assistant in the Wayne area for the past seven years.

THE ROLE of the physicians assistant program is to provide a physician with a colleague who makes his or her practice more efficient while maintaining the quality of health care provided to the patients.

In the early 1970's, a major concern about the availability of doctors in rural areas of Nebraska inspired political leaders and medical educators to consider using specially trained assistants to help solve the problem.

Working with organized medicine and the University of Nebraska Medical Center, State Senator Loran Schmit introduced legislation which established an education program for physician assistants in Nebraska. This was the only time in the United States that a PA program was created in this fashion.

The physician assistant program started in 1973 and West was one of the first 16 students to enter. He graduated from the University of Nebraska with a Bachelor of Science degree in 1976. "It only takes four to five years to complete a PA program whereas it takes eight to 10 years to become a regular physician," West said.

Physician assistants go through a severe medical education process and are taught by physicians. Their training is similar to that of medical students, but has more emphasis on common self-limiting problems found in an outpatient setting.

PA's go through extensive evaluation and testing during their training and are declared competent by a medical faculty. University of Nebraska graduates received Bachelor of Science degrees.

ACCORDING TO WEST, after a physician assistant finishes his training he obtains national certification by passing an examination developed by the National Board of Medical Examiners under contract with the National Commission of Certification of Physician Assistants.

To continue certification, a PA must earn 100 hours of extended medical education credit every two years. Every six years, physician assistants must retake written exams to prove their competence.

"I became a physician assistant because I wanted something challenging and exciting," West said. "Being a PA has proven to be exciting."

West starts his day as a physician assistant by visiting patients at Providence Medical Center in the mornings. He also attends to the college students at the student health facility located at the hospital. During most afternoons West can be found looking in on his patients at the Benthack Clinic. West also enjoys getting involved with the community by teaching CPR and other health related classes. He is a member of the Wayne ambulance service and a certified EMT.

ACCEPTANCE is one area that West considers an asset. "I have been accepted by most of the kids." He said he feels that kids prefer to see him rather than a doctor because he has time to explain what is happening and he tries not to hurt the kids.

The most supportive group of the physician assistant program is the Board of Examiners in medicine and surgery. The board has exercised its authority in giving the employing physician control of the PA and yet, being aware of their duty to protect the public.

Physician assistants play an important role in helping their supervising physician avoid "burnout." They frequently allow the physician to vary the types of patients he sees personally resulting in more interesting practice, West said.

One advantage West has as a physician assistant is that he gets "to spend more time with patients, addressing them in health care and preventive medicine," he added.

West thinks his most rewarding experience is the satisfaction of solving a problem and starting a treatment that results in giving the patient a healthier condition.

"I'm happy with what I'm doing, it allows me to spend time with my family," West said with a grin. West's family consists of his wife Joan and baby daughter Kathleen.

Tree planting will honor mayors, past and present

Each of the 27 mayors of the city of Wayne from 1884 through 1984 will be honored with a centennial planting at Sunnyview Park. The special planting is planned at 4 p.m. on Arbor Day (also Easter Sunday) April 22.

Within the confines of the proposed park, many of the broadleaf trees have already been planted, and current plans call for a loop drive and parking stalls along the east side of the park.

The curve of Providence Road will border the west and south edges of the park. Near the center will be a shelter house and restrooms.

The mayors' centennial planting will be located along the north and northeast portions of the park. The planting will consist of four arcs of flowering shrubs, which at maturity will create a band-shell effect.

Shrubs will be set six feet apart in a 36-foot arc with the tallest at the back and shortest at the outside.

The first arc and table will be placed on Arbor Day with the rest planned in succeeding weeks.

Oink, oink, waddle, waddle

Pigs with waddles? And red pigs at that? In Nebraska? But wait, there's more, these porkers have names: Alvin, Mabel and Pat. Amusing yes, and Willie Nixon of Wakefield, Mert Nixon of Thurston and Tony Peters of Wakefield are laughing all the way to the bank. These three are the proud owners of one pure-bred Red Waddle boar and two cross-bred sows that are part Red Waddle and part Hampshire.

According to Mert Nixon, their Red Waddles originally came from Jacksonville, Texas, where H.C. Wengler has re-established, and is raising, the rare breed of hog.

RED WADDLE hogs sport waddles on either side of their faces and the animals are reddish in color.

Nixon said that they decided to raise Red Waddles "because nobody else (in the area) has any."

Nixon said that he and his partners have known about this breed of pig for about two years, but they couldn't get any until last October. He said he finally saw some Red Waddles at the Nebraska State Fair last year.

Bill Fattig of Archer, Neb., was exhibiting the hogs there and he sold Nixon and his two partners their three waddled peccaries.

The advantages of raising Red Waddles seem to outweigh any disadvantages. Nixon said that feed conversion on a daily average gain ratio is one pound of meat for every 2.6 pounds of feed as compared to other breeds that convert three pounds of feed into one pound of meat.

NIXON SAID that this means Red Waddles get bigger, quicker and that in 159 days the animals can weigh 215 pounds, while other breeds take 180 days to reach this same weight.

Nixon said that in Texas, Wengler has a three-year-old boar that is four feet tall, eight feet one inch long, and weighs 1,264 pounds.

Of his own Waddles, Nixon said, "They're doing terrific — you can't believe it."

When Nixon and his partners got their three hogs in mid-October the animals weighed about 40 pounds at six weeks of age, now, Nixon says the animals weigh around 350 pounds each.

Nixon said that his brother Willie named the hogs. The boar is Alvin and his two penmates are Mabel and Pat.

The Red Waddles reside on a farm northeast of Wakefield and are cared for by their owners.

THE TWO FEMALES are "with pig" and, according to Nixon, they are due in June.

Nixon said that he and his partners have taken a lot of ribbing since they acquired the Red Waddles and that when they take people out to see the animals, they all laugh.

"But," he added, "they end up wanting to buy some when they leave."

Nixon said that even though the piglets aren't born yet, most of them are already spoken for.

He said that about 75 percent of Mabel and Pat's litter should have waddles. Nixon added that Red Waddle hogs "don't need a lot of medication" as compared to conventional breeds.

ANOTHER ADVANTAGE, according to Nixon, is that Red Waddles hogs are less cillable and they are gentler than other breeds.

Nixon also said that the meat of Red Waddles is "almost fat free" and that the offspring of Red Waddle crossbreeds have about one third less fat than other hogs.

Nixon said that they will be selling the baby porkers at about six weeks of age. He said the animals which are being sold for breeding stock, are being purchased by local farmers. Nixon said that the boars will go for $150 and the gilts will bring $100.

All three of the Waddle owners grew up on area farms and have worked with swine in the past. At the present time they are only raising Red Waddles.

Too late for insured oats

Yesterday (Sunday) was the final planting date for insured oats in Antelope, Boyd, Brown, Cedar, Cuming, Dakota, Dixon, Holt, Keya Paha, Knox, Madison, Pierce, Stanton, Thurston, and Wayne Counties, Nebraska according to Don Harmer, district director for the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation (FCIC).

"Acres of oats planted by April 15, insured by FCIC (or by a private company reinsured by FCIC), must be reported by May 31 to receive full crop insurance coverage," Harmer said.

Acres planted after April 15 should also be reported on acreage report (in the "remarks" section) as being planted too late for insurance coverage.

"The final planting date of April 15 is the latest date established by FCIC to plant and expect a normal crop to be produced. Crops initially planted after this date are not insurable unless a late planting agreement option is signed by April 15," Harmer said.

Farmers wishing to discuss local conditions, such as excessive moisture, that may affect planting should contact their local, authorized crop insurance agent as soon as possible.

Special Olympics are still growing

Margaret Morford, state director of Special Olympics, told members of the Wayne-Kiwanis Club Monday that the event continues to grow.

According to Morford, approximately 400 athletes completed in the Special Olympics state meet in 1979. This year, almost 1,500 athletes will compete in 13 sports.

She said that many of the athletes have moved on, up into the regular community.

eddie's brother

by randy hascall

Has anyone seen a guy named Noah wandering around the neighborhood in the last day or two?

I bet there is a heck of a market for arks about now. I was driving through the country the other day and saw a farmer out in his field. But, he wasn't seated on his four-wheel-drive tractor. Instead he was driving a motorboat and scattering rice around one of his fields. I think maybe he had gone a bit overboard (no pun intended). Rice paddies are in, corn fields are out.

I heard that another area farmer stocked his field with catfish. Happy fishing!

It's been so d-d-burned wet that some area cattle raisers are providing umbrellas and overboots for their critters. As long as the weather stays like this, livestock producers won't have to worry about flies bothering their steers. They'll probably be a lot more worried about sharks.

Some wise guy doctored up a deer crossing sign on one country road. When he got done with it, it had an illustration of whales instead of deer.

Some local entrepreneurs are buying up land at farm auctions and say they're going to turn Wayne into a resort town.

With all the lakes located within a short driving distance of town, tourists probably will come from miles away to boat, swim, fish and waterski at Wayne. All we need now is a beach and some sunshine.

When the roads finally dry up, it wouldn't hurt any to have four or five hundred tons of gravel dumped over some of them.

One car got so buried on a country road that the only thing showing was the radio antenna. I really didn't think I would ever see the day when shoppers in northeast Nebraska would wear life jackets while going from store to store.

The noise created by traffic in Wayne, America is nothing compared to the noise created by 800 sump pumps running 24 hours a day to pump out residents' basements.

Normally I don't go around telling people that I have celebrated a birth day. But, I recently turned a year older and I have to share with you one piece of mail I received.

The letter inside the envelope starts out like this: "IMPORTANT INFORMATION: Senior Citizens Now Qualify for Group Hospital Accident Protection: $1,200.00 a month/$40.00 a day hospital cash, $600.00/month/$20.00 a day nursing home cash."

Farther down in the letter is this paragraph: "Dear Friend: Because you are a senior citizen, you qualify for membership in the Senior American Group Insurance Trust, and as a senior citizen your right to membership is guaranteed."

I had turned 29 but I really didn't feel a day over 40. Now, a company was asking me to consider taking out a senior American group accident plan offered to Americans who are at least 50 years old.

I almost applied. I've got half a notion to wrap a brick up in brown paper and tape to it the business reply card that says "no postage necessary if mailed in the United States."

That's a dirty trick a former room mate of mine (nicknamed Snake) used to do occasionally whenever junk mail irritated him. I never did find out if the postal service delivered those packages

The roommate who pulled the brick trick is the same one who wrote Jimmy Carter when he was president, in an attempt to sell him my old convertible. He got a reply from one of Carter's aides, thanking him for the letter but turning down the offer.

Snake is now a college teacher and I got a letter from him the other day. He said he recently wrote Ronald Reagan, offering to sell his car to the president.

He said he has received no reply. It seems to me that Reagan might pick up a few additional supporters if he would buy my friend's car. That would be the ultimate publicity stunt!

a public service of the nebraska state bar association

Q: I am a married woman, and I have taken money that I earned myself and put it into certificates of deposit made out to me and my three married daughters. Is there any way my husband could get this money if I die? Is there any way he could get it if I divorce him?

A: If the certificates you describe are owned by you and your daughters in joint tenancy, your ownership interest will automatically pass upon your death to your daughters, as surviving joint tenants.

However, even though your husband would not receive any money from the certificates, their value would be included in your estate for tax purposes. The certificates could also be subject to your husband's statutory right to take an "elective share" from your estate.

If you divorced your husband, the certificates of deposit would probably be considered a marital asset by a divorce court in determining any property settlement between you and your husband. As such, they would be subject to distribution by the divorce court as part of the property settlement between you and your husband.

Since you seem to be concerned about how to ensure that your daughters will receive this money, you may want to talk to your attorney about other estate planning options which are available.

If you have a legal question, write "Ask a Lawyer," P.O. Box 2529, Lincoln 68502. This column is intended to provide general legal information; not specific legal advice. "Ask a Lawyer" is a public service of the Nebraska State Bar Association.

Music teacher applauded

To the editor: I have just had the pleasure of attending my second elementary school spring program. I am simply overwhelmed! Diana Runestad is the most self-assured, graceful, beautiful, and distinguished teacher I have ever had the pleasure to know.

Who else could manage so many children with such confidence and poise? Speaking as a mother of a second grader, I am grateful that my child has had the benefit of learning from her.

To listen to my child's voice raised in song is wonderful. To see this marvelously talented woman orchestrate an event of this scope is a thrill. This thrill has been enjoyed by hundreds and hundreds of adoring parents for years.

I am well aware that people who regulate teacher's salaries (public included) are constantly underestimating our finest teacher's contributions to our children. But, here is a place to stop, look and listen and applaud one of the best there is.

Well done Mrs. Runestad. May you know many more spring programs, may you know the love of many more children who adore you.

One grateful parent

Farmers given some assistance

The Agricultural Programs Adjustment Act conference report was passed by the Senate and House last week. The president is expected to sign the bill soon. The press has not paid much attention to some provisions in the conference compromise that could provide some assistance to American farmers.

The agreement expands the natural disaster program to make emergency direct loans available on an individual basis to farmers suffering production losses if their operations are in counties that are contiguous to counties eligible for such assistance.

It gives producers eight months in which to file applications for natural disaster emergency loans. The eight month period begins at the time that the United States Department of Agriculture determines that agriculture operations have been substantially affected by the disaster or the President makes a disaster declaration of determination.

IT ALSO PERMITS farm assets used as collateral for natural disaster emergency loans to be valued at either current value or their value as of one year prior to the date the governor requested disaster assistance, if higher.

Other provisions double loan limits for FmHA farm operation loans to $200,000 for insured loans and $400,000 for guaranteed loans, and mandate that at least $30.0 million be made available for insured emergency economic loans between Dec. 22, 1983, and Sept. 30, 1984.

In addition, the agreement sets the interest rate on loans consolidated or otherwise restructured by FmHA (other than guaranteed loans) at the lower of current rates or the rate on the original loan and extends the maximum repayment period for consolidated or rescheduled farm operation loans at 15 years (up from 7).

LAST WEEK the House of Representatives cleared a bill reinstating a ban on credit card surcharges. The existing eight year old surcharge ban had expired Feb. 27th, leaving merchants free to tack additional charges onto credit card purchases.

This bill provides important protection for the millions of consumers who use credit cards every day to make purchases. It extends the ban for 14 months while the Federal Trade Commission and the General Accounting Office study the costs of using credit cards.

There is an important need for this legislation in view of the many different state laws regulating credit and charges. Congress has a duty to regulate interstate commerce, and we have taken a big step to insure that the millions of people who use credit cards in their daily transactions will not be penalized for that use.

Close up week is planned

Nebraska is setting the standard for affording its high school students a Close Up look at the federal government.

In a joint announcement Wednesday by Nebraska Commissioner of Education Joe Lutjeharms and Nebraska First District Congressman Doug Bereuter, the state was identified as the fastest growing second year program in the history of Close Up, a non-philosophical, non-partisan citizenship education program that provides an on-hands look at the federal government. A total of 351 Nebraskans, about one-seventh of them teachers, will attend a week of Close Up activities in Washington D.C. from April 29 through May 5. Lutjeharms, whose Department of Education administers the program in Nebraska through social studies consultant Paul Johnson, said the total reflects almost three times the number of students and teachers who made up Nebraska's initial Close Up delegation last year.

"CLOSE UP OFFICIALS have informed us that Nebraska is the fastest growing community for a second year program in the 13 years of Close Up," Lutjeharms said. "In addition to an increase in the number of participants, it has been possible to expand the program from last year's 20 pilot schools to 49 high schools. Participants will come from a cross-section of school size from some of the largest in the state such as Lincoln High and Omaha Burke to some of the smallest such as Benedict and Snyder."

Enrollment for the 1984 Nebraska Close Up program has been in progress in the state since mid-October.

Bereuter, who was instrumental in getting Nebraska involved in the "Close Up" program, said that once the students arrive in Washington, they will be busy. "Beginning Sunday evening, they will attend lectures, workshops and seminars daily from early in the morning to late at night. Until Friday afternoon when students and teachers alike have the opportunity to tour parts of the city of their choosing, they will have almost no free time other than meals."

The intensive week does allow the participants to see the city, Bereuter noted. "Close Up uses the city of Washington as a classroom. The Nebraska group will spend time on Capitol Hill and will actually be having sessions in many of the buildings that house the various agencies of the government."

Lutjeharms said the educational value of the Close Up experience makes it an extremely beneficial supplement to a student's classroom studies. "For a week the places and people that earlier had been names and faces in books and newspapers become very real. Instead of talking about government, the Close Up participants experience it firsthand."

BEREUTER SAID Close Up affords participants an opportunity to meet national leaders in politics and related areas. "They will be exposed to a wide spectrum of political persons from both the Congress and the Administration and agencies of the government. They will meet representatives of foreign governments, news media personnel, and members of their own Nebraska delegation."

The Nebraskans will be divided among three hotels, intermingling with approximately 1,000 other students from Maine, Michigan, North Carolina, South Dakota, Washington, Wisconsin, Wyoming, and a group of visually impaired students from Wisconsin.

Close Up is a non-profit foundation that has brought 120,000 students to Washington D.C. in its 12 previous years. This year, approximately 16,000 students and teachers will take part in Close

Up, from November through June.

Cost of the week is $739 which includes transportation to and from Nebraska, meals, lodging, and instruction. The Nebraska program is partially funded from private sources. Contributing to the 1984 program in the Cornhusker State are Burlington Northern, Union Pacific, Bankers Life of Nebraska, Commonwealth Companies, Inc., Control Data, Cooper Foundation, and R.J. Reynolds Co.

Rosenquist signs at WSC

Russ Rosenquist, an all-state guard from Sioux City Heelan High School, has signed an NAIA letter of intent to play basketball with Wayne State. Rosenquist, who signed on Friday, is WSC's first recruit of 1984.

The 6 foot-2 inch, 160 pound Rosenquist averaged 17.5 points per game last season for the Crusaders. He started for 42 consecutive games during his three year varsity career.

"Russ is a good athlete and was one of the top guards in the state of Iowa last year," said Wayne State coach Rick Weaver. "He shoots the ball well and is effective in the transsition game. He'll be a really big asset to our program and he is a good student."

Rosenquist's honors include a third team Iowa Newspaper Association all-state selection this past season. He also played on a team this spring made up of Iowa's best prep all-stars that met a team made up of Minnesota high school standouts. He was also picked for this summer's Iowa Coaches All-Star games.

Other honors for him include spots on the Sioux City Journal's all-northwest Iowa team, the all-Sioux Interstate Conference squad and KCAU TV's all-area team.

Rosenquist, who had a pair of 29-point games last season, will major in business at Wayne State.

Jeff Williams, a 6 foot 4 inch, 210 pound inside player from Shawnee Community College in Illinois, has also announced his intention to play next season for the Wildcats.

Williams averaged 21.5 points and 11.5 rebounds per game in his junior college career. He was a two-time all region 24 and all Great Rivers Conference performer. He was also a team captain at Shawnee Community College.

A graduate of Linden McKinley High School in Columbus, Ohio, he was a high school teammate of Tracy Ponn, who currently plays for Wayne State. Williams and Ponn led their prep team to the Ohio class 3 A (large school) final four.

"Even though Jeff is only 6'4, he is a tough inside player who can score," Weaver said. "He will help us on defense and rebounding, and we expect him to be an immediate contribution to our team."

Weaver said he still hopes to sign two more recruits, an inside player and another guard.

sports briefs

WSC teams revise schedules

The Wayne State College softball team has rearranged their playing schedule, due to weather conditions.

The team did not participate in the Augustana tournament in Sioux Falls, S.D., scheduled for Saturday.

Although the tourney was still to be played, the team decided not to make the trip, in case of a sudden cancellat'on.

If weather permits, the softball team will play today (Monday) at Mount Marly in Yankton. This game will replace a game which was scheduled against Morningside.

The WSC baseball team also changed the location of their game against Kearney State on Sunday. The game, scheduled for 1:30 p.m., was moved from Wayne to Kearney.

Smith replaces Coco at Mt. Marty

Doug Smith, head basketball and baseball coach at Loras College in Dubuque, Iowa, has been named athletic director and men's basketball coach at Mount Marty College.

Smith, 44, will take over the athletic helm from Clark Coco, who announced his resignation earlier this year after two years' as MMC's athletic director and men's basketball coach. Smith is expected to begin recruitment immediately for the Lakers' 1984-85 season.

Coco coached at Wayne State before taking over the Yankton job.

Men and women in the Wayne area are invited to participate in a no lap—no split bowling tournament at Melodee Lanes.

The tourney will run four weekends (Saturday and Sunday nights) beginning April 28 and 29.

Events will include: Scotch doubles, four games with partners alternating turns, and men's and women's singles.

No lap—no split scoring means that nine pins knocked down on the first ball throw counts as a strike, with a split receiving an automatic spare mark.

For more information, call 375-3390. Telephone reservations are required.

Football camp to feature NFL stars

The Wayne State Football Camp, for boys entering the eighth through 12th grades next fall, will be held on the Wayne State campus this summer.

The camp, run by Wayne State football coach Pete Chapman and his staff, will feature a couple of National Football League players. Beasley Reece, free safety for the Tampa Bay Buccaneers, and Winston Hill, former all-pro offensive lineman of the New York Jets, are scheduled to work at the camp.

The camp will be June 11-13. Campers can arrive the evening of June 10 for the three-day session of drills, fundamentals and other grid activities.

Area high school coaches will join Reece, Hill and the WSC football staff working at the camp.

Reece, a former New York Jets player, led for the most interceptions in the NFL last fall. Hill played for the Giants during part of Joe Namath's era. He was the team's MVP in 1968 — the season the Jets won the Super Bowl III.

The cost of the camp is $85 for overnight campers and $45 for commuters.

For further information, contact Coach Pete Chapman, Wayne State College, Wayne or call 402-375-2200, ext. 313.

Tough Tougher Toughest

It isn't just one thing. It's the electric motor specifically engineered for center pivots. It's the no-grease U-joint with the flexible urethane inserts that easily outlasts any conventional U-joint. It's the toughest gearbox in the industry — the one they put on other brands of center pivots by the thousands when their gearboxes fail. It's the proven multi-directional flex joint that allows easy operation on slopes up to 30%. It's a structural design with no scrapping in critical areas, and a tough no nonsense electric system. It's full hot-dipped galvanized protection that's standard, not an option. And that's just for starters. Let us show you the rest. We can convert almost any brand to a Valley drive train.

Rest easy. It's a Valley.

VALLEY

BANVEL® HERBICIDE

Kill velvetleaf in corn.

Use a Banvel® herbicide overlay spike to 5".

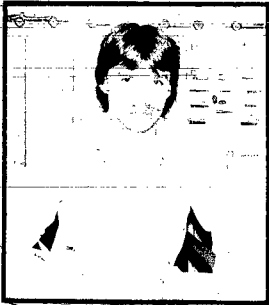

Apply Banvel® herbicide over the top of spike to 5" tall corn. That's the right time to kill emerged broadleaf weeds like velvetleaf as well as cocklebur, pigweed, smartweed or sunflower. It's the right time to get residual soil activity that kills germinating weeds until the corn canopy forms. And it's the right time to get control without high pre-emergence broadleaf herbicide rates, costs or carryover.

See your ag chem dealer for the complete story on the Banvel herbicide overlay system.
