City will apply for grant funds for Roosevelt Park

The Wayne City Council Tuesday night gave the city the go-ahead to apply for block grant funds for water, sewer and street improvements in Roosevelt Park.

City Administrator Phil Kloster said the City of Wayne will now apply for grant funds to cover most of the cost of proposed improvements. He said this will be the third time the city has applied and added that it has come closer to receiving the funds each year. "We need to do some things down there (in Roosevelt Park). It would be nice to get a block grant to help," Kloster said.

ESTIMATED COST of the proposed street, water and sewer improvements is $164,000. The city is seeking a grant of $131,200 from the Department of Economic Development, leaving $32,800 to be picked up at the local level.

The Roosevelt Park project includes $108,500 in street improvements, $43,600 in water distribution system improvements, $9,350 in sewer system improvements and $2,550 in grant administration.

Street and sewer improvements in two other districts also were discussed by the council. Bruce Gilmore & Associates were appointed to prepare cost estimates, plans and specifications for creation of a street improvement district on South Douglas Street.

Creation of a storm sewer district in the Western Heights Subdivision was approved by the council. The total estimated cost of the project is $14,400.

SOUTH WINDOM Street will be posted with no parking signs at the request of some residents who complained that there is not sufficient space on the street. The council passed a resolution Tuesday night, establishing the no parking zone.

The city will apply for $150,000 in Community Development Block Grant funds for a business building. Lueders Inc. is planning to construct a building on the block where Bill's Grocery store is located. The building would be rented out to True Value.

Under DCBG regulations, the city would lend the money out to Lueders Inc. Kloster read a letter from Wayne Industries endorsing the application for funds. Kloster also read an anonymous complaint from a local businessman who objected to the grant application.

The approval of application carried unanimously and the city will now apply for the funding. The State of Nebraska will decide whether to accept or reject the application.

THE COUNCIL decided to reject all bids that were submitted for Wayne's ballpark underground irrigation system.

Seventeen bids were opened at the last council meeting but Kloster said evaluation of the bids ran into some problems with the sprinkler heads.

Paul Otte of the Wayne Baseball Association and Bob Berlin of Bruce Gilmore & Associates evaluated the bids and found a mixup on the use of metal or plastic sprinkler heads, Kloster said.

Ken Swartz, the council's legal advisor, recommended that the council reject all the bids to avoid any legal problems and prepare a new set of specifications.

THE COUNCIL discussed complaints about a dog problem in one area of Wayne but took no action. There was some discussion about the possibility of increasing the fine for second and third offenses of dogs running loose.

Councilman Freeman Decker suggested that the police department "put on a very aggressive attempt" to pick up dogs at large.

Kloster read the council a letter from Mrs. Eldon Baretman in agreement with a letter from Charles Kudrna that was read at the last council meeting.

Mrs. Baretman complained about dogs running free and chasing people and cars. She said the problem has been going on at least a year and added that complaints to the police have done no good. Personnel problems occupied the council in executive session for more than 20 minutes. The actual problems were not discussed and no action was taken after the executive session.

In other action, Kloster announced that the city has hired Jill Zeiss as swimming pool manager for the 1984 season.

Farm numbers dwindling

The financial situation of many farmers has hit the critical mark.

Preliminary reports of the 1982 Census of Agriculture show that the number of farms in Wayne County decreased from 852 to 810 since the 1978 census.

Statewide, the census shows that the number of farms in Nebraska declined from 63,768 in 1978 to 60,240 in 1982.

The high number of farm auction bills that have sprung up throughout northeast Nebraska this spring indicates that those figures are still on the decline.

SOME ECONOMISTS are saying that by the end of 1984, three to four percent of Nebraska's farmers will be forced into partial or full liquidation.

They also predict that 1985 will see about 15 to 20 percent of the state's farmers refinancing in order to stay in business.

"Half of Nebraska's farmers don't have substantial debt," said Roy Frederick, University of Nebraska extension economist. "The other half have varying shades of problems, with some having substantial problems."

Larry Bitney, NU extension farm management specialist, agrees with Frederick. "The estimates say there is a significant number of farms with problems, some in the stage of selling out," he said. He said that others need to make adjustments in management and resources to curtail losses.

ACCORDING TO BITNEY, there are many causes behind the financial dilemma many farmers are now facing. Some of these are: low net farm income due to the decline in the export market for farm products; last year's drought that left no crops to sell at any price; and inflating costs such as interest rates.

Because of problems like those and other factors such as weather, insects, toxic chemicals, price and farm programs, farmers are under a great deal of stress according to Herb Lingren, NU extension family life specialist.

Some of the problems farmers are now going through could be helped by successful family financial management, according to Kathy Prochaska-Cue, NU extension family economics and management specialist.

She has three suggestions on a strategy for farm and ranch families to reduce living expenses. The first suggestion is to increase and manage regular income. Increasing income can come from outside the home, an off-farm job, Prochaska-Cue said.

THE MANAGEMENT specialist said that by underestimating income and overestimating costs, a budget can help.

The second suggestion is to decrease expenses. The third suggestion is to manage finances.

She said that machinery costs can be kept at a minimum if farmers consider some short run strategies for managing the cash flow. Buying used machinery, custom hiring and joint ownership of equipment are viable alternatives to purchasing new machinery, according to Doug Duey, extension farm management specialist.

THE CENSUS figures show that farms in Wayne County average 333 acres. The county's farmers sold $73.9 million in agricultural products in 1982 according to reports from the Census Bureau.

The 1982 sales figure represents an average of $91,247 for each of the county's farms. The census reported that $17.4 million or 24 percent of total sales were for crops while $56.5 million or 76 percent of the total came from the sale of livestock, poultry and their products.

Expenditures for livestock and poultry feed were $11.1 million, total farm energy costs were $4.9 million, fertilizer costs were $3.8 million and seeds costs were $1.9 million.

Of all the farms in Wayne County, 211 had gross sales of $100,000 or more; 103 reported sales of less than $10,000. In 1982, the average age of farm operators in the county was 45.8 years.

In Nebraska, each farm averaged 746 acres. The average value of land and buildings per farm was $533,622, with a value of $702 per acre. Irrigated acres rose from 5.7 million to 6 million in 1982.

Hascal accepts McCook job

Randy Hascal has announced his resignation as managing editor of The Wayne Herald to accept a job as assistant editor of The McCook Daily Gazette.

The resignation brings to an end a six-year career at the Herald. The 29-year-old Hascal served more than four years as sports editor prior to accepting positions as co-editor and managing editor.

"It probably was the most difficult decision I've ever had to make but I feel this will be a step up in my career as a journalist," Hascal said. "My wife and son and I have loved this part of the state and we'll always feel like it's a part of us. But, it probably is time to move on."

HASCAL'S DUTIES at McCook will include news and feature writing, photography, news wire editing and some page design. He will be the number two man on the newspaper's staff. The McCook Daily Gazette is published Monday through Saturday.

"The opportunity came up and I decided to take it. I think The Wayne Herald is one of the best non-daily newspapers in the state and I'm glad that Al Cramer and Jim Marsh let me be a part of it. We've got a great staff here," Hascal said.

Looking forward to the challenge at McCook, Hascal said he will be involved in redesign of the newspaper there. "They're looking for some new ideas and they're asking for my input. I think it will be a rewarding job and a heck of a challenge."

The Hascals, Randy, Barb and two-year-old son Jason, expect to move to McCook in mid-May.

Johs is Presidential Scholarship finalist

Blaine Johs, son of Dr. and Mrs. Hilbert Johs of Wayne, is one of 500 outstanding young students to become finalists in the United States Presidential Scholars Program.

The U.S. Department of Education and the Commission on Presidential Scholars have announced the names of 500 graduating seniors.

Approximately 1,500 students were identified for participation in the program from among nearly three million graduating seniors nationwide. Johs has been awarded a certificate by the President's Commission on Presidential Scholars.

He is a graduating senior at Wayne High School. From the 500 finalists, the selection of 141 Presidential Scholars will be made in early May by members of the Commission on Presidential Scholars.

Presidential scholars will be invited by the commission to Washington, D.C. to participate in National Recognition Week, June 17-23, where they will be honored by their elected representatives, educators and others.

Selection is based on many factors in addition to academic excellence. Other factors include achievement in the visual and performing arts; creative writing; demonstrated leadership ability; contribution of energy and creativity to school and community; and achievement in the sciences and other fields of interest.

The independent judgment of the members of the Commission on Presidential Scholars, with the concurrence of the president of the United States, determines final selection as a 1984 Presidential Scholar.

Wayne students and others are off to Washington D.C. to study government

At the end of this week, more than 350 Nebraska high school students and their teachers will arrive in Washington D.C. to begin an intensive week of study of their federal government.

This marks the second year that Nebraskans have participated in Close Up, a non-partisan, non-philosophical, citizenship education program that will bring more than 16,000 individuals to the nation's capital this school year. It is administered by the Nebraska Department of Education through its social studies consultant, Paul Johnson.

For seven days, Nebraska's students and teachers will be summoned from their hotel rooms by 7 a.m. and won't return until late at night. The 16 hours in between are filled with a variety of activities designed by the Close Up staff to increase participants' knowledge about their federal government. The only thing missing is free time.

ALL OF US who attended a Nebraska high school can remember a course on civics or American government. If one can imagine expanding that course to one week in our nation's capital, then it's possible to perceive what the Close Up week is all about.

If there is anything that Nebraskans and others discover about Close Up, it is that learning can be an enjoyable experience, even when it comes in concentrated doses. Despite the long days—traveling throughout the city from one session to another—Close Up views the City of Washington as a classroom, challenging speakers with well-thought questions, and participating in workshop discussions each day, the weeks slip by almost too quickly. Last year, 138 students and teachers made up a pilot group from Nebraska to see if the program would be well received. By the end of the week, the Nebraskans were clamoring for more—more study, more interaction, and more exposure to their government.

ONE OF THE PURPOSES of Close Up is to foster increased citizenship awareness back home. Here is just a sampling of some of the results from the 1983 Close Up program. At Stanton, instructor Jack Brewster's high school students have sponsored a candidates' night this month for the public to meet persons running for elective office. In addition, students have begun to attend meetings of the Stanton County Board, Stanton City Council, and Stanton Board of Education to see their local government in action.

At Falls City High School, social studies teacher Ron White notices a more lively discussion atmosphere in his government and modern problems classes with last year's Close Up students leading. He has also introduced a book on national issues produced free of charge.

Beatrice social studies instructor Mike Kowitzky compiled a notebook of resource materials for his students based on his experiences in Washington D.C. last year. He has also built a unit around a book on United States-Soviet-Russia relations that is published by Close Up.

At Wahoo High School, history teacher Mick Anderson's report and evaluation of last year's Close Up program resulted in the Board of Education adopting a policy to fund half the tuition for up to 10 students. Anderson and fellow social studies teacher Joe Weyand have established a formal application process to determine who will go. About twice as many applications were received this year than the number of stipends to be awarded.

AS CLOSE UP was organized last year for Nebraska's initial year, Hooper Logan View principal Harley Schrieber said school officials in their northern Dodge County district took a look at Close Up and thought, "There must be a catch."

But, as they received more information and preparations continued, it became evident that their original conclusion was a bit hasty. "There is no catch," Schrieber said. Faculty member Larry Sheehan, who accompanied the Logan View students last year, said near the close of the week last spring, "It's almost too good to be true."

Now is the time for schools not currently participating in Close Up to express an interest in the 1985 program. This year, Nebraska's delegation is drawn from 50 schools from some of the largest such as Lincoln High and Omaha Burke to some of the smallest such as Benedict and Snyder.

Schools desiring more information about Close Up should contact the Nebraska Department of Education, Mr. Paul Johnson, social studies consultant, Box 94987, Lincoln, Neb. 68509.

Senators begin to conduct interim studies

The legislative session has come to an end for 1984. But a state senator's work does not end with the final adjournment.

senator merle von minden

In summing up the activities of the session, I think there are a few bills which stand out above the rest in terms of importance.

FINAL STATISTICS for the 2nd Session of the 88th Legislature show that 499 bills were introduced and 44 appropriations bills, 289 of the bills were enacted into law.

is a way to start resolving this important issue.

LB 56 was also a major piece of legislation. Raising the legal drink age to 21 will hopefully bring about a decrease in alcohol related problems among teenagers and young adults.

LB 183 WHICH requires a defendant to prove insanity by a preponderance of the evidence is a major change in criminal law.

My priority bill, LB 235, will be on the ballot in November. To paraphrase, the question will be "Are you for or against a constitutional amendment to remove the confidentiality provisions from the judicial disciplinary process?"

One of the most highly visible bills of the session was LB 744, the video lottery bill.

The Legislature was in a perplexing situation with this one.

On one hand, cities conducting lotteries would be hurt economically by the bill's passage. On the other hand, no one wants Nebraska to be a Las Vegas or Atlantic City either.

THE LAST, but not the least, measure I will mention is LB 809 which became law after an override of the Governor's veto.

At least this year something was done by reinstating the Homestead exemption. It is estimated that LB 809 will reduce the average tax on homesteads by $75.00 when it goes into effect next year.

These are just a few of the more important bills passed this year. If there are others which you would like to know more about, please feel free to contact my office by phone at 471-2716 or write c/o State Capitol, Lincoln 68509.

Restore courthouse, repair roads

Dear Wayne Herald readers and county voters:

In the May primary election we must decide on whether we want to remodel our present courthouse or build a new one.

In my opinion I favor keeping our present building. According to The Wayne Herald this could be done over a period of several years, to remodel and bring it up to date.

If the voters decide on a new building let's have it more centrally located, which would make it near Winside. The old courthouse could be made into a County museum.

But I think there should be some great improvements made on our county roads first and also our bridges.

So Wayne County voters think twice before voting and let's restore the old building.

Courthouse needs care

To the editor:

Economics and historical value dictate that we must restore our present courthouse. It is one of our symbols, and it is one of our oldest.

We have also been reading that there isn't enough room. We all know that all of the courthouse is not used for county office purposes.

With the money available in the sinking fund there is almost enough to cover the cost to restore the present structure.

With proper care and maintenance it would stand as long as the new building, as it is declared a very sound and well constructed building.

It's been said there isn't enough parking, there could be a beautiful circle drive put in at the front (south side) with some long overdue landscaping done, and in that way people would or could enter at the front of the building instead of the side door which it seems is the only one used.

Vote against the New Courthouse Bond, let's restore our present historical building.

With the proper guidance of architects the present building could be renovated and tastefully decorated to be a grand and elegant building to work in and enjoy as much as a new courthouse.

Special Olympics thank you

To the editor:

The Wayne Kiwanis Club is very appreciative of the kind words that we received from Bill and Sharon Corbit on the recent Special Olympics track and field meet.

I want to loudly echo their "thank you" to the students of Wayne State College who put so much time into the organization and running of the various events.

With the proper guidance of architects the present building could be renovated and tastefully decorated to be a grand and elegant building to work in and enjoy as much as a new courthouse.

I hope the planned continuation of this annual spring event will give more college organizations and clubs from the Wayne community an opportunity to volunteer so they can also experience the courage, enthusiasm and "warm fuzzies" that these special athletes radiate to everyone that gets involved with Special Olympics.

Let's restore our present historical building. With the proper restoration, county officials should be proud to work in the castle on the hill. Wayne County could not afford to build such a structure today, at the present dollar value.

Balanced budget past due

To the editor:

"The best way to destroy a capitalist system is to debase the currency," Who said it? Lenin.

Government socialist extravagance involves massive spending in billions, contemplating trillions, awesome sums, awesome debt. The federal debt is $1,400,000,000,000 (1.4 trillion—400 billion dollars).

When Congress incessantly spends more than it receives, the extra unearned money is created out of thin air, through the banks, and when spent, takes on value by reducing the value of all money, savings, and insurance. The taxpayers has no protection against wasteful spending, unlimited taxes and unlimited debt.

The time is long past due for enactment of a Balanced Budget Amendment that would protect the taxpayer from financial responsibility by Congress.

Fillmore County Commission (ret.) Milligan

Reduce spending and our taxes

To the editor:

Would you like to have a pay increase right now? Would you like to be able to give more to your favorite charity?

It is possible. All we need to do is reduce government spending and lower taxes, in Nebraska -- on the average -- nearly 40 percent of personal income goes for federal, state and local taxes.

You can increase your "take home" pay by circulating petitions to control state spending and to lower property taxes.

spending. It would allow increases in general fund/cash fund spending (from sales, income taxes and fees) only if the personal income of Nebraskans also goes up and then no more than five percent in a year (compared to more than eight percent for most of the past ten years).

Initiative B is an initiative to limit property taxes to 1 1/2 percent of assessed value. If your house is assessed at $30,000, the tax would be no more than $450.

Write me at Route 5, Norfolk for petitions. Lennard V. Haase Norfolk

Let's hear it for American farmers

By Cheryl Stubbendieck, Nebraska Farm Bureau

These are not the best of times for agriculture, nor for individual farm families in particular. But perhaps this makes it a good time to remember that American agriculture and individual farmers make possible much of what is good in our country and in the world.

This has always been true and will remain so. Although the U.S. and the world have seen great technological changes and improvements in recent decades, the essential nature of food production and the importance of a strong and profitable American agriculture have not changed -- nothing remains more important to our nation's economy and to the world economy.

American agriculture accounts for one-half of all grain moving to foreign markets and U.S. farm commodities represent about a fifth of our country's foreign trade. Yet agriculture is seldom recognized for these contributions and the important work of individuals within agriculture is even more rarely properly applauded.

EVERY YEAR, individual production grows more important as farm numbers grow smaller. America's farmers number only 2.4 million, or about 1 percent of the total U.S. population. Yet by their efforts, far out of proportion to their numbers, they affect the lives and livelihood of people throughout the country.

Our American agriculture is the world's largest commercial industry with assets exceeding one trillion dollars and every U.S. farm worker creates jobs for more than five others who make things farmers use or who handle farm output.

Almost a quarter of our country's total labor force -- those involved in transporting, processing, packaging, wholesaling and retailing -- owes its employment to farm and ranch production.

Professor D. Gale Johnson of the University of Chicago has noted that our 2.4 million farmers produce more food and fiber than the 24 million farm workers in the Soviet Union, and far more than the 250 million farm workers in the People's Republic of China.

They create more output than the 7.5 million farm workers in the European Economic Community. And more than five times as much as the seven million Japanese farm workers.

DESPITE ITS consistent record, American agriculture is changing. This is no secret, but it, too, is worth remembering. Not too many years ago, a feeder could put together a mixed group of feeder cattle, figure out approximate feeding cost and depend on an adequate profit on sale day.

At that same time, a crop producer could plant every available acre with the assurance of relatively good markets and reasonable costs. Not so today.

Now both livestock and crop producers must see their operations in relation to the entire business and as a part of the total national and world economy. Each year, improved information becomes more important as the bank requires better records and changing costs require more operating flexibility.

And each year, forces outside agriculture reach deeper into the farming business -- new technology, government farm programs, special commodity problems, trade negotiations, government spending policies, taxes and environmental issues, to name a few.

THESE AREN'T EASY times to be a farmer or rancher. For the most part, our food producers are optimists, seeing current difficulties as part of an unending cycle that includes good times as well. To be sure, sometimes the good times are only recognized in retrospect.

Looking to the future, as farmers will, farmer Robert Delano of Virginia, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, has these predictions. First, that the continuing welfare of our nation will be closely tied to national understanding and support for food production.

Second, that with this understanding and support, America's competitive, private-enterprise farming system will continue to outpace all others.

Third, that the prosperity and well-being of the small percentage who are farmers will continue to affect the lives and economic well-being of everyone, far out of proportion to their numbers. And finally, that individual, hard-working, successful individual farmers will continue to be the heartbeat of American agriculture.

Uncle Samuel doesn't seem to have job or business

By Richard Leshar, U.S. Chamber of Commerce

The guests have arrived, the cards are dealt. And just as the four of you settle down for an evening's game of bridge, Uncle Samuel tells himself in the front door, "Oh no. Uncle Samuel doesn't seem to have a job or business -- but everyone else's business seems to be fair game. During the bridge game he kibitzes; insists on changing trump in the middle of a trick; and, despite his ignorance of the game, makes new rules and requires that you play them."

When the food is brought in from the kitchen, Uncle Samuel takes half, drops some on the floor, and gives the ham sandwiches to those who wanted roast beef and vice versa. He seems pleased with himself. And before he leaves for the evening, he reaches into the players' pockets and helps himself to loose change.

WE ALL KNOW people who are incompetent at handling their own lives but are free with advice for the rest of us. The spinster aunt who tells us who and how to marry. The bungling employer who can't do his job but harasses us when we are trying mightily to do ours. And we all know Uncle Samuel -- Uncle Sam for short.

Yes, Uncle Sam, unaffectionately known as the federal government, is a meddling. He pries into our personal and business lives. He wants us to fill out forms so that he knows exactly what we are up to at any given moment. He tells us what to do when. And he helps himself to our pocketbooks to finance his role as nanny.

A recent cartoon showed two politicians talking in Washington. One explained to the other, "My motto in life is if it moves, tax it; if it moves too quickly, regulate it; and if it doesn't move at all, subsidize it."

Politicians simply love to control things: our lives, our incomes, our bank accounts. Thus, politicians are weary of new technologies and changes in the economy; they don't control them and, therefore, they don't like them. A dynamic, vibrant and growing economy spins off new ideas, new jobs, new inventions and new companies at a dizzying pace.

The politicians can't take credit for such progress, and so they become morose and unhappy. Change produced by new laws, new regulations and new spending programs is, however, unthreatening. The prohibit on the rest of us is that such changes may impoverish rather than enrich our lives.

THIS ATTITUDE towards progress in the private sector has prompted some self-serving congressmen to grab headlines with denunciations of recent corporate mergers and acquisitions. In mergers -- as both mergers and acquisitions are known in the popular press -- one company buys another firm, or the two companies merge assets to become one firm.

What is the matter with mergers? Nothing, unless you are a politician and resent anybody doing anything without your express permission. Oh, politicians may give other reasons for opposing mergers. Business is bad, they say. But they combat such big news by increasing the size and power of the federal government -- the biggest "business" in the world. Who do these guys think they are kidding?

An examination of the role of merger activity in our economy shows that it generally benefits Americans. Mergers benefit consumers, workers and investors by increasing the efficiency of both the buyer and the acquired firm.

Religious Heritage Day Nine Wayne churches plan historical displays for open house on Sunday

Variety is the theme as nine Wayne churches and the Wayne Ecumenical Campus Ministry prepare to celebrate a Religious Heritage Day open house Sunday, April 29, from 2 to 5 p.m.

All churches participating in the event will conduct tours of their buildings during open house hours, with hosts and hostesses dressed in centennial garb.

The observance is being held in conjunction with Wayne's centennial celebration.

THE OLDEST church in Wayne, First Baptist Church, 400 Main St., will display old and new church linens, a wall hanging and church documents.

St. Mary's Catholic, 412 E. 8th St., will feature an old baptismal font which is no longer in use; the church silver; and a fat-chuck rug made by women of the church.

The Wayne Centennial quilt, which was cooperatively "effort" of Wayne churchwomen, will be on display at St. Mary's during Religious Heritage Day.

The Campus Ministry is planning an art show of religious subjects done by Wayne State College students.

KING'S DAUGHTERS members, the women's association of the First Church of Christ, 1110 E. 7th St., will be cutting bandages during the open house to be used by the African mission supported by the church.

Slides depicting the work of the mission will be shown during the afternoon. First Church of Christ is Wayne's newest church.

Altar rail kneelers, done in needlepoint by women of the church, will be shown at St. Anselm's, 1006 Main St. Other features will be the new Lenten vestments, altar frontal and hangings, the church silver, a wooden cross crafted by a former parishioner of Fr. Ellis Peterson, and the wooden sculpture, Christus Rex, carved by William Cordiner, a former sculpture teacher at Wayne State College.

ANTIQUE CHURCH publications, a Bible, catechisms, hymnals, and organist's book, all in German, will be highlighted at Grace Lutheran Church, 904 Logan St.

An old black pastor's gown, worn by Pastor Otto Wittig of the Missouri Synod, and banners made by church members also will be shown. A collection of confirmation pictures dating from 1925 will have visitors playing "guess who."

A stained glass window, retrieved from the old church building which was destroyed by fire, is the focal point of the display at St. Paul's Lutheran, 421 Pearl St.

St. Paul's celebrated its own centennial in 1981 and will have centennial items to show, as well as paraments and banners and a woven wheat cross.

Redeemer Lutheran, 5th and Lincoln, will show an antique candelabra, pictures, books, and the Northeast District banner. New and old church paraments made by members will be featured in a "hands on" display, as well as the special cabinet constructed to store the paraments.

An old circuit rider's vestment, owned by Pastor Daniel Mönson's father, also is included.

THIS YEAR marks the 200th year of Methodism in the United States, so the First United Methodist Church, 6th and Main, will mark the observance as well as Religious Heritage Day by showing a film on Methodism in the United States and in Wayne will be highlighted.

Church members will conduct tours of the building showing the new organ, stained glass windows, and recent renovations. A mural of Methodism in the United States and in Wayne will be highlighted.

Historical items to be shown at Wayne Presbyterian Church, 216 W. 3rd St., include silver, china, books and pictures.

A latchhook hanging of the symbol of the church, stained glass windows, christmans and banners also will be displayed.

COMPLIMENTARY refreshments, donated by the participating churches, will be served during open house hours in the First United Methodist fellowship hall.

A free will offering will be taken to help defray costs of a combined church service scheduled Sunday, Sept. 7 during Wayne's centennial celebration.

Ribbon encircling Pentagon

CHURCH WOMEN UNITED of Wayne recently completed this banner as part of a mile of sewn-together segments of cloth that will form a ribbon to be stretched around the Pentagon in August of 1985 to mark the 40th anniversary of the Nagasaki and Hiroshima bomb. The ribbon, which is being made piece by piece by units of Church Women United across the United States, expresses the determination of women, men and children in all walks of life that holocaust will not be the heritage of future generations. Pictured displaying the local banner are Linda Carr, at right, who serves as president of Wayne Church Women United and prepared the stencils and cloth, and board member Dorothy Aurich, at left, who painted the banner. Other board members who designed the banner, which features emblems of the six churches represented in Wayne Church Women United, are Marjorie Porter, Blanche Backstrom, Margaret Lundstrom and Marian Jordan.

CUTTING CALORIES THROUGH PREPARATION

An important factor in weight control is the method of food preparation. You may be surprised to know that a potato and a carrot have the same number of calories, although most people think potatoes are fattening. Why?

An ordinary potato, baked or boiled, may contain only 100 calories. Mashed, with some milk added, the count rises to 150 calories. If you use a lot of butter, you can bring that total to 250 calories. French frying can make it 200 to 250 calories. If you make hash browns, you can build that count to 450 calories. Cream sauces and gravies also add additional calories and should be used sparingly. But potatoes are potatoes; it's the preparation that makes the difference.

Diet Center recommends the use of herbs in adding unusual and delicious flavors to foods.

Wayne sweeps double-header against Boys Town on Tuesday

Dave Longe scored the winning run in the seventh inning to lead Wayne to a 5-2 win in the first game and an eventual sweep of Boys Town in a double header Tuesday afternoon in Omaha. The Blue Devils rolled to a 10-3 victory in the second contest.

Both games were scheduled to go six innings but the first one went an extra inning when the score was knotted at the end of six.

The Blue Devils appeared to have victory in hand as they held a 2-0 lead going into the bottom of the sixth. Steve Overin's double scored Don Larsen in the fourth inning and Overin scored on a wild pitch in the top of the sixth.

THE DEVILS let their lead slip away in the bottom of the sixth as Boys Town came back with two runs on three singles, a walk and an error.

Wayne wasted no time in breaking the deadlock. Longe led off the seventh with a base hit, stole second base and moved to third on a wild pitch. Kevin Maly walked and stole second. Longe scored on a fielder's choice that failed to produce an out and Jeff Sherer was safe at first base.

Maly and Sherer scored insurance runs to provide the final 5-2 count.

Overin pitched all seven innings, striking out 11 batters and giving up only five hits.

DON LARSEN and Ted Lueders shutdown Boys Town's offense in the second game as the Blue Devils picked up a 10-3 win.

Larsen gave up just one hit through five innings before he walked the first two batters in the sixth. Lueders came in and completed the game. He gave up one hit and one walk but notched two strikeouts.

Kevin Maly scored four runs in the ball game to lead the winners. The Devils had seven hits with no player collecting more than one.

Steve Overin ripped a two-run homer in the sixth inning. Chris Wieseler had an RBI single in the first inning. Jeff Sherer had a two-run single in the second and Larsen had an RBI double in the second.

Wayne is scheduled to host Laurel tomorrow (Friday) at Hank Overin Ball Park.

Wayne to host weekend schedule

Three different sports will be taking place at the same time this weekend at Wayne State College.

The Central State Intercollegiate Conference softball tournament (eight teams) and the CSIC baseball playoffs (three teams) will be played Friday and Saturday at WSC. Also, the annual Wayne State alumni-versus spring football game will be played Saturday at 2:30 p.m.

Besides the seven softball, two baseball and alumni football teams on campus Friday and Saturday, a number of other track squads will compete Monday in the Wayne State Invitational. The collegiate meet was rained out on its original date April 17.

The softball tournament will include an excellent field. All eight CSIC teams this week are either ranked or received votes in the national NAIA poll. Emporia State, the defending NAIA national champion, is currently rated first. Pittsburg State is fourth, Missouri Western is sixth, Kearney State is seventh and Washburn is 10th. The other schools — WSC, Missouri Southern and Fort Hays State — all received votes.

Coach Sue Kovar's WSC team has given Emporia State one of its losses and swept Kearney State in a double-header.

A meeting to determine seedings and brackets will take place Thursday evening. Play begins Friday at 10 a.m.

Wayne State's baseball team will vie for the CSIC title with Missouri Southern and Emporia State this weekend. The three teams were chosen because they were the top CSIC teams in their respective states.

Coach Lenny Klaver's Wildcats will play the first game on Friday against Missouri Southern at 10:30 a.m. Klaver said the winner of that game will go up against Emporia State at 1:15 p.m. ESU will play the third game, also, against the loser of the opening contest.

Saturday's play at the WSC diamond includes a 1 p.m. game. If all three teams are 1-1 on Friday, then a 3:30 p.m. game on Saturday will be necessary also.

Wayne State sports slate

WSC loses a pair

The Wayne State baseball team lost a pair of ball games against Briar Cliff Friday afternoon, falling 6-3 in the opener and 4-11 in the second game.

The Chargers outthrew the Wildcats eight to five in the first game. Rich Murcek nabbed a two-run single and Kurt Brosamle drew a bases-loaded walk to score Mike Hutcheon.

Craig Robb added a double for the Cats. Max McDonald suffered the loss on the mound. In the second game, Briar Cliff had six hits and WSC had three. Four errors aided the Chargers. Dan Hugenkamp was the losing pitcher. Wayne's record fell to 8-18 while Briar Cliff improved its mark to 10-9.

Meet record leads Wayne

Jon Stollenberg set a meet record to lead the Wayne freshman boys track team in the 'S' Club Invitational at Schuyler. Stollenberg ran the 55-meter hurdles in 8.17 seconds to break the existing meet record of 8.33. He also placed second in the 110-meter low hurdles with a time of 15.11 seconds and tied for second in the high jump by clearing 5-3. Al Foote ran the 100-meter dash in 12.27 seconds to place second and the 200-meter dash in 25.20 to finish third. Mark Rahn finished third in the 100 with a time of 12.77 seconds and fifth in the 200 in 26.0 seconds. Ted McCright finished fourth in the long jump with a leap of 17-1/2. Fremont Bergan 33, 4. DC Aquinas 36 1/2, 5. Wayne, 29, 6. Columbus Lakeview 28.

Weaver signs Iowa all-stater

Coach Rick Weaver announced Tuesday the intentions of forward Jim Myers of Burlington, Iowa, to enroll at Wayne State College to play basketball next year. He is the Cats' third cage recruit.

The 6-5, 195-pounder was a three-year letterman for Burlington. The team's MVP and captain, Myers was all-Mississippi Eight Conference and led the league in rebounding at 10.5 per game and was second in scoring at 17.9.

Myers was third team all-state this past season by the Iowa Newspaper Association and was a fifth-team pick by the Des Moines Register. He will play in the Iowa Coaches Association All-Star series this summer in Northern Iowa's UNI Dome.

"Jim is a good athlete who can play inside and outside," said Weaver. "He is a solid rebounder evidenced by his double-digit rebounding average and he also knocked down 30 three-point plays (from over 19 feet) which indicates that he can shoot the ball."

Burlington reached the semifinals of the Iowa boys state tournament in Class 3-A (large schools). WSC's other basketball recruits are Russ Rosenquist of Sioux City Heelan and Jeff Williams of Columbus, Ohio. Rosenquist is also in the Iowa all-star series this summer.

Lady Cats take title

Wayne State's women's track team won the seven-team Dordt relays on Friday. The Wildcats tallied 194 points, 46 more than runner-up Dordt's 148.

WSC won nine events, including Jo Carlson's record discus throw of 120 1/2. The old mark was 112-0 by Sandy Schmitzler in 1980. Carlson is a graduate of Wayne Carroll High School.

The other Wayne State winners were Vicki Byrkit in the high jump at 5-6. Missy Stollenberg of Wayne in the long jump at 16 3/4 and Tracy Newberger in the shot put at 41-3 in the field events. The running champs were Kelley Snyder in the 100-meter hurdles in 14.9, Stollenberg in the 200 in 26.4 and three relays: 4x100 in 50.5, 4x400 in 4:09.7 and the sprint medley in 1:49.3.

The sprint medley is the school's first baton unit to qualify for the national NAIA meet.

The nine WSC men's team finished fourth out of nine teams with 65 points. The only WSC champ was Larry Hinman who took the 800 in a windy time of 2:03.0.

Muddy feedlots cut beef gains
Just about everyone knows that muddy feedlots cut gains but the question is — how much?
A three-year study showed that mud reduced daily gains 25 to 37 percent and increased the feed required per pound of gain 25 to 35 percent.
Both losses were reduced sharply when a dry place was provided for rest. Gain was reduced only 10 percent while conversion efficiency dropped 4.7 percent.

THE PURPOSE of the study was to compare effects of mud, wind and rain on beef cattle performance. Tests were held during the winter months but air temperatures were relatively mild.
Rain reduced beef production more than wind but less than mud. Artificial rain of .19 inches during a 10-minute period each hour decreased daily gains 15 percent and reduced feed conversion efficiency 20 percent.
Wind of up to four miles per hour apparently did not affect the cattle.
The calving and rebreeding period is probably the most critical time of year for nutrition of the beef cow. The cow's work load peaks at 2-6 weeks after calving, yet normal feed may not be that good.

AFTER SHE CALVES, her nutrient needs soar. Her total daily feed intake should be about 20 lbs. or more and it should include 2.2 lbs. of crude protein and about 14.5 lbs. of total digestible nutrients. Her phosphorus level goes to 23 grams a day. Her calcium and vitamin needs nearly double.
Why does this happen? She must produce milk for the calf and rebuild her reproductive tract back to normal so that she will be in condition to cycle and conceive. Hopefully, this won't take longer than 90 days from calving.
Feeding about 10 lbs. of alfalfa hay per day should provide enough supplemented protein and energy until grass is available.

Protect animals from bruises
Within any given 24-hour period, almost 100 tons of beef, lamb and pork will have been destroyed due to carelessness in handling livestock.
Bruises mean lower prices for live animals. Not only is trim wasted but it takes labor to trim out bruised meat. Also the trimmed cuts or carcasses are often discounted.
Here are six ways to help cut down bruises in slaughter animals:
1. Outlaw clubs and whips.
2. Eliminate protruding nails, broken boards and square corners in lots and working areas.
3. Remove machinery from the feedlots and handling areas.
4. Provide well designed loading facilities — solid side stair step chutes are preferred.
5. Beat the truck properly (wet sand in summer) and be sure there is adequate air movement.
6. Select a trucker with good equipment and an understanding and willing attitude in regard to providing sound livestock hauling practices.

JIM HORNER and participant Carmen Patent discuss various aspects of the LEAD program.

LEAD looks for future leaders

Nebraska residents have until June 30 to file applications for the LEAD (Leadership Education Action Development) program.
The program offers intensive study and travel for future leaders in agriculture. Agriculturists between the ages of 25 and 40 can apply for two-year fellowships valued at $10,000 each.
The LEAD program is designed to increase knowledge and understanding of economic and social changes affecting agriculture and rural areas.
JIM HORNER, state director of LEAD, said he is convinced the program is working. He pointed out that 30 percent of the participants in the program received gubernatorial appointments. One is running for legislature and six are running for school board seats.

The LEAD program is entering its fourth year and participants have traveled as groups to China, Latin America and the Middle East, Horner said. The program is not strictly for agricultural education.
Carmen Patent of Randolph is one of northeast Nebraska's participants. She said she has gained self-confidence and has had the opportunity to meet people. Mrs. Patent, who farms north of Randolph with her husband, said there are doors in agriculture open to women.
She stressed that individuals should take time in filling out application forms because of the commitment involved with LEAD.
Mrs. Patent, who is running the farm now while her husband is in Lincoln working on a degree, said the LEAD program has opened some doors for her. She added that it is a good opportunity to promote agriculture and its products.

Each year, 30 persons are selected to join LEAD. Of that number, 24 are engaged in production agriculture and six are working in an agriculture related area.
Members attend various seminars. Applications for LEAD IV are now being accepted prior to June 30. For more information and an application, call Jim Horner at 472-6810 or write him at: Nebraska Agricultural Leadership Council, 302 Agricultural Hall, University of Nebraska, Lincoln 68583-0709.

farm briefs

Area new varieties less hardy?

Severe winter injury to many Nebraska winter wheat fields has caused many to ask whether newer winter wheat varieties are less hardy than those used in the past, a University of Nebraska extension agronomist said.
A. F. "Gus" Dreier said currently grown varieties are less hardy than Turkey and Nebred, for example. "Yield has been used as a primary factor in selecting varieties," Dreier commented. "Under our (Nebraska) conditions, in the absence of winter injury, less hardy selections seem to be favored," he said. But, he emphasized, plant breeders also screen for winterhardiness. "They then must make judgements on the level of winterhardness necessary."
Modern farming practices have made it possible for farmers to tolerate a lower level of hardiness, Dreier said. There is increased use of semi-dwarf varieties, which generally are less hardy than commonly grown standard varieties. "Some semi-dwarf varieties are exceptions," Dreier said, "and Colt, released by Nebraska, is one of these."
Wheat did not "harden" properly in the fall of 1983, Dreier said. "This factor, followed by extreme cold, resulted in winterkill of varieties with a high level of hardiness under normal situations," Dreier said. The amount of snow protection and top growth also were factors affecting survival, he said.

4-H horse shows planned

Dates and locations for eight district 4-H horse shows, to be held prior to the State 4-H Horse Exposition at Fanner Park in Grand Island July 16-19, have been announced by R. B. Warren, University of Nebraska extension 4-H horse specialist.
The district shows are for Lincoln, 14 percent; Kearney, Warren said. The makeup of the 1984 shows is based on 1983 enrollment, balance of show size and new sites, Warren said.
The complete schedule for June: 19 — Central City; 20 — Madison; 21 — Wahoo; 22 — Beatrice; 26 — Bassett; 27 — Lexington; 28 — Ogallala; 29 — Bridgeport.

Grain stocks are down

Nebraska feed grain stocks (corn, grain sorghum, oats and barley) to all positions on April 1, totaled 17.1 million tons. This was 36 percent below last year's record.
Corn stored in all locations in Nebraska totaled 502.2 million bushels on April 1, 38 percent lower than last year's record high. Corn on farms was 285.1 million bushels, down 46 percent. Off-farm stocks totaled 217.0 million, down 23 percent from last year's record but still the second highest on record.
Grain sorghum stocks totaled 103.0 million bushels, 23 percent below April 1, 1983. Sorghum stored on farms totaled 32.4 million bushels, 38 percent lower than last year, and off-farm stocks of 70.6 million bushels were 14 percent lower only.
Stocks of oats totaled 8.6 million bushels, down 45 percent from last year and the second lowest on record. Oats on farms totaled 7.5 million bushels, down 41 percent, while off-farm stocks totaled 1.1 million bushels, 60 percent below a year earlier.

Preventing disease

Guidelines given for horse vaccination programs

A number of diseases in horses can be prevented by proper immunization. But, said a University of Nebraska extension veterinarian, the horse's age, where it's located and how it's used will determine what vaccines are needed.
Donald Hudson, DVM, said horses that are stressed by hauling and performance and those exposed to large numbers of horses have greater risks of contracting contagious diseases. "Consequently," Hudson said, "vaccination requirements for mares, foals, mature horses not being hauled or shown, and performance horses will vary."
Hudson listed several vaccination guidelines that will apply in most instances. "Your local veterinarian can further advise you as to the type of vaccination procedure, and if you should be using additional vaccines on your farm or ranch," he added.

THREE DOSES annually administered at the fifth, seventh and ninth month of gestation are required to prevent Rhinopneumonitis (contagious viral abortion). If not on the above schedule, give a booster two weeks before hauling.
Maintain a closed herd after November if possible. Any horses kept with broodmares should be given the same type of vaccine and be on the same vaccination schedule.
In addition, two doses of tetanus toxoid are required, each administered the first year four to eight weeks apart, followed by an annual booster. To prevent Eastern and Western Encephalomyelitis (sleeping sickness), give two doses one to four weeks apart, depending on the product, the first year prior to the mosquito season, with an annual booster shot given prior to the mosquito season.
Finally, two doses administered four to six weeks apart are required the first year for influenza. Give booster shots twice a year; they may be given 30 days before foaling. More frequent boosters are needed if the mare is hauled, shown or exposed to transient horses. Give the booster two weeks prior to hauling.
FOALS THAT DO NOT receive colostrum within 24 hours or whose dams were not immunized before foaling should be given tetanus antitoxin to provide immediate protection against this disease. These foals should be started on a vaccination program earlier than the foal that received adequate colostrum.

Rhinopneumonitis: Two doses initially, each administered four weeks apart, starting at two to three months of age. Booster every 60 to 90 days during the first year.
Tetanus: Two doses of tetanus toxoid initially, each administered four to eight weeks apart, starting at three to four months of age.
Encephalomyelitis (Eastern and Western): Two doses initially, each administered one to four weeks apart (depending on the product), starting at three to four months of age.
Influenza: Two doses initially, each four to six weeks apart, starting at four months of age.
Strangles: Three doses initially, each one to three weeks apart, starting at three months of age.
Rhinopneumonitis: Booster every six months. If hauled to show, booster at least two weeks before broodmares, use the same program recommended for broodmares.
Tetanus: Annual tetanus toxoid booster. Also give following surgery or in case of a wound to the horse.
Encephalomyelitis (Eastern and Western): Annual booster before the mosquito season.

Tetanus: Same as recommended for show horses.
Encephalomyelitis (Eastern and Western): Same as for show horses. Risk of encephalomyelitis depends more on exposure to mosquitoes that are carrying the virus than on exposure to other horses; therefore, isolated horses may also need to be vaccinated.
Influenza: Annual booster; additionally, booster two weeks before hauling or stress if it is more than 90 days after annual booster as administered.
Hudson also emphasized that the use of steril syringes and needles is a must. "Disposable syringes and needles are convenient, inexpensive and excellent for maintaining the sterility required in equine vaccination procedures," he added.
Encephalomyelitis (Eastern and Western): Annual booster prior to the mosquito season.
Influenza: Booster every 90 days, and two weeks prior to hauling or stress.
MATURE HORSES not exposed to strange horses or the stress of hauling and performance are less likely to contract contagious diseases. However, they still require vaccinations.
Rhinopneumonitis: Booster every six months. If isolated, this procedure may not be necessary; if kept with broodmares, follow broodmare schedule.

the farmer's wife

The Big Farmer was eating lunch one day last week when someone knocked at the door. Since we've not had much "drop-in" company this spring, it gave him a start.
At the door was a fellow who had bought a tractor at a farm auction last fall, and had never been able to get it. Now he couldn't remember the name of the owner or the location of the farm! After a few descriptions, Mike was able to direct him to the right place. Hope the tractor was still there.
I was the envy of all the other guys at the car wash this morning. I just pulled on my coveralls and boots, and I was ready for all the spasies.
A FRIEND TOOK her car to a place where they do the washing last week. As she finished, and went to the power vacuum, she was embarrassed to see the operator come with a shovel. She was even more chagrined when she saw him bring a wheelbarrow.
Car washes are wonderful inventions, but I always feel guilty about using all those gallons of water. They are busy places whenever the sun shines.
Obviously, we did not plant potatoes on Good Friday. I wonder if we will have them in Memorial Day.
Also obviously, we are not planting trees on Arbor Day. But we will plant some because we come from two families of tree planters.
MY MAPLE TREE from a Mother's Day a few years back is very tall. And the red maple from Father's Day three years ago is going to make it. A younger walnut tree survived all the kids last year on graduation day, so I have high hopes for it, too.

When Arbor Day was begun, 112 years ago, Nebraska did not have an abundance of trees. What there was grew along the rivers. My family history book says that my great-grandfather hauled young trees from the Blue River and planted them on this farm. And when the grasshoppers came, and the dry years accumulated, he would stand and look at a picture on his wall of the trees in Germany.
Fifty years ago, the CCC planted wind breaks on farms. My Dad's had one that was a half mile long. We played many hours in it. There were a lot of rubbery trees, and I vividly remember shaking and cleaning those things. They made our mouths and fingers purple.
When my Dad sold the farm, the new owner bulldozed the trees out to make room for more corn. This broke my heart.
I firmly maintain that the grain farmers had made some serious mistakes by taking out trees, planting "fence-row" fence rows, and plowing ground that should have stayed in native grass.
MY NEIGHBOR has the most beautiful wind-break around. His family were tree planters, too. His farmstead is surrounded by tall pines, and we call it Santa's farm. When it snows, it looks like a Christmas card. It serves as our land mark to direct visitors to our farm where to turn next.
We have several substantial wind breaks. We never know there is a north wind here on the place.
All the new rows of trees have required hours of hauling water and hoeing weeds. The kids hate to hear Dad say, "Let's go to the shelter belt for a couple hours." But we know it will be worth it.

Do you believe the old saying that if it rains on Easter, it will rain for seven more Sundays? What about snow?
We didn't look like we were going to church when we left the house at 5:30 a.m. and struggled up the lane. We changed in the church basement, and the service was worth it.
WE HAD EASTER lilies on the altar, a cross covered with flowers, a brass choir accompanying the hymns, and the choir singing "Hear the Bells Ringing." Then, pan-cakes and sausages, served by the Youth.
This was a joyous contrast to the somber Tenebrae service on Good Friday. As we pondered the seven last words, the lights were gradually extinguished. Then, the ball chimed the ninth hour, when Jesus died.
I was the organist, and I did fine on the nine tolls. But I added a couple unplanned ones during the sermon as I leaned over the balcony to see who was there. I forgot they were turned on!
The other highlight of Holy Week, again, was the Randolph Community Cantata. Their dramatization of the events of Holy Week, complete with a trial before Roman soldiers, with Pilate washing his hands, and a beautiful Resurrection scene, gave me goose bumps. The choir and soloists were tremendous, and the live orchestra accompaniment added much.
Don't forget the district music contest at WSC Friday and Saturday. See you there.

Economists believe public understanding key to shaping agriculture public policy

Keeping as many program options open as possible and making certain that the public understands both the alternatives available and the probable consequences of those alternatives is a major challenge to those shaping agricultural public policy.
That's the observation of agricultural economists Roy Frederick of the University of Nebraska and R.G. Spitzel of the University of Illinois, writing in "The Future of Farm Price and Income Support Programs." That paper is one of about 60 being produced by state and USDA agricultural economists under the umbrella title "The Farm and Food System in Transition."
"Whether public price and income policies will continue depends upon the citizens' choices in view of future economic conditions and programs," Frederick and Spitzel said.
And, any price and income programs that do emerge "are sure to be set up in response to perceived public problems."
THE AGRICULTURAL economists pointed out that understanding the economic problems of American agriculture is not an easy task. Symptoms of problems are often confused with problem cause, resulting in policies that do nothing to alleviate the problems.

"Another difficulty," the agricultural economists said, "is that economic problems vary over time, by size of operation, by enterprise combination, and among regions. No single solution will solve all problems."
Despite the difficulties inherent in understanding economic problems, they said, "government assistance for farmers is best understood through two characteristics of production agriculture: 1. a chronic excess capacity for production which results in both low farm incomes and low cash returns to capital committed to farming; and 2. instability of production, prices and income."
Instability and excess production capacity are also among the potential problems of the future.
DESPITE THE increasing stability in the '50s and '60s, "the '70s ushered in increasing economic instability throughout the agriculture and food sector." U.S. dependence on foreign markets, unusual weather conditions, reliance on borrowed capital, unsettled money conditions and floating international exchange rates were largely responsible.
Farmers relying increasingly on borrowed capital have more difficulty adjusting instability by simply reducing their living expenses and interruptions of their cash flow quickly threatens their equity positions.
"If the instability in the past decade continues, producers, agri-businesses and consumers are likely to call upon public price and income policy for relief," Frederick and Spitzel said.
"Chronic excess agricultural capacity could be the scourge of the future," the economists said. However, slowly emerging technology, production hazards and erratic weather patterns might switch the issue to a fear of food shortage, they said. "In either case, public price and income policy is likely to be relied upon to meet the economic stress alternatively to producers or consumers. Such policy is probably needed because supply and demand balanced sufficiently to avoid dramatic swings in prices seems unlikely."
Additionally, U.S. commodity prices and farm incomes are likely to be greatly affected by world conditions in the foreseeable future, they said.
THE ECONOMISTS said selective alternative farm price and income support policies which exemplify the range of choices include:
— Phasing out all support policies to allow private market decisions to determine production, prices, incomes and trade.
— Partially publicly subsidizing national income insurance and future price option program designed to facilitate risk management by farmers.
— Phasing out all price and income policies except for a recourse loan program to even out farm prices during the marketing year along with a minimal farmer owned grain reserve resource loan program.
— Replacing voluntary production control with compulsory control and aggressively seeking international commodity agreements.
"Choices among those and other options will be greatly affected by future developments in the likely problem areas mentioned above," they said.

Integrated Pest Management

Realistic pesticides objective of IPM

Integrated Pest Management (IPM) is "putting it all together," according to a University of Nebraska extension entomologist.

By "putting it all together" Lloyd Anderson said IPM puts all recommendations for growing crops into one consultation.

Anderson said that IPM is an approach to pest control which uses a combination of techniques to control the wide variety of pests that threaten crops and livestock.

trying to eliminate the pests, he said.

Proper identification of the pest problem is obtained through a regular system of field scouting, Anderson said.

The Integrated Pest Management program will be discussed in detail on "Farm & Ranch Report" Thursday, April 26. The show airs at 12:30 p.m., repeating at 9:30 p.m. and on Saturday, April 28 at 7:30 a.m. on the Nebraska ETV Network.

"The bottom line of IPM is the dollar figure," said Anderson. A producer must decide if he has a pest problem and then whether or not the cost of treating the problem is economically feasible, he said.

Consultation for IPM can be done several different ways, according to Anderson. Some approaches are self-help programs, grower-owned cooperatives, consultation organizations and agribusiness concerns.

ANDERSEN SAID the IPM is becoming more popular. Consultants presently handle well over 500,000 acres in Nebraska, with the producers in the central and eastern parts of the state using the system more than those in the Panhandle.

Sessions for field scout training are being sponsored by the University of Nebraska Cooperative Extension Service in

May. The dates and place for these sessions are May 16 on the UNL East Campus at Lincoln, May 18 at the NU North Platte Station and May 21 at the NU Northeast Station at Concord.

The alfalfa weevil situation is another topic to be discussed on "Farm & Ranch Report."

Due to favorable weather conditions this past winter and high weevil densities last season, overwintered weevil adults are expected to enter alfalfa fields to deposit eggs in large numbers, according to David L. Keith, NU extension entomologist.

ADULT WEEVILS typically leave overwintering sites during the last part of April, (one to three weeks later in western portions of the state), and deposit eggs in the stems of alfalfa plants, Keith said. Eggs hatch in seven to 14 days and larval feeding begins, he said.

"Farmers need to look at the tips of the plants for tiny holes to determine if the weevil has infested a field," said George Manglitz, NU professor of entomology.

According to Nebraska recommendations, Manglitz said if a field shows 40 percent feeding, a control should be applied. A 40 percent feeding shows a damaging population will develop in the next week or so, he said.

PRIOR TO a wet weekend, the farmland in northeast Nebraska had dried up enough to permit some farmers to get some work done. Here, a farmer near Laurel tries to get caught up on his farm work after a wet spring kept him out of his field.

'Black gold' is given away in Nebraska but it's going on soil not coming out of it

There's "black gold" in Nebraska but this is going on the soil instead of coming from the soil.

Leon Chesnin, University of Nebraska extension waste management specialist, said the City of Omaha is spreading "black gold" on surrounding farmland. This "black gold" is a dewatered sewage sludge produced by Omaha's Missouri River Wastewater Treatment Plant.

The sludge is applied at no cost to farmer cooperators and Chesnin said the give-away program will substitute for dollars spent on fertilizers.

THIS "BLACK GOLD" contains 30 percent solids, 2.5 percent nitrogen, 1 percent phosphorus, 0.15 percent potassium and 0.065 percent zinc. To determine the value of the sludge, Chesnin priced the nitrogen at the price of anhydrous ammonia to come up with the value of $119.50 per acre. Chesnin said the nutrients in the sludge have monetary value only if they are needed in crop production, so farmers should have soil tests run on fields before sludge is applied.

According to Chesnin, all of the ammonium nitrogen is available to plants, but the sludge should be incorporated into the soil immediately after spreading to prevent volatilization losses of the ammonia.

Of the 400 pounds of organic nitrogen in the sludge, only 15 percent to 20 percent will be mineralized by soil microbes and become available to plants during the first year of application. The remainder will become available during subsequent years.

Chesnin said the "black gold" is beneficial to both mineral and physical properties of the soil. Research by Darrell Nelson, University of Nebraska agronomy department head, found that the organic amendments in the sludge greatly improved soil physical properties on land in Indiana. Chesnin said no definite value can be applied to the positive effects on soil physical properties, such as reducing soil density. He added, though, that reducing the soil's density does result: the fuel requirements of tractors to pull implements through the soil.

Many communities still are burying their sewage sludge in the local landfill, Chesnin said. "Farmers in any economic circumstance should realize that someone is buying 'black gold' in the landfill and that Omaha is not only giving the 'gold' away but delivering it and spreading it free," he said.

Post-plant treatment may extend anhydrous ammonia season some

"Many growers seem to be locked into thinking that anhydrous ammonia can only be applied on corn and grain sorghum in two short periods — either pre-plant or sidedress," according to Dick Wiese, University of Nebraska extension soils specialist.

The sidedress period is no more than 10 to 14 days in any locale and the pre-plant period is dependent upon unpredictable spring rains, he said. "If soil moisture conditions are suitable, pre-plant application is excellent. However," he said, "Nebraska has seen its third consecutive year where spring rains are keeping soil too wet for suitable anhydrous ammonia application."

Wiese said there are 20 to 25 days between planting and sidedress time when corn emerges and grows up to six or eight inches tall. This could very well be a post-plant period," he said.

"Sometimes in this period one could expect to have suitable soil moisture for ideal anhydrous ammonia application. Suitable soil moisture is the single most important requirement for applying anhydrous ammonia. Soil moisture conditions should be the same or slightly drier than what is ideal for disking, Wiese said. "Why not apply right after planting?" he asked. "Anytime one knows where the corn or grain sorghum rows are located, anhydrous ammonia knives can be placed between the rows."

There are some possible drawbacks, he said, such as field residue, spacing knives equal to row spacing and driving a little more carefully. "But," he added, "good soil conditions can exist during that 20 to 25 day period and that is a large advantage."

That time again

SPENCER MCBRIDE of Laurel finds it a little easier to push his lawnmower on two wheels than on four as he heads up an incline on a sidewalk near his home.

Spencer, who decided it was shirtless weather, may have thought the handles on his lawnmower were more comfortable at a lower level.

SNAPPER GIVES YOU THE CUTTER'S CHOICE

You don't always mow the same lawn. Last week the grass was high and moist—this week it's not. SNAPPER's self-propelled 21" mower responds.

With a choice of six ground speeds and a separate throttle which controls the speed of the blade, you can customize your cut to match the condition of your grass. Choose a slow ground speed with a high blade speed in the tough stuff. You'll get one-pass cutting. In normal conditions, you'll groom your lawn to beautiful health in less time with a faster ground speed.

And remember, you're vacuuming as you mow thanks to SNAPPER's exclusive HI-Vac. Nice options, too. Your choice of side discharge, and attachments that mulch, de-thatch and shred fall leaves. See your SNAPPER dealer today, and you'll choose the mower that gives you a choice.
