Dedicated fans

A FEW RAIN showers didn't keep these avid track fans from sitting through the Lewis & Clark Conference track meet Thursday at Wayne State College. The three, watching the high jump in this picture, came prepared with an umbrella and blankets. They are: Mrs. Merlin Oswald and Mr. and Mrs. Ed Stucky, all of Beemer.

Declining water level is concern of city officials

Wayne's declining static water level has become a major concern of city officials.

Five wells are presently responsible for Wayne's water supply. The static water table in the aquifer which supplies those wells has dropped 38 feet in the last 50 years according to figures compiled by the Howard R Green Company, consulting engineers for a water study initiated by the City of Wayne.

Concern over the declining water level has grown with the tapping of irrigation wells in the aquifer in recent years.

THE STUDY indicates that four of the five wells have good quality water, though the water is high in alkalinity and hardness. The fifth well also is high in manganese.

The engineers have made a recommendation that the city begin a program to locate another water supply source for the City of Wayne before mining reduces water production below that of demand.

The projected life of Wayne's existing well system is 10 years, according to the report made by the engineers, but could fluctuate due to unforeseeable factors.

The report that was made for the city states that a minimum of six 500 gallon per minute wells will be needed to provide an adequate supply of water to the year 2000.

THE ENGINEERS have recommended the following schedule for the next eight years to insure an adequate water supply for the city:

•1984—1. Locate and evaluate the potential of well fields in the vicinity of Wayne; 2. Evaluate the existing rate structure and municipal finances to insure that the improvements to be made over the next 10 years will not harm the financial health of the City of Wayne.

•1985—1. Complete the evaluation and select an area for the future municipal well field; 2. Obtain options on future well sites.

•1987—1. Acquire two well sites and the necessary easements for well construction and the transmission main; 2. Design two wells and a transmission main to the City of Wayne.

•1988—1. Construct two wells and the transmission main.

•1989—1. Acquire two well sites and the necessary construction easements; 2. Design two wells.

•1990—1. Construct two wells.

•1991—1. Acquire two well sites and the necessary construction easements; 2. Design two wells.

•1992—1. Construct the final two wells; 2. Evaluate the effect on the "old" aquifer of putting the "old" well field on standby status; 3. Evaluate the water resources needs of the City of Wayne to the year 2010.

IN THE STUDY, the Howard R. Green Company established the projected water production need to be 335,000 gallons per year in 1990 and 375,000 gallons per year in 2000.

The population of Wayne was projected to the year 2000 using U.S. Census data. The engineers stated in their report that the city has shown a healthy growth rate since 1920 and growth is expected to continue through the year 2000.

According to the engineers' figures, the population projections are 6,000 in 1990 and 6,500 in 2000.

The life of the aquifer is measured by the life of the wells withdrawing water from the aquifer. The municipal wells are considered to have failed when the pumping level exceeds the top of the well screen to the atmosphere. All of the wells are cased and screened to the bottom of the aquifer.

Under that definition of well failure, the engineers predicted that the municipal well field will fail in about eight years. "This is not to say that the city wells will be dry in eight years, but production may start to decline, producing a potential for water shortages," the engineers' report said.

THE EQUALIZED LIFE of four of Wayne's wells is approximately 10 years, according to the engineers' study. The fifth well has a manganese problem and therefore is scheduled for standby use.

If treatment is provided for that well, it could be used, thus lengthening the life of the other wells, the report stated.

The engineers said that would be a short term solution to the problem confronting the city but would allow time for the location and development of a new water supply source before 1994.

Wayne actually has a sixth well but it is not in use because of its age and close proximity to two other wells.

Business donations sought

A one-shot drive to raise $16,000 for the Wayne Centennial will be carried out throughout the next two weeks.

A business fund-raising drive is designed to help pay expenses of centennial activities which include parades, a pageant, an art show, a tree planting, a photo display, petunia planting, awards and promotional items.

Pat Gross, chairman of the drive, said it is intended to be a one-shot solicitation in the business community of Wayne. The drive is scheduled to begin today (Monday) and continue through May 18.

Gross said the Centennial Steering Committee is asking businesses to donate a minimum of $50. He said the committee hopes that certain businesses which will benefit directly from the centennial will be asked to contribute more than other businesses.

"Most of the centennial events will be self-supporting but we can't put on a centennial celebration this size without money," Gross said.

Gross added that donations also are welcome from anyone in the community who would like to offer assistance. Contributions of any size may be sent to the centennial committee in care of the Wayne Chamber of Commerce.

"This centennial event will be an all-community activity. The centennial committee sincerely hopes that the business sector will enter into the spirit of the centennial celebration and feel the need to support the effort," Gross said.

Johnson planning biggest chautauqua ever held

Dan Johnson has become somewhat of an expert on chautauquas over the years. He has been responsible for organizing several such events in the past.

This year, the Wayne Middle School social studies teacher is planning Wayne's biggest chautauqua yet.

In the year of Wayne's Centennial celebration, Johnson has lined up a chautauqua that will include 25 displays. The event is scheduled on Friday, May 18 at the middle school.

THE DISPLAYS will include such skills as wheat weaving, spinning, latting, candle wicking, cross stitching, leather stripping, potting, scherenschnitte, treadle sewing, doll making, woodworking, wood carving, shoeing of horses, horsemanship and sheep shearing.

Other displays will include a senior citizens display, a Nebraska historical display, a Wayne High historical display, steam engines, an antique car, a religion display, a tractor display, a fire department historical display, a history of Wayne schools, and films.

The displays will be presented from 1 to 3:30 p.m. that day. Events planned for the evening include a community picnic, a greeting by the mayor, a play by the sixth grade class, political speeches by Merle Von Minden and Jerry Conway, a play by the seventh grade class, square dancing, a Taekwondo demonstration, a singing of "God Bless America," a middle school open house and a fireworks display.

The chautauqua is being planned in cooperation with the Wayne Centennial Committee. Rain day is Monday, May 21. The public is invited to all of the activities.

BECKY AND Dick Keidel took over Trio Travel, located at 100 Main Street, beginning May 1.

Keidels buy agency

Dick and Becky Keidel are the newest owners of Trio Travel, located at 100 Main Street.

The business changed hands May 1, with ownership responsibilities shifting from Rod and Marcia Tracey of Blair to the Keidels.

The Keidels, who have lived in Wayne for 17 years, heard the agency was for sale and decided to buy it.

"I think Wayne has the potential to support that type of service," Dick said. "We hated to see them go out of business."

The Keidels, who previously owned Sav Mar Drug, are confident of their business venture.

"Our main goal is to make people aware of the services offered," Dick said. "Overall, I think the agency will be advantageous to the economy of the Wayne community."

The Keidels, who have no plans for remodeling, will also retain the Trio Travel name.

The same personnel will also remain with the agency.

Manager of Trio Travel is Cyndee Larson and Carrie Downey is the travel consultant at the business.

Larson started her travel career by attending McConnell Travel School in Minneapolis and she has worked as a travel counselor for 5 years.

Downey graduated from Wayne State College and has worked at the agency since it opened in January.

Dick said that with the change in ownership, the agency has applied for approval from the Air Traffic Conference.

"We hope to add computer operations to the business in the fall," he said.

The service will enable the agency to process travel information right in the office.

"We will be able to give immediate viewing of all airline schedules and book flights without the use of the phone," Larson said. "Ticketing and reservations can all be done right in our office."

Larson said business hours at Trio Travel will be 9:00 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., Monday through Friday.

eddie's brother

by randy hascall

The school year is drawing to a close and that means that once again it's graduation time for high school and college seniors.

Graduation is an important time in life for all students. It brings to an end many years of work and fun in school. It is the start of another branch of a person's life.

So why end it with a long, boring commencement program? Thousands of people in this part of the state will attend commencement exercises when they should be out playing golf, or mowing lawns, or something worthwhile.

Relatives and friends of graduates will sit on hard, wooden seats in hot, stuffy gymnasiums for two-hour graduation ceremonies. Small children will scream and cry, flash cubes will flash and parents will doze off during the exercises.

Commencements are the final exam for all graduating students. No diplomas are awarded until members of the graduating class prove they can sit and sweat in their weird-looking shower caps and bath robes gowns waiting to move their tassels from one side of their caps to the other.

Members of the senior class don't attend commencement exercises because they think they're fun. All they're interested in is those rectangular sheets of paper, stating that their years of hard toil in school paid off.

The most important thing to a graduate is a signed diploma. Years from now, the graduates will have fond memories of their years in school—not of their graduation ceremonies.

Manufacturers of caps and gowns have gotten rich because of society's silly tradition.

Graduation caps are good for two things: 1. they provide a little shade during outdoor commencements, 2. they keep graduates from falling asleep during the ceremony because they're too occupied trying to keep the silly things from sliding around on their heads.

If the caps were bigger, they could be used as trays to serve breakfast in bed. A former teacher once told our high school graduation class that she thought the members of our class should wear dunce hats instead of caps.

Then, if we actually received signed diplomas, we could take the dunce hats off and burn them, she suggested. That made more sense to me.

Two weeks from now I will have witnessed four graduations. That should keep my hunger for boring activities satisfied until next May.

Our pet rabbit, Bugs II, has become somewhat of a pet celebrity in our neighborhood. We may even ask our son if he would like to enter Bugs in the centennial pet show.

I have to admit that Bugs is one of the few rabbits I have ever seen on a leash. After having a bunny for a pet for some time, I've discovered some advantages and disadvantages compared to having a dog for a pet.

Advantage: Rabbits don't chase cats up trees.

Disadvantage: Rabbits don't bring you the morning newspaper.

Advantage: Rabbits don't bark and wake up your neighbors.

Disadvantage: Rabbits don't make good watch dogs.

Advantage: Rabbits aren't required to have rabies shots and dog licenses.

Disadvantage: Rabbits aren't worth a darn as hunting dogs.

Advantage: Rabbits don't make big messes in people's yards.

Disadvantage: Rabbits, when in pairs, tend to produce lots of little rabbits which grow into large rabbits and produce lots more little rabbits. (P.S. We aren't stupid. We have only one buck rabbit!)

Advantage: Rabbits don't eat expensive dog food.

Disadvantage: Rabbits will eat everything in your garden if they get the chance.

Advantage: Rabbits don't knock over your trash cans.

Disadvantage: Rabbits can't carry small barrels of whiskey around their necks in the Arctic like St. Bernards do.

Advantage: Rabbits don't jump up on you with muddy paws.

Disadvantage: Rabbits don't like to fetch sticks when you throw them.

Enough nonsense for this column! See you around.

The 'Good News is Bad News' cult

By Richard Leshner
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

I just may have something here for the "Ripley's Believe It or Not" books. It is the recent emergence of a bizarre new tribe or cult distinguished by its mantra, "Good economic news is bad news." Its high priests can be found speaking from the front pages of the morning newspapers responding to the almost daily announcements that real economic growth is higher than projected, unemployment is falling, and job creation is proceeding at a breakneck clip with such stunning insights as, "Boy, are we in trouble now."

The latest sightings of this rather novel theology—for its tenets must be taken on faith rather than arrived at through reason—have been reactions to the Commerce Department's announcement that real economic growth for the first three months of 1984 was better than expected.

The government had projected real economic growth at an annual rate of 7.2 percent, but when the final numbers came in, we found the economy chugging along at the faster rate of 8.3 percent. Economic growth means more jobs and more wealth, but the "good news is bad news" gang dons sad clown faces in response to this latest report.

THE ARGUMENT, and the word is used charitably, runs as follows: Economic growth leads to inflation; inflation leads to higher interest rates; and higher interest rates slow down economic growth. Thus, the way to avoid a slowdown of economic growth is to avoid growth in the first place. This is not a serious economic theory, and it certainly isn't common sense.

Now these experts and pundits whose grey matter would be better employed as paperweights cannot be expected to remember back four years. You and I, on the other hand, probably remember what was going on in 1979 and 1980. In 1979 economic growth was 2.8 percent. Inflation was 11.3 percent.

In 1980, real economic growth was negative 0.3 percent. The economy was shrinking, not growing. Now the growth-creates inflation crowd would expect such a contraction to lead to low inflation and low interest rates. It did not. Inflation in 1980 was 13.5 percent, and interest rates were at their highest level since the Civil War—21.5 percent.

The growth-creates inflation theory is also rebutted by the recent history of Japan, which enjoyed both high rates of economic growth—rates which these experts tell us are "unsustainable" in the United States—and low inflation.

Both history and theory tell us that low inflation is a prerequisite for real and sustained economic growth.

WHY THEN ARE we treated to the spectacle of some economists and politicians telling us that economic growth is a bad thing? There are several reasons.

Not so very long ago the politicians and their court economists told the American people that, if we would only hand the economy over to them to manage scientifically, they would produce economic growth and eliminate boom and bust business cycles. Well, we were foolish enough to have believed them, and they proceeded to run the economy into the ground, and accelerate the recession, then inflation, and back to recession cycle. And stagflation.

To cover their tracks, the politicians then told us that we had reached an era of limits; that economic growth was no longer possible, and, indeed, some went on to say it wasn't even desirable. (The latter was heard from those who already had nice-paying jobs.)

When the American people rejected the idea that growth was impossible or undesirable and elected Ronald Reagan, these same pundits told us that supply-side economics would not bring growth and would bring high inflation. When inflation fell and growth took off—creating some five million new jobs in the process—the critics shifted to the argument that the recovery would soon abort. It didn't.

Desperate to cover for their own policy failures and jealous of the success of supply-side economics, they are grasping at straws and declaring economic health to be symptomatic of terminal illness.

So the next time you hear this sort of carping, just remember: Economic growth is just that, economic growth. And remember the corollary: It is a good thing.

ask a lawyer
a public service of the nebraska state bar association

Q: I saw an ad in the paper from a single woman who wanted to pay someone to father a child for her. Assuming that she found someone, could she later come back and force him to pay child support?

A: The legal problems raised by artificial insemination and voluntary insemination by a paid or unpaid donor constitute a new area in the law in which there are very few legislative enactments or judicial rulings.

Because the problem you describe has yet to arise in Nebraska, it is pure speculation to guess how a court in this jurisdiction might rule.

However, based on existing statutes in Nebraska and on how similar cases have been decided in other states, it seems likely that if a woman found someone to father a child for her; and if paternity could be proved, she could later ask the court to order him to pay child support.

Further, under existing Nebraska law, the father could also be liable for the reasonable expenses of the mother of his child during the period of her pregnancy, confinement and recovery.

It should also be noted that the courts might not recognize as binding any contractual release of responsibility between the woman and the donor/father for the child.

Whether in the case of children born in or out of wedlock, the primary and paramount concern of the court is with the welfare and support of the child, not the enforcement of the parents' contract.

JC's hold awards banquet

Pick a peck of pie plant
An old-fashioned signal of warmer weather to come was the first rhubarb pie of the season. Whether in a custard filling topped with meringue or baked in a double crust, it was a true spring tonic.

Pie isn't the only way to enjoy rhubarb. Sauces, puddings, punches, cakes, breads—the possibilities are limitless. By itself, rhubarb is not high in calories. Because of its tart flavor, sugar is added and calories increased. If you're watching your weight, use less sugar or try an artificial sweetener—Rhubarb contains small amounts of a number of different nutrients, mostly vitamin C.

If this is your first experience with a rhubarb patch, here are some rhubarb basics. Look for fresh stalks or any that are very slender or extremely thick. To harvest, pull from the plant, don't cut. Wash well or peel the stalks, discarding the top leaves. The leafy portion should not be eaten, it may be poisonous.

RHUBARB IS best when cooked soon after picking. If it is not possible to cook rhubarb right away, wash the stalks and dry thoroughly. Place in a moisture-vapor proof container or wrap tightly and store in the refrigerator.

Adding home-grown rhubarb is a good way to stretch other fresh, frozen or canned fruits. Try combining it with crushed pineapple, plums, strawberries or raspberries in a sauce or in tapioca.

The tartness of rhubarb combined with lemonade and ginger ale make a refreshing punch. Cook the rhubarb and strain to make a punch base. This can be frozen and used year-round for a taste of spring.

RHUBARB CAN be frozen uncooked. Just trim and wash the stalks in cool water. Slice into one to two-inch pieces and pack in a freezer container or bags. Thaw slightly before using.

To can rhubarb sauce, add 1/2 cup sugar per quart of cooked rhubarb. Heat to boiling and pack in hot jars. Prepare lids according to manufacturer's directions; adjust on jars. Process both pints and quarts in water bath canner for 10 minutes. Start counting time as soon as water covering jars begins to boil.

Rhubarb Tapioca
1 cup sugar
1/2 cup instant tapioca
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 1/2 cups sliced rhubarb
2 cups water
1 cup crushed pineapple, drained

Stir together sugar, tapioca and salt in large saucepan. Stir in rhubarb and water. Cook and stir over medium heat until rhubarb is tender and mixture is thickened. Remove from heat and stir in pineapple. Serve warm or chilled. Makes 6 to 8 servings, 140-185 calories each.

Wakefield girls win conference track title

Wakefield needed every point it could muster in winning the girls division of the Lewis & Clark Conference Track Meet which took place last Thursday afternoon at Wayne State College.

Deciding which girls team would win the team conference championship boiled down to the final event of the day — the 1600 meter relay.

Going into the girls final event, Wakefield held less than a 62-58 team lead over second place foe Ponca. In the 1600 meter relay, Wakefield's Suzanne Stelling began the final 400 meter leg in seventh place and advanced to a third place finish.

The third place finish allowed Wakefield to accumulate enough additional points to offset Ponca's second place finish in the 400 meter relay.

Wakefield girls took the championship with a team score of 68, followed closely by Ponca with 66 points. The third place team finisher was Wausau with 48 points.

In the boys division of the Lewis & Clark meet, Beemer outdistanced its nearest competitor (Ponca) by nearly 40 points to win the championship.

WAKEFIELD'S Suzanne Stelling took first place in several individual events at the meet. She set a Lewis & Clark Conference track record in the high jump (5'3") and also took first place honors in the 400 meter run (60.1) and the 800 meter run with a time of 2:30.

Another first place finisher for the Wakefield girls was Kristal Clay in the long jump with a leap of 14'9 1/2".

Ponca completed the meet with four first place finishes — Cheryl Woodford won the 3200 meter run with a time of 12:57.8 and Lisa Jensen won the 100 meter dash with a time of 33.0, and the 200 meter dash with a time of 27.0.

The Ponca team also grabbed top spot in the 400 meter relay event.

Other individual first place finishers in the girls events were Susan Bergstadt of Hartington in the discus (97'9 1/2"); Michelle Fischer of Hartington in the shot put (35'5 1/2"); Lisa Anderson of Wausau in the 100 meter low hurdles, who set a meet record with a 15.4 run in the preliminaries and won the event with a time of 15.7; and D. Magnuson of Allen, in the 1600 meter run (6:00.4).

The girls team from Allen won the 3200 meter relay (10:47) while Ponca won the 400 meter relay (53.1) and Osmond won the 1600 meter relay (4:22.6).

Wayne sweeps doubleheader

Wayne High's baseball team tuned up last Thursday afternoon for district tournament play tonight (Monday), sweeping a doubleheader from Bancroft-Rosalie by scores of 3-2 and 16-6.

Blue Devil Steve Overin was the winning pitcher in the first game of the twinbill, allowing seven hits scattered throughout six innings of play.

Overin's pitching record now stands at 3-0 and the Blue Devils, as a team, are currently undefeated in baseball games this spring.

Mike Mallette, Wayne High head baseball coach, was happy about the outcome of both games Thursday.

"The first game was an excellent one by both pitchers [the Blue Devils Overin and Bancroft-Rosalie's Bonine]," Mallette said. Bonine, in giving the distance on the mound, recorded 10 strikeouts and allowed just four hits while walking only one Wayne batter. Wayne's Overin struck out six and walked one in his pitching performance.

"Considering we were out-hit seven to four and still won the game, 3-2, I'm pretty happy with the outcome," Mallette said.

"Our hitting performance showed that the team hasn't played a game in over a week," he added.

BANCROFT-Rosalie scored the first run of the game when Bruning singled and scored on Hermelbracht's one out triple. Overin got out of the pitching jam by striking out the next two Bancroft-Rosalie batters.

The Blue Devils' first run of the game didn't materialize until the third inning after Ted Lueders drew a walk from Bonine, stole second and third and scored on a single by centerfielder Kevin Maly.

Wayne broke the tie in the bottom of the third inning when first baseman Don Larsen smacked a triple and later scored when Overin hit a sacrifice fly to leftfield.

Then, with two outs, Chris Wieseler singled, advanced to second on a wild pitch, moved to third on a stolen base attempt and scored on a wild pitch by Bonine.

Tense moments for Blue Devil fans came in the top of the final inning when Bonine tripled with two outs and scored on a single by Roth, which brought the score to 7 but still in Wayne's favor.

Roth, after a wild pitch, reached scoring position at second base before Overin struck out the next Bancroft-Rosalie batter to end the scoring threat and the game.

BLUE DEVIL Don Larsen, the starting pitcher in the second game, had trouble hitting the strike zone in the first inning, walking six of the first Bancroft-Rosalie batters.

The Panthers capitalized on Larsen's control problems by scoring three first inning runs.

Overin relieved Larson to squelch the Bancroft-Rosalie scoring.

The Blue Devils scored a run in the bottom of the first inning after Maly singled, stole second and later scored from third base on a pass ball.

Wayne's Lueders came in to pitch for Overin at the start of the second inning and went the entire distance to pick up the win. He allowed six hits and struck out four Bancroft-Rosalie batters while walking one.

Back-to-back singles by Bancroft-Rosalie's Bonine and Roth scored Hermelbracht to score another run for the Panthers in the second inning, making the score 4-1 with Bancroft-Rosalie leading.

The lead changed hands, however, in the bottom of the second inning as Wayne scored five runs on seven hits. Both Casey Nichols and Jeff Hausman started out the inning with hits — but both were forced out on plays at home plate.

Maly was the first to score as he reached base on a single, advanced on singles by Jeff Sherer and Larsen and then scored when Overin walked with the bases loaded.

Both Sherer and Larsen scored on a double hit by Todd Dorcey. Overin and Dorcey then scored on another double which was hit by Wieseler.

THE BLUE Devils scored two more runs in the fourth inning on a single by Larsen, walk to Overin and consecutive base hits by Dorcey and Lueders.

An eight-run inning in the bottom of the fifth canceled Bancroft's two runs scored in top of the fifth.

Wayne's Hausman started the fifth inning with a single and Sherer was hit by a pitch. Both Larsen and Overin drew walks and Todd Dorcey singled home a run. Wieseler hit his second double of the game, followed by a base hit by Rod Luff and a walk issued to Shanon Dorcey and Hausman.

Maly drew a walk and Sherer's double gave the Blue Devils the runs needed to end the game because of the 10-run rule.

Wayne picked up 17 hits in the last game of the twinbill. Maly continued his torrid hitting this spring, getting five hits out of six at bats in both of Thursday's games.

He is currently leading the Wayne team in batting with a .681 average, stolen bases (19) and runs scored (23).

Todd Dorcey was also perfect from the plate in the second game, going three for three. Getting two hits were Sherer, Larsen and Wieseler.

freshmen art class at LCHS. This is Scott's first full year of art, although he did take part in 7th and 8th grade for nine weeks: "Shading the lights and darks in the drawing is the hardest thing to do—and it takes the longest." Scott said. Miss Hamilton, art teacher at LCHS, agreed that shading is the most important part in realistic style art. She added, "He has very good techniques, and he is clean and precise with his art."

Ninety-four percent of the seniors agree that the use of drugs is not a big problem at Laurel school. Mr. Helgren attributes the drop in drug use to extra explanation of the dangers of drugs and, he also thinks it reflects the maturity of the students of making their own decision not to use drugs. "If you knew someone who had a problem with drugs who would you tell?" was one question asked of the students at Laurel. Thirty-five percent of the students would tell nobody closely following with twenty-nine percent would tell their parents. By Todd Gunnarson

A STORMY DAY
By Kevin William Garvin (age 9)

When it's a stormy day, you can play.
If you have company they'll have to stay.
The weather may cause delay.
The lights are out today; they canceled lecture day; we were told to stay home till May. What a dreary day.
I thing it's here to stay.

IN THE LAST 25 YEARS NORTHWESTERN BELL HAS MADE HUGE ADVANCES IN EVERY PLACE BUT ONE.

Some people seem to think that all Northwestern Bell has been doing for the last quarter century is raising their prices. The truth is, that's been done the least. The real increases have been in technology. In improving the telephone system we have and creating new ways for us to benefit from it. For instance, new technology like electronic switching makes phone connections faster and more efficient than ever. That lowers the operating costs. And Northwestern Bell has been passing the savings onto us.

And if that's not enough, local phone service is taking a smaller bite of our paychecks now than it did 25 years ago. So that means we're not only getting more out of our telephone today, we're putting less into it. Local telephone service is still a good deal.

HEALTH TIPS

From Your Family Physician

ACNE:
Described by several health experts as the bane of a teenager's existence, acne is the most frustrating health disease of all for teens and their parents and just plain pesky. It is the most common health problem when they reach puberty.

Even though acne is a common problem, discussing and acting on the problem is uncommon in many homes. Acne is given the silent treatment for two reasons: (1) if you don't talk about it, acne might go away, and (2) the acne victim must be personally responsible for having the condition; he or she must have it because of somehow questionable lifestyle.

It is true that in many instances acne left untreated eventually will subside and disappear. In the interim, though, a teenager's complexion may be scarred and self-esteem diminished. It is not true that too many steps at the drive-in restaurant, too little sleep and too few baths cause acne.

Acne happens from within the body, not without. Setting the process in motion is the male hormone androgen, which is produced by both males and females during puberty. Males produce androgen in greater amounts, the result being acne in males is generally more serious than in females.

The hormone androgen stimulates the sebaceous glands of the hair follicles to produce a fatty substance known as sebum. Blackheads, whiteheads, pimples and other skin lesions occur when the tubes from the hair follicles to the outer skin become clogged or blocked by sebum. When the skin is functioning normally, sebum keeps the skin soft and the hair lustrous.

The "at home" treatment for acne sufferers includes the following do's and don'ts. In most cases these will alleviate the condition.

DO

- Wash the skin two or three times a day to remove excess oil and to keep pores open.
- Between washings, use alcohol wipes for the same purpose.
- Shampoo the hair twice a week, again to remove excess oil.
- If your skin itches, arrange time in the sun or under a tanning bed. This has a positive effect. Exposures at all times should be timed very carefully.
- Obtain over-the-counter medication in gel form that contains benzoyl peroxide. This medication can help prevent the formation of new lesions.

DON'T

- Squeeze or pick pimples. This will help avoid scars.
- Don't use oil-based makeup or cosmetics.

Unless there is marked improvement in two weeks, the family doctor should be consulted. There are other prescription medications available for more serious cases.
